POSSIBLE CLEW FROM VERMONT

Man Answering the Description of Restelli Seen at Bennington but Allowed to Depart

Chief Burrell Believes That Assassin is Not in Quincy.

The shooting-up of South Quincy by Louis Restelli last Friday continues to be the one topic for conversation, and many are the theories advanced as to where he now is. Some believe that his dead body will some day be found in one of the numerous abandoned quarry holes. The great majority, however, believe that he was successful in getting out of Quincy and is now in the western part of the state.

As new facts come to light, it would appear that it was only by a mishap that the number of victims of Restelli's shooting were confined to those already mentined. That he had it in for several others seems to be a fact, and the list of persons against whom he was seeking revenge seems to have been a long one, and to have included almost every person with whom he had dealings.

It has been well established that he called at the office of Arthur P. Hultman in the Johnson building Friday morning, and had Hultman been in his office he would doubtless have been the first man to be shot at. Hultman, however, was at the district court, and it was fortunate for him that he was. Other parties at South Quincy were called upon that fatal afternoon by Restelli, but fortunately they were out. It seems somewhat strange, however, that with so many workmen about the different yards that someone did not fell him with a rock. The only explanation is that for a moment they were so stunned by the boldness of the shooting that the thought of grappling the man or felling him with a rock did not enter their mind.

Mr. Bishop seems to have been the one man to have grappled with the infuriated man and if the assassin had not been armed with two revolvers he would have been mastered then and there.

But little news developed in the case Sunday, although Chief Burrell received a promising clew shortly after 9 o'clock Sunday night in a long distance telephone message from State Attorney Meagher of Bennington, Vt.

Mr. Meagher informed Chief Burrell that about 12.30 Sunday morning a police officer held up a strange Italian who spoke good English. The Italian when questioned said that he had reached North Adams too late to take a train and was walking to Rutland, Vt.

The police officer had not at that time heard of the Quincy shooting and allowed the Italian to go on. Later in the day, on learning of the Quincy tragedy, he reported the circumstances.

Chief Burrell requested that the Bennington police try and follow the man up, and if possible overtake him.

Late Saturday, in searching the office of Restelli on Quarry street, the police came across his letter book. Among the letters was one addressed to Clancy & Co., a Brooklyn, N. Y., granite firm. The letter contained threats because of the non payment of a bill.

As the police had then received word that the murderer had left a train at Northampton Friday night and had taken a train Saturday morning for Spirngfield, it was thought that he might be working toward Brooklyn, to continue his murderous work. The telephone from Bennington, Vt., however would seem to indicate that he is now headed toward Rutland, Vt., as was at first figured out.

There are still many in Quincy who are inclined to the belief that after shooting Mr. Hardwick that Restelli finding himself hard pressed made way with himself by jumping into a quarry hole. Chief Burrell and the officers at work upon the case, however, believe that he took the 4 o'clock car from Quincy that afternoon as told in Saturday's Daily Ledger.

MR. CLANCY PROTECTED.

A New York dispatch to the Globe says: Theodore Clancy, who owns a stoneyard in Young street in the Blissville section of Long Island City, and another yard in Flatbush, Brooklyn, has appealed to the police of Long Island City for protection against Restelli.

Through buying big consignments of rough granite Mr. Clancy became well acquainted with Restelli, and three months ago the Quincy man had dinner with Mr. Clancy at his home, 285 Greenpoint avenue Long Island City, and they parted the best of friends. They had no business troubles and Mr. Clancy is inclined to attribute the threat to the imaginings of a disordered mind.

Two policemen have been placed on guard at Mr. Clancey's home and others have been detailed to watch his stoneyards.

C. T. A. CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the CMatholic Total Abstinence Union will be held in Boston this year and promises to be one of the greatest in history. Quincy men have a prominent place in the arrangements, Quincy being represented on nearly every committee.

Committee on badges, William Duane.

Committee on decorations, Edward King.

Committee on encampment, Lewis A. Pendis.

RESTELLI'S DIAMOND

T. L. Williams Had Constable Hultman Collect

T. L. Williams, the jeweler, returned today by boat from Rockland, Maine, after a ten days' outing in the woods of Maine. Not until early this morning did he learn of the tragedies in Quincy, and now he is very thankful that he was not in the city at the time.

It was Mr. Williams that sold Restelli the diamond ring, and it took him a long time to collect for it. It was through the persistent efforts of Constable Hultman employed by him that Restelli finally paid.

This is what caused the feeling on Restelli's part against Hultman, and had Mr. Williams happened to have crossed the path of the assassin on Friday another score might have been settled.

However, Restelli has traded with Mr. Williams since the diamond episode, and Mr. Williams has made his glasses for him. Restelli has had a cataract removed from his right eye, but now has one over his left eye. To read a paper or see well he now requires glasses. Mr. Williams says he generally wore rimless eye glasses or spectacles.

At Rockland Mr. Williams saw President Taft, and says it was a big day for the town. Fully 15,000 people assembled and the city was decorated.

REWARD MAY BE OFFERED

Granite Manufacturers Association to Hold Meeting

It is more than probable that the Granite Manufacturers Association at its meeting tonight will offer a reward for the apprehension of Louis Restelli, the murderer now at large. There has been some talk in regard to Mayor Shea offering a reward in behalf of the city for his capture. Mayor Shea said this morning, however, that under the law any reward must be offered by the Mayor and City Council. As the City Council has adjourned, it is doubtful if they will be caleld together at present about the matter.

ODD FELLOWS IN ATTENDANCE.

The funeral of Edson L. Loud was held on Saturday from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Loud of Washington street. The Rev. E. A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church was the officiating clergyman. The local lodge and encampment of Odd Fellows sent delegations, and the following acted as bearers: Chief Patriarch Thomas D. Milne, Past Chief Sam Wood, Jr., and Patriarch Charles H. Horne of Manet encampment, and Noble Grand Abel Gomez, Past Grand Arthur W. Stetson and Bro. Eben Prescott representing Mt. Wollaston and Puritan lodges. The burial was at Waltham, where the Knights of Pythias performed their services.

—"I have drawn people to hear my sermons by advertising. I have attracted them with moving pictures, hot suppers, pink teas and flowers and flags. If I have had any degree of success in Spokane it is because of the liberal use of printer's ink," said Rev. Dr. James W. Kramer, pastor of First Baptist church, who came to Spokane from South Carolina two years ago. "There is something worse than sensationalism. It is the inability of the church to produce life. The church that does not advertise is behind the times and is nursing empty pews, and he who rails against the minister for advertising is suffering or a congregation: I am not an advocate of ragtime methods or vulgar preaching, but I do plead for the church which is a humming plant of machinery, with live coals in the firebox, smoke curling from the stack and every belt ,wheel and pulley going. I believe, too, that the people need instruction and that a minister of the gospel, is first, last and all the time a teacher. There must be life."

CONDUCTOR HELD UP

Thought It Was Restelli the Murderer

Felix Lorando of Gilbert street, a conductor on the Old Colony street railway, reports that he was held up by an unknown man at the point of a revolver on Water street about 1.30 this morning. With the hold up was the demand for his money.

The first news that came to the police of the hold up was about 1.30. When Sergt. Barry heard a commotion outside of the police station door. Rushing out, the officer found a man on the sidewalk, breathing hard, and so exhausted he could hardly speak. After being revived somewhat in the police station, he said, that he was on his way home up Water street. When opposite the ball grounds a man jumped from behind the fence and pointing a revolver at him, and demanded his money. Lorando did not stop for further argument, but turning about ran as fast as his legs could carry him toward the police station with the man in pursuit. He said he believed the man to have been the Italian Restelli.

Officer Dinneen was detailed to accompany Lorando home. The conductor was thoroughly frightened, and had to be supported by the officer, and again collapsed after reaching home. Dr. McLennan was called to attend him. The police while not doubting the attempted hold up, do not place any reliance on the theory that the hold up man was Restelli..

Lorendo was practically unconscious all night, and at one time it was thought it might be necessary to send him to the hospital. Lorendo, who is at present, night starter at Neponset, visited the street railway office this noon, and is now a physical wreck. He said he remembers nothing from the time he began to run until he came to at 5 A. M. He said that he was crossing the field near the ball grounds when the man came suddenly onto him. The man he describes as being thick set with his hat pulled down over his eyes. He held a revolver in his right hand. Then it was that Lorendo turned and ran.

He knows Restelli, the missing murderer well, but is not prepared to say whether the man that held him up was Restelli or not, as the man's face was hidden from view.

—Are you in the habit of running over to a neighbor's to use his telephone? If so, is it always convenient for you—and for your neighbor? Don't you think that it would be much better for all concerned if you had a telephone of your own? Your neighbor evidently thought so when he ordered one installed.—Mansfield News.

MYSTERIOUS MAN ABOUT

Visited House on Adams Street About 2 A. M.

The hunt for Restelli took on added interest this morning when a telephone message was received at the Police station in regard to a man seen in the rear of the Dewson estate on Adams street this morning. Inspector McKay with Officers Farrell, Thorne and George A. McKay were hurried to that locality. Sergt. Garrett and Officers Davis and White of the Metropolitan police also hastened to the scene, as did also Mayor Shea and a squad of reporters.

On arriving on the scene, and sifting the story down, it developed that about A. M., Mrs. Johanna McLeod a cook in the Dewson family, was awakened by hearing someone moving about in the back yard. The party went to the swill bucket and removed the cover, and apparently ate something found in it. He then walked to an apple tree which he began to shake, and then began picking up a lot of apples, started off.

That someone had been at the swill bucket was evident by the numerous fresh foot prints about it, and by the fact that the cover had been removed and thrown one side.

Down by the brook, however, there were two fresh foot prints in the mud, showing where some one had stood near the water. There were no prints on the opposite side although the bushes had been beaten down, giving the appearance that someone had gone through.

Sergt. Garrett and Officer Davis followed the prints back through the bushes until they were lost in the grass land. The foot print near the brook was a large one, and looked as though it might have been made by a shoe similar to those worn by quarrymen.

Sergt. Garrett still thinks Restelli may be in Quincy, and said this morning that he should put his men on the trail again today between the Furnace Brook parkway and Newport avenue.

FUNERAL OF VICTIM.

The funeral of Mrs. Mariana Restelli, the first victim of Friday's shooting, was held Sunday afternoon from her late home, 80 Trafford street. A crowd of several hundred gathered in the street about the house, largely out of curiosity. Chief Burrell and two officers were on duty near the house to prevent any disturbance, but there was none.

The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery and there, another large crowd was congregated but everything was orderly.

There was such a crush about the grave when the casket was opened, that the two daughters of Mrs. Restelli fainted and the casket was hastily closed.

It was reported Saturday that the funeral was to take place from St. John's church but this plan was changed and there were no church services.

NEW FREIGHT YARD WANTED

Board of Trade Would Locate On Granite Branch

Officials of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. are at South Quincy today to meet a committee of the Board of Trade who are working to secure a larger freight yard and better facilities for loading granite. They were met at Quincy Adams at 10.30 A. M. by Messrs. John R. Richards, Edward J. Sandberg and E. R. Atwood and a representative of the Daily Ledger. The officials representing the railroad were G. M. Wood, assistant general freight agent; F. S. Hobbs, freight traffic master; and A. W. Martin, superintendent.

At the present time the South Quincy freight yard is the only outlet for the immense quantities of granite, crude and finished, which come and go in an dout of Quincy, excepting a hand boom derrick at West Quincy. Necessarily the greater part of the shipments are in small lots since the total product is shipped to numerous points, thus the electrically operated crane, though it works smoothly, is unable to work speedily as would be the case if one car at a time could be loaded to its full capacity. Neither are the freight cars fully loaded, and it is estimated that fully two-thirds of the car capacity is unused. In the month of April and May the greatest rush of shipments occurs, and with but one crane operating, it requires nearly five times as many teams to haul the stone as would be necessary with two cranes operating.

As a temporary relief, a hand crane of the type formerly in use at the place will be installed, and there is no doubt of the benefit to be obtained.

The fact that the freight shipments are only made at night from this point also causes material delay.

The committee representing the Board of Trade had in mind, however, a site adjacent to the Granite branch of the New Haven road's track, a depression about one hundred yards wide by one thousand yards long, on the north side of the track midway between West Quincy and Braintree, which presents an ideal location for granite yards, and for a central granite shiping point for Quincy. Directly accessible to South and West Quincy and the quarries and with hardly an exception convenient for every granite dealer's shipping, in many cases more so than the Quincy Adams yard. This hollow is ideal for

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

That Louis Restelli should have escaped from Quincy so easily after his shooting up of the city and the killing of at least two persons is not creditable to Quincy. It must be confessed that there was considerable cowardice, as at none of the tragedies was there any attempt either to check his wild career or to follow him, or to give an alarm. As Chief Engineer Williams of the Fire department has since suggested a fire alarm should in all such cases be rung promptly from the nearest box. This should, if necessary, be followed by the police call 3-3-3.

It was unfortunate, of course, that Chief Burrell should have been in Boston at the time, and that Lieut. McKay was also out of town, as precious time was lost in giving the alarm and notifying Boston and surrounding towns.

It is probable that all the shooting was done in a half hour between 1.30 and 2.45, but it was 3.40 before the police call was sounded, and 4:50 before box 441 of the fire alarm was pulled. Now it seems that Restelli left Presidents bridge for Boston on an electric car at 4 P. M., about an hour after he killed Mr. Hardwick. To walk from the Hardwick quarry to Presidents bridge via Carroll's lane and over Cranch hill, the route probably taken by Restelli would not take over half an hour. Where was the murderer during the hour and fifteen minutes? Had there been pursuers, even at a safe distance as at the recent shoot-up in Lynn, Restelli would not have escaped, and he ought not to have reached the office of Mr. Hardwick. In Lynn the crowd rushed after the three desperadoes who shot down the shoe manufacturer and the policeman, and all three were captured within two hours. If unwilling to pursue the murderer they had an opportunity to use the telephones and warn people at Brewers Corner, West Quincy, Wollaston, Atlantic, Neponset and Milton to be on the lookout for him. The police call should have been sounded before 2.45

Now it seems necessary and the only thing to be done, to offer a reward of $1000 promptly for the capture of Restelli. The city, the Granite Manufacturers Association or the family of Messrs. Hardwick should before night take this action. There should be no delay, as every hour makes his capture more difficult. We believe it possible to capture him within a week.

Unless the Police department has conclusive evidence that Restelli has escaped from the city should there not be a systematic search by 100 men of the North Commons, the whole quarry section from Whitwell and Adams streets to North to Granite street on east, Metropolitan boulevard on the west, and Copeland street or Blue Hills on the south.

Southbridge, Mass., Aug. 1.—After having been closed since the latter part of January, the Southbridge Savings bank, which was wrecked by the peculations of Treasurer John A. Hall, reopened for business today, with C. A. Chapman as treasurer.

—The Springfield merchants say that a wide sidewalk is worth more as a business asset than the same amount of space in the store. In Springfield the Board of Trade is working through a committee of 30 business men to secure wide streets, and hence wider sidewalks in front of business places. This principle that a sidewalk too narrow decreases the value of property and deceases its earning power, is recognized all over the world.

OLD SALTS INTERESTED

Two Sailing Ships Leave Boston on Race of Seven Thousand Miles

Boston, Aug. 1.—A race over one of the longest courses in the world started in Boston harbor today, when the British full-rigged ship Brynhilda and the Norwegian bark Apollo sailed to the open sea with Buenos Ayres, 7000 miles away, as the goal.

The brushes between ocean greyhounds that churn across the seas to Europe in less than a week are mere episodes compared with tne long voyage that stretches between Boston and the goal of the Brynhilda and the Apollo. And as the winds are fickle it will probably be fifty days before the winner reaches the South American metropolis and the news is flashed by cable to Boston and the losers along the water front reach deep into their pockets and pay the lucky backers of the winner.

This follows a communication to Secretary of State Pearson, in which Attorney General Eastman decides that Mrs. Ricker, who has announced her intention of running for governor this fall, may not legally have her name placed on the ticket to be presented at the nomination primaries Sept. 6.

YOUNG ROOSEVELT IN LOVE

Margaret Rutherford Said to Have Captured Kermit's Heart

Paris, Aug. 1.—Kermit Roosevelt's return to Paris has revived the rumor that the young hunter of big game has lost his heart to Miss Margaret Rutherford, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt's daughter, who resides here a large part of each year.

When it was first rumored that young Roosevelt had fallen in love with W. K. Vanderbilt's beautiful stepdaughter, who is only 19, many of Roosevelt's friends believed the report was a wild guess—for he confided nothing of his hopes and feelings even to his intimates. But developments during his present visit have caused some who doubted the report to believe there may be truth in it.

Roosevelt leaves Versailles today for a brief stay in Rouen; from there he is going to England. By a coincidence, Miss Rutherford went to England yesterday.

CUT OF FIFTY PERCENT

Promised In Prices of Meats If United Butchers' Plans Materialize

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Beef and other meats will be sold at prices considerably less than the present if the plans of the United Butchers of America to organize and establish independent co-operative abattoirs, rendering plants and tanneries can be realized.

The butchers blame the packers for the high prices, and John H. Schofield, secretary of the national organization, says an attempt will be made at the convention here, Aug. 15 and 19, to make the experiment. If it is successful prices will fall off 50 percent, he says.

ROME IS READY TO FIGHT SPAIN

SEES HARM TO MONARCHIES

Attacks Canalejas, Charging Him With Premeditating Open Rupture—Spanish Premier, With Eye Singly to Modernize Spain, Sounds Government's Note of Defiance—He Decries Fear of Civil War

Rome, Aug. 1.—In the extremely strained relations between the Vatican and the Spanish government, the recall of Marquis de Odeja, the Spanish ambassador, has produced a great sensation in Rome. The Vatican, in a semi-official communication, says that the recall of the ambassador proves that the program of Premier Canalejas was not arranged with the hope of accord, but with a desire for fight, and, the communication adds, he will have it.

The Vatican officials are taking the darkest view of the situation, not only in Spain, but in Portugal as well. They are of the opinion that the extreme parties in both countries, aided by foreign elements, are trying to overthrow the respective monarchies, with the object of uniting the Iberian peninsula under Republican rule.

The hope of the Vatican is that Don Jaime, the Carlist pretender, who has threatened a revolution, will raise the Carlist flag and vindicate Catholicism.

The Vatican attacks Canalejas, declaring that he premeditated a rupture, as from the beginning of the differences he has on every occasion possible taken two steps backward in the negotiations for one that he has taken forward.

The attitude of the premier, the Vatican says, shows that the Spanish government had always aimed contrary to that accord which it pretended to desire. The holy see repeatedly asked that the government assume a different attitude, pointing out that it was impossible to carry on negotiations efficaciously when the second party showed such hostility.

Premier Canalejas answered by recalling the Spanish ambassador, and this, says the Vatican, is a clear confession of his true program, although he has always said he was obeying the will of the country.

SPAIN IS EXCITED

Clericals Hope to Accomplish the Downfall of the Ministry

Madrid, Aug. 1.—Excitement in the capital and throughout Spain over the conflict with the Vatican, which came to a head with the decision of Premier Canalejas to recall the Spanish ambassador to the Vatican and rupture diplomatic relations with the holy see, is deepening. Both the government and clerical parties have accepted the challenge to battle.

The clerical element, which has often before won similar battles in Spain, shows no hesitation in entering upon the conflict, and seems to have set its aim not upon minor concessions and a compromise acceptable to the holy see, but upon the downfall of Canalejas and his cabinet and the cancellation of the entire program of reform. The withdrawal of the imperial decree permitting non-Catholic organizations to display the insignia of public worship, which furnishes the ostensible cause for the conflict and for the severance of diplomatic relations, assumes secondary importance.

Premier Canalejas has fixed his eyes upon a modernization of Spain and the complete elimination of the clerical element as a factor in the government of the kingdom and, confident of the support of the cortes, which was elected in May upon this issue, is determined to carry through his battle for the revision of the concordat of 1851, the registration and regulation of religious orders, governmental control of public education and the recognition of absolute freedom of conscience.

Premier Canalejas says diplomatic relations have not yet been severed, though Marquis de Ojeda has been recalled from Rome. The ambassador has been recalled, he says, simply because the government should not accept dictation from the Vatican.

CHINA IS AWAKENING; POSTAL SERVICE PROOF.

Mail Delivery as Far as Tibet, English Inspector Says.

"It is obviously impossible," says Sir Robert Bredon, acting inspector general of Chinese customs, who is now in England, "for the world at large to treat as a negligible quantity, either politically or industrially, a homgeneous race of 400,000,000 human beings, a large percentage of whom are now fully alive to the potentialities of their race and country.

"As an instance of the changes in Pekin alone, Sir Robert says that "the old, unpaved, mephitic thoroughfares are giving way to spacious macadamized roads, lighted by electricity in place of the old fashioned oil lamps. An adequate and pure water supply on European lines has replaced the old surface wells."

Perhaps the most amazing progress in Chinese internal administration is that recorded in connection with the postal service. In illustration of this Sir Robert says:

"Foot and horse couriers now penetrate into extreme western China 2,000 miles and we have postal lines flung as far as Tibet. There is also a money order system all over China, an express delivery service in every big city. There are 4,000 native postoffices, employing 15,000 persons, of whom not more than 200 are foreigners.

"Again," says Sir Robert, "the sedan chair is being superseded among the wealthy Chinese by the use of broughams drawn by splendid horses of Australian breed. The police force of Pekin is now organized on American lines and effectively controls traffic in the streets.

"As regards the educational movement," he reports, "it is significant that many high officials are maintaining schools at their own expense. There is, for instance, the case of the wife of a Mongol prince, who has at least fifty Chinese girls in a private school, w ich she maintains."

KAISER'S PHRASE ORDINARY.

"Great and good friend," the phrase used by the kaiser in addressing the Nicaraguan president, seems to have created a tempest in a teapot in Germany, where it gave fiery editorial writers an opportunity to talk belligerently about England.

It is admitted that the familiar phrase was not the product of the Kaiser's own pen, but that it was used as a mere conventional expression by an official in the foreign office, whose duty it is to write nice letters to presidents and princes upon their promotion.

Queen Victoria was more sparing in her use of the address intimate. In writing to President Buchanan fifty years ago thanking him for the attentions shown to her son the Prince of Wales she merely addressed the president as "My good friend," signing her letter, "Always your good friend."

When Louis Napoleon was elected president of the French republic she addressed him as "My good friend." Being a sovereign herself, when Napoleon became emperor she addressed him as "Mon frere."

CLEVELAND ANCESTOR SLAVE.

Through the efforts of residents of the town of Westfield, the genealogy of the late President Cleveland may soon be worked out, thus revealing one of the most romantic chapters in the early history of Massachusetts.

On a tour of investigation, which has occupied most of the last ten years, and which, with its last stopping place in Westfield, has now led to the island of Guernsey in the English channel, Miss Rose Cleveland, sister of the late president, thus hopes soon to set forth a new chapter in the history of the famous president.

Through this search, now temporarily halted in the little island where Miss Cleveland is at present carrying on the work, there has been established beyond a doubt the fact that two generations of ancestors of Grover Cleveland were after their arrival in America, some 200 years ago, held in slavery, one of them, the late president's great-grandfather, being sold to a woman in Canada for sixteen gallons of rum.

PLAN WASHINGTON STATUE.

The Spokane (Wash.) branch of the Sons of the American Revolution will erect a statue of George Washington, 100 feet from the base to crown, in Cliff park, Spokane, to be completed in 1914, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the admission of Washington to statehood. The president of the United States, together with prominent men and women from various parts of the country, will be invited to take part in the unveiling ceremonies.

The statue, to be constructed of concrete re-enforced and occupy a circular rock rising 100 feet above the highest point in Cliff park, will cost $50,000. It will be modeled on the lines of the statue in Independence hall at Philadelphia; declared to be the most acceptable likeness of the Father of His Country. The base will bear this inscription: "The First American. Let Every American Aspire to the Measure of This Man."

HOUSEHOLD RECEIPTS.

Stuffed Eggs. Boil the eggs twenty minutes and when cold remove the shells and cut them in halves. Remove the yolks and mash them till smooth with a silver fork. To the yolks of a dozen eggs ,add a tablespoonful of very finely minced ham, smoked tongue, chicken, or other meat that chances to be in the larder. If a good salad dressing is at hand, work in enough of this to make the mixture light and creamy. In lieu of this, add a tablespoonful of melted butter (or salad oil as preferred)a tablespoonful of lemon juice, half a tablespoonful of cider vinegar, a saltspoonful of pepper ,a dash of paprika, a very little made mustard ,and salt depending upon the saltness of the meat used. Press this mixture into the little egg cups and fit the halves of the eggs together ,then twist each in oiled paper.

Honey Cake. Two pounds of strained honey, three-quarters of a pound of light brown sugar, three-quarters of an ounce of bicarbonate of potash, pounded very fine and dissolved in a little water, one cup of cream, half a cup of melted butter, ginger, cloves and pepper to taste; stir this all well together ,add to it as much flour as will make it like a thick mush, set it away until the next day ,then turn it into a well-greased cake mould and bake about three-quarters of an hour.

Huckleberry Pie. Cover plate with plain crust. For a juicy berry pie use a deeper plate. Fill full with berries. Sprinkle over them one-half a spoonful of flour and two spoonfuls of sugar. Cut the upper crust a little larger than the plate, raising the under crust with the blade of a knife, lay the upper crust edges under it to keep in the juices. Press it to the plate and pricking holes in the crust at intervals. Set it in the oven and bake moderately for half an ohur.

Blackberry Shortcake. Mix with three or four successive siftings one quart of flour ,two teaspoonfuls baking powder, three teaspoonfuls sugar an done teaspoonful salt. Rub in two tablespoonfuls butter and mix with sweet milk or water, to a dough as stiff as can be mixed with a spoon, but not stiff enough to roll. Pour in two buttered tins and spread out smooth with a spoon. Bake in a quick oven. When done, butter both cakes with sweet butter and on the lower place a thick layer of blackberries. Sprinkle with powdered sugar on top. Serve with cream or spice sauce or a sauce made by crushing and sweetening berries.

GLODEN WEDDING

Large Family Gather to Celebrate The Event

Fifty years ago last Saturday, Anthony Lorandeau and Philomine Savoie were married in Athenbasquerville, Quebec and on the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage renewed their vows at St. Mary's church, West Quincy, before the Rev. Fr. Henry T. Grady. The couple have seven sons and two daughters who were present as their parents vows were renewed, besides a host of other relatives and friends not only from Quincy but from surrounding towns and states.

A dinner was served at the house at 9 Filbert street, to the relatives and friends. Among the party were Mayor William T. Shea, a close friend and neighbor, Rev. Fr. Henry T. Grady and Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy. Congratulatory addresses were made by the Mayor and clergymen which were gracefully responded to.

In the afternoon there was a lawn party at which a son, Samuel, in behalf of the children presented the couple a purse of gold and Mrs. Sydney Gosselin, for the fourth generation, gave a handsome boquet.

In the evening the grounds and house were decorated with colored lanterns, and a supper was served at 6.30 folowed by a reception and reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorandeau were born in the same town, 72 and 69 years ago respectively. They have resided in the United States for 41 years.

QUINCY Y. C. RUN.

Sunday was an ideal day for the annual club run of the Quincy Yacht club with result that a fleet of nearly thirty yachts and power boats participated. The start was made at 9.30 when the launches were sent off with the instruction that the first to arrive in Marblehead harbor should come to anchor and take the time of the fleet.

In class A the Virginia was the first to arrive with a good lead over the Mystic. In the Cape Cat class, the Dartwell was the first to finish but the Busy Bee won on corrected time with the Dartwell second and Iris third.

In the power boat class, Naughty Girl the race horse of Sandberg Bros., was the first to reach Marblehead. She is a long and narrow boat fitted with powerful automobile engines, and goes through the water like the wind. Corrected time, however, gave the first prize to the Yaarab.

The Estelle, Pais Minora and Helen exceeded the handicap and the time of Mae B was not taken. First, second and third prize flags were given in each class for the best actual time, and cups in each class for the best corrected time. The summary:

At Nightfall on the Farm.

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The plowman homeward rides, and on the way
He gayly toots his auto horn at me.

Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight,
And all the air a solemn stillness holds,
Save where the phonograph imparts delight
That drowns the drowsy tinklings in the folds.

Beneath that rugged elm, that yew tree's shade
Electric lights begin to brightly glow.
The farmer figures up what he has made;
His glad wife makes the pianola go.

First Aid.

"Now," said the professor, "suppose you had been called to see a patient with hysterics—some one, for instance, who had started laughing and found it impossible to stop—what is the first thing you would do?"

VICTORY FOR RAMBLERS

Defeat Andrew A. A. Team Four to Three

With a patched-up team from which three of the stars were absent, the Ramblers took their fifteenth victory into camp on Saturday 4 to 3, in seven innings. The game was shortened on account of rain. The Andrew A. A. were the unlucky tossers who went against the fast Wollaston team. The game was won on bunched hits in the first. Manning, Conway and Miller starred in the field.

NEW FREIGHT YARD

the purpose. Low ground is a requisite in the operation of a granite yard and at this point there is an abundance of it. Here also the freight shipments would be little interfered with by passenger traffic and would not be delayed by the necessity of switching back and forth.

The railroad owns about six acres of land at this point which would gladly be leased by granite dealers and so filled in without cost.

At this point the freight yard could easily be introduced and a crane installed and the siding there made the central shipping point out of the way of all the inconveniences attendant on the use of the present yard, though both would doubtless be in use.

The railroad officials seemed very favorable to the establishment of a freight yard at this point, and the occupation of the surrounding land by granite yards, and felt that in a reasonable time the desired change will be made.

However, although there is congestion at Quincy Adams now, the extension work which is pushing from Boston to Braintree will ease conditions at the present shipping point one hundred percent the additional facilities of the yard suggested today will still be necessary so that the urgency and justice of suggestion by the Board of Trade is apparent.

The commission of railroad officials which came to Quincy was made up of individuals thoroughly conversant with railroad conditions, and who were able to see the point taken by the Board of Trade, and it is assured that if the scheme is at all feasible from the standpoint of railroad operation that the new freight yard will undoubtedly be had within the next three years when Quincy will be able to cope with the rapidly increasing granite shipments.

ADAMS DEFEATED.

The strong Adams A. A., leaders in the Granite City league, were defeated by the Braintree White Sox on Saturday at French's common, Braintree. An error in judgment in pitching to Moralis, who is a heavy hitter, lost the game.

FOOTBALL VICTORY

McGregors Go to Barre and Defeat Rangers

The McGregor association football team which went to Barre, Vt., to play against the champion Rangers of that city, accomplished their object, defeating the Rangers by a close margin in a fast exciting game before 500 people.

J. Gans kicked the first goal for McGregor in the first minute of play, and Forsythe made their second goal in the second half after eight minutes of play.

The Rangers got their goal five minutes before the game ended, Webster scoring on a penalty kick from in front of the goal posts.

NORFOLK COUNTY LEAGUE

Copeland of Quincy Loses to Norwood Press

The games Saturday resulted as follows:

At Norwood—Norwood 2, Copeland, 1 (6 innings.)

At Walpole—Walpole 5, Hyde Park 0.

Norfolk County League standing:

	Won	Lost	Per.
Walpole	10	1	.909
Norwood	8	3	.727
Hyde Park	6	5	.454
Copeland	4	7	.363
City Mills	1	6	.142
Dorchester	1	8	.111

The local Norfolk County League team journeyed to Norwood on Saturday, but went down in defeat in an interesting game by a score of 2 to 1. The team presented a strange appearance with new faces in every position, but played a very good game. Several of the regulars were out of the game through injury, crippling the team somewhat.

The game was a good one, neither team making an error, but was delayed several times by showers, finally being called in the sixth on account of a heavy rain storm.

Norwood scored first in the second, on two hits by Fish and Quann, and followed by a sacrifice. Copeland tied up in the next session, when Boyd was hit, stole second, got third on a sacrifice, and scoring on Keohane's hit over second. Norwood took the lead in the fourth, when Quann singled, was sacrificed to second and third, scoring on a hit by Schuster.

In the first half of the sixth, with none out, "Alec" Elcock doubled to left, and with Keohane up it looked like a sure score for Copeland, but the heavy downpour stopped the game, which reverted to the fifth inning.

"I am told your bride is very pretty," said Miss Peppery.

"Yes, indeed!" replied Mr. Con Seet. "Several of the guests at the ceremony were pleased to call it a 'wedding of beauty and brains.'"

"Well, well! She must be a remarkable woman! That's an unusual combination in one person."

FAIRCLOTH PROMOTED

Now Lieutenant Faircloth, If You Please

Chief Engineer Peter J. Williams has promoted under the civil service rules, John Joseph Faircloth, driver of Hose 1, to the position of lieutenant in the Fire department, to fill the position made vacant by the resignation of Lieut. W. H. Corcoran.

There is probably no one in the Fire department more fitted for promotion than is Lieut. Faircloth. He has been a member of the Quincy Fire department for fifteen years. He was born in Quincy Dec. 23, 1857, and has always made his home in this city. From early boyhood he has been fond of horses, and no one knows more about horses than he does. His education was obtained in the schools of Quincy and fifteen years ago became connected with the Fire department as a driver. This was before the time of civil service so that when the city accepted the civil service act he was exempt from examination. For a number of years he has been the driver of Hose 1, at the Central station, and it is indeed a pretty sight to see him drive his handsome team of greys through City Square in response to an alarm. His piece of apparatus is always one of the first to arrive and so thoroughly has he control of his team that no whip is necessary to urge his horses on. All that is necessary is for him to slap his reins and speak to his horses who seem to know the sound of his voice, and without further urging do their very best. The promotion of Mr. Faircloth is one that meets with general favor.

Agostino Bassi, a country doctor in the north of Italy, early in the last century was the starter of the germ theory of disease. At that time a peculiar disease was killing the silkworms, bringing ruin to the whole silk country of Italy. Bassi, by the microscope, discovered the germ which is the cause of the disease. The germ later was named Botritis bassiana. Bassi believed and stated that human diseases were also caused by germs. Bassi's work was sneered at and poohpoohed by his fellow men and physicians, and he failed to make a lasting impression, thereby losing great glory for Italia.—New York Press.

PRIZES FOR GARDENS

Also Exhibition of Flowers at City Hall

Ever since the time of Adam in the Garden of Eden the children of men have been more or less interested in gardens. Probably about one thousand children in Quincy are especially interested this year by this distribution of free Government seeds in the schools, and by the purchase of seeds secured by the Education committee of the Quincy Women's club from the Cleveland Home Gardening Association. These were sold at a penny per packet. Any child buying five varieties of flower or of vegetable seeds entered the prize contest. Also any child who had five varieties of Government seeds or bought five for himself, who gave his name either to his teacher or one of the Gardens committee before May first.

The Superintendent of Schools was interested, as he had been carrying on the same work in Natick. The list of entries taken in the schools by the teachers were by him given to the chairman of the Gardens committee, who arranged them by streets in the various wards. Two visitors have completed the first round of visits.

Unfortunately in some schools those having free seeds did not register for the prize contest, so that there will be a number of gardens, possibly better deserving, but not being registered cannot be visited and judged. Over 600 visits have been made. Also in some schools seeds were sold and given only in the four upper grades; in others some lower grade children were supplied, so it was thought wise by the chairman to consider only the gardens of children in the four upper grades. Younger children will gain the experience to help them do better work another year.

In many cases the conditions of size; having a garden all ones own, not mixed in with an older persons; doing the work oneself have not been regarded. Although such gardens may not win prizes this year some flowers or vegetables may be worthy of exhibition and win a blue ribbon.

This exhibition will be held at City Hall, Aug. 17, afternoon and evening. All children having gardens are requested to bring their best flowers and vegetables, five or six of the best flowers and vegetables—five or six of the best of a kind—to the Council chamber between the hours of nine and one on Aug. 17.

Ribbon prizes will be given to the best specimens of each also for the best collection of flowers or vegetables and for the most tastefully arranged bouquet. A prize will be given for the largest collection of wild flowers—two flowers of a kind and for the most artistic bouquet of wild flowers.

William Patterson and James Nicol will be two of the judges a third to be selected by them. It is hoped that the public will be interested and attend this exhibition.

CRIPPEN VERY GLAD IT'S OVER

Admits His Identity When Apprehended Aboard Montrose

DRAMATIC SCENE AT ARREST

Doctor Momentarily Stunned as He Recognizes Scotland Yard Detective Disguised as Pilot—Miss Leneve Collapses When Taken Into Custody—Culmination of Sensational Flight Which Was Watched by the Whole World

Father Point, Que., Aug. 1.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen and Ethel C. Leneve, his stenographer, who fled from London after the disappearance of Belle Elmore, the doctor's wife, were arrested aboard the Canadian liner Montrose, at the command of Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard.

The identification of the long-sought fugitives on board the fog-shrouded steamer by the English detective, who had raced across the Atlantic ahead of the Montrose, marked the culmination of one of the most sensational flights in recent criminal annals.

Accompanied by two Canadian officers, Inspector Dew boarded the vessel at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning, and fifteen minutes later both man girl were locked in their staterooms, Crippen broken in spirit, but mentally relieved by the relaxed tension; the girl, garbed in boy's clothes, subbing hysterically. They were no longer "Rev. John Robinson and son," as booked from Antwerp on July 20.

After a brief delay the Montrose continued her 160-mile journey up the river toward Quebec, where jail awaited the pair. Crippen is charged with the murder of an unknown woman, believed to have been his actress wife. The girl is held as an accessory.

In charge of Inspector Dew they will be taken back to England for trial on the steamship Royal George, leaving Quebec next Thursday.

Seldom has there been a scene surrounding the pursuit of a criminal so pregnant with dramatic features as that enacted off this little settlement. Dew had spent a sleepless night at the Marconi operator's side communicating through the fog with the liner which bore the man and woman he sought.

The man had deceived him in London by fleeing the city with the mystery of Belle Elmore's disappearance unsolved, and a strong personal feeling enetered into the case, accentuated the detective's desire to carry out the task set him by Scotland Yard.

At 4:30 a. m. the approaching ship's whistle was heard above the bellowing of the Father Point fog horn. Like a giant alarm clock it awakened the nervous villagers and the expectant newspaper men, who dressed hastily and waited in a drizzling rain for the liner's arrival.

The minutes and the hours passed with tantalizing slowness. Dew's impatience increased. The rain continued to fall and the more ambitious residents, not to be denied the scene of capture, began fitting out their rowboats and variegated sailing craft, ready to hasten to the liner's side immediately she arrived.

Shortly after 7:30 o'clock the Montrose pushed her nose through the fog and at 8:15 the pilot boat Eureka set out from shore. She carried a host of newspaper men and photographers, and the more fortunate townspeople who were able to crowd aboard. But Dew was not among them. As a precaution he had embarked on the Eureka's small tender, accompanied by Chief McCarthy of the Quebec police and ex-Chief Denis of the same city.

All wore the garb of pilots, and over his florid face Dew had pulled a pilot's visored cap to hide his features from the man he sought. He did not wish Crippen to recognize him before he could approach and take advantage of the only avenue of escape—suicide.

Four sailors quickly rowed the tender alongside the Montrose, and Dew and his companions stepped aboard. Crippen was standing near the rail talking with Dr. Stuart, the ship's surgeon, and attempting to appear calm. But that he was nervous was his remark to Stuart. "There are his remark to Stuart. There are three pilots coming aboard," said Crippen nervously, "is that not unusual?"

The physician did not reply but kept his eyes on the strangers, who walked rapidly toward them.

"Crippen, I want you," said Dew quietly, as he approached. The dentist recoiled involuntarily as he recognized the man who addressed him, then the blood left his face, his breath came short and fast and he gurgled incoherently.

As he was being led away to the captain's cabin, whither he was transferred later to his own stateroom, he said gratefully: "Thank God, the suspense is over, and I am glad!"

Crippen's arrest accomplished, Dew hurried to Miss Leneve's stateroom, where he found her, still dressed as "John Robinson, Jr.," on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Her appearance when confronted by the detective and told that she was under arrest was pitiable.

All control that she had fought so hard to retain throughout the voyage left her. She cried out hysterically, and became so faint that restoratives were administered. Shut in her room and restored to woman's dress, she was closely guarded as the vessel continued its journey for fear she would take her life or collapse utterly.

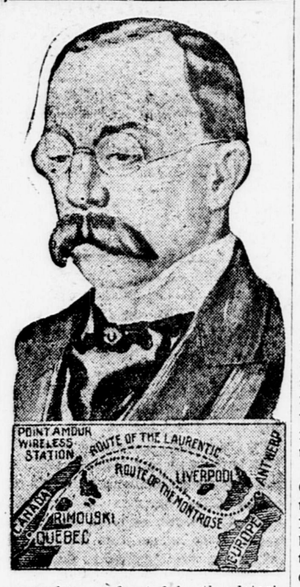

With both under arrest the Montrose's whistle sounded hoarsely, a signal to the waiting Eureka that Dew's search was at an end.

Immediately the pilot boat came alongside and the newspaper men and photographers swarmed aboard. Crippen they found handcuffed in his statercom, No. 8, and Miss Leneve under the care of a physician in No. 5.

The news by this time had spread among the passengers who had been duped throughout the voyage by the bogus clergyman and his retiring effeminate son. Captain Kendall had kept from them the identity of the two mysterious passengers, and although the recent bombardment of wireless messages had aroused their suspicions, none of them on board besides Llewellyn Jones, the wireless operator, knew that the two were Crippen and his girl companion.

RIVET'S BODY VIEWED BY LOWELL PEOPLE

Parents Permit Visitors to Gaze Upon Executed Murderer

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 1.—The body of Napoleon J. Rivet was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Guilbault, where the parents, the sisters and a brother of the deceased awaited it.

It was attired for burial and the face was exposed to view, though during the afternoon only immediate relatives and friends were admitted. Later, however, it was decided to permit visitors to the house, and many curious people viewed the body.

The funeral took place this morning.

BOY HAS FIVE-STORY FALL

Only Result Was Tickling Sensation When Surgeon Examined Him

New York, Aug. 1.—"Don't do that, you're tickling me," remarked Isadore Bloom, 7 years old, of 25 Market street, to Dr. Ederle of Governeur hospital.

The surgeon was examining the little fellow to ascertain the extent of the injuries received in a fall from the fire escape landing at a fifth floor to a courtyard. He was amazed to find that Isadore had escaped without even a scratch.

The boy lived with his parents and was playing on the fire escape, when he lost his balance. Clotheslines broke the fall.

HUNT OF 11,000 MILES IS ENDED

Detective Finally Catches Up With Wendling

ARRESTED IN SAN FRANCISCO

Admits His Identity, but Says He Did Not Kill Alma Kellner, Whose Mutilated Body Was Found In Basement of Parochial School of Which Alleged Murderer Was Janitor—Search For Fugitive World-Wide

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—Dragged from beneath a sink in the washroom of a Third street lodging house, Joseph A. Wendling, accused of the murder of Alma Kellner in Louisville, who has baffled the police for four months, was arrested by detectives of the local police department.

A few hours after the arrest J. P. Carney, captain of the Louisville detective force, arrived to learn that his 11,000-mile search for Wendling had been crowned with success. It was a telegraphed tip from the Kentucky detective which led to the arrest.

Carney first received information that Wendling was working for a grocer in Houston, and began a long search over several trails, but each time the fugitive had left before the detective arrived.

Wendling was then traced to this city, and Captain of Detectives Wall received a tip that the fugitive was in the Third street house.

Mrs. Mary Moriarty, the owner, said that a man answering Wendling's description had been there, but had left a few days before. The detectives were skeptical, and after watching the house for twenty-four hours determined to make a search. Their efforts were rewarded by the discovery of Wendling beneath the sink in a washroom. When the bullet wound in his hand and the tattooed ship on his arm were exposed he admitted his identity.

Wendling protested his innocence of the Kellner murder, declaring that he knew nothing of it until he read of the finding of the body. He told Carney that he would not resist extradition.

Carney claims to have ended one of the longest and most expensive manhunts of modern times. Descriptions of Wendling were sent to every American consular representative in the world and to every postmaster in France and Germany. Since June 11 the expenses of Carney have averaged $100 daily.

It was through Mrs. Cora Muena of Hume, Mo., that the clew which finally led to Wendling's capture was obtained by Carney. Mrs. Muena met Wendling at the home of her aunt in Houston, where she knew him as Henry Jaquemin, and became engaged to him. On her return home, however, she broke the engagement. Carney visited her and got Wendling's address in Vallejo, from a postal sent to her by the hunted man.

$6000 Reward Offered

Louisville, Aug. 1.—Alma Kellner, the 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kellner, a niece of Frank Fehr, millionaire brewer, left her home in this city on the morning of Dec. 8 last to attend mass in St. John's church, three blocks away.

Her mutilated body was found in the basement of St. John's parochial school building on May 30. There was every indication that the child had been murdered and her body hidden in an effort to conceal the crime.

Evidence found around the school building and among the effects of the janitor, Joseph Wendling, directed suspicion toward him and when an effort was made to capture him it was discovered he had fled the city. Relatives of the child and the authorities offered $6000 for his capture. Wendling is about 27 years old and is supposed to be a son of a good family.

A better way to wash clothes.

With clean, warm water and a cake of Lenox Soap, any woman can do good work.

But she can do better work—and do it easier—if she uses Lenox Soap Solution.

This is the way to make it: Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces, dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

Wet the clothes, rub the solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water and let stand over night. Next morning, you will find that the really hard part of washing—rubbing the clothes up and down the wash-board—is not half as hard as usual.

He Won the Bet

He Also Won Something Else That Was Not Included In the Terms

By DAVID W. CHURCH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A number of people stood on the piazza of a summer hotel leading into Washington, now looking at their watches and now up the road as if expecting something or somebody. Among them was a young lady dressed evidently for an automobile ride.

"If he gets here at 3 o'clock he'll be an hour ahead of time," said one.

"What time is he due in Washington?" asked another.

"At 6."

"What's up on it?"

"Oh, nothing valuable. It's a gentleman's race against time. A dozen pairs of gloves are all there is in it."

"Here he comes now."

The last one of these remarks was scarcely spoken before a minute cloud of dust was easily discernible up the road. An automobile appeared a mere speck and began to grow in apparent size. In another minute it pulled up at the steps of the hotel. A young man jumped out, calling for gasoline and such other automobile equipments as he needed. The lady mentioned stepped up to him and said:

"Mr. Champlin, I believe."

"I am," replied the auto man, bowing and trying to get hold of his cap to pull it off.

"My cousin, Humphrey Cook, knowing that I was here, that I adore automobiling and that I wish to go to the city, has written me that you would stop here and possibly would take me in."

Mr. Champlin hesitated.

"I'll be no trouble," the lady added.

"Really I should be delighted for your company, but in case of any delay I may have to proceed at breakneck speed."

"The faster you go the better I shall like it."

"Very well. I'm an hour ahead and if nothing breaks shall have no trouble in reaching the goal on time. Are you ready?"

"I am."

"Step in, Miss— I beg your pardon. I didn't get your name."

"Hood—Jaqueline Hood," replied the girl.

Mr. Champlin started. "Jack Hood!" he exclaimed.

"The same. Is there anything about Jack Hood that you don't like?"

"You've also heard probably that she knows all about an auto. Perhaps she may aid you in case of trouble."

By this time Miss Hood was settling herself comfortably in the auto, tying her veil under her chin. There was a singular look on Champlin's face. He had bet Humphrey Cook that he would drive his auto to New York and return by a given time. Might not Cook have sent this girl to delay him?

"I'm sorry, Miss Hood," he said, "but I've changed my mind about taking you."

"I haven't changed mine about going."

A bewitching smile hovered on her lips, and her eyes danced with mischief.

"Very well," he said, "I'll take you. But remember that in case there's any rascality perpetrated I shall treat you just as if you were a man."

"Good! That's the way I wish to be treated."

During this scene the onlookers had gathered around the machine, and at the last words some of the men and all the women clapped their hands. Champlin got in, and the couple rolled away, followed by cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs. In another minute nothing could be seen of them but a tiny dust cloud.

For an hour Miss Hood entertained the driver of the auto in such a way as to make him forget everything but her. Nevertheless his eye was on the speed gauge and the clock, and nothing pertaining to winning his race was neglected. There are women who can do more with a man in an hour than other women can do in a lifetime. Miss Hood simply absorbed him.

"Have you time to stop for a glass of milk?" she asked.

"Certainly."

Mr. Champlin stopped before the gate and went up to the house. A woman answered his knock at the door, and he went inside. He was no sooner out of sight than Miss Hood jumped out, took a small nickel plated monkey wrench from her pocket, unscrewed a nut and put it in her pocket. She had not finished her work before Champlin reappeared with a glass of milk in his hand. Miss Hood was awakened to his presence by hearing the breaking of glass on stone. Looking up, she saw Champlin the picture of astonishment and chagrin. He knew that he had been "done."

Striding with a quick step to the auto, he said sternly:

"You know what I said before leaving—that if there was any rascality perpetrated I would treat you just as I should a man."

"Oh, yes," she replied, making a face at him; "I remember that."

"Give me what you have removed."

"I decline to do so."

Champlin made a dive for her. She sidled around the auto. He followed, chasing her in a circle. She was too fleet for him. He was strong, but she was agile. At every stop there would be the pretty face brimming with mischief, her eyes riveted on him that she should be ready for his slightest move. Finally he gave it up.

"Did Cook send you out to do this?"

"Yes."

"Well, I suppose I shall have to lose the bet."

"That isn't necessary."

"What do you mean?"

"That if you ask me to give you what I have taken I will do so."

"On what conditions?"

"No conditions."

"No conditions! What do you mean?"

"I mean that I agreed with Humphrey for a dozen pairs of gloves to come out and delay you. Please don't ask me why I prefer not to do so."

She cast down her eyes, and her meaning was plain. She had "gone soft" on Champlin.

She handed him the nut. He replaced it, and in another minute they were shooting again along the road.

Champlin was delighted. Cook had very nearly got ahead of him—would have got ahead of him had it not been that the girl had taken so great a fancy to him that she hadn't the heart to "do" him. What a splendid joke it would be on Cook and the party who were present at the making of the bet when Champlin and Miss Hood rolled up to the —— hotel on time! Miss Hood hadn't even asked for the gloves her cousin had offered her to help him win them. Champlin told her that as soon as he received the stakes he would give them to her and she could change them for ladies' gloves. Instead of being pleased at this, she appeared to be very much hurt. Champlin begged her to tell him why, and she replied that she had not consented to be a turncont for a bribe. This left him to understand that she had done it all for him. There was a very tender scene between them, at the end of which the misunderstanding was made up, and for the rest of the journey Miss Cook held the steering wheel, while Mr. Champlin's arm was about her waist.

There were no more delays. On approaching the city, having still an hour's leeway, they concluded to stop at a convenient place and get the dust out of their throats with an ice. Champlin left the lady for a brief season while he poured out something more effective than an ice in doing away with dust. On rejoining her they partook of the ices and resumed their journey.

"What are you smiling at?" asked Miss Hood of her companion.

"Oh, I was thinking how surprised that cousin of yours will be when we roll up on time. That was a rascally proceeding of his, and it deserved to fail. If you hadn't been the dearest girl in the world it would have succeeded. But just think of his surprise when he hears of the other part of it."

He managed to get hold of her hand with his left, holding on to the wheel with one hand, and they bowled along in this way until they met another conveyance.

And now the dome of the capitol with the figure perched upon it loomed up faint in the distance. It was not long before the outskirts of the city were reached, and half an hour before the time limit had expired they stopped at the ladies' entrance to the —— hotel. A liveried servant advanced and said:

Entering the room, Champlin expected to find Cook eager to know why his scheme had failed. Instead Cook handed his cousin a dozen pairs of ladies' gloves. After this he put out his hand to Champlin.

"I congratulate you, old boy, with all my heart on your engagement."

Champlin stood mute with astonishment.

"Champ, old boy," added Cook, "you need an explanation. To make you lose I sent my cousin Jack out to effect an entrance into your auto and delay you on the way. If she succeeded she was to have a dozen pairs of gloves for a reward. She has lost the gloves."

"That's plain," said Champlin.

"Well, there was a bet between Jack and me of another dozen pairs of gloves against a hundred cigars that she would make you propose to her on the way."

Champlin looked so many emotions, of which astonishment and shamefacedness were the most prominent, that all burst into a laugh, in which he finally joined. Then, turning to Miss Hood, he advanced, with a puzzled, inquiring look on his face.

"Was it all a sham?" he asked.

She made no reply in words, but a slight color rising to her cheeks indicated that the brief period she had passed, even of a sham engagement, had not been unpleasant to her. Besides, Champlin was regarded as one of the best catches in Washington. Since he could get no word of confirmation he concluded to apply a test. Putting an arm around the girl's waist, he drew her toward him and kissed her. She submitted without a protest.

"It's a go!" shouted Cook, and there was a burst of merriment, all crowding around Miss Hood to congratulate her, the men with handshakes, the women with kisses.

"Good for you, Champ!" cried Humphrey Cook. "You've won out all around. But the stake on the race is nothing compared with winning a wife. And you've got a dandy. Jack can run anything from an auto to a man, and you'll find that she can take both the auto and the man apart and put them together again without the least trouble."

ROOSEVELT'S NEPHEW LOSES CONVENTION

Theodore Robinson Beaten In His Fight For Congress

Little Falls, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The Herkimer county Republican convention, which met here to name delegates to the state, senatorial and congressional conventions, broke up in such disorder when Theodore D. Robinson was granted the floor, that adjournment was taken without hearing the report of the resolutions committee.

Robinson, who is a nephew of Theodore Roosevelt, was defeated in his effort to control the selection of delegates to the congressional convention.

By a vote of 46 to 20 Congressman Millington was permitted to name the delegates, and this finally spelled the defeat of Robinson. Daniel A. Strobel will head the delegation in the state convention.

On getting the floor Robinson, the defeated congressional candidate, declared that they had only begun their fight against the Herkimer county machine. So much disorder followed that the convention was declared adjourned by the chairman.

New Biscuit Company Will Absorb All Independent Concerns

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 1.—The Federal Biscuit company, capitalized at $30,000,000 worth of preferred and common stock, was incorporated today under the laws of this state.

According to the prospectus of this company, it proposes to purchase the business and properties of independent biscuit and cracker companies all over the country. There are at present more than seventy-five independent companies that have not come into the fold of the National Biscuit company.

If this latest enterprise is successful the entire cracker and biscuit trade of the country will be in the hands of two companies, and two friendly companies at that, since it is understood that the National Biscuit company regards the latest scheme with approval.

AERIAL BUOYS ARE PATENTED

German Aeronauts Want Channels Marked In Sky.

German aeronauts are already talking about the mapping out of properly lighted airship tracks for the guidance of dirigibles and aeroplanes traveling by night or when weather conditions make it necessary for airmen to fly above low hanging clouds which hide the landscape. The technical paper Luftschiffhalle says that a patent has just been issued for a new system of stationary luminous aerial buoys of enormous candle power.

They are to be connected by wires with the earth. Different colors are proposed as signals indicating threatening storms, the direction of the surface winds and dangerous landing places.

The only objection seems to be the cost of lighting a whole air track, as buoys to be effective should not be placed too far apart. Nevertheless, it seems the system is going to be adopted for a start by some large cities to equip their landing places for airships.

NATION WARS ON PORCUPINE HOST

Biological Survey Seeks to Solve Forest Devastation.

THOUSANDS OF TREES KILLED

Government Experts Visit Colorado Reserves to Study Extermination of Field Mice and Chipmunks as Well, Poisoned Seed Having Failed to Slaughter Pests.

The latest enemy of the national forests on whom war has been declared by the forestry service is the fretful porcupine. The quill armored rodents are destroying hundreds of fine trees, and the biological survey has sent experts to Colorado from Washington to study and devise some way to exterminate the pests.

The destruction of timber by porcupines is worse in the Routt national forest than any other place in Colorado at present. The animals are herbivorous, their diet consisting principally of grass, shrubs and roots, but the heavy snows in the mountains cover all this substance, compelling them to seek other food.

Gnaw Trees to Death.

As a consequence they go to higher altitudes and eat the bark from the Englemann spruce and lodgepole pine, circling the trees with their sharp teeth and eventually causing them to die.

No statistics have been gathered as to the total destruction caused by porcupines, but it has been approximated that many thousands of trees are annually destroyed by them. The fact that a reconnoissance party in the Routt forest recently killed twenty-one porcupines in two days in a comparatively small area will give an idea of the large number of the animals there.

Experts will also study the ravages made by field mice, chipmunks and other rodents in the reforestation areas recently sown with seed. Because of the depredations of these rodents the method of sewing pine seed broadcast has proved practically a failure, the animals eating all that are scattered on the ground. Even where the seed is put in the ground with corn planter the animals dig them up unless they are planted at a depth so great as to prevent germination.

Poisoned Seed Fails.

The service has tried experiments of poisoning the seed before it is planted, but these methods have proved practically ineffective because of the great damage done by the rodents before they expire, and also because the poison is applied to the outer surface of the seed, which is removed by the animals before eating the kernel.

Experiments will be tried of ridding the area to be seeded of rodents by first scattering poisoned grain, which the field mice and chipmunks eat readily. The ground will then be planted with pine seed. It is believed that this plan will be successful because of the limited area, only about an acre, which the average field mouse or chipmunk ranges over.

The Missing Jingle.

The country jingles lively
With many thousand rhymes,
But, oh, that it would jingle
With the dollars and the dimes!

Nature knows no pause in progress and attaches her curse on all inaction —Goethe.

Bakes—Roasts—Broils—Toasts

BAKES bread, pie and cake—bakes them perfectly all through, and browns them appetizingly.

BROILS steaks and chops—makes them tender and inviting.

TOASTS bread, muffins, crackers and cheese.

Mrs. P. Warren Cameron and daughter Ruth returned today to their home at Tewksbury after a week's visit with Mrs. William O. Phelps of Prospect avenue.

Miss Helen F. O'Reilly of Brook street returned Saturday from Montreal. En route home she made a brief visit with friends at Manchester, New Hampshire.

Mrs. George E. Thomas of Newton street returned Saturday from Nova Scotia, where she has been six weeks visiting relatives at Wolfville and Havelock. Her niece Miss Lena M. Nowlan of Wolfville accompanied her for a few weeks' stay.

There are a lot of Quincy people who did not take a Sunday afternoon stroll yesterday through the reservation and woods in the west section of the city.

At the City Hospital this noon, C. Theodore Hardwick was reported comfortable, and is doing much better than anticipated, but it will be a long road to recovery.

The funeral of Henry E. Hardwick was held this afternoon from his late residence on Revere road. It was strictly private, only the immediate relatives attending. The interment was at Mt. Wollaston.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter I. Holmes of South street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter born Sunday, July 31.

Miss Fannie M. Taylor of 36 Bigelow sreet leaves today for Eastport, Maine, where she will be the guest of Mrs. Harry W. Lombard.

Congressman Charles Q. Tirrell of Natick, well known in Quincy, died suddenly at Natick on Sunday. He was born in Weymouth and was prominent as a lawyer and Odd Fellow.

A. M. Deane & Co. are making a specialty of monuments and memorials and now is a good time to get your order in.

TIE IN THE CITY LEAGUE

Cranch A. A. Overtake the Adams A. A.

The only game in the Granite City league on Saturday was played between the Cranch and Bigelows at Ward Two playground. There were no games scheduled and the game was a postponed one. The Bigelows scored in the first, and Cranch got three in the fourth, but in the ninth the Bigelows rallied and pushed two over tieing the score. However, in some unaccountable manner they blew up in the field in the tenth and allowed the Cranch to score eight runs on an even mixture of hits and errors. They were unable to duplicate this feat at the bat and retired, beaten 11 to 3.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	R
Cranch	0	0	0	3	0	0	0	0	0	8	—11

Batteries, Erickson and Allcon; Jones and Avery.

The revised Granite City league standing is:

	Won	Lost	Per.
Adams	5	1	833.
Cranch	5	1	833.
Apprentices	4	1	800.
Bryant	2	4	333.
Hardy	1	5	167.
Bigelow	0	5	000.

TODAY'S COURT.

James F. Murphy alias George F. Pollock, was sent to the reformatory at Concord for larceny of a bicycle at Quincy.

Harold C. Kelsey was fined $15 and Irwin J. Sturgess $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

John Delfarno and Henry Delfarno were fined $15 each for violation of the Lord's day act at Randolph.

Peter Mahoney, Thomas Wood, Joseph Terry, Richard Mullen and Michael Linane were fined $10 each and Valentine Garrity $3 for drunkenness at Quincy. Sentence suspended.

Martin Kane was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy. Sentence suspended until Dec. 31

Rose A. Perrigo was sent to the State farm for drunkenness at Weymouth.

John Flynn was sent to the State farm for being a vagrant at Braintree. Reuben O. Holman was arraigned for assault on Nora Flanagan at Quincy. Case continued until Sept. 1.

SIRES AND SONS.

M. Briand, the French premier, is a solicitor by profession, although he started life as a compositor.

Sir Charles Hardinge, whose appointment as viceroy of India in succession to the Earl of Minto was officially announced on June 10, has been elevated to the peerage.

Nowadays John B. Stanchfield is earning big fees at the New York bar, but the Holyoke Transcript remembers a time—back in the later seventies—when he was pitching ball on the Amherst nine and answering quite affably to the name of "Stanch."

Starr J. Murphy, the official guardian of the Rockefeller foundation millions, is a lawyer, and was formerly a member of the New York city legal firm with which Governor Hughes and Judge Hornblower were at one time connected. He lives in Montclair, N. J.

When you first see Mr. Gaynor you think a little of General Grant and a little of Speaker Cannon. The mayor is a rather slight man, erect, with a well poised head and a gray, close clipped beard. The life of his face is in his eye. You would call him a silent man.

Colonel F. J. Hart, sixty-five years old and a veteran of the civil war, has been ordained and installed pastor of a Congregational church. Having made a good deal of money in mining and having been interested in Y. M. C. A. and church work for many years, Colonel Hart says he wants to end his days with the title of reverend.

Ex-Mayor Charles M. Bryant and Mrs. Bryant returned Sunday from a most delightful trip in their new White car. They went to Portland, and Poland Springs, Maine, then across country to Bretton Woods, where they toured the White mounains down hrough Crawford Notch and southern New Hampshire to Springfield, Mass., arriving in Wollaston last evening.

QUINCY GAME.

The Quincy champions got down to work in the first inning on Saturday in the game with Rockland and scored three runs and victory. It made seven straight for the home team, and strengthens their hold on first place. A clever triple play by Rockland when the bases were full shut out some runs; the ball was fielded from left field, to second, to the home base . Glaze, the Quincy twirler struck out 13 men, and had the visitors at his mercy.

It is said that the reason Catcher Archer of the Chicago Cubs can throw so speedily and accurately from a crouch is that a scar on the arm from an old burn has affected the muscles in such a way that he gets power and control impossible for other catchers.

Handicapped.

Englishmen use their hands comparatively little in conversation, but Frenchmen use them a good deal. Quaintly enough, Parisians have a very keen sense of the exaggerated way in which the southern Frenchman and the Italian help on what they have to say with their hands, and this accounts for the following story:

An Italian railway thief was caught redhanded in the train, handcuffed and brought to Paris. As he was walking out of the Gare de Lyon between two detectives a friend met him.

"Hello!" he said. "Where have you been this long time, and how are you?"

The prisoner looked at him pathetically and shook his head.

"What's the matter?" said his friend. "Have you been stricken dumb?"

The prisoner raised his handcuffed hands. "Very nearly," he said.—London M. A. P.

VICTORY AT PLYMOUTH

Makarias Lowar Colors of Cordage team for Second Time

"Charlie Ganzel's Makaria" team journeyed to Plymouth on Saturday and defeated the strong Plymouth Cordage team by the score of 8 to 2.

Stan Bates held the heavy hitting Cordage boys to five hits, while Makaria boys got to Vargus, (who was with Rockland in the Old Colony League the first of the season) for twelve hits.

This is the second defeat this season for the Plymouth team, and the Makaria boys are delighted over their victory.

LIVELY TENNIS FOR THE TITLE.

AUSTRALIAN CHAMP TO PLAY.

Anthony Wilding, Who Recently Won English Tournament, Likely to Make Trouble For Americans—Larned's Injury—Possibilities of Other Players.

This is the period of the lawn tennis season in which the tournament players carefully scrutinize past performances and strive to read the records that form has revealed. It is their endeavor to discern to what extent the victories and defeats of the leaders may be considered as having a bearing upon the great event of the year, the all comers' national championship on the courts of the Casino at Newport, R. I., Aug. 15. There is a double interest attached to the study of the records at this time, as it is a practical certainty that the great and famous Australian, Anthony F. Wilding, who won the all England championship in the challenge round at Wimbledon from Arthur W. Gore, will compete for the highest American honors. Wilding is taking a wedding tour of the world and naturally is visiting the lawn tennis courts, to which he has been devoted for years. South Africa, the Riviera, and more recently the greatest of all English tournaments have yielded to the skill of his racket. It was in the finals of the latter that Wilding defeated the American former champion and internationalist, Beals C. Wright.

It is the prospect of being faced with the problem of saving the American championship and not losing it, as was the case when Hugh Lawrence Doherty, the famous little Englishman, won in 1903, that has caused the American followers of the game to take stock, as it were, of the situation. To begin with, it is not at all pleasant to consider that William A. Larned, the present holder, is still somewhat crippled because of tendons that he pulled in his semifinal match against Carleton R. Gardner in the Metropolitan. Still, it will be remembered that Larned suffered a like injury last year during the time of playing the doubles at the Country club at Westchester, N. Y., that he overcame the injury and in season returned to his form to continue his holding of the famous Longwood cup at Boston and later his national title.

But Larned is always an uncertainty against a stranger and a foreigner. His nervous temperament is such that unless his recovery is speedy there is a grave doubt as to whether or not he can overcome Wilding, for to do so he must unquestionably be at his best. This, of course, presupposes that Wilding is not defeated by some American on his way through the tournament. But the question naturally arises, Who is strong and skillful enough to check Wilding? Beals Wright may be far better on his home courts than he was in England, and it took Wilding the full five sets to defeat Wright. Of course in this country the shade of advantage will be upon the American side.

As one looks over the field a group of names of recent performers who have displayed great skill rises from the records. On the list is Frederick B. Alexander, Gustave F. Touchard, Nathaniel W. Niles, Wallace F. Johnson, Theodore Roosevelt Pell, Carleton R. Gardner, the two Californians, Maurice E. McLaughlin and Melville H. Long, and the young and clever player, Charles L. Johnston, Jr., and another of the same class, George M. Church.

RESTELLI IN WOODS AT SOUTH BRAINTREE

Police of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Brockton Closing in Upon Him

The police call at just 11 A. M. today followed by the ringing of Box 32 at the corner of Franklin street and Independence avenue, sent police, reporters, Mayor Shea and others flying toward Braintree.

Chief Burrell had reecived information that there was a suspect in the woods off Pearl street, South Braintree, and his informant felt very sure it was Louis Restelli, wanted for the murders in Quincy last Friday.

A boy at Braintree Heights in the rear of the new shoe factory of Rice & Hutchins had reported to the Braintree police that an armed man had come out of the woods off Pearl street and requested a drink of water. He had two revolvers. After getting the drink he returned into the woods and disappeared.

The boy quickly ran to the South Braintree depot and gave the alarm. The boy was quite sure it was an Italian, and believes it was Restelli, the much wanted man at Quincy.

Chief Burrell and Inspector McKay were at the quarries arranging to use dynamite this afternoon, when Charles Lothrop of South Braintree telephoned the police station that the man was being surrounded in the woods off Pearl street.

Sergt. Hanson telephoned City Hall and imparted the information to Mayor Shea, who immediately started for the police station. Calls were sent out to gather as many officers as possible and several automobiles were soon hurrying to the station.

Then it was that the police call was sent out. Five minutes later two large automobiles of officers heavily armed were started for Braintree. Then Box 32 sounded sending the fire apparatus to near the corner of Independence avenue, and Franklin street. Chief Williams had gone ahead toward Braintree, and the firemen not knowing what was up, drove their apparatus to Braintree.

Mayor Shea overtook the Hook and Ladder near the Braintree line and sent it back. The steamer was overtaken at North Braintree and sent back. South Braintree square was reached, however, before the Hose

MILEAGE SHOWS COURSE

Snspect Went from Northhampton South to Springfield

The Boston Globe has done great work in endeavoring to apprehend Restelli the muderer.

It was the auditor's office at the North station that helped out Monday afternoon. The conductors on all trains made a daily return to the auditor of the tickets they collect. It was discovered that there was but one mileage ticket that was collected from Boston to Rutland, Mass., and from there to Northampton by conductor Graves that day.

This mileage was numbered 70,719. It had been issued by the B & M to the Beekman tourist agency at 336 Washington street early in July. A Globe reporter found from Mr. Beekman that it had been sold in the regular course of business on July 11, but it was not known to whom it was sold. Mr. Beekman said that it was not customary to keep the names of persons who purchased mileage books.

The book was simply an ordinary 500-mile book over the B & M system and could not be used over the connecting lines. Auditor Young said Monday he had not received the July reports from the agencies which had obtained mileage books for sale.

Conductor Graves noticed that while the mileage book contained coupons enough to take the passenger to Bellows Falls, Vt., had he taken the direct line over the Fitchburg division, his mistake in taking the Central Massachusetts line with the stop at Northampton would leave him with an insufficiency of mileage to take him from there to Rutland.

The B & M line from Northampton runs through the valley of the Connecticut river to Bellows Falls. Beyond there it is the Rutland R R to Rutland. The train on which the man thought to be Restelli was traveling arrived at Northampton at 9 P. M. Friday. There was a train going north from Northampton at 1.13 the next morning which would carry one to Bellows Falls.

WENT SOUTH FIRST.

There was, however, another train from Northampton to Springfield leaving 15 minutes after the arrival of conductor Graves' train from Boston. The man boarded this train for Springfield. That is shown by the auditor's returns. It is a local train and the conductor is E. H. Biggins.

Auditor Young in going through the tickets collected by the conductors could not at first find any tickets corresponding with the number of the ticket taken up by conductor Graves.

The reports of more than a dozen conductors were carefully inspected. Late Monday afternoon aduitor Young found that on the train which left Northampton at 9.15 Friday night conductor Biggins had taken from a passengers 18 coupons of the same book number that conductor Graves had taken from the man who said he had mistaken the way to Rutland, Vt.

The 18 coupons represented the 18 miles between Northampton and Springfield, where the man got off.

IN WRONG DIRECTION.

There are facts writes Edwin J. Parks that the suspect went north perhaps after having gone to Springfield, Mass., under the impression he was going to the town of the same name in Vermont and that he turned about, after raising money in some way, and in company with another Italian he had met somewhere, took the White Mountain express north from Springfield after midnight Friday night.

If it was Restelli and if he was "broke," as he said he was, he might have got money by selling one of the new revolvers he bought in Boston last Wednesday or he might have borrowed his fare from an Italian he met.

Certainly two Italians, one of them identified as Restelli, travelled together on the White Mountain express which went north through Northampton at 1.15 Saturday morning. The first news of these two men being together was obtained around 2 A. M. Monday from conductor Griffin when he passed through Bellows Falls. It was Grifin who took the night express north Saturday morning and he said he had two Italian men who had tickets for Chester, Vt., and that they left his train at Bellows Falls about 3 o'clock.

AT BELLOWS FALLS.

Conductor Griffin described both men and the description he gave of the one who wore a dark suit and a derby hat tallied closely with that of Restelli. The other Italian was dressed in light clothes and wore a light hat or cap. Griffin was shown the two photographs the Globe correspondent carried with him and said he believed that the man in the dark suit was Restelli, who, he said, did not wear glasses.

There is a mixed freight and passenger train leaving Bellows Falls at 7 every morning for Rutland and George Aldrich is the conductor of it. This is the first train north after the mountain express goes through, and naturally it is the train a man in a hurry to get up this way would take.

Early Monday morning conductor Aldrich said he remembered the two Italians, for they boarded his train at Bellows Falls Saturday morning and presented tickets issued somewhere on the Boston & Maine system to Chester. Aldrich didn't notice whether the coupon tickets were sold at Springfield or at Northampton, but he remembered the Italians distinctly, because when the train arrived at Chester the one in the light suit went into the station and bought two tickets from there to Gassetts while the man in the dark suit staid over by the train.

Aldrich gave a description of the man in the dark suit, which fitted Restelli all right, but when he was shown Restelli's photographs, on both of which appeared a mustache, he said he couldn't be sure they were pictures of the man he carried, because he did not have a mustache.

Ed. Barney, ticket agent at Chester, recalled the fact that an Italian who got off the "mixed train" Saturday morning had come into the station and bought two tickets to Gassetts, and that when he went out he joined another Italian, dressed in dark clothes and wearing a black derby hat, and that they got aboard together. Barney didn't get a close enough look at the second man to tell whether he resembled the photograph of Restelli or not.

AT GASSETTS, VT.

Gassetts, the station where the two Italians left the train Saturday forenoon, is the nearest railroad station to Springfield, Vt. Springfield is four miles from there and is reached by a stage line. Elmer Spafford, the station agent at Gassetts, recalled having seen the two Italians described, and spoke of the one in dark having a "sort of angular, sharp-pointed face" but said he couldn't identify him as the original of the Restelli photograph. The Italian in the dark suit was smooth shaven, he said, and Spafford did not reall that he wore glasses.

MURDERER WANTED $150

Gave a Note to His Mother For that Amo nt

The most important thing that has developed locally in the Restelli case was the bringing to light on Monday of a note for $150 which undoubtedly furnishes the reason why Restelli took the life of his mother. This note was found among the effects of Mrs. Restelli. It was a note made out by Restelli, July 26, 1910, to his mother, payable in three months time. It is said that Mrs. Restelli had agreed to go to the bank F iday and get the money. This she told her son Adolph whom she wanted to go with her. For some reason, however, she did not go. Whether the money was actually paid over to Louis is not known.

It now seems evident that Restelli's call upon his mother Friday afternoon was to get the money, and failing in that he began his murderous trip by shooting his mother.

No one knows, except the absent murderer, what took place between mother and son on that fatal day, but it is certain that the note was not returned to him.

Monday afternoon the police obtained the names of two parties who it is said saw Restelli on the evening of the day before the shooting carry a big bundle up through Quarry street. The bundle might have contained canned goods or it may have contained a piece of machinery. The report that he was seen in the vicinity of Carroll's lane with a bundle leads many to think that he was stocking up some hiding place with edibles preparatory to a long stay.

Allowing this to be true, it would make it appear that the shooting was premeditated. His movements on Friday seem to have been carried out on a prearranged plan, for he passed or spoke pleasantly to some of his acquaintances and appeared to only be after those with whom he had previously had some business dealings.

It has been suggested that dynamite be exploded in some of the abanded quarry holes at the North Common, so that in case he has committed suicide by drowning himself, the explosion would bring the body to the surface.

While the police are inclined to the belief that the man is not in Quincy, if he is alive, it is a fact that many people of nervous temperament are on the verge of collapse from the uncertainty of the murderers whereabouts, and for this reason timid people are keeping close indoors especially at night.

Monday afternoon the firm who furnished the surfacing machine to Restelli and which has not yet been paid for, sent its agents to Quincy and took the machine away for shipment to Boston. It was this machine that had been set up in Restelli's yard on Quarry street opposite the Hardwick quarry, that caused Restelli to have a feeling against the Hardwicks. At first the machine was connected with the air compressor of Messrs. Hardwick, but the latter found that they did not have power for both the quarry and the machine so that the Hardwicks refused to furnish Restelli with power, and the machine was disconnected.

It was the reverses of Louis Restelli, and the success of his brother Gaspre and others that worked upon the former. On the day of the shooting Gaspre Restelli was installing at his works an electric crane, the firm of Smith, Whitcomb & Cook having the contract, and a gang of P. J. Williams men assisting.

A QUINCY PRODUCT.

The battleship Vermont was the recipient of many salutes from both large and small craft and from residents along the harbor front yesterday, as she steamed out through the harbor. One of the prettiest salutes was the dipping of colors on a private flag pole which stood at Great Head. The battleship presented a majestic appearance and attracted much attention.—Record.

BRIEFS

Mrs. Alfred C. Bean has returned from a week's visit with friends in Portland, Maine.

Miss E. May Veale of Vernon street is spending a two weeks' vacation with relatives at Springfield, Mass.

Rev. Walter Roberts, rector of Christ church at Corning, New York, father of Mrs. Frederick H. Steenstra of the rectory, Wollaston, preached Sunday morning at St. Chrysostoms church.

Large editions of the Ledger have been published every day since the shooting and each edition exhausted. There was an unusually large call Monday and not a paper was left in the office at closing time. It was a newsy paper full of home news.

James Francis Murphy, alias George F. Pollock, the man arrested while trying to sell a stolen bicycle to Officer Goodhue pleaded guilty to the charge of larceny in the district court on Monday and was sentenced to the State reformatory at Concord. He appealed his sentence and was held in $300 bonds for the grand jury.

—New Jersey, by her unfair rules for visiting motorists has shut out from that state thousands of would-be visitors at a great loss to herself, and as a squel to such action other states have retaliated and automobilists from New Jersey, visiting other states are discriminated against to their disadvantage. The hotel keepers and tradesmen generally of that state possibly realize the loss to themselves on this account and will have the laws amended so that the bars can be let down to visiting motorists.—Old Colony Memorial.

An Odd Apology.

This is the classic apology of a celebrated statesman of the last generation: "Mr. Speaker, in the heat of debate I stated that the right honorable gentleman opposite was a dishonest and unprincipled adventurer. I have now, in a calmer moment, to state that I am sorry for it."

WANTED

Wanted two or three boys to sell Ledgers in City Square evenings between 6 and 8 o'clock. Apply at Ledger Office before 5.30 P. M.

NO REWARD OFFERED

Granite Manufacturers Say City Should Act

No action was taken by the Granite Manufacturers Association, at its meeting Monday evening, toward offering a reward for the capture of Louis Restelli, the murderer of one granite man and who wounded three other manufacturers. The question was brought up by an number of the association informally, but no one seemed to know where the story started that the association contemplated offering a reward.

It seemed to be the general opinion, informally expressed, that if any reward was offered it should be done by the city government.

As stated in the Daily Ledger of Monday, any reward made by the city would have to be authorized by the City Council with the approval of the Mayor, the latter under the law having no authority to appropriate money for that purpose.

The City Council will not convene again until September, unless called together for a special meeting by the Mayor. There is a possibility that the Mayor may decide to call a special meeting.

—A lot has been purchased for a parochial school in Waltham, and work will begin at an early date.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

DRIFT OF OPINION.

We are approaching the period when candidates for congressional nominations throughout New England will be telling their constituents how much they will do for their districts if chosen by the people. Many such preelection promises are made merely to catch votes, but others are real. To the candidate who is looking for a promice that he would like to fulfil, the speech of Congressman J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania on "New England and Inland Waterways," made last month in congress is commended. The Pennsylvania man presents facts and figures which indicate New England should get more appropriations for river improvement. The same facts were urged by Congressman. Moore in a recent tour of Massachusetts, and they are food for thought.

The congressman points out what could be done in improving the Connecticut river, the Merrimac and other streams, and how the building of canals, such as the proposed Brockton canal, would help manufacturers by making it possible to get cheaper coal. He shows how New England could build up a large coast trade with the south to mutual advantage by developing the streams along the Atlantic. The plan would be to build a canal around a dam when one is met in a river.

Why should not candidates for congress this fall include in their program a sincere promise to demand a larger share in the rivers and harbors appropriation bill A concerted effort in this direction would benefit New EngEand industries, and that means the people of New England as a whole.—Globe.

—Statistics show that clergymen live longer than other men. Gardeners are next in the average length of life. In the case of the clergymen the reason lies in temperance, self control and the practice of the Christian virtues. In the case of the gardener in a wholesome occupation.

CHIEF BURRELL CALM.

Despite the fact that Chief Burrill of the Quincy police was about the busiest man in this state looking after the little details of the Restelli murder, not once during the past several days has he lost his head, and no pertinent question put to him remaining unanswered.

Members of the Quincy police are about the best equipped with firearms in the state. Not only have the men the latest made "guns," but each man on the force is a dead shot, for it has been the practice of Chief Burrell to have his men shoot at a target at least twice a week, and the aim of the men has been more than well developed.

One of the tired news gatherers at Quincy took a nap at police headquarters and on awaking was somewhat surprised to find that one of his companions had succeeded in handsuffing him. So sound had been his sleep, that he did not hear the loud clang that the "cuffs" made when they were snapped.

One rather remarkable phase of the police activities at the Restelli case seems to point at poor quality of fire arms furnished the state police. While the Quincy officer had an up-to-date weapon, I am told by a follower of the case that the state police officer detailed on the case had such an old and decrepit looking weapon that he kept out of the officer's way for fear it would go off accidentally.

QUINCY MAN A SPEAKER.

Harwich on the Cape, the first in the State of Massachusetts to observe "Old Home Week," observed Friday, July 29, "Old Home Day," with appropriate exercises, band concerts and ball games. The exercises of the afternoon which took place in Brooks Park, included a concert, speeches by Colonel Edward Anderson of Quincy, Heman A. Harding of Chatham, and others, and a ball game between the Harwich and Chatham town teams.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Stetson of Quincy kept open house at their cottage and entertained many guests.

EVENING'S LONELY STAR.

CELIA THAXTER

We sail toward evening's lonely star
That trembles in the tender blue;
One single cloud, a dusty bar,
Burnt with dull carmine through and through,
Slow smoldering in the summer sky,
Lies low along the fading west.
How sweet to watch its splendors die,
Wave-cradled thus and wind-caressed

The soft breeze freshens, leaps the spray
To kiss our cheeks with sudden chee ;
Upon the dark edge of the bay.
Lighthouses kindle, far and near,
And through the warm deeps of the sky
Steal faint star-clusters, while we rest
In deep refreshment, thou and I,
Wave-cradled thus and wind-caressed.

How like a dream are earth and heaven
Star-beam and darkness sky and sea;
Thy face, pale in the shadowy even,
Thy quiet eyes that gaze on me !
O realize the moment's charm
Thou dearest ! we are at life's best,
Folded in God's encircling arm,
Wave-cradled thus and wind-caressed.

Her Goodby.

She was one of those very gushing, effusive ladies who occasionally infest newspaper offices, and she had been admitted into the sanctum of the managing editor of the paper on which Homer Davenport was cartoonist, recites the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Davenport was in the room at the time. When the time came for her departure she first grasped the hand of the managing editor, saying, "Goodby, Mr. Niles, goodby!"

Then, turning to the assistant managing editor, she also shook him effusively by the hand, exclaiming, "Goodby, Mr. Bliss, goodby!"

Davenport came next. There was no escape for him. "Dear Mr. Davenport, goodby!" she cried with all the delicate shading of a tragedy queen.

There was silence for a moment after she had gone. Then Davenport found his voice. "Where is she going?" he asked.

"Up to Ninety-third street," replied the assistant managing editor.

"Suffering cats!" drawled Davenport. "What should have happened if she had been going to One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street?"

One of the Natives.

A gentleman was once showing a countryman round a zoo, when they came to a cage containing a kangaroo.

"What is that?" inquired the countryman.

"Oh," replied the gentleman, "that is a native of Australia!"

Dub—Yes, I'll bet she would rather do that than darn her stockings.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Which Nobody Can Deny.

When first we practice to deceive!"
But, once experience we get,
We do it pretty smooth, you bet!

CLAUDE A. SWANSON

Named to Succeed Daniel In Senate

AS DANIEL'S SUCCESSOR

Swanson Will Represent Virginia In United States Senate

Richmond, Aug. 2.—Governor Mann signed a commission appointing former Governor Claude A. Swanson to succeed the late John W. Daniel in the United States senate. The appointment is for the unexpired term which will end on March 3 next.

Formal notice of Swanson's appointment was given to him today at Surry county court house when he rose to deliver a speech at the unveiling of a Confederate monument. There was practically no opposition to the selection of Swanson for the senatorship. Both Mr. and Mrs. Swanson are prominent socially in Richmond and Washington.

FEMALE RAFFLES RETURNS JEWELS

Escapes Prosecution to Save Family From Disgrace

Portland, Me., Aug. 2.—Social circles here have been greatly stirred by the discovery of the thief who robbed Mrs. J. Van Boskerk of her emeralds and diamonds, and the announcement that she will not be prosecuted for the sake of her family.

The name of the society woman who confessed to the theft has been withheld, the jewelry, valued at $5000, has been returned, and tongues in Mrs. Van Boskerk's circle have been wagging, in the endeavor to discover the culprit.

Yesterday the jewels were returned to Mrs. Von Boskerk, after strenuous work on the part of a detective agency. One emerald had been sold in Boston for $2500. The rest of the jewelry was taken from the female Raffles in New York, where she was endeavoring to sell them.

It was decided to keep her identity a secret. She has left Portland and the city is agog to learn who she could have been.

FOUND STANDING IN WATER

Medical Examiner Finds That Rhode Island Man Was Murdered

Burrillville, R. I., Aug. 2.—That Michael Welch, aged 55, whose body was found standing erect in the Slatersville reservoir, was murdered, was the verdict of Medical Examiner Wilcox after an autopsy.

Dr. Wilcox found that the man had a fractured skull, and there were blood clots on the brain, indicating that he had been beaten on the head with a blunt instrument. There was no water in the lungs, showing that he was dead when his body was put in the reservoir, and the medical examiner stated that the body could not have been in the water more than a few hours.

Hale and Hearty at 103

Hope, Me., Aug. 2.—The oldest man in Maine, Abner Dunton, chuckled with delight when the post brought him hundreds of postal cards, letters and presents; for it was his 103d birthday, and his friends had not forgotten him. He walks to the post-office nearly every day.

Old Maine Bank Closes

Richmond, Me., Aug. 2.—One of the oldest banks in Maine, the Richmond National, closed its doors after fifty years of operation. The surplus, $22,000, will be divided among the holders of 906 shares, par value $100 each, along with the principal.

Postal Banks to Have Pass Books

Washington, Aug. 2.—The ancient and long-established passbook system, used in ordinary savings institutions, will be adopted for the proposed postal savings banks when they are established by the United States government.

Stepped In Front of Train

BEFRIENDING DAVY.

It would not have happened had Miss Eunice gone with the family to the country; which shows that it is not necessarily a misfortune when duty ,or lack of means, compels one to pursue a course different from that to which inclination points. Or, if they had taken the goldfish; which would not have been at all impossible, though inconvenient. But the goldfish were left swimming lazily in the globe on the stand beside the hall window.

Miss Eunice Deming, who boarded with the Hutton family, had in previous years accompanied them. It was with surprise and disappointment that they learned from her her decision to remain at home. It was not until Miss Eunice had heard of the illness of her cousin Harriet's 10-year-old boy, in the hospital, and motherless ,that she had abandoned her trip to Sedgecliff, a pretty Long Island village.

For months, at such times as the work was especially trying, or when cold or heat rendered unenviable the daily trip to business, Miss Eunice looked forward cheerily to the day when she could say good-bye to the city, and for one delightful month leave care and crowd behind. The year around, excepting those four enchanted midsummer weeks, Miss Eunice could be found at her post in the workroom of the cloak department of Stiles & Malkoff's. This year her vacation was to be spent in town, in order that the semi-weekly visits to the sick boy might be continued.

"I'm sure I don't know how we will get along without you, Eunice," said Mrs. Hutton, perplexedly. ""I have always depended on you for so many things. There's Amy for instance. Don't you remember how you rescued her from the clutches of the law, the day that she had filled her berry basket with plums from Sheriff Dobb's tree? She never seems to learn to observe the line that divides public from private property. She's seven ,and that is just the age when children are the most senseless. Then there's Oscar. He persists in teasing ,and it will spoil the children's disposition. He has a great regard for your opinion. Sixteen years is such a disagreeable age. And Isabel—she is the best child living, but always so unlucky; always falling or tearing her clothes. Nine years is an unfortunate age, anyway. I'll just have to dress them in dark ginghams and trust to Providence."

"If I'm going to be dressed in gingham ,get me one of those big plaids, with some style to it," requested Oscar, a handsome boy of 16, who had overheard the last remark as he entered the room. "Speak for me, Miss Eunice ,and see that it's made up into a cut-away coat and wide trousers. I don't fancy rompers or kilts. I'd like to be agreeable about it, so I'll agree to the gingham if I can have is made up to suit me. I think Amy is in need of suggestions from her elders ,mother," he said to his mother, who looked up with pride to her tall son. "I tried to prevent her packing two jardinieres in the steamer trunk. She says that she remembers some particularly fine geraniums, in the minister's garden at Sedgecliff. She says there were five or six, just alike, and she is expecting to transplant two for herself."

"Will you speak to her, Euince?" asked Mrs. Hutton, who had risen to investigate the case, but had been prevented by the appearance in the room of a pretty little girl, holding to gether the torn edges of her dress skirt.

"Papa called me to his jointed fish rod, and I din't see the nail on the box he was packing and it tore clear across."

"Stand over there, Isabel; I'll mend it without taking it off. I'll soon have it done," said her mother.

"As many stitches as are taken there'll be lies told about you, Isabel, if you don't take your dress off," solemnly stated Oscar as he lay on the lounge.

"Tell them now, Oscar," begged Isabel ,in alarm. "Mamma won't believe them: I won't mind. Oscar. No one but us will know about it."

"You are getting pigeon-toed, Isabel," observed Oscar, unmovedly, "and I heard Johnny Ainsley tell Charlie Parker that you ate a whole blackberry pie and half a ham, at the church sociable. The Barlow girls across the street are going to have a party, and all the girls and boys are invited but you. I asked the man that has the new grocery store at the corner, next to the barber shop, what he supposed was the reason, and he said that the iceman told him it was because you were such a clumsy dancer; he said that he heard—"

"There! Oscar ,stop," commanded his mother ,raising her hand in authority. "The last stitch is taken. The lies are all told. Don't be foolish, Isabel," she admonished gently to prevent a shower of tears from the sensitive Isabel. "What will I do with him if he doesn't stop teasing? If Eunice were only going; she has such a knack with children, sighed Mrs. Hutton.

Miss Eunice had helped, energetically, in the preparations; had accompanied to the railroad station, and had kissed Mrs. Hutton and the children, considerately omitting Oscar, whose ideas on the subject of osculatory demonstrations were in strict accordance with the code peculiar to his age. Then she watched the train disappear around the curve and returned to the quiet house, to remain in charge, until the return of the vacationists. The increasing haste of the travelers at the approach of train time had resulted in a disarrangement of bureaus an overturning of work baskets and chairs, and a general household confusion. Miss Eunice had brought order out of chaos. She breathed a sigh of relief as she opened the screen door and fastened it back. She had a conviction that screens could be omitted with impunity in the late afternoon. A theory ,based on the supposition that flies, and other winged insects, seek the brightness outside, rather than the fading light within doors. So she removed the screen from the hall window, and threw back the blinds ,then stood, with her elbow on the banister newel post, her chin in her hand, half unconsciously enjoying the cool breeze that had sprung up, after hours of sultry heat.

"I won't let myself get lonesome," resolved Miss Eunice; "I have much to be thankful for. I shall have plenty of time to visit Davy now, and I am sure it makes me happy to see that he is getting better and knows me, though it will be weeks before he is well. Yes, I have much to be thankful—"

Crash! went the goldfish globe. The drip! drip! drip! from the embroidered stand cover, mingled in doleful unison with the flap! flap! of the five homeless fish. Miss Eunice snatched a discarded hat from the rack, and began an impromptu fishing experience. The object was to place the fish inside the hat in the shortest possible time, to avoid disastrous results with the broken glass. By reason of the restlessness and the general slippery character of her prey, Miss Eunice, not unlike the ordinary amateur angler, found returns slower than she had anticipated. A sound as of someone hurrying up the veranda steps was followed by a quick thud and the head and shoulders of a man obtruded themselves through the doorway, and two forward stretched arms came with a whack to the floor. The rest of the substantial figure lay at full length outside the door. With startled, apologetic haste ,the man regained his feet and entered the hall. Miss Eunice stood in amazement and considerable water, the inverted hat held carefully ,to keep within confines the two fish secured.

"They'd be hollerin' now, if they wasn't dumb things," he observed sociably, placing the fish in the hat. "Hey! Look out for the cat! Grab him! Great Guv'nor! I've got him!" He seized with a mighty clutch a black cat that had stolen silently up to the fish, with lunch

WAKE UP!!

MR. MERCHANT

When business is dull wake it up by having a genuine bargain sale!

There are goods on your shelves and in your back room, perhaps a little shopworn or slightly soiled that should be turned into cash. Move them by reducing the price, and advertise the fact.

Bargain sales should be so conducted that many of the purchasers will become regular customers—otherwise little good comes of offering reduced prices.

The bargain sale gives you the opportunity to dispose of slow selling goods at cost and attracts attention to your store.

In this city of 33000 people there are hundreds that spend their weekly pay in the big city. These people have not acquired the habit of coming your way. Get them into the habit by using the advertising columns of the LEDGER.

To make a success of his business, a merchant must advertise and advertise effectively.

It goes into the homes of the buying public and is there read by the husband, the wife, the children and the servant.

¶ Placing your ad. in the LEDGER is part of the effective advertising. The other part is to have it written by an advertising specialist.

¶ This is an age of specialists. When you have an advertisement to write, why not call in an advertising specialist, thus saving time, trouble and money.

¶ The advertising rates of the LEDGER are within your reach. Its columns preach "trade in Quincy," and now Mr. Merchant it is up to you to keep these 33000 people fully informed in regard to your store and your goods, and keep Quincy money in Quincy.

CELEBRATION AT HOUGHS NECK

Illumination, Parade and Fireworks Proposed

At the meeting held Sunday night in Pandora hall by the Houghs Neck club members, William, better known as "Sport" Flaherty of the Pastime A. C. was elected chairman, William Queenie of the Flood cottage, treasurer and Steven Hernier, James Smith and John Kirby members of a committee to promulgate a celebration to be participated in by the cottagers at the Neck, especially the club-members

The plan is to decorate every cottage and to have a parade, fireworks, dancing and music, a sort of evening of festivity. The Mission Church Band of Boston will be secured.

The next meeting of the committee will be held Sunday afternoon in Pandora hall, and the probable date of the celebration is Friday, Aug. 12.

George Canty of Roxbury spent Sunday with a party of friends at Houghs Neck.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Green and their two children are spending two weeks on Turner street.

C. L. Botsch of Roxbury has returned to his home after a week's visit with friends.

Miss Lillian Hantz of Jamaica Plain and Leonard McMillan have been guests of Mrs. William Jacobs of the Perkins cottage.

QUINCY POST OFFICE.

JULY UNUSUALLY HOT.

For fifteen years the Daily Ledger has been keeping a record of the noon temperature of Quincy, and in all these years there has not been a July with as many 90 degree days as the month just passed. In the month of July, 1906, there were no 90 degree days; in eleven other years there were less than 10 such days in July, and 12 was the high record in 1901. But this July 1910 there were 13 ninety-degree days.

In June there was only one and none previous to June.

ANOTHER CHARGE.

John Donovan, the chauffeur for Mrs. Adelaide White, who was smashed up on Washington street on the morning of July 12 while running his car at a rate of 60 miles per hour, was brought into court Monday and arraigned for reckless driving. The case was continued until Thursday for hearing. Donovan is already under indictment larceny of the auto. While returning through Quincy the machine collided with a telephone pole at the corner of Washington and Edison streets, and was smashed. All of the men were more or less injured but got away,

PROVIDENCE CONVENTION.

The steamer Puritan of the Fall River line has been chartered for the Southern delegates to the Atlantic Deeper Waterways convention at Providence, Aug. 31-Sept. 3. The delegates will make their headquarters on the boat all the week. Friday, Sept. 2 will be President Taft day at the convention. Frank Fessenden Crane is the delegate from Massachusetts.

A Bird's Barbed Wire Fences.

There may be seen along the roadsides in Central America a brown wren about the size of a canary which builds a nest out of all proportion to its apparent needs. It selects a small tree with horizontal branches growing close together. Across two of the branches it lays sticks fastened together with tough fiber until a platform about six feet long by two feet wide has been constructed. On the end of this platform nearest the tree trunk it then builds a huge, dome shaped nest a foot or so high with thick sides of interwoven thorns. A covered passageway is then made from the rest to the end of the platform in as crooked a manner as possible. Across the outer end as well as at short intervals along the inside of this tunnel are placed cunning little fences of thorns with just space enough for the owners to pass through. On going out this opening is closed by the owner by placing thorns across the gateway, and thus the safety of the eggs or young is assured.—Harper's Weekly.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

THAT SEA STREET CURVE.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

'Twas only a cat, a clean, loving affectionate cat. She did harm to no one. She was the family pet but what difference was that to the man driving the auto? To him it was a great joke to see the feline jump and land under his tire, make one more final leap, to land on its master's step with a broken neck, and then—die. O!

The master was sorry. It didn't break his heart to bury the harmless creature, he had buried pets before, but it brought up a more vital train of thought. Suppose—just suppose, it had been his son, and the driver of the auto had just gently knocked him one side, only to land on his father's steps with a broken neck, and then die!

Would the driver have thought it a joke? Would the father have been just sorry, and would it have broken his heart to have buried his child? Would he have looked to the driver for consolation? Would he have sought retribution from the city of Quincy for not restricting the speed of Sea street autoists?

Humanity provides the replacement of a cat, there are plenty of them, but can the auto driver or the city replace the lost son, for which a devoted mother has suffered and a loving father has strived, looking to the day in which he can point to a worthy successor to head the family.

Then, worthy city fathers if you would see your city increase, if you would see your future votes pile up for you, do something now, to save the lives of those, who will be the support of your future. That section of Houghs Neck curving in front of the schoolhouse has been well dubbed "Calamity Corners," there must be some good reason. As a rule officials never wake up until some calamity occurs, of such a magnitude that their salaries are in jeopardy—then they wake, to find that they have over charged the men who support them, by not working for their protection.

If Quincy is too poor to purchase signs restricting the speed of autos on the Sea streeet curve, perhaps some obliging citizen would be glad to offer his services, with a stop watch, if he were armed with proper authority.

Chas. E. Decker

Houghs Neck, Aug. 1, 1910.

Finding Mark Twain by Faith.

One evening a few years ago Brander Matthews and Francis Wilson were dining together at the Players club of New York, when the former made the suggestion that they write a letter to Mark Twain. "But," objected Mr. Wilson, "we don't know where he is," for it was at a time when Mr. Clemens was away traveling somewhere. "Oh," said Professor Matthews, "that does not make any difference. It is sure to find him. I think he is some place in Europe, so we had better put on a five cent stamp." So the two sat down and composed a letter, which they addressed to "Mark Twain, God Knows Where."

Within three weeks they received a reply from Mr. Clemens which said briefly, "He did." The letter had been sent by the New York postoffice to Harper & Bros., thence to Chatto & Windus of London, thence to a bank in Vienna and from the bank to the small town in Austria in which Mark Twain happened to be staying.—Bookman.

He Got Badly Left.

Experiences of a correspondent of a Nuremberg paper go to show that the German adulteration laws are drastic. He says: "A French friend sent me four bottles of burgundy. After paying the duty I was informed that all wine coming from abroad has to be analyzed. As my consignment included two kinds of wine a double analysis was necessary, and for this I paid a fee of $9.24. As the end of a week I received first a certificate attesting that my wine was pure and, second, the case in which the bottles were sent. I was also informed that two bottles had been required to form the basis of each analysis and that consequently there was no wine left. I am naturally grateful to the state for the precautions taken to guard my health, but I cannot help thinking I am entitled to the empty bottles. Surely these were not also analyzed."

Got His Receipt.

He had run up a small bill at the village store and went to pay it, first asking for a receipt. The proprietor grumbled and complained it was too small to give a receipt for. It would do just as well, he said, to cross the account off and so drew a diagonal pencil line across the book.

"Does that settle it?" asked the customer.

"Sure."

"An' ye'll niver be askin' for it ag'in?"

"Certainly not."

"Faith, thin," said the other coolie, "an' I'll kape me money in me pocket."

"But I can rub that out," said the storekeeper.

"I thought so," said the customer dryly. "Maybe ye'll be givin' me a receipt now. Here's yer money."

COUNTY CLEARS 40 YEARS' DEBT

COURTHOUSE BEGUN IN 1867

Macoupin's Officers Built More Extravagantly Than They Anticipated, Though Without Graft, and Two Generations Have Worked to Burn the Last Bills.

Residents of Macoupin county, Ill., had two independence days recently at Carlinville, the county capital, when the last bond of indebtedness of what is probably the most famous courthouse in the United States was burned.

For over forty years a debt large enough to stagger some states has been hanging over the heads of the taxpayers. The amount of bonds and interest bearing orders issued by the county court in the construction of a fine courthouse was about $1,400,000, but the cost of litigation plus interest added a large amount to the original sum.

In some respects the courthouse at Carlinville is a mystery. Just why such a fine building was built has never been fully explained. There are two reasons given by friends of the commissioners who had charge of the construction.

One of these is that county pride prompted the construction of the building. It is claimed that the commissioners never expected to erect such a fine structure, but overreached their plans. The second excuse is that a building of the kind would prevent the county from ever being divided and the capitol removed from Carlinville.

Building Started In 1867.

It was at the March term of the county court in 1867 that an order was issued for the construction of the new building.

T. L. Loomis was appointed county agent to close and sign all contracts made by the commissioners. During the summer and autumn of 1867 the work of excavating for the foundation and getting the building under headway progressed rapidly.

The Carlinville citizens were surprised at the scope of the plans, but their shock was mild in comparison with that of large landholders, who expressed their indignation when they went to town. The first report made by Loomis showed a total expense of $49,942.53. A year later this had grown to $449,604.67, and the building was only a skeleton of the completed structure. A total of the expenditures for 1869 was $838,540.77.

At last the building, with its splendid dome towering skyward, was ready for occupancy. And then the troubles of the taxpayers really began. It seemed for several years that the debt would be the ruin of the county. There were lawsuits, then indignation meetings of taxpayers.

A majority of the board of supervisors was fined for contempt of the federal court for refusing to make a levy to start the payment of the bonds and orders. The supervisors calmly voted to make the county pay their fines and went ahead with their other duties.

County Pride Triumphs.

But at last a majority of the substantial citizens realized that an injury to the county debt would forever blight the development of the county's resources and voted to effect a compromise and pay off the bonds and orders. This was made possible by a special act passed by the state assembly in 1877, due in large part to the efforts of the late United States Senator John M. Palmer, whose body lies in the Carlinville cemetery.

The original interest on the bonds and orders was 10 per cent, but in the processes of refunding the debt this was eventually cut down to 4½ per cent.

Accusations have often been made that there was a lot of graft in connection with the building of the courthouse. It was never really shown that those directly interested in the erection of the building had withheld any of the county's money. However, there was a woeful waste of money in the construction of such a large building, according to the general belief of the taxpayers.

The Carlinville courthouse is a massive structure of brick and iron, faced with limestone. It was built with the expectation that it would endure a century. So far there have been but few repairs made, most of these being changes in the system of heating.

Russia Gets Steel Contract.

Russian exports of steel rails are rapidly increasing, having been 50 per cent greater in 1909 than in 1908. In April, 1910, Russia outbid us on 65,000 tons for the Argentine government. Their bid was $29 a metric ton, while ours was $32.72. The English mills did not bid at all, knowing from previous experiences that they could not meet the prospective prices.

aforethought. Miss Eunice, now fully alive to the exigencies of the situation, quickly captured the two remaining fish.

Miss Eunice, appreciative of the timely advice, laid the temporary abode of the fish on a chair, hastened into the next room and returned promptly, her cheeks aglow with excitement and exertion. She held a large washbasin, nearly filled with water, which she placed—not on the stand as she intended, but with a nervous shriek, upside down, at her feet. "They'll die, they'll die," cried Miss Eunice. "My hands were wet," she explained, dropping helplessly on to the lowest step of the stairway.

"Hold him, then," commanded the man, thrusting the cat into her arms. Miss Eunice embraced with desperation the treacherous feline. Her visitor brought quickly from the dining-room a cut glass wide-topped pitcher, half filled, into which haven he transferred the hapless five. Then, with two strides, he laid hands on the cat ,and in an incredible space of time had deposited it, bewildered in the next yard.

Miss Eunice looked up from the step at the anxious face and wondered in a vague way whether the announcement was intended as exenuation for his mode of action, or whether as a formal introduction.

"I've got a furnished room next door," he continued, seating himself in the doorway, his back against the frame ,one foot on the sill. "I came here to Parkport to see about takin' the agency for a patent self-revolvin' corn-sheller. Lordy! what they don't conjer up and put together in this town, has to grow. I was tryin' the thing, out there in the dooryard; I didn't fasten down the cap before I wound it up, and she flew off like a skyrocket," he said, displaying the cap, which he had recovered. She came in through the window, and bust up the housekeepin' in the fish bowl. I'll get another dish, just like it ,tomorrow, "he added, humbly.

"Thank you," returned Miss Eunice. "They'll get along nicely until then in the pitcher."

"Say! You sit still; you've had enough puddlin' in that mess,"—as Miss Eunice, recovered, made the preparation to mop up some of the water. "I'll pick up the glass," which he did. Then he mopped vigorously the sodden floor, rejoicingly in the fact that the wash basin was intact.

"I think I must have been nervous; I never got so nervous before," said Miss Eunice, thinking of her own inglorious part in the incident.

"Well, if it hadn't been for my sap-headed experimentin', it wouldn't have happened. Is that ric-rac table cover good for anything now?" asked Mr. Hale.

"Oh, yes, it will launder; I was going to do it up tomorrow, anyway."

A deep sigh of relief from the Vermonter followed the reassuring reply. The sun went down, and twilight approached ,and still the visitor sat in the doorway. When he had risen to go he hesitated a moment, then asked abruptly:

"Do you care if I come over to see you sometimes, bein' neighbors?"

Miss Eunice did not care if he did. Miss Eunice secretly thought that she would care if he didn't. Still he hesitated.

"I—I'm sorry I put you to so much trouble; but—but I'm glad I broke the fish dish." And he was gone.

The next day the goldfish were established in their new globe. The next Mr. Hale called to make inquiries about the location of certain streets, and received the necessary information, which information was promtly consigned to a place in his head where he stored matter that had no especial bearing on any particular subject; and then he seated himself in the doorway. And there were no lonely days in Miss Eunice's vacation.

When the Hutton family returned to the city they looked in vain for Miss Eunice at the station. "I wonder is she is ill," said Mrs. Hutton, uneasily, "Oh, she's all right, he's getting up a collation for us. he knows that we know the way home. Gee! won't I be glad to see her!" admitted Oscar. "It's a downright shame that she couldn't have gone, too."

The little girls gazed searchingly at the hurrying figures at the station, and finally gave up in disappointment.

"She'll be waiting for us at home," they concluded. But Miss Eunice was not there. The house was in order; the refrigerator and pantry shelves were well supplied. Then, a note laid conspicuously on a glass on the dining table, caught Oscar's eye. He handed it to his mother, who read aloud to her eager listeners:

Dear Friend Belle: I did not intend to leave you so suddenly. I would have explained more fully, but you see, I didn't expect to go so soon. I have met some one, since you left home, who has asked me to go to Vermont to live. I mean, dear Belle, he has asked me to marry him. I told him that I could not desert Davy. He said that Davy could make his home with us. I have learned that Tom Hale is in good standing, and has a little property; and Belle, believe me, I am very happy. By the time you read this I will be married.—Eunice.

MURDER FOR REVENGE

Captain In Canadian Army Shot by Gunner of His Company

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 2.—Captain Peter Elliston, commanding the Royal Canadian army in the Esquimaux garrison, was shot and killed by Gunner Grant of his company.

Grant, who had recently been punished for a military offense, waited outside the company office and when Elliston came out shot him through the neck.

Drugs Smuggled to Prisoners

Leavenworth, Kan., Aug. 2.—Warden McClaughry of the federal prison has suspended two guards who are alleged to have smuggled whisky, morphine and other similar drugs to convicts.

Notorious Bandit Killed

Manila, Aug. 2.—Datto Appa, the notorious bandit leader, and several of his lieutenants were killed in a battle with Philippine constabulary near Mindanao.

She Handed It Back.

A noted doctor believes in training children to reason for themselves, and this policy he carries out with his own child, a little girl of eight, and he tells a story in connection with her with great glee.

"My dear," he said to her, "I saw something today that I hope I shall never be pained to hear of you doing."

"What was that, papa?" the daughter asked.

"I saw little Mary Goodgirl stick her tongue out at a man today."

The child, evidently thinking that it was an occasion to tell of the faults of the other girl, said:

"Papa, I saw Mary"—

The doctor interrupted and told the child she must not gossip and if she knew anything that was not nice about anybody she must keep it to herself.

The child looked at her father and then said quickly:

"Well, papa, why did you tell me about Mary?"

The physician was so surprised he could not answer.—Philadelphia Times.

His Only Blemish.

When the pious looking lady entered the London birdshop and stated her need of a talking parrot the proprietor "reckoned 'e'd got the werry thing the lady wanted." "Course, ma'am," he said, "you don't want a vulgar bird. This 'ere one, now, was brought over by a missionary. Talks like a reg'lar 'ymn book, 'e does. I wouldn't let 'im go if I didn't think you'd give 'im a respectable 'ome. Thirty-five shillings that bird, ma'am."

"You'll soon know!" screeched Polly. "You'll soon know!"

"Dear me! How quaint!" gushed the lady, and 35 shillings changed hands. "What does he mean by 'you'll soon know,' I wonder?"

"It's 'is only blemish, ma'am," smiled the birdshop man. "'E's got it into 'is 'ead that every one's wonderful anxious to find out wot a missionary sez when 'e 'its 'is thumb with a 'ammer."

What She Missed.

Six-year-old Ruth was very unhappy because one of her many wants had been denied. Her papa was giving her a lecture and said, "You have everything that most little girls have, and I don't think there is another little girl in town has more than you."

"Oh, yes," said Ruth. "Alice has."

"What has she that you have not?" said papa.

"Well, I guess she had a ride to her grandma's funeral."—Exchange.

The Serpent's Venom.

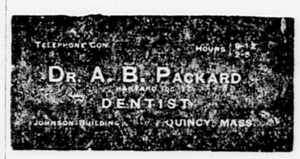

A physician while talking with a group of friends remarked: "It is common to hear people speak about poisonous serpents. Serpents are never poisonous; they are venomous. A poison cannot be taken internally without bad effects; a venom can. Venoms to be effective have to be injected directly into the circulation, and this is the manner in which the snake kills. Their venom taken internally is innocuous."

BRIEFS

Rev. Archibald McCord of Taunton will be the preacher on Sunday at Bethany Congregational church.

Weekly hop at the Quincy Yacht club house tonight, and whist Thursday night.

W. W. Mitchell of Upland road is at Long pond, Middleboro, for a few days' visit.

The regular August meeting of the Board of Trade will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

On Saturday the sum will set before 7 o'clock, and the afternoons will shorten 44 minutes during the month.

The Ward Four Improvement Association will meet Thursday evening in Dolan's hall. As this will probably be the last meeting until the fall, a large attendance is requested.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Whiton leave Wednesday for the Kearsarge house, White Mountains, where they will join Mrs. Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., and children.

Misses Florence and Marion Howe of Bigelow street left Monday for Boone lake. They were accompanied by William Howe, Bradford Wilson and Miss Claudia Wilson.

Patrons of the Quincy depot are complaining of the condition of the sanitaries, particularly that used by men. The attention of the railroad officials should be called to it.

In the few weeks that Andrew Stewart has had charge of the grounds of Bethany church a great improvement has been made. Now new grass is growing where bare spots existed, the lawns and walks are well kept and also the edges of the walks.

Rev. A. N. Thompson of the United Presbyterian church left today by boat for Yarmouth, and will enjoy his vacation at Truro, N. S. The church will be closed Sunday, Aug. 7, but on Aug. 14 and 21 Rev. Dr. McLeod of Truro will preach.

Master Frederick Lovell celebrated his sixth birthday anniversary Monday afternoon by entertaining twenty of his young friends at his home 1067 Hancock street. Games of various kinds were played, and refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cake and ice cream were served. One of the events of the afternoon was the cutting of a massive birthday cake in his honor. The afternoon proved to be one of unalloyed pleasure for all.

CANALEJAS IS AT THE HELM

PRIESTS' ARREST ORDERED

Madrid Press Comes to Government's Support, Including Leading Paper Hitherto Unfriendly to Premier—Plan For Uprising In Catalonia—Vatican Receives Belated Notice of Ambassador De Ojeda's Recall

Madrid, Aug. 2.—In spite of the crisis confronting the government owing to the schism with the Vatican, King Alfonso and Queen Victoria have left for England. They will stop in France to visit President Fallieres on the way.

Premier Canalejas, left in charge of affairs by King Alfonso, ordered the arrest of priests who have attacked the government and the king because of the rupture with the Vatican.

The Imparcial, which has hitherto been unfriendly to Premier Canalejas, ranges itself upon the side of the government in the pending conflict with the Vatican.

The liberal press in general continues staunchly to support the cabinet, which has been left a free hand to carry through its policy by the departure of King Alfonso and his queen for England.

The Imparcial says: "We are faithful members of the Roman Catholic church, but we have always regarded the issue not as a religious one, but as a national problem, involving the independence of the civil power. Not Spain, but the Vatican, has created the present situation."

The Socialists are preparing for a general strike in the event of troops being sent to Bilboa, where all the miners are on strike. At the same time it was learned semi-officially that a plan for an uprising in Catalonia, where General Weyler is in command of the military, had been discovered by government spies. It is said that the assassination of Weyler was the chief object of the plotters.

Weyler is hated because of his harsh measures and his threat to treat the working classes as he treated the Cubans fifteen years ago in the event of the slightest trouble.

The issue for the time being threatens to become clouded with the internal dissensions of the nation.

Vatican Delays Final Break

Rome, Aug. 2.—Secret advices, it is learned, have been sent to Mgr. Vico, papal nuncio at Madrid, countermanding the previous order which instructed him to return home. It is now believed in diplomatic circles here that there is a prospect of peace in the dispute between the Vatican and Spain.

This was rendered less probable, however, by the final departure from his home of Marquis de Ojeda, who was ambassador to the Vatican till last week.

At the same time semi-official announcement was made at the Vatican that notification of De Ojeda's withdrawal had not been given to the Vatican, though international courtesy requires such action.

Only Monday morning was the note of Premier Canalejas, announcing the departure of the Spanish ambassador, Marquis de Ojeda, received by the papal secretary of state at the Vatican, its purport having reached the Vatican through press dispatches three days earlier.

The note, which is long and worded rather vaguely, announces that De Ojeda would leave immediately, being not recalled, but "called to Madrid for a communication from the government." De Ojeda left Rome an hour after presenting the note.

PROTECTION FOR RAILROAD

Militia on Strike Duty Along Main Line of the Grand Trunk

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 2.—Detachments from the Royal Canadian Tribunes of Toronto and the Royal Canadian Rifles of London, with the Forty-fourth regiment of local militia, left here for Bridgeburg, following requests from the Grand Trunk railway for better protection along its main line between here and Hamilton.

Many passenger trains were stoned and rocks were hurled through windows of the train which brought the regulars here. The disorder is laid to sympathizers with Grand Trunk conductors and trainmen who struck two weeks ago.

UNION MEN JAILED

Made Long Journey to Try and Make Strikebreakers Quit Work

Great Barrington, Mass., Aug. 2.—Seven New Yorkers, members of the International Garment Workers' union, are in jail here awaiting trial for trying to stop a party of strike breakers from doing tailoring in Great Barrington.

Following a strike in New York a New York tailoring establishment sent several of the strikebreakers to Great Barrington, 135 miles away, to get off some rush orders. A cider mill was the scene of action and work progrssed without interruption for a week.

Members of the international Workers' union arrived here yesterday and went to the plant where the non-union men were at work with the avowed intention of causing them to quit. The timely arrival of police, however, prevented a riot and the seven men were locked up to await trial.

Finish Fight Between Boys May Result In the Death of One

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 2.—Bert Gilbert of this city was arraigned before Judge Fuller, charged with promoting a fight between Ernest Metrier and Leon Debelois. The former is suffering from injuries to his nose that may result fatally.

According to the account of Mrs. Metrier, Gilbert offered her boy and Debelois 25 cents for a finish fight and they accepted. The battle had lasted but a few minutes when Metrier was struck on the nose. About the same time the combatants were arrested.

Gilbert, the police charge, was acting both as promoter and referee. From the police station Metrier was rushed to the hospital, where an operation was performed on his nose. He is now on the dangerous list. The case against Gilbert was continued to Aug. 8.

BATEMAN IS SENT TO STATE PRISON

Public Administrator Who Defrauded Many Estates

Boston, Aug. 2.—Osman F. Bateman, formerly a public administrator, was sentenced to state prison for four to five years for larceny by Judge Sanderson. Bateman was arrested in April as he was preparing to board a steamer in New York for South America. He is 60 years old and was indicted for larceny, perjury and forgery. He pleaded guilty to five counts of larceny. The other charges were placed on file.

Bateman took out administration papers on estates of deceased persons, appropriated the money to his own use, and made false returns to the probate court, employing fictitious names. He drew money in this way from the Suffolk Savings bank and other institutions, making return in his accounts filed in the probate court that he had paid the money to heirs. He carried on this work for several years.

TO GIVE AWAY FARMS

Uncle Sam Has Five Hundred For Homeseekers In Northwest

Washington, Aug. 2.—"Wanted—Five hundred farmers." This is the notice that Uncle Sam has hung outside the official front door in Washington. Any man who wants to take up practical farming and answers the advertisement may have the land free.

The government now has about 500 farms awaiting settlement under the various irrigation projects in the northwest. These farms vary in size from twenty to eighty acres of irrigable land, depending upon location. In many sections a tract of grazing land has been included in the farm unit, bringing the total up to 160 acres.

SLASHED WITH A RAZOR

Mill Girl May Die From Wounds Inflicted by Rejected Suitor

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 2.—Carmello Cascone, aged 21, on her way to work in the Arlington mills, was slashed across the face and throat with a razor by Antonio Colletta, 30, whose offers of marriage she had spurned. He attempted to escape, but mill workers chased and captured him. In the flight he threw away his razor and a loaded revolver.

In the police court he pleaded not guilty to attempted murder and was held in $15,000 bonds. The woman will doubtless die. She was to be married next Saturday to a rival of Colletta.

Job Won't Go Begging

Boston, Aug. 2.—The vacancy in the Masaschusetts congressional delegation caused by the death of Congressman Tirrell promises to cause a merry war among several prominent Republicans of the Fourth district who want to succeed the dead congressman this fall, but first of all want the Republican nomination. The candidates to date are W. P. Hall of Fitchburg, W. H. Wilder of Gardner, H. L. Pierce of Leominster, J. L. Johnson of Fitchburg and Levi H. Greenwood of Gardner.

SILENCE FROM SAGAMORE HILL

It Is Regarded as Ominous by Political Forecasters

MAY MEAN WAR WITH TAFT

Former President Expected to "Measure Up" With Chief Executive on the Matter of "My Policies" When He Tours the West—Friends Think He Has Not Been Idle During the Last Six Weeks

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Theodore Roosevelt's unwonted silence since the adoption of a stand pat platform by the Ohio Republican state convention, which has been followed by President Taft's action in sending Senator Crane of Massachusetts through the west on a tour of political inspection, is now taken by the political forecasters as an indication of definite war between Taft and Roosevelt on the matter of "my policies."

Mr. Roosevelt has absolutely refused to comment on the indirect rebuke to his "progressive" ideal which the Ohio Republicans administered. On the other hand, Taft is guarding against the idea of any real contest for the leadership of the party. The developments in the national situation, however, indicate that both men are anxious to learn exactly where they stand with the public.

While Roosevelt is not doing any talking, those who know him best are pretty well convinced that he has not remained idle during the last six weeks. If the breach between the president and the sage of Sagamore Hill reaches the point of open warfare before the November elections partisans of Roosevelt believe he will be able to give Senator Crane and Frank H. Hitchcock a few pointers in the game of practical politics.

Recent visitors to Sagamore Hill have agreed in the opinion that Roosevelt's invasion of the west is going to be the most triumphant political tour that the nation has ever witnessed. In addition to his announced itinerary, it is believed that Roosevelt will make several hundred speeches from the rear platform of his private car. His friends admit that he is desirous of getting close to the people, and it is safe to say that before the trip is ended he will be in a good position to "measure the political strength of President Taft."

Scores of political conferences probably will be held in Roosevelt's private car during the eighteen days he is absent from Oyster Bay, and his political superiors are confident that when he returns to New York to take an active part in the state campaign he will have a fairly accurate grasp of the national political situation.

He will continue talks with both regulars and insurgents. Before his departure for the west, on Aug. 25, it is believed Roosevelt will set out to dethrone Timothy L. Woodruff as chairman of the Republican state committee.

Those who know how determined Roosevelt is to carry the state for the Republican ticket this fall feel certain that he will have a large say when it comes to selecting a successor to Woodruff.

PROTEST FROM CHINAMEN

Object to Having "The Great Trunk Mystery" Performed In Boston

Boston, Aug. 2.—Protests against the presentation of "The Great Trunk Mystery," founded upon the murder of Elsie Sigel in the Chinese colony in New York, which is scheduled to open the 1910-11 season at the Grand opera house, have been filed with Mayor Fitzgerald.

The agitation against the production has been started by the Chinese Sunday school class of the Clarendon street Baptist church. The show has been liberally advertised by means of the regulation posters and the theme upon which the show is founded lead the Chinese students to believe that its presentation would reflect anything but credit upon their race.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress.

Backache is constant day and night.

Mrs. F. Burke, 143 Quincy street, Quincy Mass., says: "I consider Doan's Kidney Pills to be an excellent remedy for kidney trouble. I used them and the results were of the most satisfactory nature. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured at the Cox Drug Store and have my highest recommendation."

WOMAN'S IDEAL HOME

Showing How the Comet Was a Blessing After All.

By A. B. SEARLE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Fellows," said Ned Griggs as they were packing up to leave the university at the close of their college course, "I have a proposition to make. My cousin Loretta Butler"—

"The pretty one you were gallivanting around with on class day?" interrupted Fred Mason.

"The same. She's gone out with a lot of girls and old maids to establish a new woman's institution of some sort. They call it the Woman's Ideal home. The object is to establish a propaganda for the amelioration of the condition of women"—

"Woman's rights, votes for women, equal pay for women with men and all that?" asked Clarence Hughes.

"Exactly. They won't have a man on the premises. Now, I propose that we investigate the Woman's Ideal home. What do you say?"

"That invited we stay, forbidden we go."

"Don't you fool yourself about getting in easily," said Griggs. "We'll have to effect an entrance by strategy."

After a conferepce the young men decided to write a letter to the president of the Woman's Ideal home ostensibly from one of several women desiring to establish a similar institution requesting permission for a committee to inspect the home and look into the constitution and bylaws. As soon as the young men were established in a camp which they had prepared for their summer outing the letter was written, and in due time a reply was received inviting the committee to the Woman's Ideal home.

There were but three out of a dozen young men of sufficiently delicate and youthful appearance to warrant their attempting to personate women. These were Ned Griggs, Fred Mason and Clarence Hughes.

"Ladies," said the president of the home on receiving them, "I welcome you to our institution in the hope that you may duplicate it, and others may duplicate yours till our land is full of such homes for women."

"Mrs. President," replied Mr. Griggs, "it will be our object to duplicate the work you are doing."

The president designated three elderly maiden ladies to show the visitors the institution. Mason and Hughes were so disgruntled at the selection of the guides that they came near giving away the party by their stifled grunts and grimaces. However, the three old maids and the three visitors sallied forth on the tour. At the end of ten minutes there were three old maids and two visitors. One of the visitors had lagged behind and couldn't be found. At the end of twenty minutes there were still three guides, but another visitor was missing. The inspectors seemed to be melting away like John Brown's little Indians in the nursery rhyme. Just half an hour after the start the three elderly guides stood alone together wondering what they were there for.

The first visitor to drop off was Ned Griggs. His cousin, Miss Butler, had recognized him. Shocked at his presence in the home and fearing the consequences for him if detected, she had beckoned him to drop behind with a view to getting him out as soon as possible. The second dropper out, Mason, had taken a desperate fancy to a black eyed girl the party had passed on their tour and concluded to get what information he desired about the home from her rather than the regularly appointed guides. Hughes, finding himself deserted, told his conductors that he feared something had happened to his two associate committee women and he had better go and look for them. Coming upon a blue eyed, flaxen haired girl, he begged her to assist him in his search.

The president was looking over the proofs of an article detailing the objects of the home when the three guides entered. The president looked up and, seeing the ladies alone, was astonished.

"Where are the ladies you had in charge?" she asked.

"Don't know," said one of the guides.

"Don't know! What do you mean?"

"One after the other they disappeared."

"Good gracious!"

Stepping to a bell button, she pushed five times, which meant that every woman in the institution should report in person immediately at the president's office. In a twinkling old, middle aged and young ladies came pouring into the room. When there seemed to be no more to come the president ordered:

"Call the roll."

The roll was called. The A's were all present, but when the B's were reached Miss Butler (Loretta) was absent. Among the F's Miss Fairchild (Dora) failed to respond. A third ominous silence occurred when Miss Waterman (Helen) was called upon to answer.

"Ladies," said the president sternly, "there was something unusual in the appearance of the three visitors that made me hesitate to show them our institution. It is evident from their nonappearance upon the sounding of the alarm that they are somewhere in the building, and the nonappearance of Misses Butler, Fairchild and Waterman, three of the prettiest girls in our home, means that these visitors are—yes, ladies, we may be sure that they are men!"

"Heavens!" exclaimed a hundred voices, and 200 hands were clasped over another hundred bosoms.

"You ladies were appointed to show these—these intruders the premises. Go at once and make a search for them. Bring them and the three missing girls here. All others remain where you are."

Meanwhile there was a concentration of the enemy's forces. The three visitors and the three missing young ladies were in a room together, and the girls knew that the visitors were men who had walked into a lion's or rather a lioness' den. Miss Butler was terror stricken on behalf of her cousin, and the other two girls sympathized with her and them. The girls were startled at the sound of the signal order for all to appear in the president's office. Miss Butler, seeing that the battle was on, took command. Two points of retreat were to be considered, the cellar and the cupola. She chose the latter.

"You girls," she said to Misses Fairchild and Waterman, "go and report. Leave these boys to me."

"It would not be honorable," said Miss Fairchild, "to let you shoulder the matter. I shall go with you."

"Me, too," said Miss Waterman, her excitement getting the better of her grammar.

The six of them ran up to the cupola and closed the trapdoor behind them. Then they all sat down on the door, screened from any one below by the encircling railing and seat.

Battles are often won or lost in consequence of some trifling incident, and it was so in this case. One of the searchers whose part it was to visit the cupola attempted to open the trapdoor. Since she could not move it, she assumed that it was locked. She was about to go for the key when it occurred to her that if it were locked no one could hide there, so she reported "nothing found."

When the search committee returned to the president and reported that not only the three visitors, but the three prettiest girls in the home, had vanished a hundred voices mingled, each voice suggesting some means whereby the vanishment might have occurred. In this way much time was consumed, and a couple of hours had elapsed before any further action was taken.

"'Night or Blucher,' as Wellington said at Waterloo," moaned Griggs.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Hughes.

"I mean that if we don't get a show to leave the place pretty soon under cover of darkness it's all up with us."

Fortunately while he spoke the shadows were deepening. As soon as it was dark he told the others that he was going to slide down a steep descent of the roof to a lightning rod and thence to the ground. If he was not put out of the fight, then the next man was to leave by the same route. The girls told him the rod had been in place for thirty years or more and surely would not hold. But Griggs determined to try it. Hughes watched him as he descended till he was lost in the darkness. Presently there was the sound of a shake on the rod, a signal agreed upon to indicate that he was on terra firma.

Hughes followed Griggs, and Mason followed Hughes. The girls were alone.

Now, it needs to be stated that all this occurred at the time when Halley's comet was flaunting its tail at the earth in the western sky. No sooner had the last man descended than Miss Butler, looking up at the heavens for inspiration in forming a plan to get out of the dilemma, saw the comet.

"Girls, I have it," she exclaimed.

"How? What? Which?" cried the other two at once.

"Open the trap and call down for them to come up and see the comet."

"The very thing!" exclaimed the other two.

"Hello, hello! Mary, Blanche, Sadie, everybody! Come up and see the comet."

The ladies, who were scattered about below, all ran to the foot of the cupola stairs.

The president was called. Meanwhile the calls from above were continued.

"Oh, do everybody come up and see the comet! It's beautiful. The tails are as long as a broom handle."

"Young ladies," cried the stern voice of the president, "come down and give an account of yourselves!"

The girls descended, each wearing a well feigned look of innocent surprise.

"How long have you been up there?" asked the president.

"We went up this afternoon," said Miss Butler, "with our work. It was so cool up there. Then when it began to get dark we concluded we'd stay till the comet grew visible."

"Indeed! Where were you when the signal bell rang?"

"What signal bell?"

"To report at my office."

"Was there a signal bell to report at your office?"

"There was. Now I wish you to tell me what has become of the three visitors who came here this afternoon."

"What three visitors?"

The president, seeing that she was baffled, gave in, and when the girls turned upon her for her unjust suspicions she apologized and gave orders that the disagreeable episode should not be again mentioned.

That night the visitors told the story of their adventures beside the campfire.

CRIPPEN WON'T RESIST RETURN

Will Not Cause Any Trouble For Canadian Authorities

HAS FIFTEEN DAYS' GRACE

Nothing Will Be Done to Give Appearance of Railroading Doctor and Miss Leneve—Dew's Mission Has Been Crowned With Success, but It Is Not Believed That a Confession Has Been Secured

Quebec, Aug. 2.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen announced in the provincial court that he would not resist his return to England to stand trial for the murder of a woman believed by the police to be his missing wife, Belle Elmore, the American actress.

Crippen's companion in flight, Miss Ethel C. Leneve, was to have been arraigned, but her custodians reported to the court that she was too ill to appear. The authorities are confident that the woman will give no more trouble than Crippen promises to, and that as soon as the fifteen days of grace provided by the extradition laws of Canada have expired, both prisoners can be returned to London without any hitch.

When Crippen and Miss Leneve were arrested on board the incoming steamer Montrose they were charged with identical crimes, the murder and mutilation of an unknown woman. It had been expected that both would be arraigned Monday and deported on the steamer Royal George that will sail for England Thursday. However, Inspector Dew received instructions which changed the program. The English officials do not wish anything done that would give the appearance of "railroading" the prisoners. They wish the formalities of extradition followed to the letter.

Dew has been notified to await the arrival from London of an officer bearing the necessary papers. The officer is not expected here for ten days at least. In the meantime, Dew will simply ask that the prisoners be remanded as suspects. The necessity for haste is thus obviated.

Miss Leneve was transferred from the provincial jail to a hospital. The girl scarcely has been able to stand since her collapse when she was taken into custody.

Next to the accused the object of the greatest public attention is Inspector Dew. The latter wears an air not noticeable before. The successful conclusion of his mission has put a new light in his face. At the same time it is generally believed that Dew has failed to secure the hoped-for confession. This does not directly concern the inspector. His duty was to get his man. He got him, and will leave to the proper authorities the matter of his trial.

Just how much Crippen knows of the case against him is in doubt. Whether he has learned that the British authorities have been unable to identify the dismembered body found in the cellar of his Hilldrop Crescent home as that of his actress wife is not known. Without such identification lawyers say that a conviction might be impossible.

ON HER MAIDEN CRUISE

Big Battleship North Dakota Sails From Charlestown Navy Yard

Boston, Aug. 2.—Battleship North Dakota, one of the two largest American ships in commission, sailed Monday from the Charlestown navy yard, where she had been undergoing the finishing touches to put her in perfect order following her delivery by the builders at Fore River.

The North Dakota carries a complement of 962 officers, seamen and marines. Tomorrow the ship will arrive at Newport, where she is to finish filling her coal bunkers and then start on a cruise which will not end until Sept. 5, when she is due to join the Atlantic fleet with her sister ship, the Delaware.

FIVE PERCENT ADVANCE

Thousands of Paper Mill Workers In Five States Working In Harmony

Franklin, N. H., Aug. 2.—The wages of thousands of paper mill workers in New Hampshire, New York state, Vermont, Maine and Massachusetts were advanced an average of 5 percent by the International Paper company.

The raise was one of the conditions of the agreement which ended the protracted strike in several states last spring. Since the settlement of the strike everything seems to be harmonious. All future differences between the company and employes are to be submitted to arbitration.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Hub Working Girls in Search of Fresh Air Should Keep Off Boston Common— Let Them Climb Bunker Hill Monument— Johnnies Come Marching Home and Stenographers Rush to Windows—A Boston Girl Who is up on Trees—Coach in Which Daniel Webster Once Rode Lumbers to Ignominious Auction Sale—"Do Not Kiss" Campaign Now Extends to Moving Pictures.

The trees of Boston and New England may now look up. A Boston girl, graduate of Radcliffe and Smith colleges, has been appointed to carry on experimental work in Wisconsin looking toward the ultimate conservation of the forests of our country. As she is the first woman to achieve this honor, Boston may naturally feel proud of her. Miss Eloise Gerry has from childhood been intensely interested in anything pertaining to trees, flowers and the like, and has a marvellous collection of woods from almost every tree that grows in the United States. She received her appointment to the lately established laboratory at the University of Wisconsin after a lively competition with several masculine rivals.

The Hub looked like a city in a state of siege on several recent days, as the troops of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia passed through the streets on their ways to and from the fields of mock battle. Regiments from outlying towns and cities arrived in trains and trolleys at the rendezvous from which the entire body of citizen soldiers was transported to the camp grounds at Framingham or the forts in the harbor as the case might be. Other troops returning from their week's vigil kept the peaceful stenographers and office boys of Boston running to their office windows at the sound of trumpet and drum to see what all the excitement was about. Our brave soldiers, at all events, saved the city from the warlike invasion by sea.

The Harvard Corporation has created a new office which bids fair to solve many of the difficulties hitherto attendant upon the preparation of young men to become medical and dental students. This office is called the Director of Scholarships Department which has for its object the furnishing of advice relative to all financial predicaments and even the securing of loans for the students, in cases where circumstances would otherwise require that they either give up their course entirely, or drop certain subjects in order to do outside work to help them through. Dr. Franklin Dexter, to whom this innovation is largely due, has been working on the problem for several years, during which time he has found that many brilliant and studious young men have had their careers blighted for the lack of a few hundred dollars. Dr. Dexter will have full charge of the new department, which will serve as an employment bureau which will be in touch with hundreds of business houses throughout the city where needy young men may obtain employment to assist them out of financial straits, and he will act as the patron of the students, advising them and assisting them out of difficulties in every way possible, and in looking after the awarding of scholarships. The new office goes into effect the first of October of this year, and is hailed with satisfaction by all who have been familiar with the trials of students heretofore.

The auctioneer's hammer has fallen on one of greater Boston's famous old landmarks, and a unique collection of antiquities has been scattered far and wide at ridiculously low prices. The beautiful estate of former Governor Gore at Waltham, which was left by will to become the foundation for an Episcopal cathedral, has been put up at a foreclosure sale instituted by the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, and the furnishings will go to satisfy the creditors of the latest owners of the property. The old coach in which the Governor used to ride to the State House, and in which Daniel Webster often rode while he was studying law with Governor Gore went for $150. Among other cherished relics of the olden days were a great mahogany round table, built to seat 100 persons, the top of solid mahogany and the legs bound with carved brass, an old-time billiard and pool table, the great chandelier which hung in the main hall of the mansion, tall candlesticks of solid silver, and the great piano which was one of the first to come into the state and which is one of the oldest now in existence. Thus passes another of the famous landmarks of antiquity which has been pointed to with pride by later generations and which will be truly missed, though it is hoped that the buildings themselves may be kept intact.

The Christian Endeavorers of Missouri do not want to be shown. They distinctly object to the "spooning" scenes, prize fights, robberies and elopemens which are sometimes featurd in th moving picture houses. They have started a crusade throughout the state against these demoralizing influences, and are working hard to improve the conditions in the amusement places. They do not object to kissing, however, where the principals are relatives or married. So that henceforth it behooves the moving picture manufacturers to select their subjects with a view to educational and moral uplift if they wish to make money in Missouri. The moving picture censor of Boston, who frequently has the distinction of being the entire audience at one of the popular shows, has not yet placed a ban on the spoony variety, but public opinion is constantly becoming more strongly organized against the production of cheap pictures.

Boston's sorest spot just now, with the possible exception of Police Commissioner O'Meara's neck, is its long revered and highly esteemed Common, which through lack of proper police protection is alleged to have become the resort of drunken and otherwise objectionable persons. The famous long walk which Oliver Wendell Holmes asked the pretty schoolteacher to share with him is now attended with fears and misgivings for any lady who wishes whether or not attended by his wraith, to pass under its shady trees. Oh, yes, we have a police force and an eminent commissioner at its head, but when this estimable gentleman decides that it is preferable to warn the ladies off the Common so that the loafers and drunks may have their stamping ground undisturbed rather than to maintain a larger protective force, why what else is there to be done? If any respectable woman, working in a store all day and living in a six by eight hall room, happens to desire a breath of fresh air, let her go over to Bunker Hill monument and climb up. She will not be molested by many drunks there, probably.

Ethel Angier.

LEE STATUE STAYS

Congress Alone Can Put It Out of Statuary Hall In Capitol

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 2.—All the protests against the presence of the statue of General Robert E. Lee in a Confederate uniform in Statuary hall in Washington have been unavailing. The president, acting on the findings of Attorney General Wickersham, has decreed that the statue may remain.

The decision of the president assures the statue a permanent lodgment in the Capitol unless congress passes a law for its removal. Such an action is considered beyond the realm of possibility.

Mr. Wickersham consulted the law to determine whether the statue could be removed because of the violent protests against its presence by the G. A. R., especially from the state of New York. He found that there is no provision of law by which the statue can be removed from Statuary hall.

EIGHT-MILE WALL OF FIRE

Forestry Service Hustling For Recruits to Fight Advancing Flames

Missoula, Mont., Aug. 2.—With a wall of flame eight miles long eating its way over the Mntana-Idaho divide into this state, with another fire raging at the head of Cedar creek, and still others reported in various sections, a cry for help was raised here by the officials of the forest service.

Street runners are accosting every likely candidate as a firefighter, and when it was found that Missoula would fail to supply anything like the needed number, a request was sent to Butte and there another firefighting army is being recruited by forestry agents.

No More Bleached Flour

Washington, Aug. 2.—Millers must stop bleaching flour, pending adjudication by the higher courts, or stand criminal prosecution for each shipment made in interstate commerce, according to a decision reached at a conference between officials of the departments of agriculture and justice.

George Was Flippant.

One of our English residents told this story of the Prince of Wales (now king of England) at a recent dinner: "When George and Edward (the late Duke of Clarence) were making their tour in the navy, on one occasion—sunset or something—George went to the hatchway and called, 'Eddie, come up here and sing "God save your grandmother!"'"—Wasp.

The easy way to wash clothes.

Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces and dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep at boiling point until a solution is formed.

This solution will do better work than soap—and without any waste.

Rub the soap solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water, let stand overnight, and in the morning you will find that the really hard work of washing—the rubbing on the washboard—is not half as hard as usual.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS TODAY.

The Real Need.

In negro households, especially in communities where negroes form a large portion of the population, it frequently happens that the woman is the head of the family, being not only the breadwinner, but also the disciplinarian, and in that capacity on occasions she regards her putative lord and master as subject to her will. This at least was the assumption of the colored woman who was a party to a little scene enacted in the office of a justice of the peace.

A man had been arrested on the charge of beating and cruelly misusing his wife. After hearing the charge against the prisoner the justice turned to the first witness.

"Madam," he said, "if this man were your husband and had given you a beating would you call in the police?"

The woman addressed, a veritable amazon in size and aggressiveness, turned a smiling countenance toward the justice and answered:

"No, jedge. If he was mah husban' an' he treated me lak he did 'is wife Ah wouldn't call no p'liceman. No, sah; Ah'd call de undertaker."—Youth's Companion.

Flexibility of English.

English is not only, as Richard Jefferies asserted, the most expressive and flexible of tongues, but also, in Swinburne's opinion, the most musical. He proclaimed the lines—

Music that gentlier on the spirit lies
Than tired eyelids upon tired eyes to be unmatched for melody in any language. And few would venture to contradict such a master of music and tongues. But surely French ranks next on the roll of languages. For clearness of diction it is unrivaled, and, thanks to its abundance of vowels (close on one for every consonant) it flowes rhythmically from the tongue. Against Westley's dictum, that French is to German as a bagpipe to an organ, may be cited a saying of another famous divine, Dr. Dollinger, "L'Allemand n'est pas une langue, mais ceux qui parlent ce jargon se comprennent entre eaux" (German is not a language, but those who speak this jargon understand one another).—London Chronicle.

Facts About Giants.

That very few of the giants who have ever lived have been healthy or well formed recent researches prove beyond a doubt. All we know about Goliath is that he was very tall, but in the second book of Kings we read about another giant, who had more fingers than an ordinary human being, and, according to modern scientists, this is invariably a token of degeneracy. Marcel Donnal saw at Milan a giant who was so tall that his body filled two beds at night, but whose legs were so weak that he could hardly stand upright. William Evans, the gigantic porter of Charles I., had little strength, and Cromwell's porter, another giant, ended his days in a lunatic asylum. Finally, O'Brien, the Irish giant, has been described as "an enormous sick child who grew up too fast."

Another Fake.

"Did you see the 'lightning calculator' in the sideshow?" asked the old farmer in the wide straw hat.

"By heck, yes," drawled the other ruralite, "and he was the biggest fake in the show."

"How was that?"

"Why, thar was a thunderstorm going on while I was in the tent and when I asked him if he could calculate where the lightning was going to strike he just gave me the laugh."—Chicago News.

An Ominous Symptom.

"A good wife is heaven's greatest gift to man and the rarest gem the earth holds," remarked Mr. Jarphly the other morning. "She is his joy, his inspiration and his very soul. Through her he learns to reach the pure and true, and her loving hands lead him softly over the rough places. She is"—

"Jeremiah," said Mrs. Jarphly solemnly—"Jeremiah, what wickedness have you been up to now?"

The envious man pines in plenty, like Tantalus up to the chin in water and yet thirsty.—T. Adams.

RESTELLI IN WOODS

wagon was overtaken. This was allowed to go on.

Arriving at the entrance to the woods on Pearl street, a large crowd was found and they were soon spread out beating through the bushes toward East Braintree, South Weymouth and Holbrook.

Near the street was a large stack of hay on one side of which was the imprint of a man's body. Here it was that John Reardon, the 15 year old son of Dennis Reardon of Colbert avenue saw the mana.a

The boy says the man approached him, and asked him to get him a drink of water. He said that he was thirsty and had not eaten anything for two days. The boy started for the water and the man walked further into the woods and sat down under a large tree.

On his way in he passed the boy's father, who spoke to him. The boy returned with a jug of water from which the man drank freely, and he then walked into the woods. The boy then ran back to Lothrop's store and gave the alarm.

When asked to describe the man the boy said that he was very dark complected. That he wore a soft felt hat pulled down over his eyes, and that he did not look up at all. There appeared to be something the matter with his eyes, although he did not have on glasses.

The boy further said that he had on black shoes, and that sticking out of his right pocket was a long black revolver. The man's face was smooth, although there was a two or three days' growth of whiskers.

This description seems to fit that of Restelli, and it seemed impossible for him to escape the lines spread out for him. By this time the police had been augmented by several hundred citizens many of whom were armed with guns.

In addition to the crowd of local people, hundreds from Quincy started toward Braintree. Automobiles and carriages without number lined the streets and hundreds of others came to Braintree on the train and by cars.

By 12 o'clock there must have been several thousand men and boys gathered on Pearl street and scattered through the woods.

At 11.30 Mayor Shea, who remained in the street, organized a large crowd of armed men, and started them in automobiles down Pearl street toward East Braintree, so that they could work back towards the searchers who started into the woods from the South Braintree side.

Another posse was organized and accompanied by an Italian interpreter, started in a northerly direction toward the Italian settlement, with the idea that the man might possibly have gone in that direction.

With all these searchers surrounding the woods it would seem that it would be utterly impossible for any man to get away.

The crowd searching are worked up to the highest pitch of excitement, and it is pretty safe to say should the man when overtaken offer the least resistance, he will be riddled with bullets.

The woods at South Braintree are very extensive and almost primeval. They extend up the valley of the Monatiquot river from the Fore river at least ten miles into Weymouth, and Holbrook, Rockland toward Brockton.

It is expected that the police of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Holbrook, Brockton, Hingham and Hull will surround the man and capture him dead or alive before night.

Thoss Embarrassing Questions.

Not so long ago it was the custom for girls to collect canes from their favorite boy friends as sentimental souvenirs. One girl, in asking a young man of her acquaintance for his cane, requested him to tie it with a piece of ribbon of his favorite color. When he presented himself at a ribbon counter a day or two after he felt very ill at ease, being quite unused to surroundings that savored so much of femininity.

"What kind of ribbon do you want?" asked the saleslady.

"Any kind will do," he replied.

"Baby ribbon?"

"Oh, I—I'm not married," remonstrated the young man timidly, shifting his weight from one foot to the other.—Harper's Weekly.

The Weapon He Needed.

An excited citizen burst frantically into the police station. "My life's in danger!" he cried. "I've just received a threatening letter from the Black Hand, and I want a permit to carry a weapon."

"All right, sir," replied the captain. "I'll give you a permit to carry a fan—that's the weapon you need; something that will keep you cool."—Chicago News.

—The body of an unknown woman about 23 years of age was found in Reservoir pond at Canton on Sunday. She was 5 feet 3 inches tall.

Spafford, the local storekeeper, who also saw the men, nor any one else about the village could tell, for no one appeared to have taken any particular notice of them, as the train was doing some switching. No trace of these men could be found at Springfield, and it is among the possibilities that the two Italians ran out of money when they reached Gessetts and started in to walk to Rutland from there.

Deputy Sheriff Pascal Ricci of Rutland, who is the boss sleuth of these parts and particularly successful in running down Italian criminals, has been engaged in a large contracting job recently at Hyde Park, 200 miles from here, but State's Atty. Meagher telegraphed him Monday to take up the hunt for Restelli, and Ricci sent word Monday afternoon that he would reach Rutland late tonight and assume charge of the search.

Chief of Police Thomas C. Ellsworth was glad to hear Ricci was coming for the chief is struggling with a trolley strike and has no time to be hunting murderers from a distance. Chief Ellsworth has received a dispatch from Chief Burrell of Quincy, in which the latter said: "Restelli seen 12.30 A. M. on way to Rutland. Telephone Meagher, state's attorney, at Bennington."

REPORTED NEAR BENNINGTON.

Chief Ellsworth also received a telephone message Monday from Deputy Sheriff Ricci, saying that Restelli had been seen near Bennington Sunday where, it is said, he robbed a man and then hurried off in the direction of Rutland, so the chief feels pretty sure Restelli is headed this way, if he hasn't indeed already arrived.

Sunday night Deputy Sheriff McDonald of Ludlow telephoned the chief at Rutland that a man answering Restelli's description was on the evening train. Ellsworth took a couple of men and boarded the train when it arrived, but it had slowed down at the lower end of the yards and if Restelli was aboard he had ample opportunity of getting off before the police got on.

Deputy Sheriff McDonald of Ludlow telephoned the Globe correspondent Monday afternoon that one of the Italians who came up the valley on the mixed train Saturday morning had been located in a town some miles awoy. This Italian has found employment cutting wood for pulp with Deputy Sheriff Ricci on the job, he will be looked over and, of course, if he is the right man, arrested.

When the troutlet in the streamlet sees the hooklet floating by,
And the maniet's nose is blistered as the hot sun mounts on high,
When the lunchlet o'er a cliffiet quite by accident is lost,
Think ye not that hopes of triumph are behind the angler tossed.

Still those hopes will spring triumphant 'neath the fisher's rainsoaked vest,

Still he decorates the bushes with his choicest brand of flies,
For the fishing microbe's in him, and it bides there till he dies.

SPORTING CHAT.

Manager Burton of the Ramblers has put forth a challenge to the Adams A. A. claiming the championship of the city in the 18-19 year old class, and Manager Dickie of the Adams will come back in the near future and accept or reject and tell why. There stands the prospect of as swift a game as was ever played in Quincy, and I hope no one interferes with it.

* * *

Well, I guess Manager Shea knows his business. The Quincyites will now have to lose three straight to be tied for first, and that winning streak is very persistent. It is said in the big leagues that a man who can handle brick and stone can play the game.

* * *

Murray Kerr, who by the way has not lost a game he has pitched for the Fore River Apprentices, is on his vacation in New Hampshire.

* * *

* * *

The cork-centered ball has not met with the approval of the ball-tossers at large. There is some objection to it on the score of firmness and length of life, but why the players don't like it is a mystery, as it looks and feels exactly like the other.

* * *

The Speed Boys are still speeding, this time through Detroit and taking everything with them.

* * *

Who can explain the Bigelows slump Last season not a team in the present Granite City league could have beaten them, but now they seem to go up just before the game is over.

* * *

The Cranch A. A. are surely the candy. They are tied for first place with Adams A. A. having won five and lost but one.

FIELDER JONES TO RETURN.

Fielder Jones, the former manager of the Chicago Americans, contemplates returning to baseball next year somewhere and somehow, probably as part owner and manager of an American league club.

President Johnson of the American league is authority for that statement. Willard Jones, the Fielder's brother, recently called on Mr. Johnson for the purpose of learning if there would be any opposition on the part of Mr. Johnson or any of his associates individually or collectively to the Fielder's returning to organized baseball. He explained that his brother, although successful in his business ventures, was unable to shake off the lure of the national pastime and was getting more uneasy with every month he kept away from it.

"I told him," said President Johnson recently, "that there not only would not be any personal objection to Fielder Jones returning to baseball, but that he would be welcomed and that I would help in so far as I could. Baseball needs such men as Fielder Jones, and his retirement was a loss to the game."

Whether or not the former Sox leader's plans have gone any further than to put out this feeler for the purpose of ascertaining how he stood is not apparent. It is practically certain, however, that he would not return to the game in the role of player-manager only. It is doubtful, indeed, if his days as an active player are not over, on account of the difficulty he would experience in getting back to anything like playing weight after two years of care free prosperity.

How Jones' return to baseball can be arranged is not known. Under the rules of the business end of the game President Comiskey still has first claim on his services as player and manager. Whether or not he would be willing to surrender that claim in order to permit Jones to buy into and manage another American league team only Comiskey knows, and he is keeping his own counsel. Two years ago the master of the Sox refused absolutely to entertain any proposition to sell Jones a part of the White Sox stock in spite of an earnest desire to retain him as manager of the team. It is doubtful if the Old Roman has changed his mind on that proposition.

That Jones is in a position to become a partner-magnate is unquestioned. He was noted for being as shrewd in business as in handling a ball team before his retirement and had been successful enough in oil and timber deals to make his offer to purchase a large holding in the White Sox genuine. In the two years since he quit the game he has been even more successful in a business way and has no need of resuming baseball as an occupation; hence the practical certainty that he contemplates returning as part owner. Baseball always has as strong a fascination for Jones as checkers, chess and bridge whist, his pet amusements, although he would not admit it, and he made a deeper study of the science of baseball than of any other game.

Before he retired from the game in the fall of 1908 Jones was considered to be one of the greatest managers baseball ever produced. As a diamond strategist and tactician he had few if any superiors. In spite of deficient batting, he kept his team among the leaders for many seasons. In 1906 he won the American league pennant and the world's championship from the Cubs. Jones' return to the game will be hailed with delight by the fans.

Chief Burrell to Prosecute Hunt For Restelli

A conference o f the sons of the late Henry E. Hardwick, Chief Burrell and Mayor Shea was held Tuesday evening in the office of the Mayor at City Hall. At this conference Charles H. Hardwick authorized Chief Burrell to offer a reward of $500 for the arrest of Louis Restelli, also the same to be paid if it can be proved that he killed himself to avoid arrest. The sum of $100 will be paid for the dead body of Restelli if found by a searching party.

This morning Chief Burrell had circulars prepared containing the latest picture of the murderer with an accurate description of him. The circular also contains the offer of the reward. These circulars will be sent broadcast throughout the country.

SEARCHING QUARRIES

Dynamite Exploded to Bring Up Body of Murderer

Tuesday afternoon Michael Shea, foreman of the Street department, visited several of the quarries on the North Common that are filled with water, and dynamited them. As many as twelve sticks of dynamite were exploded by battery at one time, throwing a large body of water high into the air.

Four quarries were thus treated and while no body of a man was brought up, the explosion resulted in bringing two dead dogs to the surface.

SUSPECT AT LOWELL

While Looking for Police He Escaped

Boston papers report Restelli suspects at Lowell, Worcester, New Bedford, Weymouth and other places, but there seems to be nothing in any of them unless it be Lowell. An early morning dispatch from Lowell to the Globe says:

A man answering in all particulars it is said, Louis Restelli, the Quincy murderer, appeared in this city early this morning and at the point of a revolver, demanded and obtained food at the home of Frank Labreux, 156 Middlesex street.

After the intruder had been served with food by Labreux, he sat down in the room and from apparent fatigue and the effects of his nourishment was soon in a doze.

Taking advantage of his chance, Labreux hurried out of the house and notified the police, who hastened to Labreux's home, expecting to capture the man, believing it to be Restelli, wanted at Quincy.

Meanwhile the intruder had escaped and a search which was being made by a squad of police sent out on a second alarm had failed to round up any, suspicious character, but was still searching at 3.45 this morning.

PRESS COMMENTS.

The Lynn Item says editorially:

"The real cause of the terrible tragedy at Quincy was the desire for money. The murderer asked his mother to endorse his notes, and she declined. Possibly her experience had convinced her that it would not be wise, but really against her interests. She paid the penalty of her refusal with her life. A successful business man was the next to suffer because he, too, refused to help out. Four more were dangerously wounded, and two others shot, but not seriously injured.

"All these parties were connected with the murderer on a money basis. Some had refused money, others had refused that which money could have bought, and others had been more successful in business. The recklessness of the murderer the devilish hate he manifested, and the cleverness of his disapparance, give color to the belief that he was rendered insane by his business troubles, and under the influence of the homicidal craze committed the horrible deeds, for which he is sought, and for which he must answer.

"The posse that has been organized to search for him through the woods, and the abandoned quarries of Quincy have orders to shoot the fugitive at sight, which is the only safe way for those engaged in this desperate man hunt. There has been quite enough loss of life among the innocent without taking further risk to arrest the guilty."

The Brockton Enterprise says: "The Restelli shooting case in Quincy has again brought forward the argument that there ought to be greater caution shown in selling firearms. Assuredly there ought. The thing has been agitated time after time. Whenever there is a serious crime in which life is taken there comes the cry from every direction "Make it hard to buy firearms; don't let everybody buy; sell only to reasonably law-abiding, quiet, sensible people that you know!" Some dealers undoubtedly follow this plan. Some of them would not sell to a stranger, or to a man who looked villainous, or to anybody who could nt give a fair reason for desiring a weapon in his possession with which at a moment's notice he could snuff out the life of another human being.

But there are other dealers who equally undoubtedly are ready to sell to anybody who has the price and these dealers are making murder and robbery and burglary easy all over this country. And the funny thing is that when somebody proposes shutting down on this easy method of fostering crime some dealer merely has to say "They're hurting my business," and the great American public says "What are you trying to do—put somebody out of business? Stop it. We'll take chances on getting shot just to let the oher fellow get his price." And right there all effort at reform stops till there's another horrible affair like this one at Quincy; and after that in a short time the cry for a change will cease again."

BRAINTREE MAN A TRAMP

Suspect Did Not Have a Gun As Reported

Tuesday's hunt for murderer Restilli in the woods off Pearl street, Braintree, was exploded and came to an end in the early afternoon, when John McGilvray of Cambridge, an inoffensive tramp was rounded up in the woods near the South Weymouth line by Quincy officers.

It had been an exciting day up to that time, and everybody was pretty thoroughly tired out when this clew was exploded. McGilvray admitted that he had slept in the hay stack, and that he had asked John Reardon for water. He was also the one who had asked for food at the different houses. He did not have any revolver and the one Reardon saw sticking out of his pocket was simply a stretch of imagination.

The tramp was taken to the different houses and identified as the man who had asked for food. The Reardon boy and his father also identified him as the man they saw in the hay field.

Officer White of the Metropolita" police unearthed a tramp's retreat in the woods off Plain street, and here he found an old man about 70 years of age who gave his name as Thomas Collins. He was questioned and then allowed to continue to enjoy his retreat. The tramp McGilvray was brought to the Town House, Braintree, where a collection was taken up for him and he was told to go home.

RESTELLI'S FINANCES.

Some new light was brought out in the Louis Restelli case this morning, when it was developed that as far back as last April he disposed of the monuments and machinery at his yard to the value of $200 for the sum of $1 and other considerations to Mary Restelli.

This fact was brought to light by the recording of the bill of sale at the City Clerk's office this morning. The paper is dated April 5, 1910 and as stated above for the sum of $1 and other considerations conveys to Mary Restelli the monuments, machinery and tools at his granite yard to the value of $200.

This would seem to indicate that Restelli has been hard pushed for ready money for some time. In addition to the worry over money, a note of his had recently been protested at one of the local banks, and he had another note for $200 that was due the day after the shooting.

The want of money doubtless caused him to worry and his inability to raise money from his mother and Benjamin Bishop doubtless prompted him to commit his rash acts. Once started on his trail of blood he did not stop until he had shot all the imaginary enemies that he could reach.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS PAID.

The census enumerators who did the work for the 1910 census are being paid off by the government at this time. Some of the Brockton enumerators have already received their pay, being among the first. The least received by any of them was $37 and the largest amount $65.

VERMONT CLEW RUN DOWN

Suspects Have Been Identified As Local Farmers

E. J. Parks, the Globe detective, writes from Springfield, Mass.: Wherever Louis Restelli, the Quincy murderer may be, it is evident now that he was not one of the two men who went north on Saturday morning on the White mountain express to Bellows Falls, supplied with tickets to Chester, and who bought two tickets from there to Gassetts, and then disappeared.

The Globe correspondent, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Pascal Ricci of Rutland and Deputy Sheriff McDonald of Ludlow, Vt., today ran down and located the two men that conductor Griffin and several others thought were Italians, one of whom Griffin is said to have thought he recongnized from a photograph of Restelli as being the murderer.

The two men were found to have been farmers from the region lying outside of Gassetts and were indentified by several neighbors as having left home last Friday morning for a brief visit to the western part of Massachusetts and to have returned by the early morning train Saturday.

Locating these men disposes of the theory that Restelli went north, apparently, and there is left the positive evidence of the numbered mileage ticket that he came from Northampton to Springfield, Mass., on Friday night, leaving Northampton 15 minutes after he arrived there from Boston, assuming that the positive identifications of conductor Graves and ticket agent Spears are correct.

The Springfield police have been unable to get the slighest evidence that Restelli stopped here and are inclined to the belief that he really did come here Friday, as B & M mileage ticket No. 70,719 would seem to prove —provided it was Restelli who used that ticket from Boston to Rutland, Mass., and from there to Northampton —that the murderer kept on going and did not stop in this city.

However, the testimony to the effect that Restelli did come here has had the effect of inspiring the local police to renewed activity in the matter of searching for the matricide and murderer and every line the local department is able to pull on the Italian colony is being worked to learn if he is being covered up here.

BARRE WITNESS.

The Barre Daily Times says: " F. C. Wetmore of this city came near being one of the victims of Luigi Restelli, the Quincy, Mass., murderer, who shot down five persons, two fatally, in that city Friday afternoon and who is still at large. Mr. Wetmore is in Quincy, superintending the setting up of an electric crane for the Smith, Whitcomb & Cook company in the plant run by the Restellis and was there Friday, when the catastrophe occurred. Mr . Wetmore was standing talking with Caspare Restelli, when Luigi appeared in the shed with two Colt revolvers in his hands and immediately opened fire on his brother, Gaspare. Gaspare fell to the ground, seriously wounded, and Luigi then turned his revolver on Adrian, the bookkeeper, who was also standing near by.

Believing that the infuriated man was evidently determined to shoot all in sight, Mr. Wetmore expected his turn would be next, but after emptying his gun at the bookkeeepr, Luigi turned and ran to his team and drove off. Mr. Wetmore then turned his attention to the two wounded men and had them taken to the hospital.

W. F. Loud & Sons were bidders for the State highway at Holliston, but the contract was awarded to C. E. Horne of Millbury.

SEEKING LOCATION FOR COURT HOUSE

Limited on Amount to Expend for the Land

County Commissioners Merrill, Stone and Richardson were in town Tuesday afternoon looking at proposed sites for the new court building to be erected in this city. The Commissioners said that they desired to secure a location that while being central would be far enough removed from the main street, so that the noise of passing cars could not disturb the court when it was in session.

On the other hand they do not want to put too much money into the site and thus reduce the amount that would be available for the building. The Commissioners spent the afternoon driving about the city looking at various sites. Their visit was unheralded and there were efw if any that knew that they were here. They were seen by a representative of the Daily Ledger, however, to whom they intimated the site that they considered most desirable, with the statement that the information thus imparted was not for publication for as is usually he case when owners of land learn that it is being considered the value of that land immediately advances.

When asked if the matter of having the police station located in the same building had been considered, Chairman Merrill said that proposition had not as yet been formally considered. He believed that it would be a very desirable thing if it could be brought about, and intimated that later some action might be taken by the city and Commissioners with this end in view.

—Hereafter candy sold in boxes in Boston must contain sixteen ounces of sweets to the pound. They have usually been short weight.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The police of other cities are entitled to great credit for their readiness to follow up every clew and assist in hunts for Restelli, the murderer. The Metropolitan Park police, the Milton police, and constables of Braintree, Weymouth, Holbrook and other towns have given much time to the Quincy tragedy.

Edwin J. Park of the Boston Globe is certainly doing great detective work in searching for Restelli the murderer. On the ill-fated day he was in Quincy and obtained a good description of the assassin and a picture. Becoming satisfied that Restelli ecaped from town he has taken up the Northampton clew, and we look for developments daily.

The Daily Ledger believes Mayor Shea should wave all technicalities and offer a reward promptly for the capture of Louis Restelli, the murderer. Or at least call a special meeting of the City Council for this evening or Thursday evening, asking the Council to authorize a reward of $1,000. Should the Mayor offer the reward today, he would be safe in depending on the City Council to make the appropriation when Restelli is apprehended. There is the need of more private detectives on the search, and with their assistance we believe the murderer could be located. If detectives were assured that a reward would be offered as soon as the City Council could act, they would not wait but would begin immediately to prosecute their search.

Compliments have reached the Daily Ledger on the editorial views expressed on Monday relative to the tragedies of Friday, July 29. Some have said we did not put it strong enough, however, for Quincy is being held up to ridicule in Boston and throughout the State because it permitted such a wholesale slaughter, and then allowed the assassin to escape from town. All the blame, however, does not come on the police. The nerve of Quincy stone cutters for once deserted them, and they hid until all danger was passed and then continued their work instead of pursuing Restelli, whom they knew. The police force of Quincy is very limited. Four or five years ago there was only one day patrolman, but now there are six or seven widely scattered, one in each ward of the city. At the Police station there may be but one or two sometimes, one on duty and one to drive the patrol wagon. Chief Burrell and the inspectors cannot be expected to spend all their time at the station.

When a city cannot support a large police force the citizens must at all times give all the assistance possible. Had the same alertness been displayed on Friday, as was shown yesterday when the alarm came from Braintree, Restelli would not have got out of town, and possibly Mr. Hardwick would not have been murdered.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Circulars, advertising in distant newspapers, photograph souvenirs, all are good to spread the fair fame of our city. But after all, the thing that makes a town grow is the enthusiasm of its people.

Most people come in contract during a year, with hundreds, even thousands of people from distant places. If each one of us would take the pains when meeting these distant friends, to say something about the business advantages, the social pleasures, the public spirit, of this city, a wide spread impression would go out reaching all over the United States that this town is on the map and a good place to call home.

Some of these distant friends, hearing of people who are thinking of changes of location, would speak of the impression thus gained. This is the way that most moves are made, through some one's personal recommendation. If we spread abroad the name of this city, the returns will in time come in a hundred fold. This is the way Western people work it to make their towns grow.JBeverly Times.

It costs an Italian 79 cents to send an 11-pound package by mail from Italy to any part of this country. It costs a citizen of the United States 64 cens to send a four-pound package from Salem to Beverly by mail, or to any other part of the country, and four pounds is all he can send through our mails. How do the American people like that sort of favoritism to the foreigners? How do they like that method of enabling the great express companies to declare extra dividnds of $32,000,000, as one did last year and others have in the past or can now? Write to your congressman about it; demand equal privileges in our own mails with the Italian, the Austrian and the German.—Salem News.

AN IMPOSTER.

People are warned against a man who is going from house to house seeking upholstery work. He is short, sallow complexion, grey mustache and hair, giving the name of Mansfield and claiming to have worked for a local well known concern. His method is to start work at a house, then ask for the money for materials necessary to use. As soon as he gets the money he never returns. His latest territory to work is Wollaston, having recently fleeced many Milton people.

HUB BUSINESS MEN OUT ABOUT $300,000

They Are Said to Have Been Victimized by John Qualey

Boston, Aug. 3.—The Post says that Boston men charge that John A. Qualey, arrested in New York on the charge of having conspired to defraud the widow of the late Dr. William T. Bull of Newport, R. I., by inducing her to buy $35,000 worth of stock which she says is worthless, also operated in Boston, and swindled Boston business men out of about $300,000.

Qualey organized the Slatine company of America, formed for the alleged purpose of making various articles out of pulverized slate by means of a secret process invented by Qualey.

Later on the Magnesia company of America was organized by Qualey and others, the object being to manufacture magnesium by a process also invented by Qualey, the manufactured article to be used as a substitute for asbestos used in covering piping, etc.

Another company started by Qualey was for the manufacture of "Lactaline," so called, a synthetic substitute for milk. The process was, as in the case of the other companies, invented by Qualey.

After selling all the stock he possibly could in his various companies, all of which are now dead, Qualey left town, taking all the cash proceeds with him.

LAND FOR HOMESTEAD

Many Thousand Acres to Be Thrown Open to Settlers This Fall

Washington, Aug. 3.—Thousands of acres of unappropriated lands which were eliminated from the national forests and restored to the public domain by recent proclamation of President Taft, will be thrown open to homestead settlement and entry this fall, according to orders issued by Acting Secretary Pierce of the interior department.

The lands are located in Colorado, New Mexico, Washington, Oregon, Utah, Idaho and Wyoming. The secretary also has restored to settlement on Oct. 22 and to entry on Nov. 21 about 9220 acres in the Great Falls, Mont., land district, formerly withdrawn.

War Chief Tests Aeroplane

Rome, Aug. 3.—General Spingardi, war minister, is the first official of that rank in the world to test the aeroplane. Spingardi flew with Lieutenant Savoia at Centocelle. The flight was highly successful. Spingardi declared that the experience had done much to strengthen his belief in the utility of the aeroplane in war.

HARDING FIGHTS FOR LIFE'S GOAL

Presidency In 1912 Greatest Prize In Buckeye Battle. Harmon's Re-election May Mean Rejection of Taft and Pushing of Governor Into White House.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THE nomination of Warren G. Harding for governor of Ohio not only gives assurance of one of the warmest fights in the history of Buckeye politics, which has not been entirely devoid of warm fights, but also holds out a welcome promise that in some rare instances the newspaper man may come into his own.

Harding has been a newspaper man ever since he was nineteen years old, or all of the time at least when not engaged in holding office or stumping the state. He took a paper when everybody said it was going to die and had to borrow money to raise the purchase price. That called for a large combination of faith and grit, and the same qualities were required for some years afterward to keep the thing going.

Go it did, however, which was fortunate from several standpoints. For one thing it gave the Republicans of Ohio a candidate for governor when they needed one very much, and for another it prevented Harding's cheerful friends, who had predicted the paper's early demise, from coming around and saying, "I told you so."

Circumstances Favor Harding.

Harding's nomination came as the result of a peculiar combination. It was practically the field against George B. Cox of Cincinnati and his candidate, Judge O. B. Brown of Dayton. James R. Garfield had announced that if he did not get his platform his name would not go before the convention, and when the "progressive" tariff plank, the recall and certain other of the Garfield planks were rejected by the resolution committee he made good his word. Carmi A. Thompson, one of the three leading candidates before the convention and regarded in some quarters as a favorite of Senator Dick, also withdrew.

This narrowed the fight practically to Brown and Harding, although there were scattering votes for other candidates, Garfield and Nicholas Longworth receiving the bulk of these.

One of the most stirring features of the balloting was the attempt of Cuyahoga county to start a stampede for Longworth. Mrs. Longworth, who was seated in the gallery, was observed to frown at this and vigorously shake her head, looking the while intently at her husband on the platform, who had a frown on his own face. Both, however, joined in the applause when the advance of the Harding wave submerged all other candidates.

Old Enemies In Alliance.

Politics never made stranger bedfellows than in the joining of forces that led to Harding's nomination. Garfield was there with the "progressive" strength and, although he had aroused the hostility of the administration by his attitude in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, he readily joined hands with the Taft forces to prevent the nomination of the Cox candidate.

Harding had been referred to as a Foraker candidate, yet, despite the old Foraker-Taft feud, the administration was forced to accept him. The result was practically a Taft-Garfield-Foraker-Burton combination. It is a long lived political animosity which survives the year of its birth. The political enmities of yesterday become the friendship of today and are again the enmities of tomorrow.

Harding has long been known as the best "stump speaker in Ohio." Anybody who is acquainted with Ohio stump speakers realizes the transcendent quality of that praise. Originally a Blaine man, he later became a worshiper at the shrine of Foraker. Now he is a leader in his own right. For some years a state senator, he was afterward offered the nomination for congress, but declined, one reason given by his friends being that he already had the gubernatorial bee in his bonnet. It was a case of hope deferred, however, for the nearest he could get to the governor's chair was his election as lieutenant governor, which gave him the title even though it did not carry the power to shake the official plum tree.

Editor of College Paper.

Harding was born in 1865, the son of a physician who served in the civil war. He had the journalistic bug even in college, where he was one of the editors of the campus paper. No sooner was he graduated than he started on his newspaper career on the old family mule, riding it into Marion, the county seat. It may be that that particular mule will become as famous as those driven by James A. Garfield on the towpath. It may be that the particular load of ambition it carried was then started on his journey to the governorship of a great state, and who knows to wht greater heights? It is hard to keep an Ohio governor down, especially if he succeeds in holding his job a second term. And that brings us to Harmon.

The friends of Governor Harmon are quite frank in saying that this year's campaign is but preliminary to the White House in 1912. Possibly that is one reason that William H. Taft has shown a fitful interest in the outcome. The careers of Harmon and of Taft have been strangely intermingled. They were born in the same county, and, while it is not on record that they courted the same girl, it is certain they have held the same offices and no doubt will seek to do so in future.

When Harmon resigned the judgeship in Cincinnati Taft was appointed to fill the vacancy. Stranger yet, the appointment was made by Joseph B. Foraker, then governor. Somewhat later Grover Cleveland, in looking over the country for an attorney general, saw the lank and somewhat rugged form of Harmon, who up to that time had been known only as a lawyer whose fame extended scarcely beyond his own town.

Another Parallel Seen.

Again Harmon's path paralleled that of Mr. Taft, who some years later became secretary of war in the cabinet of Theodore Roosevelt. The governor's friends insist that the parallel is to go further. In being elected president in 1908, they only insist that Taft beat Harmon to it. All of which makes it more than ever plain that it is not a mere state fight that is occupying the attention of Ohio this year, but one chock full of presidential politics.

That it will be one of the hottest fights in the history of the state is assured not only by the big stakes involved, but by the character of the two men themselves. While Harmon has never been referred to as the best stumper in the state, he has a sort of Uncle Jud way of appealing to his audiences that is most effective. Moreover, he will have certain ammunition in the way of printing and other scandals at Columbus that will not be lost on Ohio voters. He will make his campaign largely on state issues, while the Republican platform indicates that Harding's fight will follow national lines.

It is understood the president insisted that in his own state there should be a vigorous defense of the Paine-Aldrich tariff. The Democrats can hardly refuse this gage of battle, and hence the outcome in the Buckeye State should give a clear line on the attitude of American voters on the tariff law. Indeed, Mr. Taft naturally feels that the outcome in his own state will be regarded as a verdict on his own administration.

Harmon Noted For Independence.

Governor Harmon is nearly ten years older than his opponent, having been born in 1846. Both are graduates of Ohio colleges and both have made their own way in the world. Harmon was originally a Republican, but broke away in the Greeley campaign. For a time in the early seventies he was connected with a People's party movement in Ohio, but later became a Democrat. He has always shown independence in politics, however, and on more than one occasion has broken with the machine in local matters. Even as governor he has not always been in harmony with the party managers.

Before the convention which renominated him for governor he locked horns with William J. Bryan on the subject of nominating a candidate for United States senator. The governor was against taking that action and won out. He also opposed a public utilities commission, by which he further alienated some of the Bryan-Johnson wing of his party. His latest conspicuous action as governor in the Newark affair, where he took a decided stand against the mayor, although that official was a Democrat, shows something of the same independent spirit.

Proves His Courage.

In his campaign against graft and official peculation Governor Harmon has exhibited an equal courage. He has not made a great deal of noise as governor, but his quiet efficiency has attracted the notice of the country. At the first meeting of the house of governors he was chosen to preside, and when the body called at the White House President Taft singled him out for a compliment. This is the sort of man Warren G. Harding has to beat before attaining the ambition of his life.

As to Harding being the best campaigner in Ohio there is distinguished authority. President Taft says so, adding, "with the possible exception of Foraker."

In his campaign for the nomination, which he made frankly and without mock modesty, Mr. Harding held aloof from factions. Although classed as a Foraker man, he had in 1908 practically repudiated Foraker. That was at the time the Cincinnati senator attacked Taft. Yet the Foraker followers throughout the state rallied to Harding in this year's contest for the nomination, so that the breach, if the disagreement ever reached the stage of being called a breach, may be considered healed.

Another incident showing the quality of the Republican candidate was his break with Governor Herrick. Harding was lieutenant governor at the same time Herrick was governor, and the two parted company because Harding wanted to be governor at the next election.

Presidency Also at Stake.

The real issue in Ohio, however, is not the governorship, but the presidency. Not only did the Democratic convention propose Judson Harmon for the nomination in 1912, but the Republican convention accepted the challenge by indorsing Taft for another term. Thus the fight assumes almost the proportions of a presidential contest.

Should Harmon win he will almost certainly become the Democratic standard bearer two years hence, while President Taft will be humiliated and to some extent discredited by a repudiation in his own state. Should Harding be successful the result would universally be regarded as the elimination of Harmon and the triumph of Taft.

On state issues it has been generally conceded that the Democratic governor had an excellent chance to succeed himself, yet it must be remembered that on national issues Ohio has been uniformly Republican. This makes the outcome more uncertain.

Nor do the complications end here. The insurgent movement and the popular feeling against the tariff law are new factors the strength of which cannot as yet be measured. Then, too, Theodore Roosevelt has announced that he will make no speeches in Ohio this year. In view of the defeat of the Garfield platform what interpretation will the country place on his silence?

BE FAIR TO POLICE

They Did Their Level Best Bravely

Editor Daily Ledger:

Just a word to those who so glibly and freely criticises our local police for their failure to do this and their failure to do that during the past few days. Have you considered the fact that each and every one of them is zealously doing his level best to apprehend the murderer, many of them going without much sleep?

Where were you, Mr. Critic, last Friday afternoon and evening, when those officers were plunging through the thickets and long grass in West Quincy, not knowing what moment a bullet might lay one of them low? Has any one of them shown any disposition to shirk his duty or avoid danger? Certainly not.

In moral stamina and physical courage our police are the peers of those of any other city in the country. They may have omitted to do some things that ought to have been done when the murders were first reported, but what is the use or reason of harping on those things now? They did their level best, every one of them, from the Chief down to the newest special. They stand ready now to walk into the jaws of danger if duty requires it. Unjustifiable criticism of the police has within it the fruitful germ of anarchy. Let us be fair.

BIDS FOR STONE PIER.

The harbor and land commissioners have issued a call for bids for a new pier on the Commonwealth flats at South Boston. The proposals are for a solid pier enclosed by stone masonry seawalls and the filling of about 900 feet in length of Northern avenue. with enclosing seawall and bulhead, just east of the Commonwealth pier.

Bids will be received at the office of the commissioners, until 2 o'clock, Friday, Sept. 2, at which time they will be opened. Each bid is to be accompanied by a certified check for $7500, and a bond of $75,000 will be required.

GRANGE OUTING.

The State Board of Agriculture will hold a demonstration meeting at Randall's grove, Ponkapoag pond, Canton, Thursday, Aug. 18, in connection with the anual basket picnic of the Ponkapoag Grange. This is the first demonstration meeting held in Norfolk County, and in fact the first held in any of the south-eastern counties, It is designed to give the people of this section the benefits of this sort of meeting, several others of a similar nature having been held in other parts of the State in recent years. There will be two demonstrations, one on bee-keeping and one on the management of fruit trees.

The Grange has arranged an attractive program of sports and games, which will take up a good share of the rest of the day. There will be every facility for a basket picnic, or those prefering it may secure their dinners at a hotel within a few minutes walk of the grove. Take Blue Hill car to Turnpike street, where a barge will be in waiting up to 12.30 P. M.

BOYS ENJOY COASTING

Rare August Sport In an Eastern Massachusetts Town

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 3.—Boys coasted last night on the hills of South Groveland, three miles from here. A hail storm which struck this vicinity covered the hills and valleys completely, the storm being the worst that even oldest residents remember.

Chickens and hens were killed by the large hailstones, some of which measured over an inch in diameter. A large flock of birds were killed and some damage was done to crops.

HOW ALARM WAS SPREAD

Sergeant Hanson Did Every thing Possible

Much has been said during the past few days as to what the Police department did, and what it did not do on the Friday afternoon of the shooting. On that afternoon, as has been truthfully stated in the Daily Ledger, Chief Burrell and Inspector McKay were out of town. Acting Inspector Goodhue was also somewhere away from the station with the Chief's horse and buggy. Sergt. Hanson was in charge of the station, and with him were Officer Cahill the driver of the wagon and Officer Corbett, who was doing house duty and was asleep in the guard room.

Sergt. Hanson says that is was a few minutes after 2 o'clock when he received a telephone saying that there had been a shooting near the stone sheds of Long & Saunders. He shouted to Officer Cahill to harness into the patrol wagon at the same time ringing the bell to call Officer Corbett. By the time the horse was harnessed Officer Corbett came down stairs so that within five minutes of the time the telephone was received the wagon was on the run to the scene of the shooting

This left Sergt. Hanson alone at the station with no one to call upon in case more men were wanted. In a few minutes after the patrol wagon had arrived at the Restelli yard, Officer Cahill called the station and said that there had also been a shooting at Bishops shed, and asked if he should send Corbett there, or take him to the Hospital with the wounded man. "Send Corbett to the Bishop shed, and get some one to go to the Hospital with you," was the reply telephoned by Sergt. Hanson.

A few minutes later a call came in from the Hardwick office. There was not a person at the station to send to this call. He, however, sent a boy to call Officer Bishop who lives near the station, and a few minutes later Officer Milford came in. Both of these officers were dispatched post haste for the Hardwick quarry.

The next thing that happened was a second telephone from the Hardwick quarry, stating that the man had gone over toward Milton. When Officer Cahill had reported the shooting at South Quincy he had informed the sergeant who the man was who had done it, and as Sergt. Hanson knew Restelli he was able to give a good description of him.

As soon as Officers Bishop and Milford had started for the Hardwick quarry, Sergt. Hanson says that he called up the Milton police and notified them of the shooting, giving a description of the man and saying that he was reported as having gone that way. The reply came back that half a dozen officers would be sent to East Milton to head the man off.

The Metropolitan Police at the Blue Hills was then called, and the sergeant in charge said he would send as many officers as he could muster to East Milton in an automobile. Station 11, Boston, was called and asked to look out for the man in case he should get into that district. In all of these cases a description of the murderer was given.

While Sergt. Hanson was notifying the different police departments, Officer Goodhue drove up to the station and unharnessed his horse before the sergeant saw him. Then he halload to Officer Goodhue, and said, get up to Hardwicks just as soon as you can there has been a shooting there.

By this time Mayor Shea arrived at the Hardwick quarry, and a few minutes later the police call was sounded.

From the above statement it would appear that Sergt. Hanson was handicapped from the first by having no one to call upon, and that he did all that any man could do under the circumstances to get the machinery of the law in motion to apprehend the man, and therefore is in no way open eo censure.

This is not the first time that the officer on duty at the station has been handicapped by the lack of some one to call upon in case of emergency. It not infrequently happens that a call for the wagon comes and there is no one to send with it. Illustration of the point in view occurred Tuesday when the patrol wagon went to Braintree with a load of officers shortly before noon, and did not return to the station until late in the afternoon. Had there been a call for the wagon and officers any time during the greater part of Tuesday there was not a man that could be sent, for Sergt. Hanson was left alone at the Police station.

SOUTH QUINCY ALARMED

Man Prowling Around Houses At 2 A. M.

A man, whom it is thought may be Restelli, has been seen prowling through back yards at the junction of Lawry street and Independence avenue. The midnight visitor is supposed to be the murderer owing to the fact that Joseph Bishop, related to Benjamin Bishop shot by Restelli, resides on Independence avenue at its junction with Lawry street.

On Thursday night the night before the tragedies, at 2 o'clock, Bernard Talbot of 8 Lawry street, was awakened by a loud sneeze under his window, and watching through the closed blinds of his bedroom saw a man whom he now thinks was Restelli, who is well known to Talbot, walking around the Bishop premises. The Restelli granite yard is also just across the railroad tracks.

Last night at the same time he was awakened by his wife who heard noises in the yard. Upon looking out, Talbot saw a figure which he positively indentified as that of the first visitor, walking about the yard as before. Last night, however, two dogs scented a stranger and woke the neighborhood with their howlings and scared away the prowler.

Talbot thinks the man was Restelli, because of the fact that on the night before he shot Mr. Bishop at his office he secretly inspected the brothers house, and unsatisfied longing for revenge may have called him back to attempt the murder of another of the Bishop family.

GLOBE'S $10,000 PRIZE.

The Harvard-Boston aviation meet in Soldiers field from Sept. 3 to Sept. 13 will be the greatest event of the kind ever seen in this country. Every conceivable kind of flying machine and the greatest aviators in the world are entered for the various contests.

The most dramatic and spectacular contest of the meet will be the contest for the grand prize of $10,000 cash offered by the Boston Globe for the quickest flight by any kind of flying machine from Soldiers field to Boston light and return, without stops. This is open to all and will be contested for each week day of the meet between 12 o'clock noon and 7 P. M.

The extct distance from Soldiers field to Boston light is 12 3-8 statute miles, so that the toal flight by any machine in the contest must be at least 24 3-4 statute miles.

Already the greatest aviators in the world have been entered for the Boston Globe $10,000 cash prize, including Glenn H. Curtiss, who holds the international championship won at Rheims, France, a year ago, and who won the $10,000 prize recently for a flight from Albany to New York. Hamilton, who won the Philadelphia-New York flight, and Brookins, who won the altitude flight at Atlantic City, will also be among the contestants, as will Johntone, the most daring of the aviators, associated with the Wright brothers, and Willard, the hero of the Los Angeles flight. Harmon and Harkness, the wealthy amateurs, will also contest, as will four French aviators with monoplanes.

Besides this great prize of $10,000 cash offered by the Globe there will be $50,000 distributed in prizes ofr all kinds of contests with aeroplanes, gas balloons, dirigibles and kites. The contests for the Globe prize will be the most spectacular, as the aviators must pass over the city of Boston to reach the harbor and bay, and recross the city on the return from Boston light.

AUGUST MAGAZINES.

A brilliant account of George V. written in Sydney Brooks' most able style, heads the list of articles in the August McCdure's and brings out a number of interesting facts about the personal character of Eugland's unknown King. Burton J. Hendrick, in "Oxygenizing a City," describes Chicago's great fight for fresh air, which has revolutionized the ventilation of the city's schools and tenements. Louise Parks Richards contributes some remarkable psychological studies of the men and women who are taking part in the Passion Play at Oberammergau. The August fiction is unusually successful. Among the stories are "Shiela," one of a Western series by George Pattullo; "The Fifth of October," a love story by Mary Shipman Andrews; "A Cup of Cocoa," a story of African adventure by Eleanor Stuart; "The Steamer Child," by Elsie Singmaster; and another John Thorndyke detective story.

Distinctly seasonable is Surburban Life for August, with its remarkable frontispiece showing a midsummer scene in the heart of the woods, and its wealth of other illustrations in wide variety. It is interesting to note the practical way in which this number appeals to people in surburban communities all over the country. The leading article is entitled "A Suburban Community Made to Order," and describes a unique but very successful experience in community building near Chicago. It is a story which ought to prove an inspiration to hundreds who contemplate moving suburbanward. An article entitled "Is the Shade Tree Doomed?" is sure to set many people thinking seriously about a subject which has too long been overlooked; already the noble elms of New England are on the point of extinction. Several columns are devoted to the suburban household, the vacation home, the month's garden work, and similar subjects.

The leading place in The Engineering Magazine for August is given to a profusely illustrated review by Warren H. Miller of mechanical and commercial developments in the French aeroplane industry. The business has increased to such an extent that five concerns are now engaged in manufacturing aeroplanes, some of them in more than one factory, all of them issuing handsome catalogues of standard sizes and types of product. Bleriot has sold more than 250 machines, and the other concerns, Farman, Sommer, Voisin and Antoinette have in hand orders for from 20 to 50 aeroplanes each. An important series of articles by Percival Robert Moses on the heating, ventilation, and air conditioning of factories is introduced by a discussion of its economic importance and a description of systems for temperature control. The number carries also the full Review of the Engineering Press and The Engineering Index. The Engineering Magazine, New York.

GROCERS' DAY AT BASS POINT

Quincy and Old Colony Towns Well Represented

Today is Grocers' day, and is being observed as a general holiday by the grocery and provision dealers of Quincy.

For several years past these annual outings have been held in Narragansett Bay with dinner at Crescent Park. The change in program this year, however, will be a welcome one. The program for the day includes a dinner in one of the large hotels at Bass Point, after which there will be a series of sports. In the late afternoon, the party will board a steamer for a two hours sail about the harbor.

Although the grocery and provision stores are closed, the day is not being as generally observed as a holiday as in some years, for few stores outside of the grocery stores are closed, so that City Square does not present the deserted appearance that it usually does on Grocers' Day. All he Old Colony towns are well represented.

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Harlow of Hancock street have moved to Bromfield street.

Mrs. Rufus M. Poole of Prospect avenue is sojourning at Harpswell, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Linde Fowler of Sagamore street are at Gardiner, Maine, for two weeks.

Mrs. Charles J. Anderson of Oakland avenue, has returned from a week's stay at Woods Hole.

Miss Christine Fowler of Phillips street has returned from Watch Hill, Rhode Island, where she spent two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Howes of Cottage street went Monday to Chatham to spend two weeks with Mr. Howes' father, Zenas T. Howes.

The John B. Givans of Hamilton street returned this week from Hancock, New Hampshire, where they have been camping at Lake Nubernuset.

Mrs. Gilbert H. Rhodes of Old Colony avenue has gone to Hancock, New Hampshire, where she will be the guest of Mrs. George Gurney at her summer camp for ten days.

Miss Helen B. Josselyn of Hancock street who has been at Greenwich, Connecticut, since the first of July and went on to Wyoming, New Jersey, last week to visit her sister, Mrs. Ralph S. Foss, returned Monday with her father, Robert Josselyn, who went over with Mrs. Josselyn last week.

—With two revolvers of heavy bore a Quincy Italian Friday ran amuck. Two he murdered and four were dangerously wounded. Since he is still at large, it is by no means certain that returns are complete. Again we have terrible illustration of the folly of promiscuous sales of firearms. It is very hard to get blank cartridges, but almost anybody can purchase a 44-calibre revolver. How much longer will the legislature shirk its obvious duty?—Boston Record.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WU TING FANG

Former Minister to America Reinstated

WU BACK IN OFFICE

Diplomat Is Made Councillor to Chinese Foreign Office

Pekin, Aug. 3.—Wu Ting Fang, former minister to the United States, who upon his retirement from the diplomatic service and return to China was thought to have been relegated permanently to private life by the new forces at Pekin, has now, contrary to expectation, re-entered office.

He was yesterday appointed councillor to the Chinese foreign office, which recognizes the need of a man of strength and foreign experience since the dismissal by the regent of Yuan Shi-Kai.

ENTITLED TO HAVE NAME ON BALLOT

Chandler's Opinion of Woman Candidate For Governor

Concord, N. H., Aug. 3.—William E. Chandler, former United States senator, in an interview declares that Mrs. Marilla M. Ricker is entitled to have her name on the official ballot as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor at the coming primaries. Chandler says:

"Strong argument will be necessary to convince me that the attorney general or secretary of state can perform that act of proscription. Such action on their part might be tolerated if the constitution said that the governor of New Hampshire must be a male biped.

"But it does not say that. It only says the governor shall be of the age of 30 years and shall have lived in the state for seven years. To be sure, it uses the word 'he,' but that word embraces 'she,' so apparently 'she' can be a governor."

BALLINGER A HANDICAP

President's Advisers Think Secretary of Interior Should Leave Cabinet

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 3.—There are increasing evidences here that the recent bombardment of the president with letters from Republican leaders in all parts of the country, protesting that Secretary of the Interior Ballinger is proving an embarrassment in the laying of plans for the coming congressional campaign, is beginning to have an effect, if not upon the president himself, at least upon the advisers who are closest to him.

No attempt was made to deny the reports that Senator Crane, at the very outset of his political pilgrimage in the west, had probably suggested to Ballinger, at Minneapolis, that his duty to the party might require that he sacrifice his place in the cabinet. All that Secretary Norton would say was that it would be necessary to ask Crane.

"WILD MAN" CAPTURED

Had Been at Large Since Making His Escape Three Years Ago

Franklin, N. H., Aug. 3.—In the capture of Arthur Swain at Sanborton a "wild man" who has been spreading terror through the neighborhood for months has been apprehended.

Swain is 40 years old and lives in Meredith. He is mildly insane. Three years ago he escaped from the Belknap county house of correction at Laconia, and since that time he has been wandering around in this section.

New York, Aug. 3.—United States District Attorney Wise has appointed to his staff of assistants Raymond G. Brown, who is totally blind. Brown is a graduate of Harvard law school.

PREPARING FOR LONG STRUGGLE

Canalejas Sticks to Program Despite Death Threats

HIS BODYGUARD IS DOUBLED

Madrid Press Charges Vatican With Hindering Negotiations With Spain —Foreign Minister Says Merry del Val Adopted Dilatory Tactics—Government Strengthening Its Position In View of Internecine Strife

Madrid, Aug. 3.—Premier Canalejas, directing the struggle of Spain against the Vatican, received death threats which led to the doubling of his bodyguard. The crisis with the Vatican has brought forth hundreds of telegrams and letters. More than one of the latter demand surrender and peace on the pain of assassination.

"Drop the contest or you will get what General Weyler barely missed," is a free translation of one of these notes which is declared by the officials to be typical.

In spite of this development, attributed to fanatics, the premier continues preparations for a long struggle without a recession from the stand he has taken.

The Liberal press officially denies the insinuations of the Vatican that it only demanded the withdrawal of the bill prohibiting further religious orders until the concordat has been revised and also points out that the bill in question did not violate the concordat, which recognizes only three orders. El Liberal says Pope Pius X is now sowing what will be reaped in following the advice of two Spanish cardinals.

Garcia Prieto, the minister for foreign affairs, in an interview in which he recites the history of the negotiations between Spain and the Vatican, denied that the holy see had adopted a conciliatory attitude. He said:

"The government asked only two things: First, the suppression of the convents and monasteries illegally in existence and second that the pope should authorize the bishops to suppress or transform the establishments unnecessary to the aid of the priests in their ministrations. The government offered a year for the transformation which was desired by the seculiar clergy whose existence is gravely compromised by the monks."

Senor Prieto declared that Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, had adopted dilatory tactics from the first, alleging that the speech from the throne contained points against the Catholic religion.

"We protested our good faith and desire to reach an agreement," said the minister, "when we enforced the decree of 1902, against which neither the Curia nor the Episcopate had protested. Cardinal Merry del Val demanded that the decree remain a dead letter, although the Vatican has since that date granted numerous authorizations without the sanction of the Spanish government.

"Finally, the demand of the Vatican for the withdrawal of the bill permitting non-Catholic organizations to display the insignia of public worship was deemed inadmissible."

The strengthening of the government's position, especially in Catalonia, is being continued with all possible secrecy. In two days 10,000 troops have been sent to reinforce General Weyler. The order directing the arrest of all persons, whether priests or laymen, advocating an uprising, has caused fresh outbursts of agitation, particularly at Bilboa and Tolosa.

Don Jaime, Bourbon pretender to the throne, yesterday held a conference with his chief, Lieutenant Llorens, near Vienna. It is reported on good authority that Llorens presented to the pretender secret advices from the clerical leaders urging immediate action.

Through private lines of communication Don Jaime is in constant communication with the important affairs of Spain.

ROOSEVELT VISITING MINES

To Make Four Days' Study of Industrial Conditions In Coal Regions

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 3.—Theodore Roosevelt arrived in Scranton, accompanied by Lawrence Abbott, son of Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott of The Outlook.

Mr. Roosevelt, it is said, comes to Scranton on a four days' investigation of industrial conditions in the anthracite coal regions. He drove the 146 miles from New York to Scranton by automobile.

His mission is to investigate conditions of life among the working classes. He is beginning with the Pennsylvania miners and came to Scranton to get his information first-hand.

Coal Docks Dynamited

Superior, Wis., Aug. 3.—Two heavy charges of dynamite were exploded at the Philadelphia and Reading coal docks here. The docks were nearing completion. A steel unloading rig costing $80,000 was partly wrecked. The contracting firm operates on the open shop plan.

FEARS FOR EMPIRE STATE

Taft and Roosevelt to Have Another Conference on Politics

Washington, Aug. 3.—President Taft and Theodore Roosevelt are scheduled for another conference in the near future, according to information which has reached Washington. It is declared that the conference is due to the fact that President Taft's friends are not at all satisfied with the result of the first interview between the president and the former president. It is understood, however, that a second meeting between the two men is particularly desired for the purpose of discussing the political situation in New York state.

There is little confidence among administration officials in Washington that the Republicans will be able to displace Governor Harmon as the chief executive of Ohio. If the president's own state is lost to the Republicans, it is declared, the administration cannot afford to get a setback in other Republican strongholds. For this reason New York state is giving the party leaders considerable alarm.

ARE RELIEVED FROM INCREASED RATES

Commuters Benefit by Commerce Commission Decision

Washington, Aug. 3.—Commuters on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad beween Connecticut points and New York will not have to pay the increased rates demanded by that railroad, according to a decision made by the interstate commerce commission.

Official announcement was made that the commission had ordered the suspension of the new rates which the road put into effect June 4. The order calls upon the railroad company to prepare any answer it may have before Sept. 1.

The increased rates were filed with the commission April 30, with the announcement that they would become effective thirty days later. At that time the new railroad bill had not become law and the commission was powerless to suspend the rates.

NO MORE "SHOUTING"

Worcester License Commission Bars "Drinks on the House"

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 3.—When a thirsty imbiber downs one glass of liquor in this city it has become customary for the bartender to say: "Have another on the house." That is why seven holders of liquor licenses were haled before the license commission, reprimanded and threatened with stoppage of business if they treat any more.

The commissioners explain that treating greatly increases drunkenness. When an imbiber receives a foaming schooner from the "house" gratis it has been found that he buys three or four more drinks to show his appreciation, and shortly afterward requires a ride to the police station in a patrol wagon.

DOG DISCOVERS BODIES

Three Little Fellows Crushed to Death When Sand Embankment Falls

New York, Aug. 3.—Three little boys who had been searched for high and low since they were missed from their homes on Madison street in Brooklyn on Monday were found dead Tuesday in a nearby vacant lot where a sand embankment had fallen upon them while they were at play.

The presence of the bodies in the sandpile was discovered by a dog playing with his boy master in the lot. The lad gave the alarm and policemen and firemen dug the crushed forms from the sand.

RESTING HOPE ON MISS LENEVE

Statement From Her Would Aid Scotland Yard Men

HYPNOTIC POWER SUSPECTED

Peculiar Gleam In Crippen's Eyes Helps to Convince Theory of Police —Girl Is Kindly Treated and Saved From Humiliation of Imprisonment In Cell—Admission That It Is For the Purpose of Getting Her Story

Quebec, Aug. 3.—Convinced that her story would throw light on the fate of Belle Elmore, Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard is in a diplomatic manner trying to get Miss Ethel C. Leneve, the pretty young stenographer of Dr. Harvey H. Crippen, to tell all she knows of the case.

Nothing is being done that might suggest the "third degree" ordeal, which is prohibited by English law. It is significant that cablegrams from Miss Leneve's mother and father, in each of which she is implored by them to tell all she knows, have been given to her along with others from relatives. She is being treated with extreme kindness, even being saved the humiliation of going to a cell.

Now that Miss Leneve is beyond the reach of Crippen's influence the police believe that she will be more readily inclined to talk freely. There is a strong conviction entertained by the local police and officials who have come in contact with Crippen that he has held the girl in subjection by a strange hypnotic power. When he was taken from the steamer Montrose the first striking feature noticed in his appearance was a peculiar gleam in his eyes. The look, which was keen and penetrating and even repulsive, was more pronounced when he had removed his glasses.

According to the police there is a strong suggestion of hypnotic influence in his appearance. It may be, they say, that it was this power that made Miss Leneve so loyal to him. The fact that he is repellant in features and deportment, while on the contrary she is pretty, with a winsome smile and captivating manner, helps to convince them in this theory.

Whether Miss Leneve knows the actual fate of Miss Elmore the police have not determined to their own satisfaction as yet.

The importance of a statement by Miss Leneve, the authorities here say, cannot be over estimated, because it has not been fully determined by the physicians that the portions of a body found in the cellar of Crippen's house in London were those of Belle Elmore's body, or even that of a woman. That Belle Elmore is dead is only surmised through the fact that she is missing; that no record of her death has been found even in California, where Crippen said she died, and that the body, because it was found in the cellar of their home, was her's.

The police admit that the kindness being shown to Miss Leneve, who is charged jointly with Crippen with the murder of a woman and the mutiliation of her body, is not without a motive. When she realizes that the police are treating her with every consideration, that instead of being thrown into a cell like Crippen, and that her family is anxious that she tell all she knows, believing that she is innocent, that she will volunteer to make a statement giving in detail her relations with Crippen and supply the history of the fate of Belle Elmore, so far as she may know.

Although Crippen speaks in a polished and gentlemanly way, the guards and jailers have a feeling against him engendered more by the peculiar gleam of his eyes than anything else. To most of them it is very repelling and they shun his gaze.

Union Cutters From New York Get Into Trouble In Bay State

Great Barrington, Mass., Aug. 3.—Members of the Cutters' union of New York city, arrested for causing a disturbance, were charged with trying to induce a party of non-union tailors, who had started to work in Great Barrington for a New York firm, to go back to New York in sympathy. Seven defendants faced Judge Sanford in the district court. Four were fined $5 each and three released.

Charges of disturbance of the peace, breaking and entering and assault in three different cases were brought against the New Yorkers. The court criticized the method of influencing the non-union men.

The Molly Gray

A Girl Makes Good a Claim

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Clarkson threw aside his pick.

He posted his notice of possession by laying the paper on the newly broken ground and placing a stone on top to keep it from blowing away. Any one who jumped that claim now might expect the wild justice of the mining camp to be visited upon him.

As he drew near the camp the thunder of the stamp mills smote the air, and the blur of smoking chimneys dimmed the eastern sky.

Pete Clarkson's persistent efforts and dogged determination to find something that would enrich him sufficiently to offer Molly Gray a home had resulted in his striking what was probably the lost vein of the Great Dome ledge.

He stopped once at the house of Jim Gray, superintendent of the Great Dome, and Molly Gray, sweet as a rose, with gray eyes, brown hair, pink cheeks and pink gown, came to the door.

"How'd you make out, Pete?" she asked, her little brown hand lost in his great earth stained palm.

"It's the Molly Gray," he said quietly, thrusting the lump of ore into her other hand.

"Oh, Pete," she cried joyfully, "where?"

"On Crow ledge, near Crow rock."

"Where we saw the sunset that night?"

"Same place."

"What were you doing there, Pete?" she asked, with dimpling cheeks.

"Prospectin'," he grinned sheepishly. Then, passing his hand over his unshorn chin, he nodded toward the Great Dome smelter. "I guess it will be all right now down there," he said confidently.

"You know it has always been all right with me, Pete," said Molly softly.

"I know," he said soberly. "I'm goin' down now to git out my papers. I'll stop on my way back."

"Haven't you registered yet?" she asked anxiously.

"Nope; stopped here first thing. Got her staked all right, though, and the name posted. Goin' back there to make camp. So long; see you later." And with a backward wave of his hand he loped down toward the registering office.

From the doorway of the cabin at the head of the street Molly, holding a pair of fieldglasses to her pretty eyes, watched him enter the office. Then her gaze fell upon the figure of a man sprawled upon the rough veranda encircling the one roomed building. A wide brimmed hat was drawn over his eyes, and to all appearances he was lost in slumber.

Molly looked at the open window over the man's head and calculated that if Pete Clarkson announced his discovery in his usual bluff, hearty accents it could readily be heard by the man on the veranda if he were awake and listening, and if it should prove to be Dave Lumly, who was own brother to Jim Lumly, the registrar of claims, why, then, Pete Clarkson would have a race for his claim, that was all. She remembered the case of Allan Smith, the young prospector from the east who made a find and staked his claim. Before he could register it and return to the scene Dave Lumly had news of the find and had jumped the claim. With his brother to back his title to it Lumly had defied the sheriff and his posse to oust him. Young Smith had shot himself, and, after all, the mine had proved worthless.

Ah, the somnolent one arose slowly, stretched himself, took a careful survey of the street; then, with a swift movement, leaped into the saddle of a waiting sorrel and rode out Black lane. It was Dave Lumly.

Presently she saw Pete emerge from the registry office and cross the street to the assayers. With sudden energy she re-entered the house, scribbled a few lines informing Pete of her whereabouts in case she could not find him, pinned the note to the front door, saddled her little mare Daisy, mounted and dashed down the street toward the assay office.

"If he comes back tell him to go up to our place. There's a message for him. Will you tell him?" she inquired breathlessly.

"Sure thing, Miss Molly," he said heartily; then he watched her disappear down the long street and out upon the short cut through the canyon to Crow mountain. The afternoon sun shone on her hatless head and the light wind fluttered her pink skirts as the little mare broke into a gallop.

Mile after mile the mare covered, scrambling up steep hillsides and sliding recklessly down the slopes. Molly, with blazing eyes and compressed lips, watched for the reappearance of the sorrel horse and its slouching rider. Lumly, taking advantage of the information he had gleaned at the registry office, would remove Pete's stake, substitute one of his own and claim possession of the Molly Gray. If she could only reach Crow rock before Dave Lumly she would fight with all the fierceness of old Jim Gray himself for the possession of her lover's rights.

Molly frowned as she thought all these things over, and every now and then she turned and looked back along the trail for some sign of the approach of Pete Clarkson. If he returned to the cabin, as he had intended doing, he would find her note.

With heart beating in time to the muffled thud of Daisy's hoofs, she drew rein on the crest of the ledge and looked about for Dave Lumly, but he was not in sight, and with resumed confidence she cantered along the narrow, uneven trail to Crow rock.

When she rounded the rock the sorrel was nipping the parched turf and Lumly, on his knees, was stuffing a piece of white paper into his pocket. His back was toward her, and he had doubtless mistaken the tread of her horse for the trampling of his own beast.

"Look here, Dave Lumly!"

Lumly jumped to his feet and looked into the barrel of a revolver leveled with cool precision.

"You git outer my way, young lady," he snarled defiantly, making a movement to grasp her bridle rein.

"Stop there or I'll fire!" she said calmly.

"What do you want?" he growled, looking at her out of stealthy red eyes.

"I want you to put that paper back in the hole," she commanded sharply.

"And if I don't?" he grinned savagely.

"Why, if you don't," she said, with a calculating glance, "I believe I'll just bore your right arm!"

"The devil you will! It seems to me you are pretty highty tighty, miss."

"Are you going to do that?" she asked.

"Oh, sure; of course I couldn't refuse a lady," he said, taking the paper from his pocket with his right hand and furtively reaching with his left around to his hip.

"Your left hand up!" she commanded again.

With a muttered oath he swung his arm aloft. The sorrel horse drew near and thrust an inquiring nose toward his master. With a quick movement Lumly held out the paper, the sorrel caught it between his lips, and in another instant it fell to the ground a mass of pulp. Lumly laughed exultingly.

Molly Gray whitened about the lips. "Other hand up!" she commanded shortly.

The man obeyed.

"Turn your back and walk toward me." Then, as he hesitated, she added contemptuously, "Don't be afraid I'm not going to shoot you in the back."

He turned sullenly and backed slowly up to the mare's side. With muzzle pressed close to his shock of rough hair she abstracted the six shooter from his belt and ascertained that there was no other weapon. The man trembled slightly. It was a pesky dangerous thing to have a woman fooling with a revolver. One never knew what—

"Now walk forward twenty steps and don't turn; if you do it will be for the last time!" Molly did not recognize her own sweet voice in the firm tones that cut the air like the lash of a whip.

The man obeyed. When, at her word of command, he faced about, the feet of the little mare were gathered in the hole in the ground, and her rider, with shining eyes and bright, glad smile, looked at him down the length of his own six shooter.

"In fifteen minutes at the latest Pete Clarkson, Mill Hodges and the sheriff will strike this ledge. I advise you, Dave Lumly, if you value your life, to prospect around Cartertown way for a few years. The trail is plain; there's your horse, and I'm giving you a chance."

Lumly looked back down the trail. Several horsemen were riding rapidly up Crow creek bottom. There was a flash of sunlight on metal.

With a muttered curse he turned toward his horse. "You'll pay for this holdup, girl," he said threateningly.

As Lumly disappeared among the distant western slopes three men rode madly down the trail and rounded Crow rock in a cloud of dust and a scatter of flying stones. Molly Gray, with trembling lips, smiled upon them.

"Where is he?" demanded Pete, while the other men looked unmingled disappointment and admiration upon pretty Molly.

She pointed toward the west, where a solitary horseman was silhouetted against the amber sunset sky ere it dropped behind a distant hill.

"So you let the critter go!" uttered the sheriff ruefully.

Pete looked at her questioningly.

A light of understanding came into his eyes. He nodded his head. "That's all right, sheriff. I guess that coyote won't jump any more claims hereabouts, I reckon."

"Here it is," interpolated Molly, blushing. "He was jumping it when"—

"And you stood him off?" chorused the men.

She nodded gravely. "He fed the paper to the horse, so I held him up, and now I'm holding down the claim myself."

"I don't understand," said Hodges blindly.

"Why, you see," faltered Molly, while Pete grinned fatuously upon her, "I'm the claim—that is, I'm Molly Gray, and I'm holding down the claim It's the Molly Gray, you know," she said, slipping down from the saddle into the outstretched arms of her lover.

AN ADVANCE OF 18 PERCENT

Granted Grand Trunk Conductors, Trainmen and Yardmen

STRIKE IS DECLARED OFF

Men Obtain Two Concessions Over Terms Offered by President Hays on Day They Struck—Will Be Restored to Former Positions "As Soon as Possible"—Minister King Given Credit For Settling Dispute

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The strike of conductors, trainmen and yardmen, which begun on the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont systems on July 18, was officially called off last night.

Under the terms of the agreement signed by President Hays for the railroads and all the union officials, the men will receive, dating back to May 1 of this year, an advance of approximately 18 percent, and beginning Jan. 1, 1912, a rate of wages slightly below the Eastern association schedule, for which they struck, but an advance in many instance of over 30 percent.

Much credit for the successful outcome of the peace negotiations is given to MacKenzie King, the minister of labor, who has persisted in his efforts to bring the factions together despite discouraging set-backs.

The men obtain two concessions over the terms offered by Hays on the day they struck. First, the standardization of pay and rules with those recently conceded by the Canadian Pacific takes place on Jan. 1, 1912, instead of Jan. 1, 1913, as offered by Hays, a gain of one year. Against this must be placed the fact that the Canadian Pacific standard and rules are not quite those of the Eastern association, which the men demanded.

Secondly, the offer made by Hays to the men on July 18 is accepted, to hold until the standardization is adopted on Jan. 1, 1912, but the increased rate of pay made in that offer is made retroactive. The men, therefore, gain two and one-half months of the increase, the offer of Hays being, when made, only effective from date.

Against these two gains there must be placed the fact that the men are only to be restored to their former positions "as soon as possible." How much they lose in this way only time can tell, as the company is not under obligation to discharge any of the men it has taken on since the strike was called, nor to reduce them in rank.

FATE IN THE BALANCE

Cruisers Columbia and Minneapolis Likely to Go to Junk Heap

Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—A naval board, headed by Rear Admiral Thomas, has begun the task at the Philadelphia navy yard of passing upon the fate of three cruisers which but a few years ago were the undisputed leaders in their classes. The vessels are the armored cruiser Brooklyn and the protected cruisers Columbia and Minneapolis, built as the commerce destroyers of the navy. The three cost over $8,500,000, exclusive of their armament.

The Columbia and Minneapolis, in the opinion of officers at the yard, are most in danger of being consigned to the junk pile, as they are in bad shape. The Brooklyn, Admiral Schley's flagship in the Spanish-American war, is in better shape and is more likely to be ordered overhauled and modernized.

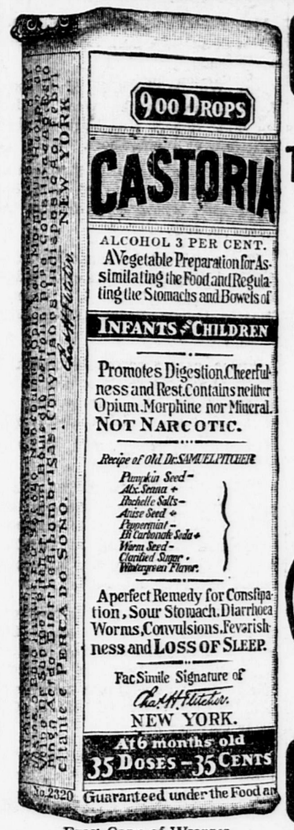

The fate of several old monitors will likewise be decided.

BRIEFS

Mrs. Quinby Abbott has returned from Whitman.

Mrs. Peters and Misses Nellie and Jennie Peters have been visiting friends in Whitman.

Mrs. William Mac Vitie of Nashua, N. H., is the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mac Vitie at their bungalow, at Adams Shore.

R. D. Chase and D. L. F. Chase of Goffe street have returned from New Hampshire, where they enjoyed the month of July.

In a resail of the sonderklasse of the Corinthian Yacht club on Tuesday, the boats finished in this order—Skeezix, Demon, Beaver, Ellen, Lady and Sally XI.

Boston papers report Mrs. Etta J. Moses of Houghs Neck, as one of the bondsmen for Louise Jones, the 17 year old Boston girl charged with larceny of jewelry valued at $3,777 from H. W. Fosdick.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Dill of Augusta, Maine, announce the marriage of their daughter Gertrude Elizabeth to Thomas V. Keating on Tuesday, Aug. 2. Mr. and Mrs. Keating are to reside at 53 Upland road.

Miss Ellen M. Hersey of Revere road died Tuesday in her 75th year. She was for many years employed as clerk at the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance office. She was a devout member of Bethany Congregational church. One sister survives her.

It is a pity those responsible for the oiling of Washington street on Tuesday could not have heard the comments and seen the faces of the victims who had to pass over the nasty, black, greasy, mucky mess, (more adjectives could be used.) The library walks, those about the post office and even the beautiful building itself suffered from the mixture which was tracked everywhere. Autoists were more than disgusted.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED.

State scholarships at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have been awarded to Philip Simes Barnes of 296 Highland avenue, Wollaston, as a representative of the First Worcester district and to Ibrahim Harrington of Braintree, Joseph F. Harrington of Canton, Francis H. Kingsbury of Medfield and Carl A. Fook of Brookline, representing the Norfolk county districts.

Scholarships at the Worcester Polytechnic from Norfolk county districts were awarded to Michael E. McHuge of Milton, Paul W. Burgess of Hyde Park, John P. Cheever of Plainville and Charles E. Gillett of Shelburne Falls.

ACCIDENT AT CROSSING.

The forward axle of S. Scammell & Sons' automobile broke while the car was on the Saville street railroad crossing this noon. The car was coming down the hill and had just struck the track when the accident occurred. The forward end was lifted up and pulled out of harm's way.

MARBLEHEAD RACE.

The Waweenock and Busy Bee were among the winners of first prizes in the open regatta of the Boston Yacht club off Marblehead on Tuesday. In the Sonderklasse the order was: Sally XI, Lady, Ellen, Wolf, Demon and Beaver. Corrected time in class S resulted as follows: Waweenock, Zoe, Ruggy, I.X.L and Maritza. In the Cape cat class the procession was: Busy Bee, Dartwell, Dolly, Mudjekeewis, Emeline, Hustler and Josephine.

ARMY LANCES STILL FAVORED

Germans Experiment With New Style For Cavalry.

The lance as a cavalry weapon has justified its existence, military experts agree. In the South African and the Russo-Japanese war in spite of those who decried the arm as old fashioned and cumbersome. The German military authorities still believe in shock tactics and the cavalry charge, and under those circumstances the lance in the Prussian Uhlan's hands remains a formidable weapon.

Experience, however, has also shown that the lance point often makes too deep wounds for the shaft to be withdrawn quickly, and so the lancer runs the risk of having it wrenched from his grasp in the charge. The cavalry regiments stationed at Brunswick and Strasburg are experimenting with a new kind of lance which carries a ball below the base of the lance head, preventing it from penetrating further.

It is said that the new arm is just as effective in disabling an enemy and is free from other disadvantages. It will probably be adopted by all the German lancer regiments.

Want of care does us more damage than want of knowledge.—Franklin.

are at work dynamiting other quarries. Several were thus treated but up to noon nothing had developed. The dynamiting will be continued until all of the quarries have been examined.

Councilman Sandberg advances a theory that possesses some merit, and will doubtless be followed out. His theory is that Restelli is in hiding in some of the numerous grout heaps that abound among the quarries. He says that in dumping grout, it often happens that a large piece will lodge with its two outside edges resting on other rocks. It would then be a simple matter to throw out some of the small rocks beneath the large rock, thus making a cave that it would be almost impossible to discover.

It has been reported that Restelli had frequently been seen in the quarry section the week previous to the murder with bundles under his arm, and Councilman Sandberg's idea is that these bundles contained food which he stored in his hiding place, so that when he had committed his crime he could retire there and remain for an indefinite period.

Mr. Sandberg believes that if sticks of dynamite should be placed along the bottom edge of some of these grout heaps and exploded that they would so shake up the pile that it would tumble down and thus if here was a hiding cave it would be disclosed to view, even if Restelli was not killed in the avalanche of rock that would be tumbled down.

After all rumors have been sifted down, it is a fact that the last time Restelli was actually seen by anyone that knew him he was on Carrolls lane. There was a gang of street men at work on Adams street near the foot of Common street Friday afternoon, and they were scattered along the street toward Quincy. They were told to keep a look out for Restelli, and if he passed that way to immediately notify the police station. All of the men were on watch thereafter, and when the story came of his boarding a car at Presidents bridge, they were very emphatic in declaring that Restelli did not come over Adams street that afternoon.

Chief Maurice Pierce, Milton, holds the theory that Restelli is still somewhere in the quarries, although he believes that he has made way with himself. Chief Pierce says that Restelli was angry when did the shooting, but that it is perfectly natural that he should cool off after a time.

Then he thoughts of what he had done and what the consequences would be if he was captured, came to his mind and that he ended it then and there. Whether he committed suicide by drowning himself in one of the quarries or by shooting himself with one of his own revolvers is a matter of conjecture.

WEYMOUTH SUSPECT.

Word was received by the Weymouth police last night that a man resembling Restelli had applied at a house at South Weymouth for food and was then waiting on the piazza of the house for it to be served. A posse was organized, but the fellow had departed when they arrived. The officers however, succeeded in capturing the man who was locked up for being a vagrant. He gave his name as Ralph Morey. He was brought to court in Quincy this morning and sent to the state farm.

Etiquette and Danger.

"Ezra," said the farmer's wife, "I wish you wouldn't lean your elbers on th' table."

"Huh," sneered the farmer, "gettin' fastidierous, ain't you? Mebby you'll be warnin' me next to keep my knife outen my mouth an' tellin' me not to cool my tea in my sasser. But my granther kep' his elbers on th' table, an' so did my father, an', by heck, I'm goin' to lean on it as hard an' as long as I dun please, so there!"

Whereupon he leaned hard, so hard that the ancient table suddenly collapsed and sprawled out its legs and went down with a frightful crash of crockery.

"Well, you've gone an' done it now!" screamed the old lady. "That's a pretty mess, ain't it? Ef you'd had th' sense of a chipmunk you'd have knowed th' reason I didn't want you to lean on th' table wuz 'cause th' legs wuz rickety. An' I guess a little etiquette wouldn't hurt you none anyway, Ezra Doolittle, to say nothin' of savin' $2 wuth of family crockery."

And the disgusted farmer stumbled out from the scene of wreckage and chased a harmless tramp three miles down the road with an ax handle.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

—Barre manufacturers sent an exhibit this week to Chicago to be shown at the Knight Templars' convention. They will also make an exhibit at Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 23 to 25.

The "Landlord" of the Rockland Standard is no prophet, for here is his prediction previous to the Old Colony game of last Saturday: "Quincy has paid a month's rent and can't be moved from the point of elevation, but its prestige will be lowered a peg tomoforw. They are not using the rung just right. They are a little too boisterous for the remainder of my tenants and it is up to Rockland to take a little conceit out of them. Do I think they can do it They surely can if they play the game they did last week. Oh, yes, I have a rung already for Rockland on number five. Yes, my tenants do move quite often, but then the ladder is always full."

The Barre Daily Times says: "The McGregor association football team of Quincy, Mass., defeated the Barre Rangers at the Berlin street grounds Saturday afternoon in a fast and well-played game. The score was 2 to 1. The McGregors are a fast aggregation, and they played with good team work, badly outclassing the Rangers in this respect. A good game was expected and it was realized, as the Rangers are made up of experienced players, and, had they not been handicapped by lack of practice, would have undoubtedly made a different ending of the game. An enthusiastic crowd of about 500 people watched the game with apparent interest throughout.

The Norwood Messenger says: The City Mills team of the Norfolk County Baseball League has severed its connection with that organization and it is rumored that Quincy has also taken the same action. Whether an effort will be made to replace these teams or not is not definitely settled. A meeting of the league officials will be called in the very near future, and some action will then be taken in the matter. The league has not been a remarkable success financially and otherwise, and there seems to be a strong feeling that the entire project may be abandoned, although the officials are very reticent about the matter and do not wish anything credited to them on the subject until official action has been taken. It has been demonstrated, however, to a certain extent, that organized as well as independent baseball is not such a paying investment as was fondly anticipated. It seems to be partially due to the fact that the towns interested are too near Boston, and the majority of the fans seem disposed to patronize major league games.

HAD HARD TIME BREAKING IN.

McAleer Gave Him a Chance With Cleveland—Made Poor Showing In First Game—Had to Warm Up Pitcher Barehanded.

No. XVIII.

By PAT LIVINGSTON.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Did I have easy sailing when I went into the major leagues? Well, I should say not. As I suppose you are aware of the fact that nearly every youngster who is drafted from the minor leagues has a pretty tough time of it with the majority of the old fellows, who resent their admission, as they regard the newcomer as another evidence of the inexorable fact that sooner or later a sprightly young man, full of ginger, will be called upon to shove aside the veteran whose hinges are growing rusty and whose arms have gone stale. This is my third time in the big leagues, and I believe that at last I have succeeded or else I would not be on the payroll of the Philadelphia club. It was in 1901 that I was given my first chance in the big circuit.

I had graduated from the Baehrs at Scenic park to the ranks of the semi-professionals, playing with the club at Kent. Pitcher Bob Spade, now of the Cincinnati Reds, was also a member of the team. I happened to be a very handy man with the stick and at times was hammering the ball for keeps at Kent, when I received a hurry call from Jimmy McAleer, manager of the Cleveland team at that time. Then I thought that my future was assured I was very much pleased at the chance of becoming a regular on a major league team and had visions of making home runs with the bases filled in the American league as well as throwing out every man that tried to steal a base on me.

I will never forget my first experience in the big circuit. On my way out to the ball park I was all swelled up at the thoughts of being a major leaguer. I reported to McAleer about an hour before the game and, after putting on a uniform, went and sat down on the bench. In my haste to report I neglected to bring my baseball shoes and consequently had tennis shoes on my feet.

Pretty soon McAleer came along and said to me, "Say, youngster, get out and warm up one of my pitchers." "I haven't any mitt," I replied. "Huh, huh! Well, what do you think of that? No glove and expecting to play in the American league!" shouted Erve Beck to Shelbeck, the two being seated on the bench. Neither Joe Connor nor Bobby Woods, who were the Cleveland catchers at that time, offered to let me use their gloves, and I'll tell you that I was good and mad then. "I may be a sand lotter, but down in Kent we never refuse to loan our gloves." McAleer overhead my talk and then went to look for an old mitt. I was so mad that I started to warm up one of the pitchers barehanded and also took my turn at the plate when the fielding practice was on without wearing a glove, taking the throws of the infielders regardless of pain.

Finally McAleer appeared with an old glove, discarded by one of the regular catchers, and told me that I was slated to do the receiving. I managed to catch a pretty fair sort of a game, but when it came to batting I had my troubles. Boston was the opposing club. That was the year that team won the pennant in the American league, and it was going mighty strong. "Old Cy" Young was in the box that day. The first ball pitched by Young came right near my head, and in dodging it I sat down, while the players grinned. The next one came in the path of the first, only lower. This time I did not dodge, and the ball hit me about midship and the club was knocked from my hands. Down I went again, this time for the count. When I came to I ran to first base and the game proceeded.

The next time at bat I had one foot somewhere near the plate and the other as close to the grand stand as I could get it. I never got my bat close to the pan to touch the ball, and Young struck me out twice. I was happy, though. I only struck out twice, and Ed Cermack of the O'Conners, whom McAleer also tried out that summer, struck out four times in one game, Bill Bernhard turning the trick. Of course I had only two chances to fan, but the fact remains Cermack fanned twice as many times as I did.

IMPORTANT SUBJECTS BEFORE BOARD OF TRADE

Arrangements Being Made to Attend the Waterways Convention at Providence

Freight Facilties and Train Service Considered

The Board of Trade held a regular meeting in its room in the Adams Building Wednesday night.

The regular routine business was disposed of and the committee on double tracking of Washington street for electric cars reported that Supt. Conway had been requested to be present but in his absence they asked further time which was granted.

The committee in charge of the outing to Providence, to the meeting of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, reported the price of transportation and other details. The party will dine at one of the river resorts near Providence. The outing will take place either September 1, 2, or 3, when the convention will be in session. A committee of three will go ahead to arrange for accomodations and the dinner. The other associations of the city have been invited to attend.

John R. Richards, chairman of the Committee on freight facilities, reported a meeting with the railroad officials and their favorable stand, which report was satisfactory. A vote of thanks was extended to A. M. Dean, E. R. Atwood and E. J. Sandberg for the use of teams in conveying the officials to the proposed freight yard site on the Granite Branch of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

The better train service committee went over their findings in their meeting as reported in Tuesday's Daily Ledger. A committee composed of one man from the district of each station in Quincy was elected to secure better accommodation by the fall schedule.

The inspection of suggested courthouse sites has been so laborious that a full report was not forthcoming, and more time was granted this committee.

The meeting was well attended and the greatest satisfaction expressed at the work of the various committees which have made great progress.

LEAHY SENTENCED.

John C. Leahy, who shot at Chief Amos Loring at Braintree last month, when the latter tried to place him under arrest, was sentenced to the reformatory at Concord, by the Suffolk superior court on Wednesday for larceny. He will be taken to Dedham when the Norfolk superior court comes in, for assaulting Chief Loring.

RESTELLI NOT A SUICIDE

Thorough Search Made of all Old Quarries

Whatever possibilities of Restelli's body being sunk in one of the many abandoned and water-filled quarries that pit the surface of North Commons were exhausted Wednesday when a party of about twenty men under the guidance of Superintendent Kelley of the city stone crusher, a man well accustomed to the use of dynamite, blasted the deep, black waters of all such quarries, great and small as could be located in a thorough search.

It is a peculiar quality that allows dynamite to explode with as telling effect under water as above and especially adapted it to the use to which it was put in the search for the body of the man who holds Quincy and surrounding towns terrorized, and has so far baffled the police.

With precussion cap set, the yellow stick of explosure was hurled into the pool of water extending to great depths and sank. In but a few moments the surface was severely agitated and the entire body of water set in tumultuous commotion from top to bottom, resulting in the upheaval of all loose contents. As each explosion occurred the muffled report was followed by the appearance of a varied collection of wood, leaves, old clothing and the miscellaneous assortment of rubbish that finds its way to the bottom of such places. In some cases the bodies of dogs and cats, drowned intentionally as by accident appeared.

The party gathered on the edge of the opaque pool eagerly watched for the rise of a human body, but each time met with disappointment. The old quarries blasted were Fagan-Richards, Driscoll's, Carlson's, Fallon's and numerous small holes scattered about.

The failure to discover the body of the supposed suicide puts an end to the theory that Restelli ended his life through despair, and the suspense of the rigid and untiring search of the police and citizens.

It is thought by many that Restelli may be in hiding in the grout heaps about the quarries, and these may be dynamited in an effort to expose him should he be there.

—Americans in England think it too cold, while the nearly unanimous vote at home isthat it is too hot. Wise persons are content with what comes to them ,wherever they are. Nobody in decent health has any business to be quarreling with the weather. In any event he must take what is given to him.—Springfield Republican.

RESTELLI'S LANDLADY

Tells of His Peculiarities and Habits

Mrs. Monti, with whom Louis Restelli boarded and roomed for a long period before his outbreak was interviewed at length on Wednesday by a representative of the Daily Ledger. Though she speaks but groken English she was able to describe some of the striking peculiarities of the man in his normal life. She resides on Copeland street at the corner of Furnace avenue.

According to her account he was very erratic and his sleeping or waking hours were never regular. She said that he sometimes spent his nights out and slept during the day, and spent days without leaving his room. His comings and goings were frequent and irregular.

She also said that at times he was abstracted and that after apparently listening closely to a conversation would start and request a repetition, or would pay no attention whatever to what was said. He was always quiet, even moody in bearing, though at times he would talk in a lively manner. These flashes of animation were few and far between.

For the few days before the unhappy shooting affair, Mrs. Monti was unable to note any difference in Restelli's demeanor, but Thursday, the last she saw him, he seemed to desire greater privacy than usual, but owing to his peculiar temperament nothing was thought of this.

Mrs. Monti expressed the greatest surprise and horror at the murders, and said that though she knew her lodger was in straightened circumstances she had no idea of his desperate attitude.

QUIET DAY FOR POLICE

Grout Heaps Being Searched for Hiding Places

Up to noon today there were no new developments in the search for Restelli or his body. No reports have come from other cities today with regard to his whereabouts.

A party of half a dozen police officers are now making an exhaustive search of the stone heaps about the West Quincy quarries in the hope that the theory advanced by several prominent citizens, that the murderer has found a hiding place in them, is a sound one.

The search is very thorough and systematic, and a positive conclusion will be reached before night. The necessity for the use of dynamite in demolishing the grout heaps has not yet arisen, though no doubt it will in the case of a particularly large accumulation of refuse where a cave might easily exist without detection.

A Restelli suspect story was sprung from South Quincy this morning, but the bubble burst almost as soon as formed. A boy employed in an office at South Quincy near Nightingale avenue, who claimed to know Restelli well, reported that he had seen him this morning on Centre street. The police immediately ran down the clew and upon being closely questioned the boy admitted that he might have been mistaken. At the time the boy reported having seen Restelli, there were a number of workmen in the immediate vicinity, none of whom saw the man. It is the general opinion that the boy was looking for notoriety.

CLEW FROM NOVA SCOTIA

Positive in Statement But Man Escapes

The latest and most promising clew to the missing Louis Restelli came to the police Wednesday afternoon, when a telephone message was received from Supt. Watts of the Boston police department, that a man believed to be the murderer was on a fast travelling train in Nova Scotia.

Moncton, N. B., Aug. 3, 1910.

"Restelli, the Quincy murderer suspect, is on train from Boston, bound to Newfoundland. Will be in Truro tonight at 9. His distination is George's bay, Newfoundland."

(Signed) "Charles Warwick."

Messages containing a description of Restelli were immediately sent to the authorities in all the cities and towns along the line through which Restelli was passing.

From what developed Wednesday, it is believed that Restelli is making his way to Quebec, and that from there he intends to sail for some foreign port. Charles Warwick, who sent the telegram to Supt. Watts is a deputy sheriff as well as a railroad conductor.

The train on which Restelli was travelling was due to reach Truro at 9 o'clock Wednesday night. Word was received at 11 o'clock, however, from Truro and Halifax, that the wanted man was not on the train.

When the train arrived at Truro, it was boarded by Chief of Police Walter and Officers Smith, Hayward and Murray, and a reporter, and although all the coaches were searched the much-wanted man was not found. All towns along George's bay have been notified and will keep a sharp lookout for him.

STRUCK BY CAR.

John Darrow, said to reside on Edison park, was struck by an electric car on Sea street near Palmer street Wednesday evening and had his right shoulder broken. It seems that Darrow and another man were walking on the car tracks in the vicinity of 8.30, when a car from Quincy came along. Both men stepped off the tracks to allow the car to pass, but just as it reached them Darrow is said to have started for the track again. He was struck by the car and thrown one side. He was attended by Dr. Sheahan who found that his right shoulder blade had been fractured.

It is said that Darrow was born deaf and dumb, but had been taught to talk, although he could not hear anything. It is supposed that after stepping off the track, with his companion he started to step back again not hearing the approaching car.

BIG RACE AT MARBLEHEAD.

The order by corrected time in the Cape catboat class from Quincy was: Dartwell, Busy Bee, Hustler, Dolly III, Mudjekeewis, Josephine and Emeline.

—It may be that labor unions have not affected the cost of living the last 15 or 20 years, but we think they have. When it costs twice as much to build a house today as in 1890 and when the cost of painting a house or making any repairs are double what they were then ,the rent bill of the working man, or any other man, must necesssarily be increased.—Salem Evening News.

RESTELLI PROBABLY CHANGED HIS CLOTHES

This the Belief of Inspector McKay Relative To the Bundles Carried

But no Clothing Has Yet Been Found by Officers

Inspector McKay, who has been working diligently on the Restelli case, advances an opinion this morning which seems very plausible. Inspector McKay says that on the day before the shooting, when Mrs. Knights and John Hayes saw Restelli go toward Carroll's lane that he had two bundles under his arm. It has been given out that these bundles probably contained food which he was taking to a hiding place. Inspector McKay, however, does not believe that the two bundles contained food, but that they contained a shift of clothing.

He further says that it was one of Restelli's hobbies to disguise himself, and that among the effects found in his room when searched was a false wig and whiskers. Inspector McKay's idea is that Restelli had planned the shooting up of his imaginary enemies several days in advance of the actual shooting, and that Thursday was the day set for the deed, and that if he had been sucessful in getting a team that day the shooting would have taken place one day earlier.

Continuing, he says, there is no doubt but what Restelli had everything planned out as to how he would escape after shooting his enemies, and that in the carrying out of his plan he went into Carroll's lane after the Hardwick shooting and quickly discarding the suit which he wore and by which he would be more readily recognized, that he put on another suit and possible a wig and false whiskers and thus disguised was enabled to get by the line of armed men that had been thrown about the woods between the quarries and Adams street.

In his search among the quarries and grout heaps Wednesday afternoon Inspector McKay says that he made it a point to see if he could not find some clothing to support his theory. Nothing was found, however, except a discarded pair of undergarments. He says that he found several natural caves where it might be possible for a man to hide for a short time, but no evidence that the much wanted man had been there.

FIRST LEG TO BAT.

The Dorchen II of the Quincy Yacht club, owned by A. W. Finlay, finished second in the interstate race for 18-footers at Marblehead on Wednesday, only one second behind the Bat, one of the Rhode Island boats, whose time was 2 hours, 33 minutes, 11 seconds. The Kittiwake of Quincy club was third, only six seconds behind the leader. Then came two Rhode Island boats, the Arrow and the Hugi, and the Aurora was last.

Mayor Shea of this city is scheduled to officiate as ringmaster on Saturday evening at Winthrop at a society circus given by the local lodge of Elks. Mayor Fitzgerald officiated on Wednesday evening.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It will be a week tomorrow that the tragedies took place in Quincy. It was the prediction of many that Restelli would be captured within a week, but time is fleeting. The large rewards offered have stimulated many to continue their search, especialy in the quarry sections. These extend into the Blue Hills reservation and much of it is almost primeval. May success crown their efforts.

Quincy is making a good showing among the tax rates of cities this year, in that a reduction has been made. The Daily Ledger has at hand the tax rates of sixteen Massachusetts cities; of this number two have the same rate as last year—Worcester and Salem. Five are larger than last year—Melrose, Malden, Newton , Everestt and Pittsfield. The other nine are all less, viz: Quincy, Waltham, Cambridge, Somerville, Chelsea, Marlboro, Newburyport, Lynn and Brockton. Quincy, however, is among the highest rates, only four being larger: Brockton, Chelsea, Marlboro, and Cambridge. Lynn has the same rate, $20 per $1,000. Here are the rates of the sixteen cities:

Quincy	$20.00	$20.30
Brockton	20.30	20.50
Chelsea	22,40	23.00
Marlboro	21,70	22.20
Cambridge	20,10	21.00
Lynn	20.00	20.00
Melrose	19.40	19.30
Waltham	16.80	17.80
Worcester	16.40	16.40
Somerville	18.50	18.60
Pittsfield	19.00	16.00
Newburyport	17.50	18.00
Malden	18.50	15.70
Newton	18.60	18.20
Salem	18.50	18.50
Everett	19.80	19.20

A few of the town rates follows:

Arlington	$20.10	$18.50
Spencer	20.00	17.50
Reading	19.70	21.00
Danvers	19.20	18.80
Winthrop	18.20	17.90
Milton	11.90	11.60
Brookline	12.50	10.50

DRIFT OF OPINION.

In view of the activities of the light-fingered gentry during any summer season it is well, if one does not wish to contribute to the $1600 or $1800 income of the average dip, to observe a few reasonable precautions. First of these is not to carry much money. Don't flash a wad except in the grocery and provision store in the first of the month and in the eyes of the hotel clerks the day you arrive at the hotel. Many men make it a practice to carry only a little money and this distributed in their various pockets. As has been noted some thousands of times before, the only reason pickpockets do not become millionaires off ladies' pocket-books and dangling handbags is the providential fact that husband, and not wife, carries the wad. It is not long since a young lady carrying an opera bag with a ticket and travel money was gently relieved of her burden at Fall River station by a single snip of a pair of scissors. Cases of this sort can be multiplied indefinitely. Our sympathies are with the ladies. A pocket in a skirt would ruin the hang of it. Yet really there is nothing else to it; a pocket in the skirt lined with trained fishhooks that will catch the sneak-thief's hand, but not one's own.—Fall River News.

WARM WEATHER ADVERTISING.

To stop advertising in warm weather, says Frederick H. Siegfried in his booklet, "The Dull Season," is to cut the life line of business industry, and the advertiser who "quits" forgets that people read when they are away from home and that printer's ink is about as cool a recreation as any when the thermometer goes up.

"To quit," he adds, "is to break up that cumulative effect which is a primary inducement to advertise. It is a gap in the firing line, a cessation of the gentle rain of argument, a break in the melody of persuasion, a missing link, dropped stitch, a lost chapter, a Sahara of silence because it is hot, an obituary where a little nursing would have pulled the patient through a break of two small months in the life line of publicity, a cutting off of the lines of communication, a premature drop of the curtain while the play is on, a trifling with that eternal truth that advertising is reiteration everlasting, world without end!

BERKSHIRE ILLUSTRATED.

The Berkshire edition of the North Adams Transcript was a creditable number for any paper. Good calendered paper was used and the 38 pages were well printed, profusely illustrated, and told the world that Berkshire was not only beautiful but busy. Sections were devoted to transportation, paper manufacturing, textiles, electrical and mechanical works, financial institutions, natural resources, the hotels, the farms, the homes, etc., etc. Such an edition does much to boom a town or district, and the people of North Adams owe much to the Transcript for its enterprise.

AVIATOR FALLS IN HIS FIRST FLIGHT

Was Trying Machine Which Just Came From Repair Shop

Plum Island, Mass., Aug. 4.—Walter H. Bowman of Boston narrowly escaped death last evening when the reconstructed Burgess biplane, "The Flying Fish," which he was running on his first flight, capsized, plunging him seventy feet to the ground.

The accident was witnessed by Greeley S. Curtiss, and J. G. Stratton, both well known aviators, who had come to watch the first tryout of the machine since its foundering with Lieutenant Pfitzner.

Bowman, who has been engaged at Plum Island as a mechanician, had never before been in an aeroplane. On account of his reputation for cool nerve he was selected to fill the place at Plum Island vacated by the suicide of Pfitzner.

Although no bones were broken, internal injuries are feared, and Bowman will be unable to fly again for some time. The machine was packed off for another spell in the repair shop from which it had been sent out only yesterday.

TAFT CHANGES HIS MIND

He Concludes to Make a Speech at Conservation Congress Next Month

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 4.—Judicious mixture of golf and argument is the recipe that brought President Taft to reconsider his cancelling program on the conservation congress date for St. Paul on Sept. 5, and it is given out that the president will attend the congress and will make an address.

The winning over of Taft is due, the Minnesotans say, to the golf match at Myopia he played with "Trust Buster" Frank B. Kellogg and the convincing argument made by Governor Eberhart and other prominent citizens at the Evans cottage at Burgess Point.

NOW BRANDED AS SWINDLER

"Count" Hamon Worked Nobleman For $200,000

DEBTS AMOUNT TO $215,000

Has but $50 In Stocks With Which to Settle With Creditors—Palmist Who Was Known as Cheiro Created Sensation In Boston and Other American Cities Some Years Ago and Cleaned Up About $200,000

Paris, Aug. 4.—Ten shares of stock in a registered company, having a value of $5 each, represent the assets of "Count" Louis Hamon, now under sentence of swindling Count Festetics, a Hungarian nobleman, out of $200,000.

"Count" Hamon's liabilities are estimated by the official receiver to amount to $215,000. Other charges pending against Cheiro, as "Count" Hamon is best known, are that he has unlawfully retained stocks to the value of $500,000, the property of American women clients.

Cheiro has been prominently before the public for the past twenty years. Little, however, is known of his early life. One account states he came from Chicago and that Hamon is his real and not an assumed name. Another version has Cheiro appearing on the scene as a servant in a Belfast, Ire., hotel named Warner.

Shortly afterward Cheiro appeared in London, where Oscar Wilde stood sponsor for him. Cheiro was introduced at the London home of the Duchess of Sutherland as a great East Indian palmist, and was extensively patronized by the fashionable set in England.

Later the palmist, who had had a most successful season in London, went to America. His first scene of operations was in New York. Coming as he did with the stamp of approval from high English society, Cheiro was consulted by hundreds of women, while the rich and fashionable had him at their homes for private readings and made him the feature of entertainments.

Cheiro went to Boston in 1895 and repeated his New York and London successes, being the social lion of the year. He made his headquarters at the Hotel Brunswick, where he surrounded himself with East Indian servants and occupied an inner sanctum filled with the pervasive atmosphere of another clime.

Cheiro was a man of magnetic personality and was described by those who came in contact with him as altogether charming. When in Boston he was about 27 years old.

Cheiro also practised at Newport, the Florida winter resorts and other places before returning to England, about six years ago, richer, it is said, by $200,000 from his American visit. After Cheiro's departure rumors of blackmailing by the palmist became current. It is said that Cheiro had learned secrets from some of the women who had come to consult him and had taken pay to remain silent.

For a time Cheiro seems to have been in eclipse, but he soon reappeared in Paris as "Count" Hamon, where, for a time, he posed as a banker.

The bubble burst about two years ago. Cheiro was able to compound with some of his creditors, but Festetics refused to compromise. Cheiro fled to London and during his absence the Paris police searched his apartments, where a number of compromising letters were found. Many of these were from women of high social standing in the French capital.

SIX NEGROES LYNCHED

Florida Mob's Awful Vengeance For Killing of Young White Girl

Bonnay, Fla., Aug. 4.—A reign of terror exists in the northwestern section of Holmes county, owing to the determination of the whites, by a wholesale lynching of negroes, to avenge the killing of Bessie Morrison, aged 14, a white girl. The girl was attacked on her way to school last Friday and taken to the woods and killed.

Two negroes who admitted their guilt were lynched. It was thought this would end the trouble, but it proved to be only the beginning, as four negroes have been lynched since, and the vengeance of the whites is not yet satisfied.

Catholics In Northern Spain Say That Demonstration Will Take Place

Madrid, Aug. 4.—The agitation among the Roman Catholic population in northern Spain, who are in great part siding with the Vatican in the pending conflict with the Spanish government, is steadily assuming larger proportions.

The organizers of the proposed manifestation at San Sebastian against the cabinet of Premier Canalejas and its policy toward the Vatican declare that the demonstration will take place in spite of the refusal of the authorities to grant permission for it. They expect 100,000 churchmen to visit the summer capital and participate in the demonstration before the king's palace, Aug. 7.

The prohibition of the demonstration was issued, it is stated, upon the representations of tradesmen that the manifestation might easily develop into grave disorders.

MILK CONSUMERS ESCAPE

Contractors Say Farmers Must Pay Extra Cost of Transportation

Boston, Aug. 4.—Some of the Boston milk contractors are engaged in the preparation of a notice to be sent to the producers who supply them with milk, to the effect that the contractors have decided not to advance the price of milk to the consumers and that, therefore, the extra cost of transportation in Massachusetts must be paid by the farmers.

The head of one of the largest contracting concerns in Boston says that milk is coming into his firm's sheds in about the usual volume and that, barring emergencies, the consumers will not suffer from the situation.

One thing is certain, the contractors feel that they are down to bed rock on the profit margin and that they cannot under any circumstances pay for the extra transportation out of their pockets.

STOLE UPWARDS OF HALF A MILLION

Cashier Wider of Russo-Chinese Bank Pleads Guilty

New York, Aug. 4.—Erwin J. Wider, the young cashier of the Russo-Chinese bank in this city, whose stealnigs from the bank's security box resulted in a loss of upwards of $500,000 to the institution, pleaded guilty to the indictment found against him in connection with the embezzlement. Wider was remanded for sentence on Aug. 10.

The indictment against Wider specifically charged him with stealing stock valued at $11,400. On his plea of guilty to this indictment, he can be given an indeterminate sentence of from five to ten years. The district attorney's office, however, has intimated that it might ask Wider's indictment on the other larceny charges against him in connection with his wholesale stealings of the bank's securities.

Contention That Bank Looter Coleman Was Incompetent to Testify

Boston, Aug. 4.—An attack on the validity of the secret indictment returned by the last federal grand jury against John R. Marshall, "Big Bill" Keliher and Martin J. Walsh on the testimony of George W. Coleman, the self-confessed looter of the National City bank of Cambridge, was made in the United States circuit court today by counsel for Marshall.

The question of Coleman's competency as a witness was raised during the Keliher trial, and, although the court ruled at the time that he was competent, the defense is raising it again in the Marshall case.

This time the contention is in regard to his testimony before the grand jury which indicted Marshall on the charge of conspiring with Keliher and Walsh to defraud the National City bank of Cambridge.

CENTENNIAL OF "LADY OF LAKE"

Highlanders Still Bless Scott For Tourist Travel.

SPEND $1,000,000 A SEASON

Sir Walter's Third Great Poem Still Widely Read—Author Made Money Out of Work, Unlike Milton and Goldsmith, but Never Grew Conceited.

This year, 1910, is the centennial of Sir Walter Scott's third great poem, "The Lady of the Lake," which is still widely read. Today all Scotland rises up and calls its author blessed, for the canny Scot calculates that during each season tourists spend at least $1,000,000 in seeing the spots made historical by the great master of the English language.

The bard of Abbotsford didn't lose by the poem either. He wouldn't sell his rights for a mess of pottage, as did John Milton with his "Paradise Lost" or Goldsmith for some of his classics. Scott got $10,000 for the copyright and received more in after life.

Poem Created Sensation.

None of Scott's former works was ever looked for with half the anxiety as was the case with "The Lady of the Lake." The cantos as they were sent to the press were read to select circles by James Ballantyne, and popular opinion greatly favored them. Everywhere it was anticipated that a great poem would appear, and when it was published it excited an extraordinary sensation.

The first edition of 2,050 was soon sold out, and then followed in quick succession four editions, so that in a few months 20,000 copies were sold. All the criticisms of the poem were in its favor.

In his introduction to the 1830 edition Scott tells how the poem came to be written. The Highlanders, with their ancient manners, habits and customs, seemed to him to be particularly adapted to poetry. He was also familiar with the country, where he was in the habit of spending the autumn, while the custom of James IV.—and more especially James V.—of walking in disguise through Scotland afforded him a hint of which he made the most.

Verified King's Ride.

Scott took great pains to verify the accuracy of the local circumstances of the poem, one day going into Perthshire to ascertain if King James could actually have ridden from Loch Vennachar to Stirling castle within the time supposed in the poem, and found that it was quite practicable. And, notwithstanding the great success of the poem, Scott never grew conceited over it.

"Never was he a partisan of his own poetry," Ballantyne relates, reciting an anecdote. Being one day in Scott's library shortly after the poem was published, he asked Miss Sophia Scott how she liked it. She replied with perfect simplicity:

"Oh, I have not read it! Papa says there's nothing so bad for young people as reading bad poetry."

ELECTRIC FARM PLANNED.

Forcing of Fruits and Vegetables Made Easy.

Influenced by reports from Dresden of experiments there in raising farm products by forcing maturity through the aid of electrical currents, Thomas H. Williams is going to experiment at his farm, Belle Crest, East Northport, N. Y., in an endeavor to find out if he cannot force the growth of fruits and vegetables.

Mr. Williams is inclosing one and one-half acres of ground with a line of wooden posts ten feet apart, on which he is going to string uninsulated wires a short distance from the ground. He is erecting a small windmill, which, with storage batteries, will furnish power for a dynamo from which an excess current of electricity will be passed, the current thrown off from the wires passing, by induction, through the ground, which will be under a constant "shower" of electricity.

It has been demonstrated in the German experiments, according to Mr. Williams, that electricity stimulates vegetable growth and he says that everything raised on his "electric farm" not only will mature from three weeks to a month before produce grown in the ordinary manner, but that it will be much larger and of a finer grade.

QUINCY PEOPLE GOING AWAY FOR ANY PART OF THE SUMMER SHOULD HAVE THE DAILY LEDGER SENT TO THEIR VACATION ADDRESS AND KEEP POSTED ON HOME NEWS.

MARRIED IN HALIFAX

Quincy Girl Bride of a New Hampshire Man

The marriage is announced of Irene Marion Bradbury of 9 Kent street and Harry Harmon Blunt, of Nashua, N. H. at Halifax, N. S., July 21. Since the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Blunt have travelled extensively in Canada reaching Quincy a few days ago. They start today on a tour of the United States. They will be at home in Nashua, N. H., the home of the groom, after October 15.

Mrs. Blunt was born in Quincy and was graduated from Woodward Institute in 1908. Since then until her marriage she taught school in East Freetown, Mass.

Mr. Blunt is engaged in the cotton manufacturing in Nashua, and is quite wealthy. He was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1893, and is a member of the National Automobile Association and is president of the Nashua council of the National Board of Education and is well known socially in Boston and Nashua.

The announcement of her marriage came as a surprise to the friends of Mrs. Blunt, who as Miss Bradbury was well known and popular in Quincy.

AMERICAN SHIPS FAVORED

Will Transport Part of Navy Coal to Pacific

A Washington dispatch to Transcript says American vessels have cut their freight rates to a basis that will admit of the Navy Department using them for the transportation of coal. Awards were announced at the Department Tuesday of contracts for shipments from Norfolk, Va., to Mare Island, Cal. A total of 31,000 tons is to be transported. Of this 11,000 tons was awarded to two foreign vessels at $4.14 a ton. The balance will go in American bottoms. The steamer E. F. Luckenbach was awarded the contract for 10,000 tons at $6.33; the Arthur Sewell Company 5000 tons, to be carried in two sailing vessels at $6, and the Acme, another American sailing vessel, 5000 tons at $6.

The law permits the selection of American vessels for the transportation of Navy Department coal when the rate named is not regarded by the department as excessive. If the American rate exceeds the foreign rate by not more than 50 per cent the department holds that it may be accepted.

Antiquity of Shorthand.

Shorthand is apt to be looked upon as an essentially modern art. The predecessors of Pitman—Byrom in the eighteenth century, Mason in the seventeenth—are dim and distant figures beyond which it seems useless to venture. Cicero dictated his orations to his freedman, T. Tullius Tiro, and was inconsolable when temporarily deprived of his services. He complained in a letter to a friend that, while "Tiro takes down whole phrases in a few signs, Spintharus (his provisional substitute) only writes in syllables." We need not, however, suppose that the "notae Tironianae" were actually invented by the freedman in question. As M. Guenin points out, the Romans created very few of the arts of peace, contenting themselves, as a rule, by copying from the Greeks. M. Guenin, however, indicates the banks of the Nile as the cradle of the art.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Where to Begin.

"Look here," said the reforming husband; "we must have things arranged in this house so that we shall know just where everything is kept."

"With all my heart," sweetly answered his wife, "and let us begin with your late hours, my love. I should very much like to know where they are kept."—Stray Stories.

A Boomerang.

"Call that art!" exclaimed a would be critic, pointing to a painting in a studio. "If that daub is a work of art, then I'm an idiot!"

"The latter part of your statement," rejoined the artist calmly, "would seem to furnish conclusive proof that it is a work of art."

Knew What His Few Days Meant.

Quackly—By the bye, have you got $10 about you that you don't need for a few days? Smackly—I have, but I might need it some time.—Exchange.

SUSPECT AT WALTHAM

Mayor Walker Assists in the Search for Him

It is very evident that all Massachusetts is on the qui vive because of the escaped murderer from Quincy. Here is a story from the Waltham Free Press of Wednesday:

Mayor Walker headed a squad of police in a search through the woods in the vicinity of Sibley Hill shortly after 10 o'clock this morning for an Italian, who, it is alleged, held up Alexander Lonergan, a driver in the employ of J. C. Cushing and demanded his money.

When the holdup was reported at police headquarters, officers were carried hurriedly to the scene and a thorough search of the woods was made although no trace of the highwayman was found.

Reports were circulated that Restelli, the Quincy murderer, was at large in the woods near Stony Brook and many followed the officers in carriages and autos to the scene.

The description given by Lonergan did not answer that of the Quincy murdered and the police did not believe that they were after the much wanted man.

Lonergan called at the Police Station shortly before 10 o'clock and reported to Chief McKenna that he had been held up by an Italian on Stony Brook hill.

He says that he was driving toward this city when an Italian jumped in front of his wagon and ordered him to stop. Placing his hand in his hip pocket he then demanded Lonergan's money.

Finding that the driver was without cash the Italian turned and ran into the woods, while Lonergan quickly started his horse and made all possible haste to reach the Police Station and report the matter.

He described the Italian as a man of medium build and dark complexion. He was rough in appearance, with a week's growth of beard and he wore a dark suit of clothes with a black hat.

The description differs from that of Restelli with regard to complexion as the Quincy murderer is light and he has no mustache, while Lonergan states that his assailant had.

Mayor Walker was informed of the affair and he immediately pressed his auto into service to convey officers to the scene. Officers Bemis and Cater were quickly summoned and in plain clothes they started with the Mayor for Stony Brook. They carried revolvers and a plentiful supply of ammunition.

Officers Cloonan and Tracey, who were sleeping in the dormitory, were immediately awakened and Chief McKenna secured an auto to convey them to the scene.

The officers searched through the woods and visited the Stone Crusher at Stony Brook where several Italians are employed, but they found no trace of the man.

The Italian started through the woods toward Weston and nobody could be found who saw him after the holdup.

For two hours the police searched for the Italian and they returned to headquarters at noon.

A tire of the auto in which Officers Tracey and Cloonan were riding punctured and they were delayed.

The Weston police were notified of the holdup and officers were detailed to assist in the man hunt.

Lonergan states that when the Italian placed his hand in his hip pocket he saw a revolver, although the man did not draw it from his pocket.

German Gleanings.

There has been an astonishing increase in Germany during recent years in the participation of women in agricultural work. In 1905 the figure was 2,758,154. It is more than double that now.

Germany is troubled with rodent pests in many districts, the chief ones being field mice, hamsters and rabbits. Many districts are afflicted with two or three kinds of field mice, and in other parts the hamsters and rabbits cause the principal damage.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

(Historical Paper No. 26.)

Besides historic Kings Chapel in Boston and the noble Bunker Hill Monument, Quincy granite has been used in many public buildings all over the country.

Pattee's History of Quincy says:

The United States Branch Bank, Boston, was the first building that we know of which was constructed of large stone. "The corner stone was laid the 5th of July, 1824. The heavy columns in the portico of this building were cut from a huge boulder of granite in the town of Westford, Mass., known as the Chelmsford granite. They were twenty-four feet in height, including the cap, and four feet in diameter at the base," and would be called inferior in size to some columns since cut. This building Mr. Willard completed before begining Bunker Hill monument.

The first large stone columne quarried in Quincy were those taken for the Unitarian church in this town, in 1828, from the Rattlesnake quarry, which was later worked by Jesse Bunton & Co. They were hammered by Hazen Abbott, with a pean hammer, and must have been a very laborious job with this primitive instrument. The old red chalk lines can be seen to this day by which the stone was lined off.

The Tremont House, Boston, was erected in 1828, and the corner stone was laid by Samuel T. Armstrong, president of the Massachusetts Mechanic Association, July 4, of that year; the stone was hammered at the State Prison. "The ornamental part of the entablature—the facade and the portico—were executed by Samuel R. Johnson, of Charlestown." It was among the first hotels of this class erected in the country. The Masonic Temple, later the U. S. Court House, was built in 1831.

Mr. Willard furnished the plan of the monument for Edward Everett, in commemoration of the fight at the old North Bridge, Concord, in 1825, but it was not completed until 1836. He also made the design for the Franklin monument, in the Granary burying ground, which was constructed in 1827. He furnished the plan for the Harvard monument, which was erected in the old historic cemetery, in Charlestown, in 1828.

Mr. Willard made the plan for the old Norfolk County court house at Dedham, which was built in 1826, and at that time was considered one of the best specimens of his architecture. He seems to have been at that period, the principal architect of the times.

The Suffolk County court house was also designed by him, and completed in 1835. The two doric porticos were supported by eight stone columns, which were twenty-five feet six inches in height, and four feet six inches in diameter, and measured about fifty tons. It required a team of sixty-five yoke of oxen and twelve horses, to transport them to Boston. The court house has since been enlarged, by removing the doric porticos on the southerly end, and there building an extension.

These large columns for the court house, we believe, were the third ones in chronological order taken to Boston. The Branch Bank, in 1824; Faneuil Hall or Quincy Market, in 1826, from Chelmsford granite; and the court house in 1835.

The Boston Custom House, on State street, was by act of Congress, authorized to be built in 1835, but it was two years after, before its construction was begun, which was in 1837, and the time of building it was twelve years. The building is constructed in the form of a Greek cross, and the external part of it is in the pure doric style of architecture, and was wholly built of Quincy syenite. Its walls, columns and roof, are constructed of stone, and it is surrounded by thirty-two massive stone columns, each of which are five feet two inches in diameter, thirty-two feet high, and weigh about forty-two tons. This attractive and noble building rests on, as a foundation, about three thousand piles. The cost of the Custom House was about one million of dollars, including site and foundation. The stone for the Custom House was taken from the quarries of Richards, Munn & Co., O. T. Rogers & Co., Thomas Hollis, Jr., Granite Railway Co. and Henry Wood.

Mr. Willard, in 1836, superintended the construction of the New York Exchange, which stones were taken in part from the Wigwam quarry, later worked by Badger Brothers. O. T. Rogers & Co. and Barker & Co. furnished the material for the entablature. This building required a large amount of heavy stone, including eighteen fluted columns of over thirty tons each. These columns, when finished, were thirty-two feet, eight inches in height.

Among the stone contractors there seems to have been a doubt whether Mr. Willard would be able to secure them, as will be seen by his own statement, viz:—"I do not apprehend much difficulty in getting the whole out, although our neighbors in the stone business appear to be much concerned about it. I presume we can get them, if anybody can, and at less than half the cost to them. We are now drilling a line of holes eighty feet long, and have a fair chance of getting two columns at the next split. We have wedged off our long split about an inch, and I think will make what was intended. Our quarrymen have had to proceed with great caution on account of the great length; this block must have measured from one hundred to one hundred and fifty tons. Another block was partly got out which it was expected would make four columns, but it was not successful."

One year from this time, during which much of the stone for the Exchange and Custom House in Boston had been secured and forwarded, Mr. Willard wrote, July 8th, 1841, as follows:— "We expect to get through shortly and to have the greatest hurrah and throwing up of caps that ever was in Quincy. We have saved three cartridges for the Yankee, to be fired off when the last column is loaded."

Four months later he wrote,—"We are about getting the seventeenth column to the wharf; the eighteenth we expect to get finished on Tuesday next, and the whole column and architrave afloat in the course of next week."

A discarded column was set up in the Hall Cemetery, and here we wish to corerct an error that we were led into by the author of Mr. Willard's memoirs, in which he caused us to make the statement that a full set of stone tools was placed in the top of the monument, when since, we have learned they were placed in the base, and we should say, the most proper locality for them.

The cost of some of the columns as stated in an estimated work, was about fifteen hundred dollars, while two of them, upon which extra work was ordered, are put down at four thousand dollars, and Mr. Willard in one of his letters remarks, "that the prime cost of getting out one of these shafts is as much as the prime cost of a doric column with its capitals, for which five thousand, two hundred dollars was paid at the Custom House." The estimated work upon each was equal to four men for forty-five days.

The tall, plain and fluted pilasters in front of the Merchants' Exchange in Boston, which were taken from the old Rogers quarry, are much the largest in that city, and were raised into position by means of screws. The corner pilasters are forty-one feet, eight inches in height, six feet wide, and measure about fifty-five tons. Mr. Willard and others in the business, were enabled to handle these large blocks and stone columns with great ease and facility by Mr. Willard's improved lifting and pulling-jack, in connection with Mr. Holmes' hoisting apparatus. Mr. Holmes was also the inventor of the derrick.

CITY OF QUINCY — POLICE DEPARTMENT

$500 REWARD

DEAD OR ALIVE

LOUIS G. RESTELLI

WANTED FOR MURDER

Charles H. Hardwick of Quincy, Mass., in behalf of the family of the late Henry E. Hardwick, authorizes the Chief of Police of the City of Quincy, Mass., to offer the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the capture of Louis G. Restelli, dead or alive, for the murder of Henry E. Hardwick and the attempt to murder C. Theodore Hardwick, on Friday, July 29, 1910, at Quincy, Mass. On the same day Restelli shot and killed his mother, Marianna Restelli, and shot his brother Gaspare Restelli, William Adrian and Benjamin Bishop, all of Quincy and connected with the granite industry of this city. The above reward to be paid unless Restelli has committed suicide when the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) will be paid for the recovery of his dead body. If he commits suicide in order to evade capture of direct pursuit the full sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) will be paid.

Full Description of Louis C. Restelli

Height 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches.

Weight 150 lbs.

Dark complexion, smooth face, but grows a small black mustache quickly.

Brown eyes, the right eye smaller than the left and showing a defect caused by a cataract and making the use of glasses practically compulsory.

He generally wears a pair of gold-bowed spectacles with a very heavy lense, though he will probably endeavor to get along without them.

He is a Lombardian and talks the English language so well that there is no Italian accent noticeable.

Has been in the granite business for years and is well known in the business, being a member of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association.

Was a member of K Co., of Fifth Massachusetts regiment, in the Spanish War, and is a member of John A. Boyd Camp of Spanish War Veterans.

Age 39 years.

HOUSEHOLD RECEIPTS.

Lemon Pie. Pour one cup hot water over four tablespoonfuls fine stale bread crumbs, add one saltspoonful salt, one-half cup sugar, juice and grated rind of one lemon, two egg yolks well beaten; pour this mixture into pie-tin lined with stuff paste, and bake till crust is done; cool, and cover with meringue made from the two egg whites and two tablespoonfuls powdered sugar. Set in slow oven till light brown.

Blackberry Fritters. Make a batter of one pint of milk, one egg, one tablespoonful sugar ,one teaspoonful baking powder, one cup flour and a half teaspoonful salt. Into this batter stir lightly two cups blackberries and drop the batter by the tablespoonful into a kettle of hot fat. Cook a golden brown and serve with liquid sauce.

Corn Fritters. Cut the kernels from four good sized ears young corn. Add two beaten eggs, half a teaspoonful salt, a saltspoonful pepper ,a cup of flour pressed down and heaped a little, and a cup cold milk. Have ready a hot frying pan well greased and drop in the batter by spoonfuls. There should be enough for a dozen. Do not let the fritters touch. Cook in relays, frying on one side four minutes, then turn and fry the other. These are delicious as an accompaniment for chicken or to serve for breakfast.

Green Corn Soup. Fry a sliced onion in three ounces of butter in a saucepan, to brown a little. Take out the onion ,add a pint of white stock to the saucepan and let boil for a minute or two. Add then a pint of milk and a pint of rich cream. Split through the hulls eight good sized ears of sweet corn and scrape the corn out carefully freeing it from the hulls. Put the corn into the soup to cook for five minutes.

BRIEFS

The 39th Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers and their families will be held at Revere Beach on Thursday, Aug. 18, with dinner at Kirbys at 12.30.

The hottest day of August last year was Aug. 26, when 91 degrees was recorded, the only 90 degree day of the month. The lowest noon temperature was 60 on Aug. 17.

The funeral of Mrs. John Gilraine of 55 Hancock street, was held from her late residence at 8.30 this morning, followed by high mass or requiem at the Church of Sacred Heart at 9 o'clock.

It is possible that Senor Pedro Monti the President of Chili, who is expected in Boston on Friday will visit the Fore River Shipyards at Quincy. On Saturday he will be a guest of President Taft at Beverly, returning to Boston at night.

Loonacy.

I'm in love with the laugh of the lonesome loon,
Who lies on the lonely lakes;
Who horridly howls at the maiden moon—
Oh, it's murderous music he makes!
'Tis the shriek of a soul that is seared with sin,
A terrible, torturing tune;
Yea, a damnable, doleful, demoniac din
Is the laugh of the lonesome loon!
—Cleveland Leader.

But give me the glug of the gluttonous gull,
As it swishingly shies near the shore
And murmurs meticulous dithyrambs dull—
Oh, the bird is a bibulous bore!
It plunks itself plump 'neath the watery wave,
A cursory carplet to cull;
You bet you! A beggarly beast to behave
Is the gurglesome, gluttonous gull!
—Chicago Tribune.

Rivals.

She—John is a very considerate sort of fellow, isn't he? He (the rival)—Oh, yes, very! He has that keen tact and loving sympathy which a chauffeur displays toward a helpless cripple.—Life.

Blank Verse.

Poet—You published a poem of mine last week. You pay according to the kind of verse, don't you? Editor—Yes. George, give the gentleman a blank check.—Judge.

A Good Reason.

"What makes you think, sir, that I will not be able to support your daughter?"

"Well, I haven't been able to myself."

Tightly Tied.

"That man's money is all tied up."

"Poor fellow! Can't get at it, eh?"

"Oh, yes. All he has to do is to untie his money bag."—Judge.

IOWA FACTIONS ARE FAR APART

STORM HAS ALREADY BROKEN

Cummings, as Temporary Chairman of State Convention, Brings Forth Hisses by Failing to Link Taft's Name With Former Presidents—Says Administration Railroad Bill Would Have Defeated the Party

Des Moines, Aug. 4.—Hisses halted Senator Cummins for ten minutes in his address to the state convention of the Republican party. The proceedings resembled a riot for a time, but he was finally able to continue.

Senator Cummins had summed up a sentence by declaring that the "party of Grant, McKinley and Roosevelt" must never fall.

"Why don't you include Taft?" yelled a standpatter. Then the disorder broke out, the insurgent's opponents making an issue of the slight that they claimed the speaker had given the president.

Senator Cummins bitterly attacked the administration railroad bill as drawn by Attorney General Wickersham. He was jeered as he said: "This bill would have consigned the Republican party to disgrace and defeat."

Senator Cummins dissected the tariff, declaring that it had many defects, but he said that the law is a better one than Democrats could make. He defended the insurgents in outlining mistakes of congress and made a plea for harmony.

Senators Cummins and Dolliver and the insurgent delegation at Washington were enthusiastically indorsed by the convention.

The new tariff law was branded as a failure in the light of the party pledge of 1908. President Taft received only a lukewarm indorsement. A sop to harmony was flung out in the indorsement of the administration of Governor Carroll.

An attempt to use the "steam roller" and make the state central committee overwhelmingly progressive was called off, presumably at the behest of Cummins.

With standpatters and progressives apparently hopelessly at variance on the essential matter of tariff plank, the Republican state convention was called to order in the Coliseum for the purpose of writing a platform, selecting a state central committee and making nominations for state superintendent of public instruction and for two supreme court judgeships.

The discord is expected to be more in evidence in the campaign than effective at the convention, which has a safe progressive majority. The standpatters adopted their planks with the full knowledge that they could not be forced through the convention.

The entrance of Senator Cummins, the temporary chairman, was the signal for a wild burst of applause, in which many conservatives, carried away by the enthusiasm, joined. Senator Dolliver, permanent chairman, came in a few moments later and received an ovation.

Senator Cummins did not mention either President Taft or Governor Carroll by name in his speech. He referred to the Republican party as the party "of Lincoln, of Grant, of Roosevelt," etc., but did not say anything about "the party of Taft."

VICTORY FOR INSURGENTS

They Nominate Six of Their Eight Congressmen In Kansas

Topeka, Aug. 4.—Insurgents won almost a complete victory at the Kansas primaries. Six out of eight insurgent congressmen were nominated in spite of everything the congressional organization in Washington and the regulars in Kansas could do to save their men. Their majority run from 1000 to 3500.

Of the six standpat congressmen who were seeking renomination only two are sure of being on the ticket this fall. In the Third district P. P. Campbell defeated Arthur Cranston, insurgent. In the first district Representative Anthony won over T. A. McNeal, insurgent.

Representative Calderhead in the Fifth, leader of the standpatters, was defeated by about 2000 votes.

W. R. Stubbs for governor was renominated with a majority over Thomas Wagstaff of about 2000 more than he had over Cy Leland, two years ago. Stubbs is an insurgent, Wagstaff a regular.

ANALYZED BY MURDOCK

Says Kansas Vote Means Complete Repudiation of Cannon

Wichita, Kan., Aug. 4.—Victor Murdock, the insurgent leader in congress, in his home in this city, said: "The significance of the overwhelming insurgent victory in Kansas is two-fold:

"First, it is a complete repudiation of both Cannon and the system by which he has robbed the people of free government in the house. Scott, Miller and Reader were chairmen of important house committees, while Calderhead was on the ways and means committee. All were beaten because they subscribed to the Cannon system.

"Second, the Kansas insurgent victory is an effort by Republicans of Kansas to say with emphasis to the nation that the Republican party of Kansas, by indorsing Governor Stubbs and the Kansas insurgents in congress, stands for immediate and effective legislation framed to drive special selfish interests out of control in American politics."

Regulars Hold Oklahoma

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 4.—Insurgent Republican candidates for congress in the primary election were defeated in three Oklahoma districts in which definite returns have been obtained.

ELEVATOR KILLS A BOY

Friend's Hands Burned to the Bone In an Unusual Accident

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 4.—George Wilson, Jr., aged 14, was killed and Henry Morrison, aged 23, injured in an unusual elevator accident at the J. H. Smart shoe shop.

While riding up on the elevator with a basket of shoes Wilson got his foot caught between the car and the wall of the shaft. Morrison went to his assistance.

While Morrison was pulling on the cable, the elevator suddenly slipped a cog and plunged to the bottom of the well, a fall of more than thirty feet. Wilson fell with it, sustaining injuries which resulted in his death.

The drop of the car left Morrison hanging to the cable in the shaft. Before the other employes could throw a rope over him he was obliged to loosen his hold and slide down. The friction burned both hands to the bone. He was otherwise unhurt.

SUFFOCATED ON OLD OCEAN'S BED

Gunner's Mate Succumbs While Searching For a Torpedo

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 4.—Thirty fathoms deep in the waters of Cape Cod bay in search of a sunken torpedo, George W. Fairley, a gunner's mate on the flagship Connecticut of the Atlantic fleet and a resident of Orangeburg, S. C., lost his life.

Fairley was sent out with a boat's crew and diving apparatus to recover it, and on his way to the bottom of the bay he signalled "O. K." There was a pause for a moment when he reached bottom, then came a faint signal of danger.

His comrades pulled the diver as quickly as possible to the surface, and hastily opening the armor, found Fairley unconscious, but still breathing. All efforts to resuscitate him failed.

The cause of the fatality is not known, but it is presumed that there must have been trouble in the transmitting of air.

DOCTOR TAKES POISON

Vermont Man Tries to Kill Himself on Train While Under Arrest

Ludlow, Vt., Aug. 4.—Dr. Charles W. Bates, who disappeared suddenly from this town on July 6 with a trained nurse, after he had mortgaged his wife's automobile for $950, attempted to end his life with poison on a train at Pana, Ills. It is believed he will recover.

Bates was on his way home from Kansas City, where he was arrested on a charge of taking mortgaged property out of the state of Vermont without the consent of the mortgagees. The property in question was the automobile which belonged to his wife.

Returning with the doctor was the nurse, who summoned a physician as soon as poisoning symptoms were noticeable.

SHOOTS GIRL, KILLS SELF

Old Man Was Jealous of Fourteen-Year-Old Adopted Daughter

Madison, Me., Aug. 4.—Jealous of his adopted daughter, 14 years old, Mark Tibbetts, 65 years old, fired two shots at her, then shot himself fatally. The girl, slightly wounded, will recover.

Tibbetts was reputed to be well to do. The girl had been his housekeeper for a year against the protests of neighbors. The girl's original home was in Bingham with her parents. Over $1000 in bills was found on Tibbetts after his death.

Ten Thousand Operatives Locked Out

HAS GLEANED NEW EVIDENCE

Scotland Yard Moving Carefully In the Crippen Case

NO CONFESSIONS YET MADE

Official Sent From England to Canada With Request For Extradition—Solicitors Engaged to Look After Interests of Miss Leneve and Doctor—Action of Latter's Friends Takes Police and Public by Surprise

London, Aug. 4.—Several important facts bearing on the Belle Elmore murder case have come to light. In the first place Scotland Yard took occasion to dispose of the rumors that a confession had been received from either Dr. Crippen or Miss Leneve, under arrest at Quebec as fugitives from justice, and who will be brought here and tried on the charge of murder.

The police also let it be known that progress was being made in the development of evidence. William Long, a former assistant of Crippen, who, as a witness at the inquest over the body found in the cellar of Crippen's Hilltop Crescent home, was inclined to shield the fugitive, has since talked freely with the authorities.

The family and other friends of Miss Leneve have become active in her behalf. They engaged a provincial solicitor to look after her interests from the time that she is returned within the jurisdiction of English courts.

The case of the crown, so far as the matter of the extradition of the prisoners is concerned, is also completed and the papers from the legal department of the government turned over to Sergeant Mitchell, who sailed for Quebec today on the steamer Lake Manitoba. With the papers Mitchell received final instructions as to his duties and conduct on the mission.

The evidence which will be laid before the Canadian judge is an elaboration of that taken at the inquest, but it does not include the report of Professor Pepper, the home office expert who made the analytic examination of the dismembered body. This omission is significant, as Pepper is depended upon to determine the sex of the victim, and if possible to clinch the identification of the parts as having belonged to the body of Belle Elmore. It is explained that the professor's report is not yet complete.

Arthur Newton, a London solicitor, confirmed the press dispatches from Quebec which stated that he had undertaken the defense of Crippen. Newton said that he had been approached by friends of the prisoner and had cabled to the latter asking if he desired him to take up the case. Crippen, he said, replied, assenting.

Newton's cablegram to Crippen stated that friends of the prisoner had asked the solicitor to represent the defense and had offered to meet the expenses entailed. Newton declined to reveal the names of these friends who had retained him. Newton's appearance in the case took the authorities and the public by surprise and the police are puzzled to know who can be behind the movement.

Fight Will Be on Other Side

Quebec, Aug. 4.—Dr. Crippen cabled to Arthur Newton of London accepting the solicitor's services. The message ran: "Accept your offer. Secrecy will be observed."

A second Quebec attorney sent word to the prisoner that he was ready to help him resist extradition. To the jailor who bore the communication Crippen said: "My fight will not be made here. It will be made on the other side."

Crippen made it clear that he would not accept legal assistance from anyone here.

CARLISLE NOTED IN PUBLIC LIFE

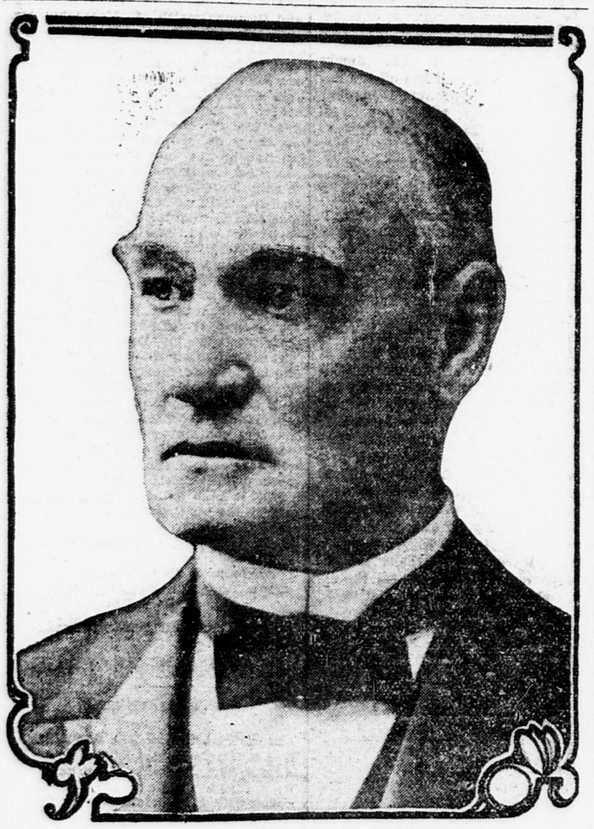

Cleveland's Adviser Climbed Political Ladder Successfully.

WAS NATIVE OF KENTUCKY.

Career Begun In Blue Grass State Legislature Reached to Speakership of National House, Senate and President's Cabinet—Prominent In Low Tariff Ranks.

John Griffin Carlisle, whose recent death in New York was forecast by his long illness, was not only secretary of the treasury under Mr. Cleveland and one of the chief friends and advisers of that president, but had also to the credit of his long public career a seat in the United States senate and the speakership of the house of representatives.

Mr. Carlisle had been lieutenant governor of his native state of Kentucky and held a seat in both houses of its legislature. He was a gold Democrat, and his party recognized him as leader on the question of taxation. In the tariff debates he also won high standing with the party for his advocacy of lower schedules.

Starting life in poverty, with a meager education, when he was admitted to the bar in 1858, after several years of teaching, he was only twenty-three years old and had already given promise of a brilliant career. He was born in Campbell county, Ky., in 1835, the youngest son in the numerous family of Lilbon H. Carlisle, a planter of good Virginian stock.

With the exception of his early instruction in the common schools, he was self educated. When he was still in his teens he taught school. His leisure time gave him an opportunity to read lawbooks, and a year or two later he moved to Covington, Ky., and became a clerk in the law office of Governor J. W. Stevenson.

Began Politics Early.

When he was admitted to the bar he was already instructed in politics, and when he was twenty-four he was elected a member of the lower house of the Kentucky legislature. He was re-elected four times. In 1864 he declined to be nominated as a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket to cast a vote against the re-election of President Lincoln, and in 1866 he was elected state senator. He was re-elected to the senate.

At the Democratic national convention held in New York in 1868 Carlisle made his first appearance in the arena of national politics as a delegate at large from Kentucky. Horatio Seymour was nominated for the presidency at this convention. Mr. Carlisle was lieutenant governor of Kentucky from 1871 to 1875. A year later he was one of the alternate Tilden electors at large from Kentucky.

When Mr. Carlisle was elected to congress in 1876 Samuel J. Randall, whom he was to overthrow, was a power in the lower house. This was the Forty-fifth congress. He was five times re-elected by large majorities and served as speaker for three terms. He was an authority on parliamentary law, and when the house seemed inextricably involved his clear judicial terms straightened things out and brought calmness out of the apparent chaos.

Mr. Carlisle won his spurs in congress on the Carlisle internal revenue bill in the Forty-fifth congress. From that hour he became the recognized leader of his party on the question of taxation. He was the life and soul of the 3 per cent bank bill. The measure afterward passed the senate, but was vetoed by President Hayes.

Three Years In Senate.

Mr. Carlisle stepped from the house into the senate in 1890, when he was chosen to fill the unexpired term of James B. Beck, whose service was brought to a close by his death. He was recognized as a leader in the three years that he served in the senate before the president called him to the cabinet in 1893.

The country was in the midst of a financial crisis, largely due to past unsound legislation, under which the gold reserve had been diminished, silver had accumulated and the expenditures had exceeded the revenues of the national government. The first step in the Cleveland-Carlisle financial program for the mitigation of the dangers that threatened was to recommend the repeal of the Sherman act, which required the monthly purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver and the payment therefor with treasury notes. This repeal was effected after various attempts by the Republicans in congress to defeat the measure.

The next step in the program was the recommendation of tariff reforms. In this Carlisle was in perfect accord with President Cleveland. Ten years before Mr. Carlisle had expressed himself very forcibly on the subject when he declared his sincere belief "that all commercial restrictions are in the end injurious to the people."

The Wilson bill, which followed virtually the recommendations of President Cleveland, provided for free wool, iron ore, coal and lumber among other things. With the addition of a provision for an income tax and for free sugar it was passed by the house, but was so emasculated in conference committee that President Cleveland declined to sign it and allowed it to become law without his signature.

Bond Issues Criticised.

For the financial administration which marked the next two years both Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle were severely criticised at first. The country was suffering under financial depression; there was a great falling off in revenues, which brought on a deficit in the gold reserve, which in February, 1895, had fallen to $41,000,000. In June of that year Mr. Cleveland, under the powers vested in him, contracted for a loan of 4 per cent thirty year bonds, redeemable in coin, to the amount of $62,000,000, with a financial syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan.

In December of that year, after congress had failed to act on recommendations that greenbacks and treasury coin notes be canceled by exchange for low interest United States bonds, the government was compelled to prepare for a new loan. In this the public was invited to participate. The people subscribed freely, and the government in this way obtained $111,000,000. This was contrasted with the earlier loan, which it was declared had been greatly to the advantage of the financial syndicate and to the disadvantage of the government.

Georgian Bay Canal Costs $101,000,000.

Canadian government officials estimate the cost of the Georgian Bay canal at $101,000,000 and the company's engineers at a larger amount. As an essential condition of the financial arrangements made a government guarantee of 3½ per cent a year interest on the cost of construction is necessary.

A Mistaken Girl

She Found That She Was Not as Wise as She Thought

By ESTELLE MARSH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I am in a quandary. I had supposed I would marry Donald Chase, and now comes Oscar Richmond to mix me all up. Donald is steady, honorable, has excellent judgment; Oscar is handsome, full of sentiment, fascinating. I know I should remain true to Donald, but Oscar carries me right off my feet.

The question of money does not enter into the matter. Donald is doing very well, earning a fair salary and with a prospect of being a partner. Oscar is out of business just now. I don't exactly understand why. He is very reticent. I like reticence in a man; it bespeaks self control. Oscar can talk with me by the hour without revealing any of his affairs. Of course if he proposes to me I shall expect that he will tell me everything.

I have tried to get Donald to tell me why he distrusts Oscar. He says he doesn't himself know why. It is quite likely that his distrust is due to jealousy. Donald is so honorable that he would not like to believe himself capable of doing a rival an injustice. He is unconscious that he is moved by jealousy.

I wonder who is this Girard Roberts he has brought to see us. He has known us but a few weeks, yet it seems that we have all been friends for years. It's strange how some people have a faculty of insinuating themselves at once into one's good graces. Already I call this man by his first name, and, though I have known Donald since I was sixteen years old, I still call him Mr. Chase.

I have sounded Girard Roberts as to what he thinks of Oscar Richmond. His reply was, "He's a bang up good fellow." That doesn't help me. But it's the most I can expect from Girard, who is all on the surface. Those people one becomes familiar with on short acquaintance seldom have any depth. I asked Girard what he thought of Donald and received the same reply, "He's a bang up good fellow too." I was served right for relying upon the opinion of such a lightweight person.

Girard Roberts seems to have plenty of money as well as a taste for jewelry. The other day Aunt Alida was showing him a diamond she wished to turn into funds. He told her to go among the jewelers, ask them to fix a price on it and he would give her $10 more than the highest bid. She did so and got a bid of $270 for the stone. Girard told her it was cheap at $300 and he would give her that for it. She accepted the offer. Oscar and I were present when the sale was made, and Girard laughingly told us that he would rely on us as witnesses in case aunty backed out. He didn't have the money with him, but said he would bring it the next afternoon at 5 o'clock.

When he called aunty was out. Oscar and I were in the library. Girard called to me to say to aunty when she came in that she would find the money for the diamond under a vase on the mantel in the parlor. I promised to do so. Oscar asked me to go to walk with him. I consented; went upstairs to get my hat, and we walked to the park. When I returned I had forgotten all about telling aunty that the money for her diamond was on the parlor mantel. Indeed, I never thought of it till just before going to bed; then I told her. She went downstairs to get it. It was gone.

Everybody is dissatisfied with me and I am dissatisfied with myself for being so thoughtless as to have left $300 so long in an exposed position. It has upset the whole household. The servants who consider themselves under suspicion are going about looking very glum. Aunty is furious with me. I expected Girard would show his feelings toward me very decidedly. What a lovely fellow he is, after all! He told me not to give myself any concern about the matter; that doubtless the money would run up, but if it did not there was no one to blame but himself since he should not have left so much money in such a place. He explained that he did not leave it with me because I was "flirting," as he called it, with Oscar and he didn't like to intrude upon us.

I asked him who he suspected, and he said that, since the front door stood unlatched and any one might have come in while we were at dinner or during the evening when we were all upstairs, doubtless some person entered, possibly for an ordinary purpose, and, seeing the money, appropriated it and skipped.

I have had a stroke—an awful visitation! Donald Chase turns out to be the thief who took the bills left on the mantel to pay for aunty's jewel. This morning when he was at business a constable called at his room with a search warrant and found the bills in his bureau drawer. To think that Donald, whom we have all known so long and considered the very soul of honor, should have done such a thing!

How could he have taken the money without our knowing it? What Girard Roberts told me is the only thing that fits the case. Doubtless Donald called, came right in, was waiting for some of us, when he noticed the bills. He must have taken them and gone out without making himself known.

I am broken hearted by this discovery that Donald Chase is a common thief. Singular, isn't it, that a girl doesn't know she loves a man till he turns out to be a thief? That's the way with us women; we are always acting by contraries. Not long ago I was uncertain about Oscar and thought Donald a splendid man. But I was fascinated with Oscar, and Donald seemed devoid of romance. Now that Donald is in trouble, through his own fault, I am giving him my heart.

Girard Roberts has just come in. He says that Donald has given bail for his appearance when his trial comes off and is now free. Girard says that, notwithstanding appearances are against Donald, he doesn't believe him guilty. "Then," I said, "I don't believe him guilty either." But the next minute I reproved myself for being influenced by this easy going man. Did he not say when I asked him his opinion of Donald before this matter occurred, "He's a good fellow too?" What's the use of considering the views of one who talks like that? I told Girard to tell Donald to come and see me, but he said he did not think Donald would until his innocence has been proved. I really believe there has been some mistake, but it is very hard to feel sure about it. It all happened so naturally—Donald's coming in just when the money was where he would see it—at least, who else could have come in?—and the bills being found in his bureau drawer. Oh, dear! I must stop thinking of the horrid thing or I shall go crazy.

One thing more I will say: After all, there is something just too lovely for anything in Girard Roberts saying that he doesn't believe Donald guilty. If any one should take anything of mine and it were found in his bureau drawer I couldn't be so generous as to attribute the theft to an error.

Donald has been to see me. He did not act or talk like a guilty man. What's more, he didn't seem to realize his awful position. I supposed that he was more sensitive. Though charged with stealing money that was intended for aunty, with whom he has been on friendly terms for years, to say nothing of his devotion to me, he seemed very unconcerned. When I learned he was downstairs I nerved myself for a very painful interview. For fear I should say the wrong thing I thought over what I should say. When I entered the room I dreaded to look at him. Indeed, I kept my eyes on the floor.

"Donald," I said, "you know how interested we all are that you should clear yourself of this horrible charge. We will all do anything in the world to help you—Aunty, I, Oscar"—

I looked up, and what was my surprise to see an amused look on Donald's face. Indeed, he was smiling.

Then he advanced, took my hand and gave it a gentle pressure.

"Don't be troubled, little girl," he said. "There are always wheels within wheels. There is also such a thing as being too smart. I have something to say to you. Had I not I would not have come to see you resting under the imputation of being a thief. Listen. From the first I suspected something wrong in your friend Oscar Richmond. From what I heard I believed him to be a thief. I introduced into this household Girard Roberts, a detective"—

"That's what he is. He laid a trap for Richmond and caught not Richmond, but me. He bought your aunt's diamond for the purpose of laying this trap. He put the bills to pay for it on the mantel as a decoy for Richmond. They were all marked, that he might prove them his property. Richmond took them, but, being a smart rogue and suspecting that we were on his track, sent a man with them to my room. This man represented himself as an old chum of mine, and my landlady permitted him to go to the room to wait for me. Once there, he put the money in my bureau drawer and went away. The next day Richmond arranged that a constable should go to my room to search for something he claimed he had lost. You know the result."

"But," I said, "Oscar Richmond did nothing criminal. You were trying to catch him, and he turned the tables on you."

"Wait a bit. Richmond was an accountant for a firm in San Francisco, from whom he skipped with $20,000. Roberts was employed by them to track him. My employing Roberts was a coincidence. Richmond's real name is MacEnery. He was arrested this morning and is now awaiting extradition papers to take him to San Francisco for trial."

And now I am alone in my room, trying to get settled down to the fact that I am myself. Oscar Richmond is not Oscar Richmond at all, but somebody else and a criminal. Donald Chase is not going to the penitentiary, but is to be my husband instead. Girard Roberts, who came to us with his apparently light character and trivial words—a skin deep man whom nobody either loves or dislikes—turns out to be one of those cunning detectives one reads about in stories. But now I know that he is a real detective he seems very different to me. Just as soon as it was all out, instead of calling me Alice he called me Miss Avery. I was so mad I could have choked him. Besides, I thought he was quite a gentleman. He is very plain. Indeed, Donald says he served a term as a policeman.

Well, well; I shall never again think I can tell the difference between a rogue and an honest man or between a gentleman and a thief hunter.

KERINS DONOVAN

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Weymouth on Wednesday evening, when Miss Helen May Donovan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Donovan, became the bride of Maurice A. Kerins, a well known Quincy young man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John B. Holland of the Sacred Heart church at 7.30 o'clock and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride from 8 to 10 o'clock. Miss Caroline A. Donovan, a sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and James F. Queeny of East Braintree was the best man. The ushers were Francis A. Donovan of Weymouth and Alfred L. Mead of Quincy.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a white duchess satin, with rose point lace, cut en train, and wore a tulle veil with lace ornaments. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. The bridesmaid wore a pink satin with rose point lace trimmings, and also carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

The house was prettily decorated with potted palms, ferns and cut flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Kerins were assisted in receiving by the bride's parents and the groom's mother. Immediately following the ceremony the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Canada, returning from which they will reside at Wollaston, where they will be at home after Oct. 1.

The bride is one of the most popular young ladies of Weymouth. She has been particularly prominent in music circles, being a graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music, where she won the scholarship in the school of opera. She also possesses a sweet soprano voice. The groom is well known in Quincy, where he has resided all of his life. He is a member of the choir of St. John's church and is the esteemed representative of Adam Kinly & Sons, one of the largest sole leather dealers in the country, and has a large circle of friends in Quincy and among the leather trade of Boston.

SPORTING CHAT.

The Doves have come to life again, and those two they took from the Reds will draw the crowds to Columbus avenue for awhile. It seems strange that with so many strong individual players the team fares so poorly.

A TRIP FOR QUINCY.

The new movement to advertise Barre granite is not started because the demand is shortening—no, not by a good deal; but rather because the people here are waking up to the fact that they have not improved all their opportunities.—Barre Daily Times.

Why Should She Mind It?

When Dot's older sisters were baptized Dot wanted to be baptized also, and after earnest entreaties her parents were prevailed upon to give their consent.

She was so small the minister stooped over her as she descended the steps into the baptistry.

"Are you afraid, Dot?" he asked.

With the brightest of smiles Dot made prompt reply:

"Oh, no, sir; I can swim."—Lippincott's.

A Duke's Maxim.

Every dollar spent in Quincy helps the city. And every merchant who keeps the goods that the people want; sells them at the right prices; treats his customers courteously and squarely; serves them promptly and in a businesslike manner and insists that his clerks shall do the same and then LETS THE PUBLIC KNOW WHAT HE IS DOING can help to keep trade in Quincy. They are buying goods somewhere. There is a way to reach them. ADVERTISE.

CITY RECEIPTS ON INCREASE

About $50,000 Larger for the Seven Months

The second payments on the water rates of 1910, due before Aug. 10, have begun to come in, and the total payments to date are in excess of last year. City Auditor Fairbanks reports the water receipts to Aug. 1 as follows:

To Aug. 1, 1910	$71,292.99
To Aug. 1, 1909,	67,457.90
To Aug. 1, 1908,	67,239.94

The collection of taxes is largely in excess of the last two years as will be seen by these figures:

To Aug. 1, 1910,	$202,820.31
To Aug. 1, 1909,	155,804.95
To Aug. 1, 1908,	153,223.04

A smaller sum has been received from sewer assessments than last year, but the amount of the assessments given by year is not known:

To Aug. 1, 1910,	$8,939.13
To Aug. 1, 1909,	10,207.90
To Aug. 1, 1908,	6,744.22

The total collections from these three sources this year have been $283-052.43, compared with $233,470.75, about $50,000.00 larger.

LARGER DRY DOCK.

William L. Miller of Boston has been awarded the contract for the enlargement of the dry dock at Norfolk for $533,784. Part of the side walls and the head o fthe dock are to be removed, lengthening it from 550 to 720 feet. The enlargement will enable it to accommodate largest vessels of the navy. Work is to be completed within fourteen months but the dock will be out of commission only about four months.

REPUBLICAN CLAMBAKE.

Plans were completed Wednesday at the headquarters of the Republican state committee for a monster clambake and outing under the auspices of the Plymouth Co. Republican clubs at the Rockland house, Nantasket, Aug. 16. Senator Lodge will be the chief speaker with other addresses by Gov. Draper, Lieut.-Gov. Frothingham, Congressman Gillette and Speaker Walker.

Late one afternoon, when the lagoon was aglow with the wonderful copper hues of a Papuan sunset, some one pointed out to me a long dark streak moving swiftly across the water 200 or 300 yards away, and in the streak just the slightest speck of black. It was an alligator at last!

"Now you see why you can't go swimming in the lagoon," I was told. "They are worse than sharks. They don't show themselves and give you a chance. They just come down underneath you and pull you down, and that's all you or any one else knows about it. They don't eat you at once, only hold you under the water until you are drowned or half pulled to pieces and then store you away somewhere under a bank or in a hole till you are 'high' enough to be savory—just as you would do with a pheasant, you know. He's a knowing beggar, the alligator. The shark isn't in it with him for brains and savvy."—Wide World Magazine.

The Spider.

Of all the solitary insects I have ever seen the spider is the most sagacious, and its actions to one who has attentively considered them seem almost to excel belief. The spider is formed by nature for a state of war, not only upon other insects, but upon its fellows. For this state nature seems to have formed it with singular perfection. Its head and breast are covered with a strong natural coat of mail, which is impenetrable to the attacks of every other insect, and its lower parts are enveloped in a soft, pliant skin which eludes the sting even of a wasp. Its legs are terminated by strong claws not unlike those of a lobster, and their vast length, like spears, serves to keep every assailant at a safe distance. Not worse furnished for observation than for attack or defense, it has several eyes, large and transparent, covered with a horny substance, which, however, does not impede its vision.—Sportsman.

Good Reason For It.

He joined the church a week ago; 'twas with repentant face.
Today his heart is filled with woe; today he fell from grace.
He fell from grace, alas, alas! for bitter is the cup—
He fell from grace while trying hard to put the hammock up!

They Do Their Best to Tell.

"Half the world doesn't know how the other half lives."

"Possibly," answered Miss Caustic, "but that isn't the fault of the ladies who get together with their knitting on the piazza at our hotel."—Brooklyn Life.

TO SCULL FOR WORLD'S TITLE.

Widespread Interest Being Taken In Arnst-Barry Race.

TO ROW ON ZAMBEZI RIVER.

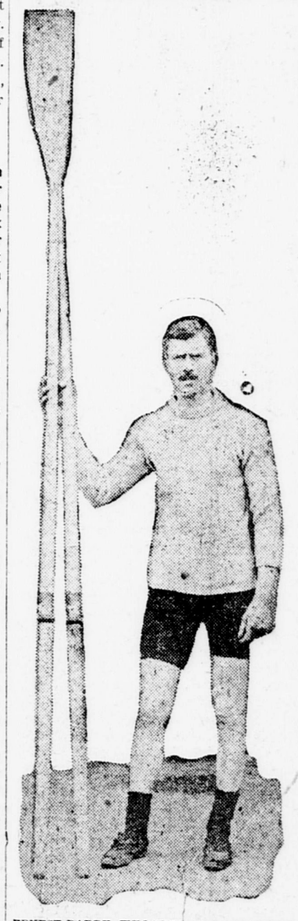

South Africa to Be Scene of Great Contest Between England's Best and the Champion Professional of the World—A $5,000 Purse at Stake.

Widespread interest is being taken in the coming match between Dick Arnst of New Zealand, the world's champion professional sculler, and Ernest Barry, holder of the English title, to be held on the Zambezi river, South Africa, Aug. 18. The purse to be rowed for is one of $5,000, subscribed by South African sportsmen, $3,750 of which, with the title of champion of the world, goes to the winner and $1,250 to the loser.

The men have been practicing hard for the event for some time and are in good shape for a hard contest. Arnst, according to all accounts, is the biggest marvel in a sculling boat ever seen. He possesses enormous muscular strength and an extraordinary chest development and has all the fine points of the art of sculling at his command. Many men who know Arnst and have seen him scull have expressed the unanimous opinion that Barry has not the ghost of a chance. However, as these men have never seen Barry scull, but have formed their opinion generally on what has appeared in print, it cannot in the present case have any value whatever.

There is also no doubt that owing to his enormous strength Arnst can propel a boat at a great pace. And, again, this is no proof that he can stay. As a cyclist it was known that he could stay all day, and he may possibly do so as a sculler, but if Barry takes him beyond his pace in the last mile he will be a beaten man. And why? Because Barry is a waterman to his finger tips. As a sculler, quite apart from any other athletic exercise, he is in a class by himself. He knows all the finesse of the game. He is as much at home in choppy water as in smooth.

He cannot only go at a great pace, but can also stay at it, although his greatest pace may perhaps not be quite so fast as Arnst's. All the experts who have seen Barry at work agree that he is the best sculler seen on the Thames since Hanlon's palmy days. He holds the record for a full championship course and also for every part of that course. In bad water it is an eye opener and a treat to see the manner in which he coaxes his boat over it.

Since entering upon his training Barry has not been engaged in any contest, but Arnst in the early part of the year easily defeated Welch in a world's championship encounter and also competed in a $500 handicap at Sydney. On the voyage Barry kept his muscles in trim by exercising on a sculling machine, skipping, etc.

The race is to be decided over a three and one-half mile course and is creating enormous interest in South Africa generally and in Rhodesia locally. Lose or win, Arnst has promised Barry a return match on the Thames as soon as it can be arranged.

PILGRIM MONUMENT DEDICATED TODAY

President Taft Gov. Draper and Others Make Addresses

A Great Day for Provncetown And all of Cape Cod

PRESIDENT TAFT.

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 5.—With several great ships of war and hundreds of smaller craft filling the spacious harbor, with thousands of gaily dressed naval officers and visitors thronging the streets, Provincetown is celebrating its greatest day in connection with the dedication of the Pilgrim monument.

A unique feature is the scene presented along Commercial street, the main thoroughfare of the town. Every building is fairly weighted down with bunting and flags, covering every inch of space, even lapping over on the roofs. The street wears the appearance of Mardi Gras time. Hundreds of fakirs, peanut and souvenir venders, ice cream cone men and postcard men line the street on both sides.

The total number of warships in attendance is twenty-one. There are now sixteen battleships in the heart-shaped harbor, with dispatch boats, colliers and supply ships. The fleet will remain until next Monday.

A committee consisting of the president of the Pilgrim Memorial association, the governor of Massachusetts and the chairman of the selectmen of Provincetown met President Taft as he landed at the dock at 10:45 this morning. There was a procession from the dock to the place of the ceremony on Town hill.

Dedication Program

Prayer by Rev. James De Normandie of Boston.

Music, the "Hymn of the Pilgrims," by the Harvard Quartet. Words by D. D. Griffen and music by Lester M Bartlett.

Address by President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard university.

Music by the Salem Cadet band.

Transfer of the Pilgrim monument from the building commission to the Cape Cod Pilgrims' Memorial association by Senator Lodge.

Address in reply to Lodge and in behalf of the Memorial association by William B. Lawrence of Medford.

Music, "The Landing of the Pilgrims," by the Harvard Quartet. The words are by Mrs. Felicia Hemens.

Address by former Congressman McCleary of Minnesota.

GOV. DRAPER.

Address by Governor Draper, introducing President Taft.

Dedicatory address by the President of the United States.

Address by Henry H. Batan of Hyannis.

Music by the Salem Cadet band.

A banquet will be held at the Town hall this afternoon at which time speeches will be made by President Taft, Governor Draper and others.

Tallest Solid Tower on Coast

SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE.

and the tallest of solid construction on the Atlantic coast—there are some skeleton wireless towers taller—the monument is a colossal structure.

The monument's weight increased through the projection from the seamlines of the rough-faced granite used, and the fact that the tower is two feet taller than planned—it is probable that the total weight of the monument with all its appurtenances will be about 14,500,000 pounds, or 7250 tons.

This great weight rests upon a hill

GRANITE CITY CLUB OUTING

Automobiles Take Large Party To Nantasket

An enjoyable outing of the Granite City club was held Thursday evening at Nantasket. Some thirty-five of the club members participated, the trip being made in automobiles owned by club members. Seven large cars were used the party leaving City Square about 7.30. From Quincy the party went direct to the Pequot Inn, where a private dining room and orchestra had been reserved for them.

The choice of one of four course dinners was afforded, as well as on a lacarte menu to select from just as each individual taste desired. The dinners served were excellent, and the service of the best. During the dinner the orchestra furnished continuous music, and there were several vocal solos by members of the orchestra. Some of the club members also contributed solos.

President Tilden, Vice President Sheppard and Mayor Shea occupied seats at the head table. There was no speeach-making, however, aside from the President who rapping for order at the commencement said: "Gentlemen of the Granite City club please be seated and get busy." It was an order that all obeyed with a murmur of approval.

After the dinner the automobiles were taken for a trip to Allerton and return. The evening was warm and the automobile ride was greatly enjoyed. The party arrived back in City Square at a seasonable hour with the general wish that the outing should be repeated before the season was over.

NOW AT HOSPITAL.

It now seems that the man injured on the street railway at Houghs Neck on Wednesday evening gave the wrong name to the police. His right name is Thomas Barrett, and he boards with Mrs. Fred Jones of Edison Park. Mr. Barrett was not born deaf and dumb, as reported, but is deaf and also near sighted. He was not with any one at the time and did not know the man who happened to cross the street at that time, but was returning from a visit on Bell street, Houghs Neck. On the night of the accident he was taken to his boarding place, but Thursday morning he was moved to the City Hospital. He is a brother of Mrs. James Dunnock of Edison Park, 29 years of age, and is not a drinking man.

RECKLESS DRIVING.

John Donovan, the chauffeur who smashed a stolen car on Washington street the morning of July 12 while running at a high speed, was given a hearing in the district court Thursday. On a complaint for reckless driving, the court found probable cause to believe him guilty and held him for the grand jury. The finding in the case, however, was suspended until Aug. 16 to enable Donovan to secure bonds.

FOURTH OF JULY BALANCE.

The committee having in charge the Fourth of July celebration are to be congratulated upon having been able to raise the necessary funds to meet all obligations incurred by the celebration, and having a balance left. While no final report has been officially made, it is understood that after all bills had been paid there was a balance of $35. The fife and drum corps, which paraded had received nothing for their services, as they had turned out with the understanding they should charge nothing if the committee ran short. It is proposed now to give them $25 of the cash on hand, which will leave a balance to meet any forgotten obligation that may come in.

HAS ESCAPED IN DISGUSE

This Belief Grows Among Member of Local Police Department

See on Adams Street By Woman Who knew Him

It is unfortunate that the report has gone forth that Restelli, the murderer is an Italian, for people are looking for rough characters. Restelli would not be taken for an Italian, and if he is out of Quincy he is not skulking about in the woods but walking the main streets of cities and towns. It is there that he will be found or inside of some house not in the woods. The difficulty is in recognizing, especially if he is somewhat disguised.

But little new has developed in the Restelli case. Inspector McKay and Officer Thorne visited the quarries off Carroll's lane again Thursday afternoon and searched about in hopes of finding something that would give them a clew to the missing man. The only thing that developed was the finding of a woman, Mrs. Ellen Trewman of 92 Common street, whose story seems to bear out the theory of Inspector McKay that Restelli made a change of clothing on the afternoon of the shooting.

Mrs. Trewman says that on the afternoon of the shooting just about as the whistles blew at the Hardwick quarry she saw a man come running down a pathway leading from the commons and dive into the bushes. This man was undoubtedly Restelli. Mrs. Trewman says that the man had on khaki trousers and she thinks that he had on a khaki blouse. He did not have on any hat and his hair was flying.

Now Restelli has a bald head, yet the police believe that the man Mrs. Trewman saw running was Restelli and that he had on a wig to help disguise himself. It would have been but a matter of a few seconds for him to run from the Hardwick quarry to Carroll's lane, where he may have had clothing secreted, and to have drawn a khaki suit over that he wore when he was last seen.

One other piece of evidence has developed that seems to bear out the false wig theory. On the afternoon that he was driving at a reckless speed toward the Hardwick quarry he passed Richard Colbert, a member of the fire department. Colbert is very well acquainted with Restelli, and he says that his attention was attracted to him by his rapid driving and that he thought the horse was running away.

Colbert says that at that time Restelli did not have on any hat, but that his hair was flying up straight he was going so fast. As noted above, Restelli has a bald head yet here are two persons who saw and knew him, that fatal afternoon who declare that his hair was flying. If this is true and there is no reason to believe other-

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is a disgrace to American citizenship and a blot on Boston's fair name when a gang of hoodlums can break up a municipal band concert as was the case at Roxbury Wednesday night. Fully 3000 men, women and children were deprived of an evening's pleasure because of egg throwing. Rather than stand the rapid fire of the overripe eggs the musicians refused to play and after the third number they quit the bandstand. There were 22 policemen on duty, but it was like finding the proverbial needle in the haystack to locate the miscreants in the crowd.

There are many people in Quincy who hold to the belief that Restelli will return to Quincy after the present excitement quiets down somewhat, and that he will go gunning for those whom he did not get last Friday. For this reason many people are going about armed. Under the law no man has a right to carry a revolver without a permit. There are hundreds, however, who have not given the matter of a permit a thought. Some have, however, and Mayor Shea has been flooded with letters asking for permits to carry a gun. The promiscuous carrying of revolvers is a dangerous practice and should be checked as far as possible. Many persons possessing a nervous temperament are very apt to get excited and bang away. At Braintree, during the man hunt on Tuesday, there is not much doubt but if the poor old tramp had been seen at a distance by the excited crowd of citizens that were in the chase, that some rattled brained man or boy would have fired at him, not only killing an innocent man, but sending bullets flying through the air that might find a mark in some one of the crowd of hunters that were working in another section. Be careful.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The New England Grocer truly says that "It is bad business today for a business man, or indeed an ordinary individual, to pay bills in cash. When payment by check is so universal as it is, the payment of bills, either business or domestic, in cash is antiquated and it is far from safe." It is better than the keeping of a memorandum of purchases, for the check is a receipt as well as a safeguard from losses. The banks encourage small accounts for the amount of the small deposits by a large number of depositors is considerable. The man who carries his money about with him occasionally spends a portion of it for something he would not have bought were he obliged to write a check for it, and write the article on the fly leaf of his check book. A check book is a great convenience, and also an incentive to economy.—Lynn Item.

Thoughtful observers will devote grave consideration to the condition of the national banks as made public last Friday. The increase of nearly $400,000,000 in loans, in spite of reduction in New York and other centres, accompanied by reduced reserves, is a cause for anxiety. There is no question that an effoort has been made to reduce this immense loan account, and of course the loans called were those most easily liquidated. The condition of inflation disclosed is glaring, and if this is the state of the national banks, what may we expect from the state banks and trust companies? Here is another argument for caution and conservatism if anything more were needed than has already been adduced.—Wall Street Journal.

Make the best of what you have. Do your best to get more, of course. But utilize to the full what you have. In these times of high prices make what you buy of the grocer, the huckster, the butcher and the milk man go as far as possible in bodily nutrition. Learnhow to make appetizing and nourishing dishes without excessive outlay. Save the pieces. "Gather up the fragments that nothing be lost."

Make the spare hours count in healthful recreation or study, or in sweetening the domestic or social life. Many of our people cannot get the regulation two weeks' vacation. Let these get as much rest as possible in the grateful shade of some tree or grape arbor. The sizable back yard may be treated so as to be of family advantage in many ways. A small space properly cared for will yield something refreshing for the table, and there will be recreation in its cultivation. The street cars afford multitudinious opportunities. Our playground facilities are increasing our summer schools are meant to be vacation schools to help the home as well as the child in school. Use what you have in aid of a healthful, wholesome life.—Fall River News.

THE COURTEOUS EMPLOYEE.

By James C. Dunn.

Beloved by all who smile and laugh,
He helps you on and helps you off,
Courteous to all, girls and boys,
The ladies refrain, "Conductor Myers."

A school girl rushing for his train,
It moves, alas, she runs in vain,
He signaled, stop, and helped her on
A lady said, "God bless that man."

He's diplomatic of the train
The girl was never late again,
Such loving souls, the heart desires
For young and old, praise Harry Myers.

He's of the grand and noble few
Who lift the babes, help mothers too
Get off and on, he never tires,
This loving soul, Conductor Myers.

GOVERNMENT MAY BUILD BOTH.

A Washington dispatch says: one of two Dreadnoughts authorized by the last Congress will be built in the New York Navy Yard. Beekman Winthrop, acting secretary of the Navy, has issued the necessary order. It is possible that the other ship may be built by the government. There is nothing in the law to prevent it. It is specified merely that at least one of the two shall be built in a government yard. The new ships will be of 27,000 tons displacement and will be larger than the Wyoming or Arkansas, now building. The general specification have already been agreed upon, and department officials are engaged on the details. On Oct.- 10 the department will receive bids for two colliers for war fleets to cost not more than $1,000,000 each.

A cable from Buenos Ayres to the Boston Advertiser reports that Rear Admiral Betbeder, minister of marine, has resigned.

GOOD NATURED IDIOTS.

A special to the Boston Journal from Atlantic City says: At a manufacturers' banquet here Thursday evening Congressman Fassett of New York made a plea for the revival of the American merchants marine.

"Like great good natured idiots," said he, "we are today paying $210,000,000 a year for the transportation of our goods and our passengers and only $21,000,000 of this goes to ships carrying the American flag. We are supporting such magnificent ships as the Lusitania and Mauretania by our patronage, depriving us of trade in time of peace and to be used to destroy us in itmes of war.

"We are to spend $500,000,000 of good American dollars for the Panama canal, and yet today we have not a single ship to send through it. We expend $35,000,000 a year on harbors and many millions for forty-foot channels, and we haven't a single American ship requiring a forty-foot channel. Isn't it time now before it is too late to spend some money for our own benefit and for the safety and prosperity of our own country and our own children?"

Snuff and a Crook.

Robert Pinkerton once told a story of his father, the founder of the detective agency, which illustrates the elder Pinkerton's caution. A noted criminal was detained in Pinkerton's Chicago office. The elder Pinkerton left the room and when he returned took the precaution of holding a revolver in front of him ready for use.

He saw the criminal standing by the door with a snuffbox he had picked up from Pinkerton's desk in his hand.

"For the eyes or the nose?" asked Pinkerton, who knew that the crook had intended to blind him in an effort to escape.

"Well," remarked the criminal, "I'm sorry to say that the nose gets it this time."

JAMES S. SHERMAN

Vice President Denies Charges Made by Gore

GORE SPRINGS A SENSATION

INVOLVES VICE PRESIDENT

Names Sherman as "Man Higher Up" In Connection With Bribe of $25,000 Which He Says Was Offered Him In Connection With Indian Land Contracts—Hamon, Curtis and McGuire Also Concerned

Muskogee, Okla., Aug. 5.—The investigation of what is known as the McMurray Indian land contracts was begun here by a special committee of the house of representatives. At the outset James S. Sherman, vice president of the United States, was named by Senator T. P. Gore as "the man higher up" in connection with a $25,000 bribe offer Gore said was made to him.

Senator Gore testified that he was told by Jacob Hamon, former national committeeman from Oklahoma, that he would be given the $25,000 if he would promote the $30,000,000 Indian land deal. When he frowned upon the bribe offer, he said, Hamon declared the amount might be raised to $50,000.

"Hamon said that Senator Curtis of Kansas and Representative McGuire of Oklahoma also were interested in the deal," Gore declared, "and while I am about it I might as well tell that he said a official higher up in the government also was interested in the deal."

Senator Gore then named Sherman as the official referred to. Gove further said:

"Jake Hamon of Lawton, Okla., came to my office on May 6. He said he had been on the east side of the state and had telegraphed to Washington: 'I am interested in the McMurray contract. There is a big fee, these contracts, enough for two.'

"He said: 'If you will tell Senator Hughes not to report bill No. 8093, providing that the Five Tribes' contracts be not approved without the approval of congress, (which the senator had earlier testified he had introduced, because he was interested in the welfare of the Indians) there will be $25,000 in it for you'.

"I told him that the bill had been reported and he asked me if it could be recalled. I told him I had it in charge. He urged that the Indians were interested and finally said:

"'I think if I go and lay it down before Mac (referring to J. F. McMurray, an attorney), he will make it $50,000.'

"Then he urged that the fees be changed from 7½ percent on part and raised on others, so that the public might think the price had been lowered. He then said there was a congressman interested in the contracts; also that a senator was interested in them, mentioning Senator Curtis of Kansas and Bird S. McGuire of Oklahoma. He said a syndicate was interested, representated by Dick Adams. He said there was another high official interested in these contracts. He said if I would quit my fight all other members of the Oklahoma delegation would quit."

Says Statement Is False

Big Moose, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Vice President James S. Sherman issued the following statement last night concerning the statement made by Senator Gore at Muskogee:

"The story that comes to me about the charges made by Senator Gore at Muskogee today is absolutely without the slightest shadow of foundation."

NOT KILLED IN FIT OF ANGER

Neither Was Robbery Motive In Crippen Case

NEW THEORY IS PRESENTED

Belle Elmore Now Believed to Have Been Victim of Illegal Operation—Rumor Credits Husband With Saying That Attempt to Conceal Body Was a Mistake—First Wife Said to Have Died After Operation

London, Aug. 5.—"Dr. Crippen has not confessed." That is the statement made by Sperintendent Froest of Scotland Yard and by Solicitor Newton, the lawyer who will conduct the defense.

"Had the prisoner incriminated himself," said Froest, "Inspector Dew would have informed us by cable."

"My client," declared the lawyer, "has nothing to confess. Furthermore, I know he has made no statement regarding his predicament."

The authorities refuse to discuss the latest development of the case—the declaration that Crippen did not kill his wife, as has been supposed, in a fit of rage or for her jewels, but performed an illegal operation, and when it ended in death did his best to dispose of the body.

The police have in their possession a surgical instrument which was used in this operation, according to statements which Scotland Yard has not denied. This, it is said, will be one of the most important factors in the trial.

"My client is entirely innocent of the charge against him," said Newton, when interviewed on this side of the question. "I am not going into other phases of the affair. My work on the case has barely begun."

The most persistent report of an admission of guilt made by Crippen says that he has told Inspector Dew that Belle Elmore died under the knife. The story is told with much circumstantiality, even stating that three other officers heard Crippen's statement when he made it on Monday. His story, the report continues, contained besides the admission of having killed the woman, a statement calling the attempt to conceal the fact a mistake, though meant for the best. Crippen in the alleged statement cleared Etnel Leneve of complicity.

In connection with this theory, which is more widely accepted than any other that has been advanced since the crime was discovered, the stories of the death of the first Mrs. Crippen, who died in Salt Lake, Utah, eighteen years ago, have been revived. According to statements made when Dr. Crippen's flight was discovered, the first wife died after an operation similar to that now supposed to have killed Belle Elmore had been performed.

UNCLE JOE JUST A BOY

For That Reason He Will Not Talk Politics While on Vacation

Mackinac Island, Mich., Aug. 5.—"I know nothing of the primary elections in Kansas except that which I saw in the papers, as I am on my vacation trying to be a boy and throw double somersaults, which is not hard if you know how," said Speaker Cannon when repeatedly urged to express his opinion upon the insurgent victory in the primary elections in Kansas.

"You can easily prove by any of the metropolitan papers," Cannon continued, "that I am in my second childhood, so that I ought to be allowed to do anything now that I could do in my tender years. I shall probably not say anything in regard to the elections. It is a case of had you aunt been your uncle what would have happened. If Stubbs has been nominated, he probably will be the candidate.

"I am up here to have a good time and for that only and would prefer to let politics alone; I just want to be a boy."

"BENEFACTOR OF HUMANITY"

Gold Medal For Carnegie as Joint Gift of American Republics

Washington, Aug. 5.—Andrew Carnegie was voted a gold medal by the Pan-American congress, now in session in Buenos Ayres, according to a dispatch received by John Barrett, director of the international bureau of American republics.

The medal was awarded because of Carnegie's prominence as a "benefactor of humanity," and it will be the joint gift of all the republics of the western hemisphere.

ALDEN KINDRED OF AMERICA.

This association held its tenth anual reunion at the John Alden homestead, Duxbury, Wednesday. A special train carried members and friends, returning at night. The exercises commenced with a selection by Simmons' orchestra followed by prayer by Rev. E. Newton Bates of Austinberg, Ohio, secretary and treasurer of the "Bates Association;" and an address of welcome by President George W. Alden of Brockton. The principal address of the day was by Rev. A. M. Hyde, D. D., pastor of the Porter Congregational church of Brockton, on "The New New-Englander," which deserved and received the highest praise. By request, Mr. Frank A. Bates, president of the "Bates Association" in behalf of the donor, Mr. Joseph C. Norton of Lynn, presented the "Kindred" with a framed copy of the "deed from John Alden to his son Joseph who built the homestead, conveying the property on which the house stands." Mr. Norton is a descendant of the Aldens. Mr. Bates also read a poem, "Priscilla and ohn," written by Miss E. A. Bates of South Braintree. A tribute was paid those who have died since the last reunion, among whom was Horatio Bingley French of Quincy, formerly of Braintree.

The officers elected for the coming year were: Vernon A. Field of Chelsea, president; A. E. Alden of Boston, vice president; Flora S. Mathewson of South Braintree, secretary; Charles L. Alden of Hyde Park, treasurer.

There was a large number present from all directions and distances, two ladies, the Misses Goodinough, coming from Johannesburg, South Africa. The oldest present were Mr. J. E. Hayward of East Braintree, 88 years and Mrs. Mary J. Rogers of Merchantville, N. J., 83. The youngest was Doris Brewster Edwards of Duxbury, who came in her baby carriage.

Those present from Braintree were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Snow, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Bates, Mrs. Richard M. Sanborn, Miss Clara Reed, Miss Mary C. Thayer, Mrs. Flora S. Mathewson and J. E. Hayward.

Among the Quincy people attending were: Mrs. Frank Alden, David Alden Edith Alden, Bertha Alden, John Alden, Cassadina A. Thayer, Mrs. Charles L. Badger and Rachel Alden Monroe.

CITY OF QUINCY — POLICE DEPARTMENT

$500 REWARD
DEAD OR ALIVE

LOUIS G. RESTELLI
WANTED FOR MURDER

Charles H. Hardwick of Quincy, Mass., in behalf of the family of the late Henry E. Hardwick, authorizes the Chief of Police of the City of Quincy, Mass., to offer the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the capture of Louis G. Restelli, dead or alive, for the murder of Henry E. Hardwick and the attempt to murder C. Theodore Hardwick, on Friday, July 29, 1910, at Quincy, Mass. On the same day Restelli shot and killed his mother, Marianna Restelli, and shot his brother Gaspare Restelli, William Adrian and Benjamin Bishop, all of Quincy and connected with the granite industry of this city. The above reward to be paid unless Restelli has committed suicide when the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) will be paid for the recovery of his dead body. If he commits suicide in order to evade capture of direct pursuit the full sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) will be paid.

Full Description of Louis C. Restelli

Height 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches.
Weight 150 lbs.
Dark complexion, smooth face, but grows a small black mustache quickly.
Brown eyes, the right eye smaller than the left and showing a defect caused by a cataract and making the use of glasses practically compulsory.
He generally wears a pair of gold-bowed spectacles with a very heavy lense, though he will probably endeavor to get along without them.
He is a Lombardian and talks the English language so well that there is no Italian accent noticeable.
Has been in the granite business for years and is well known in the business, being a member of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association.
Was a member of K Co., of Fifth Massachusetts regiment, in the Spanish War.
Age 39 years.

PRIZE DANCERS.

The Brockton Enterprise says: "Trilby" Cassidy of South Boston made good Wednesday night and accompanied by a loyal crowd of rooters came out to accept the challenge of Jack Hausenberger, the dancing pride of Quincy, and before a crowd of nearly 500 in Canton hall, went through the paces of the trick two-step and "society waltz." Cassidy's partner was Miss Pauline Stone of South Boston. Miss Gertrude Bradley of Quincy was Hausenberger's partner.

Cassidy selected as his judge, Michael Lee of South Boston and John Murphy of Dorchester was chosen by Hausenberger. Fred Thomas of Bridgewater was the choice of Prof. B. F. Gale, who was conducting the party, to act as referee. After the two step, Mr. Thomas requested the dancers to change partners, and to go through the waltz, in order that a decision might be reached, but even then they could not decide and the two will meet again next Wednesday night.

URGED TO ATTEND.

There is some doubt about President Taft attending the waterways convention. A dispatch from Provincetown says: Although there is little hope now that President Taft will change his mind and attend the waterways convention here, the last of this month, Colonel George H. Webb, director of the convention, sent a letter to the President Tuesday outlining additional reasons why his presence at the meeting is needed. Colonel Webb has communicated with Congressman J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, president o fthe Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, and efforts will probably be made from that quarter to have the President come.

MECHANICAL WONDERS.

It is confidently asserted by the management that the Mechanics' Exposition of 1910, to be held the entire month of October in the Mechanics Building on Huntington avenue, Boston, will be the greatest ever held in Boston. Mechanics Building, as is well known, is the largest permanent exposition building in America and the present indications are that it will be "jammed to the doors" with exhibits of all kinds, over eighty per cent of them to be of the practical working sort in full operation from ten o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock at night.

One of the most interesting and instructive of them will be that made by Thomas A. Edison who has appropriated $10,000 to properly and artistically install his display. It will occupy all of the big stage in Grand Hall all of the adjoining space on the floor in the immediate vicinity and all of the large rooms in the rear of the stage. An almost countless number of the fruits of the genius of this wizard of the scientific world will be most attractively shown.

This Edison exhibit is only one of two hundred to be seen in this great Mechanics Exposition in October, a season of the year most propitious for excursions to Boston from all over New England and Canada. Thousands will surely attend every day to listen to the music, to see attractions and entertainments and study and enjoy the wonderful things to be seen on every hand. A most pleasing feature and one most satisfactory to the ladies will be the daily distribution of souvenirs.

MILTON

In connection with the dredging of the Neponset river, Milton is to have a fine harbor which will be adapted to the reception of heavy tonnage boats as well as small pleasure craft. These latter which are numerous about Milton will no doubt be the most prominent in the use of the harbor.

The finances of the town of Milton are in especially good condition in the opinion of the Selectmen. The only appropriation which has suffered is the miscellaneous appropriation. Of course numerous small special amounts were expended at one time, but on the whole expenditures have fallen well within bounds.

Robert J. Clark of Sheldon street has gone on a business trip to Bath, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse B. Baxter of Adams street are at South Stoddard, N. H.,

Walter D. Gordon of Canton avenue, who was severely injured by a fall from an auto, has recovered and is about once more.

While blasting on Adams street for street improvements a huge fragment of stone narrowly escaped striking a woman passerby.

Appius Claudius.

Appius Claudius, surnamed Caecus (the blind), was a Roman statesman who lived during the third century before the Christian era. He was a Roman censor, 312 to 308, and consul, 307 to 296. He commenced the Appian way and completed the Appian aqueduct. From his Roman jurisprudence, oratory, grammar and Latin prose date their beginning. He abolished the limitation of the full right of citizenship to landed proprietors. In his old age he is said to have become blind, whence his cognomen "Caecus." He was the author of works in both prose and verse, of which almost nothing is known.

PILGRIM MONUMENT

Its site on Town hill is ninety feet above mean low tide, and on a level with the roof of Provincetown town hall, on the spot where stood for many years the old town house. It is a small, round-headed hill, with a steep bank, covered with a rough tangle of wild plums and other hardy shrubs, on the town side. On the other side, to the north and west, it slopes off more gradually to a region of sandy hillocks and wild little valleys, sparsely clothed in green.

When the engineers of the government viewed this site the question presented to them was how best to anchor a tower 250 feet tall of more than 14,000,000 pounds of masonry, on this hill of sand.

simple. No deep borings were made for concrete piers. A square excavation was made to a depth of ten feet; on a level floor of pure, hard sand a layer of wet concrete was placed to the depth of three feet. This was the first layer of the monument's foundation.

Above this were placed six different layers of steel rods, each rod an inch square. These crossed each other at right angles. At the corner, rods were placed diagonally, five inches apart, binding the corners tightly to the centre. Each layer of rods was bedded in concrete, and each was keyed to the layer below. Hundreds of the rods and 1600 tons of concrete were made by this means to form an immense block as solid as a great stone.

It was fifty feet square at the bottom, diminishing like a pyramid to twenty-eight feet square at the top, ten feet above. This top was level, and on it the tower was erected, the base of the tower being twenty-seven feet square, leaving a space of six inches of the foundation outside its base line.

From the bottom of the mass of the foundation there came to the surface and above it numerous rods of steel that were to serve as the anchors to the tower. Around these the masonry of the tower proper was built, the rods being bedded in concrete between the outer and inner faces of stones as the work progressed.

Before the top of these rods had been passed another set were introduced, overlapping the lower rods. In this way the steel ties, anchoring the tower to its foundation, extend to the very top of the monument. In the lower courses there are four rods to a side or face of the monument, and above that three, their combined sectional area being about sixteen square inches.

The binding power of this reinforcement may be judged from the fact that there is no perceptible swaying or vibration to the monument, even in the highest winds.

The engineers believe that the monument will never vibrate or lean a fraction of an inch from the perpendicular on account of the method employed in anchoring it and laying its reinforced foundation.

Finest In the Country

Built in the best manner, under government observation and restrictions, the tower is perhaps the finest specimen of monumental work in America. Its cost, considering the high grade of work and the character of the site, has been moderate, totalling about $90,000. Of this sum the national government contributed $40,000, the commonwealth of Massachusetts $40,000 and the Pilgrim Monument association the remainder.

The design was provided by the association. It is a copy, with certain necessary modifications, of the town hall tower in Sienna, Italy, which was built in 1309.

This design was decided on after competitive designs were declared not to have met the requirements of the association. A conspicuous day mark that could be seen far to sea was wanted, and an obelisk form, like Bunker Hill monument, was thought to be unsuited to the purpose.

The Sienna design was therefore prepared as the best available, though the committee was not unconscious of its general inappropriateness. The architect was William T. Sears.

A Love Story

The Teller Brings About a Real Ending Herself.

By F. A. MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I am an old maid. I have never had a love affair and never expect to have one. Perhaps this is why I take an interest in the loves of other people. Nothing is so attractive to me as to watch a young couple drifting into that current which at first moves so imperceptibly that they are not aware they are in it. Indeed, so unconscious are they of being incipient lovers that it does not occur to them to conceal the fact from any one else.

I remember one day sitting at my window sewing when a boy and a girl passed on the other side of the road. The boy's straw hat was dingy, and there was plenty of ventilation in its crown. His only other clothing was a shirt and trousers. No shoes or stockings, nothing around his throat, his collar being open and displaying the tanned skin. The girl's clothing was neither better nor worse, and there was about as much of it.

The two were evidently absorbed in each other. What they were talking about I was too far from them to hear, but it was of vital importance. It may be that the boy had been "kept in" after school and they were indignant over time thus lost to play. It may be that some urchin had smashed the china head of the girl's doll. Whatever it was it was being discussed with animation.

And I maintain that these childish interests are of more real importance for the time being than those which come later. No addition to an adult's stock of wealth gives the same test as a new toy to one of these little people.

Often afterward I saw these two, and always together. In this they were different from other children who play, boys with boys and girls with girls. I learned that they were Henry Morse and Lila Bunker, a farmer's boy and farmer's girl. Indeed, we were all farmer folk, all knew one another, everybody being interested in some degree at least in every one else; a simple community and more than usually free from the petty jealousies common to mankind.

Henry Morse's father was determined that his son should have a good education, and the boy was sent away to school. After this I used to see Lila going by our house, but no companion supplied Henry's place. She was always alone, and I fancied her thinking of her other self. But this was simply fancy on my part. As I have said in the beginning, not having had any love affairs of my own, I conjure up love affairs for others. In this case of Henry and Lila I knew nothing of what was passing between them except from observation, so I may be excused for filling in occasionally that the story may not seem too disconnected. At the last I was present and shall not have to draw on my imagination.

When Henry came back from school there was a more modish appearance to his clothes and on his manners. Poor Lila, who had remained on the farm, had only an unadorned beauty, freshened by pure air and sunshine. They were now about sixteen years old, though Henry was half a head taller, and I could not see that their interest in each other had waned, though the childish unconsciousness that they were of different sex had disappeared. I used to see them go by the house together as formerly, but the prattle of childhood had given place to the more sober conversation of youth. I often wished I could hear what they were saying to each other.

Henry did so well at school that his father decided to send him to college. I wondered what effect his four years' association with young men and women of the world would have on my pet love affair. I feared that Henry, having become used to the polished girls he would meet, would return to see in Lila a country girl lacking the airs and graces of her sisters of the city. Would this alienate him? It was to be expected that it would. And though country born and bred myself, I don't know that those of us who go to the city and acquire city ways are to be blamed when we return and yield to dissatisfaction at country ways.

Henry remained away a year at college before he came back to the farm. Then one July morning, when sitting at my window darning socks, I looked up, and there on the opposite side of the road were the couple I had first noticed eight or nine years ago as children. Though Henry was plainly dressed, his clothes were not country clothes. It seemed to me that he might pass anywhere as a city bred young man. And Lila—how my heart went out to the poor child in her effort to dress in a fashion more in keeping with the apparel of those girls to whom Henry had been accustomed! It was all inference with me, but it was plain to see that she had prepared herself against his return to modify the difference between her and their habiliments.

I wondered if he noticed this and if it pleased or displeased him. Surely her effort was not very successful. In the country one may get city fashions, but it is not every worker who can make them up. But in the few moments they were passing it was impossible for me to tell if there had been any change in Henry's feelings for Lila. So I pieced out the story in this wise: Henry was beginning to see the difference between her and the girls he had met. I mean by "her" her clothes—a certain deficiency in what city people call chic. I am not referring to Lila as a soul, not even as a body, for in bodily beauty she would doubtless far surpass many a city girl. Well, what do I refer to? Why, clothes and manner; that's all.

After this Henry seldom came home during vacations. I heard that he usually went camping with his fellow students. At any rate, I lost track of my lovers. I was reluctantly obliged to consider my story, if not finished, at least passing through a stage of interruption. Henry had become interested in a career which would have nothing to do with farms or farmer people. When he was graduated I learned that he was intending to study medicine. But before he entered a medical college his father, who spared no expense on his education, sent him abroad. When I heard of all these matters, which were taking him farther and farther away from provincialism and his provincial sweetheart, I groaned in spirit, for I saw that my love story was likely to end in nothing.

It was some time before Henry was to leave the medical college that I heard bad news of Lila. They said she had some trouble that was dragging her down, but the doctors could not discover what it was. They could not diagnose it—that is what they called it. Her father sent to the city and brought a doctor to the farm especially to see if he couldn't tell what was the matter with her. The doctor said he couldn't find any organic trouble, whatever that means, and the only remedy he thought might benefit her was change of scene. He advised her father to take her on a trip. But Farmer Bunker couldn't afford to do that, and Lila didn't care to go.

I considered this merely a part of my love story. It was plain to me that Henry Morse had drifted away from the little girl I had seen him going by our house with when they were children, and the parting was killing her.

They say story writers often fall in love with their imaginary characters. Therefore it's not strange that a story creator like myself should fall in love with a real person of flesh and blood. I had always known the Bunkers, so I went to see Lila. That was in the spring—May, I think. I found her sitting in an easy chair at her window, pale, languid and without interest in anything. It may be that she devined by my bearing toward her that I knew what was the matter with her. At any rate, when I went up to her, took her hand and drew her head down on my shoulder she left it there and seemed to get relief from the tears that came.

While she was weeping on my shoulder I was thinking. Not having any lover to bring back for myself, I wished I could bring back one for this poor girl. And I formed a plan.

But it was some time before I carried it out, not till summer came. Then I told Lila's parents that I thought it would do her good to come and make me a visit. Since Lila said she would like to do so, they consented, and within a few days she was in my room, the room from which I had first seen her go by with her child lover. I said nothing about Henry Morse either as boy or man any more than if he didn't exist. But when I put Lila in an easy chair at the very window from which I used to watch her and him and thought of her as she was then and saw her as she was now I made up my mind that if I was going to make a good, real story of her case I couldn't rely on things to happen themselves. I'd have to bring them about myself.

I was thinking, too, that my love story had been going on long enough and it was time it was brought to a close. Besides Lila was so weak that I feared in her condition she'd contract some real disease. So I wrote Dr. Henry Morse, who had just been admitted to practice, that I had a patient in my family who was dying of some disease that none of our country doctors could tell anything about and I would pay him whatever he asked if he would make a flying trip and diagnose—I spelled it diagknous—the case.

He wrote back that he remembered me very well and would run down in a few days.

Of course I didn't let on to Lila what I had done. She, poor child, wasn't dreaming what an influence my seeing her go by my window so many years before would have on her life. I hoped Henry would come as soon as possible, for she was drooping more and more every day.

Well, one morning he came. He said he had answered my call after his arrival even before going home. I was glad of this, for I was fearful he'd hear something that might interfere with my plan. I just led him upstairs, opened the door, and he went in and I closed it behind him.

I reckon he didn't make as long a call as that on a patient for a good many years. I don't know what happened between them—didn't see the surprise of either of them. All I know is that when he came out two or three hours after he went in he looked at me as though he was going to say something, but pressed my hand instead. Then I went in to Lila. She had the happiest smile on her face I ever saw. She put her arms around my neck and cried and laughed. And that's the end of the story.

Masters Vivian and Elliott McCarthy of Old Colony avenue Wollaston have returned from a six weeks' visit at Newton Cross, Prince Edward Island.

Luther Glover of Elm street, who has had an enforced vacation for three months returned to his duties on Monday. Mrs. Glover is now reported ill at Marshfield.

Louis G. Restelli was not a member of the local camp of the United Spanish War Veterans as stated in the circular offering a reward for his capture.

The Massachusetts Fifth Infantry will go into camp at South Framingham on Saturday morning. Maj. Frederick E. Jones of this city has been detailed as surgeon. Co. K of Hingham is in this regiment.

There was a good attendance of members and ladies at the whist night of the Quincy Yacht club Thursday evening. After two hours of whist their was an hour of dancing. The whist and dancing parties held during the season are proving very popular.

The tablet that is to commemorate the starting of the minute men from Whitman in '61 has been completed, but was shipped to Quincy, Ill., instead of to Quincy, Mass., to be rounded up. The delay will be but a few weeks at the most, and then the arrangements for the dedication will be completed.—Enterprise.

THE PERKINS SPEEDY.

The torpedo boat destroyer Perkins, which was launched at the Fore River April 9 this year, went out Wednesday for a builders limbering up spin. While no attempt was made to get any record spin she developed a speed of 31.3 knots. The trial was one of a uumber that will be held mainly to get her machinery bearings working well before her official government trials.

NEW PLATES.

The Navy Department has decided that the defective armor furnished by a steel company for the battleship North Dakota must be replaced by the contractor, but that the Government shall remove the old armor and put on the new. The decision also affects other ships over which similar question had been raised.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

"L" WRECK A MYSTERY

Only Man Who Could Have Shed Light on It Is Dead

Boston, Aug. 5.—With the bent and twisted steel girders shored up with temporary wooden trusses, the regular train schedule was resumed today over the Forest Hills section of the Boston Elevated railroad.

It may be a month before duplicates of the great eight-ton steel cross girders upon which the elevated structure rests and the connecting braces and struts can be obtained from the foundry to replace those damaged by the runaway train which thundered down Washington street at eighty miles an hour and crushed out the life of the only man on board—Motorman Thomas Manning—in a terrific wreck at the curve leading to the Dudley street terminal station.

The last remnant of wreckage was lowered down from the roof of the Eliot Savings bank building into Dudley street last night.

None of the "L" officials are able to explain the exact cause of the wreck or say with positiveness that such an accident may not occur again. The only man who could give a satisfactory explanation of the mystery will never do so, for his lips are sealed in death. Manning died without recovering consciousness.

TAFT AND LODGE CONFER

Insurgent Victories In the West Furnish Food For Reflection

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 5.—The only caller at the president's home yesterday afternoon was Senator Lodge. It is believed that the two found plenty of food for discussion in the recent insurgent victories in the west.

A fear that the president himself will have to take active steps in order to reconcile the insurgent and the regular elements was expressed. The fact that after the first three skirmishes of the big battle to be fought this fall the insurgents stand in the lead has caused much anxiety in the summer capital.

The belief that the insurgents will make further inroads on the conservative ranks is general. The fact that Speaker Cannon made frantic efforts to save Kansas for the reactionaries without avail is regarded here as a forecast of Cannon's doom. To Republican leaders the most important factor in the Kansas, Ohio and Iowa fights has been the slap directed at President Taft in the Iowa convention, where the position given him was that of reactionary leader. The progressives declare that the coming state contests in the west will show the same results.

BARS LOVE-MAKING AT EXPENSE OF CITY

Too Much Spooning by 'Phone, Says Mayor of Pittsburg

Pittsburg, Aug. 5.—It costs the city of Pittsburg about $12,000 in tolls for city employes love-making over the telephone wires. Mayor Magee's office has issued an order to the heads of all departments that the first employe caught spooning or talking small talk over a telephone is to be discharged.

"Central's" different city departments are instructed to report at once any violation of this under pain of loss of their own jobs.

While central is not absolutely expected to eavesdrop she is instructed to disconnect any wire over which she hears conversation other than city.

EXPLOSION ON STEAMER

Two Firemen Fatally Scalded and Water Tender Badly Injured

Boston, Aug. 5.—Scalding steam killed two men and injured a third to such an extent that it is believed he will die, when a boiler tube burst in the fireroom of the fishing excursion steamer Satellite.

Firemen Stephen Callahan and Robert Lang and Water Tender Michael Bennett were close to the furnace door and were terribly scalded, the two firemen living but a short while after their removal to Long Island hospital.

Commanded by Captain Sorenson, the Satellite, with 250 passengers, was proceeding down the harbor on a fishing excursion when the accident occurred.

TOURISTS BAD EXAMPLES, IS MISSIONARY'S CLAIM.

Egyptian Converts Follow Americans' Lax Sunday Observance.

That American tourists set natives a bad example is the complaint of Miss Marian Paden, a returning missionary from Egypt and daughter of George M. Paden, a banker of Pittsburg.

"We missionaries," she said, "would get along gloriously if it were not for the American tourists. They go sightseeing on Sundays, and they are interested in nothing but having a good time—dressing, dining, wining and going about.

"Egypt is a Mohammedan country. Our converts are apt to think that what the visitors do is right, and follow their example.

"What Americans should really do while in that country is to try to uplift and educate the natives, and make them appreciate Christianity."

Miss Paden had charge of the small girls at the American Mission college while in Cairo. She also discussed religion with the women in the harems.

PENCIL WOOD SUPPLY SHORT

Department of Agriculture Starts Experiments In Substitutes.

The probability of the exhaustion or the supply of red cedar, which furnishes practically all the wood for the annual output of over 325,000,000 pencils, within five years has led to several conferences by representatives of the department of agriculture and lead pencil manufacturers, for the purpose of finding a suitable substitute for this wood.

According to manufacturers, new wood must be procured which can be cut easily and is free from knots. In view of this fact the forest service is to co-operate with the manufacturers in a test of a number of national forest woods.

Among those to be tried are Rocky mountain red cedar, alligator juniper, western juniper, redwood, incense cedar, western cedar, Port Orford cedar and Alaska cypress. Wood specimens collected from the national forests will be sent to four leading manufacturers, who have agreed to make pencils of them. The manufacturers will keep a record of the tests and report to the forest service the results, as well as their judgment as to the fitness of the individual woods.

The Rhodum Sidus.

An amusing story told by Hood describes how a country nurseryman made a large sum out of sales of a simple little flower which he sold under the name of the Rhodum sidus. This charming name proved quite an attraction to the ladies, and the flower became the rage of the season. It was one of those freaks of fashion for which there is no accounting. At length a botanist who found that the plant was not an uncommon weed requested to know where the nurseryman got the name from. He elicited the following reply: "I found this flower in the road beside us, so christened it the Rhodum sidus."

The Purist Lost a Sale.

"I've just happened to remember that my wife told me to get a tin pan that will go under the icebox. Have you any?"

"No, sir, but we have some that can be shoved under the icebox. Won't that do just as well?"

"I think not, young man. My wife is a bit particular about my getting the exact thing that she tells me to get. I presume I can find it at some other store. Good day, sir."—Chicago Tribune.

Horse Sense.

During a heavy downpour of rain an Irish farmer sent his boy to a distant field to bring home a horse. Some time elapsed, and the messenger returned without the horse.

Father—Didn't Oi send ye for the horse, ye gamoch? Is your head in your brogues?

Little Boy (drenched to the skin)—Sure, he was standin' in shelter as dry as ye loike. Bedad, he knows more than the two of us.

Too Empty.

Bonney (morning of the second day out)—Come, old boy, let's go out on deck. Breakfast won't be served for half an hour yet, and a brisk walk on an empty stomach will do you good.

In Art Circles.

"Umph, umph," commented the critical visitor. "What was he master of?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

His Advice.

She (after the embrace)—Oh, how dare you! You have offended me. What shall I do?

He—Er—why not "turn the other cheek?"—London Tatler.

What Did It Mean?

A notice board in a Scottish kirk once bore, it is said, the following amazing sentence: "This church is licensed for the solemnegation of marriages!"

PEARSONS' MONEY ALL GONE

College Philanthropist Retires to Sanitarium at Ninety.

At the age of ninety years Dr. D. K. Pearsons of Chicago has sold his home and will betake himself to a sanitarium, where he will spend his remaining days as executor of his estate. He has promised to die penniless.

Dr. Pearsons has always lived simply and put his surplus earnings into real estate and various securities. He has given away $6,000,000 to small colleges.

Several times he has supposed himself at the end of his financial rope, but fate would not give him satisfaction. A few years ago he found a lot of bank stock which he had supposed worthless, and it turned out to be worth $500,000. There was a swamp he had owned for more than half a century which a predatory railway corporation insisted on securing at a compensation of many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

But he has now sold out everything and has given away or promised every dollar he has except just enough to keep him until the end of his days. Wherefore he is cheerful.

Escorted Her Anyway.

While Robert Browning and his son Barrett were living alone in Florence the son gave one afternoon an exhibition of his new paintings in the family drawing room. To Mr. Browning was assigned the task of meeting the guests. Late in the afternoon, when the room was well filled, there appeared at the drawing room door a woman whose face was familiar. Yet Mr. Browning could not recall her name, and he judged from her appearance that she was not an invited guest.

There was embarrassment on both sides for a moment, and then the woman said eagerly: "Oh, please, Mr. Browning, I'm the cook. Mr. Barrett said as I was to come and see his pretty pictur's."

Whereupon Mr. Browning, offering his arm, showed her about the room with all the attention that he could have bestowed upon a reigning queen.

The Rat and the Bulbs.

According to the French naturalist De Parville, a gardener planted one afternoon 250 tulip bulbs on a terrace, and next morning he noticed that the ground had been disturbed and that the bulbs had all been taken away. He was confident that rats had done the work, and, taking a spade, he began to dig in the hope of discovering their nest. Soon he unearthed a large female rat, which he killed, and after digging a few more minutes he discovered an underground chamber lined with hay and leaves and connected by a corridor with two holes, which were evidently used as storehouses, for in them he found the 250 tulip bulbs. This was remarkable, but more remarkable was the fact that they were neatly arranged in two rows and that not one of them had been gnawed or otherwise injured.

Labouchere's Sarcasm.

Of Gladstone Henry Labouchere once remarked, "I do not object to Mr Gladstone occasionally having an ace up his sleeve, but I do wish he would not always say that Providence put it there."

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

Colonial Theatre.

Boston has the pleasure of playing the first real comedy success of the new theatrical season. "Three Million Dollars" has opened at the Colonial theatre and has given that city the honor of being the first to see the original nineteen hundred and ten musical comedy hit. The Colonial theatre was crowded to the doors and the theatre was so cool that the audience was pleased and placed in good humor before the curtain rose. After the overture the theatre goers knew that they would have some new hunting melodies to hum and whistle for some time to come, such as: "Little, Dancing, Jumping, Jigger," "Love Letters," "Havana Maid," "I'm Crazy to be Crazy Over Someone," "Girls—Girls—Keep your Figure," and "Meet me down at Mammy Jinny's Cabin Door," and they settled down and enjoyed themselves beyond all expectations. The cast of this big musical corporation contains over a hundred "Spendthrifts." The chorus of "Gilt Edged Heiresses" which is the appropriate title Charles Marks, has given his "Handsomest ever seen chorus" contains the names of many well known and high salaried Broadway Show girls, the most prominent being: Sadue Carr, Harriet DuBarry, Lenna Duer, Brownie Hall, Gretta Tyson, Ruby Lewis, Anita McTavish, Sophie Ralph, Maude LeRoy, Martha Dean, Frankie Wilson, etc., etc. "Three Million Dollars" is undoubtedly the most pretentious production that Charles Marks, has made and will have a prosperous run at the Colonial theatre. Mail orders will be filled in the order of their receipt, and reservations made by telephone, will be held until six of the night performance. Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Keith's Theatre.

Doctor Hermann, "the man who tamed electricity," will be the feature at Keith's next week and while it is scientific in a way Dr. Hermann's act is chiefly noted for its fun making qualities. While he has on the stage an elaborate electrical apparatus, he does all sorts of amusing stunts. The amusing part of his act is where he gets a stage full of people and puts them through the most amusing stunts. All the hypnotists and mesmerists who have been on the stage are outdone by Doctor Hermann, and his engagement promises to be one of the events of the summer at Keith's. Another strong feature will be Angela Dolores, who will make her first appearance here in the delightful comedy called "Cupid at Home." Another new feature will be Sergeant Brennan, an English soldier who is the greatest master of diabolo who has ever come to this country. The Empire Comedy Four will also appear after an absence of several years in Europe, where they scored one of the biggest successes ever made by an American act. Other features of the bill will be Kaufman Brothers, minstrels; Al Carleton, the monologuist; Lee Brothers and Allen in a unique dancing specialty; and Mr. and Mrs. Darrow with sand pictures and shadowgraphs.

Majestic Theatre.

The management of the Majestic theatre is able to announce a special summer engagement of Henry W. Savage's best "Merry Widow" company at summer prices, beginning Monday, August 8th. This fascinating Viennese operetta ,the greatest musical play of the generation, has not been seen in Boston since the original run of thirty weeks, and it is a great concession on the part of Mr. Savage, America's leading producer, that he is offering it at lower prices. The cast of the operetta for the coming run is the best that has ever appeared in it. It contains players who were in at least one of the original Boston New York or Chicago runs. Mabel Wilber, now considered the best Sonia Mr. Savage has ever had, was in the New Amsterdam theatre cast and has since been the "widow" in Mr. Savage's more important production touring the country. Robert E. Graham created the role of Popoff, the Morsovian ambassador in the original New Amsterdam theatre production; Fred Frear was the original and laughable Nish; and Charles Meakins was promoted to the role of Prince Danilo during the New Amsterdam run. With his usual liberality Mr. Savage has made an estirely new production with the latest Parisian gowns and millinery.

American Music Hall.

Clyde Fitch's biggest comedy success, "Girls," will be presented for the first time in Boston at the American Music Hall this coming week when the Lindsay Morrison stock company will offer a production that is guaranteed to be fully equal to the original. This is the same piece that ran for a whole year at Daly's theatre in New York and has been pronounced one of the very best things that Mr. Fitch ever did. The theme deals with a woman who is a man hater and a man who is a woman hater and the funny situations which are brought about because of their attitudes toward the opposite sex are productive of a laugh about every second. Incidentally this piece will see the first appearance this summer in Boston of Miss Eleanor Gordon who was Mr. Morrison's leading lady in the Boston theatre two seasons ago. Miss Gordon was forced to come all the way from Los Angeles to accept this esgagement and the fact that Mr. Morrison secured her at great expense both of salary and of travel, shows that he is determined to give his patrons nothing but the very best. All of the other favorites will be seen in the cast, including Wilson Melrose, Theodore Friebus, Mary Sanders, Rose Morison, Katherine Clinton, E. Valerie Valaire , William Hasson, Edward Nannary asd others. The usual custom of distributing chocolate bonbons on Monday matinees will be continued and the same low summer prices will prevail.

DEMONSTRATIONS ARE PROHIBITED

Troops In Readiness to Enter Summer Capital of Spain

Madrid, Aug. 5.—A renewal and formal prohibition of the clerical forces at San Sebastian, the summer capital, next Sunday, was issued by the minister of the interior. The organizers of the demonstration nevertheless persist in their plans and, as the Republican leaders are arranging an anticlerical demonstration at San Sebastian, great apprehension prevails.

The clerical press publish further articles of extreme violence against the government. The organizers of the anti-government demonstration have, in circular letters to the clergy, urged them to incite their congregations to refuse obedience to the prohibition of the demonstration.

The civil authorities are considering prosecutions of the organizers of the proposed Catholic manifestations and troops are in readiness to enter the summer capital at any moment should this step be necessary to preserve order or enforce the orders of the government.

FLIES IN SIX STATES

Balloon Travels From Philadelphia to Town In New Hampshire

Danbury, N. H., Aug. 5.—Ending a balloon flight of 350 miles, the longest ever made from Philadelphia, Thomas E. Eldridge and a companion landed here after having been in the air eleven hours and being in six states. At one time they reached a height of 15,100 feet.

The balloonists made their flight in the Philadelphia 2d, owned by the Philadelphia Aeronautical Recreation society. This balloon has a capacity of 50,000 cubic feet. Eldridge holds the world's record for high ascents, having in June reached an altitude of 17,050 feet.

Marshall Pleads Not Guilty

Boston, Aug. 5.—Upon being arraigned in the United States circuit court, John R. Marshall pleaded not guilty to the indictment charging him with conspiracy with William J. Kelliher and Martin J. Striking Miners Ask Him To Investigate Soft Coal Conditions

Greensburg, Pa., Aug. 5.—An open letter addressed to Theodore Roosevelt, the Outlook Magazine, New York city, was forwarded from the executive offices of the officials of the Union Soft Coal Miners on strike in the Greensburg-Irwin field, asking the former president to visit the strike zone and make an investigation similar to the one just completed in the anthracite field of eastern Pennsylvania.

The letter, which was signed by union officials, lightly sketches the strike situation in this district from the coal miners' standpoint and was dispatched with the unanimous approval of the various local unions.

No Love For Insurgents

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 5.—Insurgency was roundly scored by speakers at the Republican state convention here. The platform adopted indorsed Taft and Ballinger. Five supreme judges were renominated.

A Gleam of Hope.

They were evidently from the country and had wandered into the first place of amusement they found. A performance of "Richard III." was in progress, and after buying tickets they went squeaking down the aisle, led by the usher, to seats well toward the front.

They watched the stage at first with hope of some excitement, but with steadily decreasing interest. At last the young woman touched the young man.

"Let's go out, Jim," she said. "It's more interesting out in the street."

"Let's hold on a minute longer," returned her escort. "It cost considerable to get in, and, besides, that clown has just called for a hoss. I shouldn't wonder if the show's really going to begin now, Emma."—Youth's Companion.

When Cricket Was a Crime.

Under a statute of Edward IV. England's great national pastime, cricket, was declared a crime, owing to the game having become so popular that it interfered with archery, the then sport of kings. The law was rigorously enforced, and every person convicted of playing the game was fined £10 and sent to prison besides. It was not until the formation of the famous Hambledon Cricket club in 1749 that the statute was repealed.—Dundee Advertiser.

Mammy's Dream

It Was Thought to Be Superstition, but It Was True.

By HARRIET L. GEDDES.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

In Alabama in antebellum days was a fair plantation comprising many hundred acres and many hundred slaves. On an elevated spot stood the mansion, a great square house with "galleries" surrounding every story and shaded by high trees. In the rear were the homes of the negroes, a line of cabins, kept clean by frequent coats of whitewash. The plantation, now cut up, is the site of large cotton mills.

This property was owned by a child six months old. Its grandfather and its father had both died within a brief period, leaving a young widow, mother of the heir at law, as his guardian and manager of the plantation.

Edward Le Moyne, this child's uncle and brother of his father, was a forcible man, who, under the pretense of assisting his sister-in-law in the management of her property, established himself in the house and assumed control. Mrs. Julian Le Moyne, the widow, had not invited him to do so, but, being a very gentle feminine person, had not the will power to prevent him. Edward Le Moyne in his youth had been wild. Indeed, he had disgraced himself, and his father had willed the property to his brother Julian. When Julian died and Edward commenced the role of assistant to the mother of the child, who had inherited the property, the mother was sure his object was to get rid of the heir that he might become the owner himself.

Edward Le Moyne had married a woman beneath his family, by whom he had a son. Had Edward brought them to the plantation to live Mrs. Julian would not have had the will power to prevent his doing so. Instead he established them in a town near by, and Mrs. Julian knew very well that the next move would be, when Edward had got rid of her son, to the manor house.

As might have been expected, the child fell ill. Edward Le Moyne saw him lying in his mother's arms unconscious. She accused him of having poisoned the boy and, summoning more fortitude than she had displayed before, ordered him out of the room. Quailing before her, he retired. Two days later he saw a little coffin carried to the family burying ground on a hill near by, followed by the widow and a number of her house servants, who were devoted to her. When she returned to the manor house she packed her belongings and the same day took her departure.

Edward Le Moyne took possession of the plantation, brought his wife and son, then ten years old, to the mansion and lived there a lonely life. None of the neighboring planters would have anything to do with him, and his slaves hated him.

Twenty years later his son, Tom, who had come into possession of the property, with a view to establish relations with the neighboring planters, gave a ball. He was no better liked than his father had been, and the acceptances were few. Nevertheless they were sufficient for a merrymaking. Among the guests was Proctor St. Clair, a young man who had been brought up by a relative and extremely popular on account of his high sense of honor, his independent character and other manly traits. Another guest was Caroline Archard, the belle of the country round about. Tom Le Moyne was ambitious to win this girl, thinking that a marriage with her would gain him an entree into the aristocratic families in his neighborhood.

But hardly had the guests arrived and the festivities begun before Le Moyne observed that Miss Archard was manifesting a decided preference for young St. Clair. The traits of the father showed themselves in the son. He resolved to work by underhand means, relying largely on assurance to carry his point. When his guests were ready to depart he invited them all to remain as a house party for as long as they would. A dozen accepted, among them Mr. St. Clair and Miss Archard, both secretly desiring to avail themselves of the opportunity to be together. Le Moyne was especially urgent that St. Clair should remain, promising him every facility for enjoyment.

Le Moyne used his privileges as host to assign himself in all rides, drives and other amusements to escort Miss Archard. Nevertheless he saw that the moment she was free she and St. Clair seemed to fall together naturally. One morning after breakfast St. Clair returned to his room for some article of clothing and was hunting for it in the closet when, hearing a step, he turned and saw Le Moyne come quickly into the room, pull out a bureau drawer, drop something in it and retire hastily, as he had come in. St. Clair, being in the closet, had not been seen. A moment after his host had left the room he went to the bureau drawer and took out a small box containing several articles of jewelry.

He was filled with astonishment, horror and indignation. It was evident to him that Le Moyne had placed the jewels in his drawer, intending to accuse him of having stolen them. St. Clair closed the door and spent half an hour deliberating. At the end of that time he took the jewels to Miss Archard and told her how he had come by them. She had experienced enough of Le Moyne's attentions to her to divine his object. Then St. Clair took the jewels to Le Moyne, whom he found with several of his guests, and told him where he had found them. Le Moyne colored and stammered that some of the house servants must have stolen them and temporarily hidden them in St. Clair's room.

"You lie!" said St. Clair. "I saw you come to my room and place the box in my drawer."

At that time in the south such an affair must be settled under the code duello. The accusation against Le Moyne could only be wiped out in blood. He knew that it could not be wiped out at all. There was not one of his guests but would believe the word of St. Clair in preference to his own.

With the dogged spirit that possessed him, Le Moyne proposed that they should settle the affair at once. St. Clair was agreeable, and, though the others present advised delay, the two principals were too hot for it. Rapiers were the weapons most used, and there was sufficient space in the room where they were. The adversaries, in shirt and trousers, faced each other, swords were handed them, and they began to fence.

Le Moyne, true to the instincts of his race, was cool. Not even the truth of the charge could unnerve him. St. Clair, on the contrary, was so shocked, so indignant, at the base attempt to put a stigma upon him and rob him of the girl with whom he had just plighted his troth that he fought wild. The result was that in a few minutes he received a sword wound in the side which took him out of the fight.

He was carried to his room and a surgeon sent for, who pronounced him in danger of his life. Of course removal was out of the question.

The first Miss Archard heard of the matter was that her lover had been stabbed by her host and was lying in his chamber in a critical condition. She flew upstairs and in another moment was bending over him.

"Why," she moaned, "did we come into this house? It is accursed."

At the moment an old negro woman entered and heard the words.

"No, missy," she said, "de house ain't cu'sed. Hit's de people in it. Don' worry, honey. I had a dream las' night. I dreamed I saw a picession goin' to a grave takin' a baby coffin. An' I saw 'em buryin' de coffin. Den when dey all go way I saw de baby rise out o' de groun', an' he was growed to be a fine young man. An' he said, "Mammy, my dear ole mammy!" He put his arm around my neck an' kissed me. 'I's come of age today.'

"I know wha' de dream meant. Don' yo worry, honey. Hit's all comin' out right."

The lovers well knew the superstition of the colored race and thought nothing of her words. But her prediction that it would all come out right proved true. It was a month before St. Clair could be moved, and during this period Miss Archard came every day to nurse him, though never once did she deign to notice Le Moyne. One day, shortly before the surgeon gave permission for the removal, the negro who had told her dream came into the room in which St. Clair was lying, Miss Archard sitting beside him. The old woman locked the door and approached the bed with her finger on her lips.

"Is it de fif' ob August?" she asked.

"Yes, aunty."

"Lis'en! I got a secret I'm gwine to tell yo'. I promise missy I nebber tell twill dis day, cos dis de day yo', Mars' Julian"—

"Julian! I'm not Julian. I'm Proctor. Something is the matter with you, aunty. You're gone daft."

"Jus' yo' wait, honey. Mars' Julian, yo' twenty-one years ole dis berry day. Reckon I ought to know. I'm yo' mammy."

By this time she had caught their attention.

"Yo' ma, she lib heah, an' Mars' Le Moyne, Mars' Tom Le Moyne's father, he come in to run de plantation. Missy 'fraid her baby git poisoned so Mars Le Moyne 'ud own de prop'ty. Yo', de baby, git sick. Missy t'ink Mars' Le Moyne poison yo'. So she pe'tend yo' daid. She git a coffin an' she fill it with stones, an' she said to me: 'In heah is de proofs dat my boy is not in de coffin. Yo'll know all about him, an' on de fif' ob August, 18—, yo' tell him who he is. Den he kin claim de plantation his own self.'"

When the old woman finished the lovers, whose eyes had been opening wider with every word, looked at each other in astonishment.

"And this is the mystery that has been hanging over me all my life!" said Julian.

"And I believe it's all true," added the girl, clasping her hands and drawing a long breath.

"Well, aunty, or, rather, my dear mammy, you've kept the secret so long; keep it longer."

"Dat I will, honey."

It was more than a month later when one night Julian Le Moyne appeared as a resurrectionist on the hill near the plantation and took up a little coffin lined with lead. In it were stones and the proofs of the identity of the child it was supposed to contain. The proofs established the fact that Proctor St. Clair was Julian Le Moyne and heir to the Le Moyne estate.

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE
Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the
New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove
The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed—and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.
The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.
Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

BRIEFS

Robert Q. McDonnell of Barre is in town on a business trip.

Mrs. Selma Johnson of Deldorf street accompanied by her two children, Phylis and Ralph, are the guests for two weeks of Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Wigren of Newport, R. I.

The Woodward Institute fund now amounts to about $300,000. The January 1, 1910 report showed $297,448.53 in the treasury. The income from investments in 1909 was $14,852.69, of which $1,204.72 was unexpended.

The Clyde Steamship Company has purchased five boats of the Brunswick Steamship Company and are to establish a fast freight between New York and Brunswick, Georgia. Two of the boats were built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., the Ogeechee and the Ocmulgee.

TODAY'S COURT.

Amos Lovell was fined $50 for violation of the liquor law at Weymouth. Appealed.

AEROPLANE LAWYER APPEARS

Specialty Practicioners Are Up to Date With Fliers.

In the development of the professions, marching on with the progress of invention, the aeroplane lawyer is about to appear.

Men seeking mastery of the air are invading the United States patent office, and at the present rate of productivity in aeronautic ideas it is predicted that the volume of litigation which will soon follow will be incalculable.

There are now more than 250 applications for patents relating to the single point of automatic balance for air craft. In addition there are hundreds of applications for patents for motors, planes, propellers, skids and other essentials in air navigation.

"From the present outlook," a patend lawyer said, "we will soon have in this country a new crop of aeroplane lawyers, men who have specialized in the law of the air and who keep track of the hundreds of aeroplane patents that probably will be granted."

—There is talk of an interesting development is connection with the shipping business at St. John, N. B. The lumber trade to American ports, the plaster trade, the white pine trade and the Cuban trade, which formerly was all done by schooners, is now done to a considerable extent by small steamers, some of them owned by Swedes and Norwegians. It is recognized that the day of the schooner, like that of the wooden ship, is passing, and it is stated that St. John shipping men are seriously considering the organization of a steamship company, to ensure that the trade now done by schooners will not pass to vessel owners in other places. In this connection it is worthy of note that the gasoline engine is coming into use more and more as an auxiliary power for the little schooners that sail up and down and across the Bay of Fundy, while the number of small motor boats along shore has practically driven the old-fashioned sailboat off the water.

HAS ESCAPED IN DISGUISE

wise, it seems to be a foregone conclusion that Restelli wore a wig that afternoon.

This would seem to indicate that he had made careful plans for getting away after doing his shooting and that in anticipation of haste he put on his wig before he started in. The more that the theory of Inspector McKay is thought of the more plausable it seems. It would not take many seconds to pull a khaki suit over the one he wore and by doing so he would not leave behind any old clothing to give a clew to the police whom he must have realized would be hot on his trail.

There are some who hold to the belief that Restelli is still within the city limits, and that he is being secreted by friends until such time that he may have an opportunity to get safely out of town. The police, however, do not place much faith in this story. If he did disguise himself by a change of clothing, as is now believed, it would have been an easy matter for him to get by the crowd of watchers who were looking for a bald headed man dressed in a suit on the green shade. Did he do this he is now many miles from Quincy, and may succeed in eluding capture for some time. If alive, however, there is no question but sooner or latter he will trip himself in some manner, which will be his undoing.

The reward offered has brought out a number who call themselves private detectives, but they are not looked upon to accomplish much as the ground in Quincy has been well covered by the local police.

It was a week ago today that the shooting took place and the week has been one of excitement, especiaaly for Chief Burrell and the members of the police department who have been constantly on the alert and have put in many extra hours of duty.

LATER.

Chief Burrell received today a new clew in regard to Restelli which tends to substantiate the statement made that he boarded a car near the Presidents bridge about 4 o'clock. This new clew was obtained this morning from Mrs. William Elrick of 17 Adams street. Mrs. Elrick knew Restelli, so that her statement will have considerable weight.

She says that Friday afternoon, sometime between 3.20 and the time the whistle blew at 4 o'clock, she saw Restelli walking up and down on the sidewalk in front of Gould's garage, apparently waiting for a car. At that time, Mrs. Elrick saye, he wore khaki trousers. A little later in the afternoon she went to call on her mother on Garfield street, and learned of the shooting and who had done it.

All the statements as to Restelli's outfit that have been given out from those who saw him at the time of the shooting, were that he wore a green colored working suit. Mrs. Elrick says he had on khaki trousers, which would bear out the conclusion reached by Inspector McKay that he made a change of clothing.

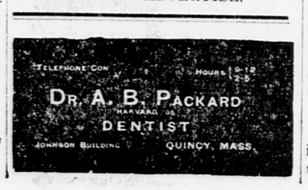

The statement of Conductor Thayer and of Miss Sparrow of Wollaston, are that a man supposed to be Restelti boarded the 4 o'clock car. There is one other person who says he saw him take that car. Thi is an Italian who knew him. This afternoon Chief Burrell will interview this Italian and Miss Sparrow Officer Larkin who is on duty at Atlantic, says he boarded every car after 3 o'clock, and that Restelli did not go through to Neponset.

There was a train however that left Wollaston at 4.07 and another at 4.23, and it is possible if not probable that Restelli left the car at Wollaston and took one of these trains. This would have given him ample time to reach Boston and disappear among some of the Italians who are Anarchists, or to have taken the 5.41 train out of Boston for Rutland.

These new developments would seem to indicate that Restelli is not now in hiding in Quincy.

DOLLY WINS AT MARBLEHEAD

First Prizes Also for Waweenock, Cima and Hugi

A large fleet of Quincy yachts are participating in the Marblehead races of the Corinthian club this week, and winning prizes. In the Cape cat class on Thursday, the Dolly III and Dartwell had it hot the former winning by ten seconds, the order being: Dolly, Dartwell, Busy Bee, Mudjekeewis, Emeline and Josephine.

In class S the Waweenock was first, followed by the Winniahdia, Zoe, I. X. L., Maritza, Ruggy and Toss.

In the class for 18-foot knockabouts the order was Hugi, Arrow, Bonitwo II, Mirage II, Answer, Amora, Kittiwake, Mouse, Arrow, Reina, Privateer and La Chica.

The Cima came to the front in the sonderklasse followed by the Beaver Sally, Lady, Wolf, Spokane, Demon, Skesic and Bonivee.

There were 23 classes in all.

WON BY KITTIWAKE.

The Interstate race of the 18-foot knockabouts at Marblehead on Thursday was not so close as on Wednesday and Capt. Whittemore's Kittiwake led by over six minutes, the order being Kittiwake, Hugi, Arrow, Aurora, Bat and Dorchen. Inasmuch as Narragansett yachts finished second and third Rhode Island has the best percentage for the two days. Unless the three Massachusetts yachts take the first three places today the trophy will go to Rhode Island.

OLD COLONY LEAGUE.

The league standing to date:

	Won	Lost	Per.
Quincy	9	3	.750
Weymouth	6	4	.600
Randolph	6	5	.545
Lincoln	6	6	.500
Stoughton	4	8	.333
Rockland	3	8	.272

SPORTING NOTES.

The Ramblers play against the clever St. Marks' team of Dorchester on Saturday at Merrymount park at 3 P. M. Rice will try and get another win, while Clees will try and make his percentage greater. There are a number of High school stars with St. Marks, among them Carand of Roger Wolcott fame and Heyor of Dorchester High, who has done much to keep its slate clean of defeats, having won 8 out of 11 games played this season.

The Ramblers have had hopes of being able to play Plymouth Cordage a return game, but word has been received that their schedule has been filled for this season.

The North Quincy base ball club will play the Wollastons on Saturday at "the Pines." Game called at 3 P. M. The lineup for North Quincy is as follows: Bent, catcher; Smith, pitcher; Curtis, first base; Davis, second-base Flynn, third base; F. Hoyt, short stop; Quinlan, left field; Lyons, centre field; Cox or Massey, right field. This will be the first of a series of games between these two clubs.

The Granite City league schedule for Saturday is: Adams A. A. vs. Fore River Apprentices, Hardy A. C. vs. Cranch A. A., Bigelows vs. Bryant A. C.

Makaria will cross bats with Needham on Saturday at Merymount park. The local boys played a great game against Plymouth last week, and after practice this week the captain says that the team will surely play fine ball in the coming game. Needham has played winning ball all season and the game ought to be interesting from the start. All those wishing to see good ball be at the park by 3 o'clock.

Owing to the fact that the Quincy, Old Colony League team, will play at home tomorrow instead of at Stoughton and that Walpole of the Norfolk County circuit cannot get its home grounds the game between Copeland and Walpole scheduled for Quincy tomorrow has been called off, and Copeland will play their old rivals, the Braintree White Sox on French's Common. There still remains a bitter rivalry and the game will be hot and close.

Submitted to the Touch.

"I suppose all of us have our little vanities," says James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago. "When I was a member of congress I was called out into the corridor by a stranger who asked, 'Is this Colonel James Hamilton Lewis?'

"'Plain Mr. Lewis, at your service,' I replied.

"'Well, Mr. Lewis," he replied, 'I was so struck with a speech you made in the house last week that I went to the document room to get a copy for myself and for another friend. They charge five cents for a copy, and I haven't a cent of change. Can you let me have the money to buy two copies?'

"Now, I had not made any speech, and they do not charge five cents nor any cents at all in the document room; but I gave him the dime he wanted, and reproached myself afterward for my stinginess. Such an artist at flattery ought to have had a quarter, at least."—Chicago Record-Herald.

How Romans Took Their Food.

The Romans reclined at their banquets on couches, all supporting themselves on one elbow and eating with their fingers from dishes placed in the center of the table. Each was supplied with a napkin, and knives were used, though it does not appear that every one was supplied with one. Nothing, it would seem, could be more fatiguing than to partake of a repast in such an awkward posture or less conductive to neatness, it being almost impossible to keep the hands clean even with water supplied by the slaves or to prevent the food and wine from falling on the clothing and the draperies of the couch. This manner of eating disappeared during the dark ages so far as the couch was concerned, but the peculiarity of taking food with the fingers from a common dish continued afterward for more than 1,000 years.

He Wanted to Know.

There was a small crowd at the soda counter when a tall man rushed in and pushed an empty bottle over the drug counter.

The soda water crowd began to sit up and take notice.

"What's he going to do with that acid?" demanded one.

"It's a secret," answered the drug clerk.

"Nothing unusual, I hope."

"Well, rather."

"What! You mean to say he is going to take that acid?"

"Oh, no! Listen. There is a silver wedding at his house tonight, and he is going to test the presents as fast as his friends bring them in."

And then and there they voted him the meanest man in town.—Chicago News.

The Inspiring Bagpipes.

It was at a seaside resort, and along the board walk came marching a band of highland bagpipers in full costume. They were tremendous fellows, but their music, to my untutored ears, was like the squealings of forty stuck pigs. Yet I have never heard strains to compare with theirs for arousing a desire to die for one's country. I think bagpipe music must have been fashioned back in the old days by some demon of perversity out of the whistle of arrows, the clash of claymores, the neighing of war steeds and the shrieks of the dying. When I hear it I think of the wheel of fortune, the car of Juggernaut, the mills of the gods and the inquisitorial rack and screw. It whirls along with a cyclonic rhythm that sets the feet to tramping and the blood to boiling.—Robert M. Gay in Atlantic.

A Scandal Spoiled.

"Of course he and his wife seem devoted to each other now," said the jealous Miss Gaussip, "but do you think she will always be so true and all that?"

"Well," replied Miss Kidder, "I have reason to know that only last night he had occasion to set a trap for her."

"Ah! Do you know, I suspected something"—

"They more than suspected. They knew there were mice in the house."—Philadelphia Press.

The Lamp of a Man's Life.

Dr. Holmes said the lamp of a man's life has three wicks—brain, blood and breath—and to turn down any one of them makes the other two go out. The wounds a man will survive and even disregard so long as his head, heart and lungs are unhurt have long been one of the wonders of war history.

SOUTHPAWS ARE IN BIG DEMAND

Baseball Clubs Scanning Horizon For Left Handers.

CONNIE MACK'S NEW TWIRLER

Purchase of Lefty Russell From Baltimore For $12,000 Has Aroused New Interest In Work of Sidewheelers. Magnates Being Panned.

WANTED.—Crack left hand pitchers in the American league; good pay, short hours and a steady position for those who fill the bill.

If any one happens to know where a good southpaw twirler is located, who can make good in fast company, just let him give the information to some manager in Ban Johnson's circuit. There is a craze for left hand twirlers among big league handlers just now, but this applies particularly to the men who lead the American league teams.

The southpaws in the American and National leagues are having a good year with the boxmen of the Ban Johnson organization, having slightly the best of it. Whether it is because the American leaguers have more puzzling curves or whether the National batsmen are better against left handers is a question for argument.

At any rate, the recent sensational sale by Manager Jack Dunn of the Baltimore club of Lefty Russell to Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics for $12,000 after spirited bidding, in which Manager McGraw of the Giants and Fred Clarke of the Pirates took part, shows the market value of promising southpaws.

The American league magnates are being panned for allowing Southpaw Bill Burns, formerly of Washington and Chicago, to slip into the National league. These questions are being frequently asked: Why did Comiskey release Pitcher Bill Burns? Why did the other American league clubs waive claim to a pitcher who has since been very successful for Cincinnati?

The reason given is that, while Burns is a good pitcher, he is said to believe himself a privileged character. He has wealthy parents and doesn't have to work for a living. For that reason he couldn't see any use in taking part in morning practice. As Comiskey is a great believer in discipline, he could not allow Burns to shake the morning sessions. As a result he let him go to Cincinnati.

Eddie Karger of the Bostons has so far made the best record for the southpaws in the American league this season, with Ed Plank of the Athletics, Jim Vaughn of New York, Ed Killian of Detroit and Krause of the Athletics following in the order named.

Of the National league southpaws Kroh of Chicago, Webb of Pittsburg, Burns of Cincinnati, Pfeister of Chicago and Lush of St. Louis have won more than half of their games. Wiltse of New York, Rucker of Brooklyn and Foxen of Philadelphia have so far had an even break.

While it is generally admitted that left hand pitchers have something on men who hit from the south side of the plate, the rule is not universal. Willie Keeler could always hit a southpaw better than a right hander. Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Easterly and Eddie Collins, left handers who are well up in the American league batting records, are all good against southpaws.

COMPRESSED AIR BATS LATEST INVENTION.

There is a member of the Kansas City team who is experimenting with bats loaded with compressed air. It has been proved that an ordinary hitter can knock a ball loaded with compressed air to great distances. So this player believes a bat loaded the same way would act in the same manner.

Literary Firsts and Seconds.

The youthful newspaper reporter who has visions of being a famous author is still wondering over the epigram made by a successful confrere when the latter noted his disappointment over the return of a manuscript.

"I thought sure," said the reporter, with a sigh, "that that confounded story would sell. It's good stuff, if I did write it, and I am certainly surprised that it came back."

The successful writer grinned and then placed his hand on the other man's shoulder.

"My dear boy," he said, somewhat grimly, "there are only two stages in the life of a writer. One is when he is surprised at getting his stories back and the second when he is surprised at not getting them back. You're in the first; I'm in the second. And there you are."

But the reporter is still wondering.—Philadelphia Times.

Not What They Seemed.

A marquis who was in residence for a few days at a Parisian hotel discovered that her pearl necklace, worth $15,000, had disappeared from her room. Suspicion fell on a messenger boy, who admitted his guilt, but declared that the necklace had been taken from him by his mother. The mother corroborated her son's statement, expressing astonishment that so much trouble should be made about "a trashy little trinket," which, she explained, looked so cheap and tawdry that she had given it to her daughter-in-law. This young woman, in her teens, displayed an equal contempt for the "bits of things." She told the police that she had given the necklace to her little girl to wear, but she had removed about half the beads. All the missing pearls were found in a box among buttons and hooks and eyes.

No Pure Water.

Owing to the extremely solvent powers, pure water is never found in nature, the nearest approach being found in rainwater, which, as it is formed in the upper regions of the atmosphere, is the purest that nature supplies, but in descending it brings with it whatever impurities are floating near the surface, which in the neighborhood of cities are always numerous; hence perfectly pure water is hardly to be found, even the artificially distilled being only approximately so.

A Long Felt Want.

"What kind of cigars will you have," asked the dealer—"light, medium or strong?"

"Strong ones, by all means," said the blushing damsel—"strong enough not to break in the young man's pocket, don't you know."—Pittsburg Post.

THE STEAMSHIP ROMANIC SEARCHED FOR RESTELLI

Departure of Steamship Delayed This Morning While Officers Search Her from Stem to Stern

The departure of the steamship Romanic from Charlestown, which was due to sail at 11 o'clock this morning for European ports, was somewhat delayed while she was being searched from stern to stern.

It was thought possible that if Restelli had been in hiding in Boston this week that he might take passage on the Romanic for Italy. With this in view a squad of Inspectors and officers from Station 15, Charlestown, boarded the vessel just before the sailing time and made a thorough and systematic search of her. They were accompanied by Inspector McKay who knows Restelli well and would be able to penetrate any disguise that he might assume in order to get by officers on the watch for him.

Shortly after 11 o'clock Chief Burrell hurriedly left the court room and went to Boston. Up to 2 o'clock nothing had been heard from the search of the steamship so that it is believed nothing came of the search.

The developments in the Restelli case yesterday seem to remove all doubt but what the murderer of his mother and of Henry E. Hardwick, was successful in eluding the scores of police and citizens that ware looking for him on the day of the murder and got safely out of town. The Daily Ledger in its issue last Saturday gave this as its conclusions and the events of the past week, especially those of Friday, have born out that conclusion.

As stated in Friday's Daily Ledger Chief Burrell in Mrs. Mabel Elrick, wife of William Elrick of 17 Adams street, found a witness who not only knew Restelli but says that she saw him on the fatal day on Adams street apparently waiting for an electric car.

Frequent mention has been made during the week of the statement attributed to a Miss Sparrow of Wollaston seeing a man supposed to be Restelli on the same car. The Miss Sparrow referred to, proves to be Miss Mabel Sparrow daughter of M. R. Sparrow, a well known resident of Wollaston. She was seen Friday afternoon by Chief Burrell and the statement made to the Chief was that she was not on the car as reported but that she stood near the corner of Newport avenue and Beale street that afternoon and saw a man with khaki

A CLEW AT SPRINGFIELD

Suspect Seen by Station Agent Yesterday

It now seems very probable that Restelli took the Rutland-Northampton-Springfield trip on the day of the shooting. The latest from Springfield is the following dispatch dated Friday, Aug. 5, published in the Globe:

Frank A. Juckett, agent at the Boston & Albany railway station in Mittineague village, believes that Louis Restelli, the Quincy murderer, was in the depot today and made inquiries of him regarding the time when trains were due to leave for Chester.

The peculiar manner of the stranger together with the close resemblance to the discription of the murderer, convince Mr. Juckett of the identity of the man, while this opinion was still further strengthened by the fact that Chester has large granite quarries that are rivals of those in Quincy in product and there is in the matter of trade much in common between the two places.

The suspect entered the station at Mittineague about 9 this morning and confronting Agent Juckett inquired when the next train would leave for Chester. He asked when other trains would leave for Chester during the day and then left the station, disappearing over the hill in the rear of the building. The station agent noticed that he did not come to the depot to take the 11 o'clock train or any other later in the day.

The stranger was unkempt in appearance, his beard showing evidence that he had not been shaved for several days. His wild appearance and manner attracted the attention of Mr. Juckett and the other employes at the railway station. The hight and general description, they say, tallied very closely with that of Restelli.

The police were notified, but no further trace of the stranger has been found. Deputy Sheriff K. H. Alvord of Chester has been notified to be on the lookout for the man.

GRANITE MEN ON OUTING

Quincy Well Represented Today At Bass Point

The granite sheds about South and West Quincy are closed today and business in this irdustry is at a stand still for the manufacturers are holding their annual mid-summer outing at Bass Point Nahant. A larger part of the excursionists left Quincy this morning at 8.51 taking the 9.30 boat for Bass Point. Others took the 11 o'clock boat.

During the morning the program included a series of sports principally a ball game between the Married Men and Single Men. This took up most of the time until 12.30, at which hour a dinner was served at the Bass Point house. After dinner there will be a series of running races for married, single, fat and lean men. There will also be plenty of opportunity to visit the side shows, and for bathing and boating.

ON THE ROAD TO RECOVERY

C. Theodore Hardwick Taken From Hospital to His Home

C. Theodore Hardwick was able on Friday to be moved from the City Hospital to his residence on Chestnut street. It was just a week from the tragic day of the shooting when his brother Henry was killed and he was shot in the knee. He was very happy to get home once more in his own room although he does not expect to recover for several weeks. His son Lyndon is assisting his cousin Charles H. Hardwick in the management of quarry business. His son Thomas has returned to camp at Kineo, Maine. The youngest son Huntington was with Dr. Grenfell in Labrador at the time of the tragedy and may not have heard of it.

Mrs. Henry E. Hardwick on the advice of friends went to New Hampshire by auto on Wednesday, being accompanied by her daughter Miss Minnie Hardwick, her son Robert Hardwick and Miss Flowers.

Much of responsibility for the management of the extensive business of C. H. Hardwick & Co., and of the interests of his father, Henry E. Hardwick, will devolve on Charles H. Hardwick, who has already vacated his law office in the Court House building, and established an office at his home on Revere road.

Benjamin Bishop another of those shot by Restelli is able to be about attending to his business. He was discharged from the hospital the day following the shooting. His wounds which were in the right hand and arm are healing nicely, although his arm is a little stiff as yet, but this is no more than might be expected. As soon as he is able to begin to use his hand and arm the stiffness will gradually wear off.

Gaspere Restelli who received several of the bullets from his brother's revolver is still at the City Hospital. He is resting comfortably, however, and it is now expected that he will be discharged from the Hospital sometime next week although it will doubtless be sometime yet before he is able to do any laborious work.

DID HE STEAL IT?

Louis George, a syrian, was arrested at South Quincy Friday afternoon by Chief Burrell for the larceny of a bicycle from some person unknown. George made his appearance at South Quincy, riding a bicycle which he tried to sell to several bicycle dealers and junk men at South Quincy. He was arraigned in court this morning and his case continued until Aug. 11.

SUMMER SCHOOL INTERESTING

Swimming, Cooking, Talks, Visits and Exhibit

The work of the Summer School for girls at the Women's club house is drawing to a close. Next week's work will complete the course.

One hundred and eighty girls have received instruction in swimming. That, in itself, should repay the Education committee for its efforts.

The girls in the cooking class are doing excellent work. Mrs. Bone, the teacher, is insisting upon good bread first of all. The girls bring samples of the work done at home, and it is gratifying to see the quality of the bread which the girls are turning out. On Friday, Aug 12, in the afternoon, the cooking class will have an exhibit of what cooking the girls have learned to do.

The interest in all the classes still keeps up. Some of the teachers are away this week, and others teaching in their places. Miss Millie Wainwright and Mrs. W. T. Babcick have been assisting this week.

On Friday morning, July 29, Charles H. Hardwick, Esq., the well known attorney of our city, gave the girls a most instructive talk upon "Birds and bird life." He told some very interesting facts about the formation of the bird's body and the purpose of its peculiar structure; the habits of the bird and its wonderful power of flight and muscular strength; the usefulness of the birds and the cost to the government for keeping down pests which the birds could and would do for us if they were allowed to live. The subject matter was within the comprehension of all the girls, and the treatment of the subject was entertaining and very instructive.

On Friday, Aug. 5, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith entertained the girls for an hour. There was a chorus singing and then a talk about the famous old songs. That "Yankee Doodle" was originally a Dutch tune interested the girls and a description of "Angel of Peace" gave an opportunity for a short address on the peace question.

Miss Edith Randall followed with a talk upon "Holland." She gave descriptions of the formation of the country, the habits of the people and their peculiarities. She told the girls about the little Dutch princess and the many windmills and showed a copy of Reinbault's "Night Watch," and explained a bit about this famous painting. She also showed some pieces of delf and some hand-made silver articles which were imported from Holland.

After listening to Mrs. Smith and Miss Randall, the girls went down to the studio of Mrs. H. H. Kitson. There they were shown the models and how the famous statues grow from small beginnings. Mrs. Kitson besides explaining the process of the growth of a statue, had a collection of photographs which showed famous statues in the different states in this country and abroad. She explained a little about the various statues in Boston and the suburbs. The time was all too short to see these works of art, but even a glimpse at the wonderful things which the hand of genius can mold out of clay could not fail to fill the mind with noble thoughts.

On Friday , next, Aug 12, at 2 o'clock, there will be a public exhibition of the work which the girls at the Summer school have done. The Education Committee will be glad to welcome to this exhibition any persons who are interested to come to the club house on Goffe street on that afternoon.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.

On the twenty-second of September friends of temperance in Quincy are to have a great treat when a reception is to be given at Bethany chapel to Mrs. Katherine Lent Stevenson, president of the National W. C. T. U. Mrs. Stevenson has recently returned from an extended trip around the world, visiting many W. C. T. Unions and will bring much to the Quincy Unions. The date for the reception is that of the annual convention of the Norfolk County W. C. T. U. which will be held in Quincy at Bethany chapel.

FALSE ALARM FROM WOODWARD AVENUE

Restelli Reported to Have Been Seen There This Morning by Woman

Report Promptly Investigated by Officers Murray and Thorne

There was quite a little excitement in City Square at 11.30 this noon, when a bareheaded woman came rushing into the square all out of breath with a story that she had just seen and talked with Restelli on Woodward avenue. The woman was Mrs. Gerrior, whose husband runs he wet wash establishment on Valley street. Seeking out Officer Murray the woman told her story. She was very much excited and out of breath and it was a few minutes before a straight story could be obtained from her.

She said that while on Woodward avenue she had been approached by Restelli who asked her to go and get him a clean pair of stockings. She further said that she knew Restelli well and that she was sure he was the man, although since she last saw him he had shaven off his mustache and had discarded his glasses.

She started back toward the laundry as though to comply with the request and the minute she got around the corner had run post haste to City Square to spread the alarm.

Officer Murray hailed Officer Thorne who was just coming from the court room and the two officers jumped aboard a car. Alighting at Whitney road they hastened to Woodward avenue and made a thorough search for the man but could find no trace of him. Several men were found at work in that vicinity but they had seen nothing of the supposed suspect.

They then visited the wet wash laundry and interviewed Mrs. Gerrior again. By this time she had calmed down somewhat and modified her story This time she said she did not see the man Restelli herself but that another man had come to the laundry and said he wanted a clean pair of stockings for Restelli.

Even this story could not be substantiated by the officers although they made a search of the woods in that vicinity. They then gave up the search with the opinion that the report was a false alarm and that the woman was suffering from a stretch of imagination.

QUINCY MAN IS MISSING

David T. Mead of Field Street was Last Seen July 30

Assistance was asked of the police this morning to find David T. Mead of 63 Field street, who is reported as missing since Saturday, July 30. Mr. Mead has been employed as night watchman in the Blake building at the corner of Washington street and Temple place, Boston. Last Saturday night he received his salary and has not been seen by his family since. It is reported that he was arrested in Boston Saturday night for some misdemeanor and that in court on Monday he was placed on probation. Since then no one has seen him. He was about 40 years of age, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weight 200 pounds, of medium complexion with a bald spot on the top of his head. When last seen he wore a dark gray suit with black derby hat, with a blue cotton outing shirt.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Although we hate to say it, there are many sure signs that the summer is rapidly passing and one of them is the fact that the schools and colleges are beginning to talk football and in some cases are electing captains. The katydid, the goldenrod, the locust, all tell us that fall is not far away but for the city dwellers or those who do not read the book of nature, the coming of the football season is a sure forerunner of autumn.

It used to be a hard matter for criminals to dodge detectives and now with the wireless telegraph as the law's assistant, it is more than ever difficult for evil doers to escape. This was shown most conclusively in the recent pursuit and arrest of the fugitive Dr. Crippen. The steamship which carried him as he thought out of the clutches of the police was in constant communication with the officials ashore and it was an easy matter to arrest him before he landed. It is more than ever true that "The way of the transgressor is hard."

Since June of this year there have joined the great army of workers many High school graduates. They have started out with great confidence, upheld by the high ideals taught them in their school life. It is no doubt difficult at first and the old world is a much harder master than any of their teachers but if they go at their work in the right spirit they will certainly, as the phrase goes, make good. They will have to learn many hard lessons taught by that grim old instructor, experience, and will see some of their pet theories knocked to pieces but will finally realize that the world is only a school of larger scope.

The automobile is such a devourer of distance that we are not apt to think of it as a valuable adjunct for keeping people at home but according to the latest reports such seems to be the case. In a neighboring city until quite recently the population in summer always decreased owing to the numbers of people away at the beaches for the season, but now these same people own their automobiles and take short trips about the country, returning to their homes at the end of a few days' time. They are able to enjoy the delights of country or shore and at the same time get home at night.

The results of the somewhat recent Vegg horror which cost the lives of two of Lynn's respected citizens, are today being felt in new and very unexpected ways. Mr. Landrigan, junior member of the large boot and shoe firm of Welch & Landrigan, together with his escort were brutally murdered while returning from a bank in Lynn, sometime ago. Now the closing down of this huge plant brings added loss to the community. This sudden end to an old shoe industry, making in the neighborhood of three thousand pairs of shoes a day, and employing hundreds of hands both men and women will be keenly felt. The reason for the shut down is that no possible inducement so far has been able to prevail upon the Landrigan interests to carry on the old enterprise and consequently all of the Welch & Landrigan factories have closed their doors.

Anyone who is inclined to take a pessimistic view of the growth of Quincy should make a study of the following figures giving the assessed valuation of Quincy for several years, both of the real estate and the personal property. We doubt if any town with a valuation of less than ten million dollars 22 years ago can show such a rapid increase in 22 years. It has averaged over one million dollars per year, or $22,700,095 in 22 years. Both the real estate valuation and the personal property valuation are over three times what they were in 1888, the last year of the town government, and building was never more active than this year.

Year	Real Estate	Personal
1910,	$24,991,000	$7,467,055
1909,	24,130,475	5,814,490
1908,	23,081,100	5,535,165
1907	22,075,450	5,093,650
1906,	21,430,500	5,353,385
1905,	20,841,175	4,737,535
1904,	20,168,875	3,863,495
1903,	19,692,300	3,344,580
1902,	19,159,850	3,017,692
1901,	18,869,710	2,858,705
1900,	17,700,860	2,482,065
1899,	17,202,250	2,482,069
1898,	16,812,825	2,424,007
1897,	15,557,500	2,454,646
1896,	14,997,400	2,583,115
1895,	14,590,825	2,735,030
1894,	14,088,175	2,729,280
1893,	13,605,675	3,032,395
1892,	12,262,375	3,304,545
1891,	11,158,125	3,268,905
1890,	10,473,800	3,209,210
1888,	7,825,250	1,932,710

If Quincy's population is less than 32,458, the per capita assessed valuation is over $1,000; for the total valuation is $32,458,055. The valuation of only a few of the Massachusetts cities are at hand for 1910, and most of them have a larger population. Their valuations follow:

Quincy,	$32,458,000
Waltham,	26,104,365
Medford,	23,683,100
Brockton,	43,354,541
Melrose,	16,463,865
Chelsea,	25,720,100
Marlboro,	10,418,600
Malden	40,482,284

The program for the lawn party Aug. 17, was made out and will include music, potato and peanut races for the amusement of the young folks. A pleasant gathering is anticipated. The regular monthly meeting of the club will be held with Mrs. Daniel Cain Tuesday, and is in charge of the improvement committee. Ray S. Hubbard will speak on the work done for the protection of children throughout Massachusetts.

MY WISH.

CHARLES BUXTON GOING

Not the rush and the tread
Of crowds in the city street,
But dusk in the still trees overhead
And the soft ferns under feet.

Not the roar of the throng
Where the shining windows gleam,
But a hemit-thrush in his evensong
And a murmuring valley stream.

Not the dust and the cry
Of the hot streets walled with stone,
But white hill-mists, and the quiet sky
Where the wide bright stars are strown!

GORE'S STORY CALLED FALSE

Strong Denial Entered by Vice President and Hamon

LATIMER GIVES HIS TESTIMONY

Did Not Offer Bribe to Senator and Never Discussed Indian Land Contracts With Him—Accuser Says He Cannot See How Committee Can Fail to Sustain Charges—Sherman Declares Fraud Charge Is Falsehood

Muskogee, Okla., Aug. 6.—Emphatic denials of any connection or interest in the Choctaw or Chicasaw contract legislation, received here from Vice President Sherman, Senator Curtis of Kansas, Representative McGuire of Oklahoma and others mentioned by Senator Gore in his charges of attempted bribery in connection with the Indian land deals, have served to arouse the highest pitch of interest among the investigators.

Senator Curtis of Kansas has wired the investigating committee that he is ready to appear at any time in his own defense and to aid the investigation in any way possible. McGuire is now on his way here from Guthrie.

Jake L. Hamon, former chairman of the Republican territorial committee, and the man accused by Senator Gore and Congressman Creager of attempting to bribe them in the Indian land cases, was called to the witness stand yesterday.

That Hamon had suggested to Creager that he might get an interest in the Indian land contracts in return for the congressman's support, was the declaration made by the latter while he was testifying at yesterday's hearing.

Hamon's testimony was a complete denial of Gore's charges. He declared he never made an offer of a $25,000 or a $50,000 bribe to Gore. He said he never discussed the McMurray contracts with Gore nor said anything about "all clean" money. He asserted Creager's statement on the stand supporting Gore was a "fake."

"I am well pleased with the progress of the charges launched by me in the closing of the last congress," said Gore. "I think I have made my charges stick that I was offered $50,000 to withdraw my opposition to the McMurray contracts with individual members of the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes of Indians and the committee, I think, will sustain me.

"I regret exceedingly that I was forced to repeat the statement made to me that Vice President Sherman, Senator Curtis and Representative McGuire were interested in the McMurray contracts.

"I don't see how the committee can do otherwise than sustain my charges of attempted bribery, especially since Representative Creager substantiated my statement that Jake L. Hamon of Lawton had been busy on the contracts and had offered him an interest in them. I will summon only two or three more witnesses."

The committee that heard the charges was appointed by resolution of the house of representatives to investigate the McMurray contracts, which are declared to have been made by McMurray individually with 10,000 Indians, each of whom agreed to turn over 10 percent of his profits from the sale of land, provided the contracts were approved by congress.

The committee, headed by Congressman Burke of South Dakota, chairman, is composed of Congressmen Campbell of Kansas, Miller of Minnesota, Stephens of Texas and Saunders of Virginia.

Says Charge Is a Falsehood

Covey's Camp, near Big Moose, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Vice President Sherman gave out a complete statement on the subject of the sensational charges made by Senator Gore. The vice president made an absolute denial of the statement that he was involved in the Indian land cases. He said:

"As I analyze the reported evidence given by Senator Gore it is that Gore says that Hamon said to him that some one 'high up' in government circles had an interest in the McMurray contract and that that some one was I. If anybody says that I have any interest in this or any other contracts relating to the Indians or ever did have any such interest in any contract having anything to do with the government in any way, or that I have profited by my public life, he states that which is absolutely false.

"I have no recollection of seeing Hamon since 1906, when I was chairman of the national Republican congressional committee and met with several others from the embryo state of Oklahoma in reference to the then impending campaign.

"In the closing hours of the last session of the senate Gore made a somewhat sensational speech on this subject, but he did not at that time, by inference or directly, suggest that I had any connection with the transaction. What the senator now says is simply alleged heresay.

"In my public service I have never departed from the path of right and I shall not begin now. That is all I care to say."

POSTAL LOSS WAY BE SOON WIPED OUT

Deficiency Reduced by $11,573,000 During Last Year

Washington, Aug. 6.—Postmaster General Hitchcock was gratified when he returned home from Europe to learn of the fulfillment of his prediction of a $10,000,000 reduction in the yearly postal deficit. The report of the auditor of the department show the saving for the fiscal year to be $11,573,000.

The total amount of the deficiency for the twelve months ending June 30 was $5,970,000, as against $17,480,000 for the preceding fiscal year. The savings of the year averaged nearly $1,000,000 a month, a record never before attained.

The postmaster general states that during the coming year he hopes to make such further reductions in the cost of the postal service as will wipe out entirely the annual deficit and place the department on a self-supporting basis.

FOOLED WITH DYNAMITE

One Boy Loses All His Fingers and Another Has Leg Badly Hurt

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 6.—While attempting to pick the filling from a dynamite cartridge last evening two youths were seriously injured by the resultant explosion.

John Cotter, 14 years old, had to have all of his fingers amputated. John J. McNeive, 15 years old, was badly burned, a part of the cartridge ploughing through his leg.

Seven Perish In Lodging House Fire

New York, Aug. 6.—Seven lives were lost in a fire which destroyed a lodging house in the foreign section of Jamaica, L. I. The blaze started in a haliway, the only exit, and spread so rapidly that few of the inmates had any opportunity to escape.

New Norwegian Minister

Christiana, Aug. 6.—H. H. Bryn, councillor of the Norwegian legation at Paris, was appointed minister from Norway at Washington. He succeeds Ove Gude, who died suddenly July 1 last.

APPROPRIATIONS HELD UP

Special Meeting of Boston City Council Found to Have Been Illegal

Boston, Aug. 6.—Corporation Counsel Babson, in an opinion submitted to the mayor's office, states that in his belief the special meeting of the city council, held on a call issued by Mayro Fitzgerald, was illegal.

The point raised by Councillor Hale, to the effect that each member of the council should be notified by a suitable notice in writing, was held to be correct.

As this was not done in the case of Wednesday's meeting, the meeting was not a legal one and the $150,000 in appropriations made at that meeting are void.

A special meeting of the council has been called by the mayor for Monday so that the council may again act upon the matters passed at Wednesday's meeting.

SOLD INTO MARRIAGE

Child Wife Abused by Husband Says He Paid $500 For Her

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Mary Davisco, 16 years old, alleged child wife of Jamico Davisco of Gary, Ind., who is in jail in that city charged with slashing the girl's throat, told the police of Gary that her parents sold her to Davisco for $500.

She said that after the sale she was bound with ropes until she consented to the transaction, but avers she took no part in the alleged marriage ceremony, which is said to have been performed in Chicago.

The girl says that Daviso and her parents devised daily tortures for her, and that finally she ran away. The court at Gary ordered Daviso not to molest the girl, and this, she avers, so angered him that he attacked her with a razor, inflicting wounds from which she now suffers.

PUBLICITY IN THE CASE OF CRIPPEN

It Does Not Meet With Approval of Inspector Dew

Quebec, Aug. 6.—The continued absence from Quebec of Inspector Dew adds another minor element of mystery to the Crippen case. It is thought that his wish to escape unwelcome attention is not of itself sufficient to account for his trip to Montreal and his further journey to Toronto and Niagara Falls.

It is strongly suspected that his mission is to arrange so that he may get his prisoners out of the country with less publicity than attended their arrival. "Nobody but those immediately concerned," Dew is quoted as saying, "will know upon what steamer we shall leave or when we land on the other side."

There is also interest in the seeming understanding between Crippen and Miss Leneve made during their flight as to what either should say or not say in the event of their arrest. According to their custodians, neither has been led into saying a single word about the other.

HELD FOR TWO DEATHS

Woonsocket Councilman Who Operated Auto Pleads Not Guilty

Providence, Aug. 6.—Councilman Napoleon D. Abel of Woonsocket, accused of the manslaughter of James O'Rourke and James Mullarkey in an automobile accident in Lonsdale on the night of July 18, was arrested in this city yesterday. Since the accident Abel has been in Canada, where he fled the day after the double fatality.

Abel was arraigned at Central Falls last night on two charges of manslaughter. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $2500 bail in each case for trial on Aug 19. Surety was furnished.

Robert T. Flynn, a bartender, said to have been Abel's companion when the accident occurred, is also on bail.

CONSUMPTIVE PRISONERS

Assertion That They Are Not Properly Cared For In Many States

New York, Aug. 6.—That there are 12,000 tuberculous prisoners in the state, federal and local prisons and jails of the United States, with less than twenty-five special institutions and hardly 800 beds for their treatment, are some of the charges made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis in a bulletin.

New York and Massachusetts are the only states where any systematic attempt has been made to transfer all tuberculous prisoners to one central institution.

Death of Horace Taylor

Washington, Aug. 6.—Horace A. Taylor, former assistant secretary of the treasury, died here, aged 74. His served under McKinley and Roosevelt from 1899 until 1908 as assistant secretary of the treasury.

BATTLESHIP NORTH DAKOTA

Reported at Newport on Way To Long Island

The battleship North Dakota, built at Quincy, arrived off Newport yesterday, where she took on oil, fuel and coal. This afternoon she leaves for Tompkinsville to take on ammunition and then goes to Fort Pond bay at the east end of Long Island, which will be the base of operations for the battleship. August 15 she returns to Newport and takes on board the officers of the naval inspection board for her official inspection at sea. An admiral visiting the vessel at Newport complimented the commanding officer on the excellent condition of the ship and crew, and the manner in which the big ship was brought to anchor from sea a few days ago.

—Hereafter when eggs are bought in New York they will be sold by the pound. This plan has often been suggested, but probably through long custom of buying them by the dozen the plan has never met with much favor, even though it seemed the fairest way to do. Little eggs are then at no disadvantage with the big ones ,and the consumer gets exactly what he pays for.

CITY OF QUINCY — POLICE DEPARTMENT

$500 REWARD

DEAD OR ALIVE

LOUIS G. RESTELLI

WANTED FOR MURDER

Charles H. Hardwick of Quincy, Mass., in behalf of the family of the late Henry E. Hardwick, authorizes the Chief of Police of the City of Quincy, Mass., to offer the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the capture of Louis G. Restelli, dead or alive, for the murder of Henry E. Hardwick and the attempt to murder C. Theodore Hardwick, on Friday, July 29, 1910, at Quincy, Mass. On the same day Restelli shot and killed his mother, Marianna Restelli, and shot his brother Gaspare Restelli, William Adrian and Benjamin Bishop, all of Quincy and connected with the granite industry of this city. The above reward to be paid unless Restelli has committed suicide when the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) will be paid for the recovery of his dead body. If he commits suicide in order to evade capture of direct pursuit the full sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) will be paid.

Full Description of Louis C. Restelli

Height 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches.
Weight 150 lbs.
Dark complexion, smooth face, but grows a small black mustache quickly.

Brown eyes, the right eye smaller than the left and showing a defect caused by a cataract and making the use of glasses practically compulsory.

He generally wears a pair of gold-bowed spectacles with a very heavy lense, though he will probably endeavor to get along without them.

He is a Lombardian and talks the English language so well that there is no Italian accent noticeable.

Has been in the granite business for years and is well known in the business, being a member of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association.

Was a member of K Co., of Fifth Massachusetts regiment, in the Spanish War.

Age 39 years.

Fairly Warned.

A man who was writing a telegram at one of the long tables in the Western Union building was asked in German by one of two men who stood near him where they could find out how much a telegram to a certain place in the far west would cost. The man volunteered to make the inquiry, did so and returned, saying that they might send a message of ten words for a certain price and that address and signature would not count. After assuring himself that the men could write he walked away, but was stopped at the door by one of the strangers with profuse thanks. "I have been in the city only a few days," he said, "and was told on shipboard and since I landed that everybody would try to swindle me. I spoke to two men today, and both did me a favor. I no longer have any fear." "That's right," said the man, "but, just the same, look out for the third man."—New York Tribune.

She Loved His Tomb.

An immensely wealthy widow who gave yearly hundreds of thousands to charity decided to personally inspect some individual cases of deserving poverty herself. One of her agents brought before her a poorly clad woman, saying:

"Here is a poor old woman, a very decent sort of person. Her husband used to go about with a dancing bear. This creature, though usually very tame and gentle, one day threw itself on its master and ate him up."

"Alas, my good sir," the old woman broke in, "since that moment the poor beast and myself have been without a home!"

"What! The beast!" asked the wealthy woman. "Is it the same that devoured your husband?"

A Benevolent Censor.

A trio of young ladies spent some weeks last year at an out of the way village in the mountain region. They found the village postmaster a quaint old character, whose ways were as original as they were startling, so that the daily trip to the postoffice became a real event.

"Is there any mail for us, major?" asked one of the young ladies as she appeared at the window one morning.

"No; they ain't a thing for you all this mawnin', Miss Mary," was the reply. "They wasn't nothin' come for you but a letter that looked like advertisin', an' so I opened it, and sure enough it was jest some advertisement about somethin' or other, and I says to myself, says I, 'Now, Miss Mary don't want to tote such stuff as that home with her,' and so I throwed it in the waste box."—Youth's Companion.

Fishbone Implements.

In India the jawbone of the boaler fish is employed by the natives about Ducca. The teeth, being small, recurved and closely set, act as a fine comb for carding cotton, in removing the loose and coarse fibres and all extraneous matter from the cotton wool.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Spanish Premier Bound to Enforce Respect For Law

HIS POLICY PLAINLY OUTLINED

Would Have Allowed Manifestation at Any Place Other Than San Sebastian or Bilboa—Says Adversaries Shall Have a Lesson If They Want It and Must Be Responsible For Whatever May Follow

Madrid, Aug. 6.—Simultaneous with the rushing of troops to San Sebastian to cope with an uprising which the government fears may grow out of the holding there tomorrow of the interdicted demonstration of the clerical forces, Premier Canalejas issued a statement outlining his policy in the premises.

In it Canalejas declares that the demonstration would have been permitted elsewhere than at San Sebastian or Bilbao; in fact, that he desires it to be held in order that its strength may be shown.

He says, however, that the law will be enforced and that his adversaries will be responsible for whatever happens. The statement of the premier follows:

"I would have allowed the manifestation if it had been announced to be held elsewhere than at Bilbao, where a strike of coal miners is in progress, or at San Sebastian, which is crowded with visitors on Sundays.

"I know that priests are distributing arms, and also that the manifestants intend to bring women and children with them in order to prevent military intervention. But I am determined to enforce respect for the law. Troops will be distributed at strategic points, and the railroad will be held for reinforcements.

"If my adversaries want a lesson, they shall have it. They will be responsible for whatever happens. The manifestation has only been adjourned. I desire that it shall occur in order that its strength may be shown; but it must occur elsewhere and without constraint or threats."

Senor Felin, the chief of the Carlists, has invited the Carlists throughout Spain to send delegates to the demonstration at San Sebastian Sunday.

El Liberal demands the expulsion of Mgr. Vico, the papal nuncio to Spain, on the the ground that he is inciting Catholics to rebellion.

SINKS IN SMOOTH SEA

Canadian Pacific Steamer Hits a Reef, but No Lives Are Lost

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 6.—The Canadian Pacific steamship Princess May, which left Skagway for Vancouver with eighty passengers and a crew of sixty-eight, struck the North reef of Sentinel islet in the dark, but not in foggy weather, and in a smooth sea, and sank two hours later.

All the passengers and their baggage were taken to the lighthouse on Sentinel islet, whence they will be brought to Juneau by steamers that have gone to their relief. None of the passengers or crew is injured.

The steamer will be a total loss, the bottom being torn open so that it will be impossible to raise her. Captain McLeod and a number of the crew will stand by the ship.

TREASURE WRECK LOCATED

Constant Guard Over Supposed Remains of Steamer Atlantic

Detroit, Aug. 6.—Believing they have a $500,000 treasure in their grasp, men are guarding night and day what is believed to be the wreck of the steamer Atlantic off Long Point, in Lake Erie.

The Atlantic was sunk in collision in 1852 by the steamer Ogdensburg and 150 lives were lost. Many were drowned in their berths. The wreck lies in 158 feet of water. In the hold, it is believed divers will find two safes containing $400,000 in gold.

The wreck of the Atlantic was found virtually intact. No skeletons were found in the superficial examination.

HATS UNDERVALUED

Eleven Cases of Panama Lids Seized by Gotham Customs Officials

New York, Aug. 6.—Another seizure of Panama hats imported into this country was made by special agents of the treasury department, on the ground that the hats were undervalued by the consignees.

Eleven cases, valued by the agents at $23,500, were taken from bonded warehouses to be examined by customs appraisers. Customs officials refuse to state the amount of the alleged undervaluation.

MONTT VISITS TAFT

President of Chile Guest of President of the United States

Boston, Aug. 6.—President Pedro Montt of Chile, who at one time was his country's minister to the United States, and Mrs. Montt arrived in Boston last evening from New York. They spent last night at the Touraine and this morning they were taken to Beverly on President Taft's yacht, the Mayflower, where they will lunch with the Taft family and Governor and Mrs. Draper, who have been invited to meet the foreign visitors.

President Montt expects to get back to New York tonight. On Monday he and his family will go to West Point aboard a revenue cutter.

LEASE UNSKILLED MEN TO FARMERS

How State Employment Bureau Would Dispose of the Lazy

Boston, Aug. 6.—The monthly bulletin of the state free employment office proposes a solution of the question of keeping all employed whether they are inclined to toil or not. It suggests that those who will not work be made to work by being placed in institutions and, from such institutions, leased to farmers of the state.

A job is the only thing that will keep one from being sent away if the desires of the state office are realized. They want every one to belong to the "producing class." It's a case of going to work on a job you find for yourself or going to work on a job the state finds for you by leasing you out to some farmer.

What Bryan Thinks of Democrats Who Supported Lorimer

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 6.—"Any Democrat who voted for William Lorimer is not fit for a representative position; it is hardly safe to allow him to run at large."

In these and similar words of denunciation, W. J. Bryan reads out of the Democratic party those members of the Illinois legislature who supported the junior senator of that state.

"Any Democrat," he adds, "who voted for Lorimer for patriotic reasons ought to be retired to private life and kept there. It is almost as dangerous to have a fool in the legislature as a knave."

STORK IS GENEROUS

Brings Two Sets of Triplets In Rhode Island Within a Week

Providence, Aug. 6.—For the second time within a week Rhode Island can boast of triplets. The stork has brought two girls and a boy to the house of Mrs. Arthur Warren of Pawtucket, who is spending the summer at Narragansett Terrace. Both the mother and the babies are reported to be doing finely.

The first set of triplets was born to Mrs. Walter W. Cary of this city, Sunday, and in that case the new arrivals were also two girls and a boy.

JURY TO HEAR GLOVER CASE

Probate Court Decision Upholding Will Is Set Aside

OBJECTIONS ARE OVERRULED

Counsel For Widow of Murdered Man Claims That Panel Would Be Biased Because of Publicity Given the Case—Supreme Court Judge Advises Him to Wait Until New Trial to Press His Contention

Boston, Aug. 6.—Judge Morton of the supreme court allowed the contestants in the Glover will case to frame an issue for a jury trial in Middlesex county in the fall. The issue is: "Was the will of Clarence F. Glover procured by fraud and undue influence of Lillian M. Glover?" She is the widow of the testator who was murdered in a laundry in Waltham. Hatttie Le Blanc, charged with that murder, is awaiting trial.

After a long hearing in the probate court in Middlesex county, Judge McIntyre allowed the will and four of the brothers of the testator, William L., Albert R., Arthur B. and Norman S. Glover, appealed from that decree.

They filed a number of issues which they desired to frame for a jury trial, but in court yesterday Jesse Gove, of counsel for the contestants, waived all except the single issue which was allowed. The counsel say that evidence bearing on two of the other issues, relating to the marriage of Lillian Glover to the testator and of the murder of the latter can be put in under the issue allowed with a view to showing prejudice on her part.

Samuel D. Elmore, executor of the will, appeared as counsel for himself and vigorously opposed the motion to frame issues. He contended that it would be impossible to draw a jury which was not biased by reason of the publicity that has been given to the case. Elmore is counsel for Mrs. Glover.

Judge Morton permitted counsel to offer any consideration or suggestion that might tend to influence his mind so as to cause him in the exercise of his discretion to deny the motion for a jury trial, though he assured the attorney that he was undertaking a heavy burden. Elmore then proceeded to delve into a big pile of newspapers and memoranda that he had on the table.

When Elmore had concluded Morton asked Gove what he proposed to show in the case, and in reply Gove said:

"We expect to show that Glover himself only a few days before signing the will told a witness that he had either got to sign away his rights, go to prison, or a bullet, and that shortly before his death he said to the same person: 'I had to either sign away my rights, or make a will.'

"We expect to show that previous to that time for years he had told his brother that his wife was making life a hell on earth for him, and that he couldn't do what he wanted to. We shall show evidence of these things, and we think we can satisfy a jury of unprejudiced men that this instrument was not the will of Clarence F. Glover, but was a will he was forced to make in order to get peace inside his own home and that he never intended to make such a disposition of his property."

Judge Morton said that he would allow the motion to frame the issue in question. He said that when the case was reached for trial, if it was felt that a fair trial would be impossible, counsel could then present the considerations urged on the court and such other matters as he might have, and if the court then felt that counsel's view was correct the issue could be discharged and the case tried by a single justice instead of by a jury.

COMPLAINANT DROPS DEAD

Was on Way to Court to Testify Against Boys Who Robbed Him

Claremont, N. H., Aug. 6.—Public spanking by parents took the place of a sentence to the industrial school given two boys in court, charged with taking packages of tobacco from the store of Louis A. Bean, a blind man.

When Bean was notified to appear at court to testify against the boys he started on the way from his grocery store at the lower village and dropped dead on the street. He had heart disease, and it is thought the excitement was too much for him.

Hard to attend to household duties
With a constantly aching back.
A woman should not have a bad back,
And she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.
Doan's Kidney Pills make well Kidneys.

Here is a Quincy woman who endorses this claim:

Mrs. Deborah Prouty, 39 Quincy avenue, Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement or an attempt to stoop, sent sharp pains through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I had known so many people who had used them with benefit, that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. The use of three boxes convinced me that they were the best kidney remedy to be had. I am now in good health."

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Coming Aviation Meet Will Make Bostonians Wish Their Necks of Rubber—Provincetown Monument Is both Big and Bad, Say Art Critics—Hubbites Spend Most for Government but Some Say They Get Most—Vermont Publisher Stirs up Suffrage Interest with Yellow Post Card—A colored Poet Who Appreciates a Harvard Education.

To defend the Hub from the charge of being the most extravagant city in America the Boston girl would like to say that perhaps nowhere else is so much done to make people comfortable. The sight of more than one hundred thousand people on a warm Sunday enjoying the sea breezes on the recreation piers and bridges at City Point is enough to make one exclaim that if you must live in a big city Boston's the place. It costs more to run the city then some others, but perhaps—in spite of the poor police protection on the Common—Bostonians get something like their money's worth.

Athletic young men "up in the air" have been witnessed by encircling and expectant crowds of femininity before now at football and baseball games in the Harvard Stadium, but never such dizzy fights as may be seen during the first week in September when Boston's first great aviation meet will occur. About all the types of flying machines ever invented will soar above the classic Charles, not the least interesting of which, locally, will be New England's own particular biplane, the Flying Fish. This creation of Mr. Starling Burgess' fancy has already soared over Newburyport meadows, now and then bumping its nose into the marsh grass. The well known machines from outside New England will all be represented, thanks to the enterprise of the Harvard Aeronautical Club. Six French aviators will fly monoplanes. There will be dirigibles and man carrying kites. Although this has long been a great uplift city never before will there have been so many people in Boston looking up as during the days Sept. 3-13.

All Boston's away to New England's jumping off place, Provincetown. It's a quaint popular village at all times in the vacation season, but just now the new monument and President Taft are the two big attractions. The art critics don't like the Pilgrim monument. They say frankly that to stick a copy of an Italian bell tower above the sand dunes at the tip of Cape Cod is to display the minimum of originality and good taste. The monument commemorates the landing of the Pilgrims, but nothing about it is appropriate to the place or the people. However, the monument is big, being the second highest shaft of solid construction in the United States, and the view from the top is rarely fine. Many of the good people who gathered about its base at the dedication on August 5 came away with no idea that it is bad art—an imposing give away of American taste and intelligence.

Interesting testimony concerning the apparent inevitableness of women suffrage abroad was brought to Boston by a returning tourist on the Ivernia. "Will the suffragists win in England," was asked of Herbert Myrick, Springfield publisher, prominent in all sorts of good causes. "Nothing can stop that movement," he replied. It is simply one phase of a really world wide movement for woman's advance. Even the women of royalty are interested, among them being the beautiful queen of Italy, who is noted for her housewifely accomplishments." Such tidings from the other side add cheer to the efforts of the New England suffragists, whose activities these warm weeks are sufficiently strenuous. One of their brilliant midsummer innovations was the summer resort suffrage party of August 2, held at Nonquit under the auspices of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, with such speakers as Baroness Serge Alexander Kroff of Finland, Mrs. Stanley McCormick of Boston and Miss Alice C. Carpenter of Fitzwilliam, N. H. The campaign in Massachusetts mill towns continues. Nor are evidences wanting that in the other New England states people are hearing about the justice and expediency of giving women the ballot. From St. Johnsbury, Vt., it is reported by the Woman's Journal that an enterprising publisher has got out and is circulating a yellow postcard, bearing on one side a colored map of Vermont, with all its counties, and the Vermont motto and coat of arms; and on both sides the words in large type: "Women vote for President in Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho. Why not in Vermont?"

If most white boys felt the lure of a college education as strongly as did Mr. E. Smyth Jones, colored, the educational institutions of New England would have to multiply their teaching forces by ten. This Mississippi youth, a poet, some of whose verses have been commended by high authorities, beat his way from Dixie, stealing or begging rides and walking, until one midsummer evening he stood where he had imaginatively longed to be, in the Harvard Yard. It was not very lively there and, seeing no one of whom to ask questions, Mr. Jones inquired of a custodian in the basement of a building where he could find President Eliot. Suspicions of his being an imposter were aroused and he was arrested as a vagrant. Judge Arthur Stone before whom he was haled saw that he was telling a straight story, but held his case over for a few days during which the young poet was evidently better off in jail than he might have been elsewhere, for he spent his time in composing an impassioned ode of thankfulness to the kind hearted judge. On his final appearance he was represented by a distinguished lawyer of his own race and as there was absolutely no case against him he was dismissed. At the same time he received an appointment as an assistant janitor at Harvard College, so that he will now get the coveted opportunity to carry on studies which he believes can be pursued in connection with his janitorial work. Men of his race have before now distinguished themselves at the oldest and richest of American universities. Ethel Angier.

A Bridge Fight

It Broke an Engagement.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

It stretched across the salt marsh and connected two villages. Harborhead folk called it "the red bridge," while Portside people grimly referred to it as "the white bridge." As a matter of fact, it had never been painted at all, and now, after two years' exposure to wind and weather, the new wood had taken on soft gray tints that blended with the silver tide that ebbed and flowed between the piles.

Although Harborhead and Portside were connected by the new bridge and the vehicles of both villages rumbled to and fro over the planks, the inhabitants were widely separated by a growing bitterness.

Parson Lane of Portside had pounded the pulpit vigorously over the matter. "Pots of paint! Pots of paint!" he exclaimed one memorable Sunday; "Have my people drowned their souls in pots of paint? The good Lord made it possible for these villages to be united by a beautiful bridge, and you wrangle over the painting of it as if the color mattered! Brethren, see that your souls are as white as you would have the bridge painted. Let not the red smirch of anger sully its purity!"

After that sermon the bitterness was intensified. The Harborhead people who weekly crossed the bridge to attend Parson Lane's church fluttered homeward to spread the good man's words far and wide with most unhappy results.

Noah Wade and Almira Turner were to be married in June. Three times a week Noah crossed the bridge to Harborhead to see his sweetheart. They had never discussed the bridge matter because they had been too happy to talk about anything except their own wonderful affairs.

The Tuesday after Parson Lane's sermon Almira waited at the front gate for Noah. She could see him stepping quickly across the bridge, tall, erect, with his head poised high. All the Wades were proud. The girl's blue eyes did not soften at her lover's approach. A new expression came into them.

"Waiting for me?" smiled Noah, taking the hat from his brown hair and covering Almira's little hand with his own sunburned fingers.

She drew her hand quietly from beneath his touch. "Yes," she said gravely. "Come with me, Noah; I have something to say to you. Let us go to the orchard."

"What is the matter? Are you in trouble? Has anything happened?" demanded Noah anxiously, falling into step beside her.

Almira shook her head. In silence they went across the grass to the orchard and paused in the shade of the gnarled old apple trees.

"What is the matter, Almira?" repeated Noah at last.

She looked at the distant sails with steadfast eyes. "Father says I shan't marry any one from over 'the white bridge,' and I don't know that I want to."

"Personally I don't care a rap what color the bridge is," retorted Noah. "I've crossed it for two years to see you, Almira, and now at this late day you suddenly drop me and say it's because I live over the bridge—a flimsy excuse. Why don't you say outright that you don't care for me and never did?" His face was growing whiter, and the hand pressed against the tree trunk was clinched until the knuckles were livid.

Suddenly Noah swung away from the tree and without one backward glance tramped across the grass, leaped the fence into a winding lane and disappeared along the shore road.

After that it became known that Almira's wedding garments were carefully laid away out of sight, and Noah Wade no longer crossed the bridge three times a week.

Then followed a summer unprecedented for its lack of rain. Weeks followed days, and months followed weeks, while the sun poured relentlessly down on the sister town and burned the vegetation to crisp brownness. Only the salt grass that was wet by the tides remained green. Crops died in the baked earth.

September came, fiercely hot. One breathless evening Almira Turner walked listlessly along the bridge. It was said that whatever breeze there might be would be felt on the long wooden structure that united the two villages, yet in its way formed a barrier between many hearts.

Others were walking on the bridge, but it was noticeable that Portside folks walked only as far as the middle of the bridge and then retraced their steps. Harborhead people did the same thing at their end, so there was no passing over the bridge save by those who had business to attend to. Where friendly relations were established between families in the warring villages it was considered most amicable and politic to visit by way of the long road around the shore and avoid the unhappy bridge.

Almira was thinking bitterly of what her father had said when she announced that her engagement to Noah Wade had been broken. He had stared incredulously at her.

"Why, Miry, honey, I was only joking! Now, you go along and make it up with Noah this minute. There'll be bridges standing long after we poor mortals are through trying to be happy in this world."

But Almira could not make it up with Noah Wade. He did not give her a chance. He went away from Portside and found work elsewhere, and she had not seen him through the long summer. Now she was thinking of him and of her foolish excuse for giving him up.

A loud rumble of thunder sent the pedestrians on the bridge scurrying home, but Almira lingered, watching the lightning leap from cloud to cloud in that ominous black mountain in the northwest, listening to the crackle and volley of thunder, barking to the sibilant hiss of the high tide among the bridge timbers.

Just as she turned her steps homeward there came a blinding crash that seemed to enwrap the whole village of Harborhead in yellow light; then all sound ceased for an instant, and out of the murky darkness there sprang a bright flame and another and another. The lightning had struck in Harborhead.

Almira hurried toward home as the wild clamor of the church bells rang out. If the Portside people refused to bring out their fire apparatus to the rescue of Harborhead the closely populated little village was doomed. It was known that Portsiders were very bitter against the people over the bridge.

Just as she reached the gate there came another sound, mingled with the roar of thunder, the clash of bells and the shouts of men. It was the high, sweet clang of the Portside fire bell, and it was followed by the rumble of the little engine across the bridge. It dashed past Almira's gate, dragged by a score of strong, willing hands. The hook and ladder truck came in its wake, and there, sitting high on the seat, steering the truck, was Noah Wade, his face tense and set in the glare of the fire.

The devastating storm died away while the valiant men fought the flames that licked greedily at the frame store buildings and threatened many a nearby home with destruction. Portside men and men of Harborhead worked side by side, and differences were forgotten in the single aim that prompted all.

Many times that night Almira's heart failed within her as she watched Noah risk his life within the flaming buildings. Once he brought out a little child from the tenements over the stores, and the tenderness with which he bore the child and placed it in its mother's arms brought tears to the girl's sad eyes.

And then came the moment when their eyes met across the flames. The sudden leap of recognition in Noah's glance was answered by Almira's appealing eyes, and then the smoke hung between them once more.

The weeks that followed after the fire were not soon forgotten. Differences were patched up and mended so that they would not again break. Portside and Harborhead people mingled together as they had before, the days of the bridge trouble. There were church festivals and entertainments that were enjoyed by everybody, and over all was the feeling of satisfaction that the bridge trouble was at an end.

The Harborhead people had gratefully announced their willingness that the bridge should be painted white in view of the prompt and neighborly services of the Portside firemen. Portside people agreed to abide by a choice by vote.

When the vote was counted it was found that all Harborhead had voted for a white painted bridge, while Portside had courteously voted for red, and the vote was tied.

Then the question was solved by a suggestion to paint the bridge green, and it was done, and so peace reigned at last, and there was much passing to and fro.

At last Noah came over to Harborhead and stopped at Almira's gate. Mrs. Turner greeted him pleasantly.

"Almira went over the bridge awhile ago, Noah. If you walk back you may meet her," she said.

Noah walked back slowly, watching for Almira's slender form and dreading to see it beside that of some other admirer. At last she came, stepping quickly, with now and then a glance at the rising full moon.

Halfway across she met Noah, and they both stopped. Noah guided her gently to the railing where they could look along the bright moonlit path that wrinkled the water.

"I've been to see you, Almira. Your mother said I might meet you," he said wistfully.

"I—went to Portside to mail a letter—to you, Noah. I thought you might get it sooner—tonight—and perhaps you would come. I wanted to tell you how foolish I've been"—

Noah stopped her words with a swift caress. "And I was on the way to tell you what a fool I've been, but we've met halfway after all."

When the wedding day came round both sides thought it would be a suitable occasion on which to celebrate the return of peace, and nothing would do but that the bridal procession should pass over the bridge which had caused so much dissention.

Spear dated March 6, 1884, and recorded in the Registry of Deeds for the County of Norfolk book 554, page 549, for breach of the condition contained in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on the premises, on THURSDAY, the twenty-fifth day of August 1910, at two o'clock, in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely.—A certain lot of land with all the buildings thereon situated in the Westerly part of said Quincy and bounded and described as follows, viz: Northerly on land of the heirs of James Usher 2nd. Ten (10) rods; Easterly on land of the heirs of Samuel Babcock, or by whom owned; Southerly on land now or late of Asaph Churchill, Westerly on Willard Street Six (6) rods. The measurements above named being more or less as the stonewall or other bounds now stand, the premises hereby conveyed containing Sixty (60) square rods more or less. Being the same premises conveyed to me by Catherine McNeil and others, by their deed of even date and to be recorded herewith.

This property will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, tax titles and assessments if any.

$500.00 will be required to be paid in cash by the purchaser at the time and place of sale. Balance cash in ten days from said sale at National Mt. Wollaston Bank, Quincy, Mass.

HORACE F. SPEAR,
Administrator of the estate of Horace B. Spear, mortgagee.
GEORGE E. ADAMS,
Attorney for mortgagee,

BRIEFS

Mrs Arthur Keeler is ill at her home on Tyler street.

Rev. Archibald McCord of Taunton is to preach at Bethany church on Sunday.

The Wollaston Golf club will hold a big open tournament on Saturday, August 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Geddes of West Quincy are occupying the Randlett house at East Milton.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church will be held in the vestry Monday evening at 7.45.

Union services of the Congregational and Baptist churches of Wollaston will be held Sunday morning at the Congregational church at 10.45 also Friday evening in the vestry at 7.45.

A large touring car was totally destroyed by fire on Granite aevnue on Friday. The fire was caused by a tire coming off which caused the automobile to slue, running into a telegraph post and upsetting the machine and in that way causing the gasoline to explode.

Warren S. Parekr, Quincy's inspector of buildings, attended the Bates Family reunion at Cohasset yesterday and was one of the speakers. Few in Quincy today are as well posted on local history as Mr. Parker, who has collected a mass of data.

Mayor Shea said this morning that he would probably not be able to act as ring master today at the Elks' circus, being held at Winthrop. He said he should attend the Granite Granite Manufacturers' outing this morning and had a business engagement for the late afternoon.

There will be no evening service in Aug. 7 and Aug. 14 owing to the large number o fthe congregation who are out of town. The Rev. John Garland, pastor of the church, will supply at Mattapan during those two Sundays. The morning services will be union services with the Congregationalists in Music hall. Sunday school will be held as usual in the home church.

OPEN RACE AT QUINCY

The principal local sporting event next week is the annual Y. R. A. of M. open race under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club, which is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon in Quincy bay, off the clubhouse at Houghs Neck. There will be races for seven classes including the sonderklasse and the Hingham one-design class. Three cash prizes will be given in each class, the total cash prizes aggregating $107. In addition to this the wins will count in the Y. R. A. of M. percentage.

Flying starts will be made by all classes. At 1.30 a gun will sound and the course flag will be hoisted on the judges' yacht. At 1.35 the preparatory gun will sound and five minutes later the starting gun for class P. The sonderklasse will be sent away at 1.45 and then classes D, I, X, H and M at intervals of five minutes. The time limit for all classes is three and one-half hours. The judges will be John O. Hall, George W. Holden, Albert H. Acorn, W. H. Huy, Walter H. Andrews, William J. Hudson, George S. Morse and Albert Packard.

The nuptial knot was tied by William Marden, Esq., Mr. Emelio M. Melvertes was best man and Miss Martha Abata, maid of honor. The bride was costumed in white silk.

A wedding breakfast was served the guests after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Daverio will reside in this city.

STEAMSHIP SEARCHED

trousers on the Beale street bridge just before the 4.07 train from Boston was due. As the train pulled into the depot Miss Sparrow says that the man ran down the stairs leading to the depot and boarded the train for Boston. This train runs express from Wollaston so that if the man was Restelli he had no opportunity of leaving it until Boston was reached. This train was in charge of Conductor Cole who will be interviewed today by Chief Burrell to see if he remembers any such passenger.

Assuming that he did take this train all trace of him has been lost after the train arrived in Boston. Some are inclined to the belief that he may have taken a train for New York his objective point being Mr. Clancy a Brooklyn granite dealer against whom he is said to have had a grudge, while others think that he made his way toward some of the granite towns of Vermont.

As soon as Chief Burrell arrived in town that afternoon he got busy with the telegraph wires and telegrams were sent to Westerly, and Providence, R. I., New London and other stations at which the New York trains made stops, giving a description of the man wanted and with a request that a lookout be kept for him. Telegrams were also sent to New York so that practically every avenue of escape was covered before any train that left Boston after 4 o'clock reached there. Yet up to the present time no report has been received that he was seen.

There has also been several rumors about the city during the past week that an Italian boy who knew Restelli saw him board the 4 o'clock car at the Presidents bridge. Friday afternoon Chief Burrell learned that this boy was Tony Pollars. When seen by the Chief he denied emphatically that he had seen Restelli or had made any statement to that effect. There are some however who believe that the boy did see Restelli as reported and that he is now trying to shield his countryman and prevent his arrest.

If Restelli went to Boston that afternoon, as now seems certain he may still be in hiding in that city among friends as there has been no clew of his being at any of the granite centres where it was natural he would go. There are plenty of Italians in the city of Boston of anarchist tendencies and it is not at all unlikely that he has found a hiding place among them.

A man who knows Restelli well says that while somewhat ignorant he is sharp and by no means a fool. That he feels that he is about as cute and smart as they make them, and just ignorant enough to think that he could come to Quincy again and do a similar trick to that of last week and get away as easily as he appears to have done that day. The man who makes this statement is one who served in the Spanish war with him. When asked if he thought that Restelli would feel any remorse for having killed his mother or Mr. Hardwick he said no, that on the contrary he would glory in what he had done and think that it was smart, and that if in hiding in Boston he was doubtless reading what the papers had to say about the case every day and laughing to himself about how big a man he was.

At the present time, locally things seem to be at a stand still although the police have by no means relaxed their vigilence in any way for they are quick to follow anything that looks like a possible clew to the whereabouts of the murderer. It is generally admitted however by those that have been following the course of events during the past week that Restelli at the present time is not in Quincy.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Ross of Quincy, George H. Hunt and Frank L. Jones of Holbrook was arraigned for drunkenness and their cases continued until Nov. 1.

Benedict Monti was arraigned for violation of the liquor law at Quincy. Case continued until Aug, 12.

—The Wall Street Journal doubtless speaks with authority when it declares that the average citizen is not so much concerned just at present over the general financial situation as over the problem of financing his summer vaaction. For some of us, at least, the problem will be solved by omitting the vacation.—Milford Gazette.

FIRST PLACE FOR DORCHEN

Massachusetts Yachts Leading In Interstate Series

The Dorchen II of the Quincy Yacht club made a fine showing in the third of the interstate races at Marblehead yesterday for the Day trophy offered to 18-foot knockabouts. The Dorchen was over six minutes ahead of the Aurora, which was nearly six minutes ahead of the first Rhode Island boat. The summary follows:

Dorchen II, A W Finley (Mass.)	2 25 15
Aurora, Pigeon Bros. (Mass.)	2 31 51
Arrow II, B C Hirst, Jr. (R I)	2 37 30
Bat, Harvey Flint (R I)	2 37 54
Hugi, Porter Fearey (R I)	2 39 35
Kittiwake, A E Whittemore (Mass.)	2 40 21

This race gives the Massachusetts two firsts out of three, and also two seconds, but only one third. Massachusetts leads in percentage and considerable interest is taken in the final race today.

MUDJEKEEWIS AT THE TOP

Winner in Cape Cat Class at Marblehead

There was another large fleet in the Corinthian series at Marblehead yesterday including several Quincy yachts. The summary of Class D follows:

Mudjekeewis, E. W. Emery	2 25 58	2 25 23
Dolly III, W. W. Arnold	2 28 10	2 26 05
Dartwell, I. M. Whittemore	2 32 28	2 32 05
Busy Bee, W. J. Coombs	2 37 21	2 32 08
Emeline, H. W. Robbins	2 40 50	2 40 21
Josephine, Tupper & Hardwick	2 44 25	2 41 57
Hustler, R. J. Carpenter	2 47 50	2 43 49

In the sonderklasse, Sally XI, Wolf, Beaver, Demon and Cima.

SPORTING NOTES.

Thirty-nine horses were entered for the matinee meet of the Old Colony Driving club at South Weymouth this afternoon.

Another open regatta off Marblehead this afternoon.

It was a walkover yesterday for the representatives of the Wollaston Golf club in the intersectional matches with members of the Brockton club. In singles R. R. Freeman, T. M. Claflin, A. H. Goodale, J. E. McLaughlin, D. E. Little and J. J. Gallagher defeated their men, and in foursomes wins were scored by Freeman and Claflin, Little and Goodale, McLaughlin and Gallagher. The totals were 9 to 0.

The Sonona Girl, Miss Lotta Crabtree's speed wonder, won the $1,000 purse in the free-for-all trot at Detroit yesterday in two straight. Her time was 2.05 3-4 and 2.08 3-4.

Members of the Fore River and Clan McGregor football teams attended the jubilee at Jamaica Plains last evening when the Boston Rovers received the Williamson challenge cup. Gold medals were also presented to Capt. Alex Houston, Vice Capt. Harry Hilland, Robert Grieve, Robert Lynch, James Martin, James Fairweather, Hugh Gray, Richard McLay, David Maitland, William Collins, George Collins, G. Guthrie, J. Smith, John Boyd, Thomas Canning, J. Mellen, T. Mellen, J. Caithness, Sam McLearie, J. Orm and Thomas Dowd.

No action ever taken by a big league magnate ever caused so much surprise in sporting circles as the disposition and proposed trade of Harry Lord of the Boston Red Sox, which was made public today. Three seasons ago Lord came with McConnell from Jess Burkett's two time permanent winning teams in Worcester, both with great reputations and greater ability. Lord made good with a crash that echoed around the circuit, playing a sensational game at bat and in the field, a pace which he kept up until this season; for some reason or other the former star, hailed as the greatest third-baseman in baseball togs today, fell down. Of course, he has been ill, but his work lacks the clean cut character that once made it noticeable.

During his illness, Clyde Engle was recruited from the Hilltoppers and filled in at third in such fine style that there is no doubt Captain Lord felt some chagrin at what he might have considered his benching as Engle was kept at third after Lord became perfectly well. Donovan wants either Lajoie or Cobb in a trade for Lord. Charlie Wagner is now captain of this team.

• • •

Mattern, the portside flinger of the Doves is one of the best in the National league. He has given but 10 hits in his last three games—four apiece in two games, and two in another. In the two hit game not a man got to second.

• • •

Sy Cobb says that either he or Davy Jones, the left fielder, must leave the Detroit team. That ought to open the chances for a trade, Lord for Cobb.

• • •

After following the Red Sox doings doesn't it seem strange they can loseo they certainly have speed.

• • •

So far the Adams A. A. has held the lead in the Granite City league without any trouble whatsoever, but Cranch is now at their very heels being tied for the first position. Particularly rosy chances follow the Cranch, for while Adams have to contend with the scrappy Fore River team, Cranch seemingly has a snap with the Hardys. Of course one can never tell, but if the tie is broken, and I don't think it will be, I think Cranch will be on top.

• • •

It appears that the reason that the Norfolk County League was about to lose City Mills and Quincy was on account of lack of attendance which indeed is very scarce, and I think the reason for this is the lack of publicity given. Those who have information have held it back with few exceptions, and so very few people know abou the league.

• • •

The water at the bath house at Ward Two has turned cold without the slighest preamble, and those who suffered once have stayed away so that really few go in compared with the enormous attendance three weeks ago.

• • •

The breeze on Town and Weymouth Back river was so fresh yesterday that the light sailing craft about those waters remained at anchor.

• • •

Today Quincy takes that crack at Stoughton, the latter being in fifth place. If Quincy and Weymouth win they will stand .769 and .636 respectively. If Quincy loses and Weymouth wins they will stand .692 and .636 so Quincy is in no danger of losing its hold on the limelight job. If Weymouth loses and Randolph in third place, wins, they will exchange places.

• • •

Bert Dickie, manager of the Adams A. A., challenged by manager Burton of the Ramblers is so anxious to meet the latter team, and so confident of winning, that he has cancelled the game scheduled for Aug. 13 and is willing to play the Ramblers at Merrymount Park, winner take all, on that date. That's a corking answer to the Ramblers' challenge and should be snapped up. The game will be a great one, and if the above named time and place are settled it will be published so the crowd will know where to go. It's a city championship game.

Gypsies and Death.

The custom of placing the property of the dead in their graves has always been followed by the true Romany gypsies. It is due to some old tradition of ill luck attending the possession of an article whose former owner is gone, and much valuable property is buried in this belief. There is also a sentiment among gypsies against the possession of anything that has belonged to a dead person, because it serves to remind the living of the departed and inspire in them a dread of death. The custom of burying their property with gypsy dead dates from the earliest history of the Romany tribes.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

Vol. 24 No. 183 | QUINCY, MASS., MONDAY EVENING, AUGUST 8, 1910 | PRICE TWO CENTS

Harvard Takes Five Year Lease Of 500 Acre Aviation Field in Quincy

$60,000 IN PRIZES FOR TEN DAYS' EVENTS

Including the $10,000 Prize offered by the Boston Globe for Flight Around Boston Light

Accommodation for 10,000 Automobiles and Big Grand Stand

News came to the Daily Ledger on Saturday morning that the Squantum marshes in Quincy would probably be used for the Harvard aviation meet, but at the same time a request to withhold the news until Monday. Now this location is advertised as the scene of meet which will be held Sept. 3-13, and will attract world wide attention.

The Sunday Journal says: The aviation meet of the Harvard Aeronautical Society, scheduled for Sept. 3 to the 13th, has grown to such proportions that Manager Adams D. Claflin and his associates have decided to transfer the scene of the meet from Soldiers Field to a tract of land, comprising approximately 500 acres along the Neponset river in the city of Quincy. For more than a week this change has been contemplated, the management realizing that Soldiers Field was far too small to hold as many events as the management and outside interests desired to have on the program.

It was announced Saturday night that the Harvard Aeronautical Society was so pleased with the new location, which lies between Neponset bridge and Squantum, that a five years lease of the property has been taken, and the property has been christened the Harvard Aviation Field.

Plans for the erection of suitable grandstands, with a seating capacity of 20,000 and other such structures as are needed for the accommodation of the contestants and public, have been perfected and building will begin at once.

One of the most attractive features of the field will be the automobile park, where space will be provided for over 10,000 machines. Occupants of automobiles will not need to alight from their machines, but will be able to enjoy a fine view of all the interesting events in every part of the field. Besides the grandstands and automobile park, there will be ample standing room for at least 100,000 other spectators.

With the new and larger tract of land the management has decided to add to the already long list of events a series of events for amateur and novice aviators, which will add to the interest of the meet.

The Harvard Aviation Feld is easily reached by the Boston Elevated railway cars via Neponset Bridge, from which point the Old Colony railway cars take the passengers directly to the field. The grounds also can be reached by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railway system and special trains will be run during the meet to the Atlantic station.

The management has received a communication from Clifford B. Harmon, the wealthy New York amateur aviator, that he will send on two French monoplanes and a Farman biplane, in which he has made some record flights. Mr. Harmon will contest this for the $5000 Harvard cup to be awarded in the contest of dropping imitation bombs. The management is now making arrangements for the use of a real battleship in the harbor, instead of a mimic battle ship model, as a target for the "bombs." Harmon has demonstrated in his aeroplanes to his own and others' satisfaction that a fleet of battleships could easily be destroyed at sea by bombs dropped from a flying machine.

The Globe says: The tallest kind of hustling will have to be done by everybody connected with the coming

SHORE DINNER AND SPORTS

At Annual Outing of Quincy Granite Manufacturers

A grand shore dinner, a closely contested base ball game and a series of sports, were the big events at the summer outing of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association on Saturday. Bass Point was the objective point and over 150 manufacturers and guests enjoyed the hour's sail from Boston.

The ball game was soon underway after arrival of Mayor Shea as umpire and Secretary Dunphy as scorer. The teams lined up as follows:

WEST QUINCY		SOUTH QUINCY
L White	pitcher	R Craig
A Elcock	catcher	W Spargo
L Badger	first base	Marwick
Tocci	second base	F Craig
Cantley	third base	W Deacon
H Badger	short stop	R Prout
Walker	left field	E Collins
Bianchi	centre field	A Milne, Jr.
Reinhalter	right field	J Kelley

After five innings the score stood 11 to 11 and was decided a tie.

The excursionists then posed for a group picture before a revolving camera. An excellent picture about 8x25 inches was secured, showing everyone in the party clearly.

The dinner was served at the Bass Point House. Each guest was assigned to a member of the committee, and occupied seats at the head table. The guests included: Mayor William T. Shea, Seward W. Jones, president of the National Granite Dealers Association; R. D. Smith, secretary of the National Granite Dealers Association; Postmaster Charles L. Hammond of Quincy; Editor Frank F. Prescott of the Quincy Daily Ledger, and other members of the press and trade journals.

The regular shore dinner was served, the menu including:

Clam Chowder
Tomatoes Cucumbers
Steamed Clams
Melted Butter Clam Broth
Fried Fish
Potato Chips
Broiled Chicken
Green Corn
Half a Lobster in Shell
Clam Fritters
Ice Cream Cake
Watermelon
Hot Biscuits Cigars

There was no speech making. After dinner a rival photographer, with considerable difficulty, got the manufacturers to pose for another group picture. Then came a series of sports under the direction of Alfred O. Diack and George Clark, which attracted considerable attention and resulted as follows:

Potato race—Won by Ed. Jenkins; Ed. Monahan second.

Hop, step and jump—Won by Ed. Jenkins, 35ft. 4 in.; R. Craig second, 33 ft. 6 in.

Three legged race—Won by Konstant Tikkne and Robert Craig; Ed. Jenkins and Ed. Monahan second.

A challenge race of 200 yards between George Prout and Walter Deacon was won by the former.

Prizes were awarded for each event the winner being allowed to help themselves from a grab bag. The prizes were more amusing than valuable.

Fully as interesting as the scheduled sports was the tug of war contests, one man on a side. Councilman E. J. Sandberg found everyone easy until he got up against Councilman John R. Richards, but Jack held him.

The trip home was enlivened with music and singing, and the wharves echoed with "America" when the steamer docked. Most of the party reached Quincy at 6.30, feeling indebted to the following committee for a very enjoyable day's outing: John C. Murray, Thomas J. Dunphy, William T. Spargo, George Clark and Alfred O. Diack.

SLIGHT FIRE.

The alarm from Box 42 at 8.24 Sunday evening was for a slight fire in a double house on Garfield street owned by John L. Miller. It appears that a man in one of the tenements was trying to find a kitten that was in hiding under a lounge. He lit a match to see where the puss was, and the flame coming in contact with fringe, set at on fire. The burning fringe made considerable smoke but there was but little fire. The recall sounded inside of ten minutes.

RAMBLERS WIN.

The Ramblers took thir seventeenth victory Saturday when they defeated the St. Mark's of Dorchester at the Atlantic playground by the one-sided score of 17 to 2, Rice and Chapman simply playing with the visitors.

INNS RAIDED AT SQUANTUM

Quincy Officers Secure Liquor At Both Hotels

Acting Inspector Goodhue and Special Officer George A. McKay made two successful raids at Squantum Sunday morning. The two officers drove to Squantum in a buggy and after the raids had been made, telephoned for the wagon. It was a long trip for the patrol wagon to Squantum and it was gone over two hours from the station.

The places raided were Lee's Inn and the Squantum Inn. At the former place a quart of whiskey, a gill of brandy, a gill of vermouth, a pint of freezamint, two pints of champagne, 41 bottles of beer, 30 bottles of wine, cocktail and beer glasses and a syphon of soda were seized.

At the Squantum Inn the officers seized four quarts of whiskey in bottles, a gallon jug of whiskey, two bottles of brandy, 49 bottles of ale, 120 bottles of beer, 13 bottles of champagne, four bottles of vermouth, a bottle of creme da menthe, three bottles of gin, a bottle of rhine wine, a bottle of sherry, two bottles of cocktails, fifteen bottles of cordials, sixteen empty beer bottles glasses, mixers, etc. The proprietors were summoned to appear in court.

"It's business, Dusty. I ain't anxious to get into no hot water. Fact is, I hate water of all kinds."

CHIEF BURRELL WORKING MANY CLEWS

Mysterious Telegrams from Cape Breton Which Are Positive in Their Information

Restelli Reported Also at South Station on Fatal Day

The Police department are still hard at work on the Restelli case and every clew is being promptly investigated in the hopes that some of them may bring the much wanted man into their hands. Late Saturday night Chief Burrell received a telegram from a man named Griffin, supposed to be a railroad conductor, from Sydney, Cape Breton, who said that a man supposed to be Restelli had been cornered in that city and that his destination was probably Newfoundland. The dispatch said that the man was being watched.

Chief Burrell immediately wired him to get in touch with the police, and he also wired Chief McEachern to look up Mr. Griffin to see if he was reliable. The reply came back that Mr. Griffin was a reliable man, and asked for instructions as to the suspect. A wire went back to arrest the suspect at all costs. The chief then sat down to wait the result.

Sunday Chief Burrell also received a telegram from Chief Watts of Boston containing the same information. Chief Watts it appears had also received a telegram from Griffin. Chief Watt's dispatch also said that the suspect was still on the island.

No more information was received by Chief Burrell, but this morning Mayor Shea received a telegram from Mr. Griffin. The telegram was sent Sunday night, but was not delivered until this morning. It came

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

An effort should be made to increase the reward for the apprehension of Restelli, the murderer. Not because of the danger, but because the best detective work is needed and may occasion considerable travel and expense. Quincy people feel a little more at ease, now that it is well established that the assassin escaped from the city, but they will not be entirely at ease until Restelli is located.

The city of Quincy received good write-ups in the Sunday papers, one paper having an illustrated page article on "Fore River's great industrial possibilities," on the southern boundary line, and al lthe papers announcing prominently the fact that the Harvard Aeronautical Society had leased 500 acres along the Neponset river at the northern boundary. Quincy may become as well known in the aviation field as Issy, Fort Myer, Anvours, Chalons, Bethany Mourmelon, Rheims and other cities.

The Old Colony Street Railway Company should promptly ask the City Council for a location on Atlantic street that it may handle the crowds of people who will attend the aviation meets at Squantum, not only next month but in the future. Such a location is needed to accommodate the Squantum travel every Saturday and Sunday. Atlantic street could be used for travel to Squantum, and the Billings street route for travel from Squantum or vice versa. The present arrangement where passengers travel backwards part of the way is not very satisfactory.

COURAGE SOON LEAVES THEM

Would-Be Demonstrators at San Sebastian Skedaddle

OVERAWED BY THE MILITARY

Priests and Peasants Take to Their Heels Rather Than Confront Strong Government Force—Bull Fight Instead of Rioting, and Sunday Passes Without Untoward Incident—Premier Urged to Follow Up Advantage

San Sebastian, Aug. 8.—The government's rigorous measures and the formal renunciation by the Catholic junta of the threatened demonstration in this city insured comparative tranquility Sunday and a largely attended bull fight was the chief incident of the day.

From daylight the streets were patrolled by cavalry, infantry and gendarmes, while heavy bodies of troops were held in readiness in the barracks at Miramar palace, where the queen mother and the royal children are in residence.

The gravest incident occurred Saturday evening, when groups of Catholics assembled, shouting "Death to Spain!"

Thousands of indignant people rushed towards the manifestants and only the personal intervention of the governor at the head of a platoon of police prevented an attack. Nearly 150 arrests were made.

Many amusing scenes were witnessed. Priests leading trudging bands of peasants took to their heels when they found the city in possession of the military. The peasants, all their courage gone, were disarmed and easily persuaded to return to their homes. In some cases the soldiers were compelled to supply the poor people, who had come into the city to rail at the government, with food.

Some apprehension arose that the bull fight would cause trouble, for there were many thousand manifestants in the city, and a large number of them proceeded to the arena, but it passed off without untoward incident.

As a matter of fact thousands were drawn to the city by curiosity and to attend the bull fight, rather than with any intention of taking part in demonstrations. There were a few street brawls, and seditious cries and the arrests which sometimes followed were among the most exciting incidents. Absolute order prevailed last evening.

Official advices indicate that all is quiet throughout the Basque provinces. All except a few of those arrested will be liberated today.

The local authorities are convinced that the Catholic demonstration masked a Carlist plot. Catholics are extremely indignant at the government's repressive measures. Senor Urguijo, the chief organizer of the movement, said that the purpose of the manifestation was peaceful.

The authorities declare that the monks have taken an active part in fomenting the agitation, and it is charged that they have distributed arms among the people.

Victory For the Government

Madrid, Aug. 8.—Premier Canalejas announces his intention to expose before parliament the conspiracy against the government in the north of Spain. The general impression here is that the government has won onstration at San Sebastian which would have been sure to have caused bloodshed.

The Liberal and Republican newspapers urge the premier to follow up his advantage vigorously. The Universo, a Catholic organ, declares that the course of the government betrays fear.

Alfonso's Plans Unchanged

Cowes, Aug. 8.—King Alfonso appeared reassured by the cheerful news from San Sebastian. His plans are unchanged and he will go with Queen Victoria to Eaton hall on Wednesday, as the guest of the Duke of Westminster, remaining there until Friday.

REFUSES TO WED SISTER

Traditions of His Nation Are Upset by Crown Prince of Siam

San Francisco, Aug. 8.—The crown prince of Siam is adding gray hairs to the head of his royal father, King Chaulalongkorn, and has set the country by the ears generally by defying the traditions of a long ancestral line in refusing to marry his sister.

According to Rev. C. Dodd, a Presbyterian missionary who arrived here yesterday, all Siam is agog over the prince's announcement. From time immemorial, the missionary says, it has been the Siamese custom.

Food Is Becoming Scarce

Campbellton, N. B., Aug. 8.—Campbellton faces a new disaster. The food which the relief committee has been distributing daily to the sufferers, who have no other means of avoiding starvation, is almost exhausted, and unless more money is forthcoming the building fund must be drawn on to keep the people alive.

"BE RELEGATED TO OBLIVION"

What Gore Hopes Will Become of Charge Against Sherman

HE MERELY QUOTED HAMON

Choctaw Indian Leaders Swear That They Were Offered Bribes to Withdraw Opposition to McMurray Contracts—Further Sensational Testimony In Land Scandal—Curtis and McGuire Make Denial

"I have never, either in the senate or before the investigationg committee, made any charge whatever against Mr. Sherman. I never said he was interested in the McMurray contracts, directly or indirectly. The vice president's name was mentioned to me by Hamon as the man higher up who was interested in the contracts.

"When I testified before the committee I was under obligation to relate all that Hamon had said, and when it came to mentioning what Hamon had said to me about Mr. Sherman, I named the vice president with extreme reluctance. I had no alternative but to tell the truth.

"I think I owe it to Mr. Sherman and to the country to hope that the fact that Hamon mentioned Mr. Sherman will be relegated to perpetual oblivion."

Not only Jacob L. Hamon but J. F. McMurray was mentioned as a would-be briber in the investigation of the $3,000,000 Oklahoma Indian land deal before the special congressional committee.

McMurray is the holder of the contracts with the Chocktaw and Chickasaw Indians, to promote which in congress Senator Gore charges he was offered a bribe.

D. C. McCurtain, a Choctaw Indian and a delegate to Washington for his tribe, charged that in 1906 McMurray offered him a bribe of $25,000 to withdraw opposition to the old tribal McMurray contracts which subsequently were disapproved by President Roosevelt.

Green McCurtain, chief of 18,000 Choctaws, a venerable Indian of 62 years, took the stand and told the committee that one George W. Scott, who he believed acted in the interests of McMurray, offered him one-fourth of the "profits" to be realized from the land deal, provided he induced the tribe to withdraw all opposition to the deal. This offer referred to new contracts held by McMurray, which are the cause of the present investigation.

The amount of the bribe mentioned by D. C. McCurtain, who is a son of the chief, is the same as that which Gore alleges was offered him on May 6 last by Hamon to put through the pending contracts which, according to Gore, would result in the sale of 450,000 acres of coal, asphalt and timber lands owned by the Indians to a New York syndicate on a basis that would give McMurray and his associates an "attorney's fee" of 10 percent, or $3,000,000.

The presentation of the charges against McMurray followed another day of sensational testimony, during which Senator Curtis of Kansas and Congressman McGuire of Oklahoma appeared on the stand to refute statements that they were "interested" in the deal.

Senator Curtis testified to having been summoned by telephone to the White House to discuss there with President Taft and Vice President Sherman the merits of the McMurray contracts. President Taft expressed the belief that the 10 percent fee was too high, and his visitor agreed with him. This, the senator thought, sufficiently refuted the imputation that he was "interested" in the land deal.

Congressman Creager of Oklahoma attacked the testimony previously given by Hamon, whom he accused of having suggested that he might obtain an "interest" in the contracts. This Hamon denied.

Congressman McGuire denied he ever was "interested" in the contracts, or sought their approval by congress. He asserted he was never improperly approached in regard to the contracts.

R. L. Murray of the Chickasaw tribe said Governor Johnson of that tribe urged him repeatedly to induce as many Indians as possible to send telegrams to Washington to have the contracts approved, which he refused to do.

Little Heroine Drowned

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 8.—Nora Dunlea, aged 14, went to the bottom of Little river, West Gloucester, a heroine who died in the successful endeavor to save the lives of three of her playmates who were in grave danger of drowning and who, by the merest chance, escaped the same fate.

Farrall Indicted For Murder

Boston, Aug. 8.—James F. Farrall was indicted on a charge of murder in the second degree by the grand jury. He is charged with having shot twice and killed James H. Lawson at the lodging house which Farrall kept at 906 Washington street.

THE AMES GRASS.

The young man looked out of the factory window. The young woman who was passing at the moment nodded and smiled. The young man was a little startled.

"That was for me," said a voice behind him.

He turned and saw the assistant superintendent at his shoulder.

"I wouldn't have objected if it had been for me," said the younger man.

"Better cut all that out," said the assistant superintendent, "until you get a fatter pay envelope. Ten dollars a week isn't calculated to encourage luxurious tastes."

He laughed as he searched for the cause that had disabled one of the factory machines—the young man standing close and watching the work.

"Pleasant-looking girl," said the young man.

"No doubt of that," growled the assistant as he struggled with a refractory bolt. "And she's as pleasant as she looks. I'm her neighbor, across the street. She's a fine girl. Lives with her mother and small brother in a cottage that's just big enough to hold 'em. They're poor, but they kepp up appearances wonderfully well. Hand me that wrench."

"Where's the father?"

"Died when the boy was a baby. Sick a long time. Left the mother with a hard fight before her. But she was game. Brought up the girl right and gave her a good schooling. The boy's as good as other boys—and better than some. There's no doubt that he minds his mother. The girl works in the Carnegie branch library. Now the pliers."

There was a little silence.

"What's the girl's name?"

"Ames—Mildred Ames. Here, grip the wrench. She's a mighty clever girl. When my lad, Jimmie, was struck by the croup—with me away at Greenshore setting up an engine, and Jimmie's mother crazy with fright—over comes Mildred Ames in the middle o fthe night, and knows what to do and does it, and has the boy in fine shape when the doctor comes. It was a close call all right and I'm properly grateful, but the only way I can show it is by cutting the grass for them now and then, and keeping the pickets nailed on the fence. There, give me the oil can."

The young man watched the skilled fingers as they worked among the bearings.

"I may walk around your way this evening, Barry," he said.

The assistant superintendent looked up. There was a sudden twinkle in his eye.

"I may not be at home tonight," he said. "I was thinking of cutting the Ames grass."

"I've never seen you cut grass, Barry," said the young man. "It's a free show, of course."

The assistant superintedent muttered something that was largely inaudible because there was a rivet between his lips.

He liked the young man. He treated him in a friendly way that differed from his usual official manner. "The boy is going to get up," he told himself. He learns fast and he doesn't forget."

Barry had liked the lad from the day the superintendent brought him into the drafting room and told his assistant to make a place for him.

"I am going to start him at eight dollars a week," said the superintendent. "See that he earns it—and when you think he is worth more, tell me so."

In two months the newcomer had his pay increased to ten dollars and was being entrusted with a limited amount of responsibility.

"You're doing as well as could be expected," said Barry. "You haven't broken anything and you've escaped hurting yourself."

That evening Rodney Blake strolled from his boarding place out on the long avenue and then down the shady cross street on which Tom Barry lived.

He knew the house. He had been there once when Barry was ill. As he neared the place he looked across the street. The little brown cottage with the wide porch must be the Ames home.

The days were long and the light was still strong. Somebody was sitting on the porch behind the climbing vines—somebody who wore a white frock.

Assistant Superintendent Tom Barry laughed when he saw the young man.

"Didn't I tell you I had an engagement?" he asked.

"Can't a well-believed young man come through your gateway without being warned off the premises?" Rodney demanded.

He looked around as he spoke. The lawn-mower was lying beside the walk.

"There it is," said Tom Barry.

"When does the performance begin?" Rodney asked. "And is that the cottage?"

"That's the cottage and the curtain goes up right away."

Lydia Barry had appeared in the doorway.

"There will be no lawn-mower music tonight, Tom," she said. "I forgot to tell you that John Andrews sent word that he was coming over to talk over to talk up that allotment with you. Good evening, Mr. Blake."

"Good evening, Mrs. Barry. If you're going to talk business, Barry, of course I'll be in the way."

"Here, drop that," said Tom Barry. "What do you mean?"

Rodney was half way down the path.

"It means that your understudy assumes the part," he called as he pushed open the gate.

"Come back here," cried Tom Barry, but Rodney was half-way across the street.

But Mrs. Barry only smiled.

Rodney crossed the street and opened the gate and drew the lawn-mower through.

The owner of the white-frock arose and came to the steps and looked down at the stranger.

She was an attractive girl, even more attractive than Rodney Blake had thought her when she passed the factory.

He took off his hat.

He said this rapidly, and then urged the mower across the lawn.

The girl looked down at him in some alarm.

"Wait," she said, "I don't think I understand."

He paused when he came back from the side fence.

"I'm Mr. Barry's helper," he said. "Same lawn-mower—'nother man." And he was off again.

The girl looked at him and there was anxiety in her glance. Then she stepped back on the porch and closed the door. With a hurried look over her shoulder she crossed the street and entered the Barry gate.

In a little while she came back and sat upon the steps.

Rodney propelled the mower toward her.

"If you don't object I'll take off my coat," he said. "I never mow with my coat on."

"I have no objection," said the girl. She had a pleasing voice. "But are you quite sure you have ever mowed before?"

He gave a little start.

"I'll go over the grass again," he hastily told her. "You'd like a close cut, wouldn't you?"

"I don't think," replied the girl, "that I have any right to be exacting."

He looked at her doubtfully.

"I wonder what Neighbor Barry said about me?" he murmured. "Didn't he confirm my statement?"

"Yes," replied the girl. And he added that he would come across a little later and see that you had done a good job."

Rodney looked thoughtful.

"I wonder if he would let me do it over again tomorrow night?" he said.

And then he seized the cross bar and pushed the mower merrily along. He didn't venture to stop his work until he had finished. And then Tom Barry came across the street and looked about him critically.

"Very fair," he said. "Very fair for a beginner."

"You are kind to the young and inexperienced," said Rodney humbly, and he looked at Tom imploringly.

"Miss Ames," said Tom, "this is Mr. Rodney Blake. He is with me in the factory. His fad is at present macrinery and it struck me that it would be a good thing for him to understand the intricate construction of a lawn-mower. Know all about it now, Rodney?"

The young man grinned.

"Certainly not," he replied. "You can't expect me to grasp it all in one lesson."

Tom Barry shook his head at him.

But before he could reply the girl had come to Rodney's rescue.

"I can't see, Mr. Barry, that you have any reason to be ashamed of your pupil. I am not a good judge, but I fail to distinguish any difference between the work of master and man."

"Come Rodney," said Tom Barry. "Good-night, Miss Mildred."

"Good-night, Miss Ames."

"Good-night. Aren't you forgetting your coat, Mr. Blake?"

Rodney flushed as he turned back. And Tom Barry suddenly laughed.

Two days later Rodney Blake drew a book from the Carnegie branch. And Mildred Ames flushed prettily when she saw him.

"Something referring to lawn-mowers?" she asked, when he had stated his errand.

He laughed.

"No," he replied. "I prefer practical illustrations—not the kind in books. It takes push and perseverance to conquer the lawn-mower—more especially push."

She laughed at this, and her laugh was pleasant to hear.

A few days later he met her coming from the library, and she let him walk home with her—and asked him to call.

He called the next evening and met her mother, and then went out with Mildred for a walk, and when he left her at the door he asked her to go to a concert in the Congregational church. And she accepted on condition that he come to tea.

It was a simple feast, simply served, with everything good and plentiful. Rodney knew that Mildred and her mother had prepared it and he was quite sure he had never enjoyed any meal as much.

He liked Mildred's mother. She was a lady, and he could see where Mildred obtained her nice manners and her soft voice. They were simple in their tastes—he could understand

$500 REWARD

DEAD OR ALIVE

LOUIS G. RESTELLI

WANTED FOR MURDER

Charles H. Hardwick of Quincy, Mass., in behalf of the family of the late Henry E. Hardwick, authorizes the Chief of Police of the City of Quincy, Mass., to offer the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the capture of Louis G. Restelli, dead or alive, for the murder of Henry E. Hardwick and the attempt to murder C. Theodore Hardwick, on Friday, July 29, 1910, at Quincy, Mass. On the same day Restelli shot and killed his mother, Marianna Restelli, and shot his brother Gaspare Restelli, William Adrian and Benjamin Bishop, all of Quincy and connected with the granite industry of this city. The above reward to be paid unless Restelli has committed suicide when the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) will be paid for the recovery of his dead body. If he commits suicide in order to evade capture of direct pursuit the full sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) will be paid.

Full Description of Louis C. Restelli

Height 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches.

Weight 150 lbs.

Dark complexion, smooth face, but grows a small black mustache quickly.

Brown eyes, the right eye smaller than the left and showing a defect caused by a cataract and making the use of glasses practically compulsory.

He generally wears a pair of gold-bowed spectacles with a very heavy lense, though he will probably endeavor to get along without them.

He is a Lombardian and talks the English language so well that there is no Italian accent noticeable.

Has been in the granite business for years and is well known in the business, being a member of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association.

Was a member of K Co., of Fifth Massachusetts regiment, in the Spanish War.

Age 39 years.

FORE RIVERS LOST IN FINALS

Boston American Team Win at Soccer Football

Quincy was largely represented on Saturday at the picnic of the Boston Caledonia club at West Roxbury, and some took part in the sports. The most interest was taken in the series of soccer football games for the Dewar shield and gold medals, which resulted as follows:

FIRST ROUND.

Boston Rovers beat Lynn City, 2-1.
Fore River beat McGregor, 2-1.
Readville beat Clan Lindsay, 2-1.
Boston Americans beat Charlestown, 1-0.

SECOND ROUND.

Boston Americans beat Boston Rovers 3-1.
Fore River beat Readville, 4 to 1.

FINAL ROUND.

Boston Americans beat Fore River 1-0.

HOWLAND FAMILY.

At a meeting of the members of the Society of the Descendants of John Howland of the ship Mayflower, was held at Plymouth Thursday.

The officers are Clarence S. Ward of Brookline, president; Rear Admiral George C. Reney of Washington, vice-president; Mrs. Nelson V. Titus of Quincy, secretary and treasurer.

The society has purchased the home of their ancestor, John Howland and will take steps for its preservation and use it as a museum for relics of the old times, putting in a custodian to care for it. The rooms will be fitted up as memorials of some of the ancestors of the members of the society.

A living room will be restored by John Crocker Foote of Belvidere, Ill., in memory of his mother, Mrs. Mary Crocker Foote; Mrs. Somerfield Hagerty of New York will renovate another in memory of her ancestor, Josiah Howland, and Mrs. Nelson V. Titus of Quincy will dedicate another to the memory of her grandfather, Capt. James Huckins of Roxbury.

Harvard-Boston aero meet to get the grounds at Quincy in shape for the opening day, Sept. 3. That day falls on a Saturday, so there won't be quite four weeks in which to do the work.

But, big as the job is, the management has no fears and there is little doubt but everything will be in readiness for the opening day. The plans are in readiness and work will begin today. The two most important things are the building of a garage for aeroplanes about 600 feet long and 50 feet wide. This is something of a contract in itself, but it is not all, by any means.

A grandstand will have to be erected that will seat about 20,000 people; the grounds will have to be fenced in and a getaway of about 1000 feet in front of the grandstand, from which the aeroplanes will start, will have to be put in shape. There are already a few buildings on the grounds which will be used for administration and other purposes.

But there was nothing to interfere with the work and the field itself will not require much, if any, preparation. It is practically all right as it is. The grandstand will look toward the north at Squantum point, with Quincy bay on one side and Dorchester bay on the other. The getaway will run from the grandstand almost due north.

The new boulevard which runs along the shore passes one end of the field and makes the southern boundary; the road on which the electric cars run to Squantum point will make the eastern boundary after it crosses the boulevard. The northern and western sides are bounded by water. In all, the field occupies about 500 acres.

CHIEF BURRELL

over the Postal Telegraph Co., wires and was telephoned to the Mayor at 9 o'clock this morning. This telegram read as follows:

Sydney, C. B., Aug. 7

Mayor Shea, Quincy Mass.

Mayor Shea immediately turned the telegram over to Chief Burrell, who was at loss to understand the attitude of the Sydney Police, and he got to work on the wires in an effort to find out.

OTHER CLEWS.

There are two other clews upon which the police are working. Inspector McKay is working on one of these and immediately upon its receipt took a hurried departure from Quincy. Just where he went Chief Burrell declines to say at present. He has received several telephone messages from him, however, since his departure.

It was learned late Saturday night that a Braintree man who had recently done some business with Restelli saw him on the night of the murder in the South station in front of the gate leadng to the New York train via Springfield which was made up shortly before 11 o'clock. At that time the Braintree man had not heard of the murders. He is sure however, that the man he saw was Restelli. This fact with the report that came from Springfield Saturday that a man who might be Restelli had asked the way to Chester is regarded as a good clew to fololw up and it is thought that Inspector McKay may have gone to Springfield or New York.

Chief Burrell said this morning that he could not understand the Griffin telegrams. He says that immediately upon receipt of the first telegram Saturday he got in touch with the Sydney police, and at 5 o'clock got an answer saying they had seen Griffin and got his story. As the boat Bruce did not leave until 10.30 that night the Sydney police had plenty of time to act.

Nothing has been heard from the Sydney police since that time, which leads Chief Burrell to think that there was probably nothing in the clew, and that the suspect who took the boat was not Restelli or that he did not take the boat at all, but is still on the island and as yet uncaptured.

The morning telegram of Griffin therefore is hard to explain, unless it is that after obtaining what information Griffin had, the Sydney police ignored him and went ahead on their own hook, and that Griffin felt a little sore on that account and sent his telegram.

Then again the lapse of time between the departure of the boat Saturday night and the telegram Sunday night is somewhat difficult to explain.

Chief Burrell has numerous timetables and maps at the police station, and it was from a study of these that it was figured out that the boat Bruce mentioned in the telegram received by the Mayor this morning, sailed from Sydney Saturday night.

Chief Burrell is in constant attendance at the Police station, ready to act immediately upon the receipt of any telegram from any of the points where it is thought possible that Restelli may turn up.

Saturday afternoon a telephone message was received from Charles W. Grose of Rockland that a man resembling Restelli had been seen in that town. A son of Fred Ainslie, who saw the man, says he asked him for a drink of water, saying he had walked from Boston. Mr. Grose also saw the man and thought he looked like the wanted man. These reports caused quite a little excitement and a search for the man was made by the police and citizens but he was not found. The last seen of him he was headed towards the woods.

It appears that the woman who rushed into City Square Saturday morning, with the story that a man whom she recognized as Restelli had approached her on Woodward avenue, was not Mrs. Gerrior of the Wet Wash laundry as stated, but a woman named Emily Albanise. At the time the woman's name was given as published. It is to be regretted that Mrs. Gerrior's name was thus brought into the case. Officers Murray and Thorne looked into the case as stated and found there was evidently no foundation for the story. Sunday the woman who gave the alarm was placed under arrest for drunkenness.

LATEST.

At about 11 o'clock this morning Chief of Police Burrell received a telegraph dispatch from Lynn worded as follows:

"Someone is playing a joke on the American and Canadian police. It will be serious. For character recommendation see Chief Police Burkes of Lynn Respectfully, Griffin."

Chief Burrell has discovered no developments from this dispatch, but will immediately pursue a course of investigation which should throw some light on this somewhat cryptogramatic communication. The sender communicated with Mayor Shea this morning, giving information as to Restelli in Sydney, N. S., and is apparently reliable. He resides in Lynn.

SPORTING NOTES.

Now Quincy is to be the centre of the aviation world. Well, certainly, Quincy is on the map, and leaping fast into world-wide notice with its battleships and flying machines.

William J. Hackett of Quincy was the winner of the five mile baby Marathon run at Brockton on Saturday under the auspices of St. Patrick church, and was awarded a gold cup and a gold medal.

Again on Saturay the Dolly III outsailed the Cape cat class in the Corinthian series, the Mudjekewis, Dartwell, Emeline, Josephine and Hustler following in the order named. In class S. the Zoe won over the Wawenock and Maritza. Over 100 yachts entered the different classes.

Most of the Quincy yachts that were at Marblehead last week returned to Quincy Sunday as the yachting centre has shifted to Quincy and Hull bays. Tuesday there will be an open race of the Quincy yacht club. Other events in local waters this week are an open race under the auspices of the Hingham club on Wednesday, and three days racing at Hull under the anspices of the Boston Yacht club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Dorchen of the Quincy Yacht club finished first on Saturday in the last of the Interstate races at Marblehead, and also led in points in the series of races. The Massachusetts yachts won from the Rhode Island yachts 7.334 to 6.666 points. Capt. Albert W. Finlay of the Dorchen, who is president of the Massachusetts association, becomes the owner of the Thomas Fleming Day cup for 18 footers.

The Mudjekeewis and Wawenock took first prizes in the race at Marblehead on Saturday, and the Dolly III and Zoe won second prizes.

An 18 hole open amateur medal play competition will be held by the Wollaston Golf club on Saturday, with prizes for gross and met scores.

Ten classes participated in the Old Colony Driving club meet on Saturday. The best time was made by Young Bayard driven by George Beal, 1.10 3-4.

THE AMES GRASS.

that they had to be. And when Mildred came downstairs prepared to accompany him, he knew that the gown she wore was fashioned by the two women. It was a becoming gown and Mildred's hat was becoming; and Rodney Blake felt strangely proud as he sat beside her in the church.

He didn't remember much about the concert. He was thinking of the pleasure of being there and of the shortness of the walk home.

Mildred's mother was waiting for them, and Rodney remembered afterward how she had looked at him—it was such a searching and anxious glance. He felt a little ashamed of himself when he thought of it.

"Rodney," he gravely said, "this thing can't go on. You know what I mean. Do you think it right to try to win that irusing girl's regard when you are in no position to marry her? She has known what poverty is all her life—it has been one continuous pinch and scrape—and now you want to prolong it indefinitely. I like you, boy, but not well enough to make me forget the happiness of that fine girl. Think it over, boy."

Rodney had flushed a little, but he did not draw away.

"I must have more wages, Barry," he said. "You will ask the superintendent to give me fifteen dollars a week."

Barry stared at him.

"A jump of five," he cried. "He'll never do it."

"Try him. Barry ,try him now. Listen. If he refuses I'll promise to —to wait for Mildred—wait until I can satisfy you, Barry. He's on the next floor. Ask him now."

"You can have the raise" he said.

That evening Rodney asked Mildred to be his wife. He told her about his prospects ,his ambitions, his rise in salary. It was a very modest sum, he realized, but he meant to rise—he was certain he would rise. Would she share his little with him?"

"Is it right for you to hamper yourself this way?" she asked. "Would it not be better—much better —for us to wait? Do you think of the burden you are assuming?"

"I'm thinking only of you," he quickly answered. "Which means that nothing can stand in the way of our marriage."

And so she consented.

"But you have told me so little about yourself," she said. "Is there only your father to consult?"

"Just dad. He's coming to see you, I've sent for him. I don't know of anything else that would take him away from his work."

He suddenly laughed.

"What is his work, dear?"

"But he may imperil his position by coming dear. Was it right to urge him to come?"

He laughed again.

"I'm not afraid," he said. "He may claim I've done wrong, but nobody must believe him."

And she wondered why he laughed so merrily.

As Mildred was coming out of the library the next afternoon she noticed that a stout man of medium height was standing at the door. His hair was gray and his eyes were gray and keen.

"Is this Miss Ames?" he asked as she approached. "I am John Blake."

He had a quick brusque way about him.

"I am glad to meet you, sir," she said.

He looked at her searchingly.

"May I walk with you?" he asked. "I have something to say."

"I hope," said Mildred, still a little nervously, "that your absence from your employer's office will not put you to any serious inconvenience?"

He stopped short.

"What do you mean by that?" he demanded.

"Rodney said it was quite difficult for you to get a day off—your work was so exacting. I've been brought up to have a strict regard for such things, you understand."

"What's that boy been telling you?" he demanded. "There's something wrong about this. What do you know about me?"

"Nothing, except that you are Rodney's father."

He stared at her.

"Who do you think you are marrying?"

She was a little alarmed at his tone, but she answered bravely:

"The man I love—what else can I say?"

He continued to stare at her.

"What does that youngster of mine earn in the factory?"

"Fifteeen dollars a week."

"And is that what you are marrying on?"

She smiled bravely.

"That and hope."

"What do you mean by hope?"

"Why, the hope that Rodney will do better at his work."

He stared at her long and earnestly.

"Well, of all the cases of inexcusable deception this is the worst," he presently declared.

He saw that her cheeks suddenly paled.

"Hold on, my dear," he quickly added. "This isn't going to harm you. I'm on your side, you know. We'll circumvent that young scoundrel. Of all the secretive youngsters! And he never told you a word?"

"I don't understand you, sir."

"Of course you don't. What's your salary at the library?"

"Nine dollars."

"And you are giving that up! What are you worth to your mother and brother?"

"I don't know."

"Of course you don't." He scribbled on a leaf of his memorandum book, then tore it out and handed it to her. "Suppose we settle that on her."

She gave a little gasp.

"I don't understand," she weakly murmured.

"Perhaps your mother will understand." He suddenly laughed. "There's something you will understand better. That boy is going to lose his job. Does that worry you?"

"I don't know."

"The fifteen dollars is going glimmering." He laughed again. "He wanted to learn the business from the bottom up. He seems to have learned a good deal besides. And he didn't tell you that I own the factory?"

"No, no."

"Was there ever such a boy! You must tell me all about it, dear girl. How did you happen to meet that young swindler?"

"He—he came over to—to cut the grass."

The stout man laughed again. He was in wonderfully good spirits.

"Cut the grass! What a boy! By George, I know what I'll give him for a wedding present."

"Yes?"

"A lawn-mower."

And he laughed until the tears came into his eyes.—W. R. Rose.

WHITE SOX,3; COPELANDS, 0.

The Copeland "champs" visited Braintree Saturday afternoon, meeting the White Sox of that town, and went down to defeat to the score of 3 to 0. Although handicapped by the absence of some of the regulars, the local boys have no excuse to offer but their own rather loose playing, having several chances with men on bases and none out to put the game on ice, which they let pass. Hebert, one of Manager Egan's new finds, twirled a good game allowing but six hits, but his team-mates were unable to produce hits when needed.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PLEA OF INSANITY

Will Be Made by "Gentleman Burglar" Slayer of Miss Blackstone

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 8.—A plea of insanity will be made, according to police authority, in the case of Bertram G. Spencer, the self-confessed murderer of Miss Martha B. Blackstone, a Springfield school teacher.

In his confession to the police Spencer told about having suffered severe pains in the head since being struck on the head when a boy. He has complained much of pain in the head during his confinement in jail, but his health otherwise has been good.

In his confession Spencer told the police he had committed many burglaries in Springfield during the past two years, admitting that he was the long-sought "Gentleman Burglar." Miss Blackstone was shot while an attempt was being made to commit burglary.

CUDAHY WANTS A DIVORCE

Wife Says She Will Fight Suit If Petition Is Filed Against Her

Kansas City, Aug. 8.—Jack Cudahy is preparing to sue for divorce and the custody of his four children. Mrs. Cudahy declares that she would almost as soon lose her life as lose her children and she is preparing to file counter charges against her husband if a petition for divorce is filed against her.

It is known that for some time Cudahy has been getting evidence upon which to base his suit. Chauffeurs who have had occasion to know of Mrs. Cudahy's movements have been approached and others whose testimony might aid him in securing the separation from his wife have been sought.

REACHES THE GOAL OF HER AMBITION

Young Girl Swims From Charlestown Bridge to Boston Light

Boston, Aug. 8.—At last the swim from Charlestown bridge to Boston light has been accomplished without dispute. Yesterday a stocky school girl succeeded where the most experienced and hardy male wimmers have failed.

Rose Pitonof, 15 years of age, is the one to battle successfully against the treacherous tide and waves, and after 6 hours 51½ minutes of exhaustive work in the water, stepped triumphantly ashore at the light that guards the outer entrance of Boston harbor. The distance is approximately twelve miles.

Seven male swimmers who started in the contest soon fell by the way side. It was a most wonderful exhibition of swimming and was witnssed by thousands of people at different points of her course.

Conditions were against her, and even Annette Kellerman, who was supposed to be the greatest of all women swimmers, failed where Miss Pitonof succeeded.

"BEAT THEIR FRIENDS"

Son of Former President of Cuba Quietly Weds New York Girl

New York, Aug. 8.—Thomas E. Palma, son of the late President of Cuba, and Miss Helen D. Browne of this city, an heiress in her own right, suddenly abandoned their plans for an elaborate wedding and were quietly married in the presence of the bride's mother and a few friends in Grace Episcopal church.

"We just didn't want a big wedding and all that fuss," said the bridegroom, "and we wanted to beat our friends."

The date for the wedding had been set for Aug. 15, according to a statement made by the young couple when they applied for their license on July 29.

CRIPPEN ATTENDS CHURCH

Prison Officials Stretch the Rules In Favor of Miss Leneve

Quebec, Aug. 8.—With an armed guard on each side of him, Dr. Crippen attended divine services Sunday in the Catholic chapel of the provincial jail. Miss Leneve spent the day reading in a comfortable room she is allowed to occupy apart from the other women prisoners.

Although the prison rules prescribe that all inmates shall attend Sunday services unless they are ill, Miss Leneve made such a strong protest that the jailer decided to permit her to remain in solitude. The girl shows a dread of encountering the stares and the comments of other jail inmates.

MRS. MARILLA RICKER

Woman Lawyer Candidate For Governor of New Hampshire

FIGHTING FOR NOMINATION

Mrs. Ricker Wants to Be Governor of New Hampshire

MAKES APPEAL TO VOTERS

Seeks to Sidestep Decision of Attorney General by Taking Out Nomination Papers—Her Counsel Believes He Can Easily Secure the Required Thousand Signatures—Should Be Treated With Consideration

Concord, N. H., Aug. 8.—The strenuous fight being made by Henry Robinson, attorney for Marilla M. Ricker, who seeks to have her name placed upon the ballot as a candidate for governor at the next election, has developed a new turn.

An effort to have her name officially on the ballot by means of nomination papers has been begun. This will require 1000 signatures of qualified voters, and Robinson believes he can easily secure them. He maintains that the old law, relative to securing places on the ballot by nomination papers, is still effective, notwithstanding the direct primary law.

Many authorities are quoted in support of this new ground of contention, and the followers of Mrs. Ricker, in answer to the claim that she could not take the governor's chair if elected, say elect her and let the courts settle that question, which, they claim, would be favorable to the woman candidate.

Mr. Robinson gives the following statement regarding Mrs. Ricker's maneuvers toward furthering her candidacy:

"Marilla M. Ricker has sent up a Macedonian cry for help. Long-time widow that she is, her clarion bugle-call is now for a thousand men—a thousand accredited New Hampshire voters—to sign her nomination papers, and thus put her name regularly on the official ballot, which the secretary of state, under the advice of the attorney general of New Hampshire, now declines to do.

"One of the provisions of the new primary election law stipulates that candidates for elective offices shall be nominated—(1) by a primary held in accordance with the act; or (2) by nomination papers signed and filed as provided by 'existing statutes.'

"The old law, thus clearly referred to, remains perfectly intact for this purpose, and gives the secretary of state no such arbitrary authority as Secretary Pearson, as advised by Attorney General Eastman, is now assuming to exercise.

"All that Marilla M. Ricker demands is a square deal. Many voters, some of whom may not favor the policy of electing any woman to the office of chief executive, even as capable and accomplished a one as Mrs. Ricker, are nevertheless insistent that she be treated with the courtesy and consideration becoming her sex, embodying and exemplifying, as her present candidacy does, the great cause of equal rights, to which her active life has been so largely devoted."

World's Largest Cruiser Launched

London, Aug. 8.—The armored cruiser Lion, the largest, fastest and most powerful cruiser in the world, was launched at the dockyard at Devonport. The cruiser will carry eight guns of 13½ inch calibre. She will have a displacement of 26,350 tons and will be driven by turbine engines of 70,000 horsepower, giving her an expected speed of 28 knots.

Escaped Convicts Outwit Hounds

London, Ky., Aug. 8.—Throwing bloodhounds from their trail presumably by the use of cayenne pepper, three men who escaped from the jail here entered a dense wood near Woodbine and the Lexington police force and the posse gave up the chase and returned to London.

HAMLIN FOR GOVERNOR

Choice of Democrats Who Would Shelve Both Foss and Vahey

Boston, Aug. 8.—There is considerable talk in Democratic political circles of putting forward Charles S. Hamlin as a compromise candidate for governor this fall and shelving both Congressman Foss and James H. Vahey.

Those who have been talking Hamlin say that there seems to be little chance of getting either Foss or Vahey to retire for the other and they suggest that Hamlin would be a candidate on whom Democrats as well as Insurgent Republicans could unite.

Mr. Hamlin was a candidate against William A. Gaston for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination some years ago, but was defeated. Since then he has refused to become a candidate for an elective office.

PART OF SPINE MISSING

Boston Man Fully Recovers From Delicate Surgical Operation

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 8.—With an inch of his spinal column missing, one of the vertebrae having been removed by surgeons when they believed it to be the one chance in a thousand of saving his life, Alexander Potter of Boston walked from the hospital Sunday. His neck was broken in an automobile accident July 10.

A companion in the accident, who at the time was though to have been only slightly injured, Walter G. Boardman, died a few days after the smash.

When he was released from the hospital Potter was told that if he was careful how he handled his head and neck there was no reason why he should ever suffer any inconvenience from his missing vertebra.

NEW REVELATIONS ARE NOW HINTED AT

Sensations Are Promised at the Trial of Hattie Le Blanc

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 8.—The distinct surprise sprung last week when the brothers who unsuccessfully contested the will of Clarence F. Glover, who was murdered in Waltham last November, were granted a jury trial, is followed by a rumor that there will be one or more additional revelations in connection with this mysterious case, when Hattie Le Blanc is called to trial next month.

The rumor is to the effect that one or more persons may be tried jointly with the little French girl on a murder charge. Under the direction of District Attorney Higgins, it is known that detectives have been working quietly on this case, and it is believed that they have uncovered facts that have never reached the public.

The prisoner in the East Cambridge jail has told her story many times. Her additional knowledge of English since she was locked up has enabled her to give facts which she did not regard as important, that will prove, it is believed, of immense assistance in her defense.

THINKS HUSBAND INSANE

Wife of Rich Man Says He Reads Newspapers Upside Down

New York, Aug. 8.—A commission in lunacy has been appointed by Justice Bischoff in the supreme court to examine Joseph B. Hughes, wealthy husband of Belle H. Hughes, who gave up a stage career with the "Bostonians" to marry a man many years her senior. They have been living at the Plaza hotel since they returned from Europe last May.

In her application to have her husband declared mentally incompetent, Mrs. Hughes charges that in the last two months he has acted peculiarly, spending most of his time reading the newspapers upside down. His personal property, according to Mrs. Hughes, is valued at $300,000.

"BASEBALL IN HEAVEN"

Preacher Thinks It Will Be Played In Some Spiritual Form

Mattapoisett, Mass., Aug. 8.—"Baseball in Heaven" was the subject of a sermon preached yesterday by Rev. C. Julian Tuthill, pastor of the Congregational church.

In his sermon Tuthill declared that there was no reason apparent why the great national game of America should not be found in some form or another in the world to come. He said in part:

"Heaven is but an evolution of this world. A Christian may love a ball game and loving it remain a Christian. Why then is it not safe to prophesy that even the game of baseball will have its place in some spiritual form, in heaven?"

NEW MEXICO BANDITS KILL STAGE DRIVER

Steal Twelve Silver Bars, But Are Forced to Abandon Eleven

Alberquerque, N. M., Aug. 8.—For the second time within a week the Mogollon-Silver City stage was held up and robbed, murder being added to the crime. Jose Dominguez, the driver, was riddled with bullets.

The robbers gathered up twelve bars of silver bullion, being the supply of the Ernestine Mining company and the Soccorro Mining company, which were being shipped out from the mines, and left the scene. They met no further resistance, as the stage was making its trip without passengers.

Mounted police took the trail and within a short time found eleven of the twelve silver bars lying at the roadside near where the stage was robbed. Evidently the burden was too great for the robbers and they abandoned all but one bar of the treasure, which is valued at about $1500.

Death Comes to Pittsburg Man Who Partook of Turtle Soup

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—William Douglass of the North Side is dead as the result of a turtle's egg hatching in his stomach.

An autopsy was performed and a partially formed turtle, almost as large as a hen's egg, was found in his stomach.

Liquors Ahead of New Tariff

Boston, Aug. 8.—Uncle Sam lost a whole lot of money when the freighter Anglian arrived from London with 1500 cases of wines and liquors aboard. They got here just in time to be entered before the new tariff goes into effect today.

Sleep.

The first sleep is the soundest—after the first hour the intensity of sleep slowly dimnishes; hence the value of forty winks after dinner in quickly recuperating shattered powers. Temperature and vitality are lowest at about 2 a. m., so that two hours' sleep before midnight are worth four thereafter. Nature has no rule as to the length of sleep, except that men need less than women, since women are the more sensitive creatures and a woman's heart beats five times more in a minute than a man's. Sleep should be just so long that when you wake in the morning a stretch and a yawn only are necessary to land you in a daytime of bounding vigor. As to early rising, it is comforting to hear Dr. Bryce say it is a habit that has gone far to wreck the constitutions of many a growing youth.—London Express.

THE WILLOW TEAPOT

A Mistake of Twenty Years Explained

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Although the Horner sisters had lived in the same house for forty years, during twenty of those long years they had not exchanged a word.

No one in Rosedale knew why Abigail had suddenly taken up her residence in the north wing of the old house and Sophia had settled her belongings in the sunny south half. At the time conjecture had been rife, but the nine days' wonder had settled into a strong conviction that they had disagreed over the "prop'ty," for it was shortly after old Judge Horner's death that the estrangement began.

Every Sunday morning the sisters stepped primly down the graveled path to the gate and in wordless silence wended their way to church and up the aisle to the Horner pew. In vain had the pastor remonstrated with them singly and together. While open to reason and conviction on every other point, they were dumb regarding the cause of their wordless srtife.

It was June now, and Sophia was digging among her pansies. She was slight and pale, with a pleasant, mild face that now and then startled one by settling into firm lines around the mouth. Abigail's features were cast in a sterner mold, and the lines about her mouth were deeper, and this characteristic feature in both sisters was known as "Horner spunk," and it was generally agreed that "Horner spunk" was at the root of the trouble.

Abigail stood under the cedars with a copy of the county paper in her hand. She was slowly reading an article for the fifth time:

The Rev. Paul Weemers, pastor of the Park Methodist church, New York, will preach in the First church at Rosedale on Sunday evening next. It will be remembered that the First church of Rosedale was Mr. Weemers' first charge, and his return will be the occasion of much pleasure to his old friends and parishioners. Mr. Weemers will be accompanied by his wife.

She looked across the boxwood hedge into Sophia's garden. The news would interest Sophia as well as herself. Abigail thought of this as she stood there looking at Sophia's stooping form. There was a certain stern integrity about Abigail that urged her to break the long silence and to impart the news she had read to her sister. There was an underlying tenderness, too, toward her younger sister that the bitter resentment of years could not destroy. She resolved that Sophia should not be taken unawares.

She leaned over the hedge and dropped the newspaper under Sophia's nose.

Sophia squeaked with surprise as the paper rattled among the pansies, and there was blank astonishment in her nearsighted eyes as she lifted them to gaze upon the grim, uncompromising face of her sister.

The latter pointed to the paper with an old time gesture of command, and Sophia, adjusting her spectacles, sought the wrong page with agitated eagerness. Then she turned the sheet, and presently a nervous cluck and the dull reddening of her cheek announced that she had found the item. In her excitement the younger woman spoke. "He will call," she said softly, as if to herself.

The next day was Saturday, and all day long Sophia's lavender muslin hung on the clothesline, bending and swaying in the soft west wind like a misty wraith of Sophia herself. Abigail looked sternly upon the dress. She had been on her way to the front chamber to look over a well preserved summer silk, but the sight of the dress seemed to proclaim the boldness of Sophia—a boldness that was unexpected and that seemed to rouse a stern maidenliness in the older woman. She reddened darkly and went hastily downstairs again.

In the solitude of her own front room she sat and thought. The stern upbringing of the Horner girls had discouraged the coming of suitors, and it was not until after their father's death that Paul Weemers came to preach at the First church. He had been equally attentive to both sisters, and it was perhaps natural that each should believe herself to be the preferred one and the other an interloper. When Paul received a call to a larger parish he came to say goodby, and when he asked old Hannah if Miss Horner was in the sisters appeared simultaneously. Suddenly Abigail was called away, and when she returned to the parlor the young minister had gone and Sophia was standing at the window with a bewildered look on her pretty face.

Then a white rage had taken possession of Abigail, and her tongue had loosed upon the frightened Sophia, who turned fiercely with upbraiding contradictions. After that scene, which no one witnessed, began the long silence. It was of these things that Abigail was thinking.

The next day was Sunday, and Sophia stepped down the path alone, her worn hymn book clasped in her mittened hands. She cast many anxious, backward glances at the north wing where Abigail's stern profile was outlined against the window pane; she was bent over the pages of the Christian Work, and it was evident she did not intend to go to church that morning. Sophia went on alone, swinging her fresh muslin skirts and holding her head rather high, quite unaware that Abigail was watching her with accusing eyes of mingled pity and resentment.

Sophia did not know why she was hurrying to church that morning with a pink spot in either faded cheek, but her heart beat quickly, and she was conscious of a pleasant excitement at the idea of seeing Paul Weemers again. That was all. She fluttered the leaves of her Bible as she waited for the service to begin. She wondered vaguely where Mrs. Weemers would sit and concluded that she was the fashionably attired woman who sat in the minister's pew. She was a plump, pretty woman with dark hair waving back from a fresh, youthful complexion. Then Paul Weemers came in, and Sophia gasped with surprise. He was rather stout and much older, and his hair and beard were quite gray.

The next morning while the sisters were attending to their separate household duties the doorbell toned dismally. Abigail went into the front hall and, peering through the side window light, saw a man in clerical garments accompanied by a woman. She paused for a moment with a hand on the knob, then she opened the door.

"Now, Miss Abigail, I don't believe you recognize me!" exclaimed the man heartily. "I didn't see you in church yesterday, although I am sure that I recognized your sister."

"Mr. Weemers, isn't it?" asked Abigail coldly. "Won't you come in?"

"Yes, and this is my wife; my dear, this is Miss Horner, one of my old friends and parishioners."

"I have heard my husband speak of you and your lovely old house, Miss Horner," said the lady pleasantly.

They went into Abigail's cool parlor.

"I will call her," said Abigail reluctantly.

She stepped across the hall and opened Sophia's door—that was the signal when there was company for both.

"Don't you care, Sophia," she whispered with fierce intensity as her sister followed her into the room.

Sophia was visibly agitated. She stammered greetings to the minister and his wife, which Abigail tried to cover by commonplace remarks, but there was an atmosphere of constraint over the four people.

"Will you have some refreshment?" asked Abigail presently. "It is a very warm day," she observed. She left the room and presently returned with foaming glasses of root beer and a plate of freshly cut sponge cake. She ate nothing herself, but looked intently from her sister to Mr. Weemers and then at the minister's wife.

The latter set down her glass. "Do you know, Miss Horner, that when my husband told me he was coming to Rosedale on Sunday I was delighted. The first thing I said was, 'Now I shall see the Horner teapot!'" Abigail's face softened. "So he remembered our teapot?" she asked.

"Yes, indeed. I have a mania for old china, and Paul shares the mania. He has spoken of the teapot as such a lovely example of willow pattern, and I told him I positively must see it."

Abigail went to a walnut cabinet and brought forth a large blue and white teapot. It had been in the Horner family for many generations and was a treasured heirloom.

"How perfectly lovely!" exclaimed Mrs. Weemers, while her husband hung over it in silent admiration. Suddenly he straightened back in his chair and laughed heartily.

"You do not know, Miss Abigail, how hard I strove one day, many years ago, to ask you to sell me that famous teapot. I had seen it and succumbed to its beauty. I remember, just a day or so before I left Rosedale, I called to say goodby and at the same time to ask if you would sell it, but I realized my presumption and hardly hoped you would do so. I tried to broach the subject, but somehow I couldn't seem to make any headway. I recollect that you were called from the room, and I tried to approach your sister on the subject, but she seemed to want to talk of everything except the teapot, so I gave it up and went away. I wrote to you once and asked about it, but as I never heard from you presume the letter went astray."

Abigail and Sophia were looking at one another over the blue teapot. There was a startled expression in Sophia's eyes, while Abigail looked pityingly at her sister.

Abigail found her voice first. "My sister and I would like to give you the teapot, Mrs. Weemers," she said, with decision in her tones. "There is no one to care for it after we are gone, and you and your husband seem to prize it so highly we would like you to have it."

"But—we cannot—it is too much"—stammered Mrs. Weemers.

"Oh, yes!" cried Sophia eagerly. "You must take it. We want you to have it. Abigail and I have so many old fashioned things."

Abigail left the room to wrap the teapot in paper and to escape the effusive thanks of the delighted Weemers. Sophia followed her sister, trembling with some unexplained emotion.

Removing the lid, Abigail thrust her hand into the teapot and drew forth a yellowed envelope. She held it toward Sophia.

"It's yours," she said shortly.

"No; it's yours," returned Sophia.

"If it's mine,' said Abigail in grim tones, "Ill burn it up,' and she thrust it into the stove.

"Shall we have tea together in the big dining room tonight, Abigail?" asked Sophia timidly.

"Of course we will," said Abigail.

WOLLASTONS WIN.

The first game of the series between the North Quincy A. C. and the Wollastons was played at the Pines, Saturday afternoon, and was won by Wollaston 5 to 4. This was the first game the North Quincys have lost this season, having won 12 games. Elstrom of Malden pitched for Wollaston and was ably supported by Smith. Pitcher Robert Smith of the North Quincys showed great work especially with men on bases.

The next game of the series will be Saturday, Aug. 13, at the Pines.

The subject of the morning service at the Hall Place M. E. church was "What to do with cares," the text was taken from 1st Peter, 5-7, "Casting all your care upon Him for He careth for you." The pastor showed that the "care" spoken of in the text meant the worry and anxiety attendant upon the many duties of this life, while the word "careth" as applied in the text did not mean anxiety or worry on the part of God, but His responsibility and love for us.

QUINCYS WIN FROM STOUGHTON

Strenghten Their Lead in Old Colony League

Quincy 11; Stoughton 2.
Weymouth 7; Lincoln 5.
Randolph 6; Rockland 0.

The relative positions in the league standing remains the same. Rockland and Stoughton are hopelessly in the rear.

The league standing to date:

	Won	Lost	Per.
Quincy	10	3	.769
Weymouth	7	4	.636
Randolph	7	5	.583
Lincoln	6	7	.461
Stoughton	4	9	.307
Rockland	3	9	.250

With assistance of the war clubs of Briggs, Connally and Fay, the latter a new man, Johnny Glaze piloted the Quincy boys to an 11 to 2 victory over Stoughton Saturday in the Old Colony league.

Stevenson who twirled for the opposition, got an unmerciful bumping in the first and third innings, and was no mystery at any stage of the game, the locals collecting thirteen hits for a total of sixteen.

Glaze started off with a pass but Murphy lined to Lonergan who pegged to Briggs doubling Holland. The double was played in fast time. The next batter smashed to third and fell before Lonergan's arm.

Things looked dull when Nowell popped to Stevenson. The latter, however, started to work a slow out that was immediately solved. Armstrong singled and took third on a heave to the backstop. He scored when Lonergan hit. He stole and took third, scoring on Briggs out, Stevenson to first. Connolly hit and Dennehy dropped Donovan's short fly. His throw to second went to third and the return got away from Dennehy into right, Larry scoring and Donovan taking third. Fish was passed and stole, and scored on Fay's long hit to right. It was a rather close play but Fish was across with the fifth run before Fay was downed trying to stretch his single to a double. This ended the first spasm.

Stoughton was unable to do anything with Glaze and Lonergan. Armstrong and Briggs were there with a lightning double play. Quincy retired in order.

Stoughton made no doubles in the third, but Briggs hit and took third when Connolly singled; Connolly occupied second and Briggs scored on Donovan's out, O'Connell to first. Connolly pilfered, Fish was hit in the ribs and stole. Both scored on Fay's second hit. Fay swiped second and on the throw to catch the flying Fish took third, aided by Murphy who dropped the throw. Glaze was passed but Nowell poked the ball toward short. Grieve touched second forcing Glaze. Three tallies.

Stoughton got busy in the fourth, a fumble by Fay giving Murphy a life. He advanced on Dennehy's fly to Connolly. Fitzgerald singled and Lonny dropped the throw to catch Murphy. Fitzgerald took third and O'Connell second when Lonergan cut off Murphy at the plate on O'Connell's rap. Monahan was given a life on a fielder's choice but Fitzgerald and O'Connell crossed the pan on Delaney's savage clout to left. Monahan took second and on a poor return from left started for third but Fay, Armstrong andLonergan got him, Armie getting the put out. That ended the run getting for Stoughton.

In the sixth on a hit by Nowell and consecutive errors by Stevenson and Murphy, Nowell and Armstrong scored, but Lonergan was out pitcher to third. Briggs was bit but the two following went down easily.

Fish doubled by some tall running in the seventh, took third on Fay's out and scored the last run of the game on Blaze's fly to center. Briggs hit went to waste in the ninth.

The Quincy combination worked fast and true both in the field and on the bases Saturday and Jimmy Fay proved that he had a world of speed on the chalk lines beside playing a good game at short where he will remain. Donovan covered left in Duggan's absence, the latter being on a vacation, but fell down. He dropped an easy chance on a foul just over the line in the second.

In the eighth a foul from Murphy's bat struck and knocked out a young fellow in the crowd on the ground near the visitors bench. After that the kids were noticeable by their absence, and they hung to the bleachers closely.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The Y. M. C. A. building which is one of the busiest spots in Quincy during the fall and winter, is practically deserted at present, the playground in the rear being the only lively part of the establishment. At present, Mr. Gay, general secretary, is away at the Silver Bay convention, and Mr. Gifford is in New Hampshire. Mr. Clee, boys' secretary, is in charge but will start on his vacation next week, dependent on Mr. Gay's return.

The gymnasium will be cleaned thoroughly, missing apparatus supplied, and everything placed in condition for the reception of the usual crowd at the fall opening of the gym. The swimming pool and baths have of course been in use all summer.

Physical Director LaRose of Malden, who will succeed C. M. Gifford, will be on hand about the first of September. Mr. Gifford goes to Clapp Memorial in Weymouth.

QUINCY POSTOFFICE.

James Ballou, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Mary Brogan, Marsiglia Casgna, Miss Cowles, Mee Ford, Mrs. N. Hanson, E. W. Jackson (5 letters), Maurice Jackson (3 letters), John H. Oxley, Mathilde Petterson, P. H. Powers, Gaetano Prencepe, W. N. Smith, Monace Maria Vincenzo.

—W. H. Kinter, a market gardener at Greenacres in the Spokane valley, a few miles east of Spokane, is in a peck of trouble over buying a horse that was raised and broken to harness by Wong Yet, a neighboring tiller of the soil. He paid $45 for the animal, which he admits is sound and well rtained; but, he adds tearfully, he has worn his patience and three whips to a frazzle in attempts to make the three-year-old colt understand the meaning of "Gidap" and "Whoa." At first Kintar believed the horse was balky, but Wong clambered over the fence and spoke a few words in Chinese and the animal started for town with a wagon load of berries and melons. Arriving at the city market Kinter yelled "Whoa" until his voice gave out, but the horse kept on and did not stop until it reached the end of a blind alley. Kinter has made overtures to Wong to accept the horse and return the money, but the Chinaman refuses, saying he did not guarantee the colt to be a linguist. Kirter has asked the police to adjudicate the matter.

GRANITE CITY LEAGUE

Low Scores in All the Saturday Games

Granite City league games resulted as follows:

Apprentices 2; Adams 1.
Cranch 3; Hardy 0.
Bryant-Bigelow (postponed.)

The Granite City league was subject to the severest shake-up of its career when Cranch ascended to first place by virtue of a win over Hardy, and Adams defeat by the Apprentices. Cranch has a small lead of .024 points, while Adams is third with .713, only .120 behind the Apprentices. The Bryant-Bigelow game at Ward Two was called off. The three second division teams remained in the same order:

	Won	Lost	Per.
Cranch	6	1	.857
Apprentices	5	1	.833
Adams	5	2	.713
Bryant	2	4	.333
Hardy	1	6	.133

APPRENTICES WIN.

As predicted in the sporting column of the Daily Ledger on Saturday the Apprentices downed the Adams A. A. in the Granite City League, the score being 2 to 1. The game was close and exciting from start to finish. Kerr, who twirled for the Apprentices has yet to lose a league game.

KNOWN AT MILFORD, N. H.

Louis Restelli, the Quincy, Mass., murderer, was at one time a resident of Milford, not however, for any length of time, as his company here was not liked . Mr. Wilson, president of the Granite Cutters' Union, says he came here from Vermont and was employed in the New Westerly sheds for a while as a cutter. He was of an anarchistic temperament and on that account hurriedly left Vermont, having revealed some of the secrets of his associates there and came to Milford. At that time liquor was being sold pretty freely upon the Acre and he spent much time down there. One night one of his former Vermont associates showed up and the next morning Restelli left town. Many of the Italian families here remember him.—Milford Cabinet.

Africa has Real "Firewater."

A peculiar drink is found on the west coast of Africa. Take a wineglass and put in it a few drops from every bottle in the bar. Then you put a match to it—the mixture usually contains enough spirit to light—and gulp it down. This fire water possibly explains why so few West African officials live to see their pensions.

Disinfecting Tank For Cars.

The Prussian state railways have built a huge tank into which a car may be run and sealed for complete disinfection both inside and out by formalin gas.

Flowers In Japan.

The Japanese see a significance in the fact that the flowers of the red camellia drop off like heads of decapitated men and bar it from certain occasions. Iris, being purple, they will not have for weddings, nor are the orchid, azalea, gentian and daphne favored for felicitous occasions.

WALTER JOHNSON NEVER PLAYED IN A MINOR LEAGUE.

The average baseball pitcher has at least two or three years of minor league experience before he attempts to make good in a major league. This is because his natural ability is not sufficient to win games for him when with the big fellows, and he must learn the strategy of the game, so that he can rely on it to help him out.

Walter Johnson of the Washington Americans is the one exception to this rule. He never played in a minor league and in fact never went through the primer grade of baseball. He jumped right into fast company and, unlike any other unseasoned youngster, made good right from the jump. This more than anything else proves his wonderful ability.

CAUGHT OFF THE BAT

Manager Bresnahan of the St. Louis Nationals is catching as good ball as he ever caught in his life and batting .300 on the side. Roger has quit fighting the umpires.

Brooklyn's new outfielder, Dalton, has all the earmarks of a great ball player—a splendid hitter, fast fielder and accurate thrower.

Third Baseman Purtell of the Chicago Americans doesn't get much puffing or brook into display type often, but he is about as efficient a third baseman as there is in fast company.

Kid Elberfeld of the Washington Americans has the reputation of being out of the game with injuries more than any other player, and it is no wonder that such is the case, for where is there a player who takes more chances?

Paskert of the Cincinnati Reds has become one of the National league's leading base stealers. He has about as many thefts to his credit so far as he had all of last season.

STREET RAILWAY WANTS NEW LOCATION TO QUINCY'S BIG AVIATION FIELD

PLANS WELL MATURED FOR DOUBLE TRACK

Probably Along the New Metropolitan Parkway In the Grass Reservation

Expect to Build Before Opening Of the Meet

Some are inclined to believe that the area of the new Harvard aviation field in Quincy has been exaggerated, but they are not familiar with the locality. The Old Colony Railroad Company owns land from Hancock street, Atlantic, nearly to Squantum head. It has a frontage of about three miles on the Neponset river and Dorchester bay. On the Assessors' plans of Quincy one tract alone has an area of 293 1-4 acres, and is about a mile square. It is over a mile from the Squantum causeway over this land to the point that juts out into Dorcheser bay. There is also a large acreage to the east of the causeway owned by the Burkhardts and others.

The Old Colony Street Railway Company has been prompt to recognize the need of new trackage from Hancock street to the scene of the meet. It has just opened a new turnout on Squantum street near Ocean street, which would greatly facilitate travel between Neponset, Atlantic and Squantum, but double tracks are needed right away and a more direct route both from City Square and Boston. Double tracks the entire length of Atlantic street would be acceptable, but there is another proposition that is even more desirable, and will not cause so much delay.

On Monday H. E. Reynolds, the assistant general manager of the Old Colony stret railway, Mayor Shea, and Ellerton P. Whitney of the Metropolitan Park Commission looked over the grounds. It is said that the Park Commissioners would grant a location along both sides of the Quincy Shore parkway from Atlantic street to Squantum street in the grass reservation which is about ten feet wide. The commission also controls that part of Atlantic street from Hancock street to the point where the new parkway leaves Atlantic street, and it is said they are willing that the Old Colony Street Railway Company should have a double track location over this street.

With these concessions on the part of the Metropolitan Park Commission the Old Colony Street Railway Company will immediately petition the Mayor and City Council of Quincy for connections at the junction of Hancock and Atlantic streets; and also at the junction of Atlantic and Squantum streets, together with a location for a second track on Squantum street to the entrance to the Harvard Aviation field. The tracks will probably enter the field and make a loop so that there will be no limit to the number of cars that can be handled.

There is a new law recently passed by the Legislature which permits the Mayor of a city in cases of emergency to grant a temporary location pending action by a City Council which requires considerable time to advertise a public hearing and then two or three meetings for the different readings of an order.

The Street Railway Company must have assurances this week that a location will be granted, as it is just 25 days to the opening of the big international meet on Sept. 3.

One of the events of greatest public interest in the aproaching aviation meet under the auspices of the Harvard Aeronautic Society at Quincy, will be the appearance of Cromwell Dixon of Cleveland, Ohio, the boy wonder with dirigible balloons. He is but 17 years of age, yet has made some of the most startling voyages through the air and in daring is not surpassed by the most experienced aviators. The appearance of Dixon is positive that assurance having been given the committee yesterday.

GIFT TO QUINCY CITY HOSPITAL OF $15,000 HOME FOR NURSES

The Quincy City Hospital is about to have consummated a home for nurses on the hospital grounds through the generosity of Henry M. Faxon. The need of a home for nurses has long been felt, but the trustees have never seen their way clear to erect such a building. Mr. Faxon now comes forward, however, and offers to erect and present to the trustees such a home. The offer was made Monday at the quarterly meeting of the trustees and was immediately accepted with a unanimous vote of thanks.

Mr. Faxon proposes to supervise the erection of the building and when completed, to turn it over to the trustees. The sketches of the new home, as shown at Monday's meeting, call for a brick building, two and one-half stories high, with dormer windows on the upper or third story. The main building will be 52 by 32 feet and will furnish accommodation for twenty nurses.

On the first floor there will be a large entrance hall, a reception and living room, as well as four dormitories and bath room. The arrangement of the second floor calls for eight dormitories and a bath, while on the third floor there will be four large dormitories and a bath. The cost of the building completed will be $15,000.

McLean & Wright are the architects and detailed and working plans will be made as soon as possible. It is proposed to commence the erection of the new home in the early spring of next year so that it may be completed during the sumemr.

It has been decided to locate the building in the northwest corner of the hospital lot near the residence of Mr. Faxon, and the building will be in keeping with the new wing recently erected through the generosity of the late William B. Rice.

The trustees also propose to make a number of improvements to the Hospital grounds in the way of regrading as well as the erection in the near future of a garage. It is proposed to remove the large unsightly chimney from the present building.

The need of a home for the nurses has long been felt, as at present there is no suitable retiring place for the nurses when off duty. There is a small fund for this purpose which the friends of the hospital hoped in time would become large enough to enable the erection of the home. The generous offer of Mr. Faxon, however, brings the much desired want near at hand so that the fund accumulated for the home can be used for its furnishing.

OUTFIT OF CLOTHES FOUND

May Have Belonged to Restelli the Murderer

What may possibly be the clothing worn by Restelli on the day he committed the murders in Quincy, came to light in Boston this morning, in the office of Timson Bros., wholesale shoe house, 620 Atlantic avenue, through the opening of a bundle left there on the day of the tragedies.

On the afternoon of the shooting it appears that a man entered the office of Timson Bros., and approaching the lady clerk asked if he could leave his bundle there a short time, saying he would call for it later. The desired permission was given, and the bundle remained until this morning when it was decided to open it.

Another report is that the man came in and asked permission to make a change of clothing in one of the rooms, and that after he had done so he left the bundle, saying he would call for it later.

The bundle remained undisturbed until this morning when curiosity prompted the opening. It was found to contain an almost complete outfit, consisting of a white shirt, coat, trousers and hat. They were such a suit as might be worn by a workingman. What attracted the most attention, however, was the fact that the shirt was bespattered with blood.

On the finding of the blood stained shirt, the clothing was connected with Restelli, and it is thought that possibly he may have been the man who made the change of clothing.

Unfortunately, the young lady who was in the office at the time is now away on her vacation, so that no description of the man can be obtained until she is communicated with.

Chief Burrell was informed by telephone of the find, and a description given him of the clothing. The chief, however, says that from the telephone description he is not certain whether the clothing corresponds with that worn by Restelli the day of the shooting or not.

The clothing was turned over to the Boston police, who will hold it until Chief Burrell or someone from Quincy, who saw Restelli that afternoon, has an opportunity to look it over.

Otherwise there is little new in the Restelli case. Inspector McKay, who is in New York, has not been heard from, and the Sydney, C. B., clew seems to have fallen through. It appears that the suspect then got

NEW TRAINS SECURED

Both for Quincy and Quincy Adams

The special committee appointed by the Quincy Board of Trade to secure better train service have received from the railroad officials the following concessions:

New trains to be put in operation at once:

Inward 6.13 A. M. train from Braintree will be stopped at Quincy Adams.

Outward 12.15 P. M. train from Boston will be stopped at South Boston on Saturdays to accommodate half holiday workmen.

The railroad officials have agreed further to make following additional changes in train service when the September time table is made up.

The early workingmen's train arriving in Boston at 6.38 A. M. will be started earlier, stopping at Quincy and South Boston, arriving at Boston at 6.33 A. M.

The following new trains will be added:

Inward 7.23 A. M. from Quincy.

Inward 8.48 A. M. from Quincy Adams.

Outward 6 P. M. stop at South Boston.

Outward 6.30 P. M. from Boston, stop at Quincy Adams.

Also additional cars on trains now crowded.

Railroad officials further agree to consider any reasonable request for needed train service for Quincy.

NEW YORK MAYOR SHOT

Thought at First He Was Mortally Injured

William J. Gaynor, Mayor of New York, was shot this morning on the deck of the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse as he was about to sail for a month's vacation trip abroad. The assassin was J. J. Gallagher, twho previous to June 1 was a night watchman at the municipal dock. It is thought he was insane at the time.

Mayor Gaynor was taken to St. Mary's hospital, and it was at first reported that he was mortally wounded, but later it was reported that he may recover. Three shots were fired, only one taking effect in the head below the left ear.

The Steerer—"Why, Mr. Weatherwax, how do you do?"

The Stranger—"Well, if 'tain't Charley Skidmoer? How air you, Charley?"

The Steerer—"My name isn't Skidmore."

The Stranger—"An' mine ain't Weatherwax."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BRIEFS

E. A. Stolba of Quincy is in Fitchburg visiting his mother.

Daniel Desmond of Quincy avenue is quite ill, but is expected to recover.

Miss Florence M. Curry and Miss Fitzpatrick of Cambridge are visiting in Quincy.

James Sweeny of South Quincy, a popular Elk, went to Holyoke on Saturday returning Monday morning.

John Hayden tried to paint himself the other day. A whole bucket of paint was used.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lincoln, Sr., entertained Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lincoln, Jr., and their daughter and son, Sunday.

—Possessing a population as large as it does, with vast manufacturing industries, it may be a surprise to many to be told that within 175 miles of Boston, New England has water powers capable of producing $300,000 horse power going to waste. With modern methods it is not difficult to carry electricity 200 miles, which goes to prove that the resources of New England have not been developed as well as they might be.—Old Colony Memorial.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Not only is Quincy as a city making rapid strides in population, valuation, new industries, new houses and improvements generally, but the different parts of the city seem to be vying with each other in attracting National importance, so that one finds it almost impossible to keep up with the march of events. The battleships built at Quincy are known all over the world; Quincy granite is being shipped to National conventions and extensively used; a yacht of the Quincy Yacht Club has been selected to race against the Spanish fleet, after a brilliant record in the Quincy challenge cup races, and who can tell what records will be smashed at the Harvard aviation meet open to the world which will be held in Quincy. It is not necessary for Quincy to fall back on the fact that two Presidents of the United States were born here; that the first Governor of Massachusetts was born here; that the first signer of the Declaration of Independence was born here, etc. No city or town in New England is more up-to-date than Quincy, and the forthcoming census will prove that the assertion is true. The censuses of 1915 and 1920 will be even more remarkable.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Much is said and written about what is termed "the end seat hog," that is, the man or woman who boards a trolley car and clings to the end seat while old people and fat women and women with bundles clamber over them. There is some excuse for this at times, because it may be that the person on the end is soon to leave the car. But the hog to which The News would direct attention is the person who boards a railway car and occupies a whole seat while others look, and look in vain, for a chance to sit down, being too timid to assert his or her right to a seating. There is no excuse for it, unless the person seeking a seating is drunk.

There is however a way to solve this troublesome problem, and that is for the train men to do as is done on the Pennsylvania and some other roads on long distance trains. The train men go through the car and if they find any one looking for a seat while others are occupying more than one they say, "a seat for another here, please." It is said courteously, but nevertheless firmly.

Why it is that men and women will strive so hard to retain a whole seat in a car by placing a newspaper, or a hat, or coat, or anything in the vacant place, The News does not undertake to explain. It is said to be a New England trait; whether it is or not we do not say. It is an ungentlemanly and unladylike trait, and shows a lack of good breeding and courtesy. It is a selfish habit and really has no reason, save selfishness back of it.—Salem Evening News.

There is but one way out of poverty for the generality of mankind and that is downright hard work, economy and self denial, says the North Adams Herald. Young man, draw your coat, roll up your sleeves and wade in. This everlastingly waiting for something to turn up, waiting to step into dead men's shoes, will terminate your career as a mere grovelling dependent, subsisting and only existing and filling space without a real or single purpose in life.

Wake up! Stir around and send the life blood coursing through your veins. Hold up your head, clean your face, put on a smile, and cast that woebegone look in the rubbish by the wayside, where it belongs.

Move forward, clear the track, and the grandest opportunities of life will open up, which you want to seize with a tenacious grip, and they will unfold to you all the hidden treasures you ever imagined or conceived.

Young man, this is no imaginative drawing, a delusive sketch, a fantasy, and if you possess enough grit and stamina you can make it a picture true to life; thousands have done it and you have an equal footing today.

Few rich men owe their possessions to accident; few great men owe their distinction to luck and chance. Thus far greater numbers have won by perseverance, push and pluck, diligent in business, spending less than their earnings, surmounting obstacles, overcoming difficulties, with a will invincible.—Chelsea Record.

ROOSTER ATTACKS A CHILD

Little Fellow Goes to Hospital and Chanticleer to Chopping Block

Windham, N. H., Aug. 9.—Charles Miers, 3-year-old son of Frank Miers, a Boston contractor, was attacked by a rooster at the Miers summer home here and narrowly escaped death. The rooster drove its spurs into the cheek of the boy, missing the eye by a fraction of an inch.

The child was hurried to Derry for medical attendance, while an axe and chopping block did service for the rooster.

MILLIONAIRE WANTED TO ENDOW DANCING COURSE.

Interpretative Style Needed In Settlement Work, Girl Says.

John D. Rockefeller, Mrs. Russell Sage or even a philanthropist of less means has a grand chance just now to deliver a blow to the "hugging idea" of the average youthful dancer, according to Miss Edna Neil, the Chicago interpretative dancer. Miss Neil wants some rich person to eliminate the "hugging dance" by spreading the gospel of classic rhythm.

Mr. Rockefeller, she declares, would do the fine arts a service and overturn the unaesthetic ideas of modern American youth if he would establish interpretative classes at the University of Chicago and other social settlements.

"Children and young people everywhere would be benefited by getting the interpretative idea," she said. "At present they have too much of the hugging idea. Interpretative dancing brings out the spiritual side of life, and that is reason enough why rich people ought to help.

"Children have clumsiness born in them, so why not teach them something graceful? Good teachers of interpretative dancing, a knowledge of the best music and good thoughts would change the very minds of the children."

WOMAN VALUABLE IN BANK.

Oregon Concern Finds New Method Is Profitable.

One of the new departures in banking methods is the bid that is made for women's accounts. City banks have had a department for women for some time, but only lately have country banks and trust companies taken hold of the plan.

The woman's department of the Portland Trust Company of Oregon was established something over three years ago. It is really a branch of the advertising or publicity work, proceeding upon the lines of popularizing the bank and making it a subject of conversation among the women of the city.

A competent business woman is in charge as superintendent of this department. Every accommodation and courtesy is extended to women patrons in the way of explaining matters of business with which they are unfamiliar, assisting them in the preparation of checks, drafts and other papers when they open an account.

In addition to her duties in the bank the superintendent makes frequent calls upon women whose business it is desirable to obtain and also extends assistance to those who may need it.

If, for example, one of the bank's clients or a stranger is ill and desires advice or assistance in the preparation of any paper or in the handling of any business the superintendent waits upon her at her home and spends as much time as may be necessary in aiding her. In this way some very desirable results have been gained.

PRINCESS IS EQUESTRIENNE.

Unlike Royal Father, Mary of England Rides Well.

Princess Mary, the only daughter of the king of England, is taking riding lessons in a quiet corner of Richmond park. She seems to take to horseback naturally and is already an accomplished rider.

Therein she differs from her brother, the heir to the throne, who, like his father, the king, does not care for horseback riding. The young prince prefers the sea to a horse and doesn't like to take his riding lessons. He has been known to throw his arms around his horse's neck when the animal became skittish.

King George, although he rides each morning in Rotten row for the benefit of his liver, is not a good horseman. His mount is always a gentle animal, guaranteed not to become excited and not to go faster than a dignified trot.

ENACTS MURDER SCENE

Drug Fiend Shows Boston Police How He Killed a Storekeeper

Boston, Aug. 9.—With glaring eyes and pallid face, William R. Remington, self accused of the murder of Max Sorokian, a Harrison avenue grocer, enacted his version of the tragedy with Chief Inspector Dugan and Special Officer Mitchell, silent but deeply interested spectators, yesterday afternoon.

Standing by the side of the counter where he claims he fired the fatal shots, Remington with word and gesture recited to the police officials the story of the crime which he committed because he was refused money to buy morphine.

Remington is 30 years old and a linotype operator by trade. About five years ago he started indulging in drugs. He has continued the habit, until today the physicians at the Tewksbury hospital state that he is one of the worst cases of drug fiend they have ever seen.

Chief Inspector Dugan was asked last night how it happened that the police and medical departments of this city found a suicide of what has been confessed to be a murder.

"I will leave that for you to find out," replied Dugan curtly.

JAIL OFFICIALS THANKFUL

Big Woman With Big Appetite Ceases to Be Their Boarder

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 9.—Joe Walcott, the negro pugilist, bailed out Mrs. Carrie Smith, known better as "Big Carrie," a negress, from the Plymouth jail.

As a consequence the jail officials are very grateful to the fighter, for "Big Carrie" tips the scales at 326½ pounds and has an appetite in proportion to her size. Not only this, but Carrie shook the jail every time she laughed and in other ways made the jailers aware of her mighty presence day and night.

She was in jail on a charge of larceny and is now free until her case is called before the grand jury.

EXPERT TO EXAMINE COAST DEFENSE GUNS

Inspection Ordered as Result of Fort Munroe Disaster

Washington, Aug. 9.—Moved by the recent catastrophe at Fort Monroe, when seven men lost their lives as the result of an explosion of a gun, Colonel Mitchell of the ordnance bureau, war department, has been instructed to immediately inspect the guns at several army forts.

The tour of inspection will include the coast defense guns of the forts at or near New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington, Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Each and every gun guarding these forts will be subjected to the minutest investigation as to perfection of detail in order to avoid any possible repetition of the Fort Monroe disaster.

BLACKMAILERS CAUGHT

Heretofore Respected Man and His Son Are Under Arrest

Middletown, Conn., Aug. 9.—Arrested while searching old cannon around the soldiers' monument on the South Green, Andrew Fitzpatrick, aged 60, a blacksmith, and his son Andrew, were held in bonds for a hearing on the charge of attempting blackmail.

Three letters received by Mrs. Clarence S. Wadsworth contained a threat to blow up her home with dynamite if $2000 was not placed in the cannon. The letters were turned over to the police and Fitzpatrick and his son were caught as they took the decoy envelope from a cannon.

Mrs. Wadsworth is the wife of a wealthy citizen. Fitzpatrick has been a respected mechanic.

AN INSURGENT VICTORY

Government Forces Routed In Two Assaults In Nicaragua

Bluefields, Nic., Aug. 9.—General Mena reports that San Ubaldo, on the north coast of Lake Nicaragua, has been taken by the insurgents under Generals Macis and Saenz.

Two assaults were made, one upon the government's position at San Jose, and the other upon the city of San Ubaldo itself.

Strike of Lynn Lasters

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 9.—Charging alleged discrimination, twenty-one lasters employed in the Harney Brothers' shoe factory struck. They claim that two union men were discharged without due cause. They say they will not return until the men are reinstated.

New Government Jobs

Washington, Aug. 9.—The treasury department has created the offices of electrician, foreman of laborers, six watchmen and ten laborers for the new postoffice in connection with the Pennsylvania railroad station in New York city.

DUKE TO WED MISS ELKINS

Path to American's Marriage to Nobleman Is Clear

CONSENT OF ROYAL FAMILY

Opposition of Queen Margherita Removed Since Duchess of Aosta, Who Strongly Objected to Match, Has Become Seriously Sick—West Virginia Girl Will Be Received Into Family an Member of Royal Court

New York, Aug. 9.—According to dispatches received in this city by friends of Senator and Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, it is the general belief that the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katherine Elkins, to the Duke of the Abruzzi will be formally announced soon.

Mrs. Elkins and her daughter are at Toblach, Austria, and it is now known that since they arrived there the duke has visited Miss Elkins many times, automobiling there from Venice, where he is detailed as head of the arsenal.

According to the report, the reason that the opposition to the marriage of the American heiress and the nobleman has been withdrawn is that the Duchess of Aosta, wife of the duke's eldest brother, has been ill in Central Africa and has been unable to participate in the family councils, where she had much power.

The Duchess of Aosta is reported now to be dying of consumption. Her influence in the royal family against the match has gradually grown less. Queen Margherita, who was guided largely by the advice of the duchess, has finally been won over by Abruzzi, and is now willing that the wedding shall take place. King Victor Emmanuel has been more or less indifferent, and was easily persuaded to give his consent.

It will not be necessary for the duke to renounce his title. Miss Elkins will be received into the family as a member of the royal court.

The romance of the Duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Elkins dates back to May, 1907, when the duke was visiting Washington. They met at a dance, and the pair danced together so often as to occasion comment from their friends. The duke became intensely attentive to Miss Elkins, and his attentions were not discouraged.

He returned to Italy, but came back to America the following March, and immediately renewed his attentions to Miss Elkins. They became so marked that a report that they were engaged was not denied.

Then came reports from Rome of bitter opposition to the match on the part of the dowager queen and the king. At that time it was not generally known that the seat of the hostilities lay with the Duchess of Aosta, but it was evident that the Italian royal family would not countenance a match between the duke and an American heiress. There were frequent conferences between the duke and Senator and Mrs. Elkins, and late in 1908 the senator issued an emphatic denial of the engagement.

The duke held to his never-broken policy of making no public statements. He has never been interviewed for any publication, not even concerning his daring explorations. This was given as a reason for his failure to deny the engagement. Elkins' denial did not stop the rumors of an engagement.

Miss Elkins' trips to Europe were said by her father to be taken for "heart trouble." The senator always said this with a straight face, and no one ever knew whether or not he intended it as a joke.

Deadly Work of Mischievous Boys

Paris, Aug. 9.—Two score persons were shocked and one girl fatally burned when boys connected a public fountain with a live tramway wire.

HOUSEHOLD RECEIPTS.

Pineapple Custard. Beat a half a pound of butter to a cream, add one pound of sugar gradually, then three beaten eggs, and one pound of grated pineapple, previously scalded, and one cup of milk. Bake in a moderate oven either with or without a crust. Serve from the dish in which it is baked.

Blackberry Soup. Stew the berries in plenty of water, and when tender strain through a puree sieve. Thicken slightly with flour, sweeten to taste, and flavor with nutmeg. Serve with zweibach.

Red Raspberry Soup. From a quart of fine ripe berries lay aside a cupful. Put the remainder in a saucepan with a cupful of cold water and simmer until soft. Strain through a coarse sieve and measure the juice; add enough water to make two cupfuls. Reheat and when boiling thicken slightly with a tablespoonful of arrow root or cornstarch dissolved in a little cold water; add two tablespoonfuls of sugar and the grated yellow rind of a lemon and simmer until clear. Take from the fire, add the juice of two oranges or the same amount of pineapple juice, strain again and chill. Serve in punch glasses with cracked ice in the bottom and a few berries floating on top. More sugar may be added, but the fruit soups should not be too sweet. Serve with wafers or sponge cake.

Prune Pie. Wash one-half pound of prunes, cover with water and soak several hours. Cook in the same water until tender, remove stones and cut each prune into several pieces. Line a plate with good paste, put in the prunes, scatter on one-half cup of sugar in which is mixed a level tablespoon of flour and add a teaspoon of butter cut into bits. Add two tablespoons of the prune water, which should be reduced by simmering, and one tablespoon of lemon juice. Cover with paste and bake in a quick oven about half an hour.

He Met His Match.

The Russian marshal Suvaroff was famous as a jester and was fond of confusing the men under his command by asking them unexpected and absurd questions. But occasionally he met his match. Thus one bitter January night, such as Russia only can produce, he rode up to a sentry and demanded:

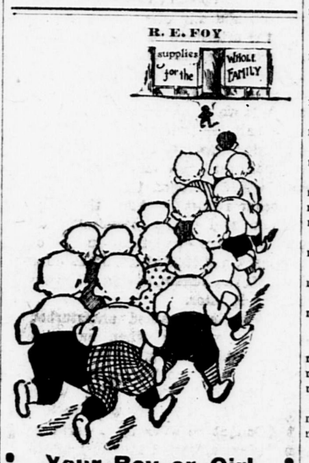

"How many stars are there in the sky?"

"Wait a little, and I'll tell you." And he deliberately commenced counting, "One two, three," etc.

When he had reached 100 Suvaroff, who was half frozen, thought it high time to ride off, not, however, without inquiring the name of the ready reckoner. Next day the latter found himself promoted.

BREEZES FROM HOUGHS NECK

A Large Colony Now at This Popular Resort

The breaking of a valve on the engine of the steamer Houghs Neck, on her 2 o'clock trip to Boston while off Castle island, crippled her and a tug was necessary to bring her to her berth. Repairs were quickly made so that she was able to leave Boston on her regular evening trip for Houghs Neck.

The Houghs Neck summer colony has reached its maximum and will be practically constant in numbers, the month of August being the season when the majority take their vacations. For nearl ya month there will be little or no fluctuation excepting on Sundays and holidays.

The plan formulated by the clubs at the Neck to have a grand celebration with parade and fireworks and open-house, has been largely perfected and the celebration will take place Labor Day evening, when the parade will pass through all the streets, and fireworks will be set off. Every club at Houghs Neck will be open to friends, and each club member will be a committee of one to attend to the enjoyment of anyone he may find without an escort.

The Atherton Hough Schoolhouse, which was to have been finished by September 1, will hardly be completed by that date, as the bare shell of the building is just completed and is not finished in detail or decoration. The main entrance stairs and the decorations about the main entrance and the granite work are not yet up. Within the building the rough underflooring has not yet been installed and of course no walls are finished. The failure of cement to set has retarded the work about three weeks, so that inside work of all kinds such as carpentry, masonry and plumbing, dependent on it, was seriously thrown back. The minor details of fitting with furniture and so forth, are of small importance since such work is done rapidly. Some time will be required to dry the building.

The air was particularly clear Monday at Post Island, and the buildings in Boston seemed no further than a quarter of a mile away they were so clear.

The members of bathers and young men going about in sleeveless jerseys has decreased rapidly recently. The water has the reputation of being cold now, and there is a very noticeable dampness in the steady wind over the Neck.

The members of the Quincy Yacht Club and their friends are taking every advantage of the enlarged facilities of the club house and it is seldom deserted.

The far famed ball tossers of a former age, men who in their prime were as glowing stars as Speaker, Cobb, et al., will grace Arthur Irwins resort at Peddocks island on Wednesday and engage in a ball game. The old Brotherhood flag of the '80s will be raised.

An Auto Hint.

I sat in my auto
One day in the shade
To rest for awhile
When a sweet rustic maid
In a pretty red bonnet
Came walking my way
With a smile in her eyes
Like the sunshine of May.

"Ah, Little Red Riding Hood,
Greeting!" quoth I—
A very bold knight
To a maiden so shy.
"Beg pardon, I'm not."
She shook her small head.
"I'm little red walking hood,
Sir," she said.

The Appeal.

"Does your reading arouse your emotions?"

"Yes, it does."

"Ah, I thought so! Reading poetry makes you sad, does it not?"

"N-no. But reading a cookbook always makes me hungry."—Cleveland Leader.

A Brace of Limericks.

A henpecked old sport of Missoula
Declared to his wife that he'd fool her,
And so just for a dodge
He departed for lodge,
But he finished the night in the cooler.

There was a young man of Deer Park
Who was known as a musical shark,
And he won warmest praise
With that sweetest of lays,
"I'm Afraid to Go Home In the Dark."

RIDERS ATTACK 79 YEAR RECORD

Two Hundred Miles Horseback In 8h. 42m. Still Stands.

SQUIRE SET MARK IN 1831.

English Sporting Men Hope to Break Distance Figures on Which $10,000 Changed Hands When Osbaldeston Turned the Trick With Fifty Stoppages and Twenty-eight Horses.

An attempt is to be made under the patronage of prominent English sporting men to break the extraordinary record for long distance horseback riding made on Nov. 5, 1831, by Squire George Osbaldeston on the Newmarket round course. Including fifty stoppages and a quarter of an hour for refreshments, the squire won 2,000 guineas in stakes and a large sum in his own private wagers by riding 200 miles in 8 hours and 42 minutes.

He covered the distance in a cold rainstorm, starting at 7 a. m., weighing in at 157 pounds, including saddle and bridle, and taking the full round course of four miles at each lap. Fifty times he circled it, and as many times he changed horses.

Bet Started Famous Ride.

The famous ride was taken as the result of a bet by General Charlte that the 200 miles could not be covered in ten hours even with an unlimited number of horses. One nobleman bet 1,000 to 1 the squire could not do it in nine hours.

The squire had twenty-eight horses at his disposal, and he covered the first 100 miles in a little less than four hours and twenty minutes. Then he rested for fifteen minutes, refreshing himself with a cold partridge and a glass of sherry. The whole distance was ridden in seven hours, nineteen minutes and four seconds, the rest of the time being spent in stoppages to mount and dismount. His best horse was Tranby, which he rode on four separate laps, the time being:

First lap—Eight minutes ten seconds.
Second lap—Eight minutes flat.
Third lap—Eight minutes fifteen seconds.
Fourth lap—Eight minutes fifty seconds.

But One Bad Horse.

Favey did a lap in eight minutes eight seconds and Ipsala in eight minutes twenty seconds. On the other hand, the horse Ikey Solomon took twelve minutes and was the worst of the lot. It had to be whipped around the course, and Osbaldeston had to dismount once on the stretch.

The squire was forty-five years old when he accomplished his historic sporting feat. His training for the event had consisted in riding sixty-five miles each morning in two and a half hours and walking after partridges the rest of the day to harden his muscles. It is said the horse Tranby was the son of Blacklock out of an Orville mare sent to Virginia in February, 1835.

APPENDICITIS' CAUSE FOUND?

Modern Methods of Grinding Flour Are Blamed.

Sir Lauder Brunton, one of England's most eminent physicians, told the public health congress that met at Birkenhead that he believed the large increase of appendicitis during the last twenty years was due to modern methods of grinding wheat into flour.

Explaining his hypothesis, Sir Lauder said that years ago wheat was always ground between two millstones, but today it was ground between steel rollers, which really acted like scissors, the wheat being cut up. Wheat ground in the new way would be different under the microscope from that ground under old fashioned conditions, and there might be a different tendency attributed to this.

He had seen an extraordinary report on endemic neuritis in America, which, it was stated, was produced by polished rice. If the patients ate the rice without its being polished they got well. This showed how minute alterations would produce extraordinary changes in the individual.

HAS NEW INDEPENDENCE DAY

Lawyer Celebrates Acquittal of Editor In 1735.

John F. Geeting, an attorney, recently draped his Chicago home with flags in celebration of the anniversary of what he considers the real birth of the Declaration of Independence, because John Paul Zenger, editor of the New York Weekly Journal, was acquitted after a memorable trial for criminal libel on Aug. 4, 1735.

Mr. Geeting believes that except for Zenger's acquittal after Alexander Hamilton, then leader of the American bar, had told the jurors to follow the dictates of their conscience, in spite of the instructions of the court, the historic document of July 4, 1776, might never have been written and signed.

Zenger, Mr. Geeting says, had incurred the enmity of the government by his fearless criticism. Grand juries had failed to indict him, and finally prosecution was begun by information. The journalist was acquitted, though the judge had instructed the jury to return a verdict of guilty.

PLANS WELL MATURED

also appear, and is even now in communication with the committee.

Bleriot, the daring French aviator, and Grahame-White are among the possibilities as participants if their foreign engagements do not conflict. Count de Lesseps may also come.

Charles J. Glidden will open his office at the aviation grounds on Wednesday and from now on will have charge of the gas arrangements.

The Navy Department has advised the committee that it will have a corps of expert aviators to take notes of the meet, but, under present conditions, none of them will be permitted to contest. This decision, however, may be modified before the entries close. The army may be represented also by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, who will be especially interested in the "bomb" throwing contest, for which a prize of $5000 is offered.

The selection of the Quincy field for the meet instead of Soldiers Field will make no difference with any of the prizes that were offered for trips to and from the place originally selected, for all those who offered prizes, including Gen. Taylor, who offered the grand prize of $10,000 for a flight to Boston Light and back, have assented to the substitution of Quincy for Soldiers field as a starting point. The flights, however, will include Soldiers Field, making an increased distance for the Light flight of three miles.

Work to prepare the aviation field for the big meet started Monday. The ground will need little if any work as it is in excellent condition, but a grandstand to seat 20,000 must be erected.

ELBOW ROOM SAYS THE RECORD

The new ground chosen for the aviation meet at Atlantic is far better fitted for air flights exhibitions than the Harvard stadium. There is plenty of elbow room now for the aviators and full opportunity to show their ability to navigate the air above the ocean, which inevitably brings an extra thrill to its spectators. The arrangements promise a series of exciting contests.

A HANDY FIELD SAYS THE JOURNAL

In the short time during which the first Boston aviation meet has been under discussion the interest aroused has grown so great that the original plans have undergone considerable alteration. The change of base from Soldiers Field to the new Harvard Aviation Field in Quincy will give the managers a better opportunity to provide a field suitable to both the aviators and the spectators. Indeed, Boston is fortunate to have such a field handy. It behooves the public meantime to study the roads leading to Quincy. The work on a grandstand to hold 20,000 people indicates the managers' assurance of poular enthusiasm; but it would be strange not to have confidence in such enthusiasm considering the extraordinary list of attractions. Curtiss, Harmon, Brookins, Hamilton and Baldwin are all bold and brilliant aviators. Besides, there is the possibility that Bleriot and DeLesseps may come. It is gratifying to note these fine prospects attending Boston's first aviation meet. It is inspiring to think that having waited so long for such an attraction, Bostonians are to be given a truly royal treat.

BEST TO BE SECURED SAYS TRANSCRIPT

More than a week ago the Transcript suggested the doubt which must have arisen in the minds of many citizens touching the availability of Soldiers Field as the scene of the "meet" projected by the Harvard Aeronautical Society. It was obvious that, for convenience of access, this is an ideal location. It seemed equally clear, however, that the space at the command of the aviators would be so restricted that the simplest evolutions must be attended by difficulty and danger. Even to "get away" might present a problem, since the limits of the course almost forbade the straightahead run that preceeds the lift and rise, and since there were perilous curves to be negotiated before the aeroplane was fairly in motion and under control. These things considered, the management took the only way out of the situation, abandoned the field, and leased a more spacious tract at Quincy.

Doubtless the railroad and the trolley cars will extend their service during Aviation Week, and since it is understood that the land has been leased for five years, there is opportunity to hope that in the course of time some of the objections which now attend the location will be obiated. Meanwhile it must be charitably recognized that a tract sufficiently large to accommodate the aeronauts and many thousand spectators, and within convenient distance of the city, is not easy to find. Better locations have been considered, and dismissed for various good reasons, like, for instance the exorbitant demands of owners. Perhaps one may admit, without doing too much violence to the probabilities, that, though the marsh at Quincy is not the best place it seemed to the management the best that could be secured.

A HOT WEATHER CRY.

Oho, ye winds, ye whistling winds,
That howled and blew all winter,
Upsetting trees and smashing blinds
And fences to a splinter,
Where'er you are or near or far
By torrid summer driven,
Come back once more and howl and roar
And all will be forgiven!

Alas, ye gales, ye frigid gales,
That shrieked about the river,
Your cold breath caused us many wails
And made us shrink and shiver.
We made a scream, "Turn on more steam!"
In frantic hope to chase you.
But now if you would howl a few
We'd gratefully embrace you!

For O you blast, you rattling blast,
It's hotter here than blazes;
If longer much this heat should last
We'll all be 'neath the daisies.
Now as we pant we rave and rant,
And but one thing can please us—
A good old, cold old, chill old blow,
The sort that chatters teeth, you know,
And makes the skin all goose flesh grow
And piles in drifts the falling snow
And sends the mercury ten below.
So, Boreas, please come back, old Bo',
Just letting all engagements go,
And blow and blow and blow and blow
Until, oh, joy, you freeze us!

—Paul West in New York World.

"Number's Been Changed To"—

Malden at the central switch,
There's a little problem which
Bothers me no little bit.
Malden, can you fathom it?

When I call a number and
You in voice serenely bland
Say the number has been changed,
How your talk is disarranged!

"It's been changed," say you to me,
"To Bilxumptythr-r-rixtyth-r-ree."
"What?" I query, unaware.
But you are no longer there.

Hence, O maiden, comes this lay!
Whatthedevil do you say
When them inshoot curves you pitch,
Malden at the central switch?

Taking It as a Matter of Course.

"Isn't it a shame the way she abuses those poor children?"

"Have you ever seen her abusing them?"

"No."

"Have they complained that she treats them badly?"

"Not that I know of."

"How do you know, then, that she abuses them?"

"She's their stepmother, isn't she?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

GRANITE EXHIBIT

Ten Quincy Monuments to be Shown at Rochester

The exhibit which the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' association is to make at the convention of the National Retail Monumental Dealers association at Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 23 24, and 25, will be shipped this week so as to be set up in the exhibition hall in ample season for the convention.

Quincy exhibit will consist of ten monuments, largely of the sarcophagus design, and of a size that will make them readily salable at the close of the convention so that they will not have to be brought home. The main desire of the Quincy manufacturers is not to show how large a job can be cut but to show the different shades and grades of Quincy granite.

The ten monuments are cut from granite from as many different quarries. As a rule the bases will be fine hammered finish while the dies will be polished. The total value of the exhibit will be something like $3,000. The Quincy association will be represented at the convention by a special committee consisting of President John C. Murray, Joseph Walker and George Clark.

"PARKS" AT WEYMOUTH.

It took over a page of the Weymouth Gazette last week to advertise a collectors sale of unredeemed real estate in that town, most small lots at the so-called parks—Forest park, Cottage park, Cedar park, Pine Grove park, Electric grove, Groveland park, Sunshine park, Weymouth park, Westwood grove, etc. Many lots are valued at less than $50.

You'll never know how good Lenox Soap is unless you try it.

And you'll never get out of it all the good there is in it, unless you use it as it should be used.

The right way to use Lenox Soap, for washing clothes, is in the form of a solution. Lenox Soap Solution does better work than soap; and is more economical.

TO MAKE LENOX SOAP SOLUTION:—Take a cake of Lenox Soap, shave it into small pieces, and dissolve in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

Wet the clothes, rub the solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water and let stand over night. Next morning, you will find that the really hard part of washing—rubbing the clothes up and down the wash-board—is not half as hard as usual.

BRIEFS

Arthur Green has returned from a visit to relatives in Connecticut.

Miss Ella M. Freeman entertained Miss J. M. Swinson over Sunday.

The cool east wind prevailed last night making blankets necessary to keep warm.

The one topic of talk among the granite sheds at South Quincy is the shooting by Restelli.

Miss Maude Reed of Washington street has returned from a visit to he father in Nova Scotia.

City Solicitor J. W. McAnarney, who has been away for a few days, returned Monday night.

Joseph Hayden, Jr., has been slightly ill, but has recovered and is attending to his store again.

Mrs. John Bruton and her son Frank will visit relatives in New York city, their former home.

Morton Smith and his sister, Miss Josephine, will spend the early part of September at Atlantic City.

Repairs will have to be made very soon to the bridge on Merrymount road, or some team will be dumped into Butler pond.

A large corps of clerks is busy in the Assessors office making out tax bills. As soon as one ward is ready the bills will be sent out.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank K. Damon of Elm street are enjoying a few weeks' in the sloop Venture. Their address will be Marshfield Hills for the present.

The City Engineers department is busy staking out the several streets where permament sidewalks are to be built this year. Some of the abutters are kicking because they are to be assessed.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

DYES HIS WHISKERS BLUE

Immigrant Discovers His Mistake When It Is Too Late

New York, Aug. 9.—There is now detained at the federal detention station on Ellis island a real Bluebeard, nationality Russian, aged 70 years, beard long, curly and a brilliant, bright blue.

Morris Lubowsky heard on his trip across the ocean that it was difficult for the aged and infirm to get into this land of the free, so when he was turned aside at Ellis island to await the action of a board of special inquiry, he brewed a dye from the lead of an indelible pencil and soaked his long beard in it.

The next application was intended for the hairs of his head, but when the dye had well set, he discovered too late, that it was blue, not black, and quite as indelible as it had been advertised.

Workman's Strong Heart Saves Him From Death by Electrocution

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 9.—Although an electric current of 5500 volts passed through his body for three minutes, it is believed that George Beecher will recover.

Beecher, who is an electrician, was doing some repair work at a local factory when he fell against a switchboard and came in contact with a live wire. There was no means at hand of shutting off the current and it was necessary to telephone to the central power station before Beecher could be released.

He was taken to a hospital, where it was stated that, although he was badly burned and shocked, his heart appeared not to be seriously affected and the physicians expect him to recover.

INDIAN CONTRACTS AT DOLLAR A HEAD

Chocktaw Declares That He Was Employed by McMurray

McAlister, Okla., Aug. 9.—How the contracts were procured, by which, according to Senator Gore, $3,000,000 in attorneys' fees was to be made out of the sale of land given to Indians by the government, was related before the special congressional investigating committee.

W. T. Hollman, a Choctaw Indian, testified he had been employed by J. F. McMurray, holder of the contracts, to go out among the Oklahoma Indians and induce them to sign the documents. At the same time Hollman related he was paid "a dollar a head" for securing contracts appointing McMurray to act in tax cases.

In this way McMurray procured 10,000 contracts to sell land. The terms were 10 percent attotrneys' fees, or $3,000,000 profit for McMurray and his associates. To promote this deal in congress, Gore contends, he was offered a $25,000 or $50,000 bribe.

Forty-Two Killed In Conflict Between Government Forces and Rebels

Teheran, Aug. 9.—Governmen troops and members of the national military society known as the Fidais, commanded by Satar Khan, made famous by his long defense of Tabriz against the forces of the deposed shah, had a battle here.

The military authorities ordered the Fidais to surrender their arms, but they refused and a stiff fight ensued. The Fidais were unable to withstand artillery fire and surrendered.

Satar Khan was wounded. Forty-two persons were killed in the conflict.

WOOD ALCOHOL IN WHISKY

Responsible For Serious Sickness of Many Battleship Sailors

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 9.—Several sailors of the battleship fleet are reported critically ill aboard the hospital ship Solace as a result of having imbibed too freely of whisky containing a generous amount of wood alcohol, and two persons who are alleged to have sold them the liquors have been summoned to court.

The arrests were the result of a raid conducted by Lieutenant Sellars of the Michigan, in which thirty-five quarts of whisky were seized.

FAILS TO WIN GIRL HE LOVED

Young Bostonian Thereupon Takes Own Life With Pistol

COOLLY PLANNED HIS DEATH

Gamaliel Bradford, Lineal Descendant of Governor of Plymouth Colony and Member of Family Famous In World of Letters, Speedily Acts When Telegraph Operator Refuses to Break Engagement to Wed Another

South Framingham, Mass., Aug. 9.—A flirtation begun a few months ago in the office of a Boston banking firm had a tragic ending when Gamaliel Bradford, 3d, 23 years old, sixth of the famous Boston family to bear his name and ninth lineal descendant of Governor William Bradford of the Plymouth Colony, killed himself in a room at the Kendall hotel for love of a telegraph operator ten years older than himself.

Miss Elizabeth Corcoran, until Friday last a telegrapher in the office of Bond & Goodwin, Boston, walked from her boarding place here yesterday to the Boston and Albany station with Bradford.

"It is no use," she told him; "I cannot marry you. I love Joe Kelly and we are to be married on Tuesday." A group of people awaiting their train overheard the words and saw the tall youth turn pale beneath his tan.

"I shall not care to live without you," he said. "I have told you that before and I repeat it."

"I cannot do any differently," replied the girl.

"Well, then, it is all over with me," muttered Bradford. "I think I will go to the hotel and do it now." And without a word of farewell he raised his hat and hurried across the street to the Kendall hotel. There he told the clerk that he had been traveling all night, was very tired and wanted a room where he could go to bed at once.

Five minutes later four pistol shots rang out and the wealthy young scion of one of Massachusetts' oldest and most famous families lay dying with a bullet in his brain.

Bradford had gone about his death with uncanny coolness. First he had written a note requesting that the hotel management notify the banking firm in Boston where he was employed, and then he had calmly fired three shots at a mark on the wall to make sure his hand was steady and the weapon true before he sent the fourth crashing through his brain.

Four hours later he died in the Framingham hospital, while Miss Corcoran bent over the couch, begging him to live, to speak to her once more. But he never recovered consciousness.

The young man's father is Gamaliel Bradford, Jr., of Wellesley Hills, famous as a man of letters, and his grandfather is Gamaliel Bradford of Boston, a retired banker and a voluminous writer on economics and politics.

In his left hand as he fired the fatla shot oung Bradford held a copy of Byron's poems which had been in his family for more than half a century. On the fly leaf were these inscriptions in autograph form: Gamaliel Bradford, 1851; Gamaliel Bradford, Jr., 1858.

Miss Corcoran is the daughter of Mrs. Bridget Corcoran of Great Barrington, a widow, and has earned her living at the telegraph key since she left school.

Miss Corcoran rejected her wealthy, aristocratic young lover for Joseph Kelly, an operator in a Pittsfield, Mass., broker's office, with whom she had become acquainted five years ago over the wire. They have been engaged for several years.

In ending his life Gamaliel Bradford, 3d, followed the example of his chum and schoolmate in Wellesley high, John B. Brooks, who shot himself through the breast in a room at the Adams house, Boston, on Jan. 30, because of worry over his studies and health. Brooks was 18 years of age.

EXCEEDS CONTRACT SPEED

Delaware, Our New Dreadnaught, Shows Up Well In All Tests

Washington, Aug. 9.—The battleship Delaware has exceeded the speed required in the contract with the Newport News Shipbuilding company, according to a navy department announcement.

On the acceptance trials the Delaware made 21.5 knots on her 4-hour speed trial and averaged 19.74 knots an hour on her 24-hour endurance run. The contract requires that she average 21 knots for the former and 19 knots for the latter test.

Commendation For Modest Hero

Washington, Aug. 9.—For heroism by which three lives were saved, Earl L. Stout, an ordinary seaman in the navy, has been commended by Acting Secretary of the Navy Mason. According to his commanding officer, Stout "made no report of the heroic conduct and seemed reticent and modest when questioned about it."

MOTHER HEARS SONG AND FINDS DAUGHTER

Missing Girl Discovered In Coney Island Concert Hall

New York, Aug. 9.—As she was passing one of the concert halls in the Bowery, Coney Island, the voice of a girl singing caused Mrs. Mary Risley of this city to stop suddenly and clutch the arm of a woman with whom she was walking. She listened a minute and then said: "That's my daughter May."

Mrs. Risley found Policeman Kaufman and explained to him that the girl had disappeared from her home two months ago. May stopped singing when she saw her mother and the policeman enter the hall. She fled to the wings and tried to escape by a rear door. But the policeman caught her and took her to the police court, where she was charged with vagrancy.

The girl said the glitter of the stage had lured her from her home. Magistrate Voorhees committed the girl to the House of the Good Shepherd, where she will remain until she is 21.

Vermont Man Not Particular Whether Wife Returns or Not

Bellows Falls, Vt., Aug. 9.—Fred Maxson, a livery stable keeper here, declaring that his wife, a rather pretty woman with false teeth, had gone away with a tall, lanky and very redheaded teamster, has called upon the country at large to assist him in locating his four children, who disappeared with his wife from Keene, N. H., on July 13.

Sheriff Thompson, at the request of Maxson, has offered a reward for the children without the wife, and has advertised in several large papers throughout New England.

President of Chile Cancels Scheduled Trip to West Point

New York, Aug. 9.—Monday was set for the trip of President Montt of Chile to West Point for an inspection of the United States military academy. Montt was fatigued, however, after his trip to Boston and Beverly, from which he returned Sunday afternoon, and did not feel equal to the voyage up the Hudson.

The Chilean executive, nevertheless, sailed today with his wife for Europe on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, as originally planned.

$500 REWARD

DEAD OR ALIVE

LOUIS G. RESTELLI

WANTED FOR MURDER

Charles H. Hardwick of Quincy, Mass., in behalf of the family of the late Henry E. Hardwick, authorizes the Chief of Police of the City of Quincy, Mass., to offer the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the capture of Louis G. Restelli, dead or alive, for the murder of Henry E. Hardwick and the attempt to murder C. Theodore Hardwick, on Friday, July 29, 1910, at Quincy, Mass. On the same day Restelli shot and killed his mother, Marianna Restelli, and shot his brother Gaspare Restelli, William Adrian and Benjamin Bishop, all of Quincy and connected with the granite industry of this city. The above reward to be paid unless Restelli has committed suicide when the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) will be paid for the recovery of his dead body. If he commits suicide in order to evade capture of direct pursuit the full sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) will be paid.

Full Description of Louis C. Restelli

Height 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches.

Weight 150 lbs.

Dark complexion, smooth face, but grows a small black mustache quickly.

Brown eyes, the right eye smaller than the left and showing a defect caused by a cataract and making the use of glasses practically compulsory.

He generally wears a pair of gold-bowed spectacles with a very heavy lense, though he will probably endeavor to get along without them.

He is a Lombardian and talks the English language so well that there is no Italian accent noticeable.

Has been in the granite business for years and is well known in the business, being a member of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association.

Was a member of K Co., of Fifth Massachusetts regiment, in the Spanish War.

Age 39 years.

NEW EMPIRE STATE PROBE MAY BE DEEP

William H. Hotchkiss, Superintendent of Insurance, Is Central Figure and Result May Parallel That of Hughes Politically.

Investigation of Graft Methods to Set Record, Assert Committeemen In Answer to Adverse Comment on Personnel.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

NEW YORK is to have another graft investigation, or, rather, according to the members of the committee who are to conduct the probe, is to have the first real, state wide investigation in her history.

This sounds promising. If the probe fest now going forward outdoes the life insurance inquiry conducted by Charles E. Hughes, the investigation which forced the resignation of Senate Leader Jotham P. Allds and the quiz into fire insurance yellow dogs carried on by Superintenednt William H. Hotchkiss, it will deserve well not only of the people of New York, but of the entire nation.

The present inquiry is of country wide interest not only because New York is the Empire State, but because it will affect concerns that do a national business—that is, it will do so provided it proves a real and not a sham investigation.

The general attitude of the press has been that it would be a whitewash affair. The reasons for this impression are not far to seek.

In the second place, it provided that charges could only be made on "knowledge" and not on the usual "information and belief." Now, actual knowledge of a bribery transaction is usually confined to the man accepting and the one giving the bribe, neither of whom, for obvious reasons, is anxious to tell.

Material For Doubters.

Another provision that cast suspicion on the good faith of the resolution was that no candidate for office could be investigated.

Still another circumstance that brought cynical smiles was the makeup and officering of the committee. Its chairman is Assembly Leader Edwin A. Merritt, and its chief counsel is M. Linn Bruce, former supreme court justice and lieutenant governor.

"Now," said the doubting Thomases, "however high the character of these men, they belong to the machine. Can you expect the machine to investigate itself?"

So much for the discredit cast on the investigation in advance. Now for the other side of the story. To make sure of getting this at first hand I went to a member of the committee, Assemblyman Frederick R. Toombs of New York county. Mr. Toombs, it should be explained, is a newspaper man who has been in the assembly several terms. He is a friend of Colonel Abe Gruber. Toombs is the man who introduced the women's suffrage bill and the Wall street investigation resolution.

To make the assemblyman feel good and get him started right he was shown an article in the Review of Reviews reflecting the suspicious attitude of the press toward the investigation. He read down to this sentence:

"With the best of intentions to hunt out graft the committee is practically confined by the action of the legislature to those evidences of corruption already disclosed by the senate investigation last winter and the probing so thoroughly conducted by Insurance Superintendent Hotchkiss."

Can Investigate Anything.

Then he exploded.

"That is not true," said Mr. Toombs. "The committee has the widest latitude. It can investigate practically anything it sees fit. It could investigate Wall street or"—a pause as though looking about for some even more improbable subject of inquiry—"it could investigate this desk." We were sitting at the time near a managing editor's desk, and there was probably nothing in it to investigate except a pair of badly worn shears, a paste pot, an ancient collection of office dust, a family of cockroaches, some manuscripts waiting to be rejected and a fine assortment of general disorder. Any committee that would probe an editor's desk for graft would search the Sahara desert for a peach orchard.

In reply to a question as to whether he thought the inquiry would be a real one or not Mr. Toombs naturally gave an emphatic affirmative. Not only so, but he said it would be the first state wide graft investigation in the history of New York, the Lexow investigation having chiefly concerned the city and the Hughes, Allds and Hotchkiss probes having related to particular concerns or individuals.

"The Armstrong committee that employed Hughes as its attorney and investigated life insurance was discredited in advance, just as we have been," he continued. "Even if we desired to smother this matter and to conduct a whitewash inquiry the press would not permit us to do so. It would pound us until satisfied that we were seeking in good faith to disclose the truth."

Will Wall Street Be Probed?

Notwithstanding his optimism Mr. Toombs admitted that the committee had received no charges except anonymous ones, but did not believe this result was due to the peculiar wording of the resolution. As to whether the scope of the inquiry would extend to Wall street, he said that he himself and at least one other member would demand that it do so, but feared a majority of the committee would not agree with them.

Others concerned in the investigation have spoken in a similar vein, although they have not been so specific or emphatic as Toombs. Senator Wagner, a Democrat, thought the powers of the committee "broad and manifold," believed the committee should "encourage powerful newspapers to aid in its investigation."

Hughes Gives Pointers.

Mr. Merritt, the chairman of the committee, and Mr. Bruce, its counsel, had a consultation with Governor Hughes, at the close of which Mr. Bruce is reported to have made the following statement:

During our talk with Governor Hughes, which was of more than two hours' duration, we were pleased to find the governor in thorough accord with our plans and purposes. He gave us most valuable suggestions, which it will be our aim to follow. It will be my object to make this investigation as broad as it possibly can be made under the terms of the resolution which created the committee and provides for the present inquiry, regardless of whom it may affect, and I trust our work will result in remedial legislation.

There is another version of this affair, however. It is that the governor did not agree with Merritt and Bruce, but talked to them very plainly about the demand for a thorough inquiry. The only thing certain is that Mr. Hughes freely gave the committee his ideas and his advice. It is also certain that Mr. Bruce spoke of him as "a master investigator." This estimate of Governor Hughes is not confined to ex-Lieutenant Governor Bruce, however. The life insurance yellow dogs have the same opinion, for cause.

Chairman, E. H. Merritt of St. Lawrence county; Senators V. M. Allen of Rensselaer county and Alexander Brough of New York, Republicans, and Robert F. Wagner of New York, Democrat, and Assemblymen William Colne of Kings county, Frederick R. Toombs of New York county, Frank L. Young of Westchester, Republicans, and James A. Foley, Democrat, of New York county.

The meetings of the body are being held in the aldermanic chamber, New York city, a room so familiar with graft that the investigation should feel at home. The first regular session took place on Aug. 2, although originally scheduled for a week earlier.

Sudden Visits Are Many.

As candidates cannot be probed a large number of gentlemen seem more than ever anxious to be nominated for something. One prominent lobbyist by the name of Buckley has not trusted himself to this expedient, however, but is making a long and affectionate visit to his wife's relatives in Canada. At least it must be affectionate, since he sticks so close to them. It is doubtful if all the king's horses and all the king's men could get Mr. Humpty Buckley back over the border again. Such an example of devotion, and to Friend Wife's folks at that, is touching.

Hotchkiss had several sessions with Buckley. They were memorable for their lack of memory. Buckley established a new record as the champion forgetter of the world. He showed that he could forget faster and more completely than any man that was ever on the witness stand. That was one reason Governor Hughes wanted a legislative investigation. A superintendent of insurance has not the same memory stimulators as a legislative committee. For one thing he cannot punish witnesses for contempt or send them to jail.

Hotchkiss Laid Groundwork.

It was Hotchkiss, plus Senator Ben Conger and the Allds case, that forced the present investigation. Hotchkiss did to fire insurance what Hughes did to life insurance. If anybody is still in doubt as to what it was these gentlemen did, the answer is "a-plenty." Several high financiers are living in Europe on account of what Hughes did, and at least one politician is living at home who would have preferred going to Washington because of what Hotchkiss did.

Mr. Hotchkiss was not born an investigator, but had it thrust upon him. He lives in Buffalo, which is about as far as one can get from New York city and still be in New York state. At present he is one of about nine Williams that are mentioned for the governorship. Since trying Hughes the people of New York have developed a strong taste for investigators in the governor's office, and Hotchkiss fits the bill. William A. Prendergast, who has also been talked of for governor recently, declined permission to use his name and went to Colonel Roosevelt with a plea for Hotchkiss. He said the colonel seemed impressed. Yet when a flock of correspondents approached the insurance superintendent on the matter he acted for all the world as though he had never heard of the thing before and seemed agreeably surprised that he had a boom.

Points In Common With Hughes.

Mr. Hotchkiss was born in 1864 and was educated at Hamilton college. He has been interested in the primary reform movement, in amending the bankruptcy law and in the regulation of automobiles on the public highways. He is author of one legal text book, "Collier on Bankruptcy," and has been a lecturer in the Buffalo Law school and the Cornell Law school. He has been president of the National Association of Referees In Bankruptcy, of the New York State Automobile association and of various clubs and bar associations.

Thus he has at least three points in common with Governor Hughes—he is an insurance investigator, favors primary reforms and has been a lecturer in the Cornell Law school.

The trails blazed by Hotchkiss will necessarily be followed by the legislative investigating committee. Ever if there is not a single charge on "knowledge" laid before the committee the insurance superintendent's inquiry and the Allds case have indicated enough corruption to keep the committee busy for many moons. It is not without significance that one of the first witnesses before the committee is former Senator Conger, who resigned after exposing Allds.

The wish of every honest man in the state is that the probe may go to the bottom, and this is true regardless of party. Even though without absolute "knowledge" every informed man believes in his heart that there have been graft and bribery in Albany for years. If this committee is in earnest, as its members assure us and as we all want to believe, it has a golden opportunity for public service. It can not only cleanse politics in our greatest state, but its work can become a wholesome example throughout the land.

ON WAY TO SAN SEBASTIAN

Six Thousand Rifles Seized by Bilboa Authorities

CLERICAL FORCES ARE BUSY

Aided by Carlists In Preparing For Demonstrations Against Canalejas—Government Authorities Nervous, but Express Confidence In Overthrow of Carlism—Trouble Threatening In Portugal Over Controversy

Madrid, Aug. 9.—Six thousand rifles were seized by Bilbao authorities yesterday on a tug which had been chartered to go to San Sebastian, where the great anti-government demonstration was proposed to be held before the clerical leaders abandoned the manifestation.

Local authorities at San Sebastian had held that the Carlists were planning to take advantage of the Catholic manifestation to start a movement against the government. No statement, however, is made as to which party to the conflict chartered the tug and loaded it with arms.

Again defying the government, the clerical forces in the Basque provinces, aided by the Carlists, are preparing for demonstrations against Premier Canalejas in connection with the crisis between Madrid and the Vatican.

Don Jose de Orquijo, leader of the San Sebastian junta, who called off the demonstrations planned there for Sunday, is directing the new movement. It is generally conceded, however, that the government has won an important victory in preventing the San Sebastian outbreak.

The reinforcements sent to the north have been ordered distributed at Pompona, in Navarre, and Victoria, in Alava, the towns named by Orquijo as the scenes of the coming demonstrations.

Advices from San Sebastian say that the arraignment of the 150 fervid clericals arrested was brought about with little show of feeling by the populace. It is feared, however, that the prosecution of members of the junta and clericals who sent defiant messages to the premier and others of the government will stir up the members.

The authorities express the greatest confidence that the fiasco of the anti-governmental manifestation marks the end of Carlism and of any attempt at an insurrection in favor of the pretender, but they are plainly nervous as they fully realize the blind devotion of the peasant population of the Basque provinces, who had been told by their priests and monks, with which the country swarms, that it was their religious duty to support the pope against the Spanish government in the pending conflict.

Lisbon, Aug. 9.—Portugal, like Spain, is almost on the verge of an open rupture with the Vatican, due to friction over the governmental censure of the Roman Catholic archbishop of Braga for suppressing a Portuguese Franciscan newspaper without submitting the order to the Portuguese government for approval, and other incidents.

Since the issue of the royal decree July 12, nullifying the action of the archbishop, the clerical forces, inspired, it is charged, by the papal secretary of state, have been conducting a bitter campaign against the government on this account. At the same time the Vatican has been raising difficulties about refilling the diplomatic vacancy caused by the death of Martins d'Antas, the Portuguese ambassador to the Vatican.

The Portuguese government retaliated by deciding to allow the post to remain vacant for the present, and the minister of justice has drafted a bill providing for a civil register of births, deaths and marriages, to be kept by the civil authorities. As this threatens a big source of income of the clergy, a big meeting of ecclesiastics was held here to protest.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Residents of this vicinity are constantly testifying to permanent cures.

Richard Smith, South Central avenue, Wollaston, Mass. says: "I suffered from backache and kidney trouble for a long time. I had dull pains through the small of my back and on arising in the morning, I was so stiff and lame that I could hardly dress myself. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply and in a short time after beginning their use, I was relieved. After I had taken the contents of two boxes of this remedy, I was in good health and I have had no kidney trouble since. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for this change for the better and I gladly recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BURKETT IN BIG LEAGUE.

Former Great Infielder Slated to Manage St. Louis Browns.

Jesse C. Burkett, the greatest baseball general that the New England league ever had, in that he has won four successive pennants for Worcester, is going to quit as a minor league baseball manager. Burkett made this very plain in an interview recently.

For several weeks there has been an inside story going the rounds of the New England league landing Burkett with a berth in the major leagues as a manager as the result of his phenomenal work in Worcester.

When asked if he is considering an offer to manage either the Cincinnati Nationals or the St. Louis Americans Burkett said, "Won't be in Worcester."

This is taken as an excellent hint by Burkett's closest friends that the former major leaguer will succeed Jack O'Connor as manager of the St. Louis Browns.

Burkett signed with Worcester in 1906 after purchasing his own release from the Boston Red Sox, to which club he was traded for Outfielder Stone and a cash consideration. Entering the New England league, Burkett rapidly pushed himself forward as a great baseball general. One of the first players developed by Burkett was Harry Lord, the Red Sox's third baseman and captain. Burkett has developed a host of other players who are now doing brilliant work in the majors.

ELECTRIC BOAT COMPANY

Has Secured Site for Plant in Connecticut

The Daily Ledger mentioned on Monday that the Electric Boat Co. were contemplating removing its plant from the Fore River works to a new location in Connecticut. It can now be stated on good authority that the rumor is true. The company has secured a large tract of land on the water front, and will immediately begin the erection of a large plant. The lease of the land occupied by the company at Fore River has yet several years to run so that the plant will probably not be removed until that lease expires, It may be moved, however, as soon as the new plant is ready. Several of the experts of the company at the Quincy plant leave next week for San Francisco, Cal., where the company has several contracts.

away on the boat Bruce Saturday night. This boat arrived at Port aux Barques, N. F., at 6.30 Sunday morning, and a train left there for St. Georges bay at 8 A. M. and was due to arrive at 12.45. There the suspect seems to have dropped out of sight.

The police do not just understand the telegrams from Mr. Griffin of Lynn and the Sydney police. From what Chief Burrell has learned, it is thought that Griffin who was at one time engaged in liquor cases at Lynn, is at Sydney on his vacation and spotted the suspect.

It is evident from the telegram received that the police of that place do not place much stock in his story, and it would also appear that he was somewhat ruffled because the police did not make more of his story.

Circulars containing Restelli's picture and description have been sent to the police in all the large places in Newfoundland, and Chief Burrell believes that the police there will do all that is possible to apprehend the man.

This morning Chief Burrell received a letter from a man in Roxbury, Conn., stating that he believed Restelli was confined in the Litchfield county jail.

Chief Burrell got into communication with the jail and learned that there was a young Italian under arrest there for stabbing a man, but he bore no resemblance to the man Restelli.

Thus it will be seen that the police are promptly investigating every clew that is brought to their attention in the hopes that one of them may lead to the desired goal.

QUINCY OPEN RACE

A Large Fleet and Plenty of Wind

A large fleet of yachts assembled off Houghs Neck early this afternoon for the open race under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club. A good easterly wind prevailed when the Daily Ledger went to press.

SPORTING CHAT.

Come to Quincy for the big aviation meet! We will show you some great sport!

• • •

Next Saturday the Ramblers play the Adams A. A. at Merrymount park for the championship of the city. As both teams have been remarkably successful this year the game is sure to be a close one with odds even.

• • •

The Free Lance, published at Westville, N. S., where Jimmy Michaels and Troupe are playing, says: "Troupe played well, and is a valuable man in conjunction with Jimmy. He tossed a hot one to second which caused Blake's slide to be of no avail. He hits hard and clean. Michael was in great form and mighty few hits were made off him. Jimmy and Walter were "bounced" in true Canadian style after the game." Making good I guess. Michael fanned twelve, gave only five hits, no passes and only 17 men faced him in the last five innings. I'd like to know the reason the Westville fans like him; not on account of his twirling, surely.

• • •

Jimmy Fay, the shortstopper who used to play for Atlantics has made good with Quincy alright.

• • •

Bill Duggan will be back in time to help trim the Deweys.

• • •

Frank Arellanes shows the effect of the hard work Lake gave him last year. He's about plugged out, and because he was willing last year, Donovan will probably take him when Loud goes, because he can't win now.

• • •

This horse Uhlan must be speedy,
He made a mile in 2:01, dragging a sulky; the fastest time ever made.

• • •

The American schooner Westward beat the field by five miles in a forty-five mile race in England. She will take the International gold cup. Some class.

• • •

Howley of the Apprentices scored their only runs Saturday on the only two passes issued by Charley Knight, once on a sacrifice when he went from first home, though he was saved by the ball striking him in the back and in the seventh when he was passed on the hit and run play and Newcomb clouted out a double, his second hit of the game. Newcomb took two of the three bingles allowed by Knight. Howley showed a world of speed, and it was only by great sprinting that he scored on both ocasions.

Some Immunities.

"It must be irksome," said the visitor to the penal institution, "to remain here and be designated merely by a number."

"Yes," replied the once affluent inmate, "a number is an annoyance. But you don't have to carry a horn and a lot of lanterns."—Washington Star.

Pa's Sacrifice.

Give up your cares for one-half day,
Although you hate to do it.
Just be a martyr, by the way.
In time you will not rue it.
Of course you do not want to go,
But Johnny? Don't forsake him!
He wants to see the circus, so
Of course you'll have to take him.
—Boston Herald.

Boy Was a Kentuckian.

The Sunday school teacher had just explained to the juvenile class that the first parents were made from dust.

"Now, Edgar," she said to a bright little fellow, "can you tell me who the first man was?"

"Henry Clay," was the prompt reply. —Philadelphia Times.

From Outside.

In some great public office I should like to be a clerk.
I shouldn't have to do much in the way of good hard work.
I'd sit behind a window pane
And look sedate and wise and sane,
And when the time for closing came I'd close up with a jerk.
—Buffalo Express.

AUNTIE'S PIE.

He speeds as ne'er before he sped,
Fine frenzy in his eye.
The miles behind have swiftly fled,
Yet still he's on the fly.
Does some great danger to the state
Compel this record breaking gait?
Why, no! He simply has a date
With some of auntie's pie.

His haughty nostrils now distend;
He gives a happy cry.
Though far away his journey's end,
Sweet odors bring it nigh.
Yea, though he still must travel miles,
His boyhood memory compiles
A catalogue of all the styles
Of dear old auntie's pie.

The mince, the apple (green, not dried),
Such as no gold can buy;
Squash, lemon, cranberry, beside
The peach's sweet supply.
His fancy sees the punkin come,
And, though his wheels are still abum,
He chuckles: "Yum! Just pass me some,
Dear auntie, of that pie!"

His tariff may not touch the heart,
But when his face we spy
Half hidden by a damson tart
We smile, and then we sigh,
For, viewing that first citizen,
We of the cities' wearied men
Are happy, hungry boys again,
All facing auntie's pie.
—John O'Keefe in New York World.

REMAINS OF CULTURED NEGRO EMPIRES FOUND.

Runic Signs Found In Unknown Ruins In Sudan.

That powerful negro empires of great size and some culture existed in the Sudan before the white races entered Africa is the conviction of a French scientist, M. Zeltner, who reports in La Nature on the results of his archaeological investigations in the basins of the rivers Niger and Senegal.

Within a triangle formed by the towns of Timbuktu, Kayes and Bamako he located fifty-two archaeological deposits, consisting of ruins of unknown cities.

M. Zeltner's most interesting finds were made in caves on the upper Senegal. Here an abundance of runic signs and drawings was found traced on rocks. They were similar in character to those discovered in South African caverns. The writings have some resemblance to those signs found on ancient ruins farther eastward in the Sahara desert and are believed by M. Zeltner to be related to the present Tuareg alphabet.

The discoveries made have yet to be thoroughly studied. M. Zeltner thinks that the archaeological exploration of the African continent is yet in its infancy and will doubtless yield surprising results in establishing the advanced state of development attained by the black races in early times.

WOMEN BUILD BOONE TRIBUTE

Male Kentuckians Ignore Pioneer Who Built Their State.

In keeping with comment that the observation of Memorial day is falling largely into the hands of the women of the land is the information that the monument recently erected in the capital of Kentucky to Daniel Boone is the result of an effort by women.

For decades men had talked and done nothing to commemorate this notable specimen of the hardy and intelligent pioneer—the frontiersman with an indomitable will, a big brain and an unerring gun. Possessed in high degree of those qualities that are essentially masculine, Daniel Boone, it seems, should have especially appealed to men. But the appeal that was heard and heeded was that which his character and career made to women.

And so there stands in Frankfort a modest but sufficient monument to the man who, leading the exodus from Pennsylvania into Kentucky in the early days, helped so signally to lay the foundation of civilization.

WALKING SALOON POPULAR.

Indiana Streets Swarm With Sunday Liquor Law Evaders.

He walks along the Indianapolis streets on Sunday, a covered basket on his arm, a brazen gaze for all "coppers" and a sly wink for all dry drinkers. He is the "walking saloon," brought into being by Mayor Shank's Sunday closing order. The police are looking for him, but thus far have found only two of him. Two hundred more of him are said to be tramping the streets on Sunday.

The "walking saloon" does not confine its efforts to laving the parched whistles of Indianapolis thirsty ones on Sunday. He may be found in any dry territory in Indiana at any and all times, and more than three-fourths of the state is dry.

The "walking saloon" does not carry a license. His only incumbrance is a big basket loaded with bad booze. He gets it on Saturday and peddles it on Sunday in the highways and byways of the city and state. He is a puzzle to the police, for all basket carriers are not "walking saloons," although all "walking saloons" are basket carriers.

ATHLETICS LOOK LIKE WINNERS

Mack's Team Should Land American League Flag.

CLUB IS WELL FORTIFIED.

Offensively and Defensively Philadelphia Is the Strongest Club In the Junior Organization—Pitching Staff Is In Fine Shape.

Unless the team takes an extended slump Connie Mack and his Athletics will win the American league pennant this season. Philadelphia right now appears stronger than at any time this season and a better balanced organization than any other in the circuit. Boston or New York may overhaul the Athletics, as it is a long time until Oct. 7. Any club that catches Mack's men, however, will have to play the most phenomenal ball of history.

Mack has a wonderful team. It is doubtful if any better has been developed in the big leagues since the American became a rival of the National. This is not even excepting the three times champion Tigers. The Tigers of the past three years presented the most dangerous batting array imaginable; but, everything considered, it is extremely doubtful if this grand aggregation at its very best was a whit more formidable than the present lineup of the American League leaders.

The Athletics, in the first place, are well fortified, offensively and defensively, for the development of every character of strength. The infield, from first base to third base, is made up of a quartet of stars easily the equal of anything in fast company. The outfield is not the speediest imaginable. But the garden trio makes up in hitting ability whatever may be lacking in the ground covering line. At that, Topsy Hartsel, Rube Oldring and Danny Murphy are masters at playing for batters, and all are pretty shifty on the base paths.

But on top of all this Connie Mack has the greatest staff of pitchers in either league today. Eddie Plank is one of the greatest southpaws in the game. Chief Bender, at present indisposed, is this year the equal of any other right hander in the league, while Cy Morgan and Jack Coombs have shown remarkable ability so far. To Coombs falls the honor of rounding out this formidable array of box material.

None of Mack's pitchers has been punished very severely this season. It might have been different but for the phenomenal support afforded them.

Little Eddie Collins is the pivot of the inner works. He is the Johnny Evers of the American league. The best fielding second baseman, Collins, is one of the greatest hitters in fast company. Last season he ran Ty Cobb a great race for batting and base running honors.

Scarcely less phenomenal and meteoric has been the career of Third Baseman Baker. As a fielder this fellow stands out as prominently at his position as does Collins at second base. Baker is a heavy hitter and finished base runner, though in both these departments somewhat inferior to Collins. This young gentleman stands a monument to the managerial ability of Connie Mack. In the spring of last year he appeared the biggest frost that ever donned spangles. Yet before the end of the season Mack had converted him into the sensation of the year.

Harry Davis, first baseman of the leaders, is one of the best known and most highly respected figures in baseball. He is a veteran of the old school, a man who has been in the game almost as long as any infielder now before the public. Davis is of that type which is fast disappearing before modern ethics.

PADOUBNY ON GOTCH'S TRAIL

Giant Russian Wrestler Coming to America to Meet Champion.

Another foreign wrestler is hot on the trail of Frank Gotch, the world's champion. The latest challenger is Ivan Padoubny, the giant Russian Cossack, who is six feet seven inches in height and weighs 300 pounds. Padoubny is about thirty years old. He was born in a village with a jawbreaking name in eastern European Russia.

Out of the last six great wrestling tournaments held in Paris Padoubny has won five and would have won the sixth, but he was unable to be present. These tournaments are recognized as the blue ribbon events of the wrestling world, and giants from all over Europe throng to compete. Two years ago on the final night of the tournament Padoubny was called up to wrestle five men ranging in weight from 250 to 400 pounds. He threw them all between 9 p. m. and midnight.

These are his measurements as given out by his management: Neck, 24 inches; chest, 58; waist, 40; upper arm, 22; thigh, 33; calf, 23; height, 6 feet 7 inches; weight, 360 pounds.

He is principally known as a Greco-Roman wrestler, but according to wrestlers who have met him on the mat the things he knows about foot holds and leg twisting would make Frank Gotch turn green with envy.

Dr. Roller, who next to Gotch is considered to be the best in this country, has seen Padoubny wrestle and says he is the best foreign wrestler he ever saw and will give Gotch the greatest tussle of his career. Roller is now in Russia and says he will bring over Padoubny to meet Gotch next winter.

The Big Guns.

Liberal Cash Prizes Given in All the Classes

A steady easterly breeze, that kicked up quite a rough sea, greeted the yachts that participated in the annual Y. R. A. of M. race under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club on Tuesday. The race did not call out as large a fleet of boats as was expected. One reason was that the race being in the first of the week made it impossible for some skippers to leave their business. Then again there were a number of yachts in attendance at the interesting yachting events that are taking place this week at Marblehead. None of the Sonder class boats showed up at all.

The course was a triangular one. Leaving the stake boat the course ran to Harry's rocks, thence to the government bouy off Peddocks, to the Hingham channel buoy, thence home. The boats went over the course twice.

As usual the local interest was largely centered in the Cape cat class boats, and the race of this class was an interesting one. The Iris is being fitted out for her trip to Narraganset bay, and was not entered. Five of the other boats of the class were on hand however. They got away well bunched but the Josephine soon pushed into the leading position. She was sailed by John T. Cavanagh of Beatrice fame, who had as his crew Frank Hardwick and Ebbie Glover, and they showed what a good crew can get out of an old boat.

At the start the Josephine made straight for Harry's rocks, the balance of the fleet making split tacks.

As the fleet came up from Hingham channel the first time round they made a pretty sight, and were apparently well bunched. The Josephine, however, was the first to round the stake boat, and then it was seen that she held quite a good lead. The Dolly III was the second boat around. Then came the Dartwell and Busy Bee, with the Emeline astern. There

AN ARREST AT SIDNEY

Restelli Suspect Had a Loaded Revolver

New interest in the Restelli case was aroused Tuesday evening when Chief Burrell received a dispatch from Michael McGrath, chief of police at North Sydney, stating that a suspect had been arrested that evening as he was about to take the boat Bruce. The man arrested resembled the much-wanted Restelli and when searched at the police station he had a loaded revolver in his pocket and two boxes of cartridges. The man claimed that his name was E. Weisse of Richmond. Several cards were found in his pockets bearing the name E. Weisse, 604 Williams avenue.

Immediatel upon receipt of this telegram Chief Burrell wired a complete description of Restelli. This description contained a new mark of identification which the police did not learn until recently. This mark is that Restelli is minus one of the small toes on his left foot. In case all other means of identification should fail this should serve to identify him.

Chief Burrell has heard nothing further from North Sydney, and the impression in police circles seems to be that the North Sydney police have discovered the man arrested is not the one wanted. This man is probably the one the Griffin the Lynn detective has been watching, although he had informed the Quincy police that his suspect had taken the boat Saturday night. Chief Burrell, is anxiously waiting to hear from the North Sydney police in regard to the suspect arrested.

Press dispatches from Truro and Halifax state that men have been arrested in both of these places on suspicion that they were Restelli, but that they were later released. Chief Burrell however has had no word from either of these cities, and all he knows about them is what the Associated Press dispatches say.

LATER.

After waiting until nearly noon to hear from North Sydney in regard to the man arrested there Tuesday night, Chief Burrell wired the Chief of that city asking what had become of the suspect arrested. At 12.57 this noon the Chief received the following telegram from Michael McGrath, chief of police at North Sydney:

"Suspect not Restelli. Will keep a sharp lookout."

STATE OFFERS REWARD

Acting Governor Frothingham Acts Promptly

The Restelli case took on new interest this morning, when Lieut. Gov. Frothingham, the acting Governor, issued a proclamation offering a reward of $500 for the apprehension of Restelli. This was the result of a conference held this morning with Mayor Shea. At the conference with Mayor Shea were City Solicitor McAnarney, Senator Hultman and Charles H. Hardwick, representing the Hardwick family.

Immediately following the conference Lieut. Governor Frothingham gave out the following letter and proclamation:

Hon. William T. Shea,
Quincy, Mass.

"Dear Mr. Mayor: In accordance with our conversation this morning and desiring that the State may do all that is possible to help the Mayor and Council to apprehend the perpetrator of the dastardly crime in Quincy on July 29, 1910, under the authority of Section 9 of Chapter 217, I send you the following:

"Being of the opinion that the public good so requires, this commonwealth will pay the sum of $500 to any person who, in consequence of this offer apprehends and secures Louis Restelli, accused of murder of his mother Marianna Restelli and Henry E. Hardwick on July 29, 1910, in Quincy, Mass.

"This reward is made because in my opinion the person cannot be arrested or secured in the customary course of procedure.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Louis A. Frothingham,
Acting Governor.

State House, Boston,
August 10, 1910.

When Mayor Shea returned to Quincy he stated that he should immediately call a special meeting of the City Council for Friday evening to take action on the matter of offering a reward for the apprehension of Restelli.

EXHIBITION POSTPONED.

The exhibition of garden and sloyd work by children to have been held at City Hall today under the auspices of the Educational Committee of the Quincy Women's club has been postponed until next week Wednesday.

AVIATION FIELD

A Low Upland Surrounded by Acres of Salt Marsh

The huge tract of land at New Squantum which has been leased for five years by the Harvard Aeronautical Society for the purpose of experimenting with the various recognized forms of air vehicles, new models and improvements and for holding competitions and trials of all sorts in the interest of aeronautical science, is already being fitted for the first great meet to be held early in September.

The city of Quincy and the Old Colony street railway are widening out and raising the grade of Squantum street, which leads both to Squantum Head and to "New Squantum" where the aviation field is located. From Squantum street about 2000 feet from the Quincy Shore parkway a roadway leads to New Squantum. This street is often submerged at high tide, but is now being filled in. At New Squantum, made notorious by "Marm Tripp" years ago, is a tract of upland elevated only a few feet which is about 4000 feet long by 1000 feet wide, on which are three or four almost deserted buildings, which will be repaired and utilized.

All around this upland extends a salt marsh covered with a short growth of grass, and of such consistency that it will not support even a light weight unless spread out. There are probably one hundred and fifty acres of this marsh land surrounding the upland in the form of a crescent, interrupted only by the road leading to Squantum street. Along the Atlantic edge of the marsh there is a grove of shrubs and trees at which was formerly known as Ditmars powder works, and on the eastern side at some distance the hills at Squantum are capped with dwellings.

The Harvard Society, having leased the property for five years, should experience no difficulty in rapidly improving now unavailable land and turning it to use. There are at least 300 acres of unbroken land in the aviation field and more adjoining.

Numerous fillings will have to be made for the coming meet. It is said the proposed location may be modified should the Old Colony street railway be unable to locate their double-track system.

GODFREY—GRAGG.

A pretty home wedding took place Tuesday evening, August 9, at the residence of George W. Gragg at Quincy Point, when his only daughter Gertrude Mildred was united in marriage to Ernest O. Godfrey, a young business man of this place. Rev. C. L. Paddock of the Universalist church officiated. Gordon Morrison was the best man and Miss Nellie Barnard the bridesmaid.

The house was prettily decorated and the presents were numerous and valuable.

Guests were present from Groton, Halifax, Brookline, Revere, Brockton and Quincy. The young couple departed on their wedding tour amid the usual shower of rice and confetti.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey are to reside at 18 Packard street, where they will be at home to their friends after Oct. 1.

"Take it away!" shouted the King of Bkpio. "What on earth is the matter with the meat? Are you trying to poison me?"

"It must have been," the chef humbly explained, "that the gentleman I cooked this afternoon was a bitter sectarian."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

QUINCY FIRE APPARATUS EARLY TO BOSTON'S AID

Quincy Man Vice President of Blacker & Sheppard Company Which Was Wiped Out

Our Steamer in Action at Both The Big Fires

Quincy was called on last night to assist the Boston fire department to fight the huge conflagration on Albany street, and later the fire in the H. W. Johns-Manville establishment on High street.

When the call for assistance came at 7.30, the steamer and combination wagon from station 1 were sent over the road by Chief Williams, and the Weymouth department asked to cover the Quincy district.

The run to the Albany street fire through Hancock street, Neponset avenue, Freeport street and Massachusetts avenue to Albany street took forty minutes.

The Quincy apparatus and Chief Williams were immediately given right of way through the enormous throngs that seemed to wait until the horses were on them before they drew back. They took the place of a disabled engine near Albany street, in the hottest o fthe fight. When the alarm rung in from Box 44 on High street at 7.53 they were immediately dispatched there being conducted by the captain of Boston Ladder No. 8. So great an amount of hose was laid that for some distance to High street was driven over hose held rigid by the water pressure within.

At High street the steamer was put into action, and worked for fully an hour amid a fiercely hot furnace of flame from a six-story building. It was one of the times when the Hunt gun was needed.

At 10.40 the Quincy apparatus was relieved and started for home reaching this city at 12.45 A. M.

Today the horses show no effect of their long run, and are seemingly able to duplicate it at any moment.

The men who went from Quincy besides Chief Williams were Captain Coster, Lieut. John Faircloth, James Carroll, Herbert Griffin, Samuel Hanson, Charles Anderson, Walter Hill, John McKenna, William Sands, John Desmond, Alec McDonald, Murdock McDonald and Arthur Pinel.

Other cities and towns to send aid were Hyde Park, Brookline, Newton, Cambridge, Somerville, Everett, Chelsea, Revere, Melrose, Medford, Waltham, Lynn and Winthrop.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The tax collector of Danvers makes an excellent report. The entire tax levied in 1909 has been collected.

Chicago has it in mind to become the largest city in the world for its latest campaign is for the annexation of every town and village within 100 miles. Boston does not seem to have much luck growing larger in that way for most of its surrounding towns object to being taken in. Quincy for one feels that its people get better service as it is than as a part of Boston.

Fourteen of the twenty-five wards of Boston have a smaller assessed valuation than Quincy. In fact five have not half the valuation, although Boston has forty times the wealth of this city. The valuation of Quincy is about the same as the big Dorchester wards, this city having a valuation of $32,458,055, while Ward 21 has $32,780,200, Ward 22 has $26,971,200, Ward 24 has $35,613,700 and Ward 25 has $36,959,700. The wards with less than half the valuation are Wards 4, 5, 6, 14 and 15.

"God's Battleship" as the Boston floating hospital has been appropriately named by the Boston Journal goes out each day on its voyage of mercy with every available space used. Its work this summer has been so far very encouraging; many babies have been saved and others are improving each day under the wholesome conditions and invigorating air. It certainly is one of Boston's best charities and opens the hearts and purses of people all over the state without regard to creed or nationality.

Nantucket is an ideal place for people who dislike the auto. To be sure several people have announced that they can no longer summer at that island because autos are barred, at the same time their place has been taken by others equally desirable and the staunch old islanders are standing by their ultimatum. The town is free from the autos and a safe place for children to roam in freedom about the streets, so Nantucket gains in the end. While there are doubtless some who would like to bring their machines to the island, the majority of Nantucket's summer population seem to be in favor of banishing the automobiles from the island forever, and they are lending their support toward keeping the special act passed by the legislature in force year after year.

Quincy which has more than once in days gone by been the center of public interest, will be the centre of the worlds' interest. Just imagine that the entire populace of the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany, Spain, Italy, Russia, and so on ad infinitum, have looked up Quincy on their maps and will think of little else for ten days.

The men who have risked life and limb in the fragile creation of their imaginations in an effort to fly above the earth are to be in Quincy, and world famous men of many headlong earthward tumbles will do their tricks before us. Such a sporting event as a flying race was an unthought of thing twenty years ago, but now it is a reality, and will occasion the same interest as the English Derby at Epsom Downs. It is great luck to have such a field as the one at Squantum, and the sports from all over the globe will be with us betting 2 to 1 on Orville Wright.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Judge Lummus of the Lynn police court fined a bad boy for stealing fruit and injuring the tree. When the case got to the superior court the boy was allowed to go free, to do some more, an encouragement to other boys to follow his example.

This was an especially aggravated case, and yet a typical one among hundreds enacted in every community.

It appeared that, with congenial associates, he had raided a pear orchard, when its owner had objected they had pelted him with his own fruit. He, however, persisted in following the band until he overtook a policeman who arrested its leader.

Many a householder asserted that it was useless to plant or care for them, since he could enjoy none of their fruit. Hoodlums deprived him of that privilege at the last moment, and it seemed practically impossible to catch them without his sitting up all night to try to do so. In these circumstances the sentencing of the Lynn marauder would have proved wholesome had it meant anything.

The Boston Transcript discussing this case justly says that the boy has "suffered no penalty whatever, and those who are well informed assert that he never will suffer any. His punishment has consisted in going to the trouble of getting his mother to furnish a $200 bond for his appearance in the superior court, and then in employing an attorney to defend him.

It is a common occurrence in Salem and every other comunity to have fruit orchards raided by boys and for the same boys to insult and assault the owners when remonstrance is made. The only way that the thing can be stopped is by the imposition of sentences and their enforcement by the higher court. There is altogether too much letting down of the bars put up by the local courts when cases get to the superior court.—Salem News.

Is it not just possible that certain frantic women are overdoing this Mrs. Longworth cigarette business? Mrs. Longworth is a woman of full age, married to a husband well capable of looking after her. Her cigarette smoking may be an unpleasant thing for some of us to contemplate, but is it not, after all, a purely personal matter which does not interfere with the rights or comforts of others?

Some times calling attention to habits of distinguished people leads to others adopting the same habit instead of curing any one of it.

The News would not for a moment indorse the cigarette habit in men or women; it wishes it were a crime to sell the things, but it does question the right or the good taste of such public criticism of private conduct of any woman or man, whem that conduct is not an interference with public right. The fact is to be regreted perhaps, but Mrs. Longworth might well answer her critics by advising them not to do a good many foolish things which some of them quite likely do, or she might respond that it is "none of their business."—Salem News.

A TRADE WINNER.

"To be successful," says a writer on business topics, "the retail merchants must not only advertise regularly in the daily newspaper, but he must make his announcement look like news." No exception can be taken to the first part of this assertion, but the second is open to amendment, thinks the Philadelphia Record. The business announcement which merely looks like news will not necessarily be a trade winner; it must actually be news. Readers of newspaper advertising are almost invariably in quest of up-to-date information that will lighten the labor of selection. They want real store news.

THE HONEYSUCKLE ROAD.

BELLE CAPLES MORRIS

If life seems naught but failure,
And burdensome your lead,
Take a little walk along
The honeysuckle road;
'Tis but a little distance
To go and you will see
A road as sweet with honey bloom
As roads of used-to-be.

'Tis but a little distance,
Across a little stream
That runs away past Dreka's mill
With many a glint and gleam;
And we shall come upon it,
This sunny day in June,
All fragrant with its ropes of bloom
And sweet with birds atune.

The road winds upward round the hill,
And on past Griffith's farm;
And though life's road may lead you, far,
You long will feel its charm;
For clinging, clinging vines of bloom
Has covered all the place,
And, reaching up toward Heaven for room
Are smiling in God's face.

O, here is gold of Ophir,
And snow of Lebanon,
And over all the heat and light
Of summer's circling sun!
And drinking in its beauty,
One may forget a while
The undeserved attacks of fate,
And learn again to smile.

Then leave a while your sorrow;
Lay by your heavy load,
And revel in the beauty
Of the honeysuckle road.
Life surely will seem sweeter
And better worth your while,
And heart to heart with nature
You'll learn again to smile.

OPERATION ON GAYNOR POSTPONED

Doctors Hopeful That Mayor of New York May Recover---Wound Inflicted by a Would-Be Assassin Not Thought to Be Fatal

MAYOR GAYNOR

Bullet Not Extracted, but He Rests Quietly

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 10.—This morning it was announced that Mayor William J. Gaynor, who was shot by James Gallagher, a discharged city employe, on board the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse as he was starting for his vacation in Europe, is resting comfortably. After an X-ray examination of the wound in his head the doctors decided not to operate for the present.

The bullet after entering the back of the head split into two parts. The wound is not necessarily fatal, but it is an extremely dangerous one to a man of Gaynor's age. The doctors state that in their opinion unless blood poisoning should set in the mayor will recover. Much anxiety is felt, for a turn for the worse in his condition would cause grave alarm.

The shooting took place on the forward promenade deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse on which Gaynor was about to embark for a month's vacation. It was witnessed by scores of men and women and many of the latter became hysterical.

The bullet entered the right side of Gaynor's neck, taking a downward and forward course. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, in an ambulance.

Mayor Gaynor never lost consciousness and gave directions to those about him after the shooting. He surprised those at his bedside by waking up last night and asking for something to eat.

Story of the Shooting

Twenty minutes before the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was due to leave her pier in Hoboken Gallagher walked up to where Gaynor was standing on the forward part of the promenade deck exchanging farewell greetings with friends and members of his official family, placed the muzzle of a .38-calibre revolver about twelve inches from the back of Gaynor's head and pulled the trigger.

The first cartridge failed to explode, but the second bullet entered the mayor's neck just back of the right ear. Gallagher then turned the weapon on Robert Adamson, secretary to Gaynor, but Adamson knocked the assassin's hand in the air and upset his balance.

Before he could recover his footing, the powerful fist of "Big Bill" Edwards, the former football giant and head of the street cleaning department, shot out and caught him flush between the eyes, and in another instant he was squirming on the deck under Edwards' massive form. As Edwards and Gallagher went to the deck the latter tried to pull the trigger of his revolver twice again, one of the bullets plowing through the fleshy part of Edwards' left arm and going wild.

The actual shooting was done in a few seconds and it was not until the persons who had been watching the group of officials saw Gaynor stagger and fall into the arms of those around him and saw the struggling form of his would-be slayer on the deck that they realized what had happened.

Conscious and Calm

Passengers on the promenade deck surged toward the spot where Gaynor, a deathly pallor on his face, was calmly giving directions to the excited ones about him. When the bullet struck him Gaynor placed his right hand against the wound, swayed back and forth, but did not fall. Benjamin C. Marsh and Adamson caught him on either side and supported him.

"Get somebody," said the mayor, turning to his secretary. This was all he said as he was led toward his stateroom on the starboard side of the boat, about 100 feet away.

Someone suggested that they carry him, but Gaynor said he was strong enough to make the journey on foot. Officers of the ship opened up a passageway through the horrified crowd, and as Gaynor came in sight, with his collar and shirt dyed a deep crimson, many women screamed.

"Who shot me?" asked the wounded official as tender hands lifted him on a couch and Dr. Lederle, head of the health department, and Dr. Meyer, the ship's physician, proceeded to make a hurried examination. No one was able to give him any information because no one had been able to identify Gallagher as a former city employe, and Gallagher did not make known his identity until he reached police headquarters in Hoboken.

"Isn't It a Pity?"

The mayor was told it was the act of a crank, and he said: "Isn't it a pity?" Up to a late hour last night he had not asked for the name of the man who shot him, and those around his bedside did not volunteer the information.

The physicians made Gaynor comfortable until the arrival of an ambulance from St. Mary's hospital, Gaynor was placed on a stretcher and carried down the gangplank through a lane of tear-stained faces. His head was swathed in bandages and his face was hidden from the throng which pressed about the ambulance.

One hour from the time of the shooting the injured official was on the operating table. The mayor displayed remarkable fortitude throughout, and only once gave those about him the impression that he thought his wound was fatal. When they were bearing him down the gangplank to the ambulance he smiled faintly through his bandages and said: "Tell the people good-by."

Many Messages of Sympathy

News of the attempted assassination plunged the city and a large part of the country in grief. Messages of sympathy were sent to the mayor's office by President Taft, Theodore Roosevelt, Governor Hughes and other officials prominent in the life of the nation. These messages poured in from all parts of the country, and the hospital officials were besieged over the telephone for details as to the mayor's condition.

Cablegrams of sympathy were received from all parts of the world, proving that the most remote places have kept in touch with Gaynor's work at the city hall.

At the time of the shooting Gaynor was surrounded by half a dozen members of his official family. Rufus W. Gaynor, his son, was the only member of his family present. He had intended taking the trip with his father.

Gallagher was arrested and arraigned before Recorder McGovern charged with having committed an "atrocious assault with intent to kill." He declined to plead and was locked up in the county jail in Jersey City to await the result of Gaynor's injuries.

Gallagher is 58 years of age and had been employed as a watchman in the dock department for seven years. He appeared to be sober when arrested, and was at all times collected.

Gallagher's Confession

Gallagher made the following signed confession of his act to Robert W. Bell, acting chief of police of Hoboken:

Shot In Neck by Former City Employe Who Brooded Over Losing His Position---Tragedy on Board Steamer About to Sail

CITY OF QUINCY — POLICE DEPARTMENT

$500 REWARD

DEAD OR ALIVE

LOUIS G. RESTELLI

WANTED FOR MURDER

Charles H. Hardwick of Quincy, Mass., in behalf of the family of the late Henry E. Hardwick, authorizes the Chief of Police of the City of Quincy, Mass., to offer the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the capture of Louis G. Restelli, dead or alive, for the murder of Henry E. Hardwick and the attempt to murder C. Theodore Hardwick, on Friday, July 29, 1910, at Quincy, Mass. On the same day Restelli shot and killed his mother, Marianna Restelli, and shot his brother Gaspare Restelli, William Adrian and Benjamin Bishop, all of Quincy and connected with the granite industry of this city. The above reward to be paid unless Restelli has committed suicide when the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) will be paid for the recovery of his dead body. If he commits suicide in order to evade capture of direct pursuit the full sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) will be paid.

Full Description of Louis C. Restelli

Height 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches.

Weight 150 lbs.

Dark complexion, smooth face, but grows a small black mustache quickly.

Brown eyes, the right eye smaller than the left and showing a defect caused by a cataract and making the use of glasses practically compulsory.

He generally wears a pair of gold-bowed spectacles with a very heavy lense, though he will probably endeavor to get along without them.

He is a Lombardian and talks the English language so well that there is no Italian accent noticeable.

Has been in the granite business for years and is well known in the business, being a member of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association.

Was a member of K Co., of Fifth Massachusetts regiment, in the Spanish War.

Age 39 years.

dread having to prepare an elaborate dinner because they are not sufficiently strong to stand over an intensely hot coal range. This is especially true in summer. Every woman takes pride in the table she sets, but often it is done at tremendous cost to her own vitality through the weakening effect of cooking on a coal range in a hot kitchen.

It is no longer necessary to wear yourself out preparing a fine dinner. Even in the heat of summer you can cook a large dinner without being worn out.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

Gives no outside heat, no smell, no smoke. It will cook the biggest dinner without heating the kitchen or the cook. It is immediately lighted and immediately extinguished. It can be changed from a slow to a quick fire by turning a handle. There's no drudgery connected with it, no coal to carry, no wood to chop. You don't have to wait fifteen or twenty minutes till its fire gets going. Apply a light and it's ready. By simply turning the wick up or down you get a slow or an intense heat on the bottom of the pot, pan, kettle or oven, and nowhere else. It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot, drop shelves for coffee, teapot or saucepan, and even a rack for towels. It saves time, worry, health and temper. It does all a woman needs and more than she expects. Made with 1, 2, and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner sizes can be had with or without Cabinet.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

(Historical Paper No. 27.)

The stone for the United States Dry Dock at Charlestown, Mass., was taken from the Granite Railway quarry, and dressed in the Navy Yard, in 1828.

The stone for the United States Dry Dock at Gosport, Va., was taken from the Granite Railway and other quarries, including the "South Common," of pink stone, and worked at that time by Jonathan, Samuel and James Newcomb, three brothers.

The stone for the New Orleans Custom House was furnished between the years 1849 and 1856, by a combination of all the principal granite firms in Quincy, Boston and vicinity. Luther Munn acted as agent for the several firms, with the government. The building occupies a whole square, three hundred feet on a side, and covering an area of more than two acres.

The stone for the Mobile Custom House was furnished by O. T. Rogers & Co., Granite Railway Co., and J. B. Whitcher & Co., the contract being with O. T. Rogers Co.

The stone for the Savannah, Ga., Custom House was furnished by O. T. Rogers Co. and others. O. T. Rogers Co. had the contract with the government.

The stone for the Portland, Me., Custom House (since destroyed and rebuilt) was furnished by J. B. Whitcher & Co. and Barker, Wright & Co.

The stone for the San Francisco, Cal., Custom House was furnished by Richards, Munn & Co. and others.

The stone for the Providence, R. I., Custom House was furnished by Frederick & Field and E. C. Sargent.

The stone for the Boston Court House was from the Granite Railway Quarry, in 1833.

The stone for the Essex County Court House at Salem was furnished by O. T. Rogers & Co.

The stone for the Worcester County Court House was furnished by O. T. Rogers & Co., and Thomas Hollis, Jr.

The stone for the Boston Exchange was from the Wigwam quarry, by Mr. Willard, with the exception of the pilasters, which were furnished by O. T. Rogers & Co.

The stone for the San Francisco Exchange was furnished by Richards, Munn & Co., and others.

The stone for the old Masonic Temple and the old Trinity Church, Boston, were furnished by Richards, Munn & Co.; the temple in 1833 and the church in 1828.

Raising a False Issue.

A story well known to lawyers of the last generation is about the "umbrella case." A man was charged with stealing an umbrella, and a number of witnesses went into the box to testify to the offense. The counsel for the defendant noted that each witness carried an umbrella (the time of year was midsummer, which explains the necessity for these impediments). As a matter of fact, the prisoner had no defense to make. The barrister, thrown on his wits, exclaimed: "Gentlemen of the jury, did you not notice that each of the witnesses carried an umbrella into the box? Why is this, gentlemen? It is done in order to infect your minds with the idea of an umbrella, to prejudice the prisoner in your eyes, to raise 'a false issue,' and I appeal to you to signify your detestation of this concerted action by bringing in a verdict of not guilty." The judge, who imagined that little attention would be paid to such a plea, took little time and less pains to sum up the case. The jury nevertheless brought in a verdict in accordance with the resourceful barrister's wishes.—London News.

Hot Air.

The sirocco blows hot from the highlands of north Africa and falls on the Mediterranean as far as Malta. The salano jumps like a windy fireball from the heat of the Sahara desert and lands flatfooted in Spain. The harmattan blows hot Sahara dust far into the Atlantic and gives nosebleed and makes skin and lips parch and crack, while furniture and ship timbers groan and crack and scream in an agony of droughty despair. The khasmin blows Sahara's ancient dust into Egyptian eyes every fifty days. The pamperos periodicaly blow down into Buenos Aires out of the unexplored desert highlands of Brazil, and the blowing causes suicides and murders to be more common and wounds to break out afresh, with a heavy death rate. Pamperos pass away in a second, leaving the air fine.—Exchange.

SCOTLAND YARD NOT JOKE BUT EFFICIENT

London's Famous Police Bureau Aims at Prevention First, Detection Afterward, Unlike America.

Lack of Publicity as Aid Shown In Dew's Surprise at Newspaper Squad Awaiting Him Recently.

WHEN Inspector Dew, who had pursued Dr. Crippen across the Atlantic, stepped out of an inconspicuous hatchway of the vessel in which he had come, thinking that he was going to get ashore entirely unobserved and be able to go about incognito as "Mr. Dewhurst," a respectable English business man, he was nearly overpowered to find forty newspaper men and as many photographers waiting to greet him.

That, to most American minds, argued total lack of imagination. A New York central office man crossing the ocean under similar circumstances would have realized the sensational character of the flight. He would have known that it would attract the attention of the two continents.

Though in midocean, he would have pictured the American newspapers reveling in that dramatic suspense, following the pursuit of the slower steamship by the faster day after day, speculating on the possibility that the suspects might prove to be somebody else, giving the various steps that would have to be taken to arrest and deport Crippen and garnishing all this with photographs of everybody concerned.

There Lies the Difference.

An American detective would have realized all this and have been actually expecting the fourscore newspaper reporters and photographers. As nearly as can be made out, the stolid Scotland Yard man never even dreamed of such a thing.

More than one American will argue from this that the Scotland Yard officers are a slow witted and clumsy going lot. Conan Doyle did a good deal to create this impression, for after most of Sherlock Holmes' brilliant deductive triumphs the author brought in a smug inspector from "the Yard," and let him make himself odious to the reader by taking all the credit which properly belonged to the remarkable Holmes.

This is a literary fiction extraordinarily far from true. Scotland Yard is the greatest crime detecting organization in existence. Any person versed in detective work will admit as much. No country has a more effective bureau. The New York central office is not its equal—certainly not its superior, taken as a whole. Its men have many characteristics which seem unfitting—even absurd—from an American viewpoint, but the things they accomplish are great.

Conan Doyle's stories really prove this, for they were all based on Scotland Yard exploits recounted to him by Scotland Yard men. The wonderful feats of deduction attributed to Sherlock Holmes, though undoubtedly made more remarkable by the author, were founded on real cases.

Sir Edward Richard Henry is present commissioner of police in London and receives £2,000 a year. He is the man who suggested thumb prints as a means of identifying criminals. This system has been adopted in most of the countries of the civilized world.

The police headquarters of the metropolitan district of London are at Scotland Yard, and from this fact the C. I. D., or criminal investigation department, takes its name. Frank Froest, whose name has appeared frequently in the London cables on the Crippen case, is the superintendent of Scotland Yard.

Conditions Differ From America.

In order to understand the work of these English police it must be remembered that they have entirely different kinds of criminals to contend with there—or rather they have the same kinds in entirely different proportions.

They have far fewer murders than the police on this side. America, of all modern civilized countries, is the place in which murder is practiced most ruthlessly and abundantly. There's a reason, of course. America has those hordes of foreigners pouring in at Ellis island constantly, and those hordes include the refuse of European nations, and this refuse furnishes a large proportion of the crimes which so swell the homicide statistics.

They have few safe crackers and bank robbers nowadays. America is the field for that sort of operations because its population is diffuse, its stores and banks are less safely guarded, its habits are more careless, and its criminals, nevertheless, are of the cleverest. England is a compact country, well settled, well protected, a place where all the means of prevention have been developed to the highest degree.

In that word prevention is the key to much of the work of Scotland Yard. That wonderful police machine bends all its energies to prevent crime, so that it will not have to go to the effort of hunting down the criminal after the wrong has been committed.

Stool Pigeons Always There.

Scotland Yard has a huge number of stool pigeons and informants. None of these are ever known as being in the employ of "the Yard," but they go their accustomed way, mingling with their own sort, be they murderers, thieves, anarchists or what not, and from time to time they give the police hints of what is going to happen, and the police see to it that the plot is frustrated.

Meetings are held in Hyde park, and Socialists make violent speeches. There are always a few agents of Scotland Yard in the audience. They are not those tall, square shouldered, square toed fellows, such as a sophisticated New Yorker can pick out of almost any street crowd as "plain clothes men." They look like all the others.

Perhaps one of them is that very hothead who is going to get up presently and make a speech suggesting that the king be hanged and that the parliament building be burned to the ground. He is the fellow who, if a plot ever is formed to put his advice into effect, will inform Superintendent Froest secretly in time to have the ringleaders clapped in irons.

There are hundreds—indeed, probably thousands—of these informants in the pay of the crown, although their names never appear on any payroll. The existence of this great staff of stool pigeons is one important difference between the London and the New York police systems.

If Scotland Yard were operating in New York city it would have half a dozen bartenders on the Bowery. It would have a dozen foreign born informants in every foreign quarter. It would pay somebody in every circle of criminals or putative criminals to continue his associations with those criminals, take part in their crimes if necessary, but keep their confidence—and betray it.

The Italian squad in the New York department was an attempt to mingle with people of a certain class and learn their intimate ways. Joe Petrosino before the Black Hand got him in Italy used to put on a slouch hat, take a chair at some corner table in some Italian dive and spend a whole evening apparently dozing over his liquor, but actually listening unsuspected to the conversation around him.

But as a whole the New York department is ill equipped with men who are fitted for this sort of thing, and it never will have the wonderful corps of underworld assistants that London has until sufficient money is provided.

Promoters Bother Scotland Yard.

There are fewer defalcations and "inside jobs" in English banks, because the system of inspection is more rigid. On the other hand, England is afflicted with glittering promoters of the Whittaker Wright class, and one of the most difficult problems which Scotland Yard has to face is the genteel swindler. Europe produces this variety of "gentleman" par excellence, and the figure he makes as a polished descendant of some time honored family is frequently so good that America must hope in vain to produce his like.

The Scotland Yard man often goes about in a top hat and excellent clothes, in order to look like the average Londoners with whom he must mingle. He is probably, on the whole, better dressed and of better appearance than the New York detective. He takes his work very seriously, almost solemnly. When he calls on a fishwife to elicit some information he candidly hands her a card on which is engraved perhaps, "Inspector Smythe Creighton, C. I. D."

The practice of the police in regard to mysteries has been radically different on the two sides of the ocean. Scotland Yard has always maintained the most stolid silence on cases in which it was concerned, giving out details only when the case had been solved with finality to the glory of "the Yard."

In New York the police have been extremely generous with their information, withholding only as much as seemed absolutely necessary to insure the successful outcome of the hunt. No doubt some criminals have been lost through premature publication of police plans, but this is a small matter compared with the number of criminals who have been caught because the publicity they got in the newspapers made it impossible for them to hide.

Publicity Gaining Favor.

If England had had newspapers and newspaper men of the aggressive American type no doubt more information would have been extracted from the redoubtable C. I. D. Of late years "the Yard" itself has shown signs of realizing that publicity might not be a bad thing at times and has used less reserve in its relations with the newspapers.

After Dr. Crippen and Miss Le Neve had given Inspector Dew the slip the latter was only too glad to have the newspapers furnished with a complete description and photographs of the fugitive, not to mention a few details of the crime.

Any one inclined to be scornful of the conservative methods of Scotland Yard might find material for fun in the fact that it tried for a long time to get along without telephones and only installed them two years ago. This does indeed reveal conservatism, but the scornful person must take into account the fact that telephones have not been in general use in London much longer. Oshkosh, Wis., is very swift to adopt modern improvements, New York is slower, and London is slower still.

THANKFUL TO THOMAS CRANE

Theological School at Tufts Enlarges Its Work

Tufts College as well as the City of Quincy is indebted to the estate of the late Thomas Crane. The Universalist Leader says the Crane Theological School of Tufts College is now able to announce the arrangements which have been made for the ensuing college year. The Deanship is not yet settled. Negotiations are proceeding, but the results will not be known in time for the new Dean to take his place at the opening of the fall term. The administration will be in the care of President Hamilton until the Dean assumes office.

Instruction has been provided for on a more complete scale than ever before. The work in Homiletics and Pastoral Theology, which has been associated with the Deanship, will next year be in the able and experienced hands of Dr. Henry I. Cushman, whose scholarship and preaching ability are well known to the entire denomination. Prof. H. G. Mitchell, whose reputation as teacher and scholar is national, takes the chair of Hebrew and Old Testament. Mr. Bristol, a thoroughly trained specialist, takes the work in Applied Christianity with special reference to Religious Pedagogy and Missions, in which special courses will be given, which will greatly strengthen the work of the School.

Professor Knight is expected to resume work in the fall, and Professors Tousey and Harmon will continue in their respective departments, while the usual courses given by the collegiate instructors in economics, Language, English, History, etc., will continue as before.

It may be safely said that the course in ministeral preparation now offered is the best, all things considered, that Tufts has ever laid before her public.

AN UNFORTUNATE RESPONSE.

The problem of too many churches in a given locality is often a perplexing one. It is said that the churches in a certain village, on opposite sides of the streets, were so close that when the congregation in one church sang "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?" the congregation in the other church promptly responded, "No, Not One; No, Not One." Fortunate is it if the seeming contradiction is confined to the unintentional inharmonious responses in songs.—Lippincott's.

THINKS REMINGTON IS TELLING TRUTH

Chief Detective Thought Murdered Man Was a Suicide

Boston, Aug. 10.—William R. Remington, the morphine fiend and self-accused murderer of Max Sorokien, a Harrison avenue grocer, was arraigned in the municipal court on the charge of murder. He was held for a hearing without bail for Aug. 17.

Chief Dugan believes that the man is telling the truth. Dugan said that Remington had gone four times to Tewksbury to be treated for the drug habit.

The chief declared that the verdict of Medical Examiner Watters and the Boston police that Sorokien had committed suicide had been entirely justified from what they could learn of the case. He said: "If I had a similar case I would be compelled to declare it suicide for want of a clue that would warrant anything else."

PROPOSITION IS DROPPED

International Conservation, One of "My Policies," Pronounced Dead

Washington, Aug. 10.—Former President Roosevelt's proposition to make conservation a world-wide movement by a conference of nations is pronounced officially by the state department to be dead.

Of the forty-nine governments, represented diplomatically in Washington, which were invited just before the former president went out of office to join the movement, only nineteen have replied.

The answer of some of the governments were of such a disinterested character that it was officially decided to carry the proposal no further.

Italy Drops Charlton Case

Rome, Aug. 10.—Minister of Justice Fani has determined to make no farther demand for the extradition of Porter Charlton, according to a declaration made by an under secretary of the department of justice.

—Reports from the western New York peach belt show that the crop this year will run 25 p. c. better than last year, when the largest crop in years was harvested. On Aug. 15, "peach trains" over all the railroads entering Rochester will begin to move the crop to New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

Can't Afford It?

Let's Figure it out and see.

How much would you charge to go to the grocer's or the provision dealer?

How much would you give, on a stormy day, to be able to visit a distant frtend?

How much would it be worth, in case your child were taken suddenly ill at night, to be able to summon the doctor at once, and, perhaps, by special instructions from him by wire, to be able to give temporary relief pending his arrival or even to save its life?

The expense of a telephone is not figured by what it costs for a whole year, but by how much it saves each time it is used. Therefore, with all these things in mind, ask yourself—

Can I Afford to be Without a Telephone?

If you need further details as to cost, ask your Local Manager to send a Contract Agent to see you.

BRIEFS

Miss Viola A. Hayden of 46 Spear street is spending two weeks at Ashland, N. H.

Mortimer O'Brien who was an employee of the Daily Ledger about 20 years ago was in town this week.

Michael Guess has returned to Quincy after a tour of the West, which included Chicago, Seattle, and the Klondike.

Misses Georgia and Florence Wills of Whitman are the guests of Mrs. George H. Penfield of Beale street for two weeks.

The inspector of Children's gardens for the Quincy Woman's club visited those of Wollaston park on Tuesday it being the last before the exhibition of flowers in City Hall.

It is to be hoped that the Squantum mosquitoes will not resent the attempt to hold an aviation meet in that section of Quincy. Aroused to vicious anger, they might do irreparable damage to the flying machines.— Boston Journal.

Squantum Mass., (and such a name) will become famous for having one of America's greatest aviation meets. It is little credit to Squantum, since the choice was based on the amount of waste land available; and Squantum is a howling waste.—Barre Times.

About a mile of Hancock street, between Merrymount park and Billings road is being prepared for paving. Edgestone is being set along the west side and a sidewalk constructed. The main thoroughfare from Boston will be greatly improved, and have more of a city appearance.

Dr. Frank E. Dawes, William M. Chase and Herbert Fuller of the Wollaston Yacht club left the Wollaston anchorage Monday, Aug. 8, in the yacht Thordis bound for Newport, R. I., where Dr. Dawes will enter his boat in the races. They intend cruising along the coast making stops at Provincetown, Vineyard Haven and Oak Bluffs. Their friends wish them a pleasant trip and several prizes.

—A three days' fair will be opened today by the Marblehead Historical Society to raise funds to liquidate the debt on the historical Lee Mansion which is the headquarters of the society.

—Here is the story of a man who did not go to heaven. In the lower places he began bossing the little devils around. Satan came up and said; "You act as if you owned this place." "I do," returned the man, "my wife gave it to me before I left home."—Linneus Bulletin.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. SHERMAN AND CURTIS NAMED

In Telegram From McMurray's Agent Among the Indians

IS INTRODUCED AS TESTIMONY

Gore Says That No Reflection Is Meant In Regard to Vice President and Senator and Exonerates Them From Any Connection With Alleged Bribery—Creager Sought Money From McMurray Says Hamon

McAlester, Okla., Aug. 10.—At the congressional committee's investigation of Indian land sales Tuesday, Senator Gore explained that he completely exonerated Vice President Sherman from any connection with the case.

Congressman Creager was accused at the hearing of having sought money from Attorney McMurray after he had introduced a bill providing for the sale of Indian lands.

The charge was made by Jake L. Hamon, who, in demanding the recall of Creager to the witness stand, declared Creager had made his pleas for money in the guise of loans and that he wished to cross-examine the witness.

The names of Senator Curtis of Kansas and Vice President Sherman were again mentioned during the hearing when a telegram to Richard C. Adams, an attorney at Washington, from George Scott, McMurray's agent among the Indians, was read.

Senator Gore immediately explained that he wanted it undestood that he was not trying to drag the names of Curtis and Sherman into the matter and exonerated them of any connection with the case.

"I have produced this telegram," he said, "merely to explain how influence was sought in Washington by men who in private correspondence mentioned the names of Curtis and Sherman."

After Gore made his statement regarding not trying to drag Sherman and Curtis into the case Dennis Flynn, attorney for McMurray, asked:

"Do I understand Gore exonerates Sherman and Curtis?"

"I think the records have shown that I have stated that," replied Gore. "It has been shown their names were taken in vain once and it may have occurred again."

The telegram causing the sensation read:

"With McMurray there to stake out claims with Mr. Curtis and Mr. Sherman, who understand better than anybody else what we want, and with the assistance of our president it begins to look like we are coming into our own."

This telegram was dated at Kinta, Okla., May 2 last. Its relation to Gore's charges of having been offered a $25,000 bribe to "put through" congress the $30,000,000 McMurray Indian land deal was explained by the senator. "It merely shows the activity of the McMurray interests at Washington," said Gore.

Another telegram from McMurray at Washington was read. It ordered that McMurray's agent among the Indians send fifty telegrams urging congress to approve the contracts allowing $3,000,000 "attorney's fees."

Burglar Sheedy Makes Way to Liberty From Hartford Jail

Hartford, Aug. 10.—An automobile was heard to pass the county jail just before midnight and Sheriff Dewey entertains the belief that this was the vehicle used in aiding the escape of Timothy A. Sheedy, the notorious burglar. The prisoner was under a thirty years' sentence, but as there is no room for more prisoners in the state prison he was being held in the county jail.

Sheedy cut the steel bars of his cell, made his way through the corridor toward the north end of the prison and then passed through the hospital. There James Carroll, a short-term prisoner, had sawed the bars from a window. Sheedy and Carroll then made their escape. The escape was made between the rounds of the watchman. Before the street was reached a ten-foot fence was scaled.

Woman Who Paid For Wrong Man's Funeral Threatens to Sue City

New York, Aug. 10.—An indignant woman in Los Angeles, Mrs. H. G. Donnelly, threatens to bring suit against the city of New York unless the city refunds to her the money she spent in providing burial for the body of a man, which, through the mistake of a city clerk, she thought was that of her brother.

In a letter received by the charities department Mrs. Donnelly says that New York must settle the bill.

"I came over to Hoboken at 9:20 this morning. I went to the steamship pier, and I went on board the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. I met a clergyman on board of the steamer and I asked him to point out Mayor Gaynor to me. He did so, and shortly after I fired a shot at the mayor. I do not know if I fired more than one shot or not.

"Knowing that Mayor Gaynor was going to Europe to enjoy himself after depriving me of my bread and butter, 'not porter-house steak,' I was irritated to the point of committing the act. The revolver you show me is the revolver that I did the shooting at the mayor with. I don't know how many shots were in the revolver when I used it. I have had this revolver a long time in my possession. I carried it when I was in the employ of the city."

Detective Sergeant Closter arrived at the house 444 Third avenue and, accompanied by Mrs. Sophie Johnson, Gallagher's landlady, went at once to Gallagher's room. The room, which is a small one on the third floor, was much littered up. A number of medicine bottles were in evidence and it was clear that Gallagher had spent much of his time recently in reading the newspapers. It was said in the neighborhood that Gallagher had been drinking a good deal of late, and rumor had it that he had lost $300 on the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Inspector Russell is to take charge of the case against Gallagher.

Gallagher was appointed a watchman in the New York city dock department April 7, 1903. He was discharged July 19, 1910, after having been found guilty of neglect of duty and misconduct.

In Gallagher's possession was found a letter which doubtless was the direct incentive for the shooting. It is dated Aug. 4 at the mayor's office and is addressed to Gallagher at his Third avenue residence. It reads:

"Dear Sir—The mayor has instructed me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st inst., and to state that he can do nothing for you in the matter of which you write."

The letter is signed by Secretary Robert Adamson.

According to persons who know Gallagher and the circumstances surrounding his discharge from the dock department, he considered his downfall the result of a "frame-up" on the part of Tammany Hall politicians. Late in April Gallagher wrote an anonymous letter to Raymond B. Fosdick, commissioner of accounts, which caused charges to be brought against Richard H. Lee, the dockmaster, a brother-in-law of Philip Donohue, Tammany's treasurer. Both men at that time lived in the "Gas House" district. It was also said that the letter had been stolen from Commissioner Fosdick's office and the writing traced to Gallagher and that he had admitted the authorship.

Gaynor's Eventful Career

William J. Gaynor was born at Whitestown, N. Y., in 1851, the son of a farmer, the Gaynor family being of English-Irish stock. He was educated at Whitestown seminary and later at Boston, and intended in youth, it is said, to enter the priesthood of the Roman Catholic church, even going so far as to begin his studies under the Christian Brothers. He taught school in Boston, and afterward took up the study of law in Utica, removing to Brooklyn in 1873, to continue his studies. While so doing he engaged in newspaper work. He was admitted to the bar in 1875, and went to live in Flatbush, then a separate community, in the control of corrupt politicians.

He soon became immersed in local politics in Flatbush, taking the intiative in many reforms, of which he made a personal success. Later he moved to Brooklyn, which was then dominated politically by the McLaughlin ring.

Mr. Gaynor learned that the ring had bought the Long Island water supply company for $185,000 and had contracted to sell it to the city for $1,500,000. He exposed the graft through a taxpayer's suit, and to the consternation of the ring the swindle that would have netted them $1,300,000 was frustrated after the case had been taken to the highest court.

In 1893 Brooklyn became aroused at the corruption of the John Y. McKane contingent. McKane was chief of police. The nomination for mayor was tendered to Gaynor. He declined, but later accepted the nomination as a justice of the supreme court, to strengthen the ticket and help elect Schieren for mayor.

As soon as Gaynor became a justice he went right after McKane, with the result that McKane was sentenced to state prison for seven years, and sixteen of his associates were also imprisoned.

When Alton B. Parker was running for president an effort was made to get Gaynor to run for governor. He would not encourage the suggestion. Richard Croker, it is said, once tried to get Gaynor to accept the Tammany nomination for mayor of the enlarged city, but he declined.

Mr. Gaynor was elected mayor of New York in 1909. He was the candidate of Tammany Hall. His home is at 20 Eighth avenue, Brooklyn.

PEERS PUZZLED IN TITLE PICKING

Stringent English Rules Make Selection Hard Task.

SEVEN FACE PREDICAMENT.

None Below Earl Can Choose Name of County or County Town—Extinct Nomenclature Cannot Be Revived For Lesser Members of Peerage Either.

The seven new English peers put on the birthday honor list by King George are having trouble in picking their titles. They may choose their own titles unless they infringe on the accepted rules; otherwise the crown will, in diplomatic language, command the new peers to guess again.

The first rule is that after a title has once been held by a member of the royal family it will never afterward be bestowed on a subject not of the blood royal.

The second rule is that no peer ranking below an earl can choose for his title the name of a county or a county town. There are a number of counties vacant, including Flint, Merioneth, Banff, Clackmannan, Dumbarton, Kirkcudbright, Monaghan and Roscommon.

Many Conditions Involved.

The next rule is that when a certain designation once has been used for a peerage, even if that peerage has long been extinct, the title will not be renewed for a peerage of lower degree. It was not until Lord Hawkesbury, for instance, had been raised to an earldom that the designation of Liverpool was revived.

Another rule is that where a former peerage is in abeyance or under attainder the title of it shall not be chosen for a new creation, except by the heir, because there is always the chance the attainder may be reversed. Lord Leith of Fyvie desired to be created Lord Fyvie, but the old peerage of that name, now under attainder, stood in the way.

If a new peer desires to take his surname as his title he may do so, no matter how many other living peers of the same name there may be. Thus Lord Russell of Killowen was so created, although there was already an Earl Russell.

There are now living three Lords Boyle, Bruce, Douglass, Hay, Herbert and Hill, four Lords Grey and five Lords Howard and Hamilton. For this reason, although there is already a Lord Villiers, no objection will be raised by the king if Sir J. de Villiers chooses to become Lord Villiers.

Ownership Sometimes Necessary.

To choose a territorial title the peer must show a reason, as ownership of the land. A manor title cannot be chosen unless the new peer owns the manor itself. W. D. Mackenzie, who owns the manor of Thetford, prevented, by protest, the conferring of the title of Lord Thetford on the subject who is now Lord Fisher. Lord Michelson bought the manor of Michelson to qualify for his title.

Where a manor has been unfranchised or ownership of a manor town split up the representative of that place in parliament has the right to select the name for a title.

Many recently created peers have chosen the names of London suburbs—as, for instance, Lord Battersea and Lord Wandsworth. Lord Loreburn took the name of a street in Edinburgh. Lord Selby took his wife's surname.

HAS DETACHABLE AIRSHIP.

Germany Backs Experiments In Novel War Vessel.

Count Frederick von Moltke, nephew of the great field marshal, has formed a company to construct a fleet of airships especially designed for military purposes. The government has promised to assist the enterprise as soon as a trial dirigible has been finished and tested.

The vessels will be capable of carrying light guns and a quantity of explosives. The type chosen is a peculiar triple Zorn balloon, which within a single framework of Canadian fir contains really three motor balloons, each with its own motor and each detachable in two minutes, together with its own share of the framework.

Thus on arrival over the enemy the front balloon can be quickly detached to take back to headquarters any dispatches, photographs and so forth; the rear balloon can follow with later news, while the middle part remains to take part in the fight and drop bombs over the enemy. All three parts can be put together again rapidly.

The whole construction is 360 feet long. The effective lifting power after deduction of the airship's own weight and the weight of the cars and machinery is 11,000 pounds. The entire framework can be quickly dismounted in sections. Each part of the triple balloon can also be anchored separately.

No Record Canadian Crop.

It is doubtful whether the crop yield of western Canada will exceed that of a year ago, despite the increased acreage. All reports agree, however, that nothing approaching a crop failure is imminent.

DYNAMITE TO CHECK FLAMES

Tenements Blown Up In the South End of Boston

MANY FAMILIES BURNED OUT

Flee Terror Stricken Through Smoke as Fire Sweeps With Terrific Speed Through Lumber District—Several Firemen Injured as Roof Collapses After Fairly Burning Under Them—First General Alarm In Many Years

Boston, Aug. 10.—One million and five hundred thousand dollars' worth of property on Albany street—the "lumber district"—was wiped out last night, seventeen firemen were injured and the entire South End, with its thickly settled tenement district, was threatened for hours, by the worst fire in this city since the Kingston street fire in 1889.

While the entire department of Boston was fighting the Albany street fire, thirty-three pieces of apparatus from twelve outside cities grappled with a four alarm fire that destroyed a big manufacturing plant of W. H. Jones-Mandeville Asbestos company at 55 High street.

The newly installed metropolitan fire system, calling in aid from every outside city within a radius of fifteen miles, was used for the first time. The fire protection concentrated by this system was taxed to its utmost not merely to cover the city, but to check the spread of the two big fires that raged at the same time in two different parts of the city.

The Albany street fire, which the Boston department checked after it had eaten into 100 tenements and destroyed all the buildings and lumber on the west side of Albany street from Dover to Randolph street, and all the property east of Albany street to the South Cove, was the first general alarm fire since the Pope Manufacturing company fire on Columbus avenue in '96.

For an hour the entire alarm system of the city was threatened. Fire headquarters building on Bristol street, the centre of the alarm signal system, took the attention of a large part of the apparatus in this most strategic point of the whole fire. This building, with its water curtain, stood directly in the sheets of flames for over an hour, with the department massed to check the flames from getting a hold on the structure.

Through the streets to the west of the blaze, people in a frenzy of terror were groping through the smoke, tugging at their household goods, getting them to a place of safety in advance of the flames.

The heat, so intense that it was impossible to get nearer than 100 feet to a blaze, kept the firemen from concentrating an effective wall of water on the fire. They were obliged to drench down the buildings in the path of the flames, instead of trying to extinguish those buildings that had caught.

The blaze started in the lumber piles of Blacker and Sheppard on Albany street, east side, near Dover. It had gained terrific headway before it was discovered.

Near approach to the lumber yards was impossible. From a distance the firemen saw the flames whip south to the American Coal company, toward Randolph street. North also they spread toward Dover street. In a few moments the fire raged along the east side of Albany street with a front of four blocks.

On the east side of Albany street, several ramshackle tenements were blown up with dynamite sent by the commandant of the Charlestown navy yard to the fire department. The little launch with its dangerous freight ran up the cove to the south end of the fire on the wharves and sent ashore a party of jackies to clear out the rookeries.

Early in the fire Engine 22 and its company took up its stand on Thayer street. To get a position of vantage, Lieutenant Hibbard with fifteen men mounted to the roof of the J. F. Paul factory.

While they were engaged in the fire opposite Albany street, the flames had leaped the street farther south. They were unaware that the flames were eating into the very building on which thy were working, being unable to see in the dense rolls of smoke.

Suddenly the very roof under them started to burn. They turned their hose on the blazing corner. The force of the water drove down a section of the roof, a mere husk, the supports eaten out under it. The next instant the walls bulged, the roof gaped under them, and the entire detail dropped into the building. Some landed clear. All were hurt by the fall, many seriously burned.

At the disposal of those made homeless, Mayor Fitzgerald placed public buildings with any accommodations for sleeping quarters. Some of the smaller buildings on Albany street were so utterly destroyed that not a vestige remained after the passage of the fire.

Many engines continue playing upon the ruins today.

Mr. Royden

An Episode of a Stranger's Entrance to New York Society

By GEORGE L. BYINGTON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A group of young men were standing in the lobby of the U club of New York smoking cigarettes and chatting.

The small talk of the men standing in the lobby was diverted by the entrance of a young man who, passing the group, went to the office, called for letters, received several and went into the general lounging room to read them.

"Who is he?" asked one.

"Don't know," said another.

"He's not a member of the club," said a third. "Van Vechten put him up. His name is Royden."

"He's got some sort of social pull," a fourth put in. "He's thick with the Traceys. What Mrs. Tracey puts her stamp on goes."

"It doesn't matter to me," said one of the party, Horace Skinner, "who puts a stamp on him, he doesn't go with me."

This remark attracted attention. Skinner was cotillion leader to the set in question and could admit or decline to admit one who knocked at the golden door.

"What's the matter with him?" was asked. But Skinner walked away, leaving his friends to find out for themselves why he had put the stamp of his disapproval on Mr. Royden. All admitted that Royden had the manners of a gentleman, and from what little was known of his mental endowments they were at least respectable. But what had such qualifications to do with social life? People with brains, wealth, refinement were crowding upon the "holy numbers," as a wag facetiously called them, and here was a stranger about whom nothing was known who bid fair to walk in and make himself at home.

There is still to be found in the social swim of New York here and there some descendants of the leaders of half a century or more ago. These relics of the past may be rich or may be poor. They are there because they have always been there. Should they pass out and again seek admission they would be obliged to fight their way like the rest of those seeking entrance.

Of this class was Miss Van Vechten, whose brother had "put up" Mr. Royden as a guest at the U club. The Van Vechtens had once owned a farm in the middle of Manhattan Island, and of such is the oldest and best in New York society. Furthermore, Miss Van Vechten's ancestors were prominent in Revolutionary days. It was not to be expected that in her associations she would take her cue from any one. Indeed, frequently when she saw her social sisters who had sprung from a composition of rail or oil magnates with hotel keepers' daughters snubbing some one she was quite likely to put upon the snubbed her own aristocratic seal.

Now, Mrs. Tracey, who introduced Mr. Royden, had made mistakes that had sapped her power. She had vouched for several persons simply on the ground that they were geniuses, and one or two of them had made scientific discoveries that would save the lives of millions of human beings. She had not considered that such persons had no place in society. Consequently when she took up Mr. Royden an opposition to his admission sprang up on the part of certain young women whose fathers had been wreckers and reorganizers of corporations and whose mothers in some instances had been toilers in early life. It was these people whom the really aristocratic Miss Van Vechten loved to antagonize. The more they turned the cold shoulder on Royden the more Miss Van Vechten londed him with favors. She was leader of a small set within the larger set and gradually withdrew the gentleman into this inner circle.

Had he been a man of that prominence especially desirable in the social world this would have been a masterly move, for no sooner would he have been admitted to Miss Van Vechten's coterie than he would have become desirable in a general way. As it was, his introduction only tended to make him a special rather than a universal member of the whole.

Meanwhile the only person who appeared to take no interest in Mr. Royden's social admission or rejection was Mr. Royden himself. He made no acquaintances at the club where he was a guest for the simple reason that the clubs of Gotham are places where small groups of men who are acquainted already sit at small tables and chat; others read the papers, while others, mostly bachelors, use it as a hotel. Nevertheless in certain respects it has its being as a whole. Mr. Royden found it a convenient place in which to write his letters and spend his time when not devoting himself to Miss Van Vechten. Indeed, having no occupation during his stay in New York and neither being interested in its social conditions nor its social conditions being interested in him, he must spend the time somewhere, and he found Miss Van Vechten's home very attractive. The Van Vechtens were a part of the "diamond horseshoe," a name given to that curve of boxes at the Metropolitan Opera House leased or owned by New York's wealthy social magnates.

"There's Miss Van Vechten again," remarked a lady in the diamond circle, who in days gone by had pirouetted before the footlights, "with that Royden in her box. He's been there every night this week. I wonder if she is going to marry him."

"If she does she'll lose her social hold. The Van Vechtens haven't money enough to do what they please in society," said the descendant of a brewer, who sat beside her.

"Where did he come from anyway?" asked the first speaker.

"Australia or Canada or New Zealand. He's British, you know."

"What's he doing here?"

But the orchestra drowned the reply.

While Miss Van Vechten's taking up Mr. Royden had originally sprung from a natural feeling of a refined woman to take the part of a stranger against upstarts, there was that in the man which soon caused her to forget her motive in the interest he inspired in her. A fairly intelligent young woman, she was able to appreciate his knowledge of many subjects which go to make up the intellectual world. He had made a study of history, philosophically considered, the formation of nations, governments, constitutions—indeed, such information as might be beneficial to one who aims to follow public political life. International law seemed to be his hobby. Miss Van Vechten was disposed to draw him out on these subjects, which he presented to her in a way to insure her understanding of them. She did not wonder that a man who possessed such treasures within himself should be indifferent to the gilded circle.

It was in this way that Mr. Royden won his way, if not to Miss Van Vechten's heart, at least to a feeling that she would like just such a man for a husband. She encouraged him to ask for her, not that she would or would not accept him, but that she might have the choice of doing either one or the other.

Now, all this happened within the short space of a few weeks. Mr. Royden's stay in Gotham was coming to an end. No one knew it except himself, but he knew it very well. One day he announced his coming departure to Miss Van Vechten.

Mr. Royden had been very uncommunicative, even to Miss Van Vechten. When he said he was going she knew no more about where he would go than where he had come from. But she was too well bred to ask him. Nevertheless, he told her the story. Moreover, he asked her to be his wife.

The day before Royden left New York he was sitting in the lounging room of the U club reading a newspaper. Near him at a table, partaking of refreshments, were several of the members of that party who had discussed him when he had entered the building several weeks before. Among them was Skinner, the cotillion leader.

"There's that fellow Royden over there," remarked Skinner. "He doesn't seem to have made much headway in society. I seldom meet him anywhere."

"How do you know he cares to be met?" asked another.

"I don't."

"Nobody seems to know anything about him," remarked another. "Mrs. Tracey can't foist these people on society as she once did. She's failed at that."

At that moment a stranger entered the room and, catching sight of Royden, rushed up to him with extended hand.

"Hello, Bob!" he cried. "I haven't seen you since we left Oxford. I'm mighty glad to meet you, old man, and to congratulate you on the position you have attained. Why are you not in Washington?"

The man who had entered, seeing a friend in Skinner, nodded to him and after a brief talk with Royden beckoned him to join them. Skinner did so and was introduced to Royden.

"This is my friend the Marquis of Hessington. He is on a diplomatic mission to settle some matters about fisheries or something."

Mr. Skinner bowed obsequiously.

"I have heard of the marquis as Mr. Royden," he remarked.

"What's that?" said the introducer. "Been going incog., Bob? Using your own name instead of your title?"

"I have been obliged to do so for reasons connected with the diplomatic service."

"I see."

Then Mr. Skinner asked the marquis if he could not be of some service to him during the rest of his stay in New York, to which the marquis replied that he was leaving the next day.

That evening the news spread among the gilded circle that the oldest son of a British duke and a prominent diplomat had been in New York incog., and no one except Mrs. Tracey, who alone knew who he was, and Miss Van Vechten, who didn't, had had the honor of entertaining him. Everybody blamed the former for not making known the rank of the man she had introduced, and nobody believed but that Miss Van Vechten knew all the while who she was entertaining. Mrs. Tracey excused herself in the statement that a prominent scientist whom she had introduced and whom society had snubbed had given the marquis a letter to her, at the same time advising him to visit New York incog.

Then came the news of the engagement of the marquis to Miss Van Vechten. If the women were wroth at being deprived of the honor of entertaining the diplomat, the younger ladies were positively mad to think that none of their number had had an opportunity to catch him, that advantage having been appropriated by Miss Van Vechten herself.

MAHARAJAH MAY LOSE HIS THRONE

Kapurthala's Monarch Too Expensive In His Tastes.

GRINDS SUBJECTS FOR FUNDS

Usually Broke, Though Indian Monarchy Nets Him $1,000,000 Annual Income—In Disfavor With Edward VII., but Hopes For Reinstatement at Hands of George V.

New Yorkers and other Americans who were dazzled by the glory of the maharajah of Kapurthala and his glittering suit when he visited the United States a dozen years ago will be interested to know that the lavish Indian potentate's efforts to save his throne seem doomed to fail.

Though in India he is styled "king of kings," he is a vassal of the king of England, who is also emperor of India, and has good reason to fear that he is about to be dethroned.

Tastes Too Expensive.

The maharajah's tastes are too expensive for even his income of nearly a million dollars a year, and he has been playing ducks and drakes with the finances of his state. His native advisers are disgusted with him, and the Indian government has warned him that unless he ceases to be so prodigal he will have to get out.

He went to England, accompanied by his Spanish wife, early this year to try to see King Edward about it. The king would have nothing to do with him there. The importunate maharajah pursued him to Biarritz and engaged a suit of rooms just above his majesty's. He so exasperated King Edward with his attentions that a strong hint was conveyed to him by an equerry that he might as well go home, for there was no chance of getting an audience with the king.

He hopes King George will prove more tractable, but this is far from probable, and unless he leaves off extorting from his impoverished subjects money to be frittered away in Europe his deposition is thought to be certain.

Easy For Tradesmen.

The maharajah is as easy a mark for the tradesmen of the European capitals as was the late shah of Persia. When he was in Biarritz this year he bought eighteen new automobiles in a fortnight. Generally his purchases are conceived on much the same scale.

His wife, a rarely beautiful woman, was a dancing girl in her native Spanish town when he first saw her and fell in love with her. Her name was Anita Delgado. Her equally lovely sister, Victoria Delgado, captivated young Thomas Ross Winans, who married her about three years ago in spite of earnest family objections.

WARNING IS REPEATED

Soldiers In Nicaragua Must Not Invade Property of Americans

Washington, Aug. 10.—Invasion of American property in Nicaragua by soldiers of Madriz has called forth a formal protest from the United States. The state department has repeated its ultimatum to both factions in Nicaragua that American property must be protected.

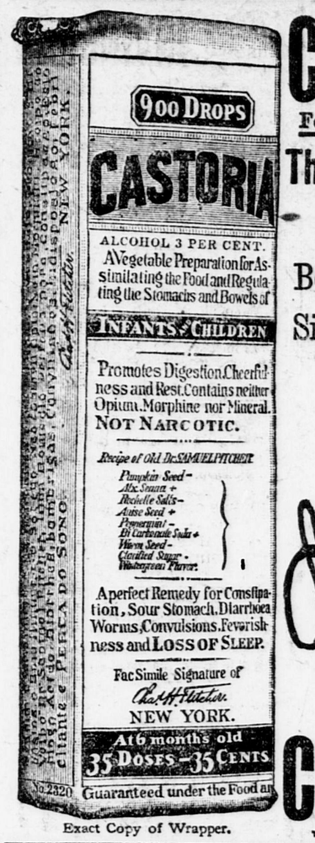

The Madriz soldiers have been invading the property of Americans, impressing laborers and appropriating provisions again, according to the state department advices from Consular Agent Desavigny at Matagalpa.

Two Boys Drowned

Needham, Mass., Aug. 10.—Richard McCarthy, 12 years old, lost his life in the Charles river here in a vain attempt to save the life of John McKinnon, his 8-year-old chum, whom he had pushed overboard in play.

Russian Ambassador Stricken

Munich, Aug. 10.—M. Nelidoff, Russian ambassador at Paris, was stricken with apoplexy while passing through here. His condition is critical.

HARPOON INVINCIBLE

First in Every Race She Has Entered

There should be no question about the Harpoon of Quincy being selected as one of the three American yachts to meet the Spanish fleet next week. On Tuesday she repeated the work of Monday, having over three minutes leeway in the morning race, and over four minutes in the afternoon race. She seems to be in a class by herself, as will be seen by the summary below:

The elapsed time in the two races follows:

ARREST AT SIDNEY

The receipt of this telegram caused no surprise for Chief Burrell surmised this morning that the reason that he had not heard from North Sydney about the arrest was because the man arrested had convinced the police there that he was not the man wanted. Nothing else has developed in the case today up to 2 o'clock. The police have several wires out, however, and any one of these may be heard from at any minute.

The Lynn Item says: "Frank A. Griffin, known to the Lynn police as "Reddy," a one time street singer and pedler of sheet music, and later a liquor spotter in the employ of the Tolman Temperance fund, has acquired short lived fame by injecting himself, without taking the preliminary trouble of informing the police, into the search for Restelli, the much sought for Quincy murderer, who has been at large for almost two weeks.

"Now that the Quincy police have been urged by Chief Burckes of the Lynn department to apply the soft pedal to any information received from Griffin, whose reliability is seriously questioned by the Lynn chief, it is very probable that no more attention will be paid to the clue received from Griffin, which placed Restelli in Nova Scotia, then in Cape Breton and later in Port aux Basques, Newfoundland.

"Chief Burckes told the Quincy police that Griffin has been arrested in this city on several occasions, that he could, without much trouble, find a criminal record against him, and that when he was employed as a liquor spotter, but little credence was placed in the testimony which he produced.

"Griffin is a red haired youth whom the Lynn police never had much use for. He was considered unreliable and he suddenly departed from Lynn, after working at the spotting game for a few months. He appeared as a witness in several liquor cases and Lynn lawyers who represented the defendants forced Griffin to lay bare several incidents in his life. When he quit the liquor business no regrets were heard from the Lypnn police officials.

"What he is doing in Cape Breton is of course unknown in Lynn, but whatever his employment is, the Lynn police are satisfied that he knows nothing about Restelli and they can't figure out why he has thrust himself into the case unless to attain notoriety.

SUMMER SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

On Friday afternoon, at two o'clock at the Women's clubhouse on Goffe street, there will be an exhibition of the work done at the Summer School. There will be chorus singing, folk dancing and gymnastics an exhibition of cooked food demonstration of what the class in home nursing has learned and other exercises by the girls. Any person interested in this work is cordially invited to be present.

CITY SQUARE RUNAWAY.

Edward Egan of Cross street, West Quincy, made a good stop of a runaway in City Square this morning, that for a few minutes looked as though it would result in a fatality. An express wagon owned by an Italian fruit peddler was left standing in the depot yard with a small boy on the seat. Suddenly the horse started on the run down the street. The boy grabbed hold of the seat and held on for dear life. As the team rounded into Hancock street it looked as though it would be capsized. Just at this time Egan, who stood near Hearn's drug store, rushed into the street and jumped into the back of the wagon and seizing the reins managed to stop the horse near the Savings Bank building. It was a remarkably good piece of work on the part of Egan.

SPEAR FAMILY REUNION.

The annual reunion of the Seth Spear family association is being held today at the Quincy Yacht club house, Houghs Neck. The descendants of this old Quincy family began to gather about 12 o'clock and an hour later, when dinner was announced, there were between 35 and 40 present. A regular shore dinner was served in the dining room at the yacht club house by William Norteman, which was pronounced excellent. During the day the members of the family renewed acquaintances and recounted events that had transpired since the reunion a year ago. A business session was held this afternoon after dinner, and was followed by a social hour.

OPEN RACE

was but little change in the positions on the second round, the Josephine finishing 55 seconds ahead of the Dolly III, with the Dartwell third and Busy Bee fourth.

Time allowance however gave the race to the Busy Bee by 41 seconds. In the last part of the race the Emeline broke her rudder pin, which handicapped her somewhat, but she stuck it out. The remarkable work of the Josephine was a surprise to the piazza fleet, as it was not thought she had it in her.

In class I the Dorchen II, which won the Day Cup at Marblehead last week, was a winner beating the Kittiwake V by over one minute.

In the Hull one design class, the Kid had things her own way finishing with over a minute lead. The Two Whoo made a mistake in the course, and withdrew before the race was finished.

In Class X the Teaser seemed to have things pretty much her own way from the start and won by over a minute.

In addition to counting Y. R. A. M. percentages cash prizes of $10, $7, $5 and $3 were given in Class D; Prizes of $8, $5 and $3 in Class I; prizes of $6, $4 and $2 in Class X; prizes of $5, $3, and $2 in the Hull one design class; and $5, $3 and $2 in the Hingham one design class.

VICIOUS AS A BOY.

The Westerly Times says: Louis Restelli, the granite contractor, who shot and killed his mother and Henry E. Hardwick, quarry owner, in Quincy, Mass., and wounded his brother, Gaspare Restelli, .C Theodore Hardwick, Benjamin Bishop and William M. Adrian, was once a resident of Westerly and worked on Quarry Hill. A brother is now a resident of Westerly. The Restelli family were residents of Westerly about 25 years ago. Louis attended the Quarry Hill school, and one of his classmates said Sunday that Restelli was always dreaded by his schoolmates, as he was of a vicious disposition and none of the boys dared to opose him.

TODAY'S COURT.

Arthur L. Crowley was fined $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at the Blue Hills reservation.

William H. Mace was fined $100 for violation of the liquor law at Weymouth.

LET COBB GO? NEVER!

Jennings Said to Have Turned Down Offer For Four Men.

It leaked out recently that Manager Hugh Jennings of the Tigers had turned down an offer for Ty Cobb, which, if it had gone through, would have completed one of the greatest deals of baseball history. Manager McAleer of Washington offered to give in trade for Cobb, Johnson and Street, his star battery; Gray, another pitcher, and Milan, his star outfielder.

At the time the trade was contemplated Jennings was in a bad way for pitchers and was tempted to dispose of the great American league outfielder at such terms, but he finally thought Cobb was greater than all four men put together and two big a drawing card to let go under any circumstances.

Jack Sheridan's New Job.

Jack Sheridan, the veteran umpire, who recently retired from active service on the American league staff, has received instructions for the new duties which devolve upon his shoulders. Sheridan is to hold forth in a new role. In a way the veteran will serve as chief of umpires and at the same time will travel around the country in quest of promising talent for umpires.

SPORTING CHAT.

I have found that the game between the Bryants and Bigelows was forfeited by the former thus giving credit to Bigelow for a win and Bryant a loss. This gives Bryant an average of .285 in fourth place and Bigelow .166 in sixth place.

On August 27, the Fore River Apprentices and the Cranch A. A. will provide an added attraction at the Water street ball ground. At 2 o'clock the game between these Granite City League pennant chasers will be called, followed by the regular Old Colony league game between Stoughton and Quincy. This double header should attract a great crowd, and I assure you that the speed of the junior organization is comparatively as great—for this game somewhat greater—than that of the Old Colony bunch; that is of course, in their own class.

• • •

F. S. Mansfield of the Globe says: "Harpoon and Cima had a gay time in the Spanish sonder trials off Marblehead yesterday, though the wind was light and the sea smooth. When the Marblehead sonders meet the Buzzards bay sonders in the latter's waters in the German trials, there will be some racing which will test the small boats to the limit if the outside breeze and seas prevail. In 1911 at Kiel, the American sonder boat that does the business will win a blue ribbon worth while.

TAKE A VACATION.

It is said no one really knows his own country until he views it from abroad. No man gets the true perspective of his life until he gets away from his usual routine and gets a new fresh viewpoint from outside, says Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine.

No great artist will attempt to work constantly on his masterpiece until it is finished. He works while his faculties are sharp, fresh and gripping; but the moment his ideal begins to dim or his energies to lag, he quits, because he knows that every bit of work he does while his thought is not fresh and vigorous will be inferior and will only injure his picture.

A great many men bury themselves so completely in their work, keep their noses so closely to the grindstone that they can not get the proper perspective of their situations. They work hard, but they work to a disadvantage because they do not see their business in its entirety. They do not mix with the people in their own line. They can not do the right thing because they are not in a position to get a broad view of their affairs.

Many men who spend too many hours a day in their offices get into the habit of wasting a great deal of time with callers— talking, doing all sorts of things outside of business—whereas the man who spends only a few hours in his office is obliged to attend strictly to business from the moment he enters it until he leaves. Everybody knows that his time is precious and that people who call upon him must be brief. The result is that he makes his time count and often accomplishes more in a few hours than the man who spends eight or nine hours each day in his office. The modern method is to do the actual business with dispatch, make every minutes count and then go out and play with as much enthusiasm as one had previously put into work.

CITY EXPECTED TO OFFER REWARD

Total for Apprehension of Restelli Will Then Be $1,500

Belief That He Is Being Hidden By Friends

A call for a special meeting of the City Council for Friday evening was issued by Mayor Shea this noon, and the notices are being delivered at the residences of the members of the City Council this afternoon by City Messenger Tirrell.

There is but one matter in the call and that is in relation to offering a reward for the apprehension of Restelli, the murderer.

It was thought that possibly some item might be inserted in the call in order that action might be taken on granting the Old Colony street railway the necessary location to enable them to build additional trackage to the Harvard Aviation field at Squantum. Up to 1 o'clock, however, no petition had been received from the company, and the Mayor left for Boston.

The subject in the call relative to the Restelli matter is as follows:

"To see what action the Council will take with reference to offering a reward for the apprehension of Louis G. Restelli."

Section 9 of Chapter 217 of the Revised Laws, under which Acting Governor Frothingham acted on Tuesday reads as follows:

"The Governor, if in his opinion the public good so requires, may offer a suitable reward of not more than $1000 in any one case to be paid by the Commonwealth to any person who, in consequence of such offer, apprehends, brings back and secures a person who is convicted of or charged with a felony, who has escaped from person in this Commonwealth, or to any person who in consequence of such offer apprehends and secures a person charged with such crime, if the person cannot be arrested and secured in the common course of proceeding."

Section 10 of the same chapter, under which the City of Quincy may act, reads as follows:

"The Mayor and Aldermen of a city or the Selectmen of a town, if in the opinion the public good so requires, may offer a suitable reward of not more than $500 in any one case to be paid by such city or town to any person who, in consequence of such offer, detects or secures a person who has committed a felony in such place, either before or after he has been charged therewith, and such reward shall be paid by the Treasurer upon the warrant of the Mayor and Aldermen or Selectmen. If more than one claimant applies for the payment of such reward, the Mayor and Aldermen or Selectmen shall determine to whom it shall be paid, and if to more than one person, in what proportion to each; and their determination shall be final."

LAWN PARTY POSTPONED.

The lawn party which was to have taken place Wednesday evening on the "green" in Fort Square in front of the United Presbyterian church, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor, was postponed until Friday evening. The green had been decorated and ice cream, tonic, and so forth was in readiness when it started to rain. The crowd which gathered waited in the church in anticipation of a let-up, but finally gave up hope, and the postponement was announced. The crowd filled the church and a jolly time was assured.

On Friday night, however, they will gather and make up for the disappointment of last evening.

HARPOON TAKES BOTH

Third Day She Has Done Trick At Sonder Trials

For the third time on Wednesday, the Harpoon of C. F. Adams, 2d, finished first in both the elimination trials of the Sonder boats, making six victories in all in a class of 13 flyers. In the first race on Wednesday she led the Lady by 1 minute 30 seconds, and Sally XI, Ellen, Bonivee and Eel followed in order.

In the second division the Beacon came to the front and won by 24 second, the order being: Beaver, Demon, Cima, Skeezix, Joyette, Wolf and Spokane III.

KING ALFONSO.

In the second race of the day the Harpoon led the Sally XI by 1 minute 2 secouds, and they were followed by the Lady Eel, Ellen and Bonivee.

Again it was a race in the second division but the Beaver won by 42 seconds, over the Cima, with the Joyette third, the Spokane III fourth. the Skeezix fifty and the Wolf last.

After the trials today it is expected that more than half the boats will be eliminated. leaving perhaps three in each division.

In points for the six races the Harpoon has an unbroken record. The Beaver is second, and for third place the Cima and Lady are tied, the others being far behind.

On board the Spanish steamship Montevideo, which arrived in New York Wednesday from Cadiz, says a dispatch to the Journal were three sonderklasse yachts representing Spanish yacht clubs which will compete in races off Marblehead. They are the Papoose of the San Sebastian Club, the Mosquito II of the Santander Club and the Chouta of the Bilbao Club. The yachts are accompanied by their crews, all members of the yacht clubs. The Papoose's crew are Javier Pena, Francesco Tuton and Mariana Amoedo; the Mosquito II's, Victoriano Lopez Dorisea, Juan Jose Quintana and Manuel G. del Corral, and the Chouta's Luis Arana, Joaquin Eutala and Eduardo Aztigarraga. The boats are in cradles on the foredeck. It is said that King Alfonso is backing the boats.

WELCOME RAIN.

No one regrets that the sky is overcast today, and that it is rainy. It has been a long time since there has been a day of steady rain, and it is much needed. Not only have many beautiful lawns been made unsightly by the want of water, but vegetation has also suffered and many streets were dusty. The earth in many gardens is like dry powder with not a particle of moisture in it. The rain commenced Wednesday evening and continued through the night.

TOOLS RECOVERED.

Acting Inspector Goodhue has recovered a large part of the miscellaneous lot of machinists tools stolen from the factory of the Pneumatic Scale Co., at Norfolk Downs on Tuesday. The building was entered by smashing a rear window and small tools to the value of $75 were taken. The tools were found in a Boston pawn shop where they had been pledged for $6.

AMBITIOUS TO LEARN

South Americans Being Taught English

During their stay in this country the Argentine naval officers will be instructed in the English language, the petty officers receiving additional instruction in advanced mathematics, the training to be at the expense of the United States government.

James E. Neary, instructor to the Fore River apprentices, has been selected for the work. It is more than complimentary to Mr. Neary's teaching ability that he has been selected for the difficult task of instructing foreigners.

The lessons will be given two nights a week during the entire residence here of the South Americans, and no limit to the advance has been set, so it is probable that his pupils will gain the full benefit of Mr. Neary's entire course. They are very anxious to learn English.

A dispatch from Buenos Ayres says: the government has designated another group of 10 officers and warrant officers of the navy to be incorporated in the American navy. They will go on board the American vessels when the visit Valparaiso at the Chilian centennial. They will stay on board six months and then put themselves at the disposal of the chief of the Argentine naval commission in the United States. It is officially announced that the minister of the interior will take charge of the ministry of foreign affairs and the minister of war that of marine until the end of the present administration.

March With 150 Men in the Boston Parade

St. Mary C. T. A. Society 150 strong participated on Wednesday evening in the big Boston parade of the Catholic temperance societies. The start was delayed until 8.15 because of the rain. The procession formed on Arlington street,and preceded over Beacon and Charles to Park square, Columbus avenue, Concord square, West Concord, Harrison avenue, West Newton, Washington street, Waltham, Shawmut avenue, Tremont, Boylston, to Washington street and Adams square. Patrick J. O'Rourke was marshal of the St. Mary's Society.

LARCENY OF BEER.

It cost Albert K. Gay of East Weymouth $15 in court this morning for having quenched his thirst Wednesday with two bottles of beer, whose value was alleged to have been twenty cents. The beer was in a case in a freight car at East Weymouth. The railroad people have been receiving numerous complaints of bottles of beer missing from cases in transportation, and an inspector was put on to find the leakage. Wednesday the inspector saw Gay, who is a driver for Drew's express, open the cover of a case of beer in a freight car, abstract two bottles, with which he quenched a burning thirst. Chief Fitzgerald was called, and Gay found himself under arrest. He pleaded guilty in court and was assessed $15.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

No one in Massachusetts will criticise Acting Governor Louis A. Frothingham for offering a reward of $500 in the Restelli case. If there ever was a case where a murderer should be apprehended that man is Louis Restelli. He is a dangerous character to be abroad in the State or outside of the State, and safety of the people generally demands that he be confined and at the proper time executed. Many people in Quincy, even his immediate family will not rest at ease until they know of his whereabouts. Now the State has doubled the reward of the Hardwick family, the City of Quincy should increase the total from $1,000 to $1,500. With rewards of this magnitude offered, Restelli should be run down before Sept. 1. The best detectives of the country are wanted on the case, and they should get on the trail immediately, for the city will undoubtedly act favorably at the special meeting of the City Council.

Quincy is fortunate in having men who have contributed largely to the benefit of the people generally, and it is a pleasure to enroll the name of Henry Munroe Faxon in the list of benefactors, which includes his late father, Henry H. Faxon, who presented Faxon park of thirty acres to the city. A nurses' home at our City Hospital is much needed. In this list is also Charles Francis Adams, who gave to the city Merrymount park; his great grandfather the President John Adams, who gave us a school fund; Ebenezer Woodward who left a fund to establish and endow the Woodward Institute; Thomas Crane who bequeathed money for the erection of the Thomas Crane Public Library building; and his sons who have generously enlarged the building and otherwise improved it; William B. Rice who gave the Hospital and new ward, also William Coddington who gave a school fund; Cotton Center Johnson, who bequeathed money for a Thanksgiving fund; Charles E. French, who left a cemetery fund; and others who have contributed to the endowment fund of the City Hospital, established Camp Mt. Pleasant for the cure of tuberculosis patients, and helped other charities.

Soft is the morning dew,
Resting on flowers;
Gentle the balmy breath,
'Mid summer showers
Green is the moss-couch,
Spread to repose;
Sweet o'er the heather hill
The wild flower blows.

Dew on the bright flowers,
Soon glides away;
Calm breath of summer
Speeds on its way.
Yellow the moss-bed,
Bleak is the hill,
Gone are the silver buds,
Hushed is the rill.

Days without number,
Thus on the wing,
Fly as the shadow
Glides o'er the hill;
Star of the morning,
Gilding our bloom,
Lights up at evening
Our path to the tomb.

Not this our Eden home,
Rocked by the blast—
Not this our beacon star,
Fading so fast.
Dark through the stormy hours,
Fleeting and short;
Bark of our pilgrimage
Soon is in port.

VAHEY WILL NOT WITHDRAW

Declares His Positive Candidacy For Governorship of Bay State

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 11.—"I shall positively be a candidate for the governorship of Massachusetts this fall on the Democratic ticket, and under no consideration do I intend to withdraw from the race."

This was the announcement made by James H. Vahey at the outing of the Worcester county Democratic committee at Edgemere. There have been rumors that Vahey would withdraw from the race in favor of Congressman Foss, but Vahey's statements put a crimp in the bonnet of any Democrat who expected Foss to have a clear field for the gubernatorial candidacy.

A great crowd of Democrats from all over the state listened to Vahey's speech, in which he predicted Democratic victory in the coming state election.

It was expected that Messrs. Foss and Hamlin, both of whom have been mentioned as possibilities for the Democratic nomination, would be at the outing. Neither came, however, nor did they send any letters of explanation.

HIS WISH GRATIFIED

Pugilist Joe Gans Dies In the Arms of His Old "Mammy"

Baltimore, Aug. 11.—Joe Gans, former lightweight pugilistic champion, died at his home here.

The old master died as he wished to—in the arms of his mother. It was that he might be with his old "mammy" at the end that the great lightweight made his race with death a week ago, hurrying on from Arizona, where he had sought relief in his battle with consumption.

Gans was conscious until two hours before his death. At his bedside at the time he breathed his last, beside his mother, were his wife and two children.

Gans was married three times. The exact cause of his death may be learnedly filed by the physicians, but Father Time and the pummellings received in over 150 ring battles do not leave much doubt as to what finally laid the once great fighter away.

"WEED PICKING" STUNTS

Adopted by Members of Summer Colony to Beat Board of Health

Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 11.—The summer vacationists at Lake Assawampsett, in Lakeville, have won a signal victory over the Taunton health authorities. The health people have absolutely forbidden bathing in the lake, but stated that it was permissible for any cottager to don a bathing costume and pick out the weeds and other growth near the landing places.

As soon as this order was heard of by the cottagers they all donned their suits and last evening every person on the lake was busy "picking weeds" in the lake. They cannot understand, however, why bathing in the lake will contaminate Taunton's water supply while "weeding" will not.

PARADE IN RAIN

Total Abstainers True to the Cause They Have Espoused

Boston, Aug. 11.—Eight thousand men and women, members of the Catholic Total Abstinance Union of America, paraded in the rain through the streets of Boston last evening.

Although the 15,000, which it had been expected would take part in the parade, did not materialize, the 8000 who did appear made a very favorable impression. The varicolored decorations on the automobiles, carrying the women's auxiliaries and societies, and the white duck or khaki suits of the youngsters added to the beauty of the spectacle.

Lynn Lasters Win Strike

Parasite Flowers.

Curious excrescences resembling rude flowers grow on trees in Tierra del Fuego. These are found to be due to a parasitic growth, but the "flowers" consist of the inner wood of the tree which has been forced through the bark and assumes various fanciful shapes, often those of the classical acanthus, seen on Corinthian capitals. The parasite that causes the growth is a relative of the mistletoe.

HIS RECOVERY IS LOOKED FOR

Doctors Jubilant at Progress Made by Mayor Gaynor

NO SUGGESTION OF FEVER

Patient Would Much Rather Have Food Than Medicine and Is In Most Cheerful Mood—Gallagher Will Be Shown How Swiftly Jersey Justice Can Be Dealt Out—Will Not Say He Is Sorry For His Deed, but Now Hopes Victim Will Get Well

New York, Aug. 11.—Mayor Gaynor is making a splendid fight for his life in St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, where he has been since Tuesday morning, when James J. Gallagher, a discharged city employe, attempted to assassinate him as he stood talking with friends on the deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. His favorable condition leads those about his bedside to believe that his wonderful vitality will pull him through.

A most remarkable feature of the sensational happening is that he does not yet know who shot him. He has not asked about it and no one has volunteered the information.

While his life is still in danger from any one of several complications which are always to be feared in such cases, his physicians are hourly growing more hopeful of his recovery.

The optimistic feeling in this respect does not show in the bulletins issued from time to time as much as it does in the relieved expression on their faces. They are cautious about exaggerating the favorable condition of their patient, but they are jubilant at the progress he is making.

His temperature hovered about the hundred mark all day and at no time was there even a suggestion of fever. To all inquiries the mayor replied that he was feeling fine.

No effort has been made to probe for the fragments of Gallaher's bullet which an examination disclosed to be located among some of the unimportant tissues of the throat.

Some of the physicians fear that the bullet may have bruised one of the important arteries, but it will take several days to determine if this is so.

Mayor Gaynor conversed with Mrs. Gaynor for nearly three hours yesterday afternoon. He assured her that he was feeling splendidly and then proceeded to tell her how hungry he was. He convinced her that there was a conspiracy on foot to starve him and soon had her all smiles with his humorous references to the economy of the commissary department. He is passionately fond of bacon and he implored her to use her influence with the physicians to get him a few slices.

Mrs. Gaynor put the proposition up to the phisicans and they assured her that he would get his favorite dish today if he countinued to improve.

He ate broth at frequent intervals during the day and had coffee once or twice, but was not permitted to indulge in solid food.

"If they will only give me something to eat, I won't have to take medicine," said the mayor.

"JERSEY JUSTICE"

It Is Expected to Make New Record In the Case of Gallagher

James J. Gallagher was especially cheerful after he was visited by his lawyer, Samuel T. Jacktoff, in the Jersey City jail shortly before noon. During the afternoon he smiled pleasantly at those who peered through the grating and some of his fellow prisoners say that occasionally he sang snatches of songs. His lawyer stated that an insanity defense would be entered in his behalf.

The machinery for Gallagher's trial has started and Prosecutor Garvin announced that far-famed Jersey justice is out for a new speed record in his case. It is planned to have the grand jury indict Gallagher before the end of this week and place him on trial Monday morning.

It is expected that two indictments will be found against him, one charging him with an attempt to kill William H. Edwards, the street cleaning commissioner, who stopped one of the bullets intended for the mayor with his left arm. In New Jersey the minimum penalty for assault with intent to kill is twenty years. With commutation this means a 12-year sentence, so the best that Gallagher can hope for, unless his attorney succeeds in proving him insane, is twenty-four years in prison.

He is 58 years old and this would probably be a life sentence in his case. Under the New Jersey law Gallagher could be tried for murder if Mayor Gaynor should die within a year and a day of the prisoner's conviction for the lesser crime.

Gallagher's Stand

Gallagher's statement, made last evening, was his first frank talk concerning the crime. "While I will not say that I am sorry," he said, "I now hope that the mayor gets well. But I wanted to teach high officials to regard the rights of subordinates. I consider that I had to shoot the mayor as a lesson to the country. I did what I did for personal principles and was not prompted by any anarchist belief.

"I am sorry that Commissioner Edwards was wounded, for I was aiming only at the mayor. But even the thought of killing him had not been long in my mind. In fact I reached no decision until I bought a newspaper yesterday morning.

"The paper said that Gaynor was going to sail on a vacation. That made me angry, to think that he should have a vacation in Europe while I did not even have a chance to work, much less get a vacation. So I hurried over the Twenty-third street ferry and inquired my way to the Kaiser Wilhelm.

"My wrongs had proved more than I thought I could bear. Over and over I sized up my hard situation in life and contrasted it with that of some other men, of Mayor Gaynor, who had wronged me, in particular. At length I determined to seek the revenge which I concluded should be justly mine.

"No, I was not drunk when I went aboard the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, as has been intimated. On the contrary, I had not taken a drop of liquor since last Saturday. My drinking on that day was limited to a single glass of beer.

"Had I heard of President McKinley's assassination? Of course, and I believe assassination is sometimes right."

MURDER OF TWO MAYORS

Revenge the Motive In the Cases of Bouseman and Harrison

The most recent assassination of a mayor of an American city was that two weeks ago of Mayor A. H. Bouseman, who was blown to death by a dynamite bomb hurled beneath a hammock in which he was resting on the lawn in front of his home, in Ridgeway, Va.

The murder was the work of a crank. The assassin has not yet been caught and not even a clue to his identity has been found. Presumably the killing by several policemen of a negro whom they had mistaken in a hunt for a fugitive led up to the destruction of Bouseman.

As mayor of the Virginia city Bouseman served also as the police judge. At his direction the policemen who accidentally shot the innocent negro were sent upon the hunt for the real criminal. The negro population of the town openly accused the mayor of responsibility for the act of the police.

Probably the most sensational murder of the chief magistrate of any city in this country was that of Carter Harrison, mayor of Chicago, in his home there on the evening of Oct. 28, 1893. His death was due to the distorted mind of a crank, Eugene Prendergast, a newspaper carrier, to be rid of whom he had promised a place in the city government soon after his election to the mayoralty in the preceding April.

The murder of Harrison occurred in his home, where he was shot three times by the disappointed Prendergast as he walked from the room in which he had been dining with his son and daughters into the hallway, where he had been called by a maid to meet his assassin.

Mayor Harrison's death occurred practically on the eve of his second marriage. Although he was 68 years old, he was to have been married within a month of the day he was shot to Miss Anne Howard, 23 years old. Harrison was first chosen as mayor of Chicago in 1879 and served continuously for eight years. Later he was defeated for election as governor of Illinois and as United States senator, to be returned as mayor following the election in 1893.

Prendergast, who had hoped until the last moment that the death sentence would at least be reduced to one of life imprisonment, was hanged on July 13, 1894.

THREE BROTHERS KILLED

Fourth Injured When They Are Struck by an Express Train

East Greenwich, R. I., Aug. 11.—Three boys, sons of John H. Straight of Cowesett, were killed and a fourth brother was seriously injured when they stepped in the path of a New York bound Portland express, traveling at the rate of sixty miles an hour around a sharp turn.

A fifth member of the party, Irving Wood, saw the train in time to jump from the track, but his warning cry reached the other boys too late.

The dead are: Robert Straight, 15; Irving Straight, 11; John H. Straight, Jr., 6. The injured boy is Herbert Straight, aged 9.

FIRST PRIZE TO BUSY BEE

Mudjekeewis However First on Actual Time

Several of the Quincy Cape cat boats participated in the anual open races of the Hingham Yacht club in Hingham bay Wednesday. The boats of this class got away well bunched with the Mudjekeewis and Busy Bee leading. The most exciting par t of the race, however, was the finish, five of the six boats in this class coming to the line in a bunch. The Mudjekeewis was the first to cross with the Dartwell only 33 seconds behind. Then came the Busy Bee, Emeline, Josephine and Almira. Time allowance gave the race to the Busy Bee. The two rivals Iris and Dolly III did not enter. These are the two yachts that will compete in the Narraganset bay races and they are being made ready for that race. The summary of this class follows:

Name and owner	El time h m s	Cor time h m s
Busy Bee, W. J. Coomb	1:21:18	1:18:24
Mudjekeewis, E. W. Emery	1:20:0	1:19:42
Dartwell, I. M. Whittenmore	1:20:33	1:20:21
Josephine, Tupper & Hardwick	1 22 34	1:21:19
Almira, W. J. De Marchi	1:25:02	1:25:52

In the class for 18 footers the Mouse took first prize, the Dorchen II of Quincy the second, the Kittiwake third and the Aspinquid II was last.

The Polly Wog led one of the Hingham classes and the Boniface the other. First prize in the dory class went to the Teaser.

During the races water sports were held near the Hingham clubhouse, and in the evening there was a concert and ball.

BRIEFS

Mrs. J. M. Pope is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Bevis of Bridgewater.

The new steam roller has given great satisfaction.

Mrs. Sarah Hackett is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Ella E. Reed of Whitman.

Miss Rena Bizzozero of Bates avenue left Monday for a six weeks' visit in Rockville, Ind.

Miss Martha P. Valentine, who has been at North Attleboro, has returned to Ashland.

Many went to Boston Wednesday to see the ruins of the big fire in the lumber district on Albany street.

Many of the stores in City Square City Square now close at 6 o'clock three nights a week, and several close Wednesday afternoons.

Rev. Dr. Charles F. Johansson, a former Quincy pastor, was tendered a surprise party by the Emmanuel Lutheran church of Boston on Tuesday evening, the date of his 70th birthday.

Rev. Walter R. Breed, D. D., rector of St. Paul's church, Cleveland, Ohio, who has been spending the month of July with relatives in Lynn, sailed Wednesday on the steamship Mauretania from New York, for a ten weeks' automobile tour in the British isles.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Epworth league of the Hall Place M. E. church was held in the vestry Monday evening. In the absence of the president and first vice president, the second vice president filled the chair. The social hour was omitted.

Many people are surprised to know the depth at which some of the city's sewer pipe is installed. At the junction of Mill and Washington streets where pipe laying has been in progress for nearly four months there is a trench that is fifteen feet deep. Other pipe, however, is but four feet underground.

About 15 members of Hodenosaunee Tribe of this city will be entertained at Camp Sago, Monponsett, on Sunday by Massapoag tribe of Campello, on which occasion Everett T. Reynolds will be the chef. A piano has been purchased for the cottage and will be taken there on Saturday by Walter B. Stetson.

—The forced retirement of George Westinghouse, the great inventor, in his old age, from the presidency of the company that he founded, is a piece of base ingratitude. Thousands of human lives have been saved by the invention of the air brake by George Westinghouse. He has thus been one of the greatest of benefactors of mankind. He ought to have a monument as high and as noble as that of any soldier of the land.—Salem News.

WHAT IT COSTS TO FLY

Machines of Today Are Very Expensive

Nowadays any ordinarily active man, on deciding to learn to fly, may achieve his ambition in less than a month's time, provided he is prepared to spend some money upon the project, says the Herald.

If he is content to acquire the art of airmanship without actually owning an aeroplane of his own, it will cost him $1000, or slightly more.

Should he buy a machine his expenditure may be $2500 or $5000, according to the make and reputation of his aircraft. To such a stage of practicability has human flight already attained.

And it is not surprising, in view of recent achievement in the air, that many sportsmen—mostly young men of leisure—are now discussing, and for the first time, the buying of aeorplanes and the adoption of flying as a new and very exhilarating form of motoring.

The first thought of a man who is thinking of becoming an airman is naturally this: How much does an aeroplane cost? Upon this point precise details are now available. A Farman biplane such as M. Paulhan and Grahame-White steered in the memorable London-to-Manchester flight and fitted with the famous Gnome motor to which both airmen owed so much of their success—now costs $5600.

The aeroplane, when ready, is delivered to the purchaser at Mourmelon, and he must then buy a very large wooden crate to pack it in, if his intention is to bring it to England. This packing case—its size may be gauged when it is remembered that the biplane measures close upon 40 feet from one wing to the other—will cost nearly $250. The carriage of the flying machine from France to England will involve an outlay of another $125.

Should a would-be airman decide to buy a monoplane, or single-surface machine, instead of a biplane, such as the Farman, he will find that the cost of a Bleriot type craft fitted with a three-cylindered Anzani engine—the same pattern of aircraft and motor as that with which M. Bleriot flew across the channel is $2400. Delivery of such a monoplane as this may be made almost immediately.

But the pronouncement of experts should be cited as regards the use of monoplanes and biplanes from the novice's point of view. They say, and experience certainly bears them out, that the beginner learns to fly more easily and more safely upon a biplane than upon a monoplane. The reason is that when a biplane begins to lose its balance in the air it heels over far more slowly than a monoplane, thereby giving its pilot more time to alter his levers and bring it again upon a level keel.

To Be Regulated.

William B. Ridgely, former comptroller of the currency, said of a certain speculator recently:

"The man is as ingenious as a horse trader's son who was once unexpectedly called upon by his father to mount a horse and exhibit its paces.

"As he mounted he leaned toward his father and said:

"'Are you buying or selling?'"—Success Magazine.

After the Ball.

After the ball was over
See her take out a glass eye,
Put her false teeth in a basin,
Lock up her bottle of dye,
Stand her cork leg in the corner,
Hang up her hair on the wall,
And then what remains goes to bye-bye.
A-f-t-e-r the ball.
—Ally Sloper's Half Holiday.

Our Country.

Foreigner—I suppose that pompous looking fellow over there who acts as if he owned the earth is one of the rulers of the people.

American—Oh, no. The ruler of the people is that insignificant looking fellow over there all by himself. The pompous fellow is supposed to be one of the servants of the people.—Puck.

False Friends.

The man who slaps your shoulder and the man who grips your hand
Should be forever banished from this peaceful, happy land.
They play their brutal pranks and think you'll treat them as your friends.
And if you dare protest they laugh as if to make amends.
—Buffalo Express.

Making an Impression.

"Madam, if you had a child to weep over," suggested the lawyer, "the alimony might be bigger."

"But I have none."

"At least you have a dog?"

"Alas, no."

"Then there's nothing else to do. We'll have to take the rubber plant into court."—Washington Herald.

SOFT COAL IS DESTROYING NOTED ENGLISH BUILDINGS

Oxford Factory Chimneys Rot Stones of University Buildings.

Recent local legislation in England which forbids factory owners to permit black smoke to issue from chimneys does not touch the equally sooty smoke from the soft coal used in millions of old fashioned English grates and kitchen ranges.

It is not only in London that the smoke laden atmosphere rots the stonework and is a menace to historical buildings like Westminster abbey. According to the Local Government Review, large quantities of the blackest smoke are issued from factory chimneys in and about Oxford.

Over the stones of its colleges there is a deposit of soot. The acids held in the soot blister the surfaces of the stones. After a time that blister falls, leaving a rough, crumbling surface, the precursor of rapid decay. An informant officially connected with the university has said that he has little doubt that the decay of the stonework of the older buildings has been greater in the nineteenth century than in any former century, and this is due to the increased use of coal.

The paper gives also particulars of the damage to portions of Canterbury cathedral by smoke, especially to the great Angel tower, on which the cathedral authorities have spent a large sum in repairs. As regards Exeter cathedral, a noble edifice 860 years old, the writer says that soot has eaten its way into all parts of the delicate tracery of the western front of the structure. Efforts have been made with more or less success to remedy and to replace, but the ancient glory has largely departed.

MAKE A COLLEGE TO ORDER.

Oregon Follows Example of Trinity In North Carolina.

Announcement of the plan to make to order a college in Oregon under the leadership of Professor William Trufant Foster recalls other examples of American educational institutions which have been built around ample endowments.

While there is none, perhaps, so entirely made to order as Reed college will be, Trinity college at Durham, N. C., furnishes a somewhat parallel case in that the old basis of a poverty stricken Methodist Episcopal school was practically of no financial importance when the new patrons began to pour money into the treasury a dozen or more years ago.

The tobacco manufacturing family of Dukes, in Durham, caused Trinity college to be transplanted from a country town to the tobacco center, and there, practically under the walls of a great cigarette factory, has been built a totally new Trinity, with ample funds, talented professors and elaborate laboratory equipment.

The president, who has been the Dukes' educational spender, is the Rev. John C. Kilgo.

Trinity now has about 475 students and nearly forty members of the faculty. In proportion to its numbers it is the best endowed college in the south and one of the wealthiest anywhere, and the money continues to come in as fast as it is needed.

The Red Hat.

The chief insignia of the cardinal's dignity, his red hat, bad as its original significance the idea that the wearer was to be at all times ready to shed his blood in martyrdom for the church.

Persian Rugs.

Every district in Persia has its own style and designs of rugs, yet the mere name is no guide to quality, as good and bad rugs are turned out in all districts. The choicest are woven in silk and wool.

Prague English.

For English speaking guests in the Hotel Monopol at Prague is this sign: "To blow out the electric lights, turn the button. Wine lists are a hunging in the ground floor."

Lead Pipes.

By polishing lead pipes with pumice and a wet rag and then applying white varnish they may be kept bright indefinitely.

Heat Measurement.

A calorie, the unit of measurement, is that quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of one gram of water one degree centigrade.

In Her Bathing Suit.

She's as fair as the lily. No makeup has she.
In the matter of beauty she has no fads.
She's as fair as the lily, yet plump as can be,
But I've frequently noticed the lily pads!
—New York Times.

The Latest Dance.

Frontrow—Yes, and I must say she outstrips anything of the kind I have ever seen.—Youngstown Telegram.

Why?

Oh, a beautiful thing is music in the home.
And there's nothing that softens it more.
Then how does it come that there's nothing so bum
As the music in the home next door?
—Cleveland Leader.

Reminiscent.

"Did you see that man who had been so long in the gold fields weep when I sang the song about home last night?"

"Yes; I suppose you struck a minor chord."—Baltimore American.

ARMY OF SUICIDES

Probably 12,500 in United States in 1909

According to statistics complied by the Spectator of New York the probable number of suicides in the United States during the year 1909 may conservatively be placed at not less than 12,500. Over one-half of the suicides were by poison and firearms and the Spectator declares that the sale of these should be a matter of much more effective control.

The suicide rate from 65 American cities during 1909 confirms the conclusion of previous years that the rate is decidedly excessive and on the increase. Compared with 1908 the rate has slightly decreased from 21.1 to 20.6 but otherwise there has been only one year since 1890 when in addition to 1908, the rate was higher than in 1909 and that was in 1904. These facts, the Spectator adds, form a suggestive commentary upon the state of private and public morality of the present day.

Here are figures from Massachusetts cities, the ten year column being for 1899 to 1908 inclusive, and the last column for the year 1909.

	10 yrs.	1909
Boston	906	124
Quincy	54	5
Springfield	92	15
Worcester	172	10
Holyoke	60	10
Brockton	53	6
Lawrence	77	9
Gloucester	28	1
Cambridge	101	8
Lowell	96	18
Manchester	60	6
Lynn	64	8
New Bedford	45	5
Somerville	31	5

It will be noticed that Quincys record for 1909 was below the average, and that it was also less in Worcester, Brockton, Gloucester, Cambridge, Manchester and New Bedford, but in Boston and other cities it was above the average in 1909. In Quincy the number of violent deaths is probably in excess of the suicides.

The Little Star.

[This famous little bit of verse was written many years ago. It is supposed to be the Boston child's version of "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star." The author is anonymous.]

Scintillate, scintillate, globulae ovivivic.
Fain would I fathom thy nature's specific.
Loftily posed in ether capacious
Strongly resembling a gem carbonaceous.

When torrid Phoebus refuses his presence
And ceases to lamp with fierce incandescence,
Then you illume the regions supernal,
Scintillate, scintillate, semper nocturnal.

Then the victim of hospiceless peregrination
Gratefully hails your minute coruscation.
He could not determine his journey's direction
But for your bright scintillating protection.

Not For a Gentleman's Ears.

"Repeat the words the defendant used," commanded counsel for the woman plaintiff in a case of slander being tried in the first criminal court of Newark recently.

"I'd rather not," bashfully replied the defendant. "They were hardly words to tell to a gentleman."

"Whisper them to the judge, then," magnanimously suggested counsel. And the court was obliged to rap for order. —Lippincott's.

Song of the Bullfrog.

The frog sat on the lily pad
And wooed the pollywog.
He asked her in his manner sad
If she'd be Mrs. Frog.
"Yes, I will wed you," she replied.
"Your greenbacks come in chunks,
And I'll delight to be the bride
Of one with lots of plunks."
And that is why, my little dear,
Upon the midnight atmosphere
You hear the bullfrog's song so drear—
"Ker-chunk!
Ker-plunk!
Kerchunk!
Kerplunk!"
—Harper's Weekly.

Odd Superstitions.

In England there is a superstition that if a bride and groom eat periwinkle leaves together they will love one another. Should he after marriage prove recalcitrant here is a way to win him back: Take a piece of the root of a wallflower and a partridge's heart, roll them into a ball and make the man eat it. If you want to know whether your lover loves you, crush some bleeding heart. If the juice is red, he does; if it is white, he does not.

The Game and the Candle.

Many expressions now in everyday use have originated around the card table, and "the game isn't worth the candle" is one of them. Before artificial lighting had reached its present high stage gamblers won and lost fortunes by candlelight. When play was slow and uninteresting the game, in the opinion of the players, was not worth the cost of the candle whose light made the cards visible.

SONDER BOATS NOW POPULAR.

Yachtsmen Taking to This Class of Sailing Craft.

MANY RACES TO BE HELD.

First Big One of Season Is International Affair to Be Held Off Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 17 Between American and Spanish Yachts.

The sonderclass yacht seems to be growing in popularity. It first came into existence on this side of the Atlantic in 1906, when a series of races was arranged with the German yachtsmen, and since then some forty boats have been built for this class.

It is most popular in eastern waters and has proved successful. Those who are interested in the class do not propose to allow it to die out, and many races are to be held this year. The international races between the American and Spanish sonder boats are scheduled to start off Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 17. On Buzzards bay Sept. 3 there are to be races for the selection of a team to be sent to Kiel for international races in June, 1911.

To those who do not understand what the sonder boat is the following will no doubt prove interesting:

A sonderclass boat was designed to overcome yacht measurement rules and to produce the most boat on the water with the least boat under it—that is to say, with as little water line length and as much overhang as are possible in a racing length of thirty-two feet. In addition to this condition they must be weighed, and their displacement must not be more than 4,035 pounds, nor may they carry more than 550 square feet of sail.

In appearance they are not unlike the sneak box on longer and finer lines, for they have the long spoon bow and the square stern of the famous Jersey ducking boat. They are jib and mainsail rigged, with the forward end of the jib made fast inboard about two or three feet from the bow proper, one of the additional strange features of the boat.

They are flush decked, with a cockpit large enough to hold the crew of three men, the helmsman having to be both an amateur and a native of the country from which the boat hails, according to the rules. The boats are steered with an unusually long tiller. They have fin keels, are built of mahogany or cedar and average around twenty-five feet in length over all.

"SEND ME BACK TO MINORS"

So Requested Blackburne, $8,500 Shortstop, of White Sox President.

Russell Blackburne, the Chicago Americans' young shortstop, for whom President Charles Comiskey paid $8,500 last fall, yearns to go back to the minor leagues. Blackburne asked to be returned to the Eastern league, but his request was refused. Comiskey considering him too good a baseball player to lose at the present time.

With only three years' experience in baseball and only a few months' play with a major league team, Blackburne feels that he can be of greater service to the White Sox ultimately by playing the remainder of the season with a minor league team, where he will be kept in the game constantly. He wants to help the White Sox, he says, and believes he can make more rapid strides and be of greater service to the team by a little more experience with the minors.

Blackburne came to the White Sox at the beginning of the present season from the Providence team of the Eastern league. He was a distinct sensation on that club, fielding in a phenomenal manner and batting at a good average. Since coming to the White Sox Blackburne has had a checkered career of successes and reverses.

BRITONS ARE COMING.

Oxford and Cambridge Football Players Will Introduce Game.

Negotiations have been under way for some time for the sending of a combined Oxford-Cambridge varsity team to the United States with a view to re-establishing Rugby football in eastern schools and universities in accordance with the ideas of Theodore Roosevelt expressed to the students at the Cambridge union on May 26. No hindrances are seen now, and it is confidently expected that the team will make the trip.

Frank Gotch Not a Fighter

Frank Gotch, the world's wrestling champion, who Jim Corbett is trying to foist on the public as the only man who can defeat Jack Johnson, has already taken a whirl at the prize ring game. Several years ago he met Frank Slavin in Alaska. The fight was held in Dawson City, and, according to the stories told by the wrestling champion, his fighting debut was anything but encouraging. Frank Slavin was an old timer even at that time, while Gotch knew little of the rudiments of the game. The result was a knockout, with Gotch taking the count.

Pitcher Hall Doves' Standby.

Charlie Hall is Boston's standby in the box. The Californian has great speed and is always ready to be called upon to go to the mound.

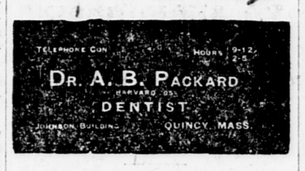

LEAVE LOOT BEHIND

Burglars Evidently Frightened After Ransacking a Boston House

Boston, Aug. 11.—The residence of Robert T. Paine, Jr., in the exclusive Back Bay district, was broken into and ransacked from cellar to garret by burglars who, after gathering considerable jewelry and boring holes in a safe preparatory to blowing it open, were evidently frightened, as they left without taking any of the loot. They also left a complete collection of burglars' tools, which are now in the possession of the police.

Entrance was effected through a basement door in the rear. After cutting all burglar alarm wires, the robbers went through the entire house, breaking into closets and pulling out bureau drawers, emptying them of their contents. In this way a large amount of jewelry was collected.

BRIEFS

The rain of last night and today is just the kind that vegetation very much needed.

Frank Hayward Wrigley is at the National Shawmut Bank camp at Silver Lake, N. H., for two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Edward F. Conlin, formerly Miss Anna M. Feeley, has joined her husband in Lynchburg, Virginia, after a pleasant stay of five weeks with her mother, Mrs. Maria M. Feeley of 121 Main street.

William Cain, Russell Oliver and Samuel Cook of Quincy Point have completed their vacations and returned to the Fore River Company's shop, where they are employed as apprentices.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest O. Godfrey, who were married Tuesday evening, are receiving the congratulations of their numerous friends. Mr. Godfrey, it will be remembered, was attacked and robbed in his yard some time ago.

The Summer S[illegible]rls are busy preparing for [illegible]ibition which is to be held at [illegible]Women's Club House on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. An invitation to be present is extended to all persons interested in the work.

The condition of Washington street near Mill is deplorable, but as soon as possible it will be relaid. A scarifier, a heavy harrow-like machine dragged by the steam roller, is employed now to even the road bed. It will soon be rolled.

Followed the Leader.

Master—Who can tell me what useful article we get from the whale? Johnnie—Whalebone. Master—Right. Now, what little boy or girl knows what we get from the seal? Tommy—Sealing wax.—London Scraps.

—The St. John, N. B., Board of Trade has adopted a resolution, asking the City Council no. to transfer certain lots on the West side of the harbour to the Canadian Pacific Railway for terminal purposes unless the railway company guarantees to spend a quarter of a million dollars there within ten years, failing which the property should revert to the City. The property in question comprises some forty acres of flats, nearly all of which is submerged at high tide. It is of no value except for terminal purposes and the C. P. R. has stated its intention of utilizing it in that way.

WALTER BROOKINS

Daring Aviator Who Holds the High Flight Record

RISKS HIS LIFE TO AVOID CROWD

Brookins Badly Hurt as His Aeroplane Overturns

AVIATOR CAUGHT BENEATH IT

His Nose Broken and He May Have Suffered Internal Injuries—Seven Other Persons Caught by Parts of Descending Machine Are Injured—Daring Young Man Says He Did the Only Thing Possible

New York, Aug. 11.—Walter A. Brookins, the most daring of young aviators, deliberately risked his life at the aviation field at Asbury Park, N. J., to avoid hitting a crowd of protographers, and crashed to the earth in his Wright biplane.

Brookins was buried under the overturned machine and was caught between the earth and the heavy motor that had been displaced by the fall, while seven other persons were caught by parts of the descending machine and hurled in different directions bruised and battered. One boy is believed to be fatally injured.

The exact extent of Brookins' injuries is not yet known. His nose was broken, but what the doctors are anxious about is the possibility of internal injuries.

The wind was blowing at a 25-mile clip from the southeast when Brookins made his appearance on the field. It was the first public demonstration of the starting of a Wright machine from the wheels. The machine rolled along toward the center of the field for about 200 feet and then rose beautifully to a height of about 150 feet on the first turn.

At the first circle the aeroplane did not seem much affected by the wind, being in part protected by the tall trees, but on the second turn as the machine rose above the treetops the fragile craft rocked and rolled.

After being in the air at a height of 600 feet nearly ten minutes, Brookins concluded to descend, aiming to land directly in front of the grandstand. He made five or six circles, dropping 200 feet at the first circle and then directed his machine over the grandstand.

When the machine was only forty feet from the ground the aviator saw directly below him a group of photographers. With a sudden jerk of the lever Brookins aimed his machine again into the teeth of the wind. The turn was too quick, but it was his only chance to avoid injury to others.

As the wind caught the tail it lifted it in the air, turning the nose of the machine downward, and it went to earth, crashing to the ground a foot from the end of the grandstand. Those injured were unable to get out of the way when the flying parts of the machine scattered.

Brookins was with difficult dragged from under the broken motor and it was some time before he recovered his senses.

"I did the only thing possible," Brookins said later. "I had to make that turn to save the men in the field. As soon as I am well I am going to go up again."

Brookins is 22 years old, and his home is in Dayton, O., the home of the Wright brothers. He was employed as an aviator by the Wright brothers. On July 9 at Atlantic City in a Wright aeroplane he smashed all existing world's aeroplane records for altitude. In the presence of 150,000 people he went up 6100 feet.

In Indianapolis on June 13 he went up 4384½ feet, which then became the world's altitude record until Brookins himself beat it at Atlantic City.

Wilbur Wright declared that Brookins was one of the greatest air pilots in the world.

Postoffice Robbers Get $1700

Cambridge, O., Aug. 11.—A posse with bloodhounds is trailing robbers who dynamited the safe of the Boysville postoffice, stole $1700, and escaped in a stolen auto.

Poor Pickings.

The new boarder had never been on a farm before. She was filled with interest and delight in everything she saw. On the morning after her arrival she saw Mrs. Howe apparently picking berries from some pretty green plants beyond the wall as she strolled in the road.

"Those are charming little plants," she said, pausing, with her eyes fixed on a pail which hung on Mrs. Howe's arm. "What kind of berries grow on them? Does it take long to fill a pail like that?"

Mrs. Howe looked down into the pail with a meditative air and answered the second question.

"I should hope 'twould," she replied. "What kind of berries are they?" persisted the young woman. "I can't quite see. What are you picking?"

"'Tater bugs," said Mrs. Howe as she made another contribution to the depths of the pail.—Youth's Companion.

Public Speaking Explained.

The Japanese visitor to the city was asked to make an after dinner speech. He arose and began quaintly.

"I often wonder," he said, "why it is you Americans will hinder your digestion by making these after dinner speeches. We Japanese rest after our meals. It is much better. I know that I traveled with a Japanese legation over the United States, and everywhere the Americans would make us dine, then ask us for speeches afterward. We would much rather have dined at our hotels and retired afterward to rest for the following day. I asked some one why it was, this universal after dinner speechmaking among the American men at public dinners, and he replied that the American man never had a chance to say anything at home and that was why."—New York Press.

Had a Good Reason.

Dan, a colored man, was employed as porter in a mercantile establishment in a town in Florida, and his duties required him to have the store swept by 7 o'clock in the morning. He had been late for many mornings, and on the sixteenth consecutive time his employer remonstrated with him thus:

"Dan, why can't you get here on time?"

"Well, Mr. L.," said Dan, "yer see, I live the other side of Mount Hermon cemetery and can't always get yere on time."

"Why in the world do you live so far from your work?" said his employer.

Without a moment's hesitation Dan responded.

"Yer see, it's dis yere way, Mr. L.—I'll be honest' wid yer—I wants a home beyond the grave."

Testing His Scales.

"Thank heaven James has quit calling me Baby!" said the woman who weighs over 200 pounds. "A strange butcher shamed him out of it. It was done unconsciously too. That is why it was so effective. Since I began to diet I have been weighed often. The other day when James was buying liver for the cat he remarked that he wished there were reliable scales in the neighborhood to weigh Baby on.

"Said the butcher, 'Bring her down here.'

"'Thanks,' said James; 'I will.'

"James told me the butcher was expecting us, so we went. He was ready for us. He had rigged up a nice little shawl arrangement suspended from the hanging scales to put baby in, and then he was introduced to—me. James hasn't called me Baby since."—New York Times.

Curious Old English Law.

It is interesting to recall in connection with railway accidents that only a few years back any instrument which by accident was the immediate cause of loss of human life became in English law "deodand"—that is, became forfeit to the crown, to be devoted to pious purposes. This law applies to locomotives, but in course of time coroners' juries, instead of claiming the forfeit, inflicted a fine. In the year 1838 a locomotive on the Liverpool and Manchester line which by exploding caused the death of its engineer and fireman was fined £20, while the following year another engine on the same line was fined £1,400.

Making Sure.

"Johnnie!"

"Yes'm?"

"Why are you sitting on that boy's face?"

"Why, I"—

"Did I not tell you to always count a hundred before you gave way to passion and struck another boy?"

"Yes'm, and I'm doin' it; I'm just sittin' on his face so he'll be here when I'm done countin' the hundred."—Houston Post.

Napoleon's English.

Napoleon I. began to learn English at St. Helena, and there is a letter extant from him which begins: "Since sixt week I learn the English and I do not any progress. Six week do fourty and two days. If might have learn fivty word for day I could know it two thousands and two hundred."

Lucky Dog.

"My wife is excessively fond of her poodle. Actually, I'm beginning to look on it as a sort of a rival to me."

"Say, you're lucky. I'm only a sort of a rival to my wife's poodle."—Kansas City Times.

Her Excuse.

Widow (to dressmaker)—You must really wait awhile for payment for the mourning dresses. We are still too sorrowful to consider financial matters.

ELKINS MAKES STRONG DENIAL

Daughter Not Engaged to Wed Duke of Abruzzi, He Says

CALLS IT "FOOLISH RUMOR"

Expresses Amusement at Dispatches Placing Wife and Daughter at Widely Separated Places and Tells Just Where They Are—Miss Elkins In Germany, Pursued by Nobleman, According to Story From Paris

New York, Aug. 11.—If the Duca degli Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins, the daughter of Senator Elkins of West Virginia, are engaged, as reports from Europe have indicated, Elkins knows nothing of it. In fact he denied emphatically, just before he left this city for New England, that the two are to marry.

"It is a foolish rumor about their engagement," he said, "and nothing more. I am glad to deny it emphatically. I have not heard that the duke has met my daughter during her sojourn abroad. If he had I am sure I would have heard it. These reports about her and the duke, which at first were very serious to me, are now becoming very amusing.

"These reports from Europe sometimes cause me laughter. In one dispatch they have my wife and daughter in one place, and in another dispatch several hundred miles away. The truth is they are at a little place near Wiesbaden, in the north of Germany, where Mrs. Elkins is stopping for the benefit of her health.

"They have not been in the south of Austria or within many, many miles of Venice. I believe they have no intention of going there, either."

As Heard In Paris

Paris, Aug. 11.—A dispatch to L'Eclair from Baden-Baden says that the Duca degli Abruzzi visited Miss Katherine Elkins at Laugenschwalbach on four occasions, each time bringing with him a huge bouquet. The last call was made on July 30.

Miss Elkins and her mother, the correspondent adds, will leave Baden-Baden for Paris this week, and will be joined in the French capital by the duke.

MISSOURI LINGUIST BOOSTER.

Will Tell Immigrants Advantages of Show-me State.

Ellis island will soon have a linguistic wonder who will be able to understand pretty nearly all the would be citizens who land there. He is Henry Gellett of St. Louis, and will be at the nation's gateway as a representative of the immigration commission of Missouri to direct desirable aliens thither.

Mr. Gellett speaks six languages, German, English, French, Italian, Spanish and Swedish, besides many dialects of different sections of Europe.

Incandescent Lamps Popular.

Germany's export of incandescent lamps rose from $664,000 value in 1901 to $7,856,600 in 1909. This year the total will be much larger, as $3,775,000 worth was sent abroad in the first three months.

Two of Them.

The friend was plump and round.
Said the long, lean cat, "You can scarcely bend;
Too fat by many a pound."

The plump cat looked around in fear,
Then whispered soft and low,
"Do tell me, Tom, if no one's near—Tell me, does my rat show?"

Lost the Place.

Sally—Please, ma'am, I can't find the broom.

Mrs. Shipshape—Haven't I told you often enough to have a place for everything and everything in its place?

Sally—Yes, ma'am; I did that, but I have lost the place.—Evening Wisconsin.

A Lazy Citizen.

Escape Too Easy.

Landlord—What's that up there, sir?

New Arrival—It's my airship. There is no suitable shelter for it about here, so I'm obliged to keep it flying up there, see?

Landlord—Yes, I see. My terms for guests with airships are cash in advance.—Throne and Country.

CURED TO STAY CURED

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.
Grateful people testify.
Here's one case of it:

C. H. Foster, 180 Thatcher street, Milton Mass., says: "The symptoms of kidney trouble in my case were not serious at first and I paid little attention to them. The result was that before long I found myself firmly in the grasp of this complaint. I became so weak that I could hardly attend to my work and I also suffered from sharp pains in various parts of my body. I lost twenty pounds in weight and could not sleep well. I was very nervous, had no energy and was in such poor health that the doctor told me that I should take to my bed. I did not do this, however, being unwilling to give up. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. I procured a supply and had only taken part of the contents of one box before I began to feel better. From that time on I improved steadily until I was well." (Statement given May 1905.)

A Permanent Effect.

On June 24, 1908, Mr. Foster added: "My former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. I have been free from kidney complaint during the years that have passed since I first took the remedy."

WOMAN IMPLICATED IN COUNTERFEITING

New Light on Queer Doings In Massachusetts State Prison

Boston, Aug. 11.—Three convicts in the Charlestown state prison have been implicated in the counterfeiting which was recently disclosed there by the payment of a bet made by a couple of prisoners on a prison ball game.

Another person, supposed to be a woman, who passed the spurious coin outside the prison doors for the counterfeiters, eluded all attempts on the part of the prison authorities and the secret service men to secure her identity.

Patrick J. Hanley, 50 years old, of Lynn, who is serving a sentence of twenty-five years as an habitual criminal, is regarded as the leader of the counterfeiting gang. The identity of the other two convicts has been withheld by the prison officials.

Baptist Minister Dissatisfied With His Monetary Returns

Raynham, Mass., Aug. 11.—Another clergyman has deserted the ministerial field of labor to take up work elsewhere for more profitable returns. He is Rev. J. R. Lawrence of the Raynham Baptist church. He has been pastor here for about five years, and has been a minister for a great many years. He will take up his duties as a landscape gardener in the employ of a wealthy merchant of Providence.

Mr. Lawrence was dissatisfied with the monetary returns he got as a minister of the gospel. He starts at the new work next week.

CLUBHOUSES FOR EMPLOYEES

Prussian Railway Managers Introduce Conveniences For Trainmen.

The railway authorities in Prussia evidently mean to be up to date in the matter of care for the comfort and well being of their employees. Their last movement in this direction is to provide clubhouses for employees who end the day's service at a point distant from their homes.

At certain points along the various lines they have built two story houses with comfortable sleeping and eating rooms, where engineers, conductors, inspectors and section hands can pass the night and take supper or breakfast. The dormitories contain two, four and six beds, and there are separate sleeping rooms for specially privileged officials.

Each railroad man actually employed on a train who has to pass the night away from his home is supplied at the point of departure with a bedding outfit packed in a handy case. If he wishes he can take provisions with him, which he can have cooked or warmed up at the sleeping station. Some of the newly opened houses are supplied with a small library of books or a few of the day's papers. No charge is made for the accommodation or service.

But, then, they never knew Fan Clegg,
Who hails from Walla Walla, Wash.

I've heard a lot of Nicolette,
Whom Aucassin considered cute;
Of Heloise, who when a vet.

FEARLESS CHAMPION OF DIGNITY NOW HEADS MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY

Dean Harry Burns Hutchins of Law School Succeeds Dr. Angell as President at Ann Arbor After Proving Executive Capacity.

Five Years' Fighting Required to Make His Slogan of "Remembah the Dignity of the Depahtment" Stick In Pupils' Minds.

AFTER deliberating for a whole year and considering the qualifications of many university presidents and of several men in public life the regents of the University of Michigan have decided that the successor to Dr. James B. Angell as president of the university shall be Dean Harry Burns Hutchins, head of the law department.

No graduate of the University of Michigan ever can confuse Professor Hutchins with any one else, for it was Dean Hutchins who was responsible for that famous slogan which, as interpreted by the students, runs, "Remembah the dignity of the depahtment."

The slogan was a great joke for a time, for the students of Dean Hutchins' department of law were not noted formerly for having the character of doves. For a time indeed the dean had to be the dignity of the department all alone.

Dean Hutchins clung to that slogan. He was called to Michigan from Cornell in 1895. For five bitter years he labored under his program of teaching law students the principles of deportment.

That, however, was when the notorious class of Naughty Naught, the "century laws," were wasting Washtenaw county. They almost broke the dean's heart, that class. They went down in the annals of the campus as the most undignified class ever graduated. Tradition wasn't the only thing they broke.

Did Dean Hutchins give up? Well, hardly! About four or five years ago the student body realized that Dean Hutchins had at last won his point. The "engineers" and "lits" found themselves pushing and gasping in a strictly "law-less" rush. The shirt tail parade by "laws" became a memory. The capture of locks of hair during hazing became regarded as barbarous, and a gentlemanly though somewhat unexciting struggle around a huge pushball was approved as the best outlet for undergraduate animal spirits.

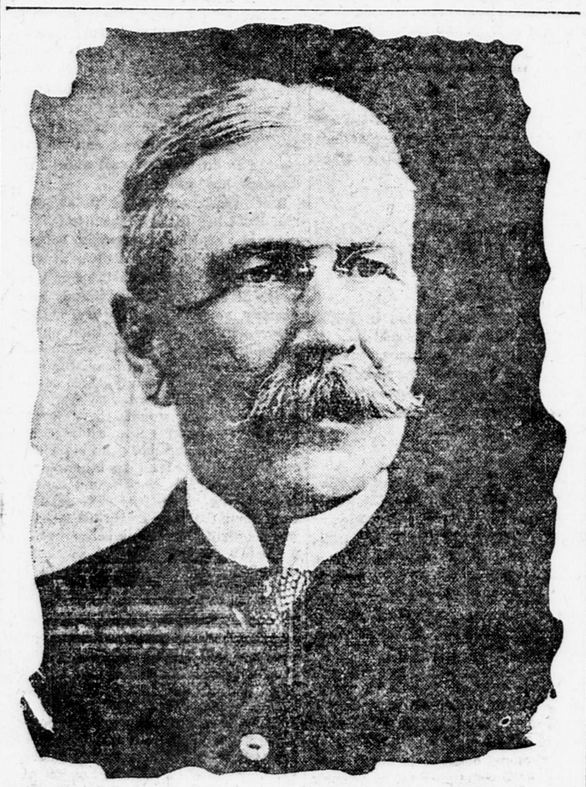

This year the graduates returning for commencement week imagined they saw more dignity than ever in Dean Hutchins; that his back, if possible, was straighter than ever in spite of white hair and sixty-two years of energetic living, and he had reason to be proud, they said. He had done the impossible. He had tamed the law students. He was a genius in administration, they declared.

Dr. Hutchins was born in Lisbon, N. H. He received his preparation for college at the New Hampshire Conference seminary, at Tilton, and at the Vermont Conference seminary, at Newbury. At nineteen he entered Wesleyan university, Middletown, but on account of bad health could not complete the year. A few months later he took up the study of anatomy, physiology and surgery at the University of Vermont, and then at Dartmouth. His family moved to Michigan, so in the fall of 1867 he entered the State university at Ann Arbor.

He was graduated in 1871 with a degree of bachelor of philosophy and was chosen as commencement speaker, which was the highest honor then conferred by the faculty. The following year he had charge of the public schools of Owosso, Mich. He was recalled to Ann Arbor in 1872 to become an instructor in rhetoric and history. In one year he was advanced to the rank of assistant professor.

He spent three years more in Ann Arbor before he went to Detroit to practice law for eight years in partnership with his father-in-law, Thomas M. Crocker.

In 1884 he was recalled to the university as Jay professor of law. Three years later he went to Cornell, returning to Michigan after eight years to become dean of the department of law. In the absence of President Angell as minister to Turkey in 1897-8 he was acting president of the university, and he again was made acting president last fall when President Angell resigned after a term of service of thirty-seven years.

MONTE CARLO FOR ITALY.

Located on Picturesque Island on Maggiore.

The two picturesque little islands of Brissago, situated in Lugo Maggiore, near the Swiss frontier, form the site chosen by an Anglo-Italian syndicate on which to create a modern resort on the lines of Monte Carlo. The islands are the property of an Irish nobleman who some twenty-five years ago planted fig trees, olives, pomegranates, oranges and myrtle, which flourished in the open air so well that it became a beauty spot of tropical plants on the Italian lake.

A large casino, with gambling rooms, theater, concert hall, gardens, etc., is to be constructed at a cost of over $750,000. A first class hotel and ports for motorboats and yachts are also to be built. The concessions have been obtained from the Italian government by a Rome lawyer, Signor Serao, who is one of the directors of the Anglo-Italian syndicate, and the capital required has been subscribed. Work is to begin on the new Monte Carlo at once.

ENGLAND WARS ON SMOKE.

Deputation From Nineteen Towns Urges Action on Parliament.

Representing nineteen of the foremost towns in Great Britain, a deputation has submitted a memorial to John Burns in which is set forth a series of facts showing up the evils of smoke. Among these are the indirect results of a smoky and foggy atmosphere, such as a temperamental depression finding relief in drinking, betting and other forms of vicious excitement, and windows permanently closed against permanent smuts.

Eighty per cent of the population live in this atmosphere of fog and soot. These indirect results are not imaginary scares. A week's fog during a cold spell in Glasgow sent up the death rate from 13.5 to 32.5 a thousand.

Only London and seven large towns have so far given the matter serious consideration. In the years 1903 and 1904 these seven provincial authorities instituted 2,181 prosecutions for causing a smoke nuisance, while the other 102 leading towns instituted 164 between them.

MOVEMENT IS BEGUN TO OUST BALLINGER

Taft's Private Secretary Is Reported to Be Behind It

Washington, Aug. 11.—That Postmaster General Hitchcock will be sought to do what he can toward getting Secretary Ballinger out of the cabinet is the information that is disclosed here on high authority. It is now well known in Washington that the man who is setting the forces in motion to have Ballinger get out of the cabinet is Private Secretary Norton.

Mr. Norton is impressed by the complaints of politicians which are reaching Beverly that Ballinger's presence in the cabinet is an obstacle to Republican success in the present campaign.

That the mission of Senator Crane in so far as it related to removing Ballinger from the cabinet was a failure and that the publicity given it prevented its success is the statement made here in well-informed quarters. Now it is said Norton takes the view that Hitchcock, having been chiefly instrumental in getting Ballinger into the cabinet, should be chiefly instrumental in getting him out.

FARMER SANDBAGGED

Robbed of His Clothing and Money by Men Who Escape

Plymouth, N. H., Aug. 11.—George H. Robinson, a prosperous farmer of this town, was eating his dinner in his barn when he was approached by two rough-looking strangers, who inquired the way to Plymouth village. While engaged in conversation he was hit on the head with a sandbag and rendered unconscious.

He was stripped of his trousers and frock, and his shoes and stockings were removed, as was his pocketbook containing about $7 in change and bills. The miscreants then ate Robinson's dinner from his dinner basket and made their escape.

HERE'S AN IDEAL TOWN

Not a Single Arrest Has Been Recorded In Three Years

Denver, Aug. 11.—According to Martha D. Coates, assistant secretary of the state board of charities and corrections, who has just returned from an inspection of the city jail at Eldora, Col., that town holds the record for law-abiding communities.

In three years not a single arrest has been made, and the doors of the jail have stood wide open. Eldora has a population of about 500 persons.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CITY OF QUINCY — POLICE DEPARTMENT

$500 REWARD

DEAD OR ALIVE

LOUIS G. RESTELLI

WANTED FOR MURDER

Charles H. Hardwick of Quincy, Mass., in behalf of the family of the late Henry E. Hardwick, authorizes the Chief of Police of the City of Quincy, Mass., to offer the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the capture of Louis G. Restelli, dead or alive, for the murder of Henry E. Hardwick and the attempt to murder C. Theodore Hardwick, on Friday, July 29, 1910, at Quincy, Mass. On the same day Restelli shot and killed his mother, Marianna Restelli, and shot his brother Gaspare Restelli, William Adrian and Benjamin Bishop, all of Quincy and connected with the granite industry of this city. The above reward to be paid unless Restelli has committed suicide when the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) will be paid for the recovery of his dead body. If he commits suicide in order to evade capture of direct pursuit the full sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) will be paid.

Full Description of Louis C. Restelli

Height 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches.
Weight 150 lbs.
Dark complexion, smooth face, but grows a small black mustache quickly.
Brown eyes, the right eye smaller than the left and showing a defect caused by a cataract and making the use of glasses practically compulsory.
He generally wears a pair of gold-bowed spectacles with a very heavy lense, though he will probably endeavor to get along without them.
He is a Lombardian and talks the English language so well that there is no Italian accent noticeable.
Has been in the granite business for years and is well known in the business, being a member of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association.
Was a member of K Co., of Fifth Massachusetts regiment, in the Spanish War.
Age 39 years.

SUSPECT AT BARRE

Dropped into a Lunch Room at Midnight

Barre, Vermont, thought they surely had Restelli Tuesday night. The Daily Times says:

That Luigi Restelli, the Quincy murderer, was in Jack's lunch room munching a lunch was in the minds of a dozen people who were in the lunch room and around Depot square about 11.30 o'clock last night, and for a few minutes excitement ran high. The man, a stranger in town walked into the lunch room, wearing a militiaman's hat and carrying a Winchester rifle.

He was unable to speak English very well, but could speak Italian and French. Jesse Cayhue, behind the counter, spoke French with the man and he said that he was an Italian. After ordering something to eat he turned around to set his rifle up in a corner, and it was noticed that he had a quart bottle in one hip pocket, and a large revolver in the other.

"Restelli" was instantly on the minds of all the then thoroughly excite dpeople who were in the lunch room, including the proprietor. One man in the room ran out to look for an officer, and meanwhile Mr. Cayhue took up conversation with the man with French.

Mr. Cayhue asked him what he was doing with all those guns, and he replied that he was looking for strikebreakers and wanted to know if there had been any trouble around the station here. He said he wanted to take the train for St. Albans, where he was going to shoot the strikebreakers employed there.

Chief of Police L. N. Gauthier of Hanover, N. H., who is visiting in the city, was met on the street by the man who went for an officer, and was told to go to the lunch room, as Restelli was in there. Chief Gauthier at once went into the lunch room and looked the man over. The stranger was then telling that he was a soldier from Fort Ethan Allen, and flourishing the rifle from one shoulder to the other marched up and down the room. Chief Gauthier said that the man answered a fairly good description of Restelli, but he was satisfied that he was not the Quincy man and did not molest him.

PAUL JONES MODEL FINISHED

Sculptor Begins Work on Heroic Statue For Capital.

Charles H. Niehaus, the New York sculptor, has finished his working model for his heroic bronze statue of John Paul Jones, for which congress appropriated $50,000, which will be unveiled next spring at the entrance to Potomac park in front of Seventeenth street, N. W., Washington.

Niehaus has been working on the statue for about two years. In depicting the features of the Revolutionary hero the sculptor has used the terra cotta bust by Houdon, now in the possession of the National Academy of Design, as a model. The commander of the Bonhomme Richard is represented as watching a naval engagement, his right hand clinched and his left hand holding his sword.

WAR IN COURT OVER FROGS.

Pond Owners Must Suppress Noise, German Tribunal Says.

An uncommon case was lately fought before the German tribunals right up to the supreme court in Leipzig.

Two neighbors lived for a long time in close friendship until one of them had an artificial pond constructed in his garden. After a time a number of frogs appeared in the pond, and their croakings were so loud and continuous as to deprive the neighboring family of its nightly rest. The disturbed family objected and, relying on a law which forbids any one from diminishing the value of another's property, requested the pond owner to make arrangements for keeping the frogs within bounds.

The pond owner replied that he was not to blame for the musical activity of the frogs, which he had not placed in the pond. The first tribunal upheld the pond owner on the ground that the frogs were a dispensation of nature which must be put up with, like the sun and rain. The judgment was upset by the next higher tribunal, and the decision of the latter was affirmed by the supreme court.

The supreme court reasoned that whoever made a pond had to reckon with the subsequent appearance of frogs and that the noise emitted by them constituted injury to neighboring property.

SPORTING NOTES.

Soccer football is growing popular, each year noting an increase in interest as indicated by the growth of the Boston and District association football league. In its first year it was hard to get four teams; the next year six, but this season ten teams were admitted to membership and an equal number turned down. Each team will play 18 games. Two Quincy teams, the Fore Rivers and Clan McGregors were reinstated in the league and will provide some fine games this fall. The teams in the league are from Boston, Beverly, Lynn, Charlestown, Brockton Brighton and Quincy. The referee question is difficult to cope with as is the case with any organization of the sort, but the officers will do their part. The Quincy teams are long established and well known, the Fore Rivers having beaten the champion team from England two years ago, and may bring the league cup to Quincy, though the McGregors will push them to the very utmost in their effort to gain local approbation as well as the league prize.

STORIES OF THE DIAMOND.

Jacklitsch Says Catcher Is Hardest Worker on Team.

GOOD ONES ARE VERY SCARCE

Owing to Dangers Attached to Position, Many Pass it Up—Headwork Behind the Bat Essential—Some Backstops Are Superstitious.

No. XIX.
By FRED JACKLITSCH.
[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Do I consider the catcher the hardest worker on a baseball team? My answer is yes. A major league backstop, particularly under the present system, which in most cases requires the first string catcher to work in five out of seven games, has the hardest job in baseball aside from the manager. Furthermore, it is safe to say most of the present day catchers are assistant managers and do more thinking than perhaps the men who are earning their managerial salaries. There are times when the real manager is idle on the field. He may be working with his brains, but not with his hands, or vice versa.

There is no time when a good catcher is not employed busily, mentally or physically. The ball is in his hands oftener than any one else's save the pitchers, and he is forced to keep his mind working all the time, whatever the status of the game. In these days of spitball pitching a catcher has enough to do with his mitt and hand, let alone his brains.

Crack twirlers are all right. A baseball team has to have them to win a pennant. So also are strong batters handy to have around. A pennant winner needs them in its business as well as the players who think. Speedy base runners, clever team play and skilled fielders—all of these go to make championship combinations on the diamond. Nevertheless teams that have won pennants and have not had capable catchers, brainy catchers, are very few.

The backstop stands there inning after inning and game after game, taking a pounding and a filling, a less spectacular figure than any other player on the team. His work is not showy. Superficially viewed, he is more of a dray horse than any one of his fellows, but in reality he is a great power in a team's success, though often he doesn't come in for as much credit as the players who work more in the open, so to speak.

Catchers of the first class are scarcer than occupants of any other position, and the records show that the teams that have had heady backstops to coach and steady the pitchers, to study the weakness of batters, to stop plays on the bases and to keep a supervising eye on the adjustment of the infield and outfield as the batting peculiarities of the different opponents require are the teams that have won championships.

Of the long list of pennant winning teams dating back into the seventies hardly one has not had a first class catcher who backs up mechanically, with an alert mind that takes in all that is going on, and in a measure oversees and maneuvers the plan of battle.

Although there are many catchers in the big leagues today, no two work alike. That's undoubtedly the reason catchers who go through game after game without hurting their hands usually suffer the most punishment around their legs or shoulders.

There are a number of catchers who are superstitious. Some won't permit the others to touch his glove lest some hoodoo might follow. Nearly every catcher has his own model, the same as batters have their favorite stick. The gloves are made to order, and I'll bet there are more than a hundred different designs, which proves that backstops have their little eccentricities.

The Bulldog.

The bulldog, unlike the majority of dogs, very seldom barks. In fact, owing to the construction of his throat his attempts at barking are more like a burlesque of the real thing. He wades into a fight without any vocal warning, and the only sound he emits is his heavy breathing. His courage is astonishing, and the largeness of his opponent never acts as a deterrent when hostilities are imminent. Still, as he is not a quarrelsome dog, he very rarely indulges in street brawls, and, as he is exceedingly good natured, it takes a lot to rouse him.

The modern bulldog is undoubtedly a different looking animal from his bullfighting ancestors. The most conspicuous "improvements" introduced by the present day "fancy" are largeness of head, width of chest, heaviness of bone and more typical tail.

The Triangle Spider.

An interesting find is that of the triangle spider, which "spins one of the most remarkable types of spider's snares as yet known." The web is triangular, and the spider holds it tightly stretched by means of a thread. When a fly gets entangled this thread is loosed and the victim is enclosed more securely.

BALLOON WILL BE PROMINENT

Expected to Go from Quincy to Minnesota During The Big Aviation Meet

No Limit to Number of Trials for Globe Aviation Prize

In ten days' aviators will be at the Harvard Aviation field in Quincy for experiments previous to the September meet.

It is expected that Grahame-White, who is now in England will be one of the contestants, and that he will bring a Bleriot monoplane and a 100-horsepower motor, which means that anybody who contests with him will have to go some, for with the 100-horsepower motors this latest Bleriot monoplane will go 70 miles an hour or better. That means he could enter the Globe $10,000 cash prize contest for a flight from Atlantic to Soldiers field, to Boston light and return to the Harvard aviation field, a distance of about 28 miles in less than a half hour.

But Glenn H. Curtiss with his new biplane and his latest motor also expects to break some records at the Boston meet and he will give Grahame-White a battle for the Globe prize. The Wrights will be in that contest also, so there will be a fine chance to determine something of the relative merits of the latest biplanes and the latest monoplane, and it will also be a test of the nerve and skill of the best American and English aviators. As the aviators can try for the Globe prize as many times as they like during the meet, no one man will be apt to carry it off without a struggle. But then, the distance contests and the altitude contests will also enter into any final determination as to the relative merits of these two classes of areoplanes.

The contest committee o fthe Harvard-Boston meet was announced Thursday. It consists of Charles J. Glidden chairman, T. E. Byrnes, Hugh Bancroft, Cortlandt F. Bishop of New York, president of the Aero club of America; A. B. Lambert, president of the Aero club of St. Louis; Prof. R. W. Willson of Harvard university, and A. A. Merrill. It is a strong committee and will undoubtedly give general satisfaction. Several of the members have never been much in the air, but they have gone some on land.

Mr. Glidden, who has charge of the balloon division of the meet, says that Leo Stevens of New York has consented to come over and take charge of the gas arrangements for the balloons. He is ready to manufacture 100,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas each day for the balloons.

Both Jay B. Benton and J. Walter Flagg have already entered their balloons for the contests. In addition, Mr. Glidden expects six ballons, each of a capacity of 80,000 cublic feet and several of less capacity, including his own balloon, the Boston. He believes that the world's distance record will be broken at this meet for balloons. The distance record is held by Count de La Vaulx, who flew from Paris to Russia a few years ago, a distanct of 1204 miles. He was in the air three days and three nights.

In flights o fthree days and three nights at the Boston meet, Mr. Glidden believes that a longer distance can be covered, owing to the use of hydrogen gas, which is much lighter than the illuminating gas generally used and which Count de La Vaulx used in his record flight. The American record flight is held by Clifford B. Harmon of New York, who also holds the American altitude record for balloons—4 1-2 miles high.

In the distance flights from Harvard aviation field, Mr. Glidden believes the balloons should go as far as Minnesota in three days and three nights. There never has been a balloon contest before in which hydrogen gas was used. This Quincy meet for balloons alone will be the largest ever held in this country east of St. Louis.

CALLED TO WORECSTER

Prominent Braintree Pastor Will Be Missed

Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern, pastor of the South Congregational church, received a unanimous call from the Park church, Worcester, Wednesday. It is reported that he will accept. His decision will be sincerely regretted by many of his friends and parishoners.

For 15 years or more Mr. Crathern has been a pastor at Braintree, and has been active in all town affairs. He is secretary of the School Committee and was for several years the chairman of the board until he suggested a change. His activity has resulted in many improvements to the edifice of the South church, and he has organized a men's club and other organizations in connection therewith. He has been prominent in the fight against the sale of intoxicating liquor, took an active part in town meetings, the Improvement Association, the annual reunion of the old people, and was a well known Mason. He resides on Washington street, and his children have been educated in the public schools.

OUTING AT HOUGHS NECK.

The Browning Circle of South Easton enjoyed a picnic to Great Hill at Houghs Neck, Tuesday. They were entertained by Mrs. Arthur Evans at her new cottage. Clam chowder, steamed clams and all fixings was served by the hostess. Among those who attended were: Mrs. Ervin Lothrop, Mrs. George Andrews, Mrs. Alice Crockett, Mrs. Charles Simpson, Mrs. Albert Eastman, Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Charles Hill, Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. James Driscoll, Mrs. Hartwell, Mrs. Edward White, Mrs. Lyman Heath and sister.

WHO IS STRANGE MAN?

There seems to be no doubt that there is some strange man living in the woods in the vicinity of the Accord pond neighborhood at Rockland, says the Brockton Enterprise. It is believed that it is the same man who was seen at Ridge Hill last Saturday and whom the residents of the neighborhood believed to be Restelli, the escaped Quincy murderer. The man was seen Saturday afternoon and early in the evening and yesterday morning a strange man answering the same description was seen by a number of the residents of Pond street.

An attractive residence, practically new, near Merry Mount Park, can be bought for a reasonable price and is offered for sale in this paper.

"QUINCY DAY" AT PROVIDENCE

Our City Honored by Waterways Association

A Providence dispatch says: William A. Teasdale of the Quincy, Mass., board of trade visited the headquarters of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association in this city yesterday and made arrangements for the accommodation of 100 members of the Board of Trade o f that city for oe day during the coming convention. Friday, Sept. 2, has been designated, in part as "Quincy day."

A Washington dispatch says arrangements were completed Thursday with Admiral Mason, acting secretary of the navy, for the presence at Narragansett bay from Aug. 31 to Sept. 3 of the fifth division of the Atlantic fleet under the command of Rear Admiral S. A. Staunton, during the convention of the Atlantic deeper waterways association in Providence.

ARAM J. POTHIER

There will be water carnivals, regattas, clambakes and other entertainments and addresses will be delivered by Govs. Fort of New Jersey, Ansel of South Carolina, Weeks of Connecticut and Pothier of Rhode Island, Commander Robert E. Peary, Sec. Knox, Representative Richmond P. Hobson, Senators Aldrich and Wetmore of Rhode Island and others.

"Don't bother, Henry, because I won't marry you," said she. "There are just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught."

"Better," said he, shortly, as he rose to depart, and for once she wished she had consented to marry him so that she might make him suffer for his horrid remark.

RESTELLI PREDICTION.

The Looker-On of the Record comments as follows:

A man indirectly connected with the department of justice in Boston, and who is possessed of a Sherlock Holmes turn of mind, said in my hearing recently, that when Restelli, the Quincy murderer, was caught, it would be in close proximity to his mother's home. Being asked how he figured out that the culprit would return to the scene of his crime, he said it was a fact noted in criminal history, a thing inconceivable as it may appear, yet a thing which criminals do sooner or later, to make their appearance at the very spot where their crime was committed. In the case where the perpetrator of a crime is of unsound mind, the appearance at the scene of the crime is made sooner than one who is of sound and disposing mind.

UNSANITARY AT CAMP.

Major Fred E. Jones, surgeon of the Fifth regiment with Major Thomas L. Jenkins, acting surgeon-general of the Second brigade, after an inspection of the cook shacks at the camp at Framingham, on Thursday, ordered them closed, as the danger of contagious diseases attacking the men was too great to chance. Surface water that collected in the rear of the mess houses was found to be covered with scum.

Every regimental surgeon in camp this year has reported the conditions of the sanitary system, but nothing was done until Surgeons Jones and Jenkins took matters into their own hands, and cutting red tape, closed the places.

TODAY'S COURT.

Daniel McFadden and George McLaughlin were fined $10 each for drunkenness on the park system at Quincy.

Matthew P. Sheahan was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The case of Benedatto Monti, for violation of the liquor law at Quincy, was called and again continued until Sept. 3, at which time he will be fined $50.

Norman Campbell was arraigned for breaking and entering at Randolph. Case continued until Aug. 20.

INSANE ITALIAN IN THE QUARRIES

Assaulted His Boarding Mistress and Then Run Out into the Street

Captured by Police Officers Without Resistance

There was quite a little excitement in the vicinity of Old Coach road and Carroll's lane this morning, when it was reported that an insane Italian had run amuck on the street with a loaded revolver.

The Italian in question turned out to be Luigi Bombari, a paving cutter employed by Mayor Shea. Bombari boarded with Mrs. Loius Concheir and went suddenly insane this morning. He not only choked his boarding mistress, but is said to have bit her and then thrown her down stairs, after which he ran out of the house toward Carroll's lane. He is said to have had a loaded revolver with him.

Word was telephoned to City Hall, from the Mayor's house, and his Honor immediately got in touch with Chief Burrell, who was in attendance at court. The Chief with Officer Goodhue immediately started for the scene in an automobile of the Metropolitan Park police, which happened to be standing in front of the court room. Officers Dineen and Whalan also hastened to the scene.

Bombari was found seated on a door step on Filbert street. He was placed under arrest without resistance by Officer Dinneen. He had no revolver with him when arrested. He will be examined as to his sanity.

EXHIBIT

Vegetables and Flowers

The Education Committee of Quincy Women's Club is to hold an Exhibit of Vegetables and Flowers from the Children's Gardens in

City Council Chamber, Wednesday, August 17

Afternoon and Evening

The exhibit will be the best of the products from the thousand children's gardens which have been under the supervision of the Women's Club. It is earnestly hoped the citizens of Quincy will take enough interest in the display to run into City Hall for a few moments and see the things which the children have raised in their gardens.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Difference of disposition in different people shows itself as much in connection with automobiles one way or another, as perhaps no other way.

Discarding for a mement the scorcher who brags of the number of times he has been fined for violating speed regulations, or the way he has annihilated distance, or the wantonly careless one who deviates from his path only to avoid danger or injury to himself or his machine, there is the owner who does or does not give a thought to persons less fortunate than himself.

Right here in Quincy where there are many machines owned and operated, there are people who never let a week go by during the pleasant season without taking for a ride someone to whom such an attention means a great deal and is a source of real pleasure. Often times these people are recovering from illness or are, because of physical reasons, unable to get outdoors much themselves. The auto makes possible visits to parts of the country otherwise inaccessible to people who do not own a machine.

MILTON

J. A. Turner of Central avenue was the only member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company to accompany the "Ten-of-Us" club to Fort Warren and other points of interest in Boston harbor on a recent excursion.

H. C. Gallagher of Russell street has gone to North Belgrade, Me., where he will spend the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Geddes of West Quincy are occuping the Randlett house opposite the East Milton fire station.

H. C. Lamb has taken a cottage at Sea Harbor, Mt. Desert, Me.,

Chief of Police Maurice Pierce and his wife are at Brant Rock. During the chief's absence Deputy Chief McDermott is in charge of affairs.

Miss Annette Flynn of Church streef is at Freeport, Me., enjoying a two weeks vacation.

Mrs. C. B. Webster and daughter Alice are at Deerfield Centre, N. H.

Frank M. Richardson and wife are spending two weeks in Portland, Me, Mr. Richardson is carrier at the East Milton post office.

Dr. Rowe is spending the month of Avgust at Oxford, Maine.

The population of Milton is but 97 greater than last year. It is 7877. The eastern section is growing rapidly and contributes the largest gain while the center records a loss. No doubt East Milton will some day be the recognized centre of the town.

The fire at the barn of E. G. Hook caused a loss of about $300.

SHIPYARD STRIKE.

A cable from Breman to the Globe says: The strike and counter lockout in the shipbuilding industry are spreading. The Vulkan and other yards locked out 5500 men Thursday. Weher shipbuilding works have dismissed 60 per cent. of the employes and 1000 others have given legal notice of their intention to quit work.

—Whitman clubwomen are to petition the selectmen to have the streets cleaned on Sunday as well as other mornings. Saturday evenings the crowd litters the streets with paper bags, peanut shells and other refuse, which remains there until Monday. The women consider this presents an unsightly appearance to the many strangers who motor through the town on Sunday.

DOCTORS SAY HE IS BETTER

Issue Optimistic Bulletins on Condition of Gaynor

SILENT ABOUT SPLIT BULLET

Lead Found to Be Lodged In Roof of Mouth After "Complete Radiograph" Examination—An Undercurrent of Doubtful Anxiety Despite Cheering Reports—Hints of Friction Among Doctors—Gallagher Plans Defense

New York, Aug. 12.—Mayor William J. Gaynor may be making satisfactory progress, as his attending physicians persistently maintain, but there is an undercurrent of doubtful anxiety that runs contrary to the official bulletin.

His surgeons say that he had a satisfactory day, that he is cheerful and stronger, and was resting quietly, more than holding his own against the pistol shot wound inflicted by James J. Gallagher.

As opposed to this attitude of optimism, those who read last night's bulletin thoughtfully noted reference to "complete radiographic" examination, indicating that it was necessary to take a second set of negatives in order accurately to find the position of the bullet. That an additional set of negatives was taken has been reported heretofore, but the rumor lacked confirmation.

Nothing is said in the bulletin of the "split bullet" mentioned as indicated in the first pictures; instead, the lead is now said to be lodged in the roof of the mouth. Whether the other shadow as indicated in the first picture is a splinter of bone, none of the physicians would say.

A sample of the patient's blood was examined carefully and pronounced satisfactory, the relation of the white and red blood corpuscles having been found so near normal as to cause no alarm.

Although rumors are afloat that his physicians are in disagreement, Robert Adamson, his secretary, and E. J. Lederle, health commissioner of New York, gave out a statement discrediting the reports of friction among the medical advisers. The statement does not deny the report specifically, but by implication.

The patient's irritability yesterday afternoon and the barring from the sick room of all save Mrs. Gaynor and the attending physicians first gave rise to these disquieting rumors. It was admitted that the mayor had lost, temporarily, at least, his cheerful frame of mind, and had requested that his wife remain near his bedside almost constantly. Because of soreness of the wounded throat an antiseptic spray was used frequently, and it was during this process that the mayor showed signs of fretting.

John P. Mitchel, the acting mayor, visited the hospital, but was not allowed to go to the sick room. Departing, he said he knew nothing of the reported friction among physicians. "I can see nothing to change the good progress," said Mitchel, "unless it be that another day has elapsed. The physicians have simply done what I think should be done, decided not to let the patient get worked up by having too many visitors."

Gallagher, the would-be assassin, in prison in Jersey City, is beginning to lay the groundwork of his defense. It will be insanity.

FENCE AS THIEF CATCHER

Culprit Hangs by His Wrists Until Police Officer Shows Up

Boston, Aug. 12.—After hanging by his wrists, which had been caught in a ten-foot picket fence, Louis McDonald was placed under arrest and arraigned in court to answer a charge of larceny of a dress suit case containing a fur coat.

McDonald went to the wharf where the boats for Portland leave and saw a dress suit case. He threw it over the high fence and then tried to jump over himself. As he did so, his foot slipped and his wrists were caught between the pickets, and he was suspended there until someone called the police.

When the officer finally arrived McDonald was nearly exhausted. He was sentenced to a term of two months in the house of correction.

POET RILEY STRICKEN

His Recovery From Stroke of Paralysis Is Said to Be Doubtful

Indianapolis, Aug. 12.—James Whitcomb Riley, Indiana's famous poet, is seriously ill at his home in this city as the result of a stroke of paralysis. His recovery is doubtful.

James Whitcomb Riley, who is 57 years old, began contributing poems to Indiana newspapers in 1873. So much of his verse was in the Hoosier dialect that he rapidly became known as "the Hoosier poet." This name stuck to him.

DEATH OF MRS. FOSTER

Noted as Lawyer, Lecturer and Advocate of Philanthropic Work

Washington, Aug. 12.—Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, one of the most famous women lawyers in the country, died here following an operation. She was born in Lowell, Mass., seventy years ago, and was the widow of E. J. Foster.

Mrs. Foster has been a resident of Washington for many years. She was prominent in prison work and especially seeking the amelioration of condition of female prisoners. She was prominent in other movements for the uplift of women.

In October of 1906 Mrs. Foster was detailed by President Roosevelt from the department of justice, where, on account of of her legal ability she had long been employed, to investigate the conditions of women and child workers throughout the country.

PARTIAL REIMBURSMENT

Repair Companies Tender Settlements to the Illinois Central

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The Record-Herald says: A settlement has been arranged between the Illinois Central road and the Memphis Car company whereby the latter is to pay back $200,000 of the $300,000 out of which it is alleged to have defrauded the railroad in repairing freight cars.

This will be the second settlement effected since the Illinois Central began its investigation into the frauds whereby it is said to have lost more than $1,500,000.

The other settlement obtained by the railroad company was with the Blue Island Rolling Mills and Car company, formerly the Blue Island Car and Foundry company. The claim against the company was for $600,000 and the settlement is said to have been made for $85,000 cash.

SCOTT'S SHIP OVERDUE

Fear That British Antarctic Expedition Has Met With Disaster

London, Aug. 12.—Considerable anxiety is felt for Captain Scott's Antarctic expedition ship, the Terra Nova, now twelve days overdue at Cape Town. The vessel has not been spoken since she left Maderia on June 27.

Captain Robert F. Scott, commander of the British expedition which set out on June 1 from London for the South Pole, is not yet aboard the Terra Nova, but left July 15 to join the vessel in New Zealand. The Terra Nova should have reached Cape Town not later than Aug. 1.

Lieutenant E. R. Evans is second in command. The other officers and scientists number twenty-eight. The crew of the steamer consists of twenty-seven picked men.

TUNNEL PLANNED ON CHANNEL BED

Novel Engineering Feat Announced In New York.

CONNECTS TWO ISLANDS.

Staten Island and Brooklyn Residents Will Have Not Only Tubes For Cars, but Carriage Road as Well—Year Required to Construct Novel and Pretentious Marine Driveway.

New York's latest plan to tunnel under the Narrows by laying a tube on instead of under its bed and so connect Staten Island and Brooklyn has surprised and interested tunnel experts. It was a new way of tunnel building, but they admitted that it was feasible, provided a sufficient depth of water for navigation was left over the tunnel.

At the point where the New Jersey and Staten Island Junction Railway company proposes to build the tunnel in the Narrows the depth at mean low tide is declared to be fifty-six feet. As the tunnel is not expected to rise above the bed of the Narrows more than eleven feet at any point, this would leave a depth of at least forty-five feet.

"There can be no possible interference with navigation," said Stephen M. Hoye, president of the company. "Even if the depth over the tunnel at mean low water was only forty feet it would still be deep enough to allow the very largest ships that will be built to pass over it in perfect safety. There are to be larger ships floated than are now being navigated, it is true, but they will not be built deeper than they are, but longer and with a greater beam.

Grade Too Much.

"The franchise permits us to build a tunnel under the Narrows from Stapleton, in Richmond county, to Eighty-sixth street, Brooklyn. On the Brooklyn side the bluffs rise some fifty feet above the water. Now, the depth of water at low tide off Eighty-sixth street is fifty-six feet. It can be seen at what a depth we would have to lay the tunnel to place it under the bed of the Narrows. It would mean a grade at the shore ends of at least four degrees, which would make the undertaking impracticable.

"Our franchise permits the building not only of a railroad but a post road under the Narrows. The value of a post road in a tunnel would at first glance appear absurd, but the man who drew up the application for a franchise was farseeing. It needs little thought now to see the value of such a road in view of the vast number of autos in operation in New York.

"Our tunnel will not be entirely upon the bed of the Narrows. In places the level of the tunnel will sink below that of the bed of the strait.

"It is a well known fact that spiles under water do not decay. It is where they are exposed part of the time to the air that they disintegrate. Now, we propose to build this tunnel by first sinking double rows of spiles for the side foundation walls of our tunnel. The tops of these are then sawed off under water and the spaces between filled with concrete.

Building Tedious Work.

"Next we build the upper halves of the tunnel in sections. These upper halves will consist of inner and outer frames of steel filled in between with concrete, and each section when completed will be floated and with the water end closed will be sunk to its position, the sides of the upper sections resting on the spiles and concrete foundations.

"Probably the shore ends of the upper sections will be placed first. The water end of these upper sections will be closed, and there will be a temporary floor in each, so that the water can be pumped out and allow workmen to enter.

"Then the water end of the lower part of the tunnel under the upper section will be closed and the water pumped out. This will allow the workmen to cut through the temporary floor of the upper section and cut down the floor foundation spiles to the depth they wish.

"When the under water part of the tunnel is done, which it will be in about a year from the time work is started, we will have a tunnel with approaches of less than one per cent grade. In Brooklyn the tunnel will connect with the Fourth avenue subway now being built."

WARSHIPS SELL FOR JUNK.

Britain Knocks Down Job Lot For $400,000.

England's navy is so big and improvements in warships are so rapid that periodically the navy department sells its obsolete fighting ships by auction. For a month the billboards of London have contained posters advertising a sale by auction of a job lot of warships. They cost millions to construct, but the auction at the Portsmouth navy yard realized only $400,000.

The most interesting vessel sold was the second class cruiser Melampus. It was on this cruiser that King George flew his first commander's flag. The Melampus realized $45,000.

THIRTEEN YEARS IN BED

Malden's Ossified Girl Relieved of Long Suffering by Death

Malden, Mass., Aug. 12.—Margaret Murray, 25, died yesterday afternoon of ossification at the home of her parents at 5 Taylor street. For the last few days the girl's entire body has been rigid, and the only sign of life manifested in it was faint palpitation of the heart.

Specialists were called to the Murray home to treat her, but all were baffled. For thirteen years the girl has been lying in bed, unable to leave it. For the greater part of that time she has been able to take nourishment in liquid form only when her parents or sisters administered it to her.

During the thirteen years that she has lain helpless the girl has been conscious of all that went on about her. Her eyesight was excellent and her mind was not affected. In her school days she had been unusually brilliant.

WITH JUST FOUR SHOTS

Chicago Man Murders Three of His Family and Kills Self

Chicago, Aug. 12.—W. J. Meyers, keeper of a shooting gallery, used his skill with a revolver with tragic purpose, shooting three members of his household through the head and then taking his own life.

Just four shots were fired and four lives were snuffed out by Meyers' unerring aim. The dead are W. J. Meyers, aged 40; Mrs. Grace Meyers, aged 25, his wife; Ralph Meyers, aged 7, their son; F. S. Bouton, aged 55, father of Mrs. Meyers.

A revolver with four chambers empty lay beside the body of Meyers. Death in each case apparently had been instantaneous.

Meyers and his wife separated recently after she had him placed under bonds to keep the peace. There are no living eye witnesses to the tragdy.

GET THE HELP QUINCY GROW HABIT

WELL WORTH THE PRICE

If $10,000 Is Required to Capture Restelli

The Boston Trnscript says editorially:

"Any person who apprehends and secures Louis Restelli, the Quincy murdered, will profit thereby to the extent of $1000, the Commonwealth having now duplicated the reward so promptly offered by the family of Henry E. Hardwick. Such an inducement will spur police departments and private detectives to increased activity, and yet it must be said—this to the credit of human nature—that, even before any reward was in prospect, there was no lack of effort to seize the dangerous man who seemed liable to add to the number of his crimes.

"As usual, the authorities have erred o nthe safe side of excess of caution. As far away as Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a "suspect" was arrested and held until his innocence was definitely determined, and within twenty-four hours another doubtful character, taken at North Sydney, Cape Breton, has been climinated from the case. Arrest of persons thought to be Restelli have been made in the interim at Fitchburg, New York, Bayonne, N. J., and other places, and probably a score who were not arrested have been watched and followed until their identity was established.

There is some reason to think that the wretched object of this persistent pursuit has taken his own life. It seems unlikely that, if the hunted man survives, he should be able to evade the thousands who are seeking him.

"Probably the average citizen fails to realize at ordinary times how steadfastly the forces of organized society labor to safeguard him; but the case of Restelli, and in a greater degree the case of Crippen, should suffice to convince him that transgressors move in an area which is daily becoming more limited. In earlier times a criminal might have found safety by merely removing to another State. Within the memories of living men, he could have fled to any one of a number of countries with which we had no extradition treaties.

"Now detection continually confronts him, and at the moment when he feels safest the wireless telegraph may be pointing him out and guiding the hand of the law. There is no doubt that these considerations restrain a great many persons of vicious instincts, who would be criminals if they durst. Such persons are kept within bounds by the knowledge that the forces of law and order, the world over, are allied against him.

"If the capture of Crippen and the pursuit of Restelli cost ten times as much money as is likely to be employed, society could well afford to pay the price to heighten the security of well-disposed people and serve as warnings to the disorderly."

AN AUGUST GARDEN.

Clinton Scollard.

Beside the crimson fires of phlox,
Dahlias their orient finery show:
And o'er the drowsing four-o'-clocks
Beacons the golden glow

Petunias lift their fragile urns,
And the tall sunflower seeks the sun;
The poppy censer bends and burns,
Bloom of oblivion.

Hear sleek nasturtiums climb and coil
'Round honeysuckled trellises;
Velvet verbenas form a foil
For rows of pink sweet peas.

Here the smooth cheeks of pear and plum
Beguile with no deceptive gleam;
Here breezes from elysium
Murmur as in a dream.

And here, as in a wizard's glass,
Perchance at dewfall one may see
The spirit of August pause and pass
Like a rapt harmony—

Intangible, elusive, frail,
Wrapt fold upon ethereal fold
In some diaphanous web as pale
As primrose lemon-gold.

Here is this garden, dedicate
To surcease from all storm and stress—
The end of striving, and the gate
To sweet forgetfulness!

The Man With the Iron Mask.

The Man With the Iron Mask was a mysterious French prisoner of state, whose identity has never been satisfactorily established. He was closely confined under the charge of M. de St. Mars at Pignerol in 1679, at Exiles in 1681, at Sainte-Marguerite in 1687 and finally was transferred to the Bastile in 1698, where he died on Nov. 19, 1703, and was buried the following day in the cemetery of St. Paul under the name of Marchiali. Dumas made him a twin brother of Louis XIV.

HARPOON SELECTED

As One of Seven Yachts for Semi-Finals

The Harpoon, Lady and Beaver did not enter the elimination contests of the sonder boats on Thursday, and victories were scored by the Sally XI and the Joyette in the first race, and the Bonivee and Cima in the second race. The Ellen would have won the morning race but for a foul, which Mr. Curtis was first to acknowledge.

The committee has selected these seven yachts for the semi final races today:

Harpoon, C. F. Adams, 2d,
Lady, R. de B. Boardman.
Sally XI., L. F. Percival.
Bonivee, G. H. Wightman.
Cima, Guy Lowell.
Beaver, C. H. W. Foster.

BUSY BEE ON ALLOWANCE

In First of Boston Yacht Club Series

The midsummer series of yacht races under the auspices of the Boston Yacht club opened off the Hull station on Thursday, and brought out a large fleet of boats. A triangular course was sailed affording a view of the whole race from the club piazzas. The race, however, was rather tame. None of the sonder class were on hand and the two star performers in the Cape cat class were absent. In this class the Busy Bee, although finishing nearly four minutes behind the Dartwell was given first place on time allowance. The Busy Bee is much shorter than the other boats in the Cape cat class, and rightfully should be assigned to another class, as the handicap is too large. The Busy Bee is 25 foot over all and 21 feet 1 inch water line, while the Dartwell is 26 feet 11 inches over all, and 24 feet 6 inches on the water line.

The boats in this class got away well bunched, with the Busy Bee in the lead, but at the first turn the Dartwell had taken first position. She was pressed hard but managed to retain her position and on the long beat she was well in the lead. In short tacks the boats worked up to the weather, and at the turn the Mudjekeewis was but 45 seconds astern of the Dartwell. At the end of the first round the Dartwell had gained ten seconds which made her 45 seconds to the good. At the weather turn of the second round she had added another minutes, and at the finish she had a lead of 3 minutes 45 seconds over the Busy Bee. On corrected time the Busy Bee won the race by five seconds.

	El.	Cor.
Busy Bee, W. J. Coombs	2 15 50	2 11 11
Dartwell, J. M. Whittemore	2 11 37	2 11 16
Hustler, R. J. Carpenter	2 15 20	2 11 59
Mudjekeewis, E. W. Emery	2 13 53	2 13 24
Josephine, Tupper & Hardwick	2 19 44	2 17 39
Emeline, H. W. Robbins	2 18 36	2 18 12

The Mavoureen outsailed the Wianno in the class for 31 raters, and the order in the special class was Virginia, Marie and Novice.

The 18-footers had an interesting contest but it was not very close. They finished as follows: Mouse, Kittiwake, Mirage II, Dorchen II, Answer, Bonitwo, Aspinquid and Aurora.

The Meave led the class for Hull 15-footers.

ANSWER COMES FROM ALDRICH

Persistent Attacks Lead Him to Break Life-Long Precedent

DENIAL OF RUBBER CHARGES

Not Interested In Manufactured Article or Its Products, Being Connected Only With the Crude Product—Will Quit Senate For Good Next March, but Will Go Out Fighting and Intends to Begin Battle at Once

Washington, Aug. 12.—Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, enumerating the counts under which he was indicted by Senator Bristow of Kansas, in recent campaign speeches, dealing with the tariff on rubber, in a letter made public last night, denies the charges in their entirety. Incidentally he pays his respects in caustic language to Bristow and what he terms a "little group of men," which entertain opinions similar to the Kansan.

The letter is addressed to William B. McKinley of Illinois, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, and was sent to the headquarters of the commttee in this city. The explanation of the rubber duties and the denial of the charges made against him by Bristow are based upon the fact that Aldrich was called upon by a Republican candidate for congress to furnish the facts connected with the changes made in the recent tariff act.

In his reply the senator denies emphatically that he is interested in the rubber industry in the United States. He declares that he is interested in crude rubber, on which there is no tariff. But he is not interested in manufactured rubber or its products. He shows that the increase on manufactured rubber and its products was from 30 to 35 percent. His crude rubber interests are mostly in Mexico.

Not content with the reply which the Rhode Island senator made touching the rubber schedule, Aldrich is preparing to make at least one speech in the fall campaign in which he will defend the cotton schedule, so severely attacked by Senator Dolliver of Iowa and other "progressive" senators. This may lead to further participation in the campaign. Whether Aldrich will make more than one speech is not decided, but he is going out of the senate on March 4, 1911, fighting, and the fight is going to begin now.

In making a public reply Aldrich has broken a life-long precedent of never issuing a statement "under fire." The senator has told his friends, who urged him to reply to the charges, that in his political life he has never felt called upon to make statements in response to "malicious or unjust attacks." In this instance, coming on the eve of an important congressional campaign, however, Aldrich, after deliberating for several weeks and talking the matter over very thoroughly with his friends and political leaders, decided that it is due the Republican party that a reply should be made to the Bristow charges.

The senator is unshaken in his determination not to be a senate candidate again. With regard to this he tells his friends that he has grown tired of being the target of country-wide criticism, nor does he care to lag superfluous on the stage, preferring to retire in the fulness of his power, before old age overtakes him, or his leadership is wrested away by the progressive movement.

Senator Aldrich's determination to reply to the Bristow charges resulted, it is said, from an all-day conference at Warwick, his country home, at which Senator Crane and President Taft's secretary, Charles D. Norton, among others, were present.

FIGHT OVER TWENTY CENTS

One Italian Killed and Two Badly Shot Up as a Result

Hartford, Aug. 12.—One man dead and two injured, one fatally, is the result of a gun fight among Italians here. They were part of a gang engaged in sewer construction.

The dead man is only known to the police as Pedro. He was 32 years old and was instantly killed by John Baptisto, a second after he had sent a bullet into the latter's jaw.

While Pedro and Baptisto were exchanging shots, John Panello tried to stop them, and for his trouble he got three bullets in his body. He is in a precarious condition.

Baptisto will recover. Witnesses say the quarrel was due to a dispute over 20 cents and that knives as well as pistols were brought into play.

Engineer Killed In Wreck

Middletown, Conn., Aug. 12.—In a collision between a passenger train and three freight cars loaded with ties, at Maromos, last night, Frederick Bosworth, the engineer, was killed. An open switch caused the wreck.

Graham White's Fine Flight

Blackpool, Eng., Aug. 12.—Graham White last evening flew from Blackpool to New Brighton, forty miles, by aeroplane.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Elinor C. Zimmerman of East St. Louis has won a prize for drawing the best plan of a seven room house to cost $2,500. She had more than 5,000 competitors.

Mrs. Frances Folsom Cleveland is to have a library named in her honor at Wells college, New York, where she was graduated. She was present at the ceremony of breaking the sod.

Miss Mary B. May of Peacedale, R. I., and Miss Alice Cook of Oskaloosa, Ia., received the degree of bachelor of divinity at the seventy-sixth anniversary of Hartford Theological seminary.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of the Chicago public schools, has been elected president of the National Education association. Mrs. Young is the first woman to be chosen president of the association.

Princess Kalamianaole is the wife of the representative from Honolulu. Last winter she proved herself a charming hostess in Washington, giving many elaborate entertainments, and her rare collection of jewels attracted much attention.

One of the pioneers in "back to the soil" idea is Mrs. Henry Parsons of New York. Farm plots, established in vacant city lots, are the means by which she approaches the important question of the enriching and saving of child lives in the congested districts.

The Royal Box.

Queen Elizabeth had a red nose and was much ashamed of it. She always took pains to have it powdered before making appearance on a state occasion.

The Duke of Westgotland, a younger brother of the king of Sweden, and his wife, who was Princess Ingeborg, eldest daughter of the king of Denmark, are believers in the simple life. Their two children, Princess Margaret, eleven years old, and Princess Martha, nine, are taught to do every kind of housework.

The Useful Crocodile Fish.

In the rivers and lakes of the Mexican state of Tabasco there swims a fish known as the "crocodile fish" which is most useful to man.

The skin of the crocodile fish, if properly cured, may be utilized for any of the purposes for which the lighter weights of leather are employed. The oil of the crocodile fish is a perfect lubricant and also used for softening leather. In addition to its qualities as a lubricant and emolient, the oil possesses medicinal qualities for which a superiority to the finest of Norwegian cod liver is claimed. The flesh of the crocodile fish is extensively used by the natives as food and highly relished by them as one of the delicacies of the country. Crocodile fish range in length from ten inches to four feet, and when dried assume an ashen hue, with lighter shadings of a bluish tint.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Poor Human Nature.

The woman who had succeeded in that rather difficult task—making a boarding house pay—was confiding to a friend some of the tricks of the trade.

"While you must never allow your boarders to get too far behind in their payments, it is also true that you will profit considerably by allowing them a little leeway. So long as you are sure of your money it pays a landlady to have her boarders a week or two behind in their board."

"I don't see that," interrupted her friend.

"Well, I'll tell you," continued the landlady. "When a man owes back board you have him at a certain disadvantage. Not one in a hundred under such circumstances has the nerve at mealtimes to ask for a second helping.—New York Times.

The Human Lobster.

The lobster has always appealed to the Englishman as affording a nickname for his fellow Englishman. "Lobster" was a favorite term of abuse among the Elizabethans, though it is only conjectural that an allusion to red faces was conveyed. As signifying a soldier, "lobster" originated in the civil war, being applied to the Roundhead cuirassiers, as Clarendon explains, "because of the bright iron shells with which they were covered." Afterward the allusion was transferred to the soldier's red uniform. But that was the "boiled lobster." The "raw lobster" was naturally the man in blue, the policeman. In earlier days we find Grose explaining that "to boil one's lobster" meant for a clergyman to become a soldier.—London Chronicle.

Too Much Company.

"Have you ever loved before?" asked the coy maid.

"Yes," yawned the worldly young man, "but—er—never before a chaperon, two small brothers and a pet bulldog."

And then she suggested a trip down the old road to see the stars.—Chicago News.

The Pardon Paperweight.

Under the headline "A Queer Municipal Gift" a Vienna paper tells this story: "In the year 1869 a private soldier stationed at Sass killed an officer of his regiment and was condemned to be shot. Comrades who knew the extenuating circumstances, friends, priests, relatives—all pleaded in vain for mercy, the colonel in whose hands the matter rested insisting on the death penalty. The day came and the man was taken to the place of execution. Six members of his regiment, armed with rifles, one of which contained a blank cartridge, took their places as executioners. The man's eyes were bandaged and with arms securely pinioned he stood ready for the volley, shouting 'Comrades, aim well!' when a mounted courier dashed into the crowd waiving a white flag, crying 'Pardon!' He was Lieutenant Baron du Mont, with the colonel's pardon, which would have been useless had it arrived one minute later. The municipality secured the five bullets from the firing squad, had them silvered and mounted in the form of a tiny pyramid on a silver plate, and this, suitably inscribed, is known as the 'pardon paperweight,' the only one of its kind."

Time to Escape.

"Why were you in such a hurry to escape from that man?"

"He told me he had just found out a way in which I could become very rich."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Volcano.

"What is a volcano?" asked the teacher.

"A mountain with a fire inside," said one.

A smile of comprehension spread over the puzzled face of the smallest pupil as she asked surprisedly, "Is that a mountain range?"

A Pungent Player.

The comedian had his benefit and thankful for the patronage of "kind friends in front" let off this impromptu, which was applauded:

Like a grate full of coals I glow,
A great full house to see,
And were I not grateful, too,
A great fool I should be.

BRIEFS

A Wollaston man was caught in an auto trap at West Bridgewater last week with several others.

Mrs. Albert B. Muir of Hamilton street has been confined to her room for a month with sciatica.

Miss Emily G. Gassett of the Tax Collectors office is at the Cape enjoying her annual vacation.

The postponed lawn party of the Christian Endeavor society of the United Presbyterian church is to be held this evening.

Rev. C. E. Rydstrom of the Swedish M. E. church has been at Asbury Grove this week, and delivered the address at the meeting Monday evening.

Owing to the interest in the Restelli case there is not much question about there being a quorum at the special meeting tonight of the City Council.

Residents of Wollaston park can not understand why a side walk so much travelled as Beach street at this season of the year should be left so long in an unfinished condition.

One of the newest wrinkles on the street cars is the providing of seats for the motormen. They are very much appreciated, especialy by the men who have long runs.

Fred Gouchie, dispatcher at the street railway car barn, has been temporarily transferred to the time table department at the Boston office. Starter Austin is taking his place at the car barn.

Telephone Topics says: Owing to the great rush of summer business throughout the South shore of the Quincy district, there are working at present five large floating gangs, two large cable gangs, besides the district gangs.

Thursday nights thunder shower came as a surprise. The afternoon had been pleasant but not uncomfortably warm, and the weather gave promise of a pleasant evening. Shortly before 7 o'clock however there came a sound of distant thunder, which was followed a few minutes later by rain. Then came thunder and lightining and for about an hour there was a heavy shower. Then the weather cleared and the stars came out bright and clear.

Some Day.

Some day when you take your stand
Yonder in the promised land
You may wonder at the strife
That you tried to raise in life;
Ask yourself when harps you handle
"Was the old game worth the candle?"
—Frank L. Stanton.

—The Florence Times claims credit for this one: "A man who was afraid of thunder, crawled into a hollow log as a place of safety during a thunder storm. The thunder rolled and the rain poured down in torrents, and the old log began to swell up till the poor fellow was wedged in so tight he could not get out. All his past sins began passing before him. Suddenly he remembered he hadn't paid his newspaper subscription and he felt so small that he was able to back right out."—Athol Chronicle.

NEW CLEW FOUND IN CRIPPEN CASE

thorities Feel Sure Belle Elmore Was Murdered

London, Aug. 12.—It is reported that the authorities have discovered a clue to the certain identity of the body unearthed in the Hilltop Crescent home of Dr. Crippen, now under arrest in Quebec, awaiting extradition on the charge of having murdered an unnamed woman.

The police have contended all along that the bits of flesh found were parts of the body of Belle Elmore, the actress wife of Crippen, but their identification as such has been a matter of much doubt.

The hopeful clue was obtained during an exhaustive examination of the body, made by Professor Pepper, the home office expert, who obtained conclusive evidence that the sex was feminine. He then continued with the purpose of determining the manner of death, having in mind the possibility that poison was used. The analysis so far as the poison theory is concerned is not complete, but it is reported that the physician found evidence that at some period the woman had undergone a surgical operation.

NEW RAILROAD PLANNED

Spain Will Use It as Weapon of Defense Against Carlists

San Sebastian, Aug. 12.—Planning a blow at Carlism, Spain has decided to build a railroad through the centre of the pretender's stronghold for strategical purposes. Invitation has been published for tenders for the construction of the line, which will be built between Pamplona through Estella to Logrono, which is the Carlist zone.

Little concern as to the plans of the Catholic juntas is expressed by Baron de la Terre, the civil governor of San Sebastian. They are reported to be preparing to make their organization permanent, but the governor is convinced that they will not attempt any further political action.

SAID GAYNOR WOULD BE SHOT

Charge Made Against New York Policeman by Girls

INQUIRY BY NEWSPAPER MEN

Results In Locating Two Stenographers Who Identify Accused Man When He Is Lined Up With His Comrades —He Denies Language Attributed to Him and Hints at a "Frame-Up" by Young Men

New York, Aug. 12.—Policeman Joseph P. Hock of the Madison street police station was indefinitely suspended from duty after the newspaper reporters stationed at police headquarters had instituted an inquiry into the charges made by two young women stenographers that they had heard a policeman say that Mayor Gaynor would "get shot before he goes to Europe or when he comes back." Hock will be given a hearing on charges.

Hock denied using the words and declared that young men with whom he had trouble had threatened to "frame up" a complaint that would cause his dismissal.

From police headquarters a policeman was sent to 60 John street, where Miss Rebecca Perlman, a stenographer, of 225 Henry street, joined him. They went to another downtown business house and Miss Kate Eisenberg, of 206 Clinton street, became one of the party which proceeded to the Madison street police station. Several policemen attached to that precinct were lined up before the young women, who immediately picked out Hock.

Miss Perlman is a sister of Dr. Max Perlman, and lives with him at 225 Henry street. She stated, before the headquarters police sent for her, that last Monday night a few hours before the murderous attack upon Gaynor she and Miss Eisenberg were sitting on the stoop of the latter's home, 206 Clinton street, when they saw a policeman across the street in front of a saloon drinking beer from a glass. He crossed the street and stood in front of them. Both girls thought him slightly intoxicated, and one warned him he had better be careful, as Mayor Gaynor was watching the police closely. The policeman replied, according to their statements:

"Ah, what do I care for Mayor Gaynor? I'd knock his block off him with this club if I had him here this minute. He'd better let up on roasting the cops. But he'll get his. He'll get shot before he goes to Europe or as soon as he comes back."

When the girls learned of the shooting of the mayor they recalled with horror the threats the policeman had made in Clinton street the previous night and Miss Perlman reported them to her brother, Dr. Perlman. Police headquarters was informed and a policeman was sent to see Perlman. Nothing whatever resulted, so far as was evident by police activity, until the reporters, with only the name "Perlman" as a clew, had canvassed all the Perlmans they could find in the directory and had found Dr. Perlman. Miss Perlman and Miss Eisenberg gave identical accounts of the talk with the policeman and gave his number.

USE OF LIQUORS IN CLUBS

It Is Condemned by Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America

Boston, Aug. 12.—Resolutions adopted by the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, at its fortieth annual convention, recommend among other things the education of children against the use of liquors in social and other clubs, and an awakening to the dangers of patent medicines containing alcohol.

Officers were re-elected as follows: Rev. P. J. O'Callaghan, Chicago, president; Rev. J. B. Beane, Pittsburg, first vice president; J. J. Corbett, New Haven, second vice president; Miss Catherine Kelly, Kansas City, third vice president; Rev. J. V. Moylan, Nantioke, Pa., treasurer; J. T. Shea, Cambridge, Mass., secretary.

PINCHOT AND GARFIELD

Will Appear on Platform With Roosevelt on Western Trip

New York, Aug. 12.—James R. Garfield, former secretary of the interior, and Gifford Pinchot, the deposed forester, are to appear three times on the same platform with Theodore Roosevelt during his coming trip to the west. They made this announcement here after returning from Oyster Bay, where they were Roosevelt's guests.

They will appear with the former president at Denver on Aug. 29, Osawatomie, Kan., on Sept. 3, and at St. Paul on Sept. 6.

Threatened by Black Hand

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Deputy Sheriff Cramer, who arrested Simone, one of the alleged Delaware and Hudson trainwreckers, has received a Black Hand letter warning him to release Simone or he will be killed.

Laid In a Stock.

When the late Pierre Lorillard was a boy, his mother, being annoyed by moths that destroyed the woolen clothing and other material of the household, agreed to pay him a cent apiece for every moth he would kill in the house and bring to her. The same bargain was made with his brothers, Jake, George and Louis. In course of time Mrs. Lorillard noticed that, while the other children collected from her at intervals from 10 to 25 cents, Pierre drew on her frequently for a $1 at a time, indorsing his drafts with 100 dead moths. Investigation revealed the bent of the future financier as well as his early adaptability to methods governing the acquirement of wealth. Having procured from a furrier some pieces of fur thrown away because they were infested with moths, Pierre secreted them in an old chest in an unused closet. There the quickly accumulating moths were banked, to be drawn upon whenever the inventor and perfecter of the enterprise required pocket money.

Knighted Actors.

It is an odd fact that of the English actors knighted all but one had first to legalize the names under which they had won feme. The question arose with the first proposition to confer knighthood on a gypsy. It would be absurd so to honor one John Henry Brodribb. Yet legally no such person as "Henry Irving" existed. No such obstacle had to be overcome when, on the occasion of Victoria's diamond jubilee, Squire Bancroft knelt before his queen and arose sir squire. However, the three actors knighted by King Edward bore cognomens of their own invention. Sir Charles Wyndham was born Culverwell, and Sir John Hare, Fairs. As for Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, his brilliant wife once put it "'Tree' is a fantastic thing we just tacked on. We're all plain Beerbohms—plain as brother Max!"—Argonaut.

The Old English Prize Ring.

In the latter days of the English prize ring innumerable expedients had to be devised to bring off a fight. A favorite plan was to pitch the ring on the borders of two counties, so that the question of magisterial jurisdiction might be rendered difficult. Another plan was to charter a steamboat and proceed down the Thames to some lonely police forsaken spot in the marshes of Essex. For the memorable contest between Sayers and Heenan in 1860 a special train was run from London bridge to a secret destination. But the passengers, who comprised members of parliament, peers, pickpockets, pugilists, clergy and, it is said, a few bishops, cheerfully took tickets simply marked "excursion." They presently found themselves near Farnborough, in Surrey, where the fight occurred.—London Chronicle.

Original of Falstaff.

Sir John Fastolf was the original of Shakespeare's Falstaff and in his day was a continual butt for the jests of the town and borough of Southwark. Though he had fought at Agincourt, when Jack Cade invaded the borough, he showed great cowardice. When Cade was yet some way off Fastolf had armed and fortified his house and garrisoned it with veterans of the French wars. On the arrival of Cade, however, he withdrew his garrison and fled to the Tower, leaving his neighbors to the mercy of the rebels. Fastolf's matrimonial adventures seem also to have been another source of unpopularity, for, having married a widow named Scrope, he seized her property and kept his stepson out of his inheritance during his own lifetime.—London News.

"Great Expectations."

Charles Green, one of Dickens' illustrators, had two models, one of whom was a likable fellow, while the other, Gregory by name, was a greedy, self seeking character, always thinking of himself and his perquisites.

When Green was on his deathbed Gregory was very officious, and one day Green, noticing this, said to him:

"Oh, I haven't forgotten you, Gregory; got you down in my will."

At the funeral Gregory invested in a wreath and duly attended to hear the will read.

Green had kept his word, and the model was not forgotten.

"To my dear friend Gregory," ran the document, "I leave, for his kindness to me, an illustrated edition of 'Great Expectations.'"

Against His Principles.

"What was that man making such a fuss about?" asked the restaurant proprietor.

"He found a couple of hairs in the food, sir," replied the waiter.

"Oh, is that all?"

"You see, sir, he's a vegetarian, and you can't get him to eat anything but vegetables."—Yonkers Statesman.

Neatly Parried.

A mother of four daughters, one of whom had recently been married, cornered an eligible young man in the drawing room.

"And which of my girls do you most admire, might I ask?"

"The married one," was the prompt reply.—Exchange.

Easier.

"I'm going to the dentist's to have this tooth out. Just mind the baby till I come back." Husband (with alacrity)—You mind the baby, Jessie. I'll go and get a tooth pulled out!

Her Bait.

"You have to have different bait for different fish, don't you, ma?"

"I guess so. I know I caught a lobster with mistletoe."—New York Press.

Why Have an Overheated Kitchen in Summer?

When the sultry days come and the coal range makes the kitchen almost unbearable and cooking a dreaded task, put out the range fire and try the newest method of cooking in hot weather—use a

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

What a contrast! The kitchen no longer is stifling hot, the work is now done with comfort, and the housewife is not worn out with the heat.

Cautionary Note:—Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

She saves her strength, keeps her health and is better able to enjoy the summer.

The New Perfection does everything that any other stove can do—all the family cooking, baking, washing and ironing. No smoke, no dust, no odor. Heat is applied directly and not wasted. A turn, and the flame is out.

The New Perfection stove has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot, drop shelves for the coffee pot or saucepans, and nickeled towel racks.

It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove very attractive and invites cleanliness. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

$500 REWARD

DEAD OR ALIVE

LOUIS G. RESTELLI

WANTED FOR MURDER

Charles H. Hardwick of Quincy, Mass., in behalf of the family of the late Henry E. Hardwick, authorizes the Chief of Police of the City of Quincy, Mass., to offer the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the capture of Louis G. Restelli, dead or alive, for the murder of Henry E. Hardwick and the attempt to murder C. Theodore Hardwick, on Friday, July 29, 1910, at Quincy, Mass. On the same day Restelli shot and killed his mother, Marianna Restelli, and shot his brother Gaspare Restelli, William Adrian and Benjamin Bishop, all of Quincy and connected with the granite industry of this city. The above reward to be paid unless Restelli has committed suicide when the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) will be paid for the recovery of his dead body. If he commits suicide in order to evade capture of direct pursuit the full sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) will be paid.

Full Description of Louis C. Restelli

Height 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches.

Weight 150 lbs.

Dark complexion, smooth face, but grows a small black mustache quickly.

Brown eyes, the right eye smaller than the left and showing a defect caused by a cataract and making the use of glasses practically compulsory.

He generally wears a pair of gold-bowed spectacles with a very heavy lense, though he will probably endeavor to get along without them.

He is a Lombardian and talks the English language so well that there is no Italian accent noticeable.

Has been in the granite business for years and is well known in the business, being a member of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association.

Was a member of K Co., of Fifth Massachusetts regiment, in the Spanish War.

Age 39 years.

The Gargoyle Bedstead

It Was a Valuable Heirloom.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Flora, here is a letter from Chesley, your Uncle William's lawyer, and he has inclosed a copy of the will.

"Did he leave it to me?"

"Of course he did. Don't be foolish, my dear. Listen:

"I, William Gray, being of sound mind, etc., do give and bequeath to my grandniece, Isabel Gray, her heirs and assigns forever, my Sheraton sideboard and the sum of $2,000; to my grandniece, Flora Gray Winchester, her heirs and assigns, the mahogany bedstead which stands in my own chamber and which is known as the Gargoyle bedstead, together with the sum of $1,000."

"Where shall we put it, Harry?" interrupted Mrs. Winchester breathlessly.

"Put it? You don't expect to get it into this flat?"

"We must have it here. I wouldn't examine it there with Isabel looking on, and, besides, it is such a journey down to Richmond. Anyway you cannot spare the time to go down now, and we must examine it together. I want to get it here as soon as possible. Who knows but Isabel or some of the others might find the diary of Nancy Gray and learn the secret? My inheritance would be worthless!" Mrs. Winchester's voice trembled.

"Oh, all right," said Winchester tractably. "But how the deuce you expect to get it in here I don't quite see. It's a very large piece of furniture, isn't it?"

"Now, Harry dear," she cried, with one plump hand over his lips, "that bed must be gotten into this flat somehow! First, I will finish my letter to Mr. Chesley and let Norah post it at once. I can hardly wait to see the bedstead, Harry, and I don't dare dream of what will be ours when the secret of the bedstead is disclosed. Do you think, dear, I was wrong not to tell Uncle William about the diary of Nancy Gray I found in the garret?"

Two weeks afterward, while Mr. Winchester was engaged in a most important business transaction, he was summoned to the telephone.

"Yes, this is Winchester. What? Oh, the bedstead there? I can't possibly leave at present—I can't help it—tell them to send it up tomorrow—I know it's important—d—— the bedstead! No, I didn't speak. Yes, I will come home early. Goodby!"

When he reached the Etruscan apartments that evening Winchester was fortified with a box of candy and a huge bunch of violets. He stepped to the elevator and pressed the button. A faint tinkle responded from some depth below.

Presently the janitor emerged from an obscure doorway and surveyed him with an unpleasant eye.

"It ain't a-runnin'," he said gruffly.

"Poor management," commented Winchester as he prepared to conquer the eight flights that barred him from home and dinner.

"Huh!" exploded the man. "What with the freight elevator outer order and people breakin' windows movin' in big stuff and them chumps a-tryin' to put the feet board in my passenger car and a-tearin' a lady's dress and her the landlord's sister-in-law"— He glared wrathfully at the vanishing form of Winchester.

Opening the door of his apartment, rampant disorder met his eye. A huge, dark form almost covered the floor of the tiny parlor, which in its chaotic disturbance looked strangely unfamiliar to the master of the house.

In the library Flora reclined on a couch before the bright gas log, while sympathetic Norah applied wet cloths to her mistress' aching head. Wreckage from the parlor impeded progress at every step.

"My dear girl!" he uttered.

She turned a woebegone face to his. "Such a time as they had trying to get it in the window! They were saucy because the window was too small, and one of them pulled it in with a jerk, and it struck the chandelier—the pieces of glass fell on my Wedgwood vase, and that is broken! I—I am quite discouraged!"

With a restless glance toward the parlor, where the gigantic bedstead lay like some dark shadow on his little home, and with an unpleasant recollection of the snorting janitor below stairs and of the generous tip it would require to reduce him to his customary state of patronizing familiarity, Winchester endeavored to soothe his wife's shattered nerves, and together they obeyed Norah's summons to a belated dinner.

At table Mrs. Winchester drew a folded paper from her gown.

"This is the page I copied from the diary of Nancy Gray, Harry," she said, spreading it open before her. "I thought I would refresh my memory as to the exact location of the secret spring.

"'Richmond, Va., April 21, 1864,'" read Mrs. Winchester in solemn accents. "'I am greatly alarmed for the safety of Grandmother Binpah's diamonds, and have vainly tried to find a hiding place for them. The Yankees are digging up every inch of ground on the adjacent plantations searching for buried treasure, and I am quite at a loss to find a safe place for our heirlooms.

"'April 22.—Such an excellent idea! I have just recollected that there is a secret hiding place in Grandmother Binpah's mahogany bedstead. I will conceal the jewels there and will describe their hiding place so that in case anything happens to me one of our family may be able to recover them, even if the bedstead should be carried away.

"'First, one must observe the row of hideously grinning faces—"gargoyles," grandfather called them—that outline the top of the headboard; there are twenty-five of these gargoyles in all, and one must press the right eye of the thirteenth gargoyle from either end, when the face will swing outward, disclosing a cavity. Into this cavity I have dropped the leather bag containing the unset gems—they are worth many thousands of dollars—and I hope to recover them when the war is over.'"

Armed with hammer and screwdriver, husband and wife repaired to the parlor and locked themselves within, greatly to the disgust of the interested Norah, who availed herself of the keyhole as the only salve to her wounded self respect.

"My dear girl, how do you think I'm going to handle this thing alone? It weighs a ton! Why wasn't it put in the guest room?"

"The instant I saw it in the wagon I knew it would never fit into that room, so I told them to put it in here. We can remove it to the cellar afterward—or store it."

"It fits in here," remarked Winchester.

"Let us rip off the covering—I believe I know just where to place my finger on the spring! This is the headboard, of course, and here are the gargoyles!" cried Flora excitedly.

Winchester took out his knife and leisurely opened the blade. He lifted one corner of the bedstead, groaned and dropped it heavily.

There was a straining and snapping of cords as he applied his knife to the wrappings.

"Oh! Oh! I am just as nervous as I can be," cried Flora, regardless of her husband's groan as he dragged aside the covering and disclosed the rounded, polished top outlined by a semicircle of hidiously carved faces.

"Jove, what a beaut!" ejaculated Winchester, yet with a note of respect in his tone. "What a nightmare! Fancy wishing a guest 'pleasant dreams' and then introducing him to that couch! Whew! Now, which face, Flora, love?"

Mrs. Winchester triumphantly produced the paper from her laces and read solemnly: "'The thirteenth gargoyle from either end.'"

"The one in the middle, of course," announced Winchester.

"'Press the right eye,'" quoted Mrs. Winchester breathlessly. "I shall have them set in a glorious pendant, Harry!"

They hung expectantly over the bed.

"Now press!" she whispered sibilantly.

Winchester pressed.

"Nothing doing," he announced flatly.

"Press harder," urged his wife. "The secret spring has probably rusted. They do rust sometimes, don't they?"

"I never heard of one doing so. They always yield easily, and the door rolls noiselessly aside and leaves an aperture," said Winchester grimly.

"We must get it open!" cried his wife tearfully. "Try some of the other eyes, Harry."

"But why try the others, my dear? It says the middle one."

"There is—there must be a spring!" retorted Mrs. Winchester. "Why should Nancy have put it in her diary if there was not?"

"I give it up when you ask me to explain the vagaries of the female mind"— began Winchester as he viciously jabbed the eyes of all the gargoyles in turn without result.

Flora burst into tears.

"Don't cry, my darling," comforted her husband tenderly. "I'll find out the truth if I have to chop the confounded thing into kindlings!

"I wish I understood the meaning of it anyway," said Winchester presently when his wife had reached a degree of tranquillity where she could nibble a bonbon appreciatively.

Again the tears flowed. "I might just as well have had another thousand dollars!" wailed Flora.

"What is this?" he asked, picking it up.

"An express parcel that came this afternoon. I haven't had time to look at it."

He ripped off the covers and looked stupidly at a small leather volume in his hand.

"The Diary of Nancy Gray!" he exclaimed. A letter fell from the book, and he opened it eagerly.

"Read it!" commanded Flora impatiently. And he read as follows:

"My dear Mrs. Winchester—Your uncle, the late Mr. William Gray, has placed this little volume in my hands with instructions to turn it over to you after his death. Of course you are aware that your uncle wrote this fantastical little tale for his own amusement many years ago, but it was never published. You are probably in a position to recognize that your uncle's clever wit enabled him to take great liberties with your family history. As the present owner of the Gargoyle bedstead, this little book will prove to be of especial interest to you. Congratulating you on the possession of such a valuable antique, and with kind regards, I am, very sincerely yours,

"JEREMIAH CHESLEY."

The long silence was broken at last by a suppressed chuckle from Mr. Winchester.

His wife buried her face in the sofa pillows. "Brute!" she sobbed bitterly. And Winchester is still wondering whom she meant.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Henry W. Savage's production of "The Merry Widow," that wonderful Viennese operetta which revolutionized the musical stage of this country, opened a summer season at the Majestic Theatre, Monday night to a packed house. The life of the merry comedy with its alluring music seems unending and this particular production of Mr. Savage's is if anything more nearly perfect than that of the memorable run at the Tremont Theatre two seasons ago. The cast now appearing is equally as good as before if not superior. Mabel Wilber, a Brookline girl, is the fascinating Sonia. She is remarkably good looking, has an excellent voice, is possessed of genuine dramatic talent and dances as only a Sonia should. Charles Meakins was the Prince Danilo. His excellent dancing and singing and his particularly manly grace and thorough masculinity won him imemdiate favor; that which is rarely given to the dainly matinee idol who sometimes is assigned a part of this kind. The old favorite Robert E. Graham, hero of "The Little Tycoon" and "Floradora" and the creator of the part of Baron Popoff in the original New York production of "The Merry Widow" is again playing the part, and Boston thoroughly enjoyed his rich comedy. Fred Frear, another original of the New York company, is in his part of Nish again. Altogether it is a splendid organization and one worthy of the Savage trademark, as well as the traditions which are fast surrounding this magical operetta. "The Merry Widow" will continue at the Majestic Theatre for some weeks, reaping again the harvest, best described as "Standing Room Only."

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

Being firmly convinced from previous experiences both this season and last season that Boston theatre goers are particularly fond of rural plays, Manager Lindsay Morison of the American Music Hall has decided to present next week the greatest play of them all, "Quincy Adams Sawyer." This piece last season broke all summer stock records both as regards the length of time it ran and also the amount of money it played to. It was not however, wholly the idea of its money value that induced Manager Morison to present it again, but so many requests from his patrons have poured in during the past few weeks for its repetition that there seemed no other course left open. The beautiful love story which runs through "Quincy Adams Sawyer" is interwoven with the most delightful rural comedy of the type that will make the play live forever. Mr. Morison's stock company it ideally fitted to give a great presentation of "Quincy Adams Sawyer." All the favorites will be in the cast and the original scenery and properties used in the original production at the Boston Theatre will be staged. Miss Eleanor Gordon who made her season's debut this week will be seen in the leading female role of "Alice" the blind girl and as far as possible all the characters will be portrayed by the same players who appeared in them last season.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Rose Pitonof, the fifteen-year old girl who accomplished the hitherto impossible feat of swimming from Charleston bridge to Boston light, last Sunday afternoon, will be the principal feature at Keith's theatre next week. Little Miss Pitonof is a typical water sprite, she can do every kind of dive that ever was shown, and besides that will demonstrate for the first time in public the famous "Pitonof kick," by which she was enabled to make the record swim. Miss Pitonof does not swim like anybody else. She has learned to use only certain parts of the body, so that she swims with less exertion and therefore has a greater endurance, just how she does this will be shown so that all swimmers can take advantage of the "Pitonof kick." There will be two other women on the bill who have been very much in the public eye in the past year or so. Mrs. Ginnett, who started the investigation which resulted in the arrest of Dr. Crippen for the murder of his wife, will appear in "The Horse Dealer," of which her husband, Fred Ginnett, is the owner, and on the some program will be Mrs. W. E. Annis, the killing of whose husband by Capt. Peter C. Hains was the sensation of the year. Mrs. Annis is an accomplished musician, and since the death of her husband has been at the head of a splendid company with which she will appear at Keith's.

PHILANTHROPIST AND ADVOCATE OF PEACE

Robert Treat Paine Responds to the Summons of Death

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 12.—Robert Treat Paine, president of the American Peace society and a widely known philanthropist, died at his home here last night.

It was through his efforts in behalf of peace among the countries of the world that Paine became a figure of more than national prominence. At The Hague his name was enrolled among the prominent advocates of disarmament.

Mr. Paine had long been a familiar figure on the streets of Boston and Waltham. Born in Boston in 1835, his career of philanthropies and religious endeavor forms a chapter in the history of that city during the past half century. He was a member of all the charitable institutions of Boston.

In religion he was an Episcopalian, but his charity has always been unsectarian. He is survived by two sons, Robert Treat Paine, Jr., and Rev. George L. Paine, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church, Dorchester, and three daughters.

TEXANS INDORSE TAFT

Republicans of Lone Star State Do Not Mention His Predecessor

Dallas, Aug. 12.—Republicans of Texas in state convention unqualifiedly indorsed the administration of President Taft and refrained from making any mention of Theodore Roosevelt in their platform of resolutions.

A full state ticket was nominated, headed by J. O. Terrell of San Antonio for governor. Cecil A. Lyon was unanimously re-elected state chairman.

Biplane Turns Somersault

Berlin, Aug. 12.—Oscar Heim, a German aviator who was competing in the flying contests at Johannisthal, fell a distance of 250 feet and was probably fatally injured. Heim was driving a Wright biplane, when it suddenly somersaulted.

Expects Messiah Soon

Northfield, Mass., Aug. 12.—At Thursdays session of the Northfield conference, Dr. R. A. Torrey, the evangelist, one of the speakers, declared that he expects the return of Christ soon.

The Test.

A woman of some years entered the store.

"Sir," she said to a salesman, "may I speak with the manager?"

The manager was called.

"Sir, has your store a high rating?" she asked.

"Yes, madam; A1."

"And have you a good class of trade?"

"The very best in the city."

"Your clerks—are they of tested honesty?"

"Every one, madam."

Society Drama.

The parlor drama has the bulge
On other plays with me.
I love to hear the folks indulge
In pleasant repartee.

The hero's always so polite,
Emits no vulgar "damns,"
But merely puts the foe to flight
With cutting epigrams.

There is no ranting and no rage,
No wish to maim or slay.
The players loll about the stage
In cultivated way.

The characters are culled with care.
They are no common hams.
The butler even has his share
Of timely epigrams.

The Modern Way.

"Will you have this woman to be your lawful wedded wife?"

"That's what I 'lowed I would."

"Will you love, honor and obey her?"

"Ain't you got that switched around, parson?" asked the man.

"Yes, sir," said the bridegroom meekly. "I reckon I'll have to."—Frank L. Stanton.

Lemuel Tinney, employed by R. E. Foy, is enjoying his vacation at Old Orchard, Me.

Citizens of Atlantic have requested that they be given a hearing before the street railway company is granted any rights on Atlantic street.

The contract for furnishing the paving blocks for the Hancock street paving job has been awarded to W. F. Loud.

The battleship Delaware, a sister ship of the North Dakota, came into Boston harbor on Thursday and attracted considerable attention.

One of Penniman's taxicabs had the front axle and wheels smashed Thursday night when it turned into a granite yard on Garfield street and bumped against a block of granite. It is thought the driver mistook the way leading into the yard for a street.

Four children amuse themselves daily near the police station by playing Restelli and the police. The part of Restelli is taken by a little fellow on crutches whose leg is in a plaster cast but he makes surprisingly nimble escapes. Such games however should be broken up.

Doubtful.

It was not very long ago
We kicked about the cold,
And now it is the summer heat
That makes us fan and scold.
Perhaps it will be cold enough
Where we shall cast our lot
When done with earth, and then, again,
Perhaps 'twill be too hot.

STILL HUNT FOR RESTELLI

What Kind of Order Will City Council Pass?

Nothing new had developed in the Restelli case up to noon, and it seems as though the case has settled down into a still hunt. If Restelli has been where he was able to obtain the daily papers he has doubtless kept himself well posted as to any move the police were making in the case, and there being forewarned was enabled the better to keep himself out of sight.

Many believe that now that the chase has settled to a still hunt that something tangible will soon be brought to light. Because things are quiet and there is no news to give out, does not mean that the police have ceased their activity. On the other hand they are still hard at work upon the case.

The reward of $1000 now offered will doubtless be increased to $1500 at tonight's special meeting of the City Council, and this should send an army of private detectives on the scent, and results may be expected.

Just what sort of an order the Council will pass tonight is as yet not determined. If an order is offered appropriating $500, with the borrowing clause attached, it means the order must have two readings. It has been suggested that two orders of $250 be offered both of which could be passed at tonight's meeting. The best method however, would seem to be to pass an order authorizing the Mayor to offer a reward of $500 for the apprehension of Restelli. This could be done tonight.

It would not be necessary to borro wthe money at the present time. Should the time come when the money is needed to pay the award the Council could appropriate the money.

Mayor Shea said this morning that he did not know just what would be done, but that he should send a communication to the City Council and that after consulting the City Solicitor some kind of an order would be prepared for the Council to act upon.

Several members of the City Council are out of town at the present time, but it is thought there will be no difficulty in getting a quorum. However there might not be sixteen.

Who Got the Baby?

Once upon a time a crocodile stole a baby and was about to make a dinner of it. The frantic mother begged so piteously for the child that the crocodile said:

"Tell me one truth and you shall have your baby again."

The mother replied, "You will not give him back to me."

"Then," said the crocodile, "by our agreement I shall keep him, for if you have told the truth I am not going to give him back, and if it is a lie I have also won."

But the mother said, "If I told you the truth you are bound by your promise, and if it is not the truth it will not be a lie until you have given me my child."

Who got the baby?

No Sense of Proportion.

The young man who had spent his efforts for several years without result in studying art was talking with his practical uncle, who had patiently paid the bills.

"Of course," said the young artist, "I know I haven't made much of a go of it, but I don't think you ought to advise me to try something else. You know it's best to put all your eggs in one basket and watch that basket."

"Um! That may be, Charlie; but did you ever think how foolish it is to put so many baskets around one bantam egg?"

Applied History.

First Professor—My dear colleague, I'm a little puzzled. When did the first Peloponnesian war begin? Second Professor—B. C. 431. First Professor—Quite right, quite right. That is the number of my doctor's telephone. I was to call him up and tell him my wife is sick.—Exchange.

Your Own Misfortunes.

Bear your own misfortunes with half the resignation that you hear other people's and you will be happy. It is so easy to tell other people how to be heroic and so difficult to be courageous ourselves.

A Slight Change.

Slight changes sometimes make a great difference. "Dinner for nothing," would be agreeable, for instance; not so, "Nothing for dinner."

His Wish.

Tom—I wish this ten dollar bill was a ten dollar debt. Dick—Heavens! Why? Tom—I'd never get rid of it.—Cleveland Leader.

We are sure to get the better of fortune if we do but grapple with her.—Seneca.

THANKS FROM BOSTON

Work of Quincy Fire Department Appreciated

Mayor Shea received the following letter from Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston on Thursday evening.

Hon. William T. Shea, Mayor, Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir:—Permit me to thank you, in the name of the citizens of Boston, for the valuable assistance rendered by your department at the dangerous fire in the lumber district of this city last night.

Your very truly,
John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor.

Caught.

A shopwalker in a large business, noted for his severity to the assistants under him, one day stepped up to a counter from which a ladylike person had just left unserved.

"You let that lady leave without making any purchase?" he asked angrily of the meek looking young man responsible for the handkerchief department sales.

"Yes, sir. I"—

"And she was at your counter fully ten minutes?"

"Doubtless; but, then, you see"—

"Exactly. I saw that. In spite of all the questions she put to you, you rarely answered her and never attempted to get what she wanted."

"Well, but"—

"You need not make any excuse. I shall report you for carelessness."

"Well, I hadn't what she wanted?"

"What was that?"

"Five shillings. She was canvassing for subscriptions to an encyclopedia."—London Globe.

An Aquatic Tragedy.

When visitors came, Bobby was often turned out of his room and into the garret for a night or two. He did not object to this, but he felt that it endangered certain cherished possessions. When his uncle, the clergyman, arrived unexpectedly one night Bobby was transferred to his garret quarters in haste and with small ceremony, and neglected to take any precautions to guard his treasures.

"I have to thank the thoughtful person who placed a glass of water on the table near the bed last night," said the clergyman the next morning. "I awoke in the night and found it refreshing—most refreshing."

"Oh!" said Bobby, in a tone of sorrow and reproach. "You've drinked up my nice new 'quarium, and all"—

Boy Soldiers.

In South American countries it is no uncommon thing to see boys of ten or twelve years of age or even younger carrying rifles and marching to battle with the armies which fight in the civil wars of those lands. These boy soldiers are usually of Indian blood, and they fight quite as well as the oldest veteran.

Norway's Coast Line.

Norway's coast line, 1,700 miles in a straight line, becomes 12,000 miles if followed round the fiords. In these fiords are over 150,000 islands.

The True Vision.

Peace, modest lady, 'tis too much
That in and out of season
You put my loving to the touch
And test of icy reason.
Why urge that much I see is due
To "auto necromancy,"
That only part of you is you,
The rest my foolish fancy?

Peace, gentle lady. Why protest
That love hath dulled my vision?
Can you believe that vision best
That boasts a cold precision?
Oh, rather bless my truer eye,
Whatever flaws it can't see,
That knows your sweet reality,
Yet holds you still my fancy!
—Catholic Standard and Times.

Why She Was Pleased.

"Do you mean to tell me that you actually overcame that ancient antipathy of yours for Mrs. Muggsby and called on her this afternoon?" said his wife's husband.

"That's about the size of it," replied her husband's wife.

"And she was glad to see you?"

"There isn't any doubt about it."

"Why do you think that?"

"Well, I had on that old dress I've worn three seasons and a hat that is entitled to a prominent place in some museum for antiquities, while she had on a new gown just from Paris. Oh, yes, I'm sure she was tickled to death, figuratively speaking, when I called!"—Chicago News.

A Wise Precaution.

The day before she was to be married the old negro servant came to her mistress and intrusted her savings in her keeping. "Why should I keep it? I thought you were going to get married," said her mistress.

"So I is, missus, but do yon s'pose I'd keep all dis money in the house wid that strange nigger?"—Success Magazine.

BIG GAME TOMORROW

Other Local Sporting Notes of Interest

Tomorrow is the great day in Old Colony league circles, Quincy and Dewey meeting in a struggle for antipennant supremacy. Johnny Glaze will twirl for Quincy and not Chick Frazer as stated, as Johnny has been off on his vacation. Jimmy Fay is a fixture at short and Bill Duggan will take his old place in left. The whole team is composed of topnotchers, and there is no doubt that Weymouth will go down to defeat under the influence of Glaze, Lonergan, Fish, Armstrong and the rest of the unbeatable combination.

Against Quincy under Joe Ford, a Quincy boy, will be Johnny Murray who did the bulk of the receiving here last year, George Fallon and Wes Ganzel of Quincy, the latter drafted from the Makarias, and Lefty Ford the great little southpaw will be with the team, though Mullen will probably pitch.

At their last meeting the Quincy outfit quit ahead, and left the Dewey rooters sore, and since then the latter have in some instances behaved and spoken in an unsportsmanlike manner.

• • •

Two of Quincy's fastest teams will undertake to show each other that they are superior on the diamond on Saturday. The Adams A. A. and the speedy Ramblers clash at Merrymount park at 3 P. M. Rice, who has pitched gilt edged ball so far this season will try and put White-Wash on their natty playing so that they will be no come back. The Ramblers are anxious to see what they can do against Knight, having got 11 hits off Kerr they want to make it 13 off Knight.

• • •

The second game of the series between the North Quincys and Wollastons will be played at the Pines Saturday afternoon. The lineup for North Quincys includes: Smith, Bent, Curtis, Davis, Hoyt, Flynn, Quinlan, Lyons and Cox. Saturday, Aug. 20, the North Quincys will play the Montclairs at the Pines.

• • •

Who will be the first to steal on Chapman? No one; unless Capt. Manning drops the sphere; and he won't.

• • •

The Rocklands, scheduled to play the Stoughtons at Stoughton on Saturday afternoon in the Old Colony League series, have had the game transferred to Rockland and the contest will be played on Hartsuff Park. The Rockland team stands at the foot of the list in the Old Colony League, but President O'Brien is to make a number of changes and will have a good team on the field Saturday. The Rocklands and the Deweys of Weymouth have been booked to play at the Central Labor Union field day to be held at Ridge Hill Grove on the afternoon of Labor day.

• • •

The Cranch A. A. Jr. defeated the Warren Starrs this morning by the score of 9 to 8. The feature of the game was the work of Byrnes and Barrell on the Cranch A. A. and Brown and Lundquist for the Stars.

• • •

The Ramblers haven't lost a game at home.

• • •

The Adams and the Ramblers meet tomorrow.

• • •

The poor manner in which the Quincy fans support the team is surprising. After the manner in which Quincy has led the league this year the fans ought to be ashmed to stay away, but they do and go and see free games. Is a quarter too steep a price to pay to see good ball playing?

• • •

Following the principle that Quincyites would rather see a free show than pay even a nickie, the Granite City league is always at Ward Three when Quincy is at home and draw away the crowd.

• • •

T. M. Claflin of the Wollaston Golf club won his match with H. W. Stucklen in the first round of play for the Presidents cup at the big golf tournament in Vermont on Thursday, 2 and 1, but M. W. Dewart lost to E. E. Sturgis. Mr. Claflin also won in the second round.

• • •

The only game Saturday in the Granite City league will be that on the Ward Two grounds between the Fore River Apprentices and Bigelow. The latter team has recently been reorganized and expect to put up a great game. Councilman William H. Flynn will umpire the game.

HIGH PRICED BALL PLAYERS DON'T ALWAYS TURN OUT WELL.

Simply because a baseball club pays a big price for minor league ball players, it doesn't mean that they're going to set the big league on fire. History has proved this. Take "Rube" Marquard of the New York club, for instance. The Giants are said to have paid $11,000 to the Indianapolis club for his release. That's a big price for a minor league ballplayer, but he hasn't been a howling success.

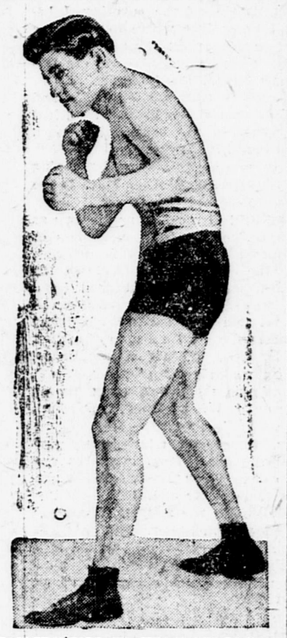

Then Garry Herrmann paid $7,500 for "Rube" Benton, and he is a bloomer. Manager Mack's $12,000 pitcher, Russell, may be in the same class. Comiskey's shortstop, Blackburn, the $8,500 player, is a failure, while some other minor league youngsters, who didn't cost $750 are a success.

Picking up youngsters is the biggest lottery in baseball. If the recruits make good the manager is lucky.

M'FARLAND AFTER WOLGAST.

Chicago Pugilist Anxious to Get Crack at Lightweight Champion.

It now looks as if the next big pugilistic battle will be between Ad Wolgast, the champion lightweight of the world, and Packey McFarland of Chicago. The latter has been hotfoot after a crack at the champion since he arrived from Europe, where he defeated Freddie Welsh, England's best lightweight. Promoters on the coast are after the contest and are willing to offer a big purse for the go.

The only obstacle in the way of the match is that Wolgast wants McFarland to make 133 ringside. This McFarland will not agree to, but is willing to weigh in at 133 six hours before the fight. However, it is likely that the differences will be adjusted and that the pair will meet on Labor day. If they clash it should result in a good contest, as McFarland is one of the cleverest boxers that ever pulled on a padded glove and would no doubt make Wolgast extend himself to the limit.

Pitcher Johnson's Great Speed.

Catcher Charley Street of Washington, whom many believe to be the best catcher in the league, is suffering from too much Johnson. Street catches Walter in most of his games and as a result is usually suffering from a bruised or ripped finger. The big Swede has terrific speed, and if he throws a ball wide it is no pleasant job for any catcher to stop it.

HOME RUNS

Washington critics say that Henry, the Amherst college catcher, is the most promising player corralled there since Johnson was landed.

Rariden of the Boston Nationals is the most improved catcher in the business. He was very punk last season, but now sizes up impressively.

Joe Birmingham of the Cleveland Americans undoubtedly earns the distinction of being the greatest throwing outfielder in the American league.

It is a peculiar feature about the play of the New York Nationals that they cannot steady themselves when their pitchers start to go up. The rest of the team just simply has got to go up too.

The veteran Cy Young is using the spitball every now and then. When he finds himself in a tight pinch the veteran resorts to the moistened delivery. It is but recently, however, that Young has acquired the spitball.

Has Connie Mack a dope box? He must feed his athletes something. Cy Morgan was just an ordinary dub with Boston, yet when he reached Philadelphia he perked up and is now one of the star performers of the American league.

Many Uses of Sand.

The sands of the sea are singularly useful. They are of primary importance in glassmaking. They have an important place in warfare, as a bank of sand twenty inches thick is proof against modern rifle shots. The electrical properties of sand show that it has positive electricity, although a rod of silica, the chief constituent of sand, is negative.

The singular drying effect which occurs when a stretch of wet sand is pressed by the foot is due entirely to an alteration in the piling of the sand grains. Normally the grains are close together, but abnormal piling is brought about by pressure of the foot, the space between the edges of the grains being enlarged and the water drained away. If the pressure of the foot is continued the sand becomes wetter than ever, the partial vacuum quickly bringing water from the surrounding sand.

In quicksand the moving character is thought to be due to the imprisonment between the grains of gases from organic matter.—Chicago Tribune.

Jenkins Was Ignored.

William Pitt's last words are said to have been, "My country, oh, how I love my country!" Pitt's butler afterward said that the statesman's dying words were, "I hope the country will do something for Jenkins." The butler was Jenkins, but nobody accepted his testimony, and the country certainly did nothing for Jenkins.

The Main Point.

"I am glad to say that I bear no man a grudge."

"But the point is this: Are you of sufficient importance to make any man care whether you bear him a grudge or not?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

MAYOR AUTHORIZED WITHOUT DEBATE

Suspects Reported at Whitman and Hoboken

Last night's special meeting of the City Council was probably the shortest on record. It was 7.37 when President Hobbs rapped for order and three minutes later the meeting had adjourned. There was but one matter in the call. That was in regard to offering a reward for the apprehension of Luigi G. Restelli, the murderer of his mother and Henry E. Hardwick.

The members present at roll call were Councilmen Boyd, Cantfill, Carey, Clark, Ericson, Gardner, Hobbs Loud, Moir, Nowland, Richards and Smith. They made just a quorum.

President Hobbs read the call for the meeting and the following communication from Mayor Shea:

Office of Mayor, Aug. 12, 1910.

"To the City Council

"Gentlemen: On July 29, last, a horrible crime was committed in our city and deligent search by the police has failed to lead to the arrest of the criminal, Luigi G. Restelli.

"I am of the opinion that the public good demands that a reward be offered for his apprehension. I therefore recommend that a sum not exceeding $500 be appropriated for that purpose."

Yours respectfully

(Signed) William T. Shea, Mayor.

"That His Honor the Mayor, be and hereby is authorized to offer a reward of $500 for the apprehension of Luigi Restelli."

A motion to adjourn at 7.41 prevailed.

Immediately after the Council meeting, Mayor Shea isued the following proclamation:

"The City of Quincy, Mass., will pay the sum of $500 to any person, who, in consequence of this offer, apprehends and secures Luigi G. Restelli, accused of the murder of his mother, Mrs. Marianna Restelli and Henry E. Hardwick on July 29, 1910, in Quincy, Mass."

(Signed)

William T. Shea, Mayor.

Quincy, Mass., Aug. 12, 1910.

Louis Restelli, the fugitive Quincy murderer, is believed to have been in this town today. A man who knows him well and served three months with him in the same company in the Spanish war, reported the suspect this afternoon to Deputy Sheriff John Condon of Rockland.

The man is a conductor on the Old Colony street railway, but the authorities refuse to disclose his name. The conductor was on his car bound from Whitman to Rockland and while on South avenue he saw Restelli, he declared today, cross the street in the village.

The conductor said the suspect wore dark clothing and a black derby hat, and had a small black mustache. He was walking rapidly toward Plymouth.

The conductor sought a policeman in the village, and not finding one he went on to Rockland, where he found Deputy Sheriff Condon and told him his story.

Condon declined to tell the name of his informant, but said he has known him several years and that he is a thoroughly reliable man, not given to snap judgment.

The suspect was seen at 2 P. M. It is declared he is the same man seen recently at Ridge hill in Norwell and at Pond street, Hanover.

Deputy Condon said tonight he will

SPECIAL TRAIN CHARTERED

To Take Quincy Men to Providence Convention

At a meeting of the Quincy Board of Trade committee on the annual outing last evening, it was voted to charter a special train and invite every citizen who is interested in the Atlantic Deeper Waterways convention, to go to Providence on Friday, Sept. 2, in a body. W. H. Teasdale, chairman of the committee, and W. S. Hamlin, secretary, are working night and day to make this one of the largest and most enjoyable excursions that ever went out of the city of Quincy. As this is a National movement, it is a proposition that should appeal to to every public spirited citizen in Quincy as the proposed canal means as much if not more to Quincy than it does to any city on the Atlantic seaboard.

Friday the morning will be given up to the convention, as some of the best orators of the country are to speak. Such men as Governor Pothier of R. I., Senator Aldrich, Commander Robert E. Peary of North Pole fame, Congressman Richard E. Hobson, the Spanish-American war hero, Secretary of war Knox and many others.

RICHMOND P. HOBSON.

The afternoon will be given to sight seeing and jleasure. Each member of the delegation will be furnished with a blue ribbon rosette marked "Quincy. Narragansett Bay to Boston Harbor Canal." The Quincy delegation will form outside the Providence station and amrch through the city to the Convention hall where a section will be reserved for them.

The committee has limited the tickets to 300, and as it is absolutely necessary that the committee should know at least ten days in advance just how many to arrange for, all that are interested should write to the secretary and treasurer, Winfield S. Hamlin, 83 Glendale road, or ticket can be obtained at T. L. Williams' store, 1473 Hancock street, A. L. Whitman's stores at Norfolk Downs and Quincy Point, or Miss Hulda Johnson at Quincy Board of Trade room. The price of the tickets which includes transportation and all other incidental expenses are $2.00 each. Every business organization and private citizen in the city is invited to co-operate with the Board of Trade and show the delegates from other parts of the country that Quincy is in favor of the canal from Naragansett Bay to Boston Harbor.

The city of Providence has appropriated $20,000 for the entertainment of the delegates to the convention, and beautiful souvenirs will be given.

Mr. Bronson—"All right. Bring on your French maid."—New York Weekly.

WOLLASTON SCHOOL LOT

Papers Passed Conveying Land to the City

Wollaston now has a large lot of over two acres for its new 12-room school house. It contains over two acres and fronts on Beale street, Taylor street and Highland avenue, including all the lots in the block except those which front on Brook street, and the small corner lot of 6,577 feet owned by Myra H. Winegar at the corner of Beale and Taylor streets. The owner of the last mentioned lot is in California and all efforts to obtain satisfactory terms failed. The lot is really needed to make a satisfactory site.

Reference to the list of real estate transfers for the week published in this issue, show that there have been six transfers to the City of Quincy recorded, including property of Mattie A. Holder, Lucy A. Botsford and Cornelius A. Faunce on Beale street; George B. James, et al., trustees, on Highland avenue and Taylor street; and Henry M. Davis, trustee and Elizabeth A. Wilbur on Taylor street.

With the Winegar lot it would have been a rectangular school lot about 240 by 360 feet. The area purchased was 88,096 square feet. The sum of $9,400 was appropriated by the City Council. No appropriation has yet been made for the erection of the schoolhouse.

LAWN PARTY.

The lawn party of the United Presbyterian church, given under the auspices of the young Peoples' Christian Endeavor was successfully carried off last night. The party was postponed from Wednesday evening when it was prohibited by rain. The "green" in Fort Square, at the junction of School and Pleasant streets was tastefully decorated with picturesque lanterns and the ice cream and other booths were attractive. Ice cream, tonic, peanuts, popcorn and lemonade were on sale, and the supply was nearly exhausted.

About two hundred persons enjoyed the games that were played and the pleasant evening together.

PRIZES AWARDED AT SUMMER SCHOOL

Six Weeks Course Closed With An Exhibition at Women's Club House

Great Credit Due to Mrs. John D. Mackay and Others

The Summer School for girls which has been held for the past six weeks at the Club house of the Quincy Women's Club brought its work to a close on Friday afternoon. The work has been carried on by the Education committee of the club, under the direction of Mrs. John D. Mackay, who is chairman of that committee.

The exercises of the afternoon consisted of singing by the girls, an exhibition of Miss Bass's work in physical culture and folk dancing, a short address by Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney; compositions from the class in current events, which has been carried on by Miss Clara Thayer; recitation of "The Chambered Nautilus" by one of the girls, and a demonstration by the class in nursing.

A cot bed was brought on to the stage and the girls, under the direction of their teacher Mrs. M. J. L. Kennedy, proceeded to make a bed with a patient in it, to change the night-dress, comb the patient's hair and bathe the face and hands; to bandage a sprained ankle; to put on a sling; to give a Seidletz powder; to make an egg-nogg; to give a gargle; to make and apply hot formentations; to take temperature and pulse; to set a tray; to put a plain dressing on a clean wound; to restore a person from drowning, etc. The manner in which the girls did their work was a surprise to those present. It seemed hardly possible that so much could be learned in so short a time. Mrs. Kennedy's services were given to the school and the club is greatly indebted to her for her painstaking work and the results achieved.

There was an exhibit of cooked food which was prepared by the girls in the cooking class. First class bread, muffins, pies and cake, custards and meat loaf. Everything looked dainty and appetizing. Mrs. Stanley Bone has conducted this class and her services were also given without remuneration.

There was a prize awarded in the cooking class to the girl who did the best work. The prize was a card catalogue box for receipts.

The girl who did the best work in the nursing class was awarded a chemical thermometer.

The Education committee also awarded a prize to the girl who could reproduce, in writing, the most of what the different speakers told the girls. This prize was a photograph of the Sistine Madonna by Raphael.

The prize winners were:

Cooking—Lillian Boethcher.
Current Events—Florence Smith.
Home Nursing—Ruth Keating.
Reproduction—Esther Carlson.

As a result of generous space allowed by the Daily Ledger and judicious use made of it by way of advertising the school, the enrollment this year was 220, as against about 65 in former years. Of these girls 180 have received instruction in the art of swimming by Miss Bass.

The six weeks' work has been profitable. The sort of individual teaching which the girls have had should make a difference in their whole school course. It has amounted to private tutoring.

The girls who were slow in arithmetic and geography have had assistance from Miss Birse, which should bring them up to grade; there has been a marked improvement in the ability to spell on the part of those who participated in the spelling matches; the business course cannot fail to be useful to the girls all through their lives.

If each one attempted to pay for what she has received she must spend $2.50 per day, and as there were 18 school days each girl received instruction from the Education committee of the Quincy Women's Club amounting to $45. If that amount is multiplied by the number of girls in the summer school an idea of the actual worth of what the girls have received may be obtained.

It is to be hoped that the general benefits are incalculable although, some of them may be long in coming to fruition. "In the morning sow thy sedd, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: for thou knowest not which shall prosper, whether this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good."

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The wise ones have asked for vacations in September or October, two of the most delightful months in all the calendar and have still the happy anticipations of an outing in the golden sunshine and crisp air of autumn, when days are just warm enough and delightfully cool nights are the rule. When the aforesaid ones go back to their tasks they will be much more refreshed and better prepared for work than those who fled to the fields in early summer and then went back to spend the hottest days of the year at their various duties.

It seems a very short time since the 4th of July and it is hard to realize that the cattle fair posters are beginning to blossom out along the highways. It will not be long now before the fairs will be in full swing and the patchwork quilts and jars of preserves will strive to win the honors from the prize pigs or the big squashes. Cattle shows or as they are now called, agricultural exhibitions, are a great attraction for New Englanders and are famous as places of meeting and reunion and opportunities ofr renewing old friendships. They are an institution peculiar to this section of the country and there is nothing quite like them in the land.

The worst habit that boys can fall into is that of loafing around on the streets at night. It is then they cast their lot in slippery places when at any moment they are likely to fall from grace. All good and noble lessons taught them by their mothers are there conteracted and nullified. They learn nothing that is good—but everything bad. The boys who spend their evenings at home, with good books for their companions, are the future hope of this republic; they will fill legislative and congressional halls, and sit in judgment upon men and measures, while the boys who run the streets will fill our penitentiaries, almshouses and lunatic asylums. Parents who are responsible for these broken laws of decency will have broken hearts and bowed down heads in the awakening years that will inevitably follow.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

What is tact? Is it solely a feminine attribute, or does it occasionally spread to the masculine mind? Is it merely the knack to say pleasant things regardless of the truth, or may it be properly differentiated from hypocrisy? Is it some thing that is desirable or the reverse? The question is calfed forth by the recent statement of the Duchess of Marlborough that American women are so tactful that they do not permit themselves to get the best of their husbands in argument. The intimation of this remark is that when the American woman disagrees with her husband, instead of trying to convince him of his error, she feigns perfect belief, then goes her sweet and imperious way on the calm waters of his complacent vanity. Another intimation is that the woman of tact could get the best of her husband in argument if she wanted to. If all this is true—and certainly the duchess should know—women who are tactful should be careful to be tactful enough not to let any of the men know it. For to call a woman tactful, under such circumstances, would be to send the mere man a-flying.—Haverhill Gazette.

One aspect of the attempted assassination of Mayor Gaynor should not escape attention. It is the possible responsibility of yellow journalism for the growing frequency of this class of crime. As in the case of the late President McKinley, Mayor Gaynor has been the object of president vilification in certain newspapers. To be sure, the man who shot him declares that he did it to avenge his dismissal from employment. But it is conceivable that he may have been influenced to some extent by the abuse heaped upon the mayor in the Hearst papers. Another phase of the connection between yellow journalism and assassination is, however, more important. The pictorial newspapers as a rule, make a practice of publishing pictures of the assassin with elaborate accounts of his career. This notoriety can hardly fail to impress weak-minded degenerates with the suggestion of a sure way getting into the centre of the limelight. Thus the present methods of yellow journalism furnish a two-fold motive for assassination of public men. Until these are reformed the lives of conspicuius officeholders in this country will be in peculiar peril. —Social Settler in Transcript.

Report That Administering of Oxygen Has Been Necessary

PULSE LOW, SIGN OF FEVER

Bullet In Throat Causes Attacks of Coughing and Affects Speech—No Signs of Blood Poisoning Thus Far—Operation For Removal of Leaden Missile Postponed Until Mayor's Strength Is Completely Restored

New York, Aug. 13.—Despite the more or less encouraging bulletins issued by the surgeons in attendance upon Mayor Gaynor at St. Mary's hospital in Hoboken, disquieting reports regarding the condition of the mayor have gained currency.

A report which was neither denied nor affirmed was that several tanks of oxygen had been rushed to the hospital for the use of Gaynor, and the administering of the gas was imperative because of the state of his pulse, which had fallen from 76 to 70.

Coincident with the fall of the pulse, the mayor's temperature reached 101; but during the evening the surgeons reported that it had fallen to 100 1-5, which was deemed satisfactory. Although suffering at times from coughing spells ever since he was shot, it was observed that these coughing spells were more numerous and of greater violence than heretofore.

In order to relieve the strain occasioned by these attacks, a quantity of compound tincture of benzoin was procured and the mayor's throat sprayed at intervals. It served to lessen the debilitating effects of the attacks, which in the mayor's weakened state is of supreme importance.

The location of the bullet has not yet been definitely determined, although the surgeons are convinced that it is lodged in the tissues of the throat on a level with the point of the jaw and half an inch from the vertebrae. This substance in the tissue has occasioned a partial paralysis of the parts and not only occasions attacks of coughing but affects his speech to a greater or less degree. The mayor has difficulty in conversing, his voice being husky and the effort accompanied by palpable strain upon the vocal chords.

A blood test made by Dr. Sullivan was pronounced by him to be satisfactory in every respect. He declared that no signs of blood poisoning had manifested themselves thus far.

When asked if an operation for the removal of the bullet was pending, Secretary Adamson said that inasmuch as the bullet was lodged in the tissue of the throat behind the palate, it had been decided to postpone the operation until the mayor's strength was completely restored.

None of the surgeons was willing to commit himself upon the question of an operation for the removal of the bullet. While they candidly admit that they would be pleased to have the obstruction removed as soon as possible, the mayor's symptoms to date do not warrant haste in the matter.

DELIBERATELY STARVED

Death of One of the Wardlaw Sisters, Indicted For Snead Murder

Newark, N. J., Aug. 13.—Miss Virginia Wardlaw, one of the mysterious sisters under indictment for the murder of Mrs. Ocey W. M. Snead, the East Orange bathtub victim, died in the house of detention here.

Death was due to starvation. The fate of the aged woman in this respect paralleled that of her alleged victim, for doctors who examined Ocey Snead before her death said her ailments were all due to lack of nourishing food.

In the opinion of jail attendants Miss Wardlaw deliberately starved herself to death.

COTTON POOL INDICTMENTS

Patten and Others Charged With Conspiracy In Restraint of Trade

New York, Aug. 13.—It has become known that James A. Patten and others, indicted in June by a special federal grand jury for conspiracy in restraint of trade in the alleged bull pool in cotton, have been re-indicted by a regular federal grand jury.

The indictments were sealed and filed two weeks ago, but who was named in them did not come out until last night.

Captain Mistook Lighthouse

Honolulu, Aug. 13.—The British barkentine Helga, from Newcastle with coal for 'Frisco, went ashore on Diamond Head at the entrance of the harbor. Captain Wall mistook the new lighthouse at Makapuu for Lighton Point. The vessel is breaking up.

Bold Work of Highwaymen

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 13.—A daring daylight holdup occurred at the underpass of the Boston and Maine railroad when Arthur A. Ingersoll was pummelled and relieved of his gold watch and pocketbook containing a sum of money. The robbers escaped.

SECRETARY BALLINGER

Lost His Fortune In Defending His Position

BALLINGER TO QUIT

Sept. 15 Set as the Date For His Retirement From Cabinet

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 13.—Certain events of yesterday, following incidents of the past week or so, lead inevitably to the conclusion that a complete political readjustment in circles close to President Taft is in progress, and that Secretary Ballinger retires on Sept. 15.

Incidentally it is reported that Mr. Ballinger practically has lost all of his personal fortune in defending himself from the attacks that have been made upon him.

It is said that one attorney's fee alone in the congressionnal investigation cost him $10,000. If the secretary is to recover these losses, it is said he must soon resume the lucrative practice of law which he left in his home state to take up the arduous duties of head of the interior department.

REFUSE TO GUARD CARS

Thirty-Five Mutinous Columbus Policemen Will Lose Jobs

Columbus, O., Aug. 13.—Thirty-five out of 140 members of the night police force of Columbus rebelled last night when called on by Mayor Marshall to board street cars in an effort to catch persons who during the strike of carmen have been attacking cars nightly with stones, bricks and bullets.

The mutineers, Marshall announced, will be dismissed from the department. The mayor called only on regular policemen to assume duty on cars. One hundred and thirty-seven special policemen, engaged especially for riot duty during the strike, were not drawn on for this service.

DREXEL LOST IN CLOUDS

Sets Altitude Record at 6750 Feet In Flight of Twelve Miles

Lanark, Scot., Aug. 13.—It is officially announced that J. A. Drexel, the American aviator, attained a world's altitude record of 6750 feet. His barograph will be submitted to the experts of the Kew observatory at London.

Drexel's flight was the sensaton of the aviation meeting. Ascending at 7 o'clock in the evening, he shot up into a bank of clouds and disappeared from the gaze of the anxious crowd. He landed some two hours later twelve miles from Lanark.

Root Concludes Long Argument

The Hague, Aug. 13.—Secretary Root has concluded his six-days' speech in presenting the claims of the United States in the Newfoundland fishing dispute with Great Britain. The tribunal will probably hand down its decision in September.

Riley Cannot Fully Recover

Indianapolis, Aug. 13.—The condition of James W. Riley, the poet, is unchanged. While the physicians are hopeful that their treatment will prove of much benefit, full recovery is scarcely looked for.

MAKES RAPID HEADWAY

Add This Fact to Your Store of Knowledge.

Kidney disease advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells, or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the urine is dark, foul-smelling, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Your townspeople recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statement of this Quincy citizen.

P. J. Garrity, 367 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment at times. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

HARPOON, CIMA AND BEAVER

Selected to Meet Papoose, Chanta and Mosquito

As a result of the races at Marblehead this week the Harpoon, Beaver and Cima have been selected to sail against the Spanish boats next week. Three races were attempted yesterday; the first was not finished in the second the wind was streaky, but the last race was a satisfactory test.

In the second race the order was: Cima, Beaver, Bonivee, Harpoon, Demon, Sally XI and Lady.

In the fial race the Harpoon was first, followed by the Demon, Beaver, Bonivee, Sally XI, Cima and Lady.

The Harpoon is owned by Charles Francis Adams 2d and is a modification of the lines of the Ellen. The Harpoon, which was built by Lawley and was designed practically by her owner, has in the trials proved, with her owner as helmsman and a crew consisting of Arthur Adams and T. Nelson Perkins, superior to the other boats.

The Beaver was designed by W. Starling Burgess and was built here for C. H. W. Foster. She was designed to be an improved Wolf. She is sailed by her owner. The Beaver in the trial races and in the racing in the class off here has always been a dangerous customer for all boats.

The first of the international races will be sailed off Marblehead next Wednesday. The Spanish boats are the Papoose, the Chonta and the Mosquito II, and they reached Marblehead last night.

It has been shown says the Globt, that the scow type is the fastest off Marblehead, and these boats are not of that type. They are rather lean forward, with sharp, snubbed bows, and with a deep section amidship. While this does not mean much to the casual observer, it carries a message to the yachtsman. Like the German-boats, however, the three Spanish craft may develop speed off the wind, and prove themselves worthy of respect when the day's work is done.

Each of the boats is painted white with a dark red bottom. While the paint has a glossy surface, they are by no means smooth as the German or the American boats. The Papoose particularly shows that she has received some pretty hard knocks, both above and below the waterline. This may be attributed in part to the handling the boats have received in their long voyage, and in transit in Spain before it.

All three boats are the product of Spanish building shops, and when it is recalled that Spain has been in the yachting game but a few years—since King Alfonso came to manhood—they are creditable productions.

MAY LOSE LICENSE.

Stanley H. Lawton of Quincy was trying out a new automobile on the Blue Hills parkway at Milton, Aug. 6, and succeeded in getting his car going at a speed of 65 miles an hour. He was brought into court this morning on two complaints, one charging him with reckless driving, and the second for overspeeding. The court placed the case for speeding on file, and imposed a fine of $25 for reckless driving. The court also said that it should report the case to the Highway Commission and recommend a suspension o fthe license.

The Men's club of the Houghs Neck Union chapel are going "40 miles an hour," in a screeching one act mock trial written by the president of the club, Henry W. French. All over the city one is confronted with the title of the show, 40 different directions, 40 times a day you can see 40 miles an hour glaring at you. The goal will be reached Sept. 1st at Powers Casino, Houghs Neck. By the advance sale of tickets every indication shows a 40 mile run for your money. Through the courtesy of John T. Cavanagh, and the unwritten consent of a telegraph pole, a big sign was erected on the Cavanagh property featuring an automobile racing 40 miles an hour with a glaring Brownie at the wheel, speeding towards a cat demurely sitting in the road. It provokes much amusement to onlookers, who wonder what feature they have in the play. Undoubtedly they will find out Sept. 1. Most any child at Houghs Neck will be glad to sell you a ticket. 40 miles an hour—that's going some, and some are going to 40 miles an hour.

THE MAYOR IN TRAINING

As Judge for a Beauty Show at Weymouth

One of the features of a lawn party to be held at North Weymouth next week in aid of St. Jeromes church, is a beauty show, and the task of deciding who is the most beautiful lady attending the party has been assigned to Mayor Shea of Quincy. It is a task that many a man would shirk from accepting, but His Honor is a brave man, and although he has managed up to the present time to steer clear from the matrimonial altar he knows a good looking woman when he sees her.

The Mayor has already gone into training for the task, and has placed himself in the hands of Brogan, the tonsorial artist, who has promised to turn him out that evening looking like a two-year old, so that when he enters the grounds Wednesday evening he will be the magnet about whom the fair sex will be drawn.

Callers at the Mayor's office at City Hall during the past few days have noticed that he casts many shy glances at the large mirror in the dresser that occupies one corner of the office, but no one suspected anything until the announcement that he had accepted the office of judge at a beauty show.

The lady upon whose shoulders he will place the mantle will have the privilege of parading the grounds with her arm linked with his, and anything that is on sale will be hers for the asking. Our Mayor is not a bad looking man by any means, when he gets his "good clothes" on, and the dress parade will be well worth the price of admission.

W. J. Coleman, on whose grounds the lawn party is to be held is the exalted ruler of Quincy lodge of Elks, and many of his friends in Elkdom will attend the party.

First Passenger (promenading on the deck of a liner in midocean, to second passenger, leaning disconsolately against the rail)—Have you dines?

Second Passenger (dejectedly)—On the contrary.—Harpers Weekly.

BRIEFS

Rev. William J. Heath, former pastor of the Atlantic Methodist church, will occupy the pulpit of the Wollaston Methodist Episcopal church Aug. 14 and 24.

Rev. Albert D. Smith of Milton is to preach on Sunday at Bethany church.

The annual exhibit of flowers and vegetables from the children's gardens is to be held in the council chamber at City hall on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, Aug. 17th. These flowers and vegetables are raised by children under the supervision of the Education committee of the Quincy Women's club.

A baby was welcomed into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wisentine of Montclair this week.

Daniel Robertson of Portland, Oregon, renewed his acquaintance this week with his friend Daniel C. Miller of Willet street after an absence of over thirty years.

Rev. H. S. Huntington of Milton is to preach on Sunday at the Park and Downs Union church.

The Wollaston Baptist church unites with the Congregational church on Sunday morning at the latter church. On Friday evening a prayer meeting will be held in the Baptist chapel at quarter of eight, conducted by Deacon A. D. Albee.

Atlantic street residents are very much exercised over the report that street railway tracks may be laid in their street, and have appealed to President Hobbs of the City Council and other Ward Six representatives in the Council to protect their interests. They say that public convenience does not require another route to Squantum now that a turnout has been constructed on Squantum street near Atlantic street, and that a street railway line on Atlantic street would be an injury to the property. Additional and longer turnouts can be constructed on the present route if needed, or it might be double tracked for a greater part of the distance. Some doubt, too, whether the Harvard Aviation field will be permanent in Quincy. They have heard that the contract for the grand stand is made with the understanding that the lumber is to be taken back by the contractor after the meet in September. The Mayor and City Council should be assured o fthe permanacy of the Aviation field before they grant special rights or go to any expense.

Two little brothers, aged respectively four and six years old, fell in with a stray kitten, which suffering by the hands of some cruel person, had of its tail scarcely half an inch remaining. "Poor little kitten," said the younger one. "Who has cut off its tail? I wonder if it will grow again?"

To which the elder gravely remarked: "Of course it will! Don't you see, the root is there?"

SEIZURE OF ROCKETS

Spanish Plotters Intended to Use Them on Royal Palace

San Sebastian, Aug. 13.—Including a project to fire on Miramar palace, where the queen dowager is living, the details of the amazing plot conceived by the clericals in the recent abortive agitation against the government in its conflict with the Vatican on certain matters of policy are just coming to light.

The customs inspectors at Bilbao have seized several boxes intended to be shipped to San Sebastian, containing thousands of rockets. These rockets were intended to have been fired at Miramar palace.

The Bilbao clerical organ, Gaceta del Norte, has received the attention of the authorities, and a whole edition has been seized by the police. Criminal proceedings have been instituted against the newspaper for the violent attack made on Premier Canalejas.

EIGHTY MILES AN HOUR

Speed Which Can Be Attained by Great Northern Locomotives

St. Paul, Aug. 13.—The first of the Great Northern's latest purchase of forty locomotives are arriving in St. Paul. These locomotives are built low near the rails so they will not rock when making high speed.

They are capable of raveling eighty miles an hour with a train of seven cars. They are as small as they can be made, even the cab giving the engineer and fireman just enough room to turn around. They have ten wheels with superheater equipment.

Twenty of the new locomotives will be used on the Winnipeg limited and the Gopher express, and on the service recently established between Vancouver, B. C., and Portland, Ore. The other twenty, with bigger cylinders, will be used to pull the fast transcontinental mail trains.

RETURNS TO ANSWER CHARGE OF MURDER

Wendling In Louisville Jail After 13,000 Mile Chase

Louisville, Aug. 13.—Joseph Wendling, wanted here on the charge of murdering Alma Kellner, was placed in jail here after a remarkable chase across the continent and an almost equally remarkable return in charge of Captain Carney, chief of the Louisville detective department.

The bringing of Wendling to Louisville marks the end of a 13,000-mile pursuit. Not until May 30, the date that the mutilated body of Alma Kellner was found in a cellar beneath St. John's parochial school, was Wendling connected with the disappearance of the child. It was believed that the child had been kidnapped.

Some months previous to the discovery of the body, Wendling had left Louisville quietly, not even letting his wife know that he was going away. When bloody clothing was found in Wendling's room he was charged with the murder and the search for Wendling was begun.

"BLEEDING" OF INDIANS

New Deals of McMurray Related by Man Who Acted as His Agent

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 13.—That J. F. McMurray had contracts with the Indians by which, by the sale of their lands, he would receive not only $3,000,000 as attorney's fees, but also agreements calling for $1,500,000 in other fees, was testified to by George W. Scott, before the special congressional committee.

Scott acted as an agent for McMurray, and worked out on the prairies, inducing the Indians to sign the contracts. It was he who was mentioned as having urged the Indians to send telegrams to President Taft importuning him to approve of the sale of the land on the 10 percent attorney fee basis, which President Taft subsequently refused to do, as he was opposed to giving such a fee.

DROPS OVER 2000 FEET

Young Balloonist Decapitated When Parachute Fails to Open

New York, Aug. 13.—"Benny" Prinz, a young balloonist, met a horrible death last evening at the close of the aviation meet at Asbury Park, N. J. In making a double parachute drop the second parachute failed to open and he fell more than 2000 feet.

As the swaying body neared the ground it struck the limb of an apple tree and the boy's head was transfixed upon the limb like an apple on a spit. As it struck the ground the headless body was crushed into an unrecognizable mass.

TELLS STORY OF SMUGGLING

Chinaman Who Lands From Cunarder Is Captured

FLIGHT OF SEVEN COMPANIONS

Each Had Paid $200 to an American Who Came Over on Same Steamer and Provided Them With Food and Water Every Day—Immigration Officers and Steamship People Are Amazed at Plot Laid Bare.

Boston, Aug. 13.—The Boston police and the United States immigration officials at this port are searching the city for seven out of eight Chinamen who were smuggled into Boston from the Cunarder Saxonia from Liverpool. The eighth Chinaman, who gives the name of Joe Kee, was arrested in East Boston.

Master-at-arms Evans and Lamptrimmer Hackett of the Saxonia were arrested on complaint of Chinese Immigration Inspector McCabe that they engineered the smuggling of the Chinamen into this country. The Saxonia' crew were lined up before Joe Kee, the only member of the eight smuggled Orientals so far apprehended. Kee picked out Hackett as the man who stowed them in the Saxonia's hold and Evans as a man who helped.

After being smuggled ashore in East Boston, the eight Chinamen were spied on Marion street by George Hoyle, a night switchman in the Boston and Albany freight yards. When Hoyle came along they were crouched against a fence. Hoyle held up the first one he saw and perceived the man was a Chinaman. Then Hoyle noticed a ship odor about the man. Hoyle guessed "smuggled Chinamen" in a minute. Looking about for the others, Hoyle found they had slipped away in the darkness. Hoyle held his one man until Patrolman Green came along.

The first the immigration officers knew of the case was when the East Boston police telephoned they had arrested a Chinese stowaway. Inspector McCabe and an interpreter went to East Boston station and saw the prisoner.

The latter said he was Joe Kee, 25 years old, and living in England for the past five years. Joe told a story that made the immigration people stare. It was in substance:

"Eight of us Chinamen were stowed away on the Saxonia at Liverpool by a stout American to whom we paid $200 apiece. He got $1600 in all from us. We were put in a forward lower hold of the boat. The stout American came over too. He brought us food and water every day.

"Last night, at about 9 o'clock, a man came to us and told us to get ready to leave. We were brought up on deck and ropes hitched under our shoulders. Ladders had been run to the ship twenty feet from the piles on the pier and we were lowered down onto the ladders. Then we reached the pier. When I was trying to get to the street the watchman held me up."

The immigration officials and the Cunard people would like to know how eight Chinamen could be smuggled aboard and fed all the way over by a "stout man." There s talk of collusion among the crew.

Meanwhile the immigration inspectors and the police are having a grand search for seven strange Chinamen.

On Joe Kee was found a paper with the address "24 Harrison avenue, Boston." That was the old headquarters of the "Hatchet Men" at the time of the Chinatown outrage a few years ago.

GOES A MILE IN 1:58 3-4

Billings' Gelding Uhlan Becomes King of the Trotting Turf

Cleveland, Aug. 13.—Over the North Randall track, under favorable conditions, the famous black gelding Uhlan, wearing the colors of C. K. G. Billings of this city, trotted a mile in 1:58¾ without a wind shield, thus establishing a new world's record for a trotter.

The only mile that has been covered faster than this was by Lou Dillon in 1905, when the former queen of light harness racing traveled a mile in 1:58½, but it was back of a wind shield and the record does not count.

Georgia Negro Lynched

Alamo, Ga., Aug. 13.—Jim Toller, a negro, was lynched by a mob of over 100 men for having entered the room of two daughters of a planter of Montgomery county while the girls were in bed asleep. The negro was tied to a tree and shot to death.

An Earthquake Somewhere

Cleveland, Aug. 13.—The seismograph at St. Ignatius observatory showed that an earthquake, probably 2000 miles distant from Cleveland, occurred. The east to west wave motions were pronounced.

Drowns From Motor Boat

Rangeley, Me., Aug. 13.—Oscar Schultz of Boston, a summer visitor, fell overboard from a motor boat while out on the lake and was drowned.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mlle. Chenal is famed as the most beautiful woman on the French operatic stage.

Mrs. Margaret H. Park, probation officer in Brooklyn, is employed by the Women's club of Brooklyn to do probation work among women and children.

It is only a matter of months since a woman was first allowed to practice law in Switzerland. It was to Fraulein Brustlein, the daughter of a Swiss judge, that this privilege was accorded.

Miss Edith N. Buckingham of Boston, A. B., A. M., Radcliffe, is said to be the first woman to receive the doctorate in zoology at Radcliffe. She has recently been doing research work under Dr. Mark, curator of the Harvard zoological museum.

American musicians interested in the compositions of Miss Ethel Smith will be interested to note that the University of Durham recently conferred the degree of musical doctor, honoris causa, upon this "able, serious and ambitious musician."

Mrs. William Moore, who for a number of years has had the entry of the highest circles of society in Paris, is becoming famous for the amusement her malapropisms in French are giving those circles. Some are so obvious Mrs. Moore is suspected of having some quiet fun at the expense of her French friends. She formerly was Kate Robinson of New York.

Fly Catches.

Ex-Pitcher Bill Dineen is umpiring better than several arbitrators who have been in the business for years.

No matter how great a pitcher may be, there is always some team that he is never successful against. The New York team, for instance, seems to be Walter Johnson's Jonah.

"Ginger" Beaumont, the Chicago National's pinch hitter, is certainly the season's Colonel Pinch. He has won many a game for Chance's team when he has been sent in to break it up or clinch it for the Cubs.

Harvard plans to engage Fred Tenney as professional baseball coach next year. The position, it is said, will be worth as much as $3,000 a year to the former Giant star. Besides, Tenney in his spare moments would be provided with remunerative work.

Pricked His Own Bubble.

This story, found in Rev. Dr. Henry H. Jessup's book, "Fifty-three Years in Syria," seems to indicate that religious vagaries are as short lived in the east as elsewhere. A friend of Dr. Jessup, visiting Jerusalem, met a queer looking solitary stranger pacing the streets of the city, accosted him, and after the usual greetings remarked:

"You are an American, I infer."

"Yes, I am," replied the queer looking man.

"And what are you doing here, if I may ask?"

"Ah, yes, I'm glad you asked. You see, I've come to preach the new doctrine, that there is to be no more death. If men will only accept it, we'll abolish death, and there'll be no more dying, nor graves, nor coffins, nor funerals. We shall just live right on."

"But," said Dr. Jessup's friend, "supposing you should sicken and die, what then?"

"Oh," said the man, "that would bust the whole thing!"

And it did. The poor delirious apostle died a few months later, and with him his "new doctrine."

Couldn't Think of It.

The handsome young plumber laid aside a piece of lead pipe and, approaching the beautiful kitchen maid, said:

"You look awful good to me."

"Go on; quit your kiddin'," she replied.

"But I mean what I say."

"I ain't got any time to listen to you now. Can't you see I'm busy?"

"Yes, but what's the use workin' when a fellow wants to make love to you? Say, if I make this job last so I can come back tomorrow will you have your work out of the way so we can talk things over? You're the purtiest girl I ever seen."

"If you think you can make a fool of me by such silly talk you're mistaken."

"But I mean every word I say. I want you to try to learn to love me."

"If you want to make love to me come around this evening. I'll be here."

"What! On my own time? What kind of a chump do you think I am?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Cautious Groom.

Pater (anxiously to bride)—Why, Mollie, where is that $1,000 check I gave you to place among your wedding presents? I don't see it anywhere.

Bride (cheerfully)—Oh, I gave it to James yesterday, daddy dear, and he cashed it this morning.

(Pater faints).—Harper's Weekly.

Friends.

Our friends are three—
First, those we cross the street to see;
Second, the people whom to meet
We really would not cross the street.
The third and last?
We cross the street when they go past!
—Puck.

A Heavyweight.

Harrigan—Oi hear that big Sandy McGilligan knocked an enemy down and out wid one blow.

Corrigan—Wid one blow! B'gorry. Sandy must have an awful strong breath!—Widow.

Joy For a Dead One.

Of just one fatal accident we'd gladly make a note;
'Tis when the only victim was the fool who rocked the boat.
—Kansas City Ledger.

A Diplomat

How He Got His Start In His Profession.

By SAMUEL E. BRANT.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

James Maitland, son of an admiral in the U. S. navy, fell in love with and married Mlle. Julie de Lavalle, the daughter of a French diplomat who had spent many years in the French service, a considerable portion of which time he resided in Washington. M. de Lavalle never represented his country as ambassador; he was an adept at secret methods then in vogue between nations, but, since the open diplomacy of the late Secretary Hay, now largely done away with. When any quick Machiavellian work was to be executed it fell to Lavalle.

Maitland and Mlle. de Lavalle were married while the groom was employed in the state department. At the time the Panama canal was being located and there was any amount of chicanery perpetrated both as to its location and the prevention of its location both by Central and North Americans. Then came young Maitland's opportunity. One morning the secretary sent for him, handed him a dispatch and told him that he wished him to take it to the United States consul at Vera Cruz, who would see that it reached its destination.

Delighted at being thus enabled to make a beginning in his profession, Maitland took the dispatch—it was placed in an official envelope of the state department addressed to the consul—and was about to leave when the secretary said to him:

"It is essential that the information contained in that envelope reaches our consul in Vera Cruz on or before the 13th. After that date it will be too late. It is well that you should know that its prompt delivery will involve the making or the failure to make millions of dollars by certain capitalists. You will therefore be very guarded in speaking of your mission and watch well the dispatch. I send it to Vera Cruz by you in order that no one in this country may know its ultimate destination. Nevertheless there are plenty of spies about, and we may have them right here in the state department. Be careful, and good luck to you."

When Maitland went home and with the exhilaration of youth told his wife of his mission, its importance, considering the interests involved, and all that, she failed to show a similar enthusiasm.

"What is it, pet?" he said. "You don't seem pleased."

"Jimmie," she replied, "you will never get it through."

"Why not?"

"They will steal it from you."

"What makes you think so, Julie?"

"From a little girl I have heard my father tell the ways people take to outwit one another. I know all about it. You know nothing."

However, the little woman packed her husband's suit case—all the baggage he proposed to take—then took the dispatch to the library, and when she returned handed her husband a box of cigars. He opened it and removed the top layers and below was an envelope addressed to Senora Sanchez, Mexico City, in Mme. Maitland's own hand.

"Little one, you're a brick," said the young diplomat. "I see your scheme. It would never do to leave the dispatch in my suit case under cover of a state department envelope, would it?"

"No. Now, Jimmie, do be careful of the suit case and don't let it out of your sight a moment."

Maitland gave her a dozen kisses, picked up the suit case, called a carriage and started for the train. He reached New York during the afternoon and went at once on board the steamer which was to sail early the next morning. He was about to lock his stateroom door on the suit case, when, remembering that there might be other keys that would unlock it, he took the dispatch out from under the cigars and put it in his pocket. If he was followed, with a view of stealing the document, his baggage was surely the first place the thief would look for it. In order to discover if the case had been opened for the purpose, in replacing the cigars he laid all of those on the top row with the ends in the same direction except one, which he reversed. Having done this he went on deck for air.

The next morning Maitland found himself out on the Atlantic ocean heading for the Gulf of Mexico. He walked the deck alone, having resolved not to make a single acquaintance. In the afternoon he went to his stateroom for a nap, and before lying down it occurred to him to examine his suitcase. Not that he really expected to find evidence of any one having been there, but simply to satisfy himself that it was as he had left it.

What was his astonishment to find every cigar in the box laid in the same direction. The one he had placed differently had been reversed.

The discovery took his breath away. After all, his wife was right. If there were those on his track who had already shown such skill in hunting for the document, what more would they do? Instinctively he clapped his hand to his breast pocket. The dispatch was there. But he did not feel assured that it would be there when he arrives at Vera Cruz. He vowed that no one should during the passage come within arm's length of him.

He napped in his berth and read a novel which he had brought with him during the afternoon and evening, not leaving his stateroom. The next morning he passed on deck. He expected every moment that some man would attempt to make his acquaintance. No man did, but a very pretty young woman sitting in a steamer chair looked at him as he passed her and cast down her long Spanish lashes. Every time he passed in pacing back and forth she gave him the same glance and the same downward sweep. He suspected her at once and put himself on his guard.

With the exception of the Spanish woman there was no evidence of any person or persons shadowing him. But on the second day out an old lady with very white hair came up the companionway and looked about for a seat. The ship was rolling, and Maitland, taking hold of her arm, supported her to a steamer chair. She thanked him, but he would have nothing to do with her. Surely he had reason to suspect every one. The old lady besides thanking him made some commonplace remark, to which it would have been polite for him to respond, but he turned from her as though she had some infectious disease.

Several times after that he surveyed her from a distance and noticed that she looked very peculiar. Indeed, after scrutinizing her one afternoon as she sat dozing in her steamer chair it occurred to him that she was a young person disguised as an old woman. When the day before the ship was due at Vera Cruz he saw her and the young Spanish woman sitting side by side and talking confidentially he made up his mind that they had been sent out from Washington to steal his dispatch and that one or both of them had already opened his suit case. Probably one did the work while the other kept watch.

A few hours before his arrival in port Maitland went to his stateroom, took the dispatch from his pocket and looked at it. He felt very happy. If he had got it so far on the journey despite those who were trying to get it from him surely he could do what little remained. Replacing it, he picked up his cigarette case, which he had left on a shelf, lighted a cigarette and, lying down with his novel, began to read. He soon became drowzy and fell asleep.

When he awoke the ship was in port. He felt nauseated. Something had happened. He clapped his hand to his side pocket.

The dispatch was gone.

"Beaten after all," he moaned.

Starting up, he staggered out and on to the deck. No one had gone ashore. A last hope occurred to him. He would have the two women arrested on a trumped up charge. There they were near the companionway. He rushed forward and, seeing a policeman on the dock, beckoned to him. The man met him on the companionway, and Maitland, slipping a ten dollar bill into his hand, told him that there were two women thieves on board who had robbed him. When the women reached the dock they were taken into custody. They made a great ado at their arrest, asserting their innocence.

"I am an American," said the old lady, "and I demand to be taken before the United States consul."

"I will take you to the consulate," said Maitland, "provided your confederate will consent to go with us."

The old lady persuaded the other woman to make no objection, assuring her that it was their best course. Maitland called a carriage, and the three travelers entered, the policeman climbing to the box. On reaching the consulate Maitland insisted that the Spanish woman go in with them. He did not dare leave her in the carriage. She seemed indifferent about it, and the three went in together. The consul being engaged at the time they were placed in the waiting room.

While waiting, Maitland, facing the old lady, scrutinized her. What was there that was familiar about her? Suddenly—the Spanish woman's back was turned—she gave him a smile.

He recognized his wife.

Rising, Julie went into the hall, Maitland following her.

"Don't worry," she said. "It's safe."

"Where?"

"In my corsage."

"How did you come by it?"

"I've had it all the time. When I handed you the cigar box in Washington it contained a dummy. I kept the dispatch."

"Who opened my suit case?"

"The woman in there."

"How do you know?"

"I saw plainly that she had been sent to delay the delivery of the dispatch and, pretending that I was on the same errand, won her confidence, and we agreed to work together. After she found the envelope was not in your suit case she was sure you had it on your person. You were very careless to leave your cigarettes in your stateroom. She picked the lock with a skeleton key, went in and replaced your cigarettes with those that had been drugged. When you were asleep she robbed you."

"And the dummy? What did she say when she discovered that?"

"She cried. Had she secured the dispatch she would have been paid $100,000."

While Julie was explaining she was opening her dress, took out the real dispatch and handed it to her husband. Returning to the room he had left, he told the Spanish woman that he had found the missing article, apologized and said she might go where she liked.

When Maitland delivered his dispatch his wife did not appear in the transaction. He was well launched in the profession he had chosen.

TAFT IS MUCH INTERESTED

Wants Hitchcock to Straighten Out Tangle In New York

A RATHER DELICATE MISSION

Harmony and Strong Man For Governor Necessary to Carry State In Which Republican Situation Is Full of Serious Complications—Available Men For Gubernatorial Race Loth to Undertake It

Washington, Aug. 13.—In spite of frequent declarations from Beverly that the president has adopted a policy of not interfering in any state party fights, it is regarded in Washington as absolutely certain that Frank H. Hitchcock is at this time engaged, upon direction from Mr. Taft, in trying to straighten out the tangle of Republicanism in New York, following his mysterious conference with Vice President Sherman and William Loeb, Jr., at the Manhattan hotel in New York city.

It is believed by the politicians in Washington that Hitchcock has been given the task of trying to get the leaders of the party in New York to agree upon a candidate for the governorship; that he went to New York with that end in view and his return to Beverly is for the purpose of reporting to Taft personally the result of his mission.

The party leaders admit that the squabble in New York has reduced matters to a state of virtual chaos; that the party so far has not shown any signs of lining up behind any one man solidly and that the time for heroic steps has come.

"As New York goes the country goes." This is an old saying among politicians, and it seems to close observers here that the administration has decided to do all in its power to strengthen Republicanism in the pivotal state. It would be almost disastrous to the policies of the president to lose the next house of representatives or to lose control of New York state.

The bitterness between the old-line leaders in the state and the Hughes wing of the party has not lessened, but rather has increased as a result of the various attempts which have already been made to get the factions together. Hitchcock has many friends in both wings and he is the logical man to make the last desperate attempt to put some measure of harmony into the party which at this time is torn apart to an apparently hopeless degree.

The leaders have been looking forward to hard fights in the far and middle west, but they have hoped all along that the eastern states would come up strong with undivided fighting power. Today they are almost ready to despair of New York's showing at the polls next November.

Theodore Roosevelt might accomplish much, according to the politicl seers, but so far he has not cleared the New York sky of clouds. He is lined up with the Hughes men, and against this faction are the old machine leaders at whose head stands Timothy L. Woodruff. Roosevelt has not yet succeeded in besting the machine leaders, and for this reason his capacity for helping things might not be great.

Another difficulty is that most of the available men for the gubernatorial race are loth to undertake it. They do not seem to think this is a good year to run on a Republican ticket in their state. Loeb, himself, it is reported here, has no keen desire for the task, but in the end he may be prevailed to take it with the hope of saving the party.

What the leaders and the administration want is a good candidate and a lot of party harmony. So far, they have secured neither, unless Hitchcock has been able to show them the way.

STRONG HUGHES CHAMPION

Roosevelt Will Probably Be Heard at Empire State Convention

New York, Aug. 13.—Former President Roosevelt will attend the Republican state convention, to be held at Saratoga next month. He says that if he should be selected as a delegate from Nassau county he will attend, and that in that case he will probably make a speech.

Should Roosevelt deliver an address, it is expected that he will make a strong defense of the Hughes administration and the reforms for which Governor Hughes has stood. Roosevelt is known to entertain strong views as to what the Republican party must do to carry the state this fall, and he has made it known that he will do all in his power to put the party on record for a direct nomination law at the next session of the legislature.

Boy Crushed to Death

Boston, Aug. 13.—Joseph Murphy, aged 16, was found crushed to death between the elevator and the woodwork of the sixth floor at 15 Chapman place. He started to ride on the elevator alone and, in some way, became caught between the cage and the walling.

POLICEMAN FALLS HEIR TO $125,000

But He Will Continue at His Old Job Just the Same

New York, Aug. 13.—Good fortune has come to Policeman Heinrich Wolf of this city and congratulations are being showered upon him by his fellow blueeoats, because of word from Germany that $125,000, or four times as many German marks, will soon be placed to his credit in a Berlin bank.

The same turn of fortune that brought him news of his extraordinary good luck brought Wolf a handsome loving cup from his associates. The cup was presented by Acting Captain McDermott, and the presentation was followed by many happy little speeches by the men.

Wolf is going to stick to his job, wear the uniform and pound beats, just as though nothing out of the usual course of events had happened. Wolf is married and has five children. The money coming to him was left by an uncle in Germany at his death.

STANDARD OIL COMPETITOR

Gulf Refining Company to Have Distributing Plants In Maine

Bangor, Me., Aug. 13.—The Gulf Refining company of Texas has leased an acre of land in Brewer for a term of years from the Brooks Brick company and will immediately erect there an oil distributing plant.

The oil will be brought to Brewer in tank cars. Kerosene, gasolene and several by-products of petroleum will be handled. The Gulf company has a distributing plant now in process of construction in Portland. Up to this time the Standard Oil company has had little or no competition in this vicinity.

CONFERENCE IS HALTED

Women's Baseball Game at Northfield Proves a Big Attraction

Northfield, Mass., Aug. 13.—A baseball game between women delegates proved too great an attraction to be missed and yesterday afternoon's session of the Northfield conference was practically deserted.

Fully 1000 delegates watched the game, and after it was finished a game between two teams, with ministers as umpires, was started.

Springfield Mother Has Triplets

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 13.—Triplets, a girl and two boys, were born in Wesson Maternity hospital, their mother being Mrs. Ray Collier. The infants and their mother are doing well.

Aviator Falls 100 Feet

Charleroi, Belgium, Aug. 13.—M. Lesnin, an aviator, fell from his aeroplane from a height of 100 feet and received injuries that probably will prove fatal.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

YACHTSMEN ENTERTAINING

Wollaston and Squantum Clubs Have Ladies' Day

Two yacht clubs of Quincy will observe ladies' day this afternoon and evening, the Squantum club and the Wollaston club, both having commodious clubhouses off the Quincy Shore reservation, and a large fleet of boats.

The Wollaston Yacht club will have a review and sail at 3 o'clock, with music at the club house during the afternoon and evening. At 6 o'clock a dinner will be served. The clubhouse has been prettily decorated and will be illuminated this evening for the concert and dance.

GRANITE CENTRES NOTIFIED.

The Granite Cutters Journal for August reports the tragedies by Louis Restelli at Quincy, and puts the granite workers all over the country on the lookout for him, saying the Quincy police are of the belief that the man will be found in some of the granite centres. A description of Restelli is given in the article.

BEST FIELD FOR AVIATION.

R. R. Young, manager of Charles F. Willard, was in Boston yesterday and came out to see the Harvard aviation field at Quincy, where the coming meet is to be held. He said it was the best field in the country at the present time for an aviation meet, and he predicted that the Quincy meet would be the biggest and best ever held in the United States, and that it would probably bring to Boston the international meet next year.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

The Braintree Council, Knights of Columbus, has added much to the social life of the town since its inception last January and they are now offering everyone a grand good time at their outing, which is to be held at Glen Echo park, near Randolph, on Saturday, August 20th. No better place in this vicinity could have been chosen for a picnic and there will be attractions for all who care to attend.

Besides the usual attractions of boating, bathing, bowling and dancing which the park affords there will be a red-hot ball game between Quincy and Randolph for a loving cup, to be presented the winner by Braintree Council. The cup is now on exhibition at the shoe store of John Heffernan, in Quincy.

Assurances have been received from neighboring towns which lead the committee to expect a large attendance. Dr. C. A. Sullivan is chairman of the committee and Joseph Shay is secretary, and they are leaving nothing undone to make sure that everybody has all the enjoyment that it is possible for such an occasion to afford.

BRAINTREE.

Arthur W. Cass, the successful news agent and merchant, has been confined to his home for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth F. Brown and daughter Mildred of Arnold street are going to Springfield to spend a few days in that locality.

Clarence Dow returned Thursday from the Quincy hospital to his home on Middle street and is rapidly gaining health and strength.

Mr. M. A. Minchin, superintendent of the post office, accompanied by Mrs. Minchin and son Arthur went to Provincetown via boat Friday for a few days.

Mrs. J. H. Ostrander of Brooklyn, N. Y., is spending the month of August with her sister, Mrs. J. B. Poore, and her niece, Mrs. O. W. Hollis at the home o fthe latter, 22 Cleveland avenue.

The pulpit supplies at the First Congregational church during August are unusually able men. Dr. Wallace last Sunday preached a most eloquent sermon. Rev. Willis Butler, pastor of Edwards church, Northampton, will preach tomorrow and it is hoped that Rev. Charles Lane of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., will occupy the pulpit the fololwing Sunday.

Walter B. Arnold whose burial in Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester, occurred this week, was a native of Braintree, the son of George W. and Sarah A (Wales) Arnold. He married Miss Etta Bird of Meeting House Hill, Dorchester, and passed the most of his life in that vicinity. He was survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. Mabel Rigby. He was a kindly and most useful man whom his many friends will sincerely mourn. He was 71 years old.

Social Realm

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Cole and family are pleasantly located at the corner of Prospect and South Central avenue. They have been at Rutland, Vermont for a year and previously they lived on Berlin street.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Lathrop of Whitney road leave the first of the coming week for San Francisco, California where Mr. Lathrop, who is connected with the Electric Boat Co., will be stationed for the next six months after which they go to Seattle.

• • •

• • •

Misses Robina and Edith Atkins are camping this week with out-of-town friends at Wayland. Mrs. Elisha D. Atkins of Bromfield street is chaperoning the party.

• • •

Mrs. Sadie M. Miller and children of Pearl street are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne Drew at Windsor Springs, Lewiston, Me.

• • •

John I. Hyland was among the arrivals this week registered at the Hillside Inn, Cohasset.

• • •

Mrs. Victor E. Miller of Russell park and Mrs. Frank J. Moore of Dysart street have been recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Tucker at Brookline, N. H.

• • •

Miss Florence Hammell is the guest of Mrs. Frank Morrison of Rockland.

• • •

Miss Mary Murphy and Mrs. Grace Holmes are having a delightful time at West Dennis. They intend staying for the rest of the summer.

• • •

A jolly party of young people left this morning for Watatick lake, Mass., where they will enjoy camp life for two weeks. Those from South Quincy were Helen C. Troupe, Georgie Michael, and Jennie Grassick.

WOODSUM—POWELL.

A wedding of especial interest to the people of the south part of the town was solemnized at Quincy, Aug. Aug. 6, when Benjamin H. Woodsum, Jr., son of Hon. and Mrs. B. H. Woodsum of Franklin street was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Powell of Quincy.

The ceremony was performed at the bride's home in the presence of the immediate relatives by Rev. Edward Norton of Quincy, now retired, but a former pastor of the Bethany church of that city.

The double ring service was used. The bride was attired in a travelling suit as immediately after the ceremony the happy couple took their departure by automobile for Boston and journeyed thence by steamer to Camden, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodsum will spend the month of August in that city, which is the old home of the groom's mother and will make their headquarters at the Hosmer house. Mr. and Mrs. Woodsum will be at home to their friends after October 1, at 210 Franklin street, South Braintree.

Mrs. Woodsum was a very popular young lady of Quincy and well known in this town, especially among the younger people. Mr. Woodsum is one of Braintree's rising young men and one who is liked by all. He was a pupil in the public schools of the town and a graduate of Thayer Academy. After completing his course there, he spent three years in the Boston university law school graduating in June 1907. In August of the same year he suecessfully passed the examinations and was admitted to the bar. He immediately began to put his education to practical use and in September entered the office of Currier, Rollins, Pillsbury and Young, the well known law firm of State street, Boston, where he is employed at the present time.

Mr. Woodsum's able work as moderator at the town meetings last spring evoked much favorable comment from his fellow citizens. He is a member of the South Congregational church, the South parish men's club, the Odd Fellows and the Braintree club. His many friends here unite in wishing him and his bride a long and prosperous life.

WEYMOUTH.

The many friends of Mrs. Clinton Davy of Front street will be pleased to learn that she is slowly convalescing from her severe illness.

Henry N. Willoby of this town has purchased two of the A. W. Baker houses on Baker avenue.

MAYOR AUTHORIZED

search Saturday until he finds the suspect.

Late yesterday afternoon Chief Burrell received a telegram from Chief Hayes of Hoboken, N. J., asking if the clew to Restelli had been lost, and stating that they had a man under investigation who answered Restelli's description. Chief Burrell immediately wired back a complete description of the man wanted.

Chief Burrell says that he receives half a dozen letters, in addition to telegrams, everyday, asking for descriptions of Restelli, and stating they have a man in view who they think may be the man wanted.

The Chief said this morning that people were looking for an Italian workman, and that they were thus being misled. Restelli would hardly be taken for an Italian. He speaks good English with practically no accent, and is probably fairly well dressed. It is well known in Quincy that he was fond of dressing well, and that when he had money he was lavish in his purchases of clothing. An example of his extravagance may be given, when it is known that a few weeks ago he parted with $8 for a panama hat.

The new description which the Chief will issue will be such that will cause the searchers not to pay too much attention to Italian laborers.

Although two weeks have passed since Louis Restelli startled New England by his shooting of his mother and brother and C. H. Hardwick, the vigilance and the search for him in the West Quincy quarries has rather augmented than abated.

Spurred by the hope of winning either $100 or $1500 reward, crowds of men and boys hunt the quarry district in the hope that they may discover the man or his body.

George H. French was fined $50 for violation of the liquor law at Weymouth.

Luigi Bonnballi was fined $5 for assault at Quincy, put under bonds $200 to keep the peace for three months.

SPORTING CHAT.

Games today:

Quincy vs. Weymouth at Water street grounds.

Ramblers vs. Adams at Merrymount Park.

Bigelows vs. Fore River Apprentices at Ward Two playground.

North Quincys vs. Wollaston at the Pines.

• • •

If Quincy wins today she will secure a big lead, and have a percent of .786 on the books to Deweys .583. If Dewey wins the order will be the same and the respective totals .714 and .666. If Randolph wins and Dewey loses, Randolph takes second with .615, however, a win by Lincoln will leave the league order just the same. Rockland can take fifth by defeating Stoughton.

• • •

Jimmy Fay made a clever play last Saturday. He stopped a ball on the base line but a few inches from where a runner planked his foot and forced the man at third. Two inches either way and he'd have been spiked.

• • •

It is seldom that Armstrong drops a ball. When there is a steal expected or a man on first he plays close to second and has speed enough to cover his territory even then.

• • •

Bill Dugagn is a corking outfielder. He is not as strong on the throw as he might be, but when it comes to a question of fielding he's all there

• • •

Larry Connolly is practically just out of high school. He attended in Dorchester. He is just about right in centre and hits well, too.

• • •

Walter Lonergan is the star man of the aggregation, always cool, on the alert, a clean and handy fielder and batter, not to mention his being the best thrower in the league. He is the ideal man for third corner. He was once drafted by the New York Highlanders.

• • •

Briggs played for Salem High in his youth and is better now than ever before.

• • •

Norwell, in right field, is hardly a star fielder but makes up for this deficiency with the wand. He once was feared about Boston as a terrific hitter and his eye is coming back.

• • •

The biggest surprise in the lot is Fish, the first two games he played marked him as rather poor, but after he got used to his team and environment he rose with a bound in one of the best receivers on the circuit now.

• • •

The centre of the diamond attracts a large part of the attention at a ball game, and for Quincy the post of honor is well filled by Johnny Glaze, former Dartmouth star. Johnny has never had to extend himself to hold the opposing batters and he deserves a lot of credit for our standing.

• • •

Eddie Donovan, who played short a few games, is in charge of a surveyor's party on some layout work.

• • •

Tom Clinton of the Fore River Apprentice team is as conscientious and fast a left fielder as there is in his league. He never quits, and makes some tremendous catches.

• • •

Phil Rice of the Ramblers chopped off the tips of the first and second fingers of his right hand. He was testing the sharpness of a knife in cutting a hair and missed his stroke It will probably affect his playing.

• • •

Ainsmith, who is now doing about one half of the receiving for Washington in the American League, caught for Rockland o fthe Old Colony league the first part of the season. He was sent to Lawrence of the New England League, and thence to the Senators. In his first game with them he clouted the ball for a three sacker and has done steady work right along. From the Old Colony to the American league is a tremendous leap, and I hope Ainsmith retains his laurels.

• • •

T. M. Claflin o fthe Wollaston Golf club was defeated in the semi finals for the presidents cup at Manchester, Vt., by W. S. Carleton 4 and 2.

• • •

Yesterday the Rambler juniors defeated the Upland road team at base ball 7 to 2.

Queer Looking Worms.

New Zealand, Australia, the Samoan and the Solomon islands as well as portions of the Hawaiian group are the homes of various species of worms with thick, heavy bodies and with a well defined neck connecting the body with a head that is a startling reminder of that of the monkey. In the Sandwich islands they are called "me-talu-ki," which means "creeper with a child's head." An old New Zealand legend says that at one time they were of immense proportions and threatened the extinction of all human life on the islands.

Irish Wit.

Swift scoffed at Irish "wit" in some biting lines. Nevertheless Irish wit is one of the most precious things. One soon has a surfeit of the professional funny man in England, the pawky Scot, the American humorist. The Irish peasant never disappoints, and with him it is all so naive and natural. —London Saturday Review.

BIGGEST DAY FOR YEARS

Squantum Yacht Club Have Long List of Guests

Bright skies and good wholesail breeze greeted the Squantum Yacht club Saturday afternoon on the occasion of its annual Ladies' day. Unfortunately many of the yachts of the club were in attendance at races at South Boston and Hull, so that there were not as many boats to take out parties as needed. The large Launch J. L. Harvey, however, was in attendance and took out several parties.

During the afternoon Teel's band gave an excellent concert on the club house piazzas, and on the return from the sail refreshments were served. the sail was at 3.30 the several yachts passing in review of Vice Commodore George W. Hinkley and Rear Commodore Eleazer E. Drew, who were in the launch Louise. Commodore Bryant was out of town, and the duties of reviewing the fleet fell upon these officers.

Most of the yachts went out under full sail, but several tucked in reefs that the immaculate gowns of the ladies might not get sprinkled. All of the yachts carried the pennant of the Squantum club which is a white tomahawk on blue field.

During the evening the club house piazzas were illuminated with Chinese lanterns, and electric lights, and there was dancing in the hall, music being furnished by Vernon's orchestra.

The committee in charge were William A. Feld, Stanley W. Ferguson, George W. Glover and Eleazer F. Drew.

The yachts to participate in the review and sail and their guests were as follows:

Flagship Louise, Vice Commodore George W. Hinckley—Rear Commodore Eleazer F. Drew, Miss Bessie Brooks, Mrs. G. W. Hinckley, Miss M. L. Hinckley, Mrs. E. F. Drew, Mrs. George A. Fuller, Mrs. S. S. Knapp.

ONLY SON DIED ABROAD

Admiral Bowles Learns Bad News from Germany

Word was received Sunday morning of the death in Germany of Thomas Bowles, the only son of Admiral and Mrs. Francis T. Bowles. The young man who a student at Harvard university, sailed for Europe after the commencement in June to visit his grandmother and aunt in Berlin.

He was taken ill with pneumonia and ordered to a hospital, where he died. He was about 20 years of age. It is thought that he must have died Saturday night as the cablegram announcing his death was received Sunday morning.

QUINCY POST OFFICE.

Dr. Chauncey M. Marstin, a prominent physician of Braintree, was taken suddenly ill on Sunday, and his condition is serious. At noon today, however,, he was reported more comfortable. He formerly practised in Quincy, and was prominent in Grand Army circles.

WOLLASTON LADIES DAY

Large Fleet of Boats and Many Fair Guests

The Wollaston Yacht club was favored with fair weather and a good breeze for Ladies' day, on Saturday, and a fleet of 25 yachts and launches took out about 200 guests for the sail which was the big event of the day.

The clubhouse on the parkway presented a very attractive scene all the afternoon and evening. Large American flags were flying and others were used in decorating the building. Along the walk leading to the clubhouse was red, white and blue bunting, and a hundred or more Japanese lanterns were displayed on both the water front and the shore front of the clubhouse.

Commodore L. E. Crosscup used the Corneta as the flagship and as the different boats passed in review and saluted he responded with a gun. A longer sail than usual was taken, the yachts heading first to Long island, then to Peddocks island and back to the club house. The wholesale breeze caused good-sized waves and white caps and some of the boats shipped considerable water so that it was necessary for some yachts to tuck in a reef. On the return the large schooner Romance of ex-Commodore Burgess ventured a little too far in shore and went aground in front of the clubhouse just at flood tide. All efforts to pull her off failed, and she staid there all night and all day Sunday.

During the afternoon an orchestra furnished popular music on the veranda at the clubhouse. Upon the return from the sail the boats again passed in review of Commodore Crosscup.

It was necessary to set the tables two and three times for the dinner which was served in the clubhouse hall after the sail. Cold meats, baked beans, rolls, doughnuts, etc., were on the bill of fare.

In the evening there was another large gathering for the hop. The clubhouse was brilliantly illuminated and very attractive.

The boats participating with commander and guests were:

$1,200 FIRE AT WOLLASTON

Neighbors Hustle Out All Furniture of W. A. McConnell

The alarm from Box 515 at 1.49 Sunday called the department to a lively blaze in the two-and-one-half story house at 55 Bromfield street, Wollaston Park, owned and occupied by William A. McConnell, a Boston builder. The fire when discovered was in a room in the upper part of the house. It was first seen by a neighbor who turned his lawn hose onto it, but the firewas burning so briskly that the lawn hose was useless. In the meantime some one pulled the alarm from the new box near the Quincy Mansion school.

The family with the exception of a son were away. Mrs. McConnell is in New York and Mr. McConnell was attending a funeral. At home at the time was a son Fred who had a young friend with him. The boys had been reading in the room where the fire started a short time before, but at the time of the discovery of the fire were in the basement.

The alarm brought the Wollaston and Atlantic apparatus and the steamer from the Central station. Two hydrant streams were brought into play from the hydrant at the corner of Beach and Everett streets, but by this time the fire had worked through the roof and it was necessary to drown it out.

The sounding of the alarm brought Officer Crooker and a large crowd of neighbors to the scene and practically all of the furniture carpets, pictures etc., on the first and second floor were carried out and placed on the lawn where it was covered with blankets. The fire, however, did not get below the story where it started, although the water pouring down through the floors caused some damage. The two streams used in extinguishing the fire were carried up ladders and through widows so that the very seat of it was reached. Chemical streams from Combination 2 and H & L 3 completed the work.

Chief Williams estimates the loss on building and contents to be $1200. The cause of the fire is unknown but there is a suspicion that the boys when in the upper rooms may have been smoking cigarettes, and that the fire started from a cigarette stub. Chief Williams complimented the neighbors on their good work in saving the furniture.

ACCIDENT TO BATHER.

A young man whose name could not be learned, received a bad cut on his right arm Sunday morning while in bathing near the steamboat wharf at Houghs Neck. The young man dived off of the float and the water not being very deep at that time, his arm came in contact with a broken tonic bottle. A deep and ragged cut was made in the arm which bled profusely. He was taken to a cottage where he was stopping and a physician called, who dressed the wound.

TODAY'S COURT.

J. Joseph Menglu was fined $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Frank Moralles of Weymouth was arraigned for neglect of family, and was ordered to contribute $1 per week.

Gustave Borgstrom of Quincy and William Russell of Milton were fined $3 each. William McPherson of Quincy $10, Moriarto B. Russo of Quincy $3, Jeremiah J. Kelley of Quincy $10 for drunkenness.

James and Nellie O'Brien were fined $10 each for using profane language on the Blue Hills parkway at Milton.

Bessie Maloney and Marion I. Whitcomb were arraigned for lewdness at Holbrook. Cases continued until Thursday.

YACHTSMAN DROWNED

Fell from Yacht When at Mouth of Blacks Creek

Guy C. Scott, aged 30 years, of 72 Grampian way, Dorchester, was drowned off Black's creek, Sunday afternoon, in the vicinity of 6 o'clock. The young man with his brother John own the yacht Ariel and had been spending the day upon the water. They left the Savin Hill yacht club Sunday morning and in the afternoon put into Adams Shore when they took some ladies aboard for a sail.

Shortly before 6 o'clock they started for Adams Shore where they were to have lunch. In making a tack while off Blacks creek, Guy was at the bow tending the jib sheet. As the boat came about he slipped and fell overboard.

The women screamed but John Scott assured them that Guy would be all right, as he was a good swimmer, and the shore was but 200 feet distant. In the meantime the tender was unfastened and pushed toward Guy who was then swimming toward the boat. When within a few feet of it he suddenly sank. The eel grass is very thick at that place, and it is thought he must have become entangled in it. The two men in the boat made every possible effort to help the man and recover the body, but were unable to do so.

The women by this time had become hysterical and after they had been calmed somewhat they were put ashore and the police notified. Later John Scott came over from Savin Hill in a power boat and dragged the creek in the hope of recovering the body, but they were unsuccessful Sunday night

The body of young Scott was recovered shortly after 1 o'clock this noon by Officer Phillips. It was near where the body sank Sunday night. After being viewed by the Medical Examiner the body was taken in charge of by relatives.

JUDGE FLINT IN ACCIDENT

His Auto Hit by Electric Car At Houghs Neck

Judge James H. Flint of the Norfolk probate court was severely bruised and shaken up Saturday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock when his automobile collided with an electric car on Sea street near the Casino, Houghs Neck. Judge Flint was seated in the back of the automoblie, which was driven by his chauffeur, Edward Noonan. As the automobile approached the Casino it was confronted by a team, and the chauffeur turned onto the car tracks to avoid hitting the wagon. As he turned onto the tracks he was directly in front of an approaching electric car. The motorman shut off power, but there was not time to avoid a collision.

The Chauffeur jumped and escaped injury. When the car and automobile came together the front of the automobile was smashed and Judge Flint thrown heavily to the ground. He was picked up in a semi conscious condition and taken to the Casino, where he was attended by Drs. Garey, Montgomery and Fitz. The doctors found that no bones had been broken, but that the Judge had been severely shaken up and bruised. He was later removed to his summer home on Great Hill.

ENJOYABLE OUTING.

The engineering corps of Pneumatic Scale corporation, located at Norfolk Downs, enjoyed a very pleasant outing on Saturday afternoon, taking a trip among the islands of the harbour and along the North Shore to witness the Sonderklasse races. The party consisted of Messrs. Brunnings, Cleaves, Little, Bishop, Axberg and Walter.

STATE POLICE ON CASE

Will Help in Search for Restelli the Murderer

There are no new developments in the Restelli case this morning, but the police are still at work on the case. This morning the State police took hold of the case and State Officer John C. Scott of Braintree has been assigned to it. He and Chief Burrell are working on the case today, but just what line they are at work upon has not been given out. Chief Burrell received a letter from Inspector McKay this morning, who is out of town working on the case, but he had nothing important to report.

There was quite a little excitement in the quarry district Sunday when a story was started that a coat belonging to Restelli had been found near the Ballou quarry. It turned out, however that the coat found was not one owned by Restelli, but that it belonged to the young Spanish boy who was drowned several weeks ago while in swimming at this quarry. The identification was made by articles found in the pockets.

James H. Welsh, one of West Quincy's well known citizens, died Saturday night after a week's illness at his home, 290 Copeland street, aged about 55 years. Mr. Welsh conducted the billiard and cigar store on Copeland street for many years and was very popular with the young people. He was a member of Quincy lodge of Elks. An Elks funeral will be held Tuesday morning.

BRIEFS

Rev. Edward Norton preached at the East Weymouth Congregational church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Carr have returned to their home in Unionville after passing a week at Houghs Neck.

Ground has been staked out for a new and larger police station on the boulevard, Wollaston, on its former site.

A. G. Olney, auctioneer, real estate and insurance, formerly of Newport avenue is now located with M. A. Boynton of Beale street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Packard have returned to their home on Kenwood street, Campello, after a two weeks' visit in this city.

J. E. Johnson, purchasing agent for the Laconia Car Co., residing on Babcock street, Manet beach, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation and started today for St. Andrews, N. B.

Secretary Ernest G. Gay of the Y. M. C. A. with Mrs. Gay and children are leaving today for Sagamore beach where they have taken a cottage until after Labor day.

The handsome power boat built at Lorings at East Braintree for Arthur P. Homer of Wollaston was launched on Saturday and took a trial spin. She is named the Remoh, the reverse of the family name, from designs by Mr, Homer, and is speedy as well as handsome. She is 35 feet over all and has a beam of seven feet: is equipped with a 45 horse power engine expected to develop 14 knots. She is painted black.

OFFERING OF $61,500

Simpson Will Make No More Collections at Old Orchard Grounds

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 15.—The $61,500 which Rev. A. B. Simpson of New York had pledged him for the Christian and Missionary alliance yesterday may be the last of these collections which he has taken annually for twenty-five years.

In his statement that this would be his last collection, Simpson said it was because of his objections to the projected meeting here later in the month of a religious gathering with beliefs at variance with his own.

In the course of his sermon on the evangelization of the world Simpson asked for volunteers in foreign missionary work. There were responses from 202 persons. He declared that there are not as many Christians in the United States today as there were 100 years ago, and that there are 200,000,000 more heathen in the world today than there were then.

BICYCLE FAILS ON INCLINE

"Dare Devil Dash" at Last Proves Fatal to Sensational Performer

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 15.—William Wadsworth of Youngstown, O., known professionally as "Dare Devil Dash," died at a local hospital of injuries sustained when he fell a distance of seventy feet while performing at an amusement park near the city.

Wadsworth's act was to coast on a bicycle down a steep incline with his clothing a mass of flames. While appearing here his machine collapsed just after he had started on his downward course, and he fell to the ground.

Ramblers Did Not Win in Game with Adams A. A.

The Adams A. A., travelling at a fast clip, beat the Ramblers out on the latter's misplays Saturday, by a 4 to 2 score. The ability of Charlie Knight to push the ball out of the diamond went far toward his team's victory. Knight in fact, was the hero of the game.

The runs were scored in the first, second, fifth and eighth, the Ramblers tallying first. Manning walked and took second on McCarthy's neat sacrifice. H. Chapman sent a long single over center on which Manning scored easily, but Chapman went out trying to make second, Murphy fanned one run.

Manning tossed out Dakers in the second but Brownrigg walked. Smith drove one at McCarthy who dropped the ball tagging Brownrigg. Rice caught Brownrigg off second. He turned the same trick on Smith, but Murphy lost the throw and Smith took second. Mulligan singled over right and Smith scored, Mulligan taking second on the throw in and scoring when H. Chapman heaved to the outfield in an attempt to catch him pilfering third. Jenkins walked and went down stealing on Collins' fourth ball. Two runs.

The Ramblers got their second in the fifth. Conway was passed and went out stealing. M. Chapman fanned. O'Brien singled and stole and Barry chucked to center trying to catch Ben napping. O'Brien scored. Fowler whiffed.

Adams made their last two in the eighth on a hit and two errors. Knight pounded the ball down the hill in right field and scored Dakers fanned. O'Brien took Brownrigg's long fly. McCarthy fumbled both Smith's and Mulligan's easy chances, and Smith scored when McCarthy's slow throw on Jenkins' try and Mulligan got second on a blocked ball. Collins hit to M. Chapman who tossed out Jenkins at second via Manning. Two runs.

Rice was handicapped by an injured hand but pitched great ball. His support was extremely loose and cost him the game.

Knight pitched a great game also, his hitting being another big feature. Besides his homer in the eighth he connected for a three sacker.

IS HELD AS FUGITIVE

Russian Arrested Near Boston In Connection With $50,000 Theft

Boston, Aug. 15.—Audrew Rullow, a Russian, who was arrested at Squantum, where he was passing the summer, on a charge of being a fugitive from justice in connection with the theft of $50,000 from the subtreasury of Russia at Tiflis in 1907, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Commissioner Darling, and was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing Aug. 24. In default of bail he is in jail.

The young prisoner holds a degree of Ph. D. from the University of Zurich, and speaks Russian, Lettish, Yiddish, German and Italian well. His English is poor.

Teaching music in Boston has been Rullow's chief means of earning his living, though he is editor of a small publication, the Lettish title of which is freely translated as The Workman. The tendencies of this paper, with the contents of other papers and circulars found by the officers in Rullow's room, indicate that he is of anarchistic tendencies.

FIRE DESTROYS BRUSSELS FAIR

100,000 PEOPLE IN PANIC

Troops Called to Rescue Sunday Crowd Which Thronged "White City of World's Fair"—Animals In Big Menagerie Perish—Only Two Persons Killed, but Many Are Injured—Loss Is Estimated at $100,000,000

Brussels, Aug. 15.—The "White City of the World's Fair," as the Belgians have called their 1910 exposition, is a mass of flames and smouldering ruins.

A spark falling into inflammable material in the telegraph building burst out in flames, which, driven by a high wind, swept rapidly in all directions. Soon the Belgian, English and French sections were destroyed.

The loss is estimated at 500,000,000 francs ($100,000,000).

The firemen and detachments of soldiers, called quickly to the scene, found themselves baffled by a gale which carried the burning embers to all parts of the grounds.

To the left of the main building arose the picturesque roofs and spires of "Bruexelles' kermesse," a Belgian Coney Island, with water chutes, toboggan slides and scores of side shows. This place was alive with Sunday crowds and before they could be gotten out with any semblance of order the kermesse was afire.

The crowds became panic stricken and men, women and children fought madly to escape. The exits became choked with the struggling masses, and men used their fists to clear the pathway. Many were trampled under foot and badly injured.

An engine corps from Antwerp attempted to dynamite the bridge of the French section, in the hope of checking the fire, but the flames leaped across and engulfed the Italian, Russian, Austrian, Japanese, Chinese and Norwegian buildings. Forty houses on the Avenue Solbosch, adjoining the exposition, were destroyed.

At the time of the outbreak not less than 100,000 persons were circulating in the grounds and the kermesse. Troops were ordered out and came at double-quick to aid the police in clearing the great grounds.

This was accomplished in fair order, except within the limits of the kermesse, where the vast crowds became entangled in an almost inextricable mass, fighting desperately to find an escape from the flames which swept viciously through the tinder-like structures.

Soon the enormous facade tumbled in ruins. Considering the rapidity of the conflagration, the small loss of life is marvellous. So far as is known only two are dead. The injured, as officially announced, number thirty, but probably many hundreds received minor hurts.

As the flames reached the menagerie, it was decided to shoot the beasts, but the heat drove back the soldiers and the animals were left to their fate. The multitude of people were driven back to a safe distance and watched the thrilling spectacle of the destruction of the white city.

Tongues of fire mounted high into the heavens and flaming embers were carried off by the wind and fell upon the residences beyond, settting them on fire.

The exposition was one of the main atttractions in Europe this summer, and thousands of Americans have visited the beautiful "White City."

The fire was finally gotten under control. The Belgian and English sections are in ruins, while all the other sections, including the American, were partly destroyed.

Bands of thieves engaged in pillage, and a soldier was stabbed while attempting to arrest three men whom he found rifling a jewelry exhibit. The diamond exhibitors are heavy losers.

GUARDS REACH QUEBEC

New Characters Are Introduced Intc the Crippen-Leneve Case

Quebec, Aug. 15.—Sergeant Mitchell of Scotland Yard and the two wardresses from Holloway jail arrived here Sunday to help Inspector Dew take Dr. Crippen and Ethel C. Leneve back to London to be tried, charged with the murder of Belle Elmore.

Both Crippen and Miss Leneve attended religious services at the jail yesterday. The man heard mass in the Catholic chapel with two armed guards at his elbow. The authorities permitted the girl to listen to the church of England service in a small nook behind the altar where she could see and hear, but was herself screened from observation.

Railroad Station Robbed

Ashland, N. H., Aug. 15.—The sum of $357 was stolen from the ticket office of the Boston and Maine railroad here. The ticket agent, Chester Burnell, had left the office for less than twenty minutes, when he returned to find that the window had been pried open and the bag containing the money stolen.

RAILROAD STRIKE SETTLED

Delaware and Hudson Trackmen and Firemen Win Flat Rate Demand

Albany, Aug. 15.—The strike of maintenance of way employes of the Delaware and Hudson company, which has been in progress since July 2, was settled at a conference of representatives of the company, the strikers and the state bureau of mediation and arbitration.

The company agreed on a flat rate of $57.50 a month for trackmen and $75 for firemen, with no overtime or loss from a day's absence by reason of illness or other reasonable excuse.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE
"Angel of the Trenches"
During the Crimean War

GAVE LIFE TO THE SICK

Death of Florence Nightingale, Noted as Heroine of Crimean War

London, Aug. 15.—Miss Florence Nightingale, the famous nurse of the Crimean war, and the only woman who ever received the Order of Merit, died at her London home.

Although she had been an invalaid for a long time, rarely leaving her room, where she passed the time in a half-recumbent position, and was under the constant care of a physician, her death was somewhat unexpected.

On May 12 last she celebrated her 90th birthday and was the recipient of a congratulatory message from King George.

Florence Nightingale, the most famous of army nurses and the best-loved woman in England, gave practically her whole life to the care of the sick and to the prevention of disease. She was the founder of modern nursing, organizing a new system during the Crimean war.

The British government only recently bestowed upon her the highest honor ever paid a woman by admitting her to the Order of Merit, all the other members of which are men.

Soak the clothes over-night.

It loosens the dirt and makes the work of washing very much easier.

Use three tubs, one for table linen, one for bed and body linen, one for the soiled towels and cloths.

Wet the clothes, rub Lenox Soap Solution over the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece by itself, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water and let stand over-night.

TO MAKE LENOX SOAP SOLUTION:—Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces, dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

Lenox Soap Solution does better work than soap; and is more economical, because there is no waste.

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said:

"'I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful. If only women knew what a comfort they are, they would all have one. I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was smell and smoke from an oil stove, and that it heated a room just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now, not one of them would give hers up for five times its cost.'"

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a kettle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for difficult or heavy cooking. Now—she knows.

Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? No more coal to carry, no more coming to the dinner table so tired out that you can't eat. Just light a Perfection Stove and immediately the heat from an intense blue flame shoots up to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven. But the room isn't heated. There is no smoke, no smell, no outside heat, no drudgery in the kitchen where one of these stoves is used.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

NORTH QUINCY VICTORIOUS

Defeat the Wollaston Team Four to Two

The second game of the series between the North Quincys and Wollastons on Saturday was won by the former, 4 to 2. The game is considered the best played at the Pines this year.

Flynn's fielding at third was sensational. Curtis covered first in grand style, and Hoyt made some great plays at short. Smith of the North Quincys fanned twelve and twice fanned two men with runners on second and third.

The third game of the series will be played at the Pines in September. North Quincy plays Montclair at the Pines this week Saturday.

BRIEFS

Miss May and Ada Williams of Barry street spent the week end in Milford.

Hiram W. Campbell of Copeland street has gone to Hallowell, Me., for a few weeks.

John Thomas of Standish avenue is entertaining his sister frm New York for three weeks.

Peter Lepage of Providence, R. I., is spending his two weeks' vacation in this city.

O. H. Leaman of Orange, N. J., has been the guest of friends in this city the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. McQuarrie of Bridge street spent the week end at Portland, Maine.

It is reported that the cow worm is destroying tomato plants in local gardens.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Reardon and daughter of Hancock street returned Friday from a two weeks' vacation pleasantly spent at York Beach, Me.

Mrs. Anthony Lepage and daughter, Mrs. Thomas Mathews and granddaughter Marion Landry are spending their vacation in Providence, R. I.

It is probable that the Old Colony street railway has abandoned the idea of another track on Atlantic street or the boulevard to the new aviation field at Squantum, as time is too short. The long new turnout on Squantum street will come in handy.

"A Christian" was the subject of the morning service at the Hall Place M. E. church on Sunday, the text being taken from Acts. 11-26. "The disciples were called Christians first in Antioch." In the evening the pastor spoke on the subject, "Almost a Christian"—Acts. 26-28. "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian," was the text.

☞Every dollar spent in Quincy helps the city. And every merchant who keeps the goods that the people want; sells them at the right prices; treats his customers courteously and squarely; serves them promptly and in a businesslike manner and insists that his clerks shall do the same and then LETS THE PUBLIC KNOW WHAT HE IS DOING can help to keep trade in Quincy. They are buying goods somewhere. There is a way to reach them. ADVERTISE.

SMUGGLING ON LARGE SCALE

Thousands of Aliens Enter United States Each Year

MANY CHINESE ARE INCLUDED

Suspicions of Immigration Officials Confirmed by Discovery of Eight Celestials on the Saxonia—Captain of Liner Will Be Held Accountable For Escape of Stowaways—Two of His Officers Are Held

Boston, Aug. 15.—Stricter inspection of incoming steamships at Boston, Philadelphia and New York will probably be brought about by the recent discovery of eight Chinese stowaways aboard the steamship Saxonia.

The developments following the arrest of Joe Kee and his statements to the federal authorities have fully confirmed a suspicion long held in the minds of the immigration officials that large numbers of undesirable aliens, including many Chinese, have entered the country at various seaboard ports as stowaways.

While the inspection of incoming liners is complete as far as the passengers of all classes is concerned, and all ordinary precautions against stowaways landing here are taken by the immigration authorities, the rigid search of the many possible hiding places in a big ocean steamship must necessarily fall upon the crew and officers of the steamer.

The responsibility for all occurrences upon a liner rests upon the captain, and the action taken by the federal authorities in issuing a warrant for Captain Benison of the Saxonia is considered evidence of a change in the methods of handling this class of unwelcome travelers on the ships.

Captain Benison will present himself at the federal building to answer a charge of negligence in allowing Chinamen to land in this country. The charge is technical, as it is not pretended by the federal officers that the Saxonia's commander had any personal knowledge of the presence of the stowaway Chinamen on his vessel.

James Evans, master-at-arms, and William Hackett, lamp trimmer, of the steamship Saxonia, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Darling, charged with aiding and abetting the smuggling of Chinese into the port. They were held in $2000 bonds for hearing on Aug. 23.

With the help of the local police Chinese Inspector McCabe and the other immigration inspectors are searching the city for trace of the seven Chinamen who are supposed to have escaped at the time Joe Kee was caught.

The stories told the federal authorities by Kee point to an extensive and long-standing system of smuggling Chinamen into this country, and the immigration and federal authorities are turning every effort to trace the mattter to the men higher up.

It is stated by men thoroughly acquainted with the workings of the immigration regulations at this port and other Atlantic seaboard cities, that the number of aliens who enter this country annually, either as stowaways or as deserting seamen whose sole object in signing the ship's papers on the other side of the water is to enter the United States, amounts to thousands.

SAYS SHE USED TRICKERY

But Paladino's Former Manager Believes In "Mysterious Power"

New York, Aug. 15.—Hereward Carrington, who brought Eusapio Paladino over here from Naples, gave a lecture at the Berkeley Lyceum to expose some of the tricks by which mediums fool the public.

Incidentally Carrington spoke of his former ward, Mme. Paladino. He was sincere, he said, in bringing her to America last year. He believed she had a great mysterious power which should be displayed here for the benefit of science. And then, after several psychologists had interviewed her, Carrington found to his bitter disappointment, he admitted, that she used trickery.

He still believes, he said, that she sometimes does use a "great mysterious power."

OLD COLONY LEAGUE

Quincys Win Again from the Deweys

Saturday's Old Colony league games resulted as follows:

Quincy 7, Weymouth 2.
Stoughton 10; Rockland 5.
Randolph 6; Lincoln 5.

The league standing to date:

	Won.	Lost.	Per.
Quincy	11	3	.786
Randolph	8	5	.615
Weymouth	7	5	.583
Lincoln	6	8	.429
Stoughton	5	9	.357
Rockland	3	10	.231

Saturday's win means eight straight for Quincy with Glaze and Fish in the points. Nothing can excell the smoothness with which the Quincy team works, and the pennant is so sure to come to Quincy that Mike Shea is having the flag pole made now.

Mulloy and Lefty Ford warmed up and the youngster looked good to the Dewey manager, so he went in and finished the game after a fierce drubbing in the second when the locals collected five runs. The game was late in starting owing to a missing chest protector, and was delayed by Ford's slowness of delivery, dragging out to abnormal length. With this game safely tucked away there is practically no chance for Quincy to lose the lead of the league.

McDevitt, a left hand hitter, was first up for Dewey. He fouled seven balls and Fish dropped the last one. The next ball was straight over and clouted it far over Connolly's head in center. In attempting to jump the wire fence in deep center Connolly fell and cut his knee, McDevitt scoring a homer. But for Connolly's fall he would have been held at third. Briggs dropped Glaze's throw, and Eggleton was safe. Eggleton stole, Fish fumbling and Armstrong dropping throw. The prospects were exceedingly dull at this time and Dewey showing speed. Whitney was struck on the hand by a pitched ball and took first Kelley popped a short fly which Briggs caught on the dead run. Murray fouled to Fish who also executed a difficult catch. One run.

For Quincy, Duggan whiffed, Armstrong went down Bates to Ganzel, and Lonergan lined to Eggleton.

Fish let Bates' third strike get away, Bates taking second. Ganzel was passed. Ford fouled to Briggs who threw to Fay for a double, the latter catching Bates off the bag. McDevitt hit to Fay who threw to Armie at second forcing Ganzel.

Briggs was hit on his bad knee, but took first. Nowell sacrificed, Ford to Ganzel. Bates dropped Connolly's fly to short right. Briggs stole third. Fay hit to right scoring Briggs, Connolly taking third. Fay stole second. Fish singled scoring Connolly and Fay. Glaze received free transportation. Ford threw to second to get Fish but the ball struck his hip and bounced into right, Fish and Glaze moving up. Duggan hit to Ordway, Glaze taking third while Fish was thrown out at the plate. Armstrong singled to center and Glaze and Duggan scored, Armie perching on second. Lonergan popped to Ordway. Score 5 to 1.

Until the last of the seventh everything was all serene but Quincy woke up. Lonny drove one to Ordway who tossed to Ganzel, but the ball was lost in the sun and got away, Ganzel not being able to touch it, being partially blinded by the light, and Lonergan took second. Briggs hit a terrific three sacker along the third base line scoring Lonergan. Nowell hit to Ganzel for an out, but Ordway fumbled Connolly's drive and Briggs scored. Con was thrown out. Fay flied to Eggleton. Score 7 to 1.

In the first of the eighth Whitney was out, Lonergan to Briggs. Lonergan fumbled Kelley's drive and threw low to Briggs who blocked it. Kelley safe. He stole second. Lonergan threw Murray's try high and Briggs made a great jumping stop but Jack was safe and Kelley took third. Murray stole. Kelley secored while Bates went out Armstrong to Glaze. Ganzel popped to third. Second and last run for Dewey.

In the ninth, Wilson hitting for Ford, singled. McDevitt fanned and Eggie walked. Ordway hit to Lonergan and he and Armstrong and Briggs ended the game with a fast double play. The full score:

SPORTING NOTES.

The Busy Bee won twice on Saturday in races of the Boston Yacht club at Hull. Both times the Dartwell finished first but lost on time allowance. In the class for 18-footers, the Dorchen of the Quincy Yacht club led the fleet.

One hundred and seventeen players entered the amateur golf competition of the Wollaston Golf club on Saturday. Prof. Charles Zueblin of Braeburn and R. W. Brown of Meadow Brook with 73 had the best gross score, and E. S. Litchfield of Braeburn and C. H. Kendall of Wollaston the best net.

The clambake of the Wollaston Yacht club scheduled for Sunday was postponed.

The Jennie owned by A. A. Packard won the race for launches of the Quincy Yacht club on Saturday. The Susan was only 21 seconds behind, followed by the Red Wing and LaLorraine.

The Fore River and McGregor football club were represented on Sunday at the meeting of the Boston and District association, when important changes were made in the rules for the games to open Sept. 3.

It is expected new records will be made in altitude flights by aeroplanes at the Quincy meet at the Harvard field Sept. 3 to 13.

Eleven events were run by the Old Colony Driving club on Saturday at South Weymouth, the best time being by Young Bayard owned by George Beal. Four heats were required in class D which was won by Coney Elcho.

The Interbay series of races at Narragansett bay began today with the Iris and Dolly III representing the Quincy Yacht club against the Bother and the Ina of the Rhode Island club and the Dorothy of Barnegat bay.

The Cranch A. A. juniors defeated the Warren Stars this morning by a score of 20 to 8. Barsell and Byrne were the battery o fthe victors. A feature of the game was a triple play by Cranch boys.

TEN THOUSAND AT JOE GANS' FUNERAL

Three Clergymen Conduct Services Over Pugilist's Body

Baltimore, Aug. 15.—Ten thousand people, mostly negroes, but including hundreds of white men of the sporting class, crowded the Whatcoat Methodist church and packed the streets in the neighborhood at the funeral of Joe Gans, the pugilist.

Three negro clergymen conducted the services and delivered addresses in which they spoke of the pugilist's charities and kindness of heart. They also referred to him as a man who had achieved great success in his profession. There were four wagon loads of floral designs.

Prior to the funeral the body lay in state in the home of Gans' mother for two days and nights. Thousands of negroes viewed the remains and the women wept as though they had lost a dear relative.

THE IRIS AND DOLLY III LEAD AT PROVIDENCE

Outclassed Narragansett Bay Yachts in First Race for Thomas Fleming Day Cup.

Quincy Yachtsmen Are Greatly Pleased at Their Victory

The two Quincy catboats Iris and Dolly III carried off the honors Monday at Narragansett bay in the first of the series of five races between catboats representing Massachusetts bay, Narragansett bay and Barnegat bay for the Thomas Fleming Day cup. There were five starters in the race, and the Iris won handily. It was a close and hard fought race, however, between the Iris and Dolly III the two Quincy boats representing the state of Massachusetts, and there were only 39 seconds between them at the gun.

The Bother, representing the Narragansett bay club was the third boat in but she was 13 minutes, actual time, behind Dolly. Corrected time whittled this margin down to nearly six minutes. The Virginia representing Barnegat bay was nearly two minutes behind the Bother on corrected time, while the Ina of Narragansett bay was over 40 minutes behind the Virginia.

The race was sailed in a steady southwest breeze, heavy with moisture, and gave the boats a pattern of whole-sail strength. Under the rules each of the visiting boats were allowed a pilot and to offset this the home boats were allowd an extra man in its crew.

During the first half of the race there was a strong tide against the racers, but from the weather turn they had a fair tide. The course was an obtuse angle of 13 1-2 miles. Very little maneuvering was done by any of the boats at the start. The Bother got over before the gun and was recalled, the Dolly cut the line with the gun and the Iris crossed five second after the gun with the Ina third, Virginia fourth and Bother last.

The Ina met with a mishap during the race which accounted for her poor showing. At the critical point in the race her sail came down by reason of a broken hook. A rope pendant was rigged which also gave way, and when she at last got agoing she had in two reefs and she was clearly out of the race.

It was not until the boats had been sailing 20 minutes that the Iris took the lead from the Dolly. Once she got the lead she held it throughout the race.

Iris—Frank F. Crane, Henry S. Crane, Frank Freeman, Ralph G. Crane T. E. Furnald and Winfield M. Thompson.

Dolly III—Daniel Crosby, J. W. Coombs, Ralph Crosby, Frank Brown, Charles M. Studlee and H. Seymour.

Several catboat enthusiasts from Boston harbor were on hand to see the opening of the match, of which they have been talking for months. They included Commodore H. W. Robbins of the Quincy Y. C., Ira M. Whittemore, owner of the Dartwell; Dr. F. E. Dawes, secretary of the Cape Catboat association of Massachusetts bay, in his fast sloop Thordis, accompanied by Frank Patch, Charles Cummings and J. McPherson of the Quincy Y. C.; H. C. Nickerson, owner of the former champion of the cat class, Arawok; W. S. Hardwick of the cat Josephine, and Channing, T. Furnald of the Josephine's crew; George S. Morse, treasurer of the Quincy Y. C., and R. D. Roarty of the Dolly's home crew, who helped bring the boat round cape Cod.

The summary of Monday's race:

NORTH DAKOTA, UNCLE SAM'S SPEEDIEST DREADNOUGHT.

Although the North Dakota was launched only Nov. 10, 1908, she is now ready for business. She is modeled closely upon the British Dreadnought, although she is an improvement over that famous fighter. She has armor around her smokestacks and uptakes, which the Dreadnought has not. She is also provided with the new "spider" masts, from which the gun fire of the ship will be directed. A peculiarity of the North Dakota is that all ten of her big twelve inch guns can be trained on the enemy at the same time. Her speed is 22.25 knots. Her normal displacement is 20,000 tons.

TWO MYSTERIOUS TELEGRAMS RELATIVE TO RESTELLI TRAGEDY

STONE TEAM AND CAR

In Collision at Corner Washington and Canal Streets

Passengers on the 3.35 P. M. electric car from Quincy to East Weymouth had a close call on Monday, when the car collided with a loaded two-horse stone team which was crossing Washington street into Canal street. The team is owned by Charles Hori of West street, and was driven by Herman Mantilla.

It was not until the wagon was on the rails that the driver and motorman saw the peril. The speed of the car was checked but it was down grade. The team almost cleared the tracks but the car struck the rear wheel and dumped the granite chips into the street. The driver was thrown between the horses but escaped without serious injury. None of the passengers on the car were injured, but it was a narrow escape.

Traffic of the street railway was delayed for some time. Mantilla left his team in the street and drove the horses home. A friendly teamster loaded the granite upon the team and pulled it into Canal street where it remained all night.

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Wilkins and daughter Ethelyn of Old Colony avenue Wollaston returned last week from Mahone Bay, Nova Scotia where they spent a delightful month.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Geddes and Miss Mildred E. Geddes of Standish avenue have returned from Great Chebeague Island, Maine, where they were registered at The Hamilton for two weeks.

Rev. Benjamin W. Atwell D. D., of Newton preached at St. Chrysostom's church Sunday morning and is the priest in charge during August while the rector, Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra is on his vacation at Robbinston, Maine.

In the wrestling match at Hibernian hall last night Young Joseph, the Syrian, won over Carl Carlson of Finland. About five minutes after the starting gong Carlson's right shoulder blade was broken by a half Nelson and toe hold and the first fall was made in nineteen minutes with the same hold. Carlson was unable to continue the bout owing to his injury.

"Restelli suspect on train from Albany bound west, due Utica 8.55. Syracuse 10.05. Suspect wore blue suit and gray cap. Had cast in right eye."

The telegram was signed "Citizen of Quincy."

It was just 8.55 when the telegram was handed Chief Burrell so that it was too late to head the suspect off at Utica. Chief Burrell however immediately sent a telegram to the police at Syracuse giving a complete description of Restelli, and the fact that he was reported to be on the train due there at 10.05, and requesting the police of that city to board the train and arrest the man if found.

Usually the signature "Citizen of Quincy" would arouse some suspicion that it might be a fake. On the other hand it may be that the citizen did not desire his name known to the public unless the man should prove to be the one wanted. If he is the man there is no question but what the "Citizen of Quincy will make himself known.

Although the information contained in the telegram was open to some suspicion, Chief Burrell does not intend to take any chances of the man getting away by overlooking any clews, thus his telegram to the Syracuse police to get the suspect. It is only by closely following up just such clews as this that the much-wanted man will eventually be landed.

ANOTHER MYSTERY.

While waiting to hear the result of the Syracuse clew, Chief Burrell received another telegram. This came from Duncan McEachern, chief of police at Sydney, Cape Breton. This telegram read:

"Griffin found dead with throat cut"

Griffin, it will be remembered, is the man from whom the police received numerous telegrams last week in regard to a Restelli suspect at North Sydney. Griffin claimed to have located the man, and that the police at Sydney had refused to co-operate with him.

His telegrams were all signed "Griffin, 49 Central street, Lynn, Mass.", but the police of that city were unable to locate just who the man Griffin was. They, however, did say that at one time there was a man there who did some work for the police in liquor cases but that he was accounted for.

The man whom Griffin suspected might be the murderer Restelli was eventually arrested by the Sydney police, as he was about to take a boat, but after receiving a complete description from Chief Burrell, he was released, as it was clearly proven that he was not the man wanted.

After that Griffin dropped out of sight and nothing more was heard

ELKS IN ATTENDANCE

Notable Funeral of James H. Welsh This Morning

The funeral of James H. Welsh of West Quincy was held this morning at his late home, 290 Copeland street. Mr. Welsh died Saturday, August 13, after a short illness.

The services of the Quincy Lodge, No. 943, B. P. O. E., was held at 8.15, led by Exalted Ruler, William J. Coleman.

The regular service took place at St. Mary's church. Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. William Duffy. The Gregorian mass was sung by the regular choir, Mary McKay, organist and at the offertory, Mrs. James L. Fennessy sang the Pie Jesu.

The funeral of one of West Quincy's most popular residents was attended by an extraordinarily large gathering and there was a large number of beautiful floral pieces. The Quincy lodge of Elks attended in a body and presented a standing wreath and cross. So large and sympathetic an attendance was a concrete tribute to the well-known, well-liked man who had been in business in West Quincy for thirty years.

Mayor William T. Shea, Postmaster Charles L. Hammond, Overseer of the Poor, James H. Elcock, Patrolman Patrick Milford and other city officials were present.

The pall bearers were: James F. Burke, a former city treasurer, Louis J. White, of the firm of J. N. White and Sons, Alexis R. Elcock, son of James H. Elcock, George A. Jordan, proprietor of the Oakland House, William H. Callahan, a prominent business man, and John D. Smith, chaplain of the Quincy lodge of Elks. The interment took place in the Welsh lot at St. Mary's cemetery.

There cannot possibly be a greater tribute to the memory of a man than that paid this morning to James H. Welsh by every person who had occasion to know him.

MAYOR'S MOTHER WORSE.

The illness of Mrs. Shea, mother of Mayor Shea, took a serious turn last night, and for a time her life was dispaired of. She pasesd through the night, however, and this morning was reported as being more comfortable.

THREE QUINCY BATTLESHIPS TO VISIT EUROPEAN PORTS

The North Dakota, Rhode Island and Vermont to Accompany the Atlantic Fleet.

Itinerary Out for a Two Months' Cruise.

Three of the Quincy built battleships have been assigned to the Atlantic fleet which will sail about Nov. 1 for European ports,—the North Dakota, the Rhode Island and the Vermont.

The North Dakota is in the first division with the Connecticut, Michigan and Delaware, which will sail from New York. The North Dakota and Delaware will be at Toulon from Nov. 18 to Dec. 2, at Genoa from Dec. 3 to 19, and all four battleships will be at Gibraltar from Dec. 23 to 31.

In the third division with the Rhode Island will be the Georgia, Nebraska and Virginia. They will sail from Boston Nov. 1. The Rhode Island and Virginia will be at Marseilles Nov. 17 to Dec. 7, and the four battleships will be at Lisbon from Dec. 11 to Jan. 1.

In the fourth division with the Vermont will be the Minnesota, Mississippi and Idaho. The first two will be at Naples Nov. 19 to Dec. 2 at Villefranche Dec. 3 to 21, and at Gibraltar Dec. 24 to 31.

A fleet of destroyers will also go on the cruise. After the cruise the battleships will go to Guantanamo and the destroyers to San Juan.

—The New York Journal of Commerce says: "The United States sinks almost as much per annum in the wearing out of automobiles as France receives from her foreign investments."

Labor Day Picnic.

Privileges for games and other attractions at the Labor Day Picnic of the Trade Unions of Quincy at New Downer Landing may be obtained on application to the undersigned at Room 8, Johnson Building, City Square, Quincy.

Mathushek Pianos

The average piano is to the artistic what a lithograph is to an oil painting. The former may contain as much and as good raw material as the latter, but it lacks the knowledge, genius and skill of the master hand, as exemplified in the famous Mathushek Pianos. Their superiority of construction, sweetness of tone, durability and beautiful finish make them stand out in striking contrast to the cheaper grades of modern pedigree.

We ask your inspection.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The success of the Harpoon in the Quincy Cup races and at Marblehead, and of the Dorchen for the 18-foot trophy, promises to attend the Iris and Dolly at Narragansett bay. All the trophies are coming to Quincy this year.

Certainly the head of Quincy's Police department has no soft snap these days, when there are so many calls at all hours of the day and night—murders, suicides, accidents, burglaries, assaults, fires, liquor raids, drunkennes, etc. Also attendance at court, and at meetings of City Council. The number of calls received weekly would surprise some people. Yet all the work has to be done by a few men.

That the Wollaston Yacht club and the Squantum Yacht club could have had such successful Ladies' day on the same date, speaks well for both these popular yachting organizations. Both clubs have hundreds of friends who were eager to enjoy the festivities of these gala days. The sail is a treat to many who do not often have the opportunity and others never tire of dancing in the cool halls of these clubs out over the salt water of the bay. The yacht clubs and parkway are doing much to make the Quincy bay shore popular.

Why should Councillor Cushing make an exception in one case in his address before the Norfolk club of South Weymouth on Saturday? He said he desired the reelection of Governor Draper, the reelection of Lieutnant Governor Frothingham and the reelection of Councillor Cushing, but when it came to senator he passed the Quincy man by and said he wanted the Weymouth man elected. Senator Hultman has made a good record, and should have another term. However, it was a Weymouth gathering, and it would not do to take sides against a Weymouth man who is an active candidate.

Acting Governor Louis A. Frothingham in an address before the Norfolk club of Weymouth on Saturday referred to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company as Boston's hope. He said: "I look forward to the time when it will be the greatest shipyard in the country and turn out ships that will give Boston her one-time prestige and make her again the greatest port." If Boston districts will elect Congressmen favorable to a ship subsidy, the merchant marine will be more prosperious.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The great aviation meet, that has first interest in Boston just now while base ball teams is in the west, is going to prove conclusively that the conquest of the air has been accomplished. This flying business has been discussed long before there was any thought of "Horseless carriages." Mankind has always felt that since birds found no difficulty in keeping on wing in the air surely there was some device by which mortals might also fly. People in all stations of life have kept pegging away at the problem, and now it is only a question of which of the great aviators can fly the fastest. While aeronantics seems the most daring of sports, and many of its followers have already lost their lives yet statisics prove that its death toll, for the time that men have been successful in flying, is much less than in the progress of other inventions. So much for the game in its early stage, but before many years have elapsed we hope to be able to fly from Strollerville Heights to San Francisco and back in few hours time.—Dedham Transcript.

To those given to the study of social conditions the spread of crime, particularly homicide, and the reasons therefor, must give much concern. Almost with the recurrence of every twenty-four hour a veritable carnival of murders is recorded throughout the country and the enormity of some of them is almost beyond human imagination.

What can be the cause of the increase in homicide? Is the law at fault? Hardly. Then is it the lack of law enforcement? No, because murderers are constantly paying the penalty of their crimes. What, then, is it that is responsible for the spread of crime against the individual in this country?

At the present ratio of increase in crime the statistician will have little difficulty in figuring out how long it will be before we are all brought under criminal influence and all the actual commital of crime means. There must be, somewhere, some deep seated cause for this increase of crime and whoever discovers it and points out the way to its eradication will be indeed of great service to all mankind. —Banker and Tradesman.

EVERYBODY COMING.

So popular already is the coming aviation meet of the Harvard Aeronautical society, scheduled for Sept. 3d to the 13th, and so big has it grown in its preparations, that the management has decided to change the scene of the meet from Soldiers' field, Brighton, to a track of 500 acres in Atlantic, Quincy. This is further away than ever from Medford, but it is an easy wager that a good many Medford people will go there, nevertheless.—Medford Mercury.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

June was the banner month as to circulation at the Thomas Crane Public Library this year, there being an increase over that of 1909 of 645 volumes, making the total of 6001 books issued for home use, the largest of any June in the library's history.

But with a circulation of 1041 volumes from the newly opened Branch Reading room at West Quincy the total circulation for the month of July has exceeded that of last July by 821, making this the record month of July.

The people of Ward Four have availed themselves both of the advantages of the reading room itself, and of the privileges granted them of getting their books from the central library, through filling out the call slips provided for the purpose. This appreciation of the extension of the library's facilities has been most gratifying.

Perhaps the oldest patron of the library is Enoch H. Doble, aged 95 years, who has lately registered through the branch. An attendance there of 1984 persons, both grown people and children with a slight majority among the boys and girls, averaging 86 per day during the hot month of July, tells its own story.

GIANT STRANGLES TWO MEN TO DEATH

Uses His Bare Hands on Men He Says Tried To Rob Him

Edwardsville, Ills., Aug. 16.—John Burton, a plumber, of Alton, choked two men to death with his bare hands following a quarrel at Marine, near here. He is under arrest, but asserts that his two victims attempted to rob him.

Gus Wentz and Lewis Weibrecht were the two men whom Burton killed. Burton is a powerful man, six feet three inches in height and weighing 220 pounds.

To the fact that David Jones of Edwardsville, sheriff of Madison county, owns a big touring car, Burton probably owes his life. Relatives of the men say that feeling against Burton was so intense at Marine that a lynching was imminent.

When advised by telephone of the tragedy the sheriff ordered out his big automobile, and with two deputies went after Burton. He made the twenty-four mile round trip and had his prisoner in jail in Edwardsville in short order.

SCOTT'S SHIP SIGHTED

Fear Had Been Expressed That Terranova Met With Disaster

Cape Town, Aug. 16.—The ship Terranova, boaring the Antarctic expedition with which Captain Scott hopes to reach the South Pole, was sighted last evening off Cape Pont.

The Terranova sailed from Madeira June 27 and was fourteen days behind her schedule time to reach Cape Town, the delay causing some apprehension among the public.

CRANE LOOKING OVER FENCES

Revolution In G. O. P. Depends Upon Senator's Report

FATE OF "ELDER STATESMEN"

Axe May Be Put Into Immediate Operation or Threatened Earthquake May Spend Itself—Aldrich Still Has Power Enough, It Is Said, to Induce President to Give Up His Projected Trip to Panama

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 16.—Upon the nature of the report which Senator Crane will bring back to President Taft, it is said here, will depend the carrying out of the policy of reform which, as reported last week, was to include the elimination of Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, Speaker Cannon of the house of representatives, Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, and other "elder statesmen" from the councils of the party.

If the Massachusetts member comes with his thumbs turned down the axe will be put into immediate operation. If he brings back a message of a different tenor the threatened political earthquake will have spent itself and may never be located by political seismologists.

A sidelight on the situation is found in the statement that the president may abandon his projected trip to Panama in November. The advices on which President Taft pigeonholed the proposed trip came from Senator Aldrich, in spite of the fact that he had been marked as a "down and out" member of the party by those who are now coming to the front in administration politics.

Heading toward Beverly to find out what the rumblings mean are Vice President Sherman, Representative Loudenslager of New Jersey, in charge of the eastern office of the Republican congressional committee, and others no less interested in the length of the fuse attached to the political bomb. They are charged with the election of a Republican house of representatives and they want to know what this new thing in politics is.

When the president was asked if there had been any change in the plans for going to Panama he indicated that an engagement to visit the canal must be regarded as tentative.

That the president has given so serious consideration to a suggestion of Aldrich with regard to the administration policy does not fit the plans which have been made by the men who would dethrone the Rhode Island leader. Aldrich urged the president to give up his Panama trip, on the ground that there will be too many matters of importance pending in the month preceding the meeting of congress to permit of a departure.

Among these matters are the appointments to the supreme court and the legislation which the president will seek to obtain from congress at the short session. It is also worthy of consideration in estimating the president's part in the new politics that the suggestion from Aldrich followed an enumeration on the part of the president of the things which he will lay before congress in his second annual message.

ROOSEVELT STILL MUM

Not Believed to Be Ready to Indorse Taft Administration

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 16.—No tidings went forth from Sagamore Hill at the conclusion of the conference between Theodore Roosevelt and Lloyd C. Griscom, chairman of the New York Republican county committee.

The county chairman is known to have been the bearer of a message from President Taft, and it was generally supposed that the message was sent in the hope of obtaining Roosevelt's outspoken support for a move to obtain harmony within the Republican party.

Despite Roosevelt's reticence, it is believed that he has mapped out a program which does not include, for the present, at least, a definite indorsement of the Taft administration. There is good ground for the belief that the visit of Griscom, on his return from Beverly, has not caused him to alter his opinion.

THE HEAT OF BATTLE.

The minister's kitchen, because it undertook to serve too many purposes, was only a qualified success. As a dining room it brought tears to the eyes of the mistress of the manse. Because it lacked a sink and several other conveniences, its career as a kitchen was in no wise brilliant. Sometimes the minister's wife mumbled strange things as she skilfully dodged between the dining table and th estove.

She possessed a temper, a weird skittish temper that on occasions flashed up in a manner calculated to inspire terror in the uniformly peaceful soul of her husband. It caused him to wonder uneasily concerning her spiritual condition. Its skittishness, however, was confined mainly to the perplexities of the combination room where cooking well and dining comfortably seemed to clash. The congregation, the staid elders and deacons, remained in happy ignorance of the righteous indignation which sometimes flashed and flamed in the region of culinary mysteries.

For nearly two years the minister's wife had conducted an unsuccessful campaign under a banner bearing this device, "A new kitchen with a really and truly sink."

Repeatedly this banner had gone down in humiliation and defeat. The perversity of the three trustees who stood guard over the church treasury compelled the minister and his family to partake of their daily bread in the confines of the heated kitchen. There amid clouds of steam from the kettle's spout and various odors that lay upon the air, the pastor of Millville church munched his portion, while little rills of perspiration coursed hither and yon over his rotund, ministerial anatomy.

The trustees stubbornly insisted that a manse with three rooms on the first floor and four on the second furnished ample accommodations for a modern defender of the orthodox faith. The prophet Elijah, they said, had only one room upon the wall. In vain the little woman with the banner endeavored to convince them that as the parlor had to serve as the minister's study and the living room as a reception hall, and the kitchen as dining-room, there was perplexity and discomfort beyond a reasonable measure of Christian resignation. She reminded him also that Elijah was not burdened with the cares of a family in his limited quarters on the wall. With the aid of a stumpy pencil chewed into utility, she exhibited a plan of the dear home she could fashion, if they would build her another apartment to serve as a kitchen. But the trustes were set in their ways. They listened to her good-naturedly, smiled a little, but refused even to seriously consider the proposition. Young Mr. Cummings, the junior member of the official body, finally undertook to champion her cause, but mainly because he was young, his minority report received scant attention. Then the mistress of the manse retired to the kitchen and sputtered. She told the tea-kettle and frying-pan just what she thought of those wooden trustees.

A month had passed since her last defeat. She was considering the question of serving a wedding anniversary dinner. The proposition made her heart sink. "Oh, I just can't do it," she whispered under her breath. "This terrible kitchen makes mother nervous, and his people always look at me as if I was to blame for it. I'll just let the day go by like any other day until I can have things half-way decent."

She squeezed out the dish-cloth and hung it on a line stretched across the corner of the room. Then she dipped her hands into a basin of warm water to remove all trace of the soapy fluid in which the dishes had been washed. The fire in the stove was dying out but the place was still uncomfortably warm. "They never could stand it," she exclaimed. Then she paused, her dripping fingers suspended over the basin.

"I wonder—"

Ther e was a query in her voice and a bit of a smile appeared at the corners of her mouth. Perhaps it was five minutes later when she entered her husband's study.

"Percy, our wedding anniversary is on the seventeenth,"

"Is it?" he asked in a tone that indicated surprise at the recurrence.

"Yes, and I thought of having mother and some of the other relatives to dinner."

"An excellent plan," he commented.

"But couldn't we do something different this year? We had them last year, you remember. Do you think Mr. Cummings and the other trustees would care to come? We have been at their home so often, and perhaps it would help to keep up the good feeling in the church if we did alittle special entertaining. I can prepare a good dinner when I try."

"Yes, yes, certainly," the good man agreed. "Certainly, have the trustees this year and the elders next time. Have we chairs enough, Maggie?

"Oh, yes, if you drive a nail in the one that wiggles. And will you attend to inviting the men? Be sure to have Mr. Crowles come. I know he has been mean about our kitchen, as mean as ever he could be, but we won't slight him on that account."

"No, no, we must show a Christian spirit."

The members of that body were vastly pleased to be invited to a dinner at the manse. They believed that such cordiality indicated that the minister's wife bore no ill-will toward them on account of their refusal to entertain her proposition. Mr. Crowles, the leader of the opposition, was so intensely gratified that he arrived fifteen minutes in advance of the other guests. He and the minister at once entered into an earnest discussion of the condition of the church, leaving the mistress to her own devices in the kitchen.

In that region things were reeking hot. The table, which of necessity stood near the stove, that was doing its level best to raise the temperature still higher, was spread with a snowy cloth, each crease of which told of feminine energy on ironing day. The silver glistened in the lamplight, duly reflecting the vivid red of a spreading centerpiece.

For once in her life the minister's wife was happy indeed. Her face was flushed with excitement and with the fierce external heat. A tasteful white apron protected the front of her gown, and she smiled herself—a grim, contented smile—as she glanced at the windows, now reeking with the condensed humidity of the room.

"There, now everything is ready," she murmured, giving a last deft touch to the apointments. Then lifting the coal-hod she dumped into the stove a liberal supply of fuel, carefully distributing it with the poker. Her entrance to the parlor carried with it the smell of the savory dishes, and the men, recognizing it as a goodly favored odor, arose with alacrity, prepared to do full justice to the bountiful spread.

"You will please take this place, Mr. Crowles," she said sweetly when they had followed her into the sevenfold heated furnace. The chair she indicated was scarcely two feet away from the roaring stove. Mr. Sawyer was deposited hard by, while young Mr. Cummings was conducted to a place on the opposite side of the table. The minister and his wife occupied either end of the board.

"We thought of serving dinner in the sitting room," explained the little woman; "but that blessed husband of mine was late getting home this afternoon, and really I couldn't drag this heavy table alone. It is a heavy task for two. We always have our meals here, and I hope you don't mind—do you? It is our only dining room, you know.

"No, mom, we don't mind," responded Mr. Crowles, hitching his chair nearer the table.

"It is snug and homelike here," explained the minister, beaming upon his guests.

"Right pleasant place," commented Mr. Sawyer, behind whom the kettle hummed and sang as it gave off a steady cloud of hot steam.

Young Mr. Cummings began to tell of a new soprano who had recently come to town and who promised to be of value to the choir, but Crowles and Sawyer found it difficult to maintain a show of interest.

The minister poked at the platter of fried chicken.

"Will you have light or dark meat, Mr. Crowles?" he asked.

"Oh, anything, anything."

Mr. Crowles settled in his chair and threw open his coat, thereby freeing the garment from its clinging proximity to his back.

"She can sing clear up where there aren't any more notes," continued Mr. Cummings, "and if we get her the Methodists won't be anywhere near it."

"My dear, isn't it just a trifle——" began the minister, but the inqury died away in the sprightly voice of his wife:

"And what is her name, Mr. Cummings? Of course we must secure her if such a thing is possible. Don't you think so, Mr. Crowles? Good singers are so difficult to find and so necessary to the church. We must call on her soon, Percy."

"Yes, yes," returned Percy. "What do you think of it, Mr. Crowles? shall we ask her to sing in our church?"

"Eh?" asked Mr. Crowles, whose face was now moist and very red. The

NEWLYWEDS START OFF IN "SYMPATHY"

Sleeper Leaving New Orleans Loaded With Honeymooners

New Orleans, Aug. 15.—Through no intentional arrangement on the part of railroad officials, but purely by accident, the sleeping car "Sympathy," leaving New Orleans over the Louisville and Nashville railroad, carried nothing but bridal couples.

This car was among the several hundred which formed part of the general reduced rate excursions which the railroads run every August from the principal southern cities to points in the north.

It was when the bombardment of rice began that an investigation showed that all the occupants were on their honeymoons. They were all from rural points.

BALLINGER'S SUCCESSOR

President of Ohio State University Said to Be Taft's Choice

Washington, Aug. 15.—That William O. Thompson of Ohio state university will succeed Richard A. Ballinger as secretary of the interior Sept. 15 is reported in Washington from a quarter usually well informed as to Ohio men and politics.

At present there is no man in the cabinet from the president's own state. The president's regard for Thompson's ability is known and it is said his appointment would have a good effect on the Republican situation in Ohio, pleasing former Secretary of the Interior Garfield and the Ohio progressives.

Mr. Thompson himself is a progressive and has not figured in the factional political fights in Ohio. He was formerly a Presbyterian preacher in Iowa. A few years ago he became president of Ohio state university.

VALUATION BASIS FAVORED

Lynn's Brief on the Apportionment for Parks

A matter of much importance to the city of Quincy but which, up to the present, appears to have attracted very little public interest, is the apportionment to be made by the special commission of metropolitan park assessments, appointed by the Superior court, of the burden of supporting the parkways and boulevards in the metropolitan district for the ensuing five years.

Boston and Cambridge are working hard to compell the other cities and towns of the district to take on, in addition to what they already support, the Charles river basin, and are suggesting a population basis, local conditions, and proximity to reservation.

Quincy fully endorses the brief submitted by City Solicitor Wadleigh of Lynn who says in part:

"It is submitted that there are only two general practical methods, one of which the commission, will find it necessary to adopt.

"First—To apportion the tax ratably upon the basis of valuation alone, that is, upon the proportionate valuation of each community to the aggregate valuation of the whole district. If this method is adopted $1000 of valuation in any one municipality will contribute exactly the same toward the maintenance of the district as the same amount will contribute in any other municipality.

"Second—To make an apportionment based upon the particular relation which each municipality in the district bears to the district as a whole, considering not only valuation, but such other factors as population, location and available local park and playground facilities.

"The city of Lynn could probably have nothing to fear and ought to have nothing to fear from an apportionment based on either of the above stated principles, but primarily Lynn contends that the apportionment should be based upon the principle first stated, that of valuation alone and for the following reasons:

VALUATION ALONE.

"In justice and equity the Commonwealth ought to bear a portion of this tax. The commission, however, has not the power to decree that the Commonwealth pay any part of it, but it can do the next best thing and distribute the burden ratably over as large a part of the Commonwealth as its precept will permit; that is, over the whole metropolitan district. The theory that the reservations were selected because of their proximity to or accessibility from particular localities is largely erroneous.

Nantasket, Revere and Nahant were set apart largely for the reason that they were great shore stretches with wide beaches of clean sand, beautiful to look upon and particularly adapted for sea bathing. Statements of counsel for the respective towns in which these reservations are located, made during the progress of the hearings to the effect that these beaches were in their natural state, the most beautiful and attracive in the Commonwealth were justified by the facts and it was because of these facts that they were set apart for public reservations.

FELLS AND BLUE HILLS.

It is in a narrow sense alone that they were or are reserved for Boston, Cambridge, Lynn or other cities and towns in the district. In a wider and truer sense they are reserved for the Commonwealth and even for the country, so that for all time they shall be for the common use of all and singular who desire to resort to them. The same is true of the Fells and the Blue Hills.

If this view is correct it is idle to urge that any particular municipality in the district should pay more because it is nearer to some particular reservation than is some other municipality. The reservations are all of them in the true sense near to the whole district even as Niagara and Yellowstone are near to the whole country, consequently, the whole district should pay for them and pay for them alike in accordance with property valuation. Not any one part of the district is far enough away from any other part to render it difficult of access to those who know and appreciate the benefits and blessings of these great public breathing spaces.

LESS COMPLICATED.

"Other things being equal, the simplier and less complicated rule is the better rule. An apportionment based on valuation alone has the merit of simplicity, and, further, it follows recognized established principles of assessing taxes. While it should not be adopted for no other reason than its ease of computation, it is equally true that it should not be rejected merely because it offers no opportunity for solving an easy problem in a difficult way. The commission has no reason for metaphysics when plain arithmetic will do the work equally well.

"The valuation rule is more generally acceptable to the people concerned than any other that has been suggested. This has been conclusively shown during the progress of the hearing. Counsel have, of course in specific instances, made the most of local conditions, but in most of these instances, as in the case of the city of Lynn, local conditions have been urged as alternative factors merely, while the general theory of apportionment based on valuation has been urged by the representatives of the majority of the municipalities n the district. While, of course, this mater is not to be decided by counting noses of counsel, it is nevertheless submitted that the method more generally satisfactory to the district at large is the method that should be adopted if it is equally as good as any other that receives consideration.

SAFE METHOD WANTED.

"It may be admitted that by extreme nicety and exactness in balancing and determining such factors as population, proximity to particular reservations and probable user—based on character as well as size of population—and to which must be added the element of local park facil ties or lack of them—it is possible to reach a solution exactly fair and equitable. But extreme possibilit es are not to be relied on as counterbalancing average probabilities to commend it. In other words it should adopt the safe method.

"The commission of 1894 based its finding in part upon local conditions. Its work was repudiated by the Legislature. The commission of 1900 after fixing on valuation as the basis of apportionment coquetted with the local condition theory by establishing special classes, based on per capita valuations. The true rule of a tax on values, that one dollar owned by A shall contribute the same as one dollar owned by B was as much violated by the commission of 1909 as by that of 1894 and not even the communities benefitted by that award now urge its adoption. On the other hand, the rule adopted by the commission of 1905 is generally acceptable and reference is hereby made to the summary of its reasons, contained in the report ofthat commission."

HOUGHS NECK

The sudden fluctuations of weather which changes from cold to rainy and reverse is entirely discouraging to those who have chosen the latter part of August as an ideal vacation time, which indeed it usually is. At Houghs Neck the all-summer residents are content to make the best of adverse weather conditions, but to those who have but a week or two at the beach it is different.

The school building can not possibly be finished by the time specified in the contract, but the roof is now on and lathers are now at work.

Officer George Phillips who discovered the body of Guy C. Scott, the Dorchester young man who drowned near Half Moon island, is stationed at Houghs Neck, and is always vigilant and painstaking.

The place at which Judge Flint was thrown from his auto on Sea street, while not dangerous, requires great care. There is a pronounced curve there, cut off from view by a large willow tree, so that vehicles or cars approaching on the inside of the curve are out of sight until they suddenly round the corner under the tree. Some day Sea street should be widened and good sidewalks built.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Brien of South Boston have returned to their home after two enjoyable weeks at the Neck.

WANT GAYNOR FOR NOMINEE

Democrats Think He Can Land New York Governorship

A DOUBLY STRONG CANDIDATE

Attention of Country Drawn to Him by Attempted Assassination — State Chairman, Tammany Chieftain and Other Democrats of Prominence Displaying Mysterious Activity—Mayor as Presidential Timber

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Choice of Mayor Gaynor's name as the Democratic nominee for governor of the state of New York is the most probable development of the many possibilities of the approachnig state campaign. Important moves are likely to be accomplished within a week.

Democratic leaders who have been here and who have discussed the probability of Gaynor being chosen standard bearer of the party, have pointed out that his attempted assassination has drawn the attention of the entire country to him, and that, while he has always been regarded as a strong candidate, he is now doubly so. Confidence is expressed that if he should accept he would sweep the state and that, two years from now, he would be in a strong strategical position as the candidate of the party for president of the United States.

Mysterious activity has been displayed here by a number of Democrats, prominent in the councils of the party in the state.

Charles F. Murphy has been in conference with state Chairman Dix, but so quietly has he gone about it that very few persons know anything about it. Word was dropped here for three or four days that Murphy would arrive in Saratoga on Friday. On that day some baggage addressed to him was delivered here, but the Tammany chieftain did not put in an appearance. Friends here said that he would not arrive for another week.

Then on Friday Murphy in Dix's automobile appeared at the Arrowhead Inn, four miles from Saratoga, where he conferred with several persons. It is said that the Tammany leader is in the vicinity of Saratoga, but no one seems to know just where. The belief is that he is at the home of Dix at Thompson, which is ten miles from here.

Senator Harte, a Democrat of Queens, has been here several days and has talked with the Democrats of prominence.

"I believe," he said, "that the shooting of Mayor Gaynor will make him the nominee for governor and for president two years later. I can't see it any other way. It is true that he said he would serve out his term as mayor, but suppose the Demicratic state convention should nominate him by acclamation? Wouldn't he be justified in saying that he believed a call from his party throughout the state overshadowed any pledge that he might have made to the people of his own city?

"Up to the present time he has not made a mistake. But if he remains in the mayor's office two years more he is bound to do things that will bring criticism on him, no matter whether he is right or wrong. I believe the party will nominate him for governor and that he will be president two years later."

CAPTAIN BENISON HELD

Alleged Complicity In the Smuggling of Eight Chinamen

Boston, Aug. 16.—A warrant was was issued for Captain H. M. Benison, master of the Cunard steamship Saxonia on the trip on which she is supposed to have brought eight Chinamen unlawfully to this port. Benison is charged with "wilfully, unlawfully, knowingly and negligently failing to prevent the landing in the United States" of eight Chinamen, one of whom is in custody.

The captain was arraigned before Commissioner Darling. To the charges preferred against him he pleaded not guilty and had the case continued to Sept. 10, when the Saxonia returns from England, his bail being fixed at $2000, which was furnished.

The information upon which the charges are based is provided by Acting Immigration Commissioner Hurley and Chinese Inspector McCabe.

South Berwick, Me., Aug. 16.—While lying on the track, apparently intoxicated, it is believed, Frank Clifford, 38, was run over and killed by an electric car last night.

UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT

Aged Man in Worcester Falls in Front of Quincy Auto

The vacation trip of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Fegan and family of Hancock street did not start in very favorably in Tuesday. A Worcester dispatch to the Boston Journal says:

Lucian B. Stone, ex-representative and former street commissioner of Worcester was struck by an automobile Monday afternoon and rendered unconscious. He remained unconscious up to an early hour this morning, and his physician, George M. Albee, says he received a compound fracture of the skull at the base, and he will probably die within a few hours.

Mr. Stone is 80 years of age, and lives at 1030 Main street. As he was alighting from an electric car before his house he slipped and fell in front of the automobile, the front wheels of which passed over his body.

The car was driven by Edward J. Fegan, aged 36, of 1048 Hancock street Quincy, and the young man was held in $1000 bonds to await the outcome of Mr. Stone's injuries.

In the car with young Fegan were his father, Walter R. Fegan of Quincy, and his mother and two sisters. They started from Quincy that afternoon to motor to Plattsburg, N. Y.

CLUB BOOK OF Q. Y. C.

The annual club book of the Quincy Yacht club for 1910 is out today, and contains much of interest to yachtsmen. Its table of contents includes the present and past officers since 1874 the 1910 tides, list of honorary and active members, club yachts and owners with their measurements, the racing and social events of the season, by-laws and rules, the Herreshoff table of allowances, the deed of trust of the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup, club flags, table of percentages of the several classes in 1909, record of regattas of 1909, including the annual run to and from Marblehead, the cup races of 1909, and a map giving the several club courses. In all it makes a book of 96 pages and not a dull page in it.

Although the weather looked threatening late Monday afternoon it was not until about 11 P. M. that the rain came. There was a smart little shower at that time and the wind whipped around t othe east. It continued to rain during the greater part of the night. The rain was much needed by vegetation and few would feel sorry to see a day of hard rain.

When the tar-concrete sidewalks are put in this year, the Commissioner of Public Works should restore the sidewalks on Chestnut street to the excellent condition it was in before Cottage avenue was widened. It is now in a dangerous condition at this point.

Fear.

Fear causes more disease than do microbes, more deaths than famine, more failures than panics. It costs more than war, is always a failure and is never necessary, said a medical man. Fear weaken's the heart's action, induces congestion, invites indigestion, produces poison through decomposing foods and is thus the mother of autopoisoning, which either directly causes or greatly aids in the production of quite 90 per cent of all our diseases.

Not Strong Minded.

"Brittle minded?"

"Yes; she's been giving me pieces of her mind for years."

A Rub For Tennyson.

When Alfred Tennyson appeared in the Oxford theater to receive his D. C. L. degree it is said that his disheveled hair and generally negligent state provoked the undergraduates into greeting him with the inquiry, "Did your mother call you early, call you early, Alfred, dear?"

THE HEAT OF BATTLE.

lamplight shone upon dozens of tiny, glistening drops on his forehead.

"Eh?" he asked again.

"I was speaking of the new soprano," the reverend host explained.

"Oh, yes—well, yes, better get her if posible, I may be wrong about ot, but it seems to me the room is very warm."

"Why, is it?" inquired the sweet little woman in surprise. Perhaps you had better open a window, Percy. Are you comfortable, Mr. Cummings?" As she said this, the conspirator looked straight into the eyes of the junior trustee. He thought he detected a ghost of a wink in her gaze, and immediately arose to the occasion.

"No," he answered; "on the contrary I was sure I felt a draught from that window and I was somewhat concerned. I take cold so easily."

"Never mind," hastily interjected Mr. Crowles. "I am perhaps dressed a little too warm for the season."

"Do you use this room as a dining-room all the year round?" inquired Mr. Sawyer fidgetting in his chair.

"Yes, all the year through," returned the minister. "Won't you let me help you to more peas?"

"No, thank you."

"Do let me give you more hot coffee," purred the sweet woman.

Mr. Crowles drew forth his handkerchief and mopped his brow. His associate, Mr. Sawyer, sniffed and looked about him breathing deeply. Then with a startled look the minister's wife sprang up, exclaiming:

"Mercy! my biscuits are burning!"

She hurried to the oven door and flung it wide open. An infernal draught of hot air laden with smoke swept full against the unprotected back of Mr. Crowles. A reserve detachment swooped aside and enveloped Mr. Sawyer. In an instant a thin veil of smoke enveloped the table.

"Oh dear!" came the voice of the little woman as she clawed and clutched frantically at something within the oven, "they're ruined."

A blackened mass slid from her hand to the floor, and with it was a small square smoking thing that had once done duty as an iron holder.

"I must have forgotten and left it in the oven when I turned the biscuits," she managed to explain.

Mr. Crowles coughed and passed his hand over his dripping forehead. The upper buttons of his waistcoat were unfastened. He was very warm indeed.

"Shall I open the window?" he asked, half rising.

"Oh, no, please sit still, I can open it easily," she answered. But before doing so she stirred the fire into one final effort. Her face was a study of sweetness and peace as she again seated herself at the table.

When the meal was ended, the minister and his guests executed an almost pell-mell retreat into the cool living-room. Both Mr. Cowles and Mr. Sawyer bore evidence of the radiating power of the parson's stove. The pride had forsaken Mr. Crowles' collar, which now hung dejectedly about his neck. Mr. Sawyer's celluloid survived the torrid atmosphere shining and placid, but his cuffs were sadly wilted and his linen bosom flat and flabby.

Mr. Cummings opened the front door and peered long and earnestly into the great, cool, outside world while he whistled softly, "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight."

"The board of trustees authorize me to state that certain improvements are to be made in the manse, including the erection of a kitchen. This addition has long been needed and will be greatly appreciated by your pastor and his family. And—"

But the minister's wife heard no more. She glanced across at Mr. Cummings. He thought he detected the ghost of a wink in her right eye, and rose to the occasion with a squint of his left. The little woman's banner was floating high and triumphant. She laughed like a girl when she told the good news to the frying-pan, and declared "There is nothing better than baked trustee except a trustee that needs no baking."—The Interior.

PASSING THE DANGER ZONE

Gaynor May Be Able to Leave the Hospital In Two Weeks

New York, Aug. 16.—Mayor Gaynor shows further improvement and strength and is rapidly emerging from the danger zone.

One of the physicians who is attending the mayor says that barring unforseen and improbable complications, Gaynor will be able to leave the hospital in two weeks and that by the middle of next month he will have recovered sufficiently to start for the Adirondacks.

Woman Suffocates In Cesspool

New York, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Benjamin Brown lost her life by a fall into an abandoned cesspool near her home at Stapleton, S. I. The vault had been covered with boards which broke when Mrs. Brown stepped on them. She suffocated before rescue was possible.

Going Some.

Mrs. Howard—Do come to see me soon. I live right around the corner from your house.

Mrs. Coward—Thanks awfully, but since we have our new motor I never call on any one who lives less than twenty miles away.—Life.

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of Them In Quincy, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Quincy reader should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. George L. Nott, 99 North Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for holding a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells which were so seaere at times that I had to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My sight was also affected, spots often appearing before me and my back ached intensely. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, I was cured. Other members of my family have used this remedy with equally good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Constipation

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you, I am free from all that this morning. You can use this in behalf of suffering humanity. B. F. Fisher, Roanoke, Ill.

BRIEFS

Miss Willow A. Baxton of Pawtucket, Rhode Island is the guest of Miss Lillian Pardom of Newport avenue for two weeks.

The tax sale advertised by Tax Collector O'Hara on Monday included 197 estates. It included unpaid taxes for the year 1907 and 1908.

Mrs. Arthur Stanley of Elm avenue returned Saturday from Gloucester where she visited her mother Mrs. George T. Bailey for a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Wales and daughter Ruth of Clay street who have been visiting Mrs. Wales' uncle, Frank Phelan at Easton Centre have returned.

The annual ladies night of the Quincy Yacht club will be held tonight at the club house. An attractive musical program has been arranged for the evening, which should ensure a large attendance of members and ladies.

Chairs were presented last week to three of the old Grand Army veterans of Hanover by the Joseph E. Wilder W. R. C. One of these, Lewis Josselyn is father of Mrs. Gertrude L. Carr of Wollaston; and Peleg S. Sturtevant is a brother of Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips of Quincy

The abutters on Elm avenue are making improvements in the appearance of that beautiful thoroughfare, which has six rows of noble elm trees three on each side. The wide grass plot between the sidewalk and the street is being regraded near the Hancock street end.

To prevent the promontory alongside the Quincy Bay shore parkway, back of the National Sailors Home, from being washed away by the northeast storms, a submerged concrete wall is being constructed by the Metropolitan Park Commission. This reservation is becoming more popular every day, and is now an excellent bathing beach.

Ex Mayor Charles M. Bryant of Quincy went to St. Louis Thursday, to attend the annual convention of the American Poultry Association, of which he is president ,and it will be his first visit to that great middlewest city of many industries. Mr. Bryant is authority on Rhode Island Reds, and at the convention he may make a few remarks on their many virtues as a barn yard and hennery product.—Hyde Park Gazette.

Manila, Aug. 16.—The visit of Secretary of War Dickinson to Lucena was made the occasion of a demonstration in favor of immediate independence for the Philippines.

Replying to a petition, the secretary told the Filipinos that they had been misinformed as to the extent of his powers in matters of that nature. He said congress was the only place the subject could be properly discussed.

TIME LIMIT REACHED IN CRIPPEN CASE

Doctor and Miss Leneve May Sail Away on Thursday

Quebec, Aug. 16.—While Inspector Dew or none of the authorities here will admit the fact, it is believed Dr. Crippen and Ethel Leneve will be taken to England on a liner sailing Thursday. Two steamers leave on that day, and it is very probable the two prisoners will depart on it.

Last night they completed the fifteen days under arrest in Canada required by the fugitive offender's act. Except for the automatic expiration of the fifteen-day limit, the case is without legal features.

Crippen, it is learned, has been permitted to mail to his London attorney a long letter relating to his case.

PET DOG UNCOVERS BODY

Woman Hacked, Robbed and Buried While Still Alive

Lancaster, Cal., Aug. 16.—In a shallow grave sunk in the yard of her front yard, a pet dog uncovered the body of Mrs. Frieda S. Castine, a wealthy ranch owner. Murder, with robbery as a motive, is suspected, and the police are searching for the woman's brother-in-law, Otto Schultz, who left here after saying he was bound for Germany.

Mrs. Castine was seen last Friday, when she came here from her ranch, four miles east, to receive a remittance of $6000 from relatives in San Francisco. Investigations tend to show that the woman was attacked with an axe as she drove into her yard and was thrown into the shallow hole while yet alive.

An examination by a surgeon disclosed the presence of sand in the lungs and bronchial tubes, drawn there by the victim's dying gasps.

IS BARRED FROM COURT

Russian Princess Accused of Owing Red Cross Society $500,000

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—One of the most beautiful women in St. Petersburg, Princess Lobanoff-Rostovskaja, is accused of owing the Red Cross society $500,000.

She has not been haled into court because of her husband's great wealth and social position, but the czarina has barred her from court, where she was not only the reigning beauty, but was the wittiest and brightest of the ladies there.

The princess insists that she is the innocent victim of a court clique.

PRIDE CAUSES BANK TO CLOSE

Officer Fails In His Efforts to Save Its Standing

NEW METHODS REVEAL SECRET

Money Lost Twenty-five Years Ago by York County Savings Bank Kept From Knowledge of Directors by Treasurer's Manipulation of Accounts—Strain Becomes Too Great When Exposure Becomes Certain

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 15.—Pride in the financial standing of the institution of which he had so long been treasurer and fear lest the announcement of poor investments should hurt that standing led Richmond H. Ingersoll to make false entries in the books of the York County Savings bank a quarter of a century ago and to continue the falsification through all these years without detection, each year getting deeper in the muddle of false figures.

This is the accepted explanation of the closing of the doors of the York County Savings bank after a discovery of the shortage in the funds had been made by the bank examiner. That Ingersoll himself did not profit by his manipulations of the accounts has yet to be proved, but bank officials and citizens generally do not believe he did.

Ingersoll had been president of the bank for fifty years. Of recent years he has had an assistant to relieve him of a portion of his duties, but he has persistently declined to allow his assistant to work on the books and, although that was the most arduous of his many tasks, has kept personal supervision of them.

For years the directors and officers of the bank have urged, even entreated Ingersoll to take a vacation, but he has always been firm in his refusal and his declaration that he did not need a vacation.

A month or more ago the directors of the bank voted to adopt a suggestion of the state bank examiner and advertise the accounts by number in a local paper, giving the amount of each account as shown by the books of the bank and requesting depositors to compare the amounts with their pass books and to report any discrepancies.

That vote meant the discovery of Treasurer Ingersoll's manipulation of the books. He knew it and yet continued to work at his desk each day.

Wednesday Bank Examiner Skelton of Lewiston appeared at the bank and started to make an investigation of the books preparator to the publication of the lists of accounts. Mr. Ingersoll worked with him throughout the day, but Thursday did not appear at the bank, being taken suddenly ill from what is believed to be over-indulgence in headache powders.

Knowing that exposure was imminent Ingersoll had carefully prepared a statement, which was found in his desk at the bank after he was taken ill. Just what the letter said officials of the institution decline to divulge at this time, but that it contained an admission of the shortage, and at least a partial statement of the methods employed to cover it up for so many years, is not denied.

Treasurer Ingersoll himself is at the point of death. He does not know that the bank has been closed, for in his few conscious moments those at the bedside have carefully led his thoughts away from the affairs of the institution.

MAY REACH $360,000

Examiners Still Probing Shortage In York County Savings Bank

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 16.—Uncertainty hangs over the depositors of the wrecked York County Savings bank, which closed its doors as the result of a shortage in the accounts of its 77-year-old ex-treasurer, Richmond H. Ingersoll.

Conservative estimates from banking men now place the loss to depositors at 20 percent. Reckoned on the basis of $1,200,000 deposits and allowing for the $100,000 surplus and the treasurer's bond of $20,000, this means that the shortage will reach $360,000.

Bank Examiner Skelton and Assistant Ellis have no assurances to give depositors further than that no accurate figures of the shortage can be officially given out for some days.

GENEROUS OFFER TO BOYS

Millionaire Will Add a Dollar to Every Dollar They Save

Lee, Mass., Aug. 16.—Roderick B. Andrews, many times a millionaire, showed himself a philanthropist when he announced that for every dollar saved and placed in the bank by Lee boys he would add a similar amount to their account.

Mr. Andrews wants the boys to save their pennies instead of spending them on cheap picture shows and ice cream cones.

He authorizes the following offer: "If any boy in Lee, of good character, will earn $1 and deposit it in the Lee Savings bank, with the purpose of starting an account, I will put $1 with it. All accounts thus started must remain in the bank until the depositors are of age."

The Lee philanthropist is a self-made man and was once a poor boy in Baltimore. Dame Fortune smiled upon him and he entered business in Baltimore with successful results. He spends money lavishly upon the poor of the community.

GRAND WELCOME PLANNED

Newport Millionaires Will Help Sailors to Enjoy Themselves

Newport, R. I., Aug. 16.—Newport, famous as the summer playground of hundreds of American millionaires, is welcoming with open arms the 12,000 men of the great North Atlantic fleet.

The grounds of magnificent palaces will be thrown open to them, and the members of the brilliant summer colony will join hands in entertaining them. Some new feature will mark every day of the fleet's stay, and pleasures the sailors have never dreamed of are in store for them.

Men and women whose names are potent throughout the nation will show in the entertainments they provide for the thousands of sailors that, in spite of frequent outcries made against them, the men who man the country's warships are honored by the entire nation. The freedom of the city is offered them, and not only that but the freedom of the summer colony as well.

NEW ENGLAND POLICE HUNTING SLAYER

Capsalis's Trail Lost After Being Located In Biddeford

Boston, Aug. 16.—The police of Boston and New York, as well as the authorities of all New England cities and towns have been asked to look for Nicholas Capsalis, suspected of murdering his aunt, Maritsa Capalista, with whom he boarded, at their home in Somersworth, N. H.

The victim was choked to death and her body hid in a flour barrel in the cellar of the house. Jealousy of a man whom the woman had promised to marry is believed to have been the motive for the atrocious crime. The crime was probably committeed last Wednesday evening.

The last trace of the fugitive was found in Biddeford, where the police of that city say they located Capsalis as late as 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. No trace of him could be found later than that, and the Biddeford police believe that he made his way eastward, probably to Portland; with the idea of escaping to Boston or New York to take a boat to Greece.

On the Edge of a Precipice

A Woman Is Saved From a False Step.

By MARGARET BARR.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

No one could understand why it was that Helen Ayer, the wife of an excellent man and the mother of a lovely boy six years old, fell under the influence of Schuyler Quigley, with nothing except swagger and cheek to recommend him. When Quigley first began to pay attention to Mrs. Ayer her husband did not appear to notice it. The truth is he saw that his wife was drifting away from him and he dared not oppose her, fearing that by his very opposition he might bring about a catastrophe. If he permitted the matter to work itself out perhaps the wife and mother would in time tire of her new fancy and realize the danger to herself, her husband and her son.

But Quigley was so aggressive, so persistent, that Helen never got away from a certain dominating force there was about him long enough to recover herself. Finally Ayer decided to take action. Since they all belonged to the same set he had frequent opportunity to meet the man who was undermining his home. Their first meeting was at the house of a mutual friend, where a number of men were accustomed to play poker. Ayer's object was to begin a series of attempts to force a quarrel upon Quigley, concealing the true cause. The better to cover his motive at the poker party he met Quigley cordially. But during the game he suddenly arose from the table, declaring that he would not play with a cheat, making it plain that Quigley was the man referred to.

Quigley, who was perfectly innocent of the charge, retorted. High words followed, and Ayer struck him. Quigley was prevented from returning the blow by the others, who protested against the men fighting under the host's roof about a matter of cheating at cards, thereby bringing a scandal upon the house and the party.

This left Quigley not only under a disgraceful charge, but as having received a blow from Ayer that he had not returned. Under the regime of half a century or more ago, he would have been obliged to challenge Ayer or be cut by his friends. Living in the twentieth century, he was not obliged to do anything. He let the matter drop. He did not call at Ayer's house any more, but he met Mrs. Ayer when she went out on the street and at the houses of mutual friends. All he said to her about his trouble with her husband was that Ayer had accused him of cheating at cards and that every member of the party present had exonorated him of the charge.

And so it was that Russell Ayer by trying to get rid of the man who was really his wife's worst enemy, and at the same time protect her good name, only made himself appear to her a very unjust and ignoble person. She thought that she was taking care of her reputation by never being with Quigley, except when others were present. But she found it difficult to live with one man as his wife and have a love affair—though devoid of criminality with another.

Ayer followed up his first attack on Quigley by telling a number of Quigley's friends that he (Ayer) had struck him and Quigley had not had the manliness to resent the blow.

The situation was not pleasing to any one of the three persons involved. Quigley represented to Mrs. Ayer that he was refraining from resenting her husband's insults on her account and begged her to vindicate him by securing a divorce and marrying him. She was distressed, feeling that this was due Quigley, but dreading to take a step that would seperate her from her husband and her child.

One day Ayer met Quigley on the street. Each was walking with a friend. As they passed Ayer said loud enough for Quigley and his companion to hear:

"There goes a coward I am trying to make fight."

This was too much for Quigley, who turned and said, "Well, we'll have it out now."

"Very well," replied Ayer, "draw."

Taking a revolver from his pocket he raised it, cocking it at the same time. But since Quigley was unarmed there was no fight.

"You can't escape me with a bloody nose," said Ayer. "It's life or death between us."

And he walked on.

Quigley began to feel that he could no longer brook these insults. Some of his friends were telling him that Ayer was determined in the matter and it might better be settled sooner than later. They advised him to challenge Ayer and have it over with. All supposed that the origin of the matter was at the card table. Indeed, few if any knew that Ayer was trying to force his enemy to withdraw his influence from Mrs. Ayer. Quigley blustered for awhile, but took no action. But finally noticing a difference in the cordiality with which his friends greeted him he gave in and sent Ayer a challenge.

Ayer accepted, naming revolvers at ten paces, every chamber to be emptied before the firing ceased.

This staggered Quigley, for it meant death probably to both of the parties. He sent a message to Ayer asking what he could do to avert the issue. Ayer replied in a sealed note telling him that he must neither speak nor write to Mrs. Ayer again. Quigley replied that Mrs. Ayer had applied for a divorce and had consented to marry him as soon as it was obtained. To this Ayer replied that on his part the affair would be dropped. But he did not do this till he had looked into the court records and found that his wife had the day before applied for a separation.

When Ayer went home that evening he found his wife gone. His little boy asked him what was the matter with mamma. She had cried and kissed him all the morning, then had gone out and hadn't come back. Wouldn't papa go and bring her back?

But day after day, week after week, month after month, passed and mamma did not return. She was residing in a city where divorce is made easy. The child was obliged to content himself with his nurse during the day, but whenever his father was not at his office he supplied so far as possible the place of the mother. Quigley still lived in the city, but there was not as much swagger in him as formerly. Somehow no one seemed to think he had come out of his affair with Ayer with credit, and his friends were dropping off.

While it was known to the Ayers' intimate friends that Helen was suing for a divorce, it was not known that she was doing so in order to marry Quigley. Divorces usually make it appear that great wrongs are committed by one or both parties. We are horrified at tales of cruelty, desertion, all kinds of inhumanities. While reading of them we would suppose that after such suffering neither party will ever again consent to wear the chains of wedlock. But once the bond is broken up pops a man or a woman hitherto unknown in the proceedings, and the decree is scarcely granted before the wedding bells are ringing.

Helen Ayer had secured her divorce, had returned, and it was supposed by her friends, except an intimate few, that she would remain—after the charges against Ayer her lawyer had drawn up for her—an unmarried woman. While this was the supposition, a marriage license was being taken out permitting Helen Ayer and Schuyler Quigley to wed. They were to be privately married at 5 o'clock in the evening and take a 7 o'clock train for their wedding trip.

During the afternoon the bride to be was seized with an irresistible desire to see her boy once more before taking the irretrievable step. She knew that her husband was usually at his office at the time and she would not meet him. Throwing caution to the winds, she called a carriage, alighted near her former home, entered and ran upstairs to find her son.

She came upon a melancholy sight. Her boy was lying on a bed, pale and wan, while his father was bending over him.

"Oh, why didn't you tell me? Why didn't you send for me?" she wailed. And without waiting for a reply she bent down, passionately encircled the child with her arms and hugged him to her breast. Then, flinging her hat and coat aside, she knelt beside the bed.

"Oh, mamma!" cried the child. "How glad I am that you have come back!" Then, raising his arms, he placed them about her shoulders. "And you're never, never going away again, are you?"

And the woman for whom a groom was waiting said:

"Never, so help me heaven!"

Russell Ayer was walking away when his wife seized his hand and held him. She attempted to speak to him, but not finding words turned again to the boy. Then Russell knelt beside her and, resting his hand on her waist, the two turned the ebbing life back into their child by their united presence.

An hour later Schuyler Quigley, as he was about to enter a carriage to take him to a church where he was to meet his bride, was startled by a message. Tearing off the cover with misgivings and impatience, he read:

I cannot go. I will never see you again.

One of those singular and unaccountable infatuations under which a woman will leave home, husband and children, wrecking them, and most of all herself, had come to a sudden end, as it were, on the brink of the precipice over which she was about to plunge. Her husband could manage the man who was enticing her, but he could not manage her. What neither of these men could do was accomplished by a sick child.

After the boy came out of danger Russell Ayer told his wife of his attempts to save her. He gave the reason for his accusing Quigley of cheating at cards, the blow, the subsequent insults, the forcing his enemy into an unwilling challenge. Then when he had finished by telling her that he had dropped the matter on learning of her intended separation she shuddered.

"My God! How could I have done it?"

BAR HARBOR FRILLS AND FURBELOWS.

Novel Touches That Offer Valuable Suggestions—Black Accessories for Becomingness and Style.

The season is nearing its height here, and gay doings at the Club, or on the beautifully fitted verandas that are such a feature of this place, bring out all that is daintiest and smartest in frocks and furbelows. The choicest dresses and fixings that have been held in reserve earlier, now make their appearance, and clever woman glean many ideas for future get ups, and make a note of chic accessories that will bring a somewhat worn or passe costume up to date.

SMART WASH FROCKS.

In the morning no end of simple but fetching dresses of percale, gingham, chambray, piques or linen are in evidence. Simplicity of style and smartness of cut and finish are the notable features of these. All the frills worn at the neck, sleeve or front of the blouse are of the detachable lingerie sort that go separately to the laundress, while the use of dark bands as finishes at the hems of light frocks keeps them fresh a long time with an occasional pressing. The lighter and more delicate "wash" materials daintily made and worn with pretty belongings go to all the less formal dances, and other gatherings, holding their own with frocks of a much more expensive sort. The touch of black that so many costumes need for style or becomingness is given effectively by the black hat, black chiffon or net girdle, and by the various jet ornaments that compose well with the quaint lines of this year's frocks. Black velvet ribbon at neck and wrist is a modish revival much worn.

WITH DUTCH NECKS.

With Dutch necks, dog collars and other neck fixings are very important. Full ties of tulle either of black or white, or matching the color of the frock or its trimmings are popular for evening wear, and are often worn under the collar of pearls or jet with smart effect. Some of the most liked embroidery is done on chiffon, lace or satin that will be worn later as blouses or other accessories for new fall costumes.

FASHIONABLE EMBROIDERIES.

The woman who likes to have her dresses and pretty home belongings enriched with handsome embroidery is using lustrous "Sida" floss. This is the thread used on all imported French dresses. It looks exactly like heavy silk floss, but costs much less and works up much faster enabling anyone to complete the embroidery in half the time needed if silk thread were employed. "Sida" floss comes in every wanted shade, does not rough up, or pull in working as silk threads do, and causes the design to stand out so well that no stuffing or padding is needed.

WHITE EYELET EMBROIDERIES.

White eyelet embroideries, on batiste or linen are used for blouses and costumes more than ever before, and the more open styles are often worn over slips of satin messaline in bright colors. Black thin materials made over figured or plain colored linings, while no longer novel, continue to be smartly worn.

CRETONNE COATS.

A good many cretonne coats are seen reaching half way between the knee and hip and are prettiest worn over white or light colored nets and muslins. The best specimens of this style are of cool, delicate, colorings rather than the more vivid tones, and handsome lace frills and buttons of paste or carved effects suit them admirably. Coarse linen coats in oyster white with deep hems, Incroyable collar and flaring cuffs of the cretonne are also worn. A few of old tapestry have been made up but are too warm to appeal successfully for summer wear, though they may take for Bridge coats next Autumn

LAWYERS ORGANIZE BACHELOR'S CLUB

When They Hear Woman State Her Needs For Baby

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Here is what it costs to keep a 7-months-old baby, according to Mrs. Lillian Stone, wife of Sidney Stone, real estate dealer, reputed to be worth half a million.

Go-cart, $40; clothes, $400; weekly expenses: room, $8; nurse, $25; second nurse, $10. Added to this Mrs. Stone thinks the child should have toys of the value of about $100. The outings for the baby's nurses should cost at least $15 a week.

Mrs. Stone is suing her husband for the support of the child. When she was testifying all the lawyers in the courtroom happened to be bachelors. They gasped with astonishment as she reeled off the figures, and with Attorney Henry B. Levy formed a bachelors' club after court adjourned.

OUTBID AMERICAN CONCERN

Dredge For Panama Canal Will Be Built by Firm In Scotland

Washington, Aug. 15.—American shipbuilders have found themselves unable to compete with the Scotch yards in building a steel ladder dredge for the Panama canal, and President Taft has authorized the Isthmian canal commission to buy the big machine abroad, at a price more than 50 percent less than the only American bid.

In an open competition William Simons & Co., of Renfrew, Scot., bid to build the machine for $399,340. The Union Iron Works of San Francisco wanted $874,146. Lobnitz & Co., another Renfrew concern, bid $499,000.

The law provides that purchases of material and equipment for construction of the canal are restricted to articles of domestic production or manufacture unless the president shall deem the bid extortionate and unreasonable.

MASQUERADES AS YOUNG MAN

Mrs. Smith Posed as Husband of a Young Woman

CAPTURES A $2500 WAGER

Took the Part of Man From Argentine and Was Connected With Various Concerns In New York For Five Years Without Sex Being Discovered—Held Up as Model Husband by Women In "His" Neighborhood

Boston, Aug. 16.—After winning a bet that is said to run well into the thousands of dollars, for a Boston physician, Elena B. Smith of Boston and New York, after masquerading five years as a man, has once more donned women's clothing.

To keep up the deception that started in Boston in 1905, Mrs. Smith became "Albert C. Martinez of Argentine," and shortly after introduced to her male friends and others in New York her "wife."

Hundreds of people in New York city with whom the young woman associated in a business and social way almost refuse to believe, now that the exposure has been made, that the person they supposed was a well groomed, energetic man of the world is really a young woman.

During her five years in New York city Mrs. Smith was connected with several different firms and persons, but never was the sex of the young "man from Argentine" suspected.

The experiment of changing the young woman's identity was the result of a bet made in an exclusive Boston club during 1905. The name of the physician who arranged the wager has not been made public, but it is understood that he is one of the best known in the city.

The amount of the wager is stated as $2500, although it may have exceeded that amount. The wager was that the doctor should find some woman who would and could pose as a man so successfully as to defy detection.

As a result of the bet the doctor in question selected Mrs. Smith, who was then in Boston attending a business college. When the scheme was first proposed she was delighted with the idea and readily consented to become a "man" for a time.

At first it was not her intention to keep up the masquerade for over a year, for that was the time limit placed on the wager. But because of certain complications which arose she persisted in her adopted character for four years longer.

Mrs. Smith is the daughter of a well known New York family. She married young and went to South America, where she acquired a fluent command of Spanish.

After thinking over her plans for the future the young woman decided that she would adopt the character of a young man from Argentine, for she had made a close study of the types of young manhood of that South American country.

When she finally decided on her plan of action she also decided that a "wife" would be necessary, so she induced Miss Edna Torgersen to act in that capacity.

On the night of July 8 the couple left Boston for New York. Mrs. Smith's first position was secured through a newspaper advertisement, and was that of Spanish correspondent for a cigar manufacturer. She became so satisfactory in this position that she was frequently advanced.

After that she easily secured other positions, as she desired, a change, and worked side by side with men and women who always believed that she was a man. While she was engaged in the different positions she learned different sports and became well versed in politics.

"Mr. and Mrs. Martinez" also entertained extensively, their little parties and receptions being very popular with their friends.

Mrs. Smith said that she always treated women with studied courtesy, giving up her seat in the street cars and doing other things of a similar nature.

At different times several young women became very much interested in the young man from Argentine and it was only by the use of much diplomacy that she got out of several embarrassing situations.

Mrs. Smith says that she was held up as a model husband by all the women of the neighborhood. She also believes that several benedicts hated her most cordially for this reason. One day a woman dropped in unexpectedly and found her scrubbing the floors, attired in an old pair of trousers. Her amazement knew no bounds, but she promptly returned home to serve the news warm to her husband.

Kelliher Gets More Time

Boston, Aug. 16.—By agreement of both sides, the time for the filing of exceptions in the case of William J. Kelliher, who is charged with aiding and abetting George W. Coleman in the misapplication of funds of the National City bank of Cambridge, has again been extended by Judge Hale, this time to Sept. 10.

A better way to wash clothes.

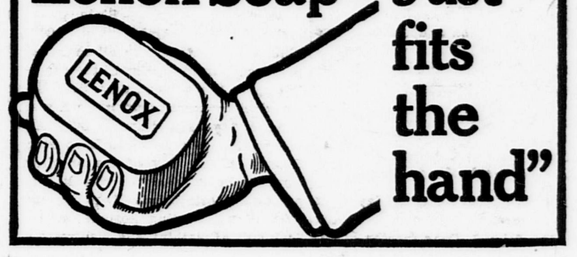

With clean, warm water and a cake of Lenox Soap, any woman can do good work.

But she can do better work—and do it easier—if she uses Lenox Soap Solution.

This is the way to make it: Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces, dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

Wet the clothes, rub the solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water and let stand over night. Next morning, you will find that the really hard part of washing—rubbing the clothes up and down the wash-board—is not half as hard as usual.

BRIEFS

Cloudy and cool today .

Louis Smith, of the fish department of Berry Bros. store, is at Brant Rock on his vacation trip.

The highest noon temperature since the first of August was yesterday—85—and this is the sixth day of temperature below 80 at noon.

A wharf is being built in the Neponset river at the aviation grounds at Squantum, so that steamers may readily make a landing at the field.

The Catholic Club met Monday night and presented a gold chalice to the Rev. Fr. John J. Coan, pastor of St. John's church, for St. John's convent.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Marden and Masters Allen and Francis Marden of Clay street have returned from a two weeks outing at Burgess point, North Weymouth.

In the district court this morning John Donovan, the man who drove an automobile into a pole on Washington street last month while going 60 miles an hour, was held for the grand jury for reckless driving.

ENJOYABLE HOUSE PARTY.

Monday brought to an end a jolly house party enjoyed by fourteen young people mostly from Quincy. Situated on picturesque Onway lake at Raymond, N. H., is a delightful camp and here the merry company gathered. Mrs. Luther Hersey of Washington street, Quincy Point, was the chaperon and hostess and during the week Misses Catherine Saville, Lela Smith, Ethel Hersey, Bee Morrison and Mr. William Nolan of Quincy and Miss Nellie Thomas of Somerville made up the party. Friday and Saturday brought more guests who were Misses Gerna Saville and Blanche Morrison, Brewster Walker, Ambler Welch, Leon Willien, Walter Rogers and Harry Sutton. The lake afforded splendid bathing and rowing and was said to afford fishing but none of the party were successful at this sport. Saturday night a six-seated buck-board was hired and the campers drove over to the village to a barn dance, which proved also to be a costume party and needless to say was greatly entertaining. Everyone voted the entire party to be the jolliest most successful kind of a house party and heartily wished it might become an annual pleasure.

The Waiter.

Oh, the jokes that he told and the stories he sprung,
Each hoary old quibble and jest,
And the narratives old when Joe Miller was young
And Artemus Ward at his best!

Colors In Cottons.

A good mixture to set color in cotton materials is one tablespoonful of turpentine, a handful of salt and a pail of cold water.

John Heffernan, the City Square shoe dealer, announces a midsummer sale of shoes. Everyone is invited to inspect whether they wish to buy or not. After looking over the big reductions offered you will want to buy several pairs for how can you save money easier?

DEATHS.

MYSTERIOUS TELEGRAMS

from him until Chief Burrell received the telegram announcing that he had been found dead. The telegram did not state whether the death was due to suicide or murder.

There has been much mystery surrounding the man Griffin that will perhaps never be solved now that the man is dead. There are those however who entertain the opinion that it is not beyond possibility that the man Griffin may have possibly been Restelli in disguise.

Immediately upon the receipt of the telegram from Sydney, Chief Burrell took a train for Boston. He did not state his destination, but it is thought that he went to consult Chief Watts who it will be remembered also received numerous telegrams signed "Griffin."

It is probable now that the man Griffin will be looked up more thoroughly, and that the Sydney police will be asked to forward a complete description of the dead man, and all particulars.

THE LOCAL HUNT.

Officer Scott of the State police spent Monday in Quincy and with Chief Burrell went over all the facts in the case from the day of the shooting up to the present time. The different clews were taekn up in a systematic manner and traced out. All the parties who claim to have seen Restelli on the day of the shooting were again interviewed, and it was practically established that at the time of the shooting Restelli wore a dark suit of clothing and also wore a mustache.

On the other hand Mrs. Elrick, who saw him on Adams street, is certain that he wore khaki trousers. If this is so, Restelli evidently made a change of clothing or at least drew on a pair of khaki trousers over his other suit so that they could be quickly discarded later.

It was 2.30 by the time the last shooting had taken place, and according to Mrs. Elrick, it was between 3.20 and 4 o'clock when she saw the man. The question is, where was Restelli in the meantime for t would require but a few minutes to walk over the hill to Adams street.

The police are inclined to the belief that if he went this way it must have been 3 o'clock and not 4 o'clock, although Miss Sparrow's story is that she saw the supposed Restelli a few minutes past 4 o'clock near the Wollaston depot.

AN ARREST.

The second clew of the day came shortly after 1 o'clock, in a telegram from G. G. Grant, sheriff at Columbia Falls, Maine. This telegram in effect was that he had arrested a Restelli suspect.

Chief Burrell immediately wired back a complete description of Restelli with the request that if the description fitted to hold the man.

There are therefore now two new strings out, one or both of which may be heard from any minute. These are at Syracuse, New York, and the last clew Columbia Falls, Me.

Columbia Falls, where the arrest was made, is a coast town on the most eastern county of Maine, between Bangor and Calias. If this is the man wanted it would appear that he is trying to get out of the country for he is near the line of New Brunswick.

Exact Thomas.

Thomas Hoar, the devoted servant upon whom Gilbert White, the English naturalist, depended to carry out his garden plans and to look after his comfort in many ways, was noted for his exactness. Mr. H. C. Shelley, in "Gilbert White and Selborne," gives an amusing illustration.

There was one occasion when Thomas came to report. "Please, sir, I've been and broke a glass."

"Broke a glass, Thomas! How did you do that?"

"I'll show you, sir," he rejoined as he disappeared for a moment. Returning with a glass in his hand, he let it fall on the floor, remarking:

"That's how I broke it, sir."

"There, go along, Thomas; you are a great fool," said his master, adding to himself, "and I was as great a one for asking such a foolish question."

Getting an Autograph.

A Munich boy of fourteen, who had seen and admired many of Rudolf von Seitz's paintings, was anxious to secure the painter's autograph, but did not know how to go about it. After much thought he wrote a letter, stating that he had sent a case of wine to the professor's address, and wanted to know whether it had been received. Thinking the matter of sufficient importance the painter did not write, but called at the address given, met the boy's mother, and the fraud soon became apparent. The boy was thoroughly scolded, and next day received this autograph note:

It often happens here on earth
That little rogues to great ones grow.
Some autographs for which you're trying
Can be procured without much lying.

WOMEN CONTROL IMMENSE RICHES

America's List Headed by Mrs. Mary Harriman.

MRS. HETTY GREEN IS NEXT.

Russell Sage's Widow Gives Away Half of Husband's $55,000,000 Estate In Philanthropic Work—Miss Helen Gould Also Devotes Fortune to Charitable Projects.

The announcement that the estate of Edward H. Harriman, who died Sept. 9, 1909, amounts to $71,000,000 makes the position of his widow, Mrs. Mary W. Harriman, secure as the richest woman in America. This country probably has the most remarkable list of wealthy women of any land in the world.

In a will containing ninety-nine words Harriman left all his property to his wife. They had reached a thorough understanding as to the management of his vast estate, and his faith in her good judgment was so thorough that he did not deem it necessary to incumber her with restrictions or conditions.

Since his death she has devoted her time to the mastering of the task. She has been assisted by the services of Charles A. Peabody, president of a large life insurance company. By and by she will give more time to charity.

Hetty Green Has $55,000,000.

Mrs. Hetty Green got $1,000,000 when her father, Edward Robinson, died forty-five years ago, leaving an estate of $9,000,000. The remaining $8,000,000 was left in trust to her children. Soon an aunt, Sylvia Ann Howland, died and added about $4,000,000 to Mrs. Green's store. She has doubled and redoubled her fortune. It is now estimated at $55,000,000. Her daughter Sylvia is the wife of Matthew A. Wilkes, a New York clubman. Mrs. Green has preferred for many years to live in a little Hoboken flat because it was cheap.

Mrs. Russell Sage, whose kindly face is an index to her feelings, had the staggering task laid on her of spending $55,000,000 Russell Sage had acquired. In the first three years after his death she disposed of $25,000,000. She has endowed the Russell Sage foundation, the mission of which is to make the condition of the poor happier. She has lifted debts from hospitals, schools and churches, built churches outright, shown civic interest in renovating the governor's room at city hall, equipped industrial schools for girls, given to art museums and given to the city shrubs for Central park.

Miss Helen M. Gould got more than $10,000,000 from the estate of her father, Jay Gould. By wise investments she has added to this sum. It is estimated that she has more than $25,000,000. Always loving children, though she never married, she has undertaken to make glad the hearts of thousands of little ones whose parents are too poor to do much for them.

Gould Money In Charity.

Appearing seldom in society, she has turned the activities of a naturally restless mind into the channels of philanthropy. In the Spanish war she gave $100,000 for relief work among soldiers and $27,000 for the work of the Women's Relief association. Naval, army and railroad Y. M. C. A.'s everywhere attest to her interest.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont received from her husband's estate $5,000,000. One of her large gifts was $100,000 to the Nassau hospital at Mineola, N. Y.

Under the will of her father, Colonel William Goddard, Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin of New York became very wealthy in 1907. Eventually she will receive practically the whole of her father's estate of from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. She was Miss Hope Goddard of Providence and Mr. Iselin's second wife.

Mrs. Emma B. Kennedy, widow of John S. Kennedy of New York, headed New York women on the tax list this year, the estate of her husband being estimated at $50,000,000. The figure opposite her name was $6,000,000, while that opposite Mrs. Margaret O. Sage's name was $5,000,000.

Though Mrs. Emilie Rogers, widow of H. H. Rogers, apparently has only the income from securities valued at $3,000,000, which is about $100,000 a year, it is known that more than that sum is at her call. She was Mrs. E. Randel Hart before her marriage to Rogers.

Mrs. Lamont Wealthy.

Mrs. Daniel S. Lamont, whose husband was secretary of war in President Cleveland's second administration, has about $5,000,000.

Mrs. Archibald G. Thompson of Philadelphia, whose first husband was Thomas B. Wanamaker, received at his death $7,000,000 out of an estate of $20,000,000. She was Miss Mary L. Welsh, granddaughter of John Welsh, once United States minister to England.

Mrs. Delia S. Field, widow of Marshall Field of Chicago, who left $83,459,032, received $3,000,000 at her wedding.

Mrs. Morris K. Jesup received $9,617,000 from the $13,000,000 estate of her husband. Since his death she has assisted in managing the estate. Last year she gave $50,000 to Yale to complete the fund for the Morris K. Jesup chair in the forestry school.

SPORTING CHAT.

In the first of the eighth, in the Quincy-Dewey game, Bates drove one at Briggs which went between the latter's legs while not ten feet from the bag. Armstrong, backing up on the fly took the ball two feet behind Briggs and tossed to Glaze for the out. It was the fastest and headiest piece of work in the game. Armstrong is a genuine acquisition.

• • •

In the third inning on Saturday, on Fay's fly to right, Whitney pegged to Bates and caught Norwell stepping back to the second station in leisurely fashion.

• • •

In the first of the third innning on Saturday, with Eggleton on second, Ordway banged one far beyond the foul flag, but Duggan took the ball travelling back to it, turned and made a grand line throw to Fish and caught Eggleton. Great work Bill.

• • •

There is some doubt as to whether the Ramblers and Adams will meet again.

• • •

• • •

The North Quincys and Wollastons and Montclairs have a little league and play at the Pines in Wollaston every Saturday. The few rooters are helped by the cawing of crows and chirping of sparrows, but enthusiasm vibrates in the sylvan fastness.

• • •

There is every probability that Rockland will play here next Saturday. There are two picnics on at Rockland so they would rather play here. The team will not be recognizable, as the manager is devoting this week to scouting for players, but he will probably have a strong aggregation.

• • •

Eggleton of the Makarias made good in center for Dewey. He made a couple of good catches, singled and stole a sack. About all of the Makaria bunch will be in semi-pro ball next year and if the team continues it will be of new material.

• • •

Watch the Daily Ledger's sporting column for the official batting and fielding averages of the Quincy team as compiled by Secretary Alger.

• • •

The grand old wagon, Doctor Galen Vinton Bowditch was accorded such an ovation when he came on the Water street field on Saturday that the game stopped for about five minutes.

• • •

Glaze struck out the Deweys in the sixth.

• • •

It was too bad to have to give Ganzel an error in the Dewey game when he lost the ball in the sun. He was practically blinded.

• • •

Murray exposed the boney part of his knob when Glaze led off first in the eight innings on Saturday. He threw to Ganzel, and Glaze big lead enabled him to make second easily while Ganzel held the ball. Murray was jeered to the echo.

• • •

The home infield of the Quincys pulled off three lightning double plays in the Dewey game.

• • •

Lonny fumbled two in one inning Saturday. He made bad throws of both, too.

• • •

The poor support given Rice of the Ramblers accounted for the Adams win Saturday. They would probably be playing yet if McCarthy had not got excited at the critical moments. The batteries were extremely evenly matched.

• • •

Manager Dickie is doubtful if the Ramblers will attempt to steal on Barry the next time they meet. Not a man stole on him.

• • •

Knights batting achievements put him in the public eye to a large extent. He only gave four hits Saturday.

• • •

Adams had eight men left on bases to the Ramblers one.

• • •

The Old Colony League game between Quincy and Rockland scheduled to be played in Rockland on Saturday has been transferred to Quincy and will be played on the Water street grounds.

VETS MAKING GOOD IN MINORS.

Ex-Big Leaguers Stirring Up Things In Smaller Circuits.

HOBE FERRIS IN GREAT FORM

Former St. Louisan Leading Third Sackers In American Association. Old Timers Helping Minneapolis Win Pennant In Chivington's Circuit.

It is doubtful if there has ever been a season when so many players turned down by the major leagues the year before have shown such remarkable reversal of form in the minor leagues. Take, for instance, the members of the Minneapolis team in the American association. The grand showing of the Millers in this year's race is due solely to the star playing of the major league castoffs—Ferris, Altizer, Rossman, Cravath, Williams, Owens and Tom Hughes. The Chicago Americans thought Owens and Altizer were not good enough and sent them back to the Class A league. Rossman was sold by Detroit to St. Louis, but he refused to play there and consequently was hurried off to the minors. The St. Louis Americans also fired Hobe Ferris and Jimmy Williams, believing that the pair had seen their best days. But it's dollars to doughnuts that Manager Jack O'Conner would give anything to have the pair back. Rossman would also help the Browns considerably.

It is due to the work of these veterans that Minneapolis is in line for the American association banner this season. The men are setting the league afire with their sensational batting and fielding. There is Jimmy Williams. Jamesey hit just about .220 last season with the Brownies. The wonderful life renewer, release to the American association, has brought James back to the .300 brigade. He is now hitting .332.

Cravath had two chances to make good in the majors and failed because he was unable to swat. Now he is batting .352, according to the latest American association marks.

Otis Clymer was hammering somewhat like .198 last year with Washington. It is .298 with Minneapolis this season.

Altizer was another .155 swatter with the White Sox. Now it is .291 with Minneapolis. Tom Hughes' arm was in such poor shape that Washington sent him to Minneapolis last fall. His work this season has been so good that Manager Cantillon has advised Jimmy McAleer of the Senators to give him another trial in fast company.

Hobe Ferris is leading the third sackers in Chivington's league with a high percentage. He is also batting like a streak. Last year he hit around .216 for St. Louis. This season Ferris is walloping the sphere at a .280 clip.

[Rossman and Ferris.]

TWO VETERANS WHO ARE PLAYING GREAT BALL FOR MINNEAPOLIS.

Here is a list of others who are doing wonderful work and who were failures last year in fast company:

Ach Loole Ritter of Kansas City was released by Brooklyn because he was hitting nearer .100 than .200. He is batting .325 in the American association.

Cheerful Charles Hickman had slowed up in his hitting years ago and was released by Cleveland. Now he is batting .319 for Toledo.

Batting averages of the other ex-big leaguers are: Jerry Downs .294, Hayden, .293, Charlie Jones .286, Josh Clarke .281, Frank Bowerman .278. They all look strange to us who were used to their .250, .240 and .150 averages with Detroit, Boston Americans, Cleveland and Boston Nationals.

Dutch Koehler, who hit .220 when with St. Louis, is batting .299 for the South Bend Central league club. Dutch is again wanted by Bob Hedges.

Jimmy Barrett, while we are talking of "vets," can be spoken of. Last time in the big arena Jim hit .200 or thereabouts. Now he has a sticking mark of .394.

Billiards.

The invention of billiards is generally attributed to a French artist about the year 1571. Who introduced the game into Britain is not known, but it is mentioned both by Shakespeare and Spencer, and the time of its introduction seems to have been the close of the sixteenth century.

The Oceans.

The Pacific ocean covers 68,000,000 square miles, the Atlantic 30,000,000 and the Indian, Arctic and Antarctic oceans 42,000,000.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

Vol. 24 No. 191 QUINCY, MASS., WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 17, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

ATTENDANCE OF 300,000

An Estimate for the Quincy Aviation Meet

The international aviation meet may be held in Quincy in 1911. After an inspection of the Harvard aviation field here on Tuesday, says the Journal, Clifford B. Harmon, the wealthy New York amateur aviator, and Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin, who has made more than 200 ascensions in aeroplanes, both declared the field to be the most perfect they had ever seen, and Mr. Harmon suggested the possibility of the big meet on the field.

"You have a marvelous field here," said Harmon to Charles J. Glidden, "and the list of competitors is the finest ever gotten together for any meet in this country."

Capt. Baldwin echoed the sentiment adding: "Yes, and every man will want to fly his head off on this course."

The party went to the field after a conference at the office of the committee, at 164 Washington street, two cars being used. The party was made up of Mr. Glidden, Mr. Harmon, Capt. Baldwin, Professor Wilson of the contest committee, Manager Adams D. Claflin of the committee, Manager James V. Martin of the Harvard Aeronautical Society and Odin Roberts of the finance committee. As they made their way over the newly-built road to the grandstands, in process of construction, the visitors began exclaiming at the wide stretch of territory pointed out as the extent of the field.

Practically the only change to be be made in the original plans will be the relocation of the hangars, which will be brought nearer to the "getaway," in order that the spectators may see the machines as they are turned up and wheeled out to the starting point. It will also expedite repairs, as the necessary parts will be nearer the disabled machines.

The party returned to the office, where a lengthy conference was held relative to the detailed plans for the meet which will bring together aviators of world-wide fame. Mr. Harmon and Capt. Baldwin then returned to the Touraine, where after dinner another party was gathered.

Charles F. Willard, the young aviator who has made many remarkable flights, joined the evening party.

The accessibility of the meet is a feature which should tend to make the attendance larger than that at Los Angeles, and Mr. Harmon's estimate of a total attendance of 300,000 was regarded as conservative.

Mr. Harmon is the most famous amateur aviator in the country. He is chairman of the national council of the Aero Club of America, and holds the American records for duration and height in a balloon. He takes a flight at least three times a week.

Capt. Baldwin spent more time in the air than any other man living. He is the only person in the world having international pilots' licenses, one for each of the three types of aircraft, spherical balloon, dirigibles, and aeroplanes.

Mr. Willard goes to Enfield, Conn., today, to give an exhibition, his aeroplane being already there, and will return to this city several days before the meet in order to get familiar with the air currents and topography of the section.

An interesting experiment Mr. Harmon will make during the meet will be that of taking a line from the grandstand to a torpedo boat in the creek 2000 yards away, illustrating the possibilities of the aeroplane as an adjunct to a lifesaving station. He will attempt several other experiments in connection with life saving and the adaptation of the airship for purposes of warring upon warships.

The bomb dropping feature will be anintensely interesting part of the meet. A large model of a battleship will be mapped out on the ground on a scale corresponding to the size of a modern Dreadnought viewed from a height of 3000 feet, and the aviators will sail over it about 150 feet from the ground.

The model smokestacks will be raised slightly from the ground and the aviators will endeavor to drop a bomb into a smokestack as they pass. A special prize will be given for accuracy in this contest, and its novety will appeal to the spectator, while many army officers will be present to view it with critical eyes.

HARPOON WAS FIRST

But Was Disqualified Because of Foul

The Harpoon, sailed by Charles F. Adams, 2d, won the first race at Marblehead today in the first of the series with the Spanish sonder boats for the President Taft and Governor Draper cup. Unfortunately, however, the Harpoon was disqualified for fouling one of the bouys. The Beaver finished second and the Cima third, all American yachts.

NOW POINTS TO MURDER

Almost Impossible for Griffin to Have Killed Himself

While Tuesday was a day of some excitement in the Restelli case, today has been the opposite, for not a thing had developed up to noon. The first clew, Tuesday, was that contained in the telegram signed "Citizen of Quincy" that a Restelli suspect was on a train bound West. Officers boarded the train at Syracuse and searched for the man, but were informed by the conductor that the suspect had left the train at Schnectady. The police at that place were notified and they immediately started on the hunt after the man with instruction to shoot to kill if he resisted arrest. There are some Quincy parties residing in Schenectady and if arrested there he will be probably be taken before George Faircloth, a Quincy man, who knows Restelli well. No word has been received from the police of Schenectady today.

The second clew was that from Columbia Falls, Me., where a suspect had been arrested. Not a word has been heard from there, however, since Chief Burrell wired Restelli's description, and the impression seems to prevail that the suspect had all of his toes and that he was released.

The new circular sent out Tuesday by the police contains a fuller description of Restelli. The main points by which identification can be made are the missing fourth toe of the right foot, and that the palms of both hands bear marks of aczema sores. The circular also is intended to convey the impression that he speaks good English, that he is probably well dressed and would have little resemblance to an Italian laborer.

That E. J. Griffin, ostensibly a detective from Quincy, Mass., who came here in search of Luigi Restelli, the Quincy murderer, was the victim of foul play is the general theory now held here, says a Sydney dispatch to the Globe.

Griffin's body was found early Tuesday in an alleyway near the Esplanade with his throat cut. The body was lying in a pool of blood and a blood-covered razor was under it, and at first it was thought to be a case of suicide, but the sensational evidence that developed at the inquest now points to murder.

HAYDEN FAMILY REUNION.

The fifth annual reunion of the Hayden family of Quincy was held Saturday at the residence of A. B. Colburn on Washington street, Stoughton. The party was entertained by Mrs. M. Lizzie Colburn and Miss Jessie Folsom, members of the society. A lunch was served at noon and dinner at 6 on the lawn. After a business meeting whist and croquet were enjoyed and the evening was pleasantly passed with singing and dancing.

—Municipalities have found that a well lighted city appeals to the prospective resident.

CELEBRATION NEXT YEAR

Fourth of July Committee Made Permanent

The last meeting of the Fourth of July Committee of 1910 was held Tuesday evening in the Board of Trade rooms. Before the meeting was called to order George E. Elcock, chairman of the committee on fireworks, presented President Eugene R. Stone with a handsome display of 200 dahlias which were greatly admired during the evening. Mr. Elcock has about 10,000 blooms in his garden on Copeland street.

The financial report showed an extra contribution by the Old Colony Street Railway of $25 making its total $50.

The Quincy Fife and Drum Corps was voted $25, the Granite City league teams winning on the Fourth $5 each, and the Board of Trade $8.61 for janitor services, etc., while the Fourth of July committee had the use of the rooms. These expenditures left a total unexpended balance of $10, which it was voted to place in the bank as a nucleus for next year's fund.

It was voted to form a permanent body, and the election of officers proceeded.

Amid great enthusiasm Eugene R. Stone was elected chairman; Arthur W. Stetson as secretary; Rupert Claflin as treasurer; James F. Burke as vice president; James H. Elcock as chairman of the financial committee; publicity, Alfred N. LaBrecque, parade Henry L. Kincaide; athletic sports, James E. Neary; water sports, Archie Briggs; fireworks, George E. Elcock (prolonged cheering) music A. L. Whitman; reception, Hon. William T. Shea. All of the above named will constitute the executive committee with the chairmen of the ward committees.

President Stone, Secretary Stetson and William H. Teasdale were deputized to draw up a set of by-laws. These will be presented at the next meeting of the new organization, which will be subject to the call of the president.

Late contributors to the Fourth of July fund:

Old Colony St. Ry	$25.00

Q. Y. C. LADIES' NIGHT

Musical Program by Monks' Orchestra and Legerdemain

The annual ladies' night of the Quincy Yacht club was held Tuesday evening at the club house, Houghs Neck. The program arranged was a most pleasing one, and the evening was one of the most enjoyable of the many events on the social calendar of the club. Many ladies were present, the cool easterly wind and threatening skies apparently keeping none away.

The program included a concert by Monk's orchestra the numbers opening with "The Daughters of American Revolution," and followed by selections from many o fthe well known light operas, and closing with the Argentina and American national hymns There was also a duet for the flute and cello by Messrs. Blake and Ogden.

In addition to this, Prof. Gurrell of Worcester was present and between the orchestral numbers he entertained any mystified the audience with many tricks, in which the quickness of the hand readily deceived the eyes. Some of his tricks seemed impossible for one to perform without aid, yet they were done in the open. He closed his part of the program with the use of a cabinet in which he performed several so called spirit manifestations. Securely bound hand and foot to a chair, the minute the curtain was dropped bells rang and hands appeared. His coat was removed and put on again almost as soon as the curtain could be raised and lowered. How the trick was done was a mystery.

During the program Commodore Robbins took occasion to speak briefly of what some of the Quincy boats had accomplished the present season, speaking of the victory at Hull of the Harpoon, that at Marblehead of the Dorchen, and of the Iris and Dolly III at Narraganset bay. At the close of the entertainment there was dancing until 11 o'clock.

CHIEF WILL INVESTIGATE

A Second Fire at Residence of W. A. McConnell

The fire department was called out at 8.49 Tuesday evening by an alarm from Box 515, for a fire in the same house for which the alarm was sounded Sunday. That is the house of William A. McConnell at 55 Bromfield street. Sunday's fire was in the southerly end of the attic while that of Tuesday night was in the front end of the blind attic. Crossed electric wires are given as the cause of Tuesday night's fire, but Chief Williams says he saw no wires where the fire was, and he is at loss to understand its cause. He will make an investigation this afternoon, however, to determine if possible the cause.

Mr. and Mrs. McConnell had retired for the night, and Mr. McConnell was aroused by a crackling sound. Getting up to investigate he found the building on fire. The fire had made considerable headway, and had evidently been burning some time before he was awakened. It had worked up to the roof, and was coming out through the roof when the department arrived in response to the alarm. Chief Williams estimates the loss by Tuesday night's fire to have been $500.

—A critic sums up his lengthy analysis of American housekeeping with a pithy statement: "Mother should work less." She will be glad to oblige, if he will only show her how."—Boston Record.

TUBE WORKS ON FORE RIVER

Litigation Ended and New Industry is Possible

Papers settling out of court the equity suit brought in 1904 by Otto von Arnim of New York and James G. Freeman of Boston, trustees under the will of Elizabeth Cotton von Arnim, against the American Tube Works and others, were filed Tuesday with the clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court, ending one of the longest and most costly legal contests in this State in years over matters involving about $1,000,000 and interest.

Shortly before the suit was brought the corporation purchased a large tract of land o nthe Fore river at East Braintree about 54 acres, near the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, and it is possible that it will now carry out its original plans and establish a plant on the Amory estate off Quincy avenue.

The American Tube Works is a corporation which was organized in 1853, the stock of which has ever since been owned almost exclusively by the Cotton family of Massachusetts.

Elizabeth Cotton von Arnim, under whose will the original plaintiffs are trustees, was the aunt of the three Cottons who were the defendants, and held 225 shares of stock in the American Tube Works.

SQUANTUM (!?)
(EVER HEAR OF THE PLACE?)
IS A PART OF QUINCY (!?)

¶ It is not under water nor a hundred miles from Boston. In a short time (through the kindness of the City Fathers) you will be able to get there without swimming or fear of drowning.

¶ It has some city water, some electric lights, and telephone connections for such as pay for it. Also electric cars visit this place occasionly, with five cent fares from all parts of Quincy.

¶ With the above information would you risk the price (5 cents) and take a journey to the wild domains of this unexplored region?

¶ As a minor side attraction it might be mentioned that the Harvard Aviation Field is located here, on which a few pennies are being expended preparing the grounds and a few more may possibly be expended during the meet, Sept. 3rd. to 13th.

¶ Finally, though perhaps of less importance, the undersigned begs to add that he has a few (hundred)

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

I tseems almost a shame to convert such a beautiful tract of land as the Amory estate at East Braintree into manufacturing, especially when there is so much undeveloped land in the vicinity which is not so attractive. There has been but little building along the Braintree shore from Hayward's creek to the Quincy avenue bridge, over a mile in extent, but the land is elevated and very desirable for homes. A large plant like the American Tube Works would, however, add much to the wealth of Braintree and Quincy.

Every effort should be made on the part of Quincy officials to see that E. J. Griffin, the mysterious detective at Nova Scotia, receives credit for all that he may have done in covering a Restelli suspect. If Griffin has been a martyr because of his activity in the search for the Quincy murderer, the people of this city want to know it. There has been an unusual amount of mystery in the Nova Scotia clew from the start, and charges have been made that Griffin did not have the co-operation of the police of Nova Scotia. Has he friends at Sydney now, who will see that his death is properly investigated?

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The North Adams Transcript has some sound talk about the present day mollycoddling of criminals. It well says that the tendency of the times is to make a criminal out a mere "unfortunate," and a young tough who sets fire to a dwelling is now enumerated as a "delinquent" for fear that his feelings will be hurt if he is called by any harsher term. When he gets a little older and repeats his act of arson or commits some even more serious crime, uprises a phalanx of soft hearted people to proclaim him a victim of society's neglect. The Transcript has described a situation that is familiar to all having to do with the criminal courts. Any one who will visit our criminal courts and make a study of the cases there, will find that the generality of the young men were first allowed to "run wild" by their parents or guardians; then the next step was that they committed several minor offences and were not punished for their acts but probated and coddled, until finally they come to the dock charged with serious crimes.

Reform of the criminal is a good thing at times, and occasionally there is a case where probation is justifiable, but the fact is that there is too much probating, too much mollycoddling. There is too much of this sympathy for the so-called "under dog" when he is simply the under dog because of his own acts and his own vicious nature. Women are the transgressors in this respect, far more than men. Without judgment or investigation, they rush to the defence of some criminal or they load him down with flowers in his cell. Their sympathies are touched for the seeming unfortunate. They rally to the support of a bad politician often when men turn their backs upon him. As The News said the other day, the fact that the man has a bad record or reputation deters them not one whit; in truth, it seems to incite them to renewed zeal, and the more his record is exposed the more they rally to his support, saying that he is persecuted. Such things as these tend to increase crime and bad conduct, and make the enforcement of laws difficult and reform of society almost impossible.—Salem News.

Those of us who are spending time at the summer resorts this year are no doubt having the usual experience of sudden friendships. We meet entire strangers, we pour out to them secrets we do not trust our dearest friends at home, we part almost amid tears, with promises of letters and visits, and the company thus gathered vanishes to the four winds of heaven and scarcely ever does any one of these units see any other again on this planet.

The reason is no doubt that people feel that reserve is absolutely unnecessary amid the chance meetings of a summer hotel. People permit themselves to make advances they will not make at home. When friends prove distasteful, they are easily gotten rid of. But how many times it proves true that friendships made in this way and so soon lost, might greatly enrich our lives by the contact with people of ripe experience and sunshiny nature.

It seems as if this were too hustling an age for friendship. The treasures of affection that might be ours are often thrown away because a dollar looks nearer and more entrancing. Will comradeship always be sacrificed in this life to the everlasting hustle for gain?—Beverely Times.

THIRTEEN PERSONS HURT

Runaway Trolley Car Dashes Down Hill and Bangs Into Another

Boston, Aug. 17.—A runaway box car of the Boston Elevated tearing down the hill on West Broadway, South Boston, crashed into an open car at the corner of West Broadway and Dorchester street last night, and thirteen persons were injured.

James W. Gibbons, the motorman of the runaway car, and Frank Corbett, who stood beside him in the vestibule when the box car car struck the open car, were the most severely hurt.

Gibbons is at a hospital with injuries not definitely known. Corbett has a fractured jaw and several front teeth driven into the upper jaw from the shock of the impact.

With the exception of Richard F. Nagel, the conductor of the runaway car, who was treated at a hospital for a strained back and then allowed to go home, the others escaped with slight injuries from the shock and being cut by bits of flying glass.

"DEPLORABLE" INDEED

Veniremen In Lorimer Bribe Case Admit Having Been Approached

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Declaring that nearly all the veniremen had been "approached" in connection with the re-trial of Lee O'Neil Brown, Judge Kersten dismissed a panel of seventy-two who had been subpoenaed for the selection of a jury.

This action came after several days' endeavor to get a jury to try Brown, Democratic minority leader of the Illinois legislature, on a charge of giving Representative White a bribe to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator.

Judge Kersten pronounced the situation "deplorable." He asked each man by name if he had been called on by anyone in connection with his possible services as a juror. Nearly all answered in the affirmative. They were instructed to report in court for further investigation.

TELEGRAPH FRANKS TO BE CANCELLED

Common Carriers Are Now Forbidden to Give Free Service

New York, Aug. 17.—Notices have been sent out by the telegraph companies that, beginning today, all their franks will be cancelled. This step was made necessary by reason of the recent amendment of the provisions of the interstate commerce act. A heavy penalty is now imposed upon companies and individuals who violate this law.

The companies request all frank holders who are not authorized by the provisions of the act to return franks issued to them for cancellation.

Provisions of the act apply to telegraph, telephone and cable companies, whether wire or wireless, engaged in sending messages from one state to another, but not to the transmission of messages wholly within one state. The term common carrier as used in the act includes express companies and sleeping car companies.

Government Under Heavy Expense In Fighting Forest Fires

Washington, Aug. 17.—Because of the seriousness of the forest fire situation in the new Glacier National Park in Montana, Acting Secretary Pierce of the interior department has requested Chief Clerk Ucker, who now is in the Yellowstone National Park on a tour of inspection, to go to the new park to assist Supervisor Logan in handling the situation.

The cost of fighting the fires on the national forests in the Missoula district, comprising Montana, northern Idaho and Wyoming, is $7000 a day, according to estimates which have been received by the forest service here. It is not believed here that the situation will be materially relieved until the advent of rain in the regions where the fires are the most serious.

Champion Woman Ball Thrower

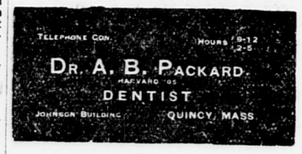

Iowa City, Ia., Aug. 17.—Ada Paintin, aged 15, threw a league baseball 187 feet at a baseball game here in striving to break the record set by Myrtle McCarroll of Oak Park, Ills., in July, when she covered 180 feet.

CASHIER IS REPENTANT

He Surrenders Because Tired of Being a Fugitive From Justice

Boston, Aug. 17.—When arraigned in the municipal court on a charge of larceny of $1200 from the Franklin Automobile company, Lucius Cummings, who was bookkeeper and cashier for that concern, waived examination and was held for the grand jury under $1500 bonds.

Cummings was brought here yesterday from Messina, N. Y. A few days ago he walked into the police station there and surrendered, informing the authorities that he was tired of being a fugitive from justice, that he was repentant and discouraged and wished to help his former employers in straightening out his tangle and to begin over again.

Cummings disappeared on July 16. From Boston he went to Montreal and then proceeded to Messina. He is 26 years old and is married.

SHOE WORKERS ON STRIKE

Trouble In Salem Factories May Extend to Those In Beverly

Salem, Mass., Aug. 17.—Nearly 500 men and girls employed in six local shoe factories struck yesterday because of the attitude which the leaders claim the manufacturers have taken of late in regard to union labor, and it is promised that inside a week 2000 will be out of work in this city alone as a result.

The leaders of the strike say that beyond a doubt a similar number of men and girls will be called out in the Beverly factories, so that these two cities will be practically at a standstill so far as the manufacture of shoes is concerned.

The police have the matter well in hand, so far as law and order is concerned.

Providence Children Stricken

Providence, Aug. 17.—Six new cases of infantile paralysis were reported yesterday. This is the largest number of cases reported in one day since the epidemic began.

DEPOSITORS MAY NOT LOSE VERY HEAVILY

York Bank Shortage Not So Large as at First Supposed

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 17.—Although none of the officials of the York County Savings bank, which closed its doors last Friday, will make any statement as to the probable shortage, preferring to await the report of the bank examiners, a man in a position to know its affairs declared in a statement that the shortage "would not go much above $100,000."

The only comment bank officials would make when the statement was put up to them was to urge their interviewer "not to put it too high."

If the shortage does not exceed $120,000, the amount of the bank surplus and the bond of former Treasurer Ingersoll combined, it will mean that the depositors will lose only one or two of their regular dividends.

UNITE FOR PROTECTION

Boston Banks With $33,800,000 Capital Form Currency Association

Boston, Aug. 17.—Fifteen of the seventeen national banks of the Boston clearing house, having a combined capital of $18,150,000 and surpluses totalling $15,650,000, became members of the National Currency association of the city of Boston, which their representatives organized yesterday.

This organization was brought about as a result of the Aldrich-Vreeland national currency act of 1908, which makes it possible for national banks having a combined capital and surplus showing of at least $5,000,000 to band for mutual protection during periods of financial depression such as the crisis of three years ago and others which have taken place at different periods in recent years.

The easy way to wash clothes.

Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces and dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep at boiling point until a solution is formed.

This solution will do better work than soap—and without any waste.

Rub the soap solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water, let stand overnight, and in the morning you will find that the really hard work of washing—the rubbing on the washboard—is not half as hard as usual.

REVIVAL IS URGED TO REACH FARMERS

Missionary Project to Be Confined to the United States

Detroit, Aug. 17.—Another great laymen's missionary movement may grow out of the statements made by Dr. Joseph L. Berry, a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, regarding the decadence of the rural church and the alleged Godlessness of the American farmer.

The bishop has obtained, it is said, the backing of a New York banker, who is to finance the project. A great army of workers is to invade the rural districts and advocate a country-wide revival. One hundred American centres, which will reach 2000 towns, will be established.

In reference to the campaign, Berry says: "The great laymen's missionary movement has so far been a campaign in behalf of foreign missions. What is now proposed is a campaign for the evangelization of the millions at home."

LODGE DEFENDS THE TARIFF

Says Massachusetts Has No Cause to Complain of Revision

Nantasket, Mass., Aug. 17.—The defense of the Republican revision of the tariff and an attack on the minority report of the committee on the cost of living by Senator Lodge, and a warning to the railroads against unfair treatment of milk producers by Governor Draper were the two features of the annual outing of the Plymouth county campaign committee here yesterday.

Senator Lodge spent most of his time in criticism of the minority report of the committee of which he had been chairman. He claimed that, whatever the result of tariff revision, Massachusetts had no real cause for complaint.

$5,000,000 For 'Frisco Exposition

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 17.—Governor Gillett will call a special session of the legislature to take action on the question of issuing $5,000,000 in bonds for the Panama Pacific International exposition, to be held in San Francisco in 1915.

BRIEFS

Labor day two weeks from next Monday.

The sun sets forty minutes earlier than it did July 1.

First race today of the American and Spanish sonder boats.

Miss Mary S. Summers, stenographer at O. C. Street, R. R. office is spending her vacation in Vermont.

Miss Carrie A. Crane of Whitney road is at Meredith, N. H., for a few weeks' stay at the Grampian house.

P. W. Branscheid of Branscheid & Martens, the Daily Ledger news agent at Atlantic, attended the outing of suburban newsdealers at Marblehead on Tuesday.

Cards have been received in Quincy from Mr. Samuel Brooks Bigelow of Lexington announcing the marriage on Monday of his daughter Alice to Mr. Henry Whitcomb Porter, second son of Hon. and Mrs. Charles H. Porter of Adams street. Mr. and Mrs. Porter will be at home after Oct. 1 at the home which has been building for them on Edgemere road.

An exhibition of vegitables and flowers is being held this afternoon and evening in the Council chamber, City hall by the children of the city under the auspices of the Garden committee of the Education committee of the Quincy Women's club. It is hoped our citizens will be interested enough in the work of the children to step into City hall for a few minutes and see results.

MARSHFIELD FAIR.

L. S. Richards of Marshfield Hills has received a letter from Thomas W. Lawson, president of the Marshfield Agricultural society, narrating some novel gifts he is going to present to the patrons of the fair which comes off next week. They are as follows. a tame bear, a pony, a lamb, a goat, a dog and two pens of poultry. It is generally known that Mr. Lawson keeps on his place, the highest class, blooded stock. The one who gets the bear will be the luckiest for it is said Mr. Lawson has been offered $300 for it. This bear was reared by one of his daughters from a little cub. He is tired of keeping it longer as a pet.

GAYNOR STEADILY GAINING

Danger of Blood Poisoning Is Declared to Be Almost Past

New York, Aug. 17.—Mayor Gaynor steadily continues along the path of recovery. Dangers of an infection are almost past, although everything is in readiness should circumstances render an operation necessary.

Mr. Gaynor is being kept very quiet, and few visitors are permitted to see him. He feels the heat, but otherwise seems not disturbed by his unfortunate situation.

Boy Loses a Leg

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 17.—Richard Neal, aged 12, while stealing a ride on a street car, was thrown and fell beneath the wheels, which cut off his leg below the knee. He is in a dangerous condition.

Young Bank Fails

London, Aug. 17.—The British Bank of Commerce, a small private concern, has closed its doors. The bank started only in 1908.

Sheet music 10c. 1,000 tunes. Catalogue free. Williams' Jewelry store, Quincy.

ROOSEVELT IS TURNED DOWN

Defeated For Temporary Chairman of New York Convention

OLD GUARD IS IN EVIDENCE

Vote of Twenty to Fifteen Against Former President, Who Sought Position That He Might Take Active Part In Campaign—State Committee Unanimously Chooses Sherman For the Place

New York, Aug. 17.—Theodore Roosevelt suffered a sharp defeat in his home state when the Republican state committee, by a vote of 20 to 15, rejected a resolution naming him as temporary chairman of the Republican state convention to be held at Saratoga on Sept. 27. Vice President Sherman was unanimously chosen to act as temporary presiding officer of the convention.

The "Old Guard," led by State Chairman Woodruff and William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, encompassed the defeat of Roosevelt, whom several of the state leaders charged with attempting to dictate the fortunes of the Republican party in the state.

After the meeting had been called to order by Woodruff and the time and place of the state convention chosen, Barnes offered a resolution presenting the name of Sherman for temporary chairman of the Republican state convention. New York County Chairman Griscom moved to substitute the name of Roosevelt and also moved that the vote be postponed until later. After much debate the motion to postpone was defeated by a vote of 12 to 23 against.

The resolution to make Roosevelt temporary chairman was then lost by a vote of 20 to 15, following which Sherman was unanimously chosen for the temporary presiding officer of the convention. The state committee then adjourned to meet Sept. 26, at Saratoga.

Commenting upon the action of the committee in rejecting the name of Roosevelt, Griscom said; "I presented the name of Roosevelt after consulting with him. The place of the temporary chairman was obviously his, not only by the virtue of his having been president of the United States, but the signal services rendered by him to the Republican party in New York state.

"Mr. Roosevelt was anxious to engage in the political campaign in this state, and his name at the head of the convention would have lent extraordinary prestige to the meeting and been of incalculable value to the party throughout the state. The action foreshadows a great many primary contests, as it is obvious that those voting to deny him the office of temporary chairman will have to account to the enrolled Republicans of their respective districts for their action.

"There was no question of endorsing or not endorsing the administration. If an effort is made to show the choice of Sherman is an indorsement, whereas the choice of Roosevelt would not have been, it must of necessity fail, as Roosevelt's views regarding the conduct of public affairs by his successor are well known."

Mr. Roosevelt received the interviewers last evening and gave out this typewritten statement:

"To the various persons who asked me whether I would accept the position of temporary chairman of the state convention I said I would do so only if they were sure, after knowing my attitude, that they desired me, because my speech would be of such a character that it might help if the convention nominated the right kind of man on a clean-cut, progressive platform, but that it would hurt if neither the right kind of man were nominated nor the right kind of platform adopted."

He said he did not care to add to the statement, and he would not answer questions. He left no doubt, however, in the minds of the interviewers that he realizes that he must fight the "old guard" organization in the state convention at Saratoga.

FUNERAL TO BE PRIVATE

Wish of Florence Nightingale Will Be Respected by Her Friends

London, Aug. 17.—The executors of the will of Miss Florence Nightingale, the "Angel of the Crimea," have definitely declined the offer of a public burial in Westminster Abbey among the historic great of England. They consider themselves bound by the terms of her will in which she expressed a wish for a simple private funeral.

On account, however, of the greatness of her achievements, a spontaneous movement started in England immediately after her death looking to a state funeral with interment in Westminster Abbey.

Lucky to Escape Alive

PEDRO MONTT
President of Chile Expires Suddenly In Bremen Hotel

MONTT DIES VERY SUDDENLY

President of Chile Stricken Upon Reaching Bremen

HAD JUST LEFT STEAMER

Never Recovered From Shock He Received by Shooting of Gaynor, by Whose Side He Stood When Tragedy Occurred—Had Been Chief Executive of His Country Since 1906—Distinguished For Conciliatory Policy

London, Aug. 17.—President Pedro Montt of Chile died at a hotel in Bremen shortly after arriving on the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse at 11:50 o'clock last night.

Death was due to a recurrence of heart failure, following the recent attack of angina pectoris, from which he suffered.

President Montt was standing near Mayor Gaynor when the latter was shot last week in Hoboken, and the shock unnerved him to such an extent that he never recovered.

Pedro Montt became president of Chile in September, 1906, and his term of office extended to 1911. He succeeded German Reisco as chief executive. He was elected by an enormous majority, and was supported by a really national party.

Pedro Montt was a member of one of the best known families in Chile, for his father, Manuel Montt, was president of the Chilean republic from 1851 to 1861, and to him, chiefly, because of his strong will, national history gives high credit for a firm and productive administration.

President Montt was elected to the lower house soon after his admission to the bar in 1868. He held his seat for many years and was then returned senator. During those years he had often been a member of the cabinet, and was more than once premier.

At various times he was speaker of the chamber of deputies and a councillor of state, and during a brief but trying period was minister plenipotentiary at Washington. In all the offices he held Montt was distinguished for his conciliatory and well-defined policy. His avowed ambition as president was to return to the country its former high position in the financial world, to govern the nation with the greatest economy compatible with efficient public service and to live at peace with all its neighbors. He was the champion of a sound financial system.

In debate on foreign policy his voice was raised in favor of a peaceful and honorable settlement of difficulties. In the years between 1889 and 1902, when the frontier dispute with the Argentine republic brought Chile near to war, when practically everyone was ready and waiting the order to march, Montt untiringly poured oil on the troubled waters. To him was given much of the credit for the happy result finally secured.

THREATEN ANOTHER WAR

Milk Producers Want Extra Sesson of Massachusetts Legislature

Boston, Aug. 17.—A repetition of the recent milk strike was threatened by the milk producers last night in a letter sent to Governor Draper by the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers company.

Unless the governor calls an extra session of the legislature to revise the statutes passed this year regulating rates for milk, the producers state that another strike is the only alternative left them.

GOVERNMENT IN NO HURRY

Not Ready to Recognize Either Faction In Nicaragua

IS VEXED AT MADRIZ ENVOYS

State Department May Show Its Displeasure at Alleged Misleading Statements of Diplomats—Wants Reasonable Assurance of Permanency When Present Difficulties Are Settled—Square Deal Demanded

Washington, Aug. 16.—The state department is rapidly losing its patience with the persistent attempts of certain South Americans temporarily in Washington to manufacture sentiment in favor of their particular factions, evidently for the purpose of forcing the hand of the United States government.

Thus far, officials of the state department have been unable to make any representations in the case because their knowledge of the plans of the South American diplomats is distinctly unofficial. It is learned on the best of authority, however, that this government is prepared to show its displeasure at what is declared to be a deliberate attempt at misrepresentation.

Instead of aiding in bringing about an early solution of the trouble between the Madriz and Estrada factions in Nicaragua, those South American agitators, whether consciously or unconsciously, have irritated the state department to a point where their further negotiations with this government will be valueless unless there is a cessation of the present agitation.

The impression has gone forth that Barrios and Salinas, representatives of the Madriz faction in Nicaragua, have not only been received at the state department as the official representatives of Madriz but that they have made various proposals to the officials of this government with a view to ending the troubles which are retarding the development of that country.

As a matter of fact Barrios and Salinas have made no propositions of any kind to the state department. They have been received by this government in the capacity of representatives of the Madriz faction just as Mr. Castrillo has represented the Estrada faction at the state department.

Little importance is attached here to the intention of Mexico to show the highest honors to Ruben Dario, who will be the representative of Madriz at the centennial celebration of the declaration of Mexican independence. It is known that President Diaz is favorable to Madriz and is anxious to have the United States take a similar attitude.

Even if Mexico, however, should demonstrate conclusively that it favors Madriz the course of this government will not be changed in the slightest degree. It is in the attitude of "being shown." There is about $15,000,000 of American capital invested in Bluefields and the surrounding country on the "Mosquito coast" and until this government is absolutely satisfied that American citizens and American capital will have a square deal by the Nicaraguan government it will not recognize any faction. Thus far there seems to be no such assurance in sight and the state department will withhold its support indefinitely.

BRIEFS

The exhibit of vegetables and flowers from the children's gardens will be continued at City Hall this evening,

Miss Emma Carlton has returned from Maine, and is now a guest of her grandmother at East Bridgewater.

The Brockton football team will be here Saturday Sept. 3 to play Fore River .

Did you ever hear of Squantum? Well if you have, may be you do not know all its good points. If not, see Nelson.

Many are looking forward to the picnic and dance at New Downer Landing on Saturday of the George C. Fox & Co., Mutual Benefit Association.

Mayor Shea reports that his mother, who has been seriously ill, is very much better this morning. She passed a comfortable night and this morning seemed to be very bright.

Timothy Daley of Smith street has returned from a three months' trip in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, greatly improved in health. Mr. Daley was the first resident of Smith street, 23 years ago, and has 13 sons and daughters all living on that street.

H. L. Kincaide & Co. know how to tempt the housekeepers. A new idea inaugurated by them in their ad today is a special sale for one hour only on Thursday morning. It is a good list of bargains too, one that the prudent buyer won't miss.

Miss Belle Nicholson after a two years' stay in Quincy, returned Tuesday night to her home at Belle River, P. E. I., where she is soon to be united in marriage to Alexander Gillis of Flat River, P. E. I., and go to housekeeping in a large new house which has been building for them.

Lucian B. Stone, who was injured at Worcester by being struck by the automobile of Edward J. Fegan, died on Tuesday. It is said the charge of assault will be charge to manslaughter, but witnesses say Mr. Fegan was proceeding slowly at the time, and that the conductor shouted a warning.

NEW Y. M. C. A. DIRECTOR.

Louis F. LaRose, who will conduct the physical department of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. during the next season, has arrived in Quincy and has taken charge of the playground work.

Mr. La Rose was trained at the Chicago school, and became an assistant in the Chicago Central Y. M. C. A. in 1900. In 1904 he went to the Newton gym, from there in 1909 to Panama where he stayed for one year, and then to Melrose in 1908, where he has been until the present time. Mr. La Rose hails from Dayton, Ohio.

With the material in hand, and cooperation, there is no reason why Mr. La Rose should not give the greatest satisfaction to his classes and the directors of the association.

TAFT AND DRAPER CUPS

How They Will Be Awarded in Sonder Races

The first of the races of the American and Spanish sonder boats for the Taft and Draper cups, was sailed today off Marblehead, the Harpoon of C. F. Adams, 2d, being one of the yachts selected. These races will continue daily at 11 A. M., with two prizes daily. The Taft cup will go to the owner of the yachts which first wins three races or wins the fifth race of the series. In case the deciding race is the third the winner will not be allowed to complete in the further races. If the deciding race is the fourth the winner is excluded from the fifth. If the first four races do not result in a decision only the winners of these four races can take part in the fifth race. If a decision is not reached in the fifth race, owing to two yachts each having won two races, then a sixth and deciding race will be sailed between these two yachts.

The Gov. Draper cup will be awarded on points in the first four races, provided that five or six races are necessary for the winning of the President Taft cup; otherwise it will be awarded on points in the five races. In each race the boat coming in first gets 6 points, the second boat 5, and third 4, and so on.

The winner of the President Taft cup will not be eligible for the Governor Draper cup.

SHIPYARDS IDLE.

A Berlin cable to a Boston paper says: As a result of the fight between the German shipbuilders and their employes, all the shipyards of Germany except the government works are now idle so far as new construction is concerned. Naval construction assigned by the government to private yards is at a standstill and shipowners are in many cases sending their ships to England for the necessary repairs naturally undertaken in home ports.

The men demand an increase of 10 percent in wages and a 55-hour week. The shipbuilders maintain that these economic demands are a cloak to political purposes and cannot be granted.

The shipbuilders outside of Hamburg, where the strike began Aug. 4, under took to lock out 60 percent of their employes as an act of reprisal for the strike of the Hamburg workmen, retaining 40 percent on the payrolls. These latter have now struck the total number of strikers now being about 35,000 men.

Sympathetic strikes of the men employed in the allied trades are now being organized. At Hamburg 3661 metal workers have gone on strike.

Britishers Mixed on "U. S. A."

London, Aug. 17.—So many persons in Great Britain are unaware of the unique geographical significance of the initials "U. S. A." that the English postoffice department has been compelled to issue a warning to the public to abstain from using them in addressing letters to places within the union in South Africa.

CHILDREN'S GARDENS

Interesting Exhibit Today at City Hall

The annual exhibition of vegetables and flowers from children's gardens, held under the auspices of the Educational committee of the Quincy Women's club is taking place this afternoon at City Hall in the Council Chamber and will continue this evening.

It has been rather a poor year for vegetable gardens, on account of the scarcity of rain, but the exhibit is a fine one, and shows what the children can accomplish in the face of many obstacles. Some very tempting vegetables are shown as well as some freaks.

There is many an interesting little story that might be told of these vegetable gardens, and of the adverse conditions under which the children have labored. One of these is a plate of new potatoes an other vegetables raised by a little Hebrew boy in a yard, the greater part of which was littered with old junk. Another is a small vase of flowers raised by a little Wollaston girl in a small plot cut from a lawn. In fact there is a little story with almost every exhibit.

The exhibit of flowers seems much larger than usual and this display is well worthy of a visit of inspection. Open this afternoon and evening.

CONTRACTS FOR SHIPYARD

Six Torpedo Boats and Two Colliers to be Built

A Washington dispatch to Boston papers says bids for the construction of the six torpedo boat destroyers authorized at the last session of Congress will be opened at the navy department Nov. 1. Plans and specifications for these vessels, Acting Sec. Winthrop said today, will be ready for distribution to the bidders by Sept. 1. Each destroyer will cost about $750,000.

Mr. Winthrop today approved the general characteristics recommended to him by the constructors in the navy department for the two new colliers authorized by the last session of congress. The specifications for the colliers will be put in the hands of bidders about Oct. 1.

Not For Himself.

"It does me good to see a pompous man get his," said a stockbroker. "I have a friend who just about believes the Lord created the earth in seven days for his especial benefit. He has a fine home on Long Island, with a retinue of servants, but his wife is a semi-invalid, and it falls to the lot of Mr. Pompous to execute various commissions for her in the city. The other day she asked him to stop at a clothing store and get a couple of white duck jackets for the butler. I happened to be with him when he entered the store. Striding majestically up to a sallow little salesman, he said, with much impressive dignity:

"'I wish to purchase a couple of white waiter's coats.'

"'Yes, sir,' said the little salesman 'What size do you wear?'

"Mr. Pompous got red in the face spluttered and gurgled, and then as if fearing to trust himself to speech turned on his heel and strode from the place. He left me at the next corner, and has avoided me ever since."—New York Sun.

At the First Try.

"What do you think of my doughnuts, George?"

"Dear, you are a wonder!"

"Do you think so really, darling?"

"I certainly do. Scientists have been trying for years to produce artificial rubber and here you do it the first rattle out of the box!"—Houston Post.

Did Her Best.

"We're always careful about these contiguous diseases," said Mrs. Lapsling. "When Johnny had got well of the measles we bought some sulphur candles and disconcerted the house from top to bottom."—Chicago Tribune.

—The English royal train is well equipped with electricity. Besides the electric lights and fans, electricity is used for cooking, heating, cigar lighters, foot warmers, and for ventilating purposes. The electricity is secured from generators belted to the axles of the coaches.

DOLLY FIRST IRIS SECOND

Quincy Yacht Again Leads at Naragansett Bay

Tuesday's race at Narragansett bay, the second in the Interbay series of races for the Thomas Fleming Day cup, again proved the superiority of the two Quincy boats representing the Massachusetts Bay Catboat Association, for the Dolly III was an easy winner with the Iris second. In the race Monday the Iris won over Dolly by 1 minute 48 seconds, actual time, and on Tuesday the Dolly won over the Iris by 55 seconds, showing that these two boats are well matched.

Tuesday's race was sailed in a northwest wind over a 12-mile triangular course, one leg of which was to windward and the other two broad reaches. The breeze was a 20-mile one, and the Dolly was never headed. The sea was choppy and the wind was such that all five boats tucked in single reef.

It was a pretty start, the Dolly and Ina going over together, while the Iris brought up in the rear. She, however moved up on the first leg to windward, and while she was able to cut down the lead of the Dolly she was unable to overtake her. The boats pounded considerable and the crews were well drenched by flying spray.

On the last leg the Ina shook out her reef, but was not able to overhaul the Quincy boats. She finished third, however, 2 minutes 44 seconds behind the Iris, corrected time. The Virginia was 11 minutes 47 seconds behind the Dolly, and the Bother the tail end boat 15 minutes and 54 seconds behind the Dolly. Evidently this boat has been misnamed as she does not seem to bother any of the other boats.

The summary:

Name and owner	E'apsed.	Corrected.
Dolly III, M W Arnold	2 70 38	2 57 38
Iris, F Crane	2 53 02	2 51 33
Ina, E Ketllety	2 56 33	2 54 17
Virginia, J Norris	3 03 40	3 02 25

LOCAL SPORTS.

An effort is being made to organize a basketball league composed of clubs in Brockton, North Easton, Stoughton, Hyde Park, Quincy and Randolph.—Exchange. There is certainly every possibility of such a league being organized, and Quincy at least will be represented by a fast team. With the Quincy team of last year and the fast second team to draw from, a five can be picked that will probably be second to none on the proposed circuit. The Y. M. C. A. floor is about the only possible battle grund. Brockton has always had fast teams and should show speed the coming season.

* * *

At base ball on Monday the Rambler juniors defeated the Quincy Red Sox 39 to 16. Shaughnessy and Johnson were the battery for the victors, and Higgins and Moil for the Red Sox.

Johnny Glaze has returned to his home in Omaha so we will no more have the genuine pleasure of seeing, speaking to and hearing of the gentlemanly pitcher. Johnny was always a fine fellow and carries with him the best wishes of all of Quincy. (We won't have the excitement of watching him when he puts on his sweater to see what he has under his hat, either.)

The Brockton Daily Enterprise says, "The Quincys won their eighth successive game Saturday and thereby practically clinched the pennant in the Old Colony League.

The Apprentice-Cranch game before the Stoughton-Quincy game Aug. 27 will be a great attraction; these two teams wil lbe tied for first place in the amateur league, and show some speed, so come out a week from Saturday. The first game starts at 2 o'clock sharp.

* * *

The Bryants forfeit next Saturday's game on their home grounds to the Adams A. A. That sort of thing is unsportsmanlike—let them be game and stick it out, they came into the league let them help the organization, and keep the yellow out of sight.

* * *

* * *

Neary wants to play against Cranch at the Labor Day picnic as they will a week from Saturday before the Old Colony league game. He will take his track team over, a bunch of bright particular stars, and should draw a large following.

BATTING AND FIELDING

Averages Compiled for Quincys of Old Colony League

The batting and fielding of the Quincy club in the Old Colony league have been unknown quantities up to now, though it is a well known fact that they field in exceptional style. Connelly leads in the field and Bill Duggan is the virtual leader at the bat for though Fay has a larger average he has not played in so many games. Bill Duggan's fielding average blew up the day he played short and committed his only error. Briggs and Lonergan show remarkable records in the field. There is a large hole between third and fourth batsman, the latter being Fish, who by the way shows up well , being third in fielding. Armstrong is also there. Glaze is batting way over a pitcher's average and fielding grandly.

THIRTY-NINE DROWNED

Spanish Steamer Sinks After Collision In the Mediterranean

Lisbon, Aug. 17.—Thirty-two passengers, several of them women, and seven sailors, were drowned when the German steamer Elza rammed the Spanish steamer Martos off the African coast in the Mediterranean and the Martos sank.

The collision occurred in a heavy fog, near Tarifa. The German boat stood by and put out small boats, which picked up the survivors, many of whom were clinging to wreckage.

The Spaniard went down in a short time. After cruising about the spot the Elza took the survivors to Gibraltar, where they were succored by the English garrison.

Vol. 24 No. 192 — QUINCY, MASS., THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 18, 1910 — PRICE TWO CENTS

EVENTS AND PRIZES FOR QUINCY AVIATION MEET

Prizes Aggregating $37,400 for Non-Professional Events With Points Each Day

Given for Speed, Altitude, Duration, Distance, Accuracy, Etc.

There are nine events for professional aviators at the Quincy meet, Sept. 3-13 on the Squantum field, and prizes aggregating $37,400 are offered. Each of the events will be contested every day during the meet, and a record kept by points.

For speed, prizes of $3,000 and $2000, with $1,000 extra for world's record. Best time for three laps around the course at Quincy daily net three points; second best, two points; third best one point.

Similar prizes are offered for greatest altitude obtained.

Prizes of $2,000 and $1,000 and $1000 extra for world's record are offered for longest time in the air from start to landing at point within sight of the judges at Quincy field; two points and one point are given daily.

For distance, similar prizes are offered, two points being given each day for greatest number of times around the Quincy course; and two points for second best.

Prizes of $1000 and $500 are offered for a slow lap, the least time taken in making three laps of the Quincy course during the meet.

There are also getaway prizes of $100 and $500 awarded for shortest distance from start to point where chassis leave the ground, running forward, and flying once around the course.

For accuracy, prizes of $500 and $250 are offered, for landing nearest a designated spot after flying at least once around the Quincy course.

The eighth event is the Globe special of $10,000 for best time made during the meet starting from aviation field at Quincy at starting line, once around course, to and around mast on stadium, to and around Boston light, back to aviation field at Quincy, once around course and land at starting place. The course from aviation field to stadium and return will follow the Charles river and will be properly marked. The direction of flying over the course optional to the aviator.

Another special prize of $5000 is offered for dropping missiles, representing bombs into funnels of dummy battleship. Prize awarded to aviator dropping greatest number of bombs into the funnels during the meet—from an elevation not lower than 100 feet. Trials not to exceed 10 daily.

There will also be events for amateurs. On Wednesday it was decided to call off the balloon events because of the danger of being carried out to sea.

SPECIAL CUP WON BY IRIS

In Race With the Dolly III and the Virginia

There was no race in the Interbay cup series at Narragansett bay Wednesday. There was a special race however, between the Iris, Dolly III and Virginia for a silver cup offered by the Edgwood club under whose auspices the Interbay series for the Day cup are being sailed. It was nip and tuck between the Iris and Dolly from the start to finish. The Iris, however, finished first and won the cup, defeating the Dolly 32 seconds corrected time. The Virginia was 4 minutes and 22 seconds corrected time behind the Dolly. The third race in the interbay club series will be sailed today. The summary of Wednesday's special race:

	Actual	Corrected
Iris, F. F. Crane,	1—52—24	1—22—39
Dolly III, W. W. Arnold.	1—37—11	1—23—11
Virginia, John Norris,	2—28—00	1—27—33

NEW P. O. RULES.

A neighboring postmaster formulates the following rules for the benefit of his patrons: No letters given out until they have been received. If you don't get a letter or paper on the day you expect it, have the postmaster look through all the boxes and down the cellar also. It ought to be somewhere and he likes to hunt for it just to please you. If your friend don't write, rave at the postmaster. He is to blame. If he tells you no, put on a grieved look and say there ought to be some. He is probably hiding your mail for the pleasure of having you call for it. Ask him to look again. If you are buying stamps, make him lick them and put them on—that's his business.

Mignonette—First, Ebba Samuelson; second, Muriel Matlock; third, Ellen Manning.

BIG FIND.

A Brockton dispatch to a Boston paper says: "As J. B. McAdams of this city was walking on the street in Quincy Wednesday afternoon he kicked a small package, done up in brown wrapping paper. The package flew open and disclosed a pocketbook which, on examination, was found to contain crisp $10 bills to the amount of several hundred dollars. As McAdams was about to board a car for Brockton, he did not bother to find an owner at the time, but on his arrival turned the pocketbook over to the local police.

RHODE ISLAND CLAMBAKE

Included in Trip of Quincy Men to Providence

The Quincy Board of Trade outing committee is planning a side trip in conjunction to the trip to Providence. After attending the Atlantic Deeper Waterways convention in the morning, the party will take the boat down the river to Crescent Park, and sit down to one of Lewis famous clambakes, then a sail back to Providence and sight-seeing.

The committee is working hard and has all the details well in hand, and a fine time is assured. Applications for tickets are coming in fast, and it will be one of the largest delegations that ever went out of Quincy that will represent this city at the convention in Providence on Friday, Sept. 2.

The committee has decided to limit the tickets to 100, and to invite the City officials and all the local organizations.

Many applications have been sent to the secretary and treasurer, W. S. Hamlin, 83 Glendale road for tickets, and the supply will soon be exhausted. Those interested should writ for information, enclosing $3 for ticket. Tickets are also for sale at T. L. Williams' store on Hancock street, A. L. Whitman's store at Norfolk Downs, at Board of Tradè rooms and William Teasdale's office, room 23, Adams building.

This is the first Atlantic Deeper Waterway convention ever held in New England and as the canal means as much, if not more to Quincy than to any city on the Atlantic seaboard, a large delegation should turn out. Remember the clam bake the special train, the sail down the harbor, and last but not least, the parade through the streets of Providence, showing the delegations from the different parts of the country that Quincy wants a canal from Narragansett bay to the Fore river.

STEAM TRAWL FOAM LAUNCHED THIS MORNING

Is 126 Feet Overall and Has a Capacity for One Hundred Tons of Fish

An Improvement On the Spray Which Was Built Here

The steam trawl "Foam" built by the Fore River Ship Building Co., for the Bay State Fishing Co., was successfully launched at the Fore River yards at Quincy this morning. The launch was a private one in a way, but was witnessed by several officers of the Fishing Company, and their families. The sponsor for the Foam was Miss Mary Dumaine, daughter of F. C. Dumaine, vice president of the Fore River Co., and treasurer of the Bay State Fishing Co. The mother of Miss Dumaine will be remembered as the sponsor of the battleship Rhode Island, which was launched at the Fore River yards some years ago.

In the launching party were F. C. Dumaine and familyo J. R. Neal, president of the Bay State Co., Harrison I. Cole, superintendent of the Bay State Co., and family; and Mr. and Mrs. Grant. The launch took place at 9.45 and she was christened with a bottle of Mumms Extra Dry.

The Bay State Fishing Co., are also the owners of the steam trawler Spray built at the Fore River some years ago. The Spray was in the nature of an experiment and was of English design. She has proved a paying proposition and two more of the same type were ordered, the first being that launched today. The third of the fleet will be named "Ripple" and will be launched at an early date. The two new boats are of strictly American design.

The dimensions of the Foam are: 126 feet overall, 117 feet between perpendiculars, 22 feet 6 inches beam, and 12 fet 6 inches depth. Her capacity is 100 tons of fish, and it is expected that she will go into commission in September. She will be provided with tripple-expansion engines of 450 indicated horse power, and Scotch boilers will supply the steam. She differs somewhat from the Spray the changes being suggested by Capt. Michael Green of the Spray and others who have sailed her. There will be no change however in the method of operating the trawl.

The cost of the Foam will be about $60,000, and she wil be commanded by Capt. Michael Green, and her crew will consist in all of 19 men.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Braintree tax rate has just been announced as $20.40, the same as last year. The towns in this vicinity are closely bunched on their tax rates: Quincy, $20.00; Braintree, $20.40; Holbrook, $20.00; Randolph $22.30; Rockland $22.80.

In the first of the Quincy cup races, ex-Commodore C. F. Adams acknowledged a foul on his part before any one could file a protest, and then he won all the other races of the series and the cup. Again in the first of the Spanish-American races he protested himself; will he complete the program and win the President Taft cup? The American yachts are very closely matched, the Harpoon being only twelve seconds ahead of the Beaver on Wednesday, and fourteen seconds ahead of the Cima over a fifteen mile course. The Spanish boats were far behind.

Rich cities and towns like Boston, Brookline and Milson should not seek to throw the burden of Metropolitan assessments upon cities and towns less favored. The "valuation" plan, as advocated by the city solicitor of Lynn as the only basis for Metropolitan park assessments, is the most equitable. It is the taxpayers, not the citizens, who must pay these large assessments, and all taxes should be levied upon valuation. We do not advocate this plan because Quincy's assessment would be less by the valuation plan, but because the rich towns should pay on that basis, and are abundantly able to, while the poor towns cannot afford to pay what is now assessed. Live and let live.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

We read in the dispatches from Georgia and Maryland that peaches were never more plenty than this year; that there are actually more of them than the railroads can haul to market. Our mouths water for these luscious peaches that we expect at five cents a dozen. Alas and alack; peaches were never more scarce nor more costly in the Boston markets than today. Last month splendid Georgia peaches were sold for 25 cents per small basket; today, the same size basket with a little better grade peach sells for from 60 to 75 cents. We do not believe that it is because the railroads cannot get them to the Boston market that they are suddenly so scarce and so costly. Give us some other reason, one more probable and reasonable. Where are those peaches?—Salem News.

Many factors are contributing to make out door advertising less popular all over the country. There is first the intense public feeling against disfiguring the landscape, which leads many people to decline to buy goods thus advertised. Then there is the common sense view that the bill boar' gives no opportunity for thoughtful convincing argument, which in these days of fake advertising is needed to persuade the buyer.

Still another reason is that out door advertising, unless constantly renewed presents such a discreditable appearance. Rain storms fade paint and wet paper, and soon your advertising looks decadent and discreditable. A faded sign board or torn poster conveys a suggestion of a discouraged, dispirited, and beaten merchant, who can not afford to make his appeals to the public in attractive fashion. Under such circumstances the run down advertising acts as a deterrent to the possible buyer.

No such false impression can ever be given by the cleanly printed advertisement in the columns of a newspaper possessing good mechanical facilities.—Beverly Times.

The demand for cheaper reading material in England has partly been met by one publisher, who announces a line of new novels by really good writers, the books to be sold at two shillings each. The same books will be republished on this side of the Atlantic, but as the copyright law compels them to be set up and printed in this country, American readers will not be able to buy them at fifty cents each. This opens up the old question of the cost of the modern book. Like opera managers, publishers have in competition for the services of popular entertainers, paid higher and higher prices. As a consequence they have not been able to market the books of first-class writers at less than an average of $1.08 retail each. The same rate applies also to all novels generally. But the average novel is not a book preserved for a long time. After being read it is often lent or given away. With the cost of the cover eliminated, and this is frequently a considerable portion of the whole, novels in paper covers might be profitably put on the market at about seventy-five cents. Why not have paper covered novels? The bulk of French books of all descriptions are so published.—Haverhill Gazette.

SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY.

Rufus Gammons, of 21 Turner street, Brockton, entertained a number of friends at his home Monday night, the event being his 70th birthday. Mr. Gammons is a former resident of Quincy, but now makes his home with his son-in-law, Lieut. Herbert Hackett of the fire department.

In years past Mr. Gammons has done his share in helping to build some of Uncle Sam's biggest fighting ships, as for years he was steam hammer operator at the Fore River Ship & Engine Co., yards. Growing age and ill health forced him to give up that work a few years ago, and since he has lived in this city.

Mr. Gammons was presented with a handsome easy chair by his friends and four large bouquets of flowers were also left by the party. A collation was served by Mrs. Hackett, and there were musical numbers and readings during the evening—Enterprise.

HALF A MILLION IN WANT

Great Suffering In Tokio as Result of Disastrous Flood

Tokio, Aug. 18.—The extremity of suffering and destitution among more than half a million of people here is indescribable. The local relief funds are large, the resident foreigners assisting generously in the relief work and with money.

No casualties among foreigners are reported. Ambassador O'Brien has remained in Tokio throughout the floods, and is doing everything possible to assist the sufferers. All the visitors at the summer resorts are safe.

More than 1000 persons either killed or missing, nearly 4000 houses destroyed, and more than 150,000 houses damaged, and a loss to the rice crop estimated at $4,500,000, are the reports from the flood.

SHIPPING IS PARALYZED

Government Yards Alone Are Doing Any Work In Germany

Berlin, Aug. 18.—As a result of the fight between the German shipbuilders and their employes, all the shipyards of Germany, except the government works, are now idle so far as new construction is concerned. Naval construction assigned by the government to private yards is at a standstill, and shipowners are in many cases sending their ships to England for the necessary repairs naturally undertaken in home ports.

The men demand an increase of 10 percent in wages and a fifty-five hour week. The shipbuilders maintain that these economic demands are a cloak to political purposes and cannot be granted.

CAMPING OUT.

Minna Irving.

When summer stands among the corn
And beckons us away
From city walls of brick and stone
And pavements dusty gray
And all the little mountain streams
Are full of speckled trout,
Oh, then it's time for every boy
To go a-camping out!

The bacon sizzles in the pan,
The coffee smells so good
When mingled with the fragrant scent
Of morning in the wood!
Our bathtub is a shady pool
We frolic, laugh and shout
And splash the water where we like
When we are camping out.

The days are spent with rod and reel,
The nights around the fire
In telling tales of daring deeds,
Our courage to inspire.
We talk of home and wonder what
The folks are all about
And wish that mother, too, was there
When we are camping out.

When we come back to school again
With half the forest's wealth
In silver birch bark, nests and ferns
Our cheeks are tanned with health.
Our eyes are clear and diamond bright,
Our limbs are strong and stout,
And so we plan next year to go
Once more a-camping out.

CHICAGO MAN WORLD BEATER

Flies From Paris to Calais, Then Across the Channel

TAKES PASSENGER WITH HIM

Mechanician Never In Flier Before Accompanies Daring Aviator Who Had Made Only Six Flights Previous to His Wonderful Performance—Had to Rely Entirely Upon Compass—Scoffed at Warnings

Deal, Eng., Aug. 18.—It has been reserved for an American citizen to perform one of the most daring feats in the history of aviation.

John B. Moissant of Chicago flew across the English channel from Calais to Tilmanstone, with a passenger, and by this feat far surpassed the feats of Blériot, De Lesseps and the unfortunate English aviator, Rolls, who later met his death at Bournemouth.

The two-man flight from France to England was the most astonishing, as it was only a month ago that Moissant learned to fly, and he had made so few flights and was so little known among air men that even his nationality was not disclosed.

He was reputed to be a Spaniard, and only when he landed in England yesterday was it revealed that he was a young architect from Chicago.

To make the feat more surprising Moissant was totally ignorant of the geography of his course. He had never been in England, and was obliged to rely entirely on the compass, while the crossing of the channel was accomplished in the teeth of a strong westerly wind.

The channel flight was an incident in the aerial voyage from Paris to London. Moissant left Issy Tuesday in company with Hubert Latham, and reached Amiens in two hours. Latham's aeroplane was wrecked, and on Thursday Moissant, leaving Amiens, headed for Calais.

His mechanician, Albert Fileaux, who had accompanied him across the country, but who had never been in an aeroplane before, got into the machine with Moissant and the motor was set in motion for the dash across the channel.

Thousands who had gathered to watch the daring aviator were amazed, and urged him not to make the attempt in the half gale that was blowing.

Moissant cared nothing for the warnings of the people, and even the fact that there was no torpedo boat to follow in his wake, but only a slow-going tug, did not deter him. He made the trip in thirty-seven minutes.

When he descended his eyes were bloodshot and greatly inflamed, as a result of the heavy rainstorm into which they drove on approaching the English coast. The high wind beat the rain into the faces of the men like hail, and almost blinded them.

An average height of between 300 and 400 feet was maintained over the water. The aviator expected to land at Dover, but was forced by te wind a few miles north and made the coast near Deal.

The cold was intense and both Moissant and his mechanician were benumbed. Moissant seemed to take his monumental feat as though it were merely a daily occurrence.

Asked how he came to attempt such a flight as that from Paris to London Moissant said that the idea had been discussed in aviation circles in Paris and had been generally regarded as an impossibility. He scoffed at this notion and declared that not only would he attempt it himself, but he would also carry a passenger. He was surprised to hear that Latham had started on the flight, but determined to follow him in spite of Latham's big advantage.

Moissant is 35 years of age. He first visited Paris some months ago and became interested in the study of aviation. He had two machines built after his own designs, and found the subject so fascinating that he determined to become a practical air man.

His flight yesterday was made in a Bleriot machine, which weighs about 800 pounds. He himself weighs about 150 pounds and his mechanician 182, so that the total weight amounted to nearly 1150 pounds.

FERRYBOAT WRECKED

Explosion Causes Death of Six Persons and Injuries to Four

Curling, N. F., Aug. 18.—Six persons were killed and four injured by an explosion on a gasolene ferryboat plying between St. Georges and Sandy Point. The boat was wrecked.

The roar of the explosion shook the bay and pieces of iron and woodwork were scattered in every direction.

The boat was a new one and had been on the route for only two months. The exact cause of the explosion has not yet been determined.

VATICAN PLOT IS SUSPECTED

Spanish Liberals Disturbed by Nuncio's Visit to Queen

FOREIGN MINISTER WITH HIM

Official Explanation That Visit Was Merely Social Not Accepted by the Public—Clerical Juntas, Though Indicted For Libel on Premier, Still Organized For War Against the Government

San Sebastian, Aug. 18.—Suspecting a conspiracy on the part of the Vatican, the Spanish liberals are disturbed by the announcement that Mgr. Vico, the papal nuncio, called on Queen Marie Christina at the Miramar palace. Vico called first on Garcia y Prieto and the minister of foreign affairs accompanied the nuncio to Miramar. The queen mother has also received the bishop of Guipuzcoa in audience.

Senor Prieto's official explanation of the visit was to the effect that it was merely a social one, the object being to pay respect to the queen, but in spite of this and of the denials of the Vatican and Madrid as to any change in the situation the public persists in interpreting the incident as an indication of a friendly solution of the situation.

When Queen Maria Christina received the nuncio's request for an audince she asked Premier Canalejas' advice. The president of the council replied that the government advised her to receive the nuncio.

The Voz de Guipuzcoa publishes a dispatch from Madrid saying that the sojourn of the papal nuncio at Zarauz, his trips to San Sebastian, his visits to the minister of foreign affairs and the queen mother are commented upon unfavorably among the liberals, who are of the opinion that Vico's movements are merely maneuvers on the part of the Vatacan, undertaken with the object of persuading the country that Queen Maria Christina is backing the Roman policy.

The Catholic juntas of Viscaya, Guipuzcoa, Atava and Navarra provinces met yesterday at Zumarraga to discuss their campaign against the government. They received many adhesions from the country districts and decided to continue their campaign nergetically. These four juntas have been indicted for libel on the premier.

The Liberal has confirmed the rumor long prevailing in Spanish political circles that Don Jaime's partisans have endeavored to obtain money in Paris, Berlin and Brussels in order to bring about a revolution in Spain. The editor of the Barcelona edition of The Liberal, Senor Mainar, says the Jaimists have promised great concessions, but that their efforts have been vain.

Valquez Mella, at one time Don Jaime's secretary, who undertook the negotiations, is convinced that if Don Jaime is to ascend the throne by means of a revolution his partisans in Spain must rely on their own resources.

SALEM'S SHOE STRIKE

Mayor Urges Labor Leaders to Resort to Arbitration

Salem, Mass., Aug. 18.—Salem's shoe strike situation is unchanged, but the next twenty-four hours are likely to develop something decisive—either a settlement or else a labor struggle of mammonth proportions. At the meeting last night no decisive action was taken and nothing was done toward spreading the strike area. Mayor Howard has written to the shoeworkers' leaders, urging arbitration.

This evening a mass meeting will be held and some positive action will probably be taken. It is not now expected that the trouble will spread to Beverly, providing the manufacturers there keep their hands off Salem and do not attempt to support manufacturers here or discriminate against help from this city.

Gaynor's Physicians Believe That He Will Completely Recover

New York, Aug. 18.—Mayor Gaynor is still further improved and his physicians have now the strongest belief in his complete recovery. The temperature, pulse and respiration are practically normal and there are no indications of infection about the bullet wound.

It is now generally believed that the mayor will undergo an operation for the removal of the bullet just as soon as his physicians feel that he is strong enough. The operation will be simple, it is said, and will be attended by little danger, if any.

Wider's Sentence Delayed

New York, Aug. 18.—The sentence of Erwin J. Wider, cashier of the Russo-Chinese bank, who was charged with stealing $680,000 worth of the concern's securities, was not passed yesterday. BROADSIDE IS FIRED AT BOSTON'S MAYOR

Appointments to Reward Political Supporters Alleged

Boston, Aug. 18.—The finance commission delivered its first broadside on the administration of Mayor Fitzgrald in a report issued last night charging that many of the appointments made by him were "in consideration of personal support given to the mayor or for purely political purposes," and that a continuation would lead inevitably to a restoration of the spoils system."

The report, briefly summed up says that Fitzgerald "has either failed to realize his great opportunity or he has deliberately choosen to reject it."

That "many appointments are made in consideration of personal support given to the mayor or for purely political purposes."

That "Mayor Fitzgerald's policy if followed further will lead inevitably to a restoration of the spoils system."

That the office of city collector is being exploited for political purposes by the mayor.

That City Clerk Parker, "appointed for political purposes,g is discharging his obligations to the mayor by removing experienced officials and appointing in their places political supporters of the mayor."

That Wate Commissioner Hannan is dominated by the mayor.

SHORT WEIGHT IN LARD

Boston Dealers, With One Exception, Charge For Weight of Pail

Boston, Aug. 18.—"Only one dealer in Boston so far as I have been able to determine gives honest weight in pails of lard. I propose to conduct a rigid campaign against such short weights."

Sealer of Weights and Measures Woolley made this announcement in discussing an investigation he had made into the measures in which lard was sold. All of the manufacturers with one exception weigh the pail in computing what is sold to the consumer as a three, five or ten pound pail of lard. The result is that the ordinary consumer is cheated out of from two to eight ounces of lard.

Fire Commissioner For Hub

Boston, Aug. 18.—Mayor Fitzgerald sprang a surprise last night by announcing that he had offered the position of fire commissioner to Charles D. Daly and that Daly had agreed to accept the position. Daly was the captain of the Harvard football team in 1901.

The Love of a Butcher Boy.

Deer heart, I'm in an awful stew
How I'll re-veal my love for you.
I'm such a mutton-head, I fear—
I feel so sheep-ish when you're near.
I know it's only cow-ardice
That makes these lamb-entations rise.
I dread a cut—let me explain:
A single roast would give me pain.
I should not like to get the hooks
And dare not steak my hopes on looks.
I never sausage eyes as thine.
If you would but-cher hand in mine
And live-r round me every day
We'd seek some ham-let far away.
We'd meat life's frowns with love's caress
And cleav-er road to happiness.

SQUANTUM !?
(EVER HEAR OF THE PLACE?)
IS A PART OF QUINCY !?

¶ It is not under water nor a hundred miles from Boston. In a short time (through the kindness of the City Fathers) you will be able to get there without swimming or fear of drowning.

¶ It has some city water, some electric lights, and telephone connections for such as pay for it. Also electric cars visit this place occasionly, with five cent fares from all parts of Quincy.

¶ With the above information would you risk the price (5 cents) and take a journey to the wild domains of this unexplored region?

¶ As a minor side attraction it might be mentioned that the Harvard Aviation Field is located here, on which a few pennies are being expended preparing the grounds and a few more may possibly be expended during the meet, Sept. 3rd. to 13th.

¶ Finally, though perhaps of less importance, the undersigned begs to add that he has a few (hundred)

A CASE OF SUICIDE

Report of Jury on Death of Griffin at Sidney

Local interest in E. J. Griffin, who flooded the police with Restelli dispatches from Sydney, is practically over, as the coroner's jury at Sydney on Wednesday decided that his death was suicide, and not murder as was first reported. It was reported that he at one time did police work in Quincy, but this report is unfounded. He is unknown here.

It is also reported that he was related to James and Lizzie McDonald of North Weymouth, and they have gone to Sydney to claim the body.

Chief Burrell received a telegram from the Sydney police Wednesday asking if he desired the body sent to Quincy; if so the expense would be $120. The chief replied that Quincy had no interest in the body as he was not known here. He, however, sent the telegram to the Lynn police thinking that perhaps Griffin's friends there might desire to claim it.

POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

Members of the Democratic and Republican State committees will get together—separately—next week to arrange for their State conventions. Selecting a presiding officer and a committee on resolutions is about all that the Republicans have before them. Their convention has been set for Oct. 6, in Tremont Temple. Former Gov. John L. Bates, Speaker Walker, Senate President Treadway and Former Representative Robert Luce of Somerville are mentioned for chairman.

Plans for the Democratic convention are still in the making. No convention date or place has been set. This selection of Faneuil Hall for some date late in September or early in October is expected.

CANADA'S MERCHANT MARINE.

On December 31, 1909, there were 7,768 vessels, measuring 718,533 tons, an increase of 166 vessels and 16,229 tons, as compared with December 31, 1908. During 1909 there were built and registered 327 vessels with 23,306 tons. Sailing ships numbered 4,539, with 204,591 tons; steamships, 3,229, with 513,962 tons. During the last 35 years there has been a decided decrease in the Canadian merchant marine; as the following tonnage statistics show: 1874, 1,158,363; 1879, 1,382,094; 1884, 1,253,747; 1889, 1,040,481; 1894, 869,624; 1899, 679,352; 1904, 682,838; 1909, 718,553.

The tonnage by provinces on December 31, 1909, was as follows: New Brunswick, 62,984; Nova Scotia, 160,286; Quebec, 175,370; Ontario, 208,652; Prince Edward Island, 10,154; British Columbia, 92,746; Manitoba, 5,087 Yukon district, 2,984; Saskatchewan, 290.

In tonnage the merchant marine of Canada takes tenth rank. It is estimated that 36,430 men and boys, including masters, were employed on registered Canadian ships during 1909. Prince Rupert, in British Columbia, was constituted a port of registry.—Tradesman.

EDUCATING HOUSEKEEPERS.

"Even grocers are taking a hand in the education of young housewives," said the pretty woman. "I did my first marketing last week. The grocer knew I was green. When I had finished buying he said:

"'Now, do you know how to arrange things in your icebox to the best advantage?'

"I said I was afraid I didn't. He called a young man from the rear of the store.

"'James,' he said, 'when you deliver this basket of things will you show the lady the most economical arrangement of her refrigerator?'

"Fifteen minutes later white aproned James was turning my ice chest upside down. He made a place for everything and said it ought to be kept there, no matter how small the icebox. The meats, for example, should always come between the milk and butter and the fruit and salads. When he finished my refrigerator held about twice as much as I had been able to get into it. Another wondrous phase of the situation was that James refused a tip.

"'We make a point,' he said, 'of showing customers the proper arrangement of an ice chest.'"—Brockton Enterprise.

WILLOW PLUMES.

The tying of the flues of willow plumes—the sweeping artificial ostrich feathers of the present fashion—has become during the last two years a very extensive industry in New York tenements. The factories where these feathers are made are chiefly located in the Italian districts of the upper East Side. On some streets the ground floor and first floor of almost every house is occupied by small factories and workshops, and during the season—from March to June, and from September to December—the window of every factory has a sign in Italian: "Women wanted to work in willow." Most of the curling and dyeing of the feathers is done in the factories; but seventy per cent. of the "willowing"—the most lengthy and monotonous part of the trade—is done in the tenements.

Willowing consists in tying to every flue or filmy strand of a good ostrich feather two strands stripped from inferior ostrich feathers. The work is paid for by the inch; five or six cents an inch in factories, and four or five cents an inch in the homes for black plumes and a cent less for white. The inch is measured on the stem of the original feather, and therefore involves the tying of innumerable delicate knots for each inch of finished work. A tenement worker cannot make an eighteen-inch feather in less than one and a half or two days. She is paid seventy-two or ninety cents for this work. The feather sells at retail anywhere from eight and a half to twenty-five dollars.—Elizabeth Shepley Sergeant in McClures.

FOR STAINED FINGERS.

The days of preserving bring stained fingers. Have you ever tried using a weak solution of oxalic acid after preparing berries or discoloring vegetables? It is a quick stain remover.

As the acid is a poison, label the bottle plainly and keep away from children. Where stains are under fingernails wrap a bit of absorbent cotton on the end of an orangewood stick and dip in the solution.

For minor stains lemon juice is helpful. Run the ends of the fingers into half a cut lemon.

Tomatoes will also remove stains, especially those of paring potatoes or other slight discolorations. A tomato is a whitener and softens the hands.—New York Times.

BACK TO THE OLD HOME.

Sooner or later the man who has come from the country to the city and achieved wealth or professional distinction yearns again for the quiet pastures he deserted. They all do, and it is plainly noticeable that the passion to return is somewhat in proportion to the degree of riches and responsibility the rural desserter has attained. The trouble is that there are certain prime things money cannot possibly buy. Youth is one. Then there is the keen relish of life; what the French call la joie de vivre. The strong, ambitious country lad, forsaking the farm for a fortune in the city, accomplishes his hopes—at a considerable cost. He introduces fresh red blood into business and, through marriage, into some decadent urban family. Then, presently, for himself, life becomes what Longfellow declares it to be: "But a suburb o fthe life Elysian." He wants to go back home. He buys a farm, or if he has grown to a condition of large affluence and some culture he takes a country place, where he proposes to enjoy in Thomson's words:— "An elegant sufficiency content, retirement, rural quiet, friendship, books.

Does he do it? That depends on the man. By no possible means can he get his nose back to the soil through the mere instrumentality of money. The intervening years have divorced him from juvenile and adolescent sympathy with the sod. He must come back in all simplicity and repentance and the genial earth will take him in her arms and make a new man of him. This type of man, hungry for his old home, is just now thinking of it vividly. For, after all, the dirt road of one's boyhood is a finer tread than flag or asphalt pavement.

DIDN'T MATCH.

A California woman in training a new Chinese servant to wait on the door had her daughter ring the bell and present her card.

Next afternoon a friend called and handed her card to the Celestial, who pulled out of his sleeve the card the daughter of the house had presented the afternoon before and carefully compared the two.

"Tickee no matchee," he exclaimed, handing back the visitor's card. "No can come in."—Success.

BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

A Fall in the Popularity of the Fashionable Hobble Skirt—A New England Titian, Still Painting at Seventy-Six—The Coburn Players and the President of Chili Give a Filip to Midsummer Flatness—Another Wonderful Medical Discovery by a Harvard Professor—Bay State Thugs, Bums and Loafers May Be Forced to Do Farm Work—Bibulous Boston Capitulates to a Host of Catholic Abstainers.

The Provincetown Pilgrimage partially depleted Boston on the gala day when President Taft dedicated the Pilgrim monument. With Governor Draper, Lieutenant Governor Frothingham and President emeritus Charles W. Eliot as prominent speakers, the Hub took an active part in the exercises. Crowds of enthusiastic citizens thronged the boats and trains between the New England metropolis and the quaint little Cape Cod town, and hundreds sought lodgings in its limited accommodations that they might enjoy to the full the several days' festivities. The simple souled Puritans, were they present in spirit, must have been astonished at the sumptuousness of their celebration.

Boston seems in a fair way to have to her credit another remarkable achievement in medical science. Now comes the report from Honolulu that Dr. Walter Brinckerhoff and his associates have succeeded in isolating the germ of leprosy, which probably means that this hitherto unconquerable disease will ultimately be listed among curable maladies. The doctors are now working on possible toxins and experiments will soon be made at the leper colony at Molokai where Dr. Brinckerhoff has been devoting several years to study of the dread discase. A student of the Harvard Medical school and later prominently identified with research work in connection with pestilential diseases, he has been a well known figure in the Hub for some time. His successful work at Molokai will add another to the series of important discoveries made at the Harvard Medical School.

About all the pretty society girls of eastern Massachusetts who are not summering in Maine or New Hampshire seemed to turn out to greet the always popular Coburn players at the University city, in their masterly presentations of "As You Like it," "Elektra" and the various classics in their repertoire. The Harvard yard never is more attractive than during its occupation by these talented artists.

Darius Cobb, Boston's venerable but active artist, to whom so many women's clubs have listened with enthusiasm, passed his seventy-sixth milestone a few days ago. Probably no artist in the New England Capital is better known or more sincerely loved than Mr. Cobb, whose works of a patriotic nature are familiar to all Americans, and who like Titian in his old age continues to labor at his canvases with the zeal of half his years. Everyone certainly hopes that the painter may equal the record of the great Venetian who did not relinquish his labors until death called him in his hundredth year.

"Touch not," was the motto of bibulous old Boston for four days, while the Catholic total abstainers held their fortieth national convention, Aug. 9-1.2 Addresses by noted prelates, distinguished statesmen and temperance leaders, a monster street parade, the presence of a whole regiment of temperance soldiers from Wilkes-Barre, and military exhibitions and big meetings, made the time a lively and memorable one. Trolley rides and sea trips also were notable cooling off events in connection with the affair.

What a deserted place Boston Common will be if the threat of the State Free Employment Office is carried out! Then everyone will be a "producer" and if the loafer doesn't find a job for himself he will be sent to an institution and from there placed at work with farmers. But how rough on the farmer's wife.

Beware the hobble skirt! Here is a well known New York woman with bruised face and hands, as a result of alighting from her electric runabout, garbed in the latest mode of skirt. Her foot caught and there was nothing to do but tumble ignominiously in the dirt. But you know the old story about pride. Ethel Angier.

Boston, Aug. 12, 1910.

Exit the Hero.

The old fashioned hero, they tell us, has passed.
In all the late fiction he's badly outclassed.
It is the fair maiden who harvests the hays
And gets lots of medals and all of the praise.

We miss the old hero so dear to us all—
His might and his courage we'd gladly recall—
But fiction and practice in this rapid age
Give woman the center and all of the stage.

CLERK'S SICKNESS LEADS TO EXPOSURE

Trusted Man's Accounts Found to Be $36,725 Short

New York, Aug. 18.—Adolf Gabriel, bookkeeper for the Blatz Leather company, has been ill of typhoid for two weeks. During the time the officers of the company had an examination of his books made and the result was an attachment against him for $36,725.

Gabriel had charge of the finances of the New York office. The company had such confidence in him that no examination of his books was made in recent years, but when he fell sick it was discovered that he had filled in checks for amounts greater than were indicated by the stubs or by the cash book and converted the difference to his own use.

Between September, 1907, and July, 1910, it is alleged the amount missing is $36,725. His salary is said to have been $70 a week.

What a gay poet 's the gay summer breeze
Sculping its fancies upon a white cloud!

—R. K. Munkittrick in Puck.

In the Suburb.

"What beautiful public building is that?"

"That isn't a public building. It's old man Savitt's summer cottage."

"And whose neat little cottage is that over there with the tower on it—that little one story frame affair?"

"That isn't a cottage. It's the First Episcopal church."—Life.

Milk to Let.

English is sadly misused at times on the continent of Europe. One sign in Genoa, Italy, reads, "Dinner—Wine Inclosed," and another "Milk For Sale or to Let."

In South America.

Foreign Correspondent—And who are those two men under the tree? General Paprika—Oh, that's the second battalion of the royal guards.—Chicago News.

His Discipline.

"Pop, you must take this child in hand. I have had about all that I can stand. She has no notion of minding me; it is time you took her across your knee."

"Send her to me," said Pop, with a frown. "It won't take me long to tone her down."

But how could he punish her, tell me, do, when she looked at him with her eyes of blue? Looked at him in the same glad way that her mother did in that faroff day when she was his sweetheart and he her beau. How could he strike her I'd like to know?

But still he took her upon his knee and at once was lost in a reverie that carried him back to a shady street and a little maid whom he used to meet, a blue eyed maid whose counterpart now sat on his knee with a beating heart, waiting for him to forget those days and punish her for her wilful ways.

Mom peeped in through the half closed door. They were playing jacks on the parlor floor, playing jacks and quarreling, too, just as two children are apt to do. She frowned, it was more than half caress, "I will have to punish them both, I guess."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Origin of Confetti.

The history of confetti is rather curious. Several years ago a large printing works in Paris was turning out immense quantities of calendars, through which a small round hole had been punched to receive an eyelet for holding the sheets together. A heap of the little circular scraps of paper cut out by the punch accumulated on a table, and one of the machine men amused himself by scattering a handful of them over a working girl's hair. She immediately snatched up a handful and threw them in his face. Other girls followed her example, and the first confetti battle began. The head of the establishment came in when it was at its height, and, being what the Americans call a "smart man," he at once realized that there was "money in it." He ordered special machinery, placed large quantities of the new article on the market, made a fortune and created a new industry.

The Ways of Moles.

Among common animals few have been less studied in their life history than the mole. An English naturalist, Mr. Lionel E. Adams, says that under the "fortress" which the mole constructs above the surface of the ground will always be found a series of tunnels running out beneath the adjacent field. A curious feature almost invariably found is a perpendicular run penetrating about a foot below the bottom of the nest and then turning upward to meet another run. A mole is never found in his nest, although it may be yet warm from his body when opened. Guided by smell and hearing, a mole frequently locates the nest of a partridge or pheasant above his run and, penetrating it from below, eats the eggs. The adult mole is practically blind, but there are embryonic indications that the power of sight in the race has deteriorated.

Olive Culture.

There is little prospect of the olive industry in this country being overdone, for there are only three localities in this country where the olives will thrive.

He then goes to Georgetown University, Washington, for advanced study in physics and will also teach at that college. Mr. Mahoney left home seven years ago to become a Jesuit Missionary, a course which takes fifteen years to complete.

"That was very kind of your uncle to pay your debts.

"Humph! I dont think so. He might have given me the money and let me pay 'em."

"What difference would that have made?"

"It would have re-established my credit."

WILL WEAR MANY COSTUMES

Would-Be First Woman Policeman Tells of Her Plans

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 18.—"I shall be under the supervision of the chief of polise, and his orders will govern my duties," said Mrs. Alice S. Wells, who would be Los Angeles' first woman policeman.

"I will have many costumes to be used for different occasions. I am not afraid of any one or anything, but I may find it necessary to carry a revolver and will always have a police whistle with me.

"My field of work will be chiefly wherever young people gather for entertainment, in parks, penny arcades, moving picture shows and in the dance halls, to see that laws are obeyed and the places kept clean and moral. I am not going in for a record on number of arrests, for I believe in the golden rule plan of keeping people out of jail by making them do the right thing."

MARRIED IN HER NIGHTIE

Georgia Girl Proves Adage That Love Laughs at Locksmiths

Atlanta, Aug. 18.—In her stocking feet Miss Columbia Cheek slipped out of her room at 2 o'clock in the morning to join Guy H. Buchanan, to whom she was married an hour later in her nightgown. The romantic marriage was the final act in a long courtship beset by the objections of unsympathetic parents.

Miss Cheek and Buchanan had been engaged for some time, but the girl's parents were bitterly opposed to the match.

While her parents had her locked in her room and stood guard to see that she did not make her escape Miss Cheek managed to slip out of the house and through the yard to the street, where Buchanan waited. A clergyman had already been summoned and arrived at 3 o'clock to perform the hasty wedding ceremony.

AMERICAN SONDERS WIN FIRST CONTEST

Spanish Yachts Outclassed In the Race Off Marblehead

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 18.—The Americans defeated the Spaniards in the first of the international sonder series of races off Marblehead, all three of the home boats crossing the finish line before the foreign boats.

The Harpoon crossed the line in the lead of the all the rest, but she was disqualified for fouling the flag buoy at the second mark on the second round. This left the winners as follows:

Beaver, owned by C. H. W. Foster, first; Cima, owned by Guy Lowell, second; Chonta, owned by Luis de Arana, third; Papoose, fourth; Mosquito II, fifth.

The feature of the contest was the battle of the American boats, the Spanish contestants not being in the race to a dangerous extent at any time.

So close were the Americans that at the finish it was almost impossible for those ashore to tell which crossed the line first. All three of the American boats sailed the fifteen miles, going twice around the triangular course, in a little over two hours.

The Spanish boats were from eight to eighteen minutes behind the Americans in reaching the home plate.

A MONSTER CLAM BAKE

Thirty-Six Hundred Jackies Fully Enjoy Newport's Hospitality

Newport, R. I., Aug. 18.—Splendid weather conditions, an enthusiastic army of bluejackets, and streets crowded with eager spectators made the first day of Newport's entertainment to the visiting sailors from the North Atlantic fleet a great success.

The sailors were more than satisfied with "Rhode Island's biggest clambake," prepared in their honor, and their verdict is sufficient testimony to its success.

More than 3600 sailors were fed in less than an hour, and so perfectly did the system work that there was no hurrying and no waiting. The service was machine-like in its precision, despite the magnitude of the feast.

SELL EGGS BY WEIGHT

Order Must Be Obeyed by Wholesale Dealers In New York

New York, Aug. 18.—"Eggs must be sold by weight. All that remains to be determined is how it can be done most conveniently and when the new order of things shall begin. If you think this is wrong, if you think there is no authority in the law for such an order, take it to the courts and let them decide."

This was in effect the ultimatum given by Commissioner Driscoll of the bureau of weights and measures, to fifty or more wholesale dealers in eggs who attended a hearing held by him in the matter at city hall.

INDIANS ALWAYS PREY OF WHITES

Investigation Started by Senator Gore Opens Up Century's Record of Studied Robbery of Lands.

Helen Hunt's Fight For Aborigines Forgotten When Increasing Value of Broad Acres Is Seen.

WHEN Senator Gore of Oklahoma made the charges which brought in the name of Vice President Sherman he opened the story of the greatest muddle in all the muddled history of the white man's career of colonization.

When Helen Hunt, who fought for the Indian as no one else ever fought, published her "Century of Dishonor" the public conscience was stirred, and an effort was made to do the right thing by the man who, after all, was here first—to give him land and let him live on it. In short, we stopped being bad and began to be stupid.

For no sooner had the Indian been solemnly given the land, almost with tears of shamed apology, than we let it be taken away again, right and left, hit or miss. We forgot all about him as soon as he was duly a ward of the nation. We had said he was protected, and under the magnificent aegis of this declaration he was, of course, forever safe.

High Commissions Cause Row.

Then began the sort of thing that culminated when the McMurray firm announced that it would sell the Choctaw and Chickasaw lands for them, charging only 10 per cent of the price paid. The syndicate that wanted to buy was willing to pay $30,000,000 for the rich coal and asphalt lands that are said by some to be worth from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000 more, and for putting through this deal—so desirable, they explained, from the Indian point of view—the McMurray firm wanted only the fee of $3,000,000, Senator Gore objected, and hence the trouble. But there have been deals like this a-plenty and no Senator Gore to protest.

This same McMurray has had successful financial relations with the Indians in the past. He was, with four others, indicted for obtaining an enormous fee from the Five Nations in connection with the registration law some years ago. It is a long story, but one worth telling.

When the Five Nations were moved westward-ho to make room for a civilization that had no particular use for them they were paid for their lands and were given over 19,000,000 acres in what is now Oklahoma. Here they were to live as they wanted to live and hunt or farm, just as they liked, unmolested by the white man.

As we grew and waxed fat we extended anxious eyes toward Oklahoma. The Indian land was, unfortunately for them, very good land. No sooner did we grasp this fact than we felt we must take up the white man's burden.

Indians' Tribunals Abolished.

The red man had a certain government of his own, a sort of communal government, not undemocratic. He thought it pretty good. Anyway it suited him. But it stood in the way of "progress," and so it had to go, letting in the aforesaid progress with a flourish of lying, perjury, graft and other concomitants of civilization quite amazing to behold.

It was done in this fashion: Beginning in 1887, certain severalty acts were passed conferring citizenship on any Indian who would give up tribal life and take up land individually. In 1891 this offer was extended to the Five Nations in Oklahoma, and in 1893 the famous Dawes commission, headed by Senator Henry L. Dawes of Massachusetts, was appointed for the purpose of extinguishing the tribal titles to lands and allotting the same in severalty to members of the tribes.

It is not to be supposed that the Indians had anything to do with this arrangement. The white man took, along with his other burdens, that of deciding that the Indian should sell his land.

So it was sold. Some of it was to come into the market almost immediately and some within five years or so and some in twenty or more years, but practically all was to be sold in course of time. Over two-thirds of it has been disposed of now.

And the money? Well, the Indians are more likely to become charges on the state than to buy automobiles. There were only 100,000 or so of them, and over 12,000,000 acres of land have been sold, but the Indian didn't get the money.

One woman sold land worth in asphalt beds from $60,000 to $80,000. She was paid $1,100, but not all in cash—oh, no! For so large a price as that the purchaser explained that she must take part in the form of notes.

Blind Woman Cheated.

Another woman was blind and very, very old. Two white men explained to her that she was entitled to a pension by virtue of her late husband's service during the civil war. They presented a paper for her to sign, assuring her that she would get her pension on its receipt in Washington. She made her mark, her fingers guided by the men. The paper turned out to be a warranty deed for her farm. Both these cases were fought in court afterward.

The Dawes severalty act, arranging for the sale of the Indian lands, contemplated the prompt sale of some of the property, but considered that a good deal of it would be held for twenty or thirty years. The act was a piece of interference with the rights and desires of the Indians under any circumstances, but this provision was a redeeming point, and for nearly twenty years the sales proceeded with this limitation.

But it seemed too bad to leave the lands in the hands of the unprogressive for so long a time. Four years ago an amendment to the Dawes act removed all restrictions from the sale of the land and authorized the issuance of a fee simple patent to any allottee "competent and capable of managing his or her affairs."

The Indian office construed the meaning of this statute to be that if any Indian disposed of his land knowing he would not get it back again he was "competent and capable" within the meaning of the law.

Children Also Robbed.

There have been 24,000 cases in court in regard to the sale of these lands by persons "competent and capable." Not all of them concerned adults, for the case of the Indian child has been even harder than that of his parents. Many children of the Five Nations are very rich by inheritance. The tribes are dying, and those who survive have often much land coming to them. Here is scope for the "guardian" idea.

In 1896, after it was decided that the lands were to be divided, the commission announced that applications for rights in the apportionment of land should be made within thirty days and be passed upon within ninety days. That was fourteen years ago, and they have just wound up the matter. Indeed, there are some cases not yet settled.

Mansfield & McMurray of McAlester set forth to the Five Nations that somebody had to be employed to keep off the rolls the names of persons who were not really of their tribes. The Indians agreed—poor, muddled, badgered, harried tribes that wanted nothing but to be let alone.

Now, it was the business of the government to attend to this, and so Ethan Allan Hitchcock's secretary of the interior said afterward in no uncertain fashion, but the government didn't do anything about it, and Mansfield & McMurray proceeded to push people off the rolls. They got $10 a head for pushing, or something like that. Anyway, the bill amounted to $750,000.

Indians Pay All Bills.

There was a protest. McMurray and others were indicted, and then the indictments were dismissed. The Indians paid that bill, as they have paid various others.

Also they paid sometimes for getting on the rolls. Occasionally the fee was 50 per cent of all they had. Taking it by and large, there has seldom been so satisfactory a carnival from the grafter's point of view.

There was talk of reopening this rich view and looking over the rolls the other day, but even the Indians have learned the trick now, and they presented a petition saying that they have already spent over $1,000,000 defending themselves against fraudulent claims of citizenship in the Five Nations and they would prefer to have the matter rest as quietly as it can. They add, with some natural bitterness, that had the question of deciding on Indian blood been left to the Indian courts it would have been settled more swiftly and justly.

When the announcement was made that homesteads would be sold at one-half the assessed value of the land, two lots to each person, there was another rush to profit by the graft. The land had been Indian land, half a million acres in all, and it was offered on these terms to encourage civilization to take a nice long step and settle in Oklahoma.

Laws Easily Evaded.

Any man who wanted to speculate in land got a certain number of men at home, tramps or friends—anybody—to give him their power of attorney, then to Oklahoma without delay; two lots for him, please, and two lots for his friends whose power of attorney he showed.

Sometimes a man would get several hundred lots in this fashion. He would sell, and, if the graft was discovered, where was the grafter?

The commissioner of Indian affairs, Robert G. Valentine, put the case pithily the other day:

"It is possible to do only one of two things with the Indians—to exterminate them or to make them into citizens. Whichever we choose should be done in a businesslike way. If we choose extermination we should do it suddenly, painlessly and completely, but instead of frankly engaging in that course the country has set itself to make the Indians into citizens. It has no business to bungle this job as it is now doing any more than if the course of extermination were now to be decided on it would have any business to bungle that."

Edmund Kean was playing in "Richard III.," and the part of Catesby had to be taken by a low comedian, who sauntered on to the stage at the wrong moment and uttered the famous words, "My lord, the Duke of Buckingham is taken," in the wrong place.

Edmund clinched his fists in rage, but otherwise took no notice of the remark.

Later the comedian repeated the words in the right place, and when the king expressed surprise at the news Catesby folded his arms, walked boldly down the stage and remarked to the great actor in loud tones:

"I told you so before, Mr. Kean, but you wouldn't believe me."

One of the attaches of the American embassy at London tells a story wherein Michael Joseph Barry, the poet, who was appointed a police magistrate in Dublin, was the principal figure. There was brought before him an Irish American charged with suspicious conduct. The officer making the arrest stated, among other things, that the culprit was wearing a "Republican hat."

"Does your honor know what that means?" was the inquiry put to the court by the accused's lawyer.

"It may be," suggested Barry, "that it means a hat without a crown."—Harper's Magazine.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

STUBBS, FIGHTER, LIKED IN KANSAS

Powerful Force Now Heading For United States Senate.

VIGOR, NOT GRAMMAR, WINS.

Sunflower State's Chief Executive, Victor In Republican Primaries For Second Term, Succeeds by Fighting Corporations and Appealing to the People Directly.

Governor Walter Roscoe Stubbs, who has been renominated by the Republican voters of Kansas, has had a short career in politics compared with most leaders. It is only seven years since he began to interest himself at all actively in public affairs, and now he seems assured of a second term in office, which may lead to his going to the United States senate.

For it is no secret that the governor's ambition is to succeed Senator Charles Curtis, whose term expires in March, 1913, and whose successor will be chosen two years hence.

Stubbs is red headed, like that other insurgent leader of Kansas Republicans, Victor Murdock. Red hair means energy, and Stubbs is brimful of energy. Oddly enough, he comes of Quaker stock. His parents, who lived in Richmond, Ind., when he was born, were very poor; also they were members of the Society of Friends.

Proved Himself Fighter.

A "fighting Quaker" is proverbially a bad man to run against. And Stubbs has proved to his opponents that he can fight, out of pure love of fighting, if for nothing else, in politics. His desire to do things is so great that one can only wonder whether the chamber of the dignified senate could contain him in one of his crusading moods.

Now fifty-two years old, the governor is wealthy as a result of many years of hard work as a contractor, mostly in railroad building. Thus he has an intimate acquaintance with one feature of railroad affairs, the cost of new lines. During his political campaigns Stubbs has been charged with ingratitude to the hand that fed him, for he has risen in politics chiefly as an anti-railroad man. But he has always answered that he had nothing to do with the railroads except to build a good many miles of them at a fair profit.

Stubbs is an open fighter and always hits straight from the shoulder or disdains to hit at all. He has no hesitation about taking the whole people into his confidence when he has a complaint against the Standard Oil company or some other corporation.

Not an Orator, But—

As a speechmaker he is not gifted. His voice is harsh, his language is frequently ungrammatical, and his gestures are awkward. But he can ask more questions and express more fervid thoughts about things in general when on the stump than probably any other man in political life. And he gets down to facts—or allegations—and proceeds to hammer at his enemies with sledgehammer strokes.

The weakness of Stubbs as politicians look upon him is that he has no machine. He is essentially a one man power. He insists that everybody in the employ of the state shall do a fair day's work for his pay, and he has cut off graft in numerous places. The support he gets is from the people, not the politicians, primarily. It is true many strong politicians aided him in the fight for renomination, but he did not win their support through promises or favors. They took to Stubbs because of his strength, and Stubbs may or may not reward them.

Stubbs' opponent in the fight just ended was Thomas Wagstaff, a bright, energetic and shrewd young lawyer of Independence. Wagstaff made a good fight, pleading for harmonious support of President Taft, the policies of the administration and traditional Republicanism.

But Stubbs made a better fight. He stripped off his coat and vest on a hot day while campaigning and talked to the voters in a heart to heart way that brought confidence, enthusiasm and votes. He has hardly any "book learning," and one secret of his strength may be that he does not pretend to have any. He has been, however, a very good friend to the state's educational institutions and appreciates education.

Began In Legislature.

Stubbs began his political career in 1903 by going to the legislature. He didn't know anything about lawmaking at the start, of course, and the party managers saw to it that he was not placed on any important committees. That annoyed Stubbs, and he began to fight. He took the reform side of everything and made a name on the anti-pass question and other issues that were considered burning by the farmers. He fought the ring that controlled state politics and soon found himself a power.

Tarsus Has Electric Lights.

Tarsus, the ancient city in Asia Minor where the Apostle Paul was born, is now illuminated by electricity. The power is taken from the Cydnus river. There are now in Tarsus 450 electric street lights and about 600 incandescent lights for private use.

NO WONDER.

The ancients thought the world was flat:
I'm really not surprised at that;
We'd find it flat, I dare to say,
If we were living in their day.
Just think, they had no autos then,
No show girls to delight the men,
No pipes to smoke and no cigars,
No cocktails served at handsome bars,
No bridge to play and no pink teas,
No liners speeding o'er the seas,
No yellow journals and no flats,
No women's monstous picture hats,
No tariff problem to attack,
No gowns that button up the back,
No end seat hogs with manners rude,
No monkeying with the price of food,
No ice bills, no cold storage eggs,
No bunko steerers and no yeggs,
No trolley cars with clang and whir,
No Teddy to keep things astir—
Say, is it any wonder that
The ancients thought the world was flat?

ABDUL HAMID'S 746 WIVES WORRY LAWMAKING TURKS.

Pensioned Because They Can't Remarry Among Moslems.

Abdul Hamid's wives continue to be a source of perplexity to the Turkish government. Their number was estimated not to exceed 200, including female slaves of all ranks, but the ministry of finance found itself confronted by claims from 746 women who demanded from the ex-sultan's successor compensation to the tune of $800,000.

The government refused to pay this sum, but proposed that the chamber should sanction an arrangement by which the women of the harem for a period of ten years should receive monthly pensions ranging from $4.25 to $21.25, which even in frugal Turkey is a pretty meager subsistence. The Turkish deputies, however, still thought the ministry overgenerous.

Some of the Extreme Left shouted, "Why don't you get them married off?" whereupon the finance minister retorted that the women were lone and homeless widows and, according to Turkish custom, could not expect to attract husbands among the faithful. Other deputies suggested that as the women came mostly from Asia Minor or Albania they should be sent back to their native provinces to be cared for locally.

Here the members for the provinces concerned jumped up and pointed out indignantly that the families of these women had received good money for them by selling them to Yildiz kiosk and that the local authorities could not now be expected to provide for their maintenance. Other deputies again firmly refused to do anything at all for the ex-sultan's grass widows so long as wives and mothers of Ottoman soldiers who had bled for their country were living in dire poverty.

Finally a small majority was found for the government's project, and so the women of the harem may look forward to receiving their little pension, at all events until 1920.

REPORTERS REWRITE BIBLE?

Clergyman Thinks Newspaper Handling Would Enhance Interest.

The novel combination in the pulpit of a newspaper man's training with the equipment of a minister is the up to date idea of the Rev. W. H. Jordan, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Jerseyville, Ill. Recently he visited a newspaper office there to see how a daily is got out.

"The bright and breezy way in which city reporters write up an event makes people read the story through with interest from start to finish," commented Mr. Jordan. "I have often thought that if ministers in their sermon writing would try to adopt newspaper methods to the extent of turning out more interesting and vivid 'copy' they would make more impression upon their congregations and attract more to the services.

"If certain events related in the Bible had been 'covered' by men like the newspaper reporter of today, how eagerly we would read them. I believe many persons now repelled by the style of the King James version would read such an account, if it existed, with the keenest interest and pleasure."

ANCIENTS FEARED DOG DAYS.

Sacrificed Canines to Sirius to Ward Off Sultry Dangers.

In ancient times it was customary at the beginning of "dog days" to sacrifice a brown dog to appease the wrath of Sirius, the dog star, so soon as that star became visible to the naked eye.

Sirius was supposed to cause the hot, sultry weather usually attendant on its appearance, and the ancients believed that on the first morning of its rising the sea boiled, wine turned sour, dogs grew mad and that man became afflicted with burning fevers, hysterics and frenzies.

At Argos a festival was held during the dog days called cynophontes, from Greek words signifying "killing dogs," when it was the custom to kill every canine creature that was met with.

Canadian Fire Insurance Pays.

In 1909 the fire insurance companies in Canada received $17,058,843 in premiums and suffered losses amounting to $8,585,354, a gross profit of nearly 50 per cent. The amount at risk in 1909 was $1,863,459,522, an increase of $162,751,259 over 1908.

DECLARE FOR INSURGENCY

California Republicans Nominate Johnson For Governor

OPPONENT OF STATE MACHINE

Anderson, "Railroad Candidate" and Choice of Stand-Patters, Hopelessly Distanced In Three-Cornered Fight—Teddy, Jr., Expresses Pleasure at Result of Primaries—Bell Will Make the Fight For Democrats

San Francisco, Aug. 18.—That California is insurgent in its Republican politics was proven beyond question when Hiram Johnson, leading exponent of anti-machine doctrines, swept the field in the direct primaries, winning his party's nomination for governor by a plurality that will border on 50,000 when all returns are in.

Just how great was the extent of the disaster to the stalwarts cannot be known until outlying districts have been heard from, but every indication points to a clean-cut declaration by the party for insurgency.

It is asserted that Johnson carried with him to victory two insurgent congressmen, William Kent in the Second district and W. D. Stevens in the Seventh. The most nearly complete returns obtainable indicate that those men have been successful, although the contest is a close one in each district.

For United State senator to succeed Frank P. Flint, an advisory vote was recorded, and while the returns are far from complete, John D. Works, running with the same backing as that accorded Johnson, seems to have triumphed. The other state offices will also be filled by men of insurgent tendencies if completed counts follow out the lines of the first returns.

The Democrats entered the primaries with perfect harmony as to their nominees and Theodore Bell will make the fight against Johnson for election. Only one hint of discord marred the Democratic slate, E. P. Troy and Walter MacArthur striving for the nomination in the Fourth congressional district.

In the Republican gubernatorial fight, around which the whole contest centered, Johnson had an easy victory, his closest rival being Charles F. Curry, running on the strength of his own political machine. Allen Anderson, the "railroad candidate" and machine man, was hopelessly distanced, not securing a single county.

The question now before the voters of the state is the election itself. Democratic leaders are declaring supreme confidence in Bell's ability to defeat Johnson, basing their predictions on the splits in the Republican ranks. Bell and Johnson have made similar declarations of principles and the battle will be one of personality largely, if the Republicans are able to harmonize before election day.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., watched the returns come in at the Johnson headquarters. He was pleased with the result, for Johnson stands for the repudiation of Secretary Ballinger and the extension in general of the "Roosevelt policies." Young Roosevelt styled Johnson's apparent success a triumph of decency in California.

SHERMAN SEES TAFT

Vice President Won't Give Up Temporary Chairmanship of Convention

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 18.—For nearly three hours President Taft and Vice President Sherman talked over the defeat of Theodore Roosevelt at the hands of the New York state Republican committee and the selection of Sherman over Roosevelt as temporary chairman of the Saratoga convention.

Mr. Sherman said he had no intention of withdrawing in favor of Roosevelt and he treated lightly the stories that there might be a fight to repudiate the action of the state committee in the convention.

The vice president also talked with the president regarding the congressional campaign. He wants the fight to be waged along the old lines.

At Sherman's solicitation the president agreed to point the way in the campaign by writing a letter which is to be made a part of the campaign text book of the Republican congressional committee.

While the fight apparently is to be directed along the lines of the past, it can be stated authoritatively that the feature of the party reorganization plans calling for the retirement of Speaker Cannon will be strictly adhered to.

Made Speechless by a Blow

New York, Aug. 18.—Michael Cennaro, a bootblack, aged 16, struck on the head recently in a fight with another youngster, left the Presbyterian hospital last evening apparently sound physically, but as speechless as the Sphinx.

Stenographer a Suicide

Boston, Aug. 18.—Carrie Devlin, a stenographer, until recently employed by a mercantile house in the market district, committed suicide by taking illuminating gas in her lodgings at a South End apartment hotel last evening.

Tales of Cities.

New York real estate has more than doubled in value since the formation of the greater city, according to the assessors' figures.

The city of Galveston is spending $1,500,000 on a protected roadway, a concrete arch bridge and a lift drawbridge to connect it with the Texas mainland.

Boston may well pride itself on being the world's leading shoe and leather mart. While comparatively small quantities of either leather or shoes are manufactured in Boston itself, it is the great buying, selling, distributing and financial center of the industry and has been such for many years.

Healthograms.

Dry dusting moves dust; it doesn't remove it.

Closed windows are open avenues to consumption.

Long hours of labor mean short hours of life.

So called chest protectors are targets for colds and coughs.

Spitting in public places sows disease and creates a harvest for the "grim reaper."

Overwork and fatigue stunt growth, invite disease; cause individual and social degeneration.

The more you expand your chest the less you will contract colds.—Bulletin of Chicago Health Department.

Thackeray's Satire.

Thackeray created quite erroneous impressions of himself by often indulging in irony in the presence of people who were incapable of understanding it. One curious instance which he gave was this: Thackeray had been dining at the Garrick and was talking in the smoking room after dinner with various club acquaintances. One of them happening to have left his cigar case at home, Thackeray, though disliking the man, who was a notorious tuft hunter, good naturedly offered him one of his cigars. The man accepted the cigar, but, not finding it to his liking, had the bad taste to say to Thackeray, "I say, Thackeray, you won't mind my saying I don't think much of this cigar?" Thackeray, no doubt irritated at the man's ungraciousness and bearing in mind his tuft hunting predilections, quietly responded, "You ought to, my good fellow, for it was given me by a lord." Instead, however, of detecting the irony, the dolt immediately attributed the remark to snobbishness on Thackeray's part and to the end of his days went about declaring that "Thackeray had boasted that he had been given a cigar by a lord."

Maternal Instinct.

"Children that yell like that ought either to be gagged or kept at home," remarked the irascible gentleman with the white beard to the bus conductor.

"And faces like the one wot you're scarin' people with," chipped in the mother of the noisy infant, "oughter be made futo door knockers or sent ter the chamber o' 'orrors."

The gentleman with the patriarchal face fungus took a brick red complexion. "I know it's awkward at times"—he commenced.

"It's more'n awkward: it's nothin' short o' 'orrible," snapped the lady, as she once more glanced at the sorry elderly man's set of features.

When the rest of the passengers tittered audibly the old gentleman came to the conclusion that it behooved him to speak to the point.

"I mean the child"—he tried once more.

"And you didn't mean it no good," returned the lady, "else you wouldn't a looked at it."—London Ideas.

The Expense of a Wife.

A wife is a decided addition to the demands upon one's purse. In that sense, however sensible and managing she may be, she is expensive. But everything worth having has its price of one sort or another, and there are some things which cost much without which life is hardly worth living.

Said Thiers: "Most men contemplate making some self denial when they marry. They think they will give up such and such expensive pleasures. Later on, when they discover that they cannot do so, and at the same time they lack the means to indulge, they complain that it is the extravagance of their wives which causes the inconvenience."

Which wise saying is applicable to men in other countries besides that of France.—New York American.

The Reason.

McWigger dotes on Arabella's hair.
He says its bronze effect is really rare
And that its fineness is beyond compare.
Now, why should Arabella's tresses stir
The man? She's naught to him. Well, I infer
It's all because he sold the hair to her.

His Prospects.

"What's he a-doin' of now?"
"Nuthin' 'tall.'
"Any prospects?"
"Well, ef he doesn't strike anything soon he may decide to run for coroner or congress."—Atlanta Constitution.

Lisbon and Fish.

It is estimated that every inhabitant of Lisbon eats half a pound of fish daily. The city has its fishing fleet of forty-six vessels, some of which go as far as the coast of Morocco, sixty miles away.

Cautious.

"Whut's a' yer hurry, Sandy? It's no 10 o'clock yet."
"Well, ye see, Ah've changed ma lodgin's, an Ah'm no vera weel acquaint' wi' th' new staircase."—London Bystander.

Jungle Housekeeping.

The negro housewife in the West Indian jungle finds housekeeping very easy. Fruit and vegetables grow wild all about the hut and the river abounds with fish. On wash day all she has to do is to pick a few of the berries of the soap berry tree, take her clothes to the river and use the berries as she would use ordinary soap. Even her cooking pots grow on the trees, the calabash cut in halves being used for this purpose. Calabashes are used also for bowls, basins and jugs for carrying water from the river, while the small ones make excellent cups. In the afternoon, when she is ready for her cup of tea, the negress picks half a dozen leaves from the lime bush growing at her door, boils them, squeezes the juice from a sugar cane for sweetening and the cocoanut supplies the milk. Thus she has a delicious cup of tea without depending on the grocer for it. She makes the mats for her floor out of the dried leaves of the banana, plaited and sewed together as the old country people in this country make their rag mats.

An Experience at Hull House.

Even death itself sometimes fails to bring the dignity and serenity which one would fain associate with old age. I recall the dying hour of one old Scotchwoman whose long struggle to "keep respectable" had so embittered her that her last words were gibes for those who were trying to minister to her. "So you came in yourself this morning, did you? You only sent things yesterday. I guess you knew when the doctor was coming. Don't try to warm my feet with anything but that old jacket that I've got there; it belonged to my boy who was drowned at sea nigh thirty years ago, but it's warmer yet with human feelings than any of your confounded charity hot water bottles." Suddenly the harsh gasping voice was stilled in death, and I awaited the doctor's coming, shaken and horrified.—Jane Addams in American Magazine.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Quincy Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Quincy citizen says:

James P. Daugherty, Hammond Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am glad to let other sufferers know what they have done for me. I was bothered a great deal by back ache and had but little strength or energy to do my day's work. I took many so-called kidney cures, but did not succeed in finding relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at the Cox Drug Store. I was surprised and gratified at the prompt way in which they relieved me. My back was soon strong and free from pain and I felt better generally. I would go to considerable trouble to induce anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills, as I have so much confidence in them."

BRIEFS

Some find a coal fire comfortable these days.

Mrs. John H. Stanley and son of New York are visiting her mother Mrs. Winifred Gill of Liberty street.

The late Henry E. Hardwick is reported to have had a paid-up life insurance policy of $90,000 at the time of his death.

James W. Sweeney, P. E. R., of Quincy lodge of Elks, is on the committee of arrangements for the State outing of the order at Nantasket, Wednesday, Aug. 31.

Among those in attendance at the Plymouth County Republican outing at Nantasket on Tuesday were County Commissioner John F. Merrill and Representative William R. Thomas of Quincy.

A young man whose name was not learned, was quite seriously hurt last night when a rope in one of the awnings at the "flying horses" located near the Quincy Adams depot, broke, and flung him to the ground.

A marriage license has been issued to Wallace C. Bennett, a traveling salesman of Wollaston, and Miss Lois E. Williams, daughter of Frederick E. Williams of St. James street, Newton. Miss Williams is a teacher and recently resided on Washington street Quincy.

State Lines.

The longest way across the state of Texas equals the distance from Chicago to the gulf of Mexico or to the Atlantic ocean. Texas is less than half as large as Alaska.

Ostrich farming, about 5,000 birds, has become a profitable industry in Arizona, particularly adjacent to the city of Phoenix, the capital to be of the state till at least 1925.

New Mexico will be the fourth state of the Union in area, larger than any other except Texas, California and Montana. Its area of 122,580 square miles makes it more than double the size of Illinois, which has an area of 56,650 square miles.

Her Performance.

"I'd sing a tenor aria, of course. Do you suppose I have been witnessing romic opera all these years for nothing?"—Kansas City Journal.

—The town hall in Whitman has been engaged for April 19, when all four degrees of Odd Fellowship will be worked by lodges of Brockton, Whitman and East Bridgewater. The initiatory and the first degrees will be exemplified in the afternoon, followed by a banquet at 6, and the second and third degrees will take place in the evening. Degree work will begin in September.

HARPOON WINS TODAY

Margin Not As Close As It Was Yesterday

In the second of the Spanish-American races today the Harpoon won. The order was just the same as in the race of Wednesday—Harpoon, Beaver, Cima, Chonta, Papoose and Mosquito. The margin was not as close.

WEDNESDAY'S RACE.

The opening race in the Spanish-American series for sonder boats was sailed in ten-knot northeaster. It was a close finish by the three American boats, the official elapsed time being:

Harpoon	2	03	34
Beaver	2	03	46
Cima	2	03	48
Chonta	2	11	59
Papoose	2	16	27
Mosquito II	2	21	54

At Mr. Adams' own suggestion the Harpoon was disqualified for fouling a buoy, and won no points.

TO KEEP FREE OF FLIES.

"Kill the first fly." Considering that one female fly can bring into being several millions of the pest in one summer, it would seem a good job to kill that first one.

If the first and its immediate followers are let live and the house becomes overrun, there are several suggestions for ridding the rooms of them. One course, taken from the south where mosquitoes are a public menace, is to burn pyrethrum powder in a room. This benumbs the flies and they fall to the floor and can be swept out. The trouble with this is that pyrethrum powder is not sold at many drug stores in the north.

Fro mthe American Civic Association at Washington comes this hint: Drop twenty drops of carbolic acid on a hot iron; the vapor kills the flies. Sticky flp paper has both good and bad qualities. It does trap some flies. But those that get their feet coated with the adhesive matter are likely to return to their filth heaps prepared to carry back to the house added quantities of disease-bearing matter sticking to their feet. Fly traps do their part but Dr. C. St. Clair Drake of the Chicago health department says the insects are cautious.

"The flies soon learn to be wary of traps," Dr. Drake says. "Those that have had any experience with them cannot be caught, and shortly a tribe of flies too shrewd to be trapped might be evolved. The insects also avoid the sticky fly paper after one experience. They are crafty little fellows and the instinct of life is as strong as in many superior beings."

Various poisons are suggested, the best of which, the doctors say, is formalin in water. Put a spoonful of the chemical into half a cup of water and leave it exposed in the room and the flies will do the rest.

In passing it is worthy of note that this insect, with its love for odors that offend the nostrils of man, has a srong aversion for scents which the human likes. This has given a hint for still another prevention, of minor worth. Aromatic plants in rooms and at windows act as repulsives. Such plants, then have a double value in sick rooms; they are pleasing to the sufferer and discourage the fly that, with evil purpose, looks through the open window.—From Technical World Magazine.

Saving His Feelings.

The Office Boy (to persistent lady artist who calls six times a week)—The editor's still engaged. The Lady Artist—Tell him it doesn't matter. I don't want to marry him. The Office Boy—I 'aven't the 'art to tell 'im that, miss. He's 'ad several disappointments today. Try and look in again next year.—London Sketch.

Just the Same Hours.

"When a man's engaged to a girl," said Miss Singleton, "his idea of 'good hours' is to stay from 8 o'clock until any time after midnight."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Bridey, "and even after marriage the hours are the same. The only difference is that in one case they are hours 'with her' and in the other 'away from her.'"—Philadelphia Press.

SPORTING CHAT.

There is now a controversy between Managers Dickie and Burton as to an agreement claimed by Manager Burton to have been made previous to last Saturday's game. Burton says that a three-game series was arranged and Dickie denies it. It doesn't seem as though Manager Burton's proposition can be put through as the Adams won and may now play whom they please. However, if they are beaten, the Ramblers may get a game from the victors. Again, the refusal to play a second and possibly third game may indicate lack of confidence on the part of the Adams. There are numerous ways of figuring out just what should be done, but it seems that if the Adams and Ramblers play a three game series a precedence will be established, and the city championship would scarcly be decided before next spring.

Friday afternoon, says the Brockton Enterprise, the bowling sharps of the Walkover team from the Crescent alleys will take their annual pligrimage to Houghs Neck, where they will meet the candle pin shooters from the shore town. The boys are practicing regularly and from present indications expect to cop the three games and total, although the Neck men are also getting in some preliminary licks. The regular Walkover team will be used with the exception of O'Boy, who cannot be present. Adams of the Crescents will take his place, the other four men being Tebo, Stewart, Starr and Dame. Frank G. Ferris will accompany the team and act as official guide and score keeper. Later in the month the Houghs Neck team will come to this city for a return match, ducks being selected as the victims for that exhibition. At the close of the bowling match Friday the local men will be entertained at dinner b ythe Houghs Neck team and a moonlight sail about the harbor will probably be an evening feature.

It is rumored, on what authority is not known, that Ralph Ford will pitch for Quincy on Saturday. Ford is certainly a good man. He curves and has control, and with a catcher who will work with him has every chance of doing well. It is known that Murray refused to cooperate with him last Saturday, and Lefty had to rely on his own judgment in working batters he did not know. With encouragement and team work Ralph will do well, alright, but it is a big thing for an 18-year-old to undertake pitching against ex-pros. and crack semi-pros. with greater experience than he can have for three or four years yet.

The basketball league that was proposed for Quincy and nearby cities is to be strictly professional, so that eliminates both the Y. M. C. A. boys and St. Mary's as eligibles.

• • •

The Brockton Enterprise says: Brockton fans may have an opportunity of sizing up the brand of baseball put up in the Old Colony league before the season closes. The game has been practically a losing venture in the towns interested this season, Quincy and Weymouth being the only places where really respectable crowds have been collected, and even those places, with winning teams at that, have not done as well as expected. Randolph with a team always fighting for the lead has been forced to transfer games, and rake up subscriptions to keep the team together. Stoughton and Rockland, at one time two of the best ball towns in the State, have gone back, and are not drawing enough money to pay for tickets. Those towns are not used to losing teams, and as yet they have been unable to strike a winning combination this season. The Lincoln team with a barrel of money behind it does not have to depend on the patronage to pay expenses.

Manager D. M. O'Brien of the Rockland team was seen by William Reardon acting for Manager Flanagan of the Brocktons, and the subject was broached of putting on the Rockland-Quincy game Saturday here as part of a double bill, with Weymouth and Randolph or Lincoln and Stoughton as the other half. As Manager O'Brien had just completed arrangements for transferring his game to Quincy for next Saturday he was not in a position to make another change.

He said he was perfectly agreeable to coming to Brockton a week from Saturday, when his team is scheduled to play Randolph at Randolph. The other teams could be selected later. It is quite probable that arrangements will be made for the games next week, and it is not impossibl to suppose that there will be a double bill at the local grounds on Saturday of this week.

Last year Brockton got a taste of Old Colony League ball in one game, and it tasted good. It is figured that a double header on a Saturay here will draw a crowd large enough to more than pay the teams for making the change, and at the same time leave a little bonus in the Brockton treasury.

Manager O'Brien of the Rocklands has a number of new players for the game next Saturday and may give Quincy a surprise.

The Boston Globe has a cut of several stars of the Makaria team and a story about them. Stan Bates and Tabor are hailed as the equal of any in greater Boston. Eggleton is given credit for his fine showing as captain. The article says of Artis, "It would be difficult to find a catcher who is young Artis' equal. He has shown marked ability since the opening of the season. He is a fine backstop and can throw to bases in deadly fashion." The article also gives McKenzie a boost as one of the fast infielders about Boston who plays like an old timer. Some class to that boost all right—the Globe is a great sporting sheet.

ENGLISH MAKE YOU MAD.

W. Pett Ridge, who won his public in this country several years ago when the Harpers published his novel of a young London girl of the slums entitled, "By Order of the Magistrate," is counted in London, where his public is very wide, a most excellent raconteur. One of his stories is of an infuriated musician who rushed up to a policeman and demanded vengeance on a small urchin who he protested, had insulted him:

"I was coming along the road in a hurry just now," he explained, wrathfully, "when the young scoundrel stopped me and asked me the time. I said, 'It is ten to three,' and he said, 'At three o'clock get your hair cut.'"

The policeman glanced slowly at a neighboring clock.

"Well," he replied, stolidly, "you're all right, sir—you have still got a good eight minutes."

THE SLEEPER WAKES.

"John!" she exclaimed, jabbing her elbow into his ribs at 2.17 A. M., "did you lock the kitchen door?"

And John, who is inner guard and was just then dreaming over last evening's lodge meeting, sprang up in bed, made the proper sign and responded, "Worthy Ruler, our portals are guarded!"

Oh, he hit the title right, even if he was asleep!"—United Presbyterian.

Empty Titles.

"You all know of the colonel," he said, "who got his title by inheritance, having married Colonel Brown's widow? But I once met a general who got his title neither by inheritance, nor by service, nor by anything you could meution.

"'General,' I said to him, 'how do you come by this title of yours, anyway?'

"'Why, sir,' said he, 'I passed my youth in the flour trade and for twenty-seven years was a general miller.'

"I know another titled man, Judge Greene.

"'Are you, sir,' I once asked him, 'a United States judge or a circuit court judge?'

"'I ain't neither,' he replied. 'I'm a judge of hoss racin'.'"

By TOMMY CLARK.

For the last year or two fans and critics have been handing bouquets to Fred Clarke of the Pirates, Frank Chance of the Cubs, Hughey Jennings of the Tigers and Connie Mack of the Athletics for their great managerial ability and their wonderful success in keeping their teams in the thickest of the pennant fights year after year. While all four are entitled to all the honors that have been bestowed on them, still there is one other baseball pilot who is entitled to be placed in the game's hall of fame, and he is Johnny McGraw of the New York Nationals.

For the last few years McGraw has been at the helm of a team that is not equal in strength in any department to the Cubs or Pirates, yet he has managed to keep the Giants in the thickest of the pennant fights. This year is no exception. There are no medals on the team that McGraw is trying to pilot to the top of the race this season, but he is right on the heels of the Cubs and Pirates.

Now look over the team carefully and you will wonder how he has been able to keep it so high up in the race. Take the backstopping department, for instance. It does not compare with the Pirates' or Cubs' in any way. Schlei or Myers does not class with Kling, Archer or Gibson. Schlei is too old and Myers too erratic. Point out one great star in the infield. Merkle on first is not a crackerjack. Doyle on second makes more costly errors than any other second stationer. Bridwell is only a fair shortstop. Devlin at third is about the best of the lot, and he is on the toboggan.

After looking over the infield, gaze on the outer garden. Can you find a Cobb in it? I guess not. McGraw has the weakest left fielder in the National league in "Josh" Devore. In center he has Snodgrass, formerly a catcher. The latter is doing fairly well, but is far from being a star. In right Murray plays a good game, but does not class with any of the cracks.

Take McGraw's pitching staff. Leaving out Christy Mathewson, where are his stars? Rube Marquard, the $11,000 beauty, is a counterfeit. Ames lacks control; so does Crandall, and Drucke needs more experience. Wiltse is good, but owing to his frail build he is at his best when worked only every five days. Of course there's Bugs Raymond, who is still on the pay roll, but he is useless. In reality McGraw has only two good pitchers, Mathewson and Wiltse.

Give him another crack twirler and a gingery catcher or let him have a Johnny Evers on his infield or a Ty Cobb in the out to inject life into his team and I'll bet he will capture the pennant from the Cubs or Pirates. It is McGraw's brains and the ginger he has injected into his players that have offset the handicap he is working under.

McGraw directs his players on every play simply because many of them are not the brainiest ball tossers on the diamond and cannot be depended on to carry plays through of their own volition.

An Arab Legend.

"There is none so poor but there is one poorer."

A poor Arab spent his last bara on a handful of dates and went up on a high cliff to eat them and die. As he threw the stones over a lean hand shot out below and caught them.

"Ho!" said he. "Why do you catch my date stones?"

"Because, O brother," answered a weak voice, "I have not eaten these three days, and Allah has sent these stones to save my life."

"Praise be to Allah," answered the first man, "for he has saved me also, for here is one poorer than I."

And both men went into the city.

First Test of the Air Pump.

The first public test of the air pump was in 1654 by its inventor, Otto von Guericke, in the presence of Emperor Ferdinand of Germany. Guericke applied the carefully ground edges of metallic hemispheres, two feet in diameter, to each other. After exhausting the air by his apparatus he attached fifteen horses to each hemisphere. In vain did they attempt to separate them because of the enormous pressure of the atmosphere. The experiment was a great success.

On the Line.

"Humph! So is his wife's."

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

Vol. 24 No. 193 | QUINCY, MASS., FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 19, 1910 | PRICE TWO CENTS

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF "QUINCY DISASTER"

Express Train Derailed; 12 Instantly Killed And as Many More Mortally Injured

Dimmock Street Bridge the Scene On August 19, 1890

Today is the 20th aniversary of the Quincy disaster on the railroad, when 12 were instantly killed, and 8 others died within 24 hours. Two more died the next day, and two or three other later about 25 in all. The Old Colony railroad was then running "left-handed," and scene of the accident was just north of the Dimmock street bridge in the rear of Adams Academy, at 1 P. M. The Daily Ledger issued three extra editions that afternoon, but we quote from the Ledger of Aug. 20, 1890:

WOODS HOLE LIMITED.

The fatal train was known as the "limited" leaving Woods Hole at 10.45 A. M., and due in Boston at 1.10 P. M. It does not stop after leaving Brockton. It was seven minutes late when it passed through Quincy, and going from thirty to forty miles an hour. The train was in charge of Conudctor Fred Steadman, who had a helper to collect tickets. The Pullman car, the Puritan, was conducted by B. F. Benson, and in addition there were three brakemen. Engineer Babcock was at the throttle, while James Ryan was making his last trip as a fireman. The train consisted of a baggage car, smoker, Pullman parlor car and six passenger coaches. There were 391 passengers of whom about 100 boarded the train at Brockton. The other 200 passengers were composed largely of summer tourists returning from their annual vacation season at the shore. Many of them were from points in the far South and West.

THE DAILY LEDGER STORY.

The calamity of yesterday on the Old Colony Railroad in this city exceeds in magnitude the awful Wollaston disaster of October 8, 1878, at least in the number killed. At Wollaston but 16 were killed, and 100 or more were injured. At noon today twenty had died from yesterday's accident, and the number of injured is about fifty.

The accident occurred just about one o'clock and the alarm from Box 26 was given at 1.03. The news spread like wildfire. Fortunately the services of the fire department were not needed to extinguish fire, but the members of Host 1 and Hook and Ladder 1 did valiant work in rescuing those unfortunates buried in the wreck.

Most of the Quincy doctors were at the scene in a very few moments, and with the assistance of heroic women, temporarily cared for the wounded and made them as comfortable as possible. The greatest injury was from escaping steam and smoke from the engine, which instantly filled the cars, particularly No. 4, where the fatalities occured. As fast as possible the injured were taken to the Quincy City Hospital, but several were cared for at private houses in the neighborhood. It was very fortunate that the city had such a well equipped hospital, and such willing physicians and workers. Mr. William B. Rice, the donor, who is now in Europe, will hear the news, and feel happy that he gave the hospital to the city.

TWELVE BODIES.

It was after 3 o'clock before all the dead were removed from the wreck. They were all in a heap wedged in between the car and the locomotive beneath. Twelve bodies were taken out and carried immediately to Undertaker Hall's and Undertaker Brown's.

The Quincy police roped off the wreck and with difficulty kept the large crowd back. Thousands visited the scene and staid through the afternoon, and some until nearly midnight.

General Manager Kendrick, Division Superintendant French, and a corps of Boston surgeons arrived before two on a special train. The Quincy doctors had done their work promptly, and there was little need of the surgeons. Boston ambulances arrived over the road in an incredibale short time, the horses all of a lather. They assisted in taking the injured to the Hospital.

The wrecking trains arrived about 2 o'clock and as soon as the dead were removed set about systematically to clear the wreck. A construction gang also dug away the east banking and buit tracks around the ruins. This morning all but one car, the one so badly smashed, and the engine had been put upon the track and removed and trains were run nearly on time.

SAD NIGHT FOR HOSPITAL.

Eight died at the hospital during the night, and as soon as they passed away their bodies were sent to the undertakers, where they were prepared for burial.

The total number of deaths is now twenty.

The people of this city responded in their usual manner in cases of need and five or ten minutes after the acident occurred the streets were crowded with teams loaded with linen and cotton to bind up the wounded and liniments and salves to ease their sufferings. All the people whose places adjoined the track kept open house.

Too much cannot be said for the way in which the firemen worked. They seemed to be in every place, and the different fire wagons were placed at the disposal of the doctors.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bailey are getting along very nicely.

THE DEAD.

In addition to the twelve bodies taken from the ruins yesterly afternoon eight died at the Quincy City Hospital during the night making the total dead twenty. All have been identified and below is the list:

Mrs. Mary E. Fenley, Louisville, Ky., aged 70.

Mrs. Oscar Fenley of Louisville, Ky.

Miss Sue Fenley of Crescent Hill, Jefferson county, Ky., aged about 30.

Alice Fenley, infant.

Catherine Fenley, aged 5.

Mrs. Abbie Abbott, Louisville, Ky.

Mr. Charles M. Copp of Cleveland, O.

Mrs. A. C. Wells, Hartford, Conn., aged 65.

Mrs. Allen and daughter Bessie of Philadelphia.

Miss Eva Ballard of Ashville, N. C.

Mr. Edward P. Johnson of Montpelier, Vt.

Mrs. Edward P. Johnson of Montpelier, Vt.

Albert E. C. Johnson of Montpelier, Vt.

Mr. Lyman Merrill of Rumney, N. H., 50 years.

Mrs. Benj. F. Parker of Wellesley Hills, aged 48 years.

Benj. F. Parker, Jr., of Wellesley Hills, aged 8 years.

THE CAUSE.

I tseems almost certain that the cause of the terrible wreck was a track jack an instrument used by track levellers who were at work on the spot. The "jack" is about two feet high and the outside casting is half an inch thick. The inside is hollow, and down through the centre runs a strong piece of wrought or

MORE PRIZES FOR CHILDREN

Honorable Mention and Ribbons for Special Exhibits

The committee of Children's Gardens in charge of the exhibition at City Hall on Wednesday giv honorable mention and additional ribbons to some exhibits which showed effort and interest equal to those selected by the judges.

A blue ribbon was given to Annunciata Benedetti for an Italian cebbage; to Muriel Dresser for kohlrahbi (white); and to Lorna Weston for kohl-rahbi (purple); to Earl Weston for a peanut plant in blossom, and to Gertrude McGrann for large blossoms of althea or rose of sharon.

A blue ribbon was also awarded to Ethel Beal for fine zinnias, Edith Cox for double poppies brought in after the judges had decided their awards and to Naomi Cousian for a fine potato.

Red ribbons were given to Hilda Ekstrand for collection of garden flowers and W. Hjalmar Lofgren for nasturtiums.

Yellow ribbons to John Pompeo and to Marie Pompeo for fine bouquets; to Walter Saladine, for collection of flowers; to Rose Purpura and Ruth Taylor for zinnias, to Mabel Jilbert and Annie McTear for calendulas; Louis Osberg and Esther Erickson for marigolds; Hester Harkins and Edith Redd for bachelor's buttons; Mauritz Johnson and Ruth Parker for beans; George McDonald for carrots; William Hill for a two pound beet; Herbert Atkins for an equally large turnip; and to Stanley Smith for 8 feet or 96 1-2 inch corn stalks.

Honorable mention is made of the bouquets of Cornelius Condella and Mary Chella, and of the effort of all children who have really tried by careful planting, faithful weeding, steady watering, wise transplanting and general interest in gardening, made possible so fine an exhibition.

Mr. William Patterson the florist, who is qualified to judge, calls it a better display than last year and says that he sees as fine flowers and vegetables here, grown by the children, as can be seen anywhere. Mr. Patterson not only gave his time as judge, but contributed $2 toward prizes and brought palms, ferns and ardisie, adding to the decoration of the Council chamber.

Itmeans added power to the children of our city who can achieve such results by such wholesome occupation as gardening, and adds to the civic betterment of our city.

W. Y. C. MOONLIGHT SAIL.

A good sailing breeze and a bright moon supplied ideal weather conditions for the moonlight sail of the Wollaston Yacht club Thursday evening, and as a result many sail and power boats filled with members and guests cruised about Quincy bay for nearly two hours. It was a little after 8 o'clock when the fleet got under way, headed by Commodore Grosscup in the flagship Corneta followed by the yacht Leader with Vice Commodore Taylor at the helm. The fleet of sail and power boats followed the two leaders. An orchestra gave a concert at the club house during the sail and those who remained ashore enjoyed dancing. Upon the return from the sail there was dancing until 11.30, in charge of William Jones and Ernest Woodman.

—The vacation school conducted by the educational committee of the Brockton Woman's club closed this week.

NEW CONTRACT AT SHIPYARD

A Large Dredger to Cost Nearly Half a Million

The Fore River Ship Building Co. have been awarded the contract to build a large steam dredger for the War department. The dredger is the first of its type to be built in this country, and will when completed, probably be stationed on the Mississippi river. The contract's price was $450,000.

INQUEST OVER INFANT CHILD

Question Over the Filling of a Prescription

The continued inquest on the death of Ruth, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Kelley of Norfolk Downs was held before Judge Avery this morning. The child died May 16 last as the result of taking sugar of milk with which boracic acid had been mixed.

At that time it was stated that the attending physician ordered sugar of milk given the child. Another child was sent to the drug store for the preparation, and it is alleged she received a preparation containing boracic acid and sugar of milk in about equal quantities. This was given the child and death resulted.

The first inquest was called for June 10. At that time, however, the child's mother was in the hospital, and the inquest was continued until this morning. Several witnesses were heard, including the druggist, the attending physician and Medical Examiner Jones. No finding on the inquest was given out, but the witnesses were held for the grand jury and the inquest continued for one week.

REUNION OF VETERANS.

Ex-Mayor Charles H. Porter was the speaker on Thursday at the forty-forth annual reunion of the 39th Regiment Association. The reunion was held at Revere, and the date was the anniversary of the battle of Weldon railroad, the most important engagement in which the regiment participated during the Civil war. At the election of officers held during the business session Col. Porter was elected secretary.

Officer Cahill ,who is at Springfield learning to operate the new police automobile patrol wagon, is spending his spare time watching out for Restelli. Up to the present time he has spotted two suspects whom he ran down, but later released on finding they were not the man wanted.

HONESTY REWARDED

Two Cases Where Lost Money Was Returned to Owner

C. H. Kristen of 13 Station street is happy today, for he is rejoicing that his pocketbook containing $295 in money, in addition to some checks, fell into honest hands, while J. B. McAdams of Avon is $25 better off and feels happy that he was able to restore to Mr. Kristen his money and checks.

Last Tuesday Mr. Kristen sent his son to the National Mt. Wollaston bank with a pocketbook containing $295 and some checks to make a deposit. For greater security the book was wrapped in a paper bag. Somehow or other the boy dropped the package, and walked on unconscious of his loss. Many people passed the package some giving it a kick, but none stopped to investigate until Mr. Mr. McAdams came along.

Mr. McAdams, who represents the Continental Cusualty Company, picked up the package, and being in a hurry put it in his pocket, and it was not until he arrived at his home that he learned he had made a valuable find. The bank book gave the owners name, and Wednesday Mr. McAdams jounrneyed to Quincy, and after some difficulty located Mr. Kristen. He tried to talk insurance with him, but Mr. Kristen's mind appeared to be elsewhere. The conversation was led to his loss. Mr. Kristen described the contents and as he finished Mr. McAdams handed over the missing pocketbook with its contents intact. Mr. Kristen was overjoyed at his good fortune and rewarded Mr. Mc Adams with $25. He may insure later.

On the same Tuesday Mrs. C. H. Penniman and her daughter Marjorie came from Marblehead by train and Miss Marjorie found a lady's purse containing $12 in money. There was nothing to indicate the owner, but it was thought to belong to a lady who had left the train at Chelsea. The find was advertised in a Boston paper Thursday morning, and later in the day a lady called for the purse. She described the purse and its contents accurately and it was handed over. The lady was very much pleased to find her purse and liberally rewarded the finder . Thus far this week the honesty of two people have made four people happy, yes more than four.

FLAG RAISING ON PENNS HILL

Jolly Sixteen Erect Flag Pole and Have Celebration

The "Jolly Sixteen" were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Dexheimer on Wednesday afternoon to a flag raising. The pole, of which Mr. Dexheimer is justly proud, stands 42 feet above the ground. It was erected by the men of the jolly club and they consider they accomplished a very good job, as none of them had had any experience in setting such a large pole. It is located upon one of the highest and prettiest spots on Penns hill. The flag itself is 15 by 9 feet.

The program was an interesting one, including: Song by the ladies, Mrs. Merritt, leader, dedication of the pole, F. Stoddard; raising of flag to pole and unfurling, Mrs. Dexheimer; song by the men, W. E. Howe, chorister; address on flag, G. W. Gragg. Mr. Gragg also read an original poem on the flag. Salute to flag by members of the club; petite lunch and singing of "America" by club. In the evening cards were enjoyed until a late hour.

—Swedish people of Brockton are to have the pleasure this evening of hearing Rev. P. P. Waldenstrom of Sweden preach in the Swedish Congregational church. He represents the Swedish government in this country as delegate to the missionary meeting in Chicago. He was 20 years a member of the Swedish Parliament and is a noted authority and translator of old languages.

CAPTAIN HARDING

Commander of Large Ships Passes Away

Capt. William F. Harding a very successful mariner, died this morning at his residence at 21 Winthrop avenue, Wollaston in his 54th year, after a four months illness of heart failure.

At the early age of 22 he was drafted as commander of a vessel, and has been in command of such ships as the schooners Cora F. Cressey and M. D. Cressey, and the five master Grace Martin, all of which were built for him at Bath, Maine, and in which he was part owner.

He was born at Chatham on Cape Cod, and leaves a widow and daughter, also two brothers and two sisters. Funeral services will be held on Sunday at 2 P. M. from his late residence, and the interment will be at Brewster.

RESTELLI SUSPECT.

The Abington police ran down a man Thursday who was thought to to have been Restelli, the Quincy murderer.

After being taken to police station it was found he was not the man wanted at Quincy, but he was wanted on an old warrant by the local police.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

August 19 is one of the eventful dates in the history of Quincy, and twenty-years ago was a more exciting day than the recent "shooting up" in the quarry section by Restelli. The republication of the Quincy railroad disaster of 1890, in the Daily Ledger today, will recall some scenes almost forgotten, but long to be remembered by those who witnessed the work of rescuing the dead and wounded, and by those who ministered for days and weeks to some of the injured who were taken into our homes and our new City Hospital.

Boston papers are printing routes to the aviation field in Atlantic, the north ward of Quincy. They give two routes for automobiles, three by trolley cars and one by train to the Atlantic station. People generally are surprised at the extent of the city of Quincy, it being over five miles from the new Harvard Aviation field to the Fore River shipyard, over seven miles from the Aviation field to Houghs Neck by street, and about the same distance by air line from the Aviation field to Tucker's hill in the Blue Hills reservation, all the points named being within the limits of the City of Quincy.

Squantum, Atlantic, Wollaston Park, Norfolk Downs and Wollaston are attractive parts of Quincy, noted as beautiful residential sections, and only fifteen minutes by train from the South station. Many doubtless when they come to the big aviation meet will make their first visit to Quincy and the sections named, and when they see beautiful Quincy bay at high tide they will want to come again and again, and bring their families, and perhaps become property owners. Several large estates are in the market have already been made for a metropolitan parkway from Columbia road at Crescent Avenue along the shore via Savin Hill, Commercial Point and Neponset to connect with the Quincy Bay parkway in Quincy already built, and soon to be extended to the Blue Hills Reservation. All these improvements are making Quincy more popular and progressive.

A SUMMER STORM.

Nancy Byrd Turner.

A shadow filters from the sky;
The wide glare cools reluctantly.
Like a far challenge to the drouth
A slow word mutters in the south;
The brown grass flickers; aspen-trees
Wake and turn, trembling, from the breeze;
Through the hot corn, burned copper-bright,
Runs a long shiver of delight;
And, stirred of hope unknown for days,
The fainting world looks up and prays.

A rain-drop on a lifted brow;
Another — and a dozen now.
Down the long roadway, dust-dry
Some scurrying whirlwinds dance and die
The thunder deepens; done with signs,
The storm comes charging through the pines;
Past fields and flowers on their knees,
Past crouchidg corn and swaying trees—
Sky-trumpeted and silver-shod,
The white battalions of God.

One hour tempestuous, and then
The summons to the hill's again.
Steadily, slowly, quietly
The rear guard of the strife goes by;
And the forgotten tumult dies
In a soft croon of melodies;
A low allegro on the leaves,
One note's accompanying from the eaves,
And, like a music heard in dreams,
The rush of little new made streams.

Far sunset breaks the storm cloud's hold
And lights the ashen West to gold;
Window and wall and slender spire
Flame for a while with answering fire.
A rainbow spans the east's dark roof—
Promise and prophecy and proof.
Drenched flowers tilt their cups and spill
Slow drops . . . . And suddenly, athrill,
A robin with a sweet refrain
Lifts glad thanksgiving for the rain.

MILTON

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morton of East Milton sailed Tuesday for their old home in Scotland, where they will visit among friends for a few weeks.

Misses Annette and Josephine Flynn have gone to Freeport, Me., for a short stay.

There is a slight reaction in East Milton after the arbitrary methods of the school board in requesting the resignation of E. D. Varney as master of the High school. Of course, the action may not be remedied but it is now diplored.

George Clemen's house which he started in June, is progressing rapidly.

The Eliot street and Randolph avenue sidewalks have been repaired with granite from the Mt. Hope quarry.

Patrolman Travers is on his vacation and Patrolman Patterson covers his beat.

Mrs. Robert S. Mitchell and son of Horton place have returned from New Hampshire.

The age at which Milton children may enter kindergarten is changed from four to five years.

Mrs. Howard Knox, who left for Gloucester, Aug. 1, has returned to her home.

Mrs. J. A. McAward, who has been visiting on Adams street, has returned to her home in Portland, Ore.

Robert J. Clark of Sheldon street has returned from a business trip to Bath, Me.

Walter D. Gordon of Caulton road has recovered from a fracture of a leg, owing to a fall from an auto.

Nathaniel T. Kidder sailed on the Ivernia recently. He will tour England for his health.

James Sweeney, the popular post master at East Milton will be in Atlantic City aviation week. It is too bad he should miss the flyers.

INSPIRED BY ENMITY, SAYS FITZGERALD

Boston's Mayor Replies to Commission's Criticism

Boston, Aug. 19.—"It was abuse and villification against Mayor Gaynor of New York, like that which the finance commission hands out to me, that poisoned the mind of the New York assailant of the mayor and caused him to shoot."

This was one of the statements made by Mayor Fitzgerald in answer to the finance commission's criticism of his six months in office.

The mayor charged that the incentive for the attack was politics and that the investigating body was inspired by enmity and spleen for the purpose of discrediting him.

Defending the appointments he had made which the commission had criticized the mayor said: "I have no apology to make for a single appointee that I have named. They may not all have been technically equipped for the positions to which they were named, but there was not a single instance where a man was not practically equipped at least."

CHOLERA IN ITALY

King and Queen May Pay a Visit to the Stricken Section

Turin, Aug. 19.—King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena are displaying great anxiety over the outbreak of cholera in the south.

The king has intimated his intention of imitating his father, who, in 1885, fearless of danger, proceeded to Naples and remained among the cholera patients, who were dying at the rate of a thousand daily.

It would be a serious thing if the king determined to proceed to the cholera district, for the queen has positively declared that she would share the risks of the king. She accompanied the king to Messina and to Avellino, when they were overthrown by earthquakes, and on those occasions she insisted upon being at the front, not sparing herself any hardship.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

Birthplace of First Governor under Constitution

Quincy has certainly been noted for its great men, the list including two Presidents of the United States, a Vice President, a Governor, the first President of the Continental Congress, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence, ambassadors, congressmen and others. The Boston Post gives the following sketch of John Hancock, who is prominent in the list:

"The first Governor of Massachusetts after the adoption of the Constitution was John Hancock. He served from 1780 to 1785. After a lapse of two years he was again chosen, and by annual reappointment was Governor until his death, which occurred Oct. 8, 1793.

John Hancock was born at Quincy on Jan. 12, 1737. His father died when he was young and he became a member of his uncle's household. At 17 he was graduated from Harvard. His uncle gave him a clerkship in his counting-room and in 1760 sent him to England.

After a short stay Mr. Hancock returned to Boston, and on the death of his uncle found himself, at the age of 27, the possessor of one of the largest estates in the province of Massachusetts.

Mr. Hancock's first public office was that of selectman for the town of Boston. In 1766 he was chosen a Representative of Boston in the General Assembly of the province. He had for his colleagues James Otis, Thomas Cushing and Samuel Adams.

Mr. Hancock became a leader in the plan to thwart the British ministry which ultimately resulted in the American Revolution. He was a member of the citizens' committee which secured the withdrawal of British troops after the Boston massacre. He delivered a public oration on an anniversary of the massacre and his fearless denunciation of the King's soldiers offended the Governor of the province. The Massachusetts Provincial Congress unanimously elected Mr. Hancock President in October, 1774.

His active opposition to the encroachments of the British ministry marked Mr. Hancock as a man to be dealt with in summary fashion. It was, in part, to arrest him and his compatriot, Samuel Adams, that the military expedition proceeded from Boston to Lexington in April, 1775. On April 18, the night before the Battle of Lexington, Mr. Hancock and Mr. Adams lodged in a farmhouse. As soldiers entered the front door the two withdrew by a rear one and made their escape.

General Gage, commander of the troops in Boston, excluded Mr. Hancock and Mr. Adams from the general pardon that he offered the rebels.

In 1775 Mr. Hancock was delegate to the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, and he was the first president of that body. He held the office until October, 1777, when he resigned.

His prominent, bold signature was affixed to the Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776. He was the first signer of the document, which as first published, went abroad to the world with only his official signature attached to it.

Although the largest property owner in Boston Mr. Hancock, as president of the Continental Congress of 1776, gave General Washington instructions to burn the town if such a move became necessary in the plan to dislodge the British.

Mr. Hancock was commissioned major-general of the Massachusetts militia in 1776 and two years later he commanded the State troops in the futile Rhode Island expedition.

He was president of the Massachusetts constitutional convention of 1780 and became Governor when the State government went into operation.

He received four electoral votes in the presidential election of 1789.

After the federal government had gone into operation, Mr. Hancock refused to respond to a summons in a suit against the State of Massachusetts before a United States court. He contended that under the federal constitution an independent State could not be brought to trial before a civil tribunal. He won his point, but the recurrence of such an event was prevented by an amendment to the United States Constitution.

Princeton and Yale colleges gave Mr. Hancock the degree of A. M. in 1769. Brown University the LL. D. in 1788 and Harvard LL. D. in 1792.

MUST SHOOT TO HIT

Orders to New Bedford Policemen After a Clash With Strikers

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 19.—This city is in the throes of one of the worst strikes it has seen in many years, which has resulted in the cessation of building operations, holding up many thousands of dollars' worth of contracts and throwing at least 2500 men out of work.

Shots were fired yesterday in the heat of the fray between the police and the 1100 strikers. They were not shots to kill, however, but simply fired in the air for the sake of intimidating the strikers.

This will not happen again, according to Chief of Police Mason, for he says that he has given instructions for his men, if they are obliged to shoot at all, to shoot for a purpose.

The trouble came as a result of the action of the strikers in interfering with men who were at work upon the various building contracts.

ANOTHER BIG CLAMBAKE

Second Delegation of 3600 Jackies Entertained by Newport People

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—Clams again furnished a substantial part of Newport's entertainment of the officers and men of the Atlantic battleship fleet, which is in port for a week's visit. On Wednesday 3600 bluejackets from the ships were feasted at one of Rhode Island's celebrated clambakes, and Thursday another detail of the same number came ashore to partake of the city's hospitality. A third detail will be dined today.

The Clambake club, one of Newport's wealthier social organizations, served a bake to 250 officers of the fleet, training station, torpedo station, naval war college and army officers from Fort Adams. Last night the officers of the fleet were guests at a dinner and dance given by Mrs. James B. Haggin.

INGERSOLL TELLS OF BANK SHORTAGE

He Alone Knew of Discrepancy In York Institution

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 19.—Breaking his silence of a week, enforced by his physical condition, which it had been feared woulld result in death, Richmond H. Ingersoll managed feebly to give a brief account of his stewardship of the affairs of the York County Savings bank, of which for fifty years he was treasurer.

His accounting was one of shortcomings, for Ingersoll admitted that there is a shortage in the bank's funds. The exact amount of this shortage he could not tell, he said, nor could he say definitely over how many years the discrepancy ran.

To President Prescott of the bank and Bank Examiner Skelton, with whom he had the interview, Ingersoll declared that the depositors' individual accounts, as represented in their pass books, had in no wise been tampered with. He asserted that he alone was aware of the discrepancy.

SECOND CLEAN SWEEP

Spaniards Outclassed by Americans In Race of Sonders

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 19.—The American sonder class boats once more outclassed their Spanish rivals Thursday, all three of the defenders of the President Taft and Governor Draper cups finishing in front of the visitors. Harpoon crossed the finish line first.

The race was sailed over a windward and leeward course of twelve miles. The Americans had the better of the contest all the way, having the advantage of the start and improving their chances as the race progressed.

The Spaniards put up a better fight than they did Wednesday, and in the first leg one of their boats, the Chonta, was in second place. After that the race was among the American boats, as was the case in the first race.

DEW AWAITS ORDERS

Crippen and Miss Leneve Remain In Quebec, Contrary to Expectations

Quebec, Aug. 19.—The jail on the Heights of Abraham still housed Dr. Crippen and Ethel Leneve last night in spite of the report that they would start for London Thursday. They had been expected to sail on either the Royal Edward or the Lake Manitoba, both of which steamers touched here, outward bound.

Inspector Dew said he was waiting from certain orders before taking the prisoners back to England, but whether these orders were to come from his superiors in Scotland Yard or the Dominion government could not be learned.

TRAVESTY ON JUSTICE

Wholesale Tampering With Veniremen In Illinois Bribery Case

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Judge Korstem, in whose court Lee O'Neil Browne is up for retrial on a charge of buying votes for Senator Lorimer, was compelled to dismiss six more veniremen. This makes 111 veniremen dismissed from the last three panels upon their own statements that they have been "approached" with reference to their possible service as jurors.

"I do not know who is tampering with the veniremen," said the court. "I do not take sides, but someone is doing corrupt work. I sincerely hope we will find out who is guilty and that they will be brought to the bar of justice. They are making a travesty of the administration of the law."

Double Drowning at Beach

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 19.—Alonzo Leundrin, 18, and Alfred LeBlanc, 25, were drowned at Nahant beach. The two played ball in the surf until the tide rose, when they swam out. It is thought that they became overheated while playing ball and took cramps when they plunged in the water.

Reforms Coming In China

Washington, Aug. 19.—Reform in the policy of the central government of China is expected by American officials to follow the wholesale changes in the personnel of the Pekin government, which have been in progress during the last few weeks.

The Right Size.

Customer—My wife told me to stop in and buy her a bathing suit. What are your prices and sizes?

Dealer—We have a very nice one here that I'm sure she will like. A fifty dollar bill will just cover it.

Customer—That is just about the size she wants. How much is it?—Judge.

SECOND WIN FOR THE IRIS

Dolly III a Good Second at Narragansett Bay

The third race in the series for the Day cup in the Interbay races at Narragansett bay on Thursday was won by the Iris of Quincy, giving her two out of the three races sailed thus far. The other race was won by the Dolley III, also a Quincy boat.

Thursday's race for this class was sailed over an 18-mile course in a good southeast sailing breeze. The Iris took the lead at the start, and was never headed during the race. The Dolly pressed her hard at times but then fell back, and at the finish the Iris had a comfortable lead of eight minutes actual time over the Dolly. Corrected time cut this down to nearly six minutes. The Virginia, representing the Barnegat club was five minutes behind the Dolly on actual time, and eight minutes corrected time. But a few seconds separated the Virginia, Ina and Bother.

The summary:

	Elapsed.	Cor.
Iris, F F Crane, Quincy	2 58 00	2 55 59
Dolly III, W W Arnold, Quincy	3 06 02	3 01 02
Virginia, J Norris, Barnegat	3 11 55	3 09 07

McGREGOR SCHEDULE

Nine Games at Home and Nine On Other Fields

The schedule of the Clan McGregor soccer football team is given below. The team is a fast one and two weeks ago went to Barre, Vt., and beat the team there, 2 to 1. Their home field will probably be the Old Colony baseball ground. Manager Alec Fay has picked out a bunch of stars who know the game thoroughly. The McGregors greatest rival will be the Fore River of Quincy Point, who have a ground in Ward Two.

The members of the McGregor team are: A. Malcolm, J. Drysdale, R. Craig, R. Wilson, R. McDonald, T. Robertson, D. Meldrum, R. Robertson, W. Renny, D. Forsyth, J. Roe, J. Henry, T. Melrose, A. Ray, A. Cummins.

The schedule at home:

Sept. 10, Barre, Vt.
Sept. 26, Brockton.
Oct. 8, Beverly.
Oct. 22, Lynn City.
Nov. 5, Boston Rovers.
Nov. 19, Boston Americans.
Dec. 3, Charlestown.
Dec. 17, Boston Rangers.
Dec. 23, Lynn Fosse.

The schedule away:

Sept. 3, Lynn Fosse at Lynn.
Sept. 17, Lynn City at Lynn.
Oct. 1, Fore River at Quincy Point.
Oct. 15, Boston Rangers at Brighton.
Oct. 29, Charlestown at Charlestown.
Nov. 12, Brockton at Brockton.
Nov. 26, Beverly at Beverly.
Dec. 10, Boston Americans at Boston.
Dec. 31, Boston Rovers at Boston.

QUINCY DISASTER

malleable iron that is used to raise the load. The "jack" resembles an ordinary tool used to raise carriage bodies, and is what is commonly called a "No. 1 ratchet jack."

One of the men in stepping off the track to let the express pass, forgot to remove the 'jack' with which he had been at work. This formed an obstruction, which, as it turned out, was sufficient to cause a dreadful accident. The 'jack' was seen on the track by the engineer of the derailed train, but too late for him to do anything effective toward stopping. It was also seen at the same moment by the conductor of a gravel train which was at the time passing on the outward track.

For several days after the accident the Daily Ledger published columns relative to the disaster, and the injured. Some died while others recovered slowly at the Quincy Hospital and in Quincy homes.

The Writers.

M. Rostand is engaged upon a new work about which he is maintaining strict secrecy.

Custis Hidden Page, the poet and essayist, is a Harvard graduate and professorship of romance languages and literature at the Northwestern university.

Fedor Dostolevsky, the Russian novelist, was born in 1821, the son of a surgeon. According to Maurice Baring, the English writer, Dostolevsky is one of the two great columns which support the temple of Russian literature. Tolstoy is the other. Turgenief is placed by Mr. Baring inside the temple.

Fly Catches.

"Bud" Sharpe has amply made good as first baseman for the Boston Nationals.

Paskert, Bescher, Lobert and Egan of Cincinnati are among the six leading base runners in the National league.

When Tony Smith of Brooklyn has a real good day in the field there aren't any shortstops that cover more ground or make more sensational plays.

Ty Cobb is a care free youth, full of the joy of living and to whom every day is one grand outing. So is Lajoie since laying down the managerial burden.

Tales of Cities.

Brockton, Mass., leads the world in the manufacture of men's shoes and has 135 factories in which footwear and accessories are produced.

Bellevue hospital statistics show that inebriety in New York city is on the increase—that one hospital treats an average of 583 drink victims each month.

Paris increases its revenues by a few francs each year in the cultivation of a diminutive state orchard in the Luxembourg Gardens and the same municipality also takes its share of the receipts of the Eiffel Tower.

A Very Old Rule.

The oldest mathematic book in the world is believed to be the "Papyrus Rhind" in the British museum, professed to have been written by Ahmes, a scribe of King Ra-a-us, about the period between 2000 and 1700 B. C. This "Papyrus Rhind" was translated by Eisenlohr of Leipzig, and it was found to contain a rule for making a square equal in area to a given circle. It was not put forth as an original discovery, but as the transcript of a treatise 500 years older still, which sends us back to approximately 2500 B. C., when Egyptian mathematicians solved, or thought they had solved, the problem of squaring the circle.

The Dilettante Society.

An interesting old organization which formerly existed in London—the Dilettante society—originated with certain gentlemen who, having traveled in Italy, tried to encourage at home what they had enjoyed abroad. This society of lovers of the fine arts lasted 130 years. Walpole does not seem to have looked upon it with a very favorable eye, for he says, "The nominal qualification was to have been to Italy; the real one was being drunk."

Something Happened.

A train on one of the transcontinental lines running through Kansas City and is usually late was reported on time a few days ago.

The young man who writes the particulars concerning the trains at that station put down his statistics about this train, "No. 616, from the west, on time."

Then he wrote underneath, "Cause unknown." — Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

A Strange Pirate Story.

In the museum at Kingston, Jamaica, there are some tattered ships' papers, brown with age and salt water, and a small tin canister. These articles attest the truth of the strangest pirate story ever told. In 1799 the crew of the Nancy brig were apparently honest traders, but did some piracy now and then on the side. One day they found it necessary to go into Kingston for supplies. Before doing so they naturally removed all traces of their buccaneering trade. Among other things they threw overboard this tin canister stuffed with papers taken from ships they had sunk, with comments written on the margin by the pirate captain. Later in the day a British frigate was becalmed near the spot, and the sailors spent their leisure catching sharks. Presently they hauled up a big fellow, cut him open and found the tin case with the papers inside. These were taken to the captain, who, as soon as a breeze sprung up, sailed into Kingston harbor, found the Nancy brig there and had the crew tried, convicted and hanged in chains at Port Royal.

Payment In Kind.

French novelists are occasionally paid in kind instead of cash. Many of the best known Paris newspapers manage to supply their readers with contemporary fiction for which the writers do not receive a penny. For instance, a novel is published in serial form for which the payment at three half pence a line would amount to £80. This payment is always made in space, not in money. That is to say, the newspaper inserts for the author, free of charge, a certain number of advertisements or press notices relating either to his own books or those of other authors. If he can succeed in obtaining any money from the latter he is at liberty to do so. The space varies considerably in value, a "puff" on the front page being worth 20 or 30 francs a line, on the second page 10 francs and in other portions of the paper still less.—London Scraps.

Origin of the Bowery.

When the city of New Amsterdam, now New York, sprang into existence many farmers from Holland came over to seek their fortune in the new world, among them old Peter Stuyvesant. They settled outside the town and proceeded to develop the land by clearing away the woods and planting it with grain, fruit trees and ornamental shrubs they had brought with them. Peter Stuyvesant called his residence and ground the Bouwerie, and the lane connecting it with New Amsterdam became known as Bouwerie lane, the settlement itself taking the name of Bouwerie Village. Stuyvesant's farm extended from the junction of what are now Third and Fourth avenues to Seventeenth street and eastward to Second avenue, where at the corner of Tenth street his home was located.

A Mysterious Race.

Ever since Pizarro's conquest of the Indians there had been rumors in the interior of South America of the existence of a strange tribe, said Major P. H. Fawcett, R. A. The evidence was necessarily weak, yet he had met half a dozen men who swore to a glimpse of white Indians with red hair. Other statements had been made as to the existence of such a race with blue eyes. Plenty of people had heard of them, and they had even a name—"Morphegon," or bats, meaning the people who hunted by night and hid during the day. Even in Paraguay, he was told, there was a tribe so shy as to be quite beyond communication and another where the men talked in one language and the women in another.—London Mail.

Easy Divorce In Old Times.

The code of King Khammurabi of Assyria, whose date is approximately 2200 B. C., which has been disciphered from a pillar discovered at Susa, deals exhaustively with the subject of divorce. One of the most interesting clauses is the following: "If the wife of a man who dwells in the house of that man has set her face to go forth and has acted the fool and wasted his house and impoverished his house, they shall call her to account. If the husband shall say, 'I put her away,' he shall put her away. She shall go her way. For her divorce he shall give her nothing."

Too Careful.

An old man was brought up before a country judge.

"Jethro," said the judge, "you are accused of stealing General Johnson's chickens. Have you any witnesses?"

"No, sah," old Jethro answered haughtily. "I hab not, sah. I don't steal chickens befo' witnesses, sah."—Minneapolis Journal.

Consider the Trees.

PARIS TO MARK HOUSES OCCUPIED BY NAPOLEON.

Many Tablets Needed to Show Rise From Poverty.

Each of the houses in Paris where Napoleon Bonaparte dwelt when he was a young, struggling soldier is to be marked with a tablet suitably inscribed.

The wits are saying that the authorities will have to order these tablets by the hundreds. Dozens of Parisians will say to you as proudly as seriously:

The fact is Napoleon accommodated his dwelling to his purse. When he first went to Paris he lived in the Military school. There he had to climb 173 steps to his garret. A room scarcely large enough sheltered the future emperor for a time at 5 Quai Conti.

Then he took a small apartment on Rue de Nevers, only a few yards from the Tuileries palace, where he was to shine in all his glory.

In 1892 Napoleon moved to the Hotel Metz, on Rue du Mail, but the humblest apartment in the hotel was the best he could afford. At that period the man who was to topple thrones took his meals at a little cafe in Rue der Petits Peres, arranging to pay 20 cents a day.

Napoleon's next home was on Rue Montmartre. His slowly increasing income enabled him to rent a suit of three rooms there. One was occupied by his brother Louis, who was to become king of Holland; another by Junot, whose wildest dreams could not have foreseen himself a marshal of France and Duke of Abrantes.

In 1795 Napoleon went to live on the more fashionable Rue de la Michodiere and from there to the Hotel Mirabeau, in the Impasse du Dauphin. The Hotel Colonnade saw his last bachelor days, and when he married Josephine he bought a small house on Rue des Chantieres.

LOTTERIES BENEFIT ITALY.

Other Sources of Revenue Show Increases For Treasury.

Net profits of $18,585,000 derived from the weekly state lotteries are a feature of the Italian treasury receipts for the fiscal year ended last June. This is a considerable advance on the gains of the preceding year. The Italian Socialists are anti-gamblers and want the lotteries abolished, but they are not likely to succeed in their abolition campaign, as all the southerners, and especially the Neapolitans, are confirmed gamblers.

Other sources of revenue also show substantial increases, making the total collected $12,000,000 larger than the previous year. This does not include the additional 2 per cent duty which was imposed halfway through the previous year for the relief of Messina and Reggio. This duty has yielded in eighteen months $4,244,205.

Every item of the Italian revenue is in a healthy state except the land tax, the diminution of which is explained by the concessions made to the districts affected by the great earthquake and the customs, which have had less corn and sugar passing through them in consequence of recent legislation. The financial statement closes with a balance to the good of $5,787,770.

TITLED WOMAN IS FLORIST.

Lady Angela Forbes Third of Family In Trade.

Lady Angela Forbes is the latest recruit to the ranks of title shopkeepers in London. Her enterprise is a flower shop, where she personally waits on customers and sells them plants and blossoms at fancy prices. The little store is prettily fitted up, and the titled proprietress flits about among her wares wearing a blue apron and gardening gloves. "My Shop" is the sign over the door.

Lady Angela is the third member of Blanche, Lady Rosslyn's, family to go into trade. Her sister, the Duchess of Sutherland, has a shop in Bond street for the sale of the silver, pottery and metal work made by the Cripples guild, and Lady Warwick, her half sister, was in the millinery business in Bond street and later in Sloane street and now controls a horticultural school for girls.

Lord Rosslyn, the elder brother, was at one time editor of Scottish Life and a war correspondent in Ladysmith. He afterward adopted the stage as a profession.

BASEBALL WILL NEVER DIE.

Will Live In Heaven In Spiritual Form—Maybe.

"Baseball In Heaven" was the subject of a sermon preached by the Rev. C. Julian Tuthill, pastor of the Congregational church of Mattapoisett, Mass. He said in part:

"Heaven is but an evolution of this world. A Christian may love a ball game and, loving it, remain a Christian. Why, then, is it not safe to prophesy that even the game of baseball will have its place in some spiritual form in heaven?"

But two veterans are left of the gallant 600 who charged at Balaklava—the octogenarian, Lord Tredegar, who was a subaltern of the Seventeenth lancers, and the near equally aged Sir George Wombwell of the same regiment.

Get some one to put down a row of figures, to add them up and subtract the total, thus:

63,214

Now ask them to cross out any one figure, total them up again and tell you the total. Thus, say, they cross out the 6, the total becomes 21. They tell you this, and without looking at the sum you can say the value of the figure which has been crossed out.

You do this trick by subtracting the total from the next multiple of 9. "The total," says your friend, "is 21." The nearest multiple of 9 above 21 is 27. You subtract 21 from 27, and that leaves 6. To your friend you say in a dignified tone, "The figure you crossed out was 6." And your wondering friend believes you to be possessed of occult powers.

It doesn't matter what figures are originally put down, the answer always comes correct.

The Era of Reptiles.

At different epochs during the time known as the secondary period the surface of the earth seems to have been so predominantly peopled with reptile life that it has been called "the age of reptiles." The huge iguanodons stalked or leaped about in the wealds of Sussex and Hampshire. Of these iguanodons marvelously complete skeletons are to be seen (mounted in attitudes of life) in the Royal museum of Brussels—a sight in itself sufficient to induce a visit to that capital. Other smaller reptiles browsed on the foliage of the then existing plains and were pursued and preyed upon by fell reptilian monsters of various kinds. The sea also swarmed with reptiles (ichthyosauri as aquatic as the whales and dolphins of our own day. And not only were the earth and seas thus peopled, but there were flying reptiles of different kinds and sizes, known as pterodactyls.

Many events are scheduled for the first week in September.

W. P. Pratt, a granite manufacturer of Chatham, N. Y., is in town with his wife.

Misses Ethel Hardy, Alvah K. Todd, and Margaret Whalen have gone to Deer Island, Maine, for three weeks.

George E. Elcock entertained this week visitors from Waltham, Brockton and Everett who came to see his dahlia garden.

Miss Lilla Dixon of Goddard street and Miss Marion Cummings of Franklin street are spending a week at the Doten farm in Plymouth.

A week from Saturday is to be held the annual reunion of the Washington M. French Hose Company Association. Dinner is to be served at the old Squantum inn at five o'clock. A special car will leave City square at 1.40 giving ample time for a good time before dinner.

Flowers not taken away by the children after the exhibit at City Hall on Wednesday were sent to the City Hospital, the Tuberculosis camp also many City Hall officials and ladies were recipients of bouquets. The children certainly had a fine exhibit and there must be many pretty gardens in the city judging by the display.

INSURGENTS ENCOURAGED

Have Slaughtered Stand-Patters In Many Western States

NO COMPROMISE IS EXPECTED

Rejection of Roosevelt by Old Guard In New York Expected to Split Republican Party Wide Open—Former President Must Soon Take Definite Position—Retirement of Ballinger Might Make Road More Smooth

Washington, Aug. 19.—The greatest political crisis since the Mugwump repudiation of Blaine in 1884, the most sensational situation since Roosevelt as president started out to nominate William H. Taft as his successor, has developed in the Republican party within the last few days, in the opinion of politicians here.

It is clear that the battle will be fought on straight stand-pat and insurgent lines, with no compromise to be expected from either side. Insurgent Republicans have ruthlessly slaughtered regulars in Kansas, California and every other western state where they have had the opportunity. With the encouragement their cause has received from the defeat of such men as McKinlay and McLachlan in California and Scott and Calderhead in Kansas, their half victory in Ohio and the determined warfare now on in Minnesota, Wisconsin and other western states, the insurgents can have neither the desire nor the power to change their course. The defeat by Sherman of Roosevelt for the chairmanship of the New York convention is regarded here as the electric spark that will blow the Republican party wide open.

With all his natural inclination to work alike with regulars and insurgents, dominating both through the power of his wonderful personality, Roosevelt is now forced to a lineup. He must fight to maintain his own prestige. His natural opponents are regulars, not insurgents.

Vice President Sherman typifies Bourbon regularity in congress as no other man can, unless it be John Dalzell, for Cannon is much more amenable to influence than Sherman. Sherman is too good a politician not to appreciate the significance of permitting himself to run against Roosevelt. This action alone has served notice upon every regular Republican in the country that when he finds himself opposed by a progressive he must fight, not compromise.

The only large question left unsettled is the attitude of President Taft toward the two factions and their attitude toward him. He is frankly under the suspicion of the insurgents, as the Iowa state convention testifies, and as a man of broad and progressive ideas, particularly with respect to the tariff, he is not a natural associate of the regulars. The "old guard" is concerned chiefly with two material issues of the present conflict. One is personal power, which they will not surrender until it is clubbed from their hands. The other is the high protective tariff, of which Sherman is the most uncompromising defender.

The present storm, whose flashes reveal Roosevelt as preparing to fight the men who are claiming Taft as an ally, no doubt has it head and source, as far as the ex-president is concerned, over the Ballinger-Pinchot embroglio. The opinion is well-nigh unanimous among the sincere friends of the administration that the president owes it to himself and his party to insist upon the retirement of Secretary Ballinger, now that the well-intended attempts of others to secure his withdrawal have failed.

Upon few other issues than conservation can either Roosevelt or the insurgents find much fault with Taft as a progressive administrator, and many of the insurgents are Ballinger men. The legislative program of Taft, with this one exception, is as progressive as that of Roosevelt and has made quicker headway.

But this one point is the tenderest in the Roosevelt anatomy, as it is also probably the most important to the country in the long run. It is believed here that the Roosevelt position toward Taft may be much modified or softened should Ballinger resign from the cabinet after the report of the congressional investigating committee is made public early in September. Should he not do this the former president could not avoid impulsive utterances in the course of a long speaking tour which would tend to discredit the Taft administration with the colonel's great conservation following in the west.

THE CALIFORNIA PRIMARIES

Victory of Insurgents Proves Even Greater Than First Reported

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—Late returns from the primary election show that the insurgents nominated congressmen in the Second, Fifth and Seventh districts, and that Johnson, the insurgent candidate for governor, will have 20,000 plurality.

The victory for Johnson proves to be even greater than was at first believed. His vote carried insurgent candidates through for every office on the Republican state ticket. The Lincoln-Roosevelt league, which put up Johnson, won in every one of fifty-two counties, except San Francisco, where Curry led and Johnson came second. In southern California Johnson got more votes than all the other candidates combined.

The primary vote dealt the heaviest blow to the Southern Pacific railroad political machine that it is has received since the state adopted its new constitution. The railroad has an effective political bureau in every county, and no legisation could be carried through against its influence. Johnson says he will break this machine so it can never be repaired.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST CANNON

Opens With Longworth's Announcement That He Deserts the Speaker

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 19.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth, son-in-law of ex-President Roosevelt, made the following statement here:

"I shall oppose Mr. Cannon's re-election as speaker, and I shall do so in a manner that I consider the proper and effective one for the settlement of the controversy in my party, namely, in the Republican caucus."

Mr. Longworth, who is believed to reflect the views of President Taft, declared his belief that Cannon never can be re-elected and made it clear that, personally, he is done with Cannon for all time. The Longworth statement is viewed here as the actual beginning of the real fight on Cannon.

Cannon Won't "Fight Windmills"

Danville, Ills., Aug. 19.—Speaker Cannon, when shown the dispatch from Beverly regarding the statement given out by Representative Longworth, said:

"It is time enough for me to answer the President of the United States if he has any statement to make touching on the Republicanism of the speaker of the house of representatives when he makes that statement under his own hand. I will not fight windmills filled by breezes blown from lungs of political or personal enemies or cowards."

FINISHING TOUCHES ARE PUT ON BRYAN

His "Undesirables" Carry the Day In Nebraska

Omaha, Aug. 19.—William J. Bryan suffered more of a repudiation in the Democratic state primaries than he did last month when he was defeated in the state convention. Every Bryan friend, every Bryan candidate and every Bryan idea was defeated, and the candidates whom Bryan fought were nominated by large majorities.

The most conspicuous example of the defeat of Bryan's friends was in the race for United States senator, in which Metcalf, Bryan's closest friend and editor of his newspaper, was defeated by Hitchcock, three to one. Another case was that of Shallenberger for governor, who was defeated by Dahlman. Shallenberger had agreed to sign a county option bill in return for Bryan's support. Dahlman was included in Bryan's list of undesirables.

The Democratic congressional nominees are four against Bryan, one neutral and one Bryan man. The state senatorial ticket from the Omaha district is, with the exception of one man, composed of Bryan undesirables.

Engineer Who Deserted His Post Is Charged With Murder

Boston, Aug. 19.—Down in the dark of the fireroom of the Hotel Somerset, while the fashionable guests were dining all unmindful far above, a tragedy took place last evening, and Night Watchman Joseph Levy was found dying in a pool of blood with a compound fracture of the skull.

Night Engineer William Lacey, who had deserted his post and was nowhere to be found when the injured man was discovered, was afterwards arrested, charged with assault with intent to kill.

Lacey denied striking Levy and stated that he must have fallen. Further than that he would say nothing, preferring to wait until represented by counsel.

WITHIN THIRTY MILES OF GOAL

Moissant Is Held Up by Accident to His Aeroplane

A CONNECTING ROD BREAKS

Machine Partly Wrecked In Brick Field, but Aviator and His Passenger Escape Injury—Intends to Resume Trip as Soon as Repairs Are Completed—Air Men Learn Something New About Use of Compass

London, Aug. 19.—Two accidents to his monoplane Thursday brought down to earth the American aviator, John B. Moissant, who on Wednesday made a remarkable flight across the English channel with a passenger on a daring attempt to fly from Paris to London. Moissant's aeroplane lies partly wrecked in a brick field near Rainham, thirty miles from London.

By a remarkable stroke of fortune, which seemed to have followed the almost inexperienced aviator on the first two days of his flight, Moissant and his mechanician, Albert Fileux, escaped unhurt.

But the machine came heavily to the ground, alighting in a narrow space, banked high around with earth and piles of broken brick. There it is likely to remain until it can be removed piecemeal and refitted with parts now on their way from Paris to replace those that were broken by the fall.

Moissant resumed his flight from Tilmanstone yesterday. The weather was clear and hardly a breeze stirred the air. Everything seemed most favorable to the accomplishment of his hopes, but he was obliged to descend near Sittingbourne. A small pin had become displaced, and almost from the start it gave the aviator trouble.

After this defect was repaired Moissant reascended, but before he had gone many miles a connecting rod was broken, which forced him to use the planes to reach the ground.

The aviator is in no way discouraged at his misfortune, and promises as soon as the machine is in working order again to make another start for Crystal Palace, or wherever he can find a suitable landing place in London.

Moissant is the hero of the British press. The papers print columns of descriptive matter concerning his flight, and interviews, while many of them have editorials on the unique feat, which, it is said, will bring aeroplaning into practical every-day life. It is argued that if a passenger can be carried across the channel in a strong wind there is no reason why the air should not be utilized to carry mails and passengers in the near future.

The thing that most impresses the London newspapers is the fact that Moissant steered by compass. All air men have complained that the compass is useless in connection with air flights, on account of the strong vibration from the motor. Moissant appears, however, to have surmounted this difficulty. Speaking of this he said:

"You have heard people say that the compass is uneless in aeroplaning. What about by English compass, floating in glycerine, air-tight and placed just between my feet? That is what took me straight to Amiens, to Calais, and would have taken me to Dover had I not seen ships yonder and thought that Walmer must be the town."

Moissant up to the present has covered roughly 225 miles in three stages, carrying his passenger all the way. His feat is all the more extraordinary in that he had used an aeroplane only five times before.

Catholics of Spain Blame Him For Most of Their Troubles

RESOLUTIONS KEPT SECRET

Clerical Juntas In Spain Are Planning New Uprising

AUG. 28 THE PROBABLE DATE

Catalonia Jaimists Intend to Make Display of Fighting Forces at Country Picnics to Be Held Under Their Auspices—Archbishops and Priests Continue to Invite Catholics to Overthrow the Government

San Sebastian, Aug. 19.—Four new demonstrations against the government of Spain are now planned by the Catholic juntas of the northern provinces. They will take place in Vittoria, San Sebastian, Pamplona and Bilbao. As the organizers are planning a general uprising throughout Spain at the same time, the date for the demonstrations has not yet been fixed.

Delegates from every country place in each province will go to their respective capitals on the appointed date. It is probable that this may be Aug. 28, as on that day there are many "aplechs," or country picnics, to be held under the auspices of the Catalonian Jaimists, at which the latter party intends to make a display of its fighting forces.

The Catholic juntas passed other resolutions which, according to the Bilbao Gaceta del Norte, are very important, but have been kept secret. The members of the juntas have given bail for 500 pesetas each upon the indictment for libel on the premier.

The members of the Centro Vasco of San Sebastian were indicted yesterday for shouting against Spain and the government. The abusive language employed by the priests in their sermons has caused the government to take action against them. The public prosecutor announces that Father Guillin of the Chapel Royal has been indicted for libel on the premier in the church at Bogona. Guillin also poured grave insults on all members of the cabinet.

In many other sermons throughout Catalonia and San Sebastian the priests have incited their congregations to join the "aplechs." Twenty-eight bishops also issued fiery proclamations inviting the Catholics to overthrow the government, even at the cost of sacrifice of property and life if necessary.

Worsted Mills In Olneyville Resume Running on Full Time

Providence, Aug. 19.—The thousands of mill operatives in Olneyville, the largest woolen worsted mill section of the state, are further encouraged by the announcement that the mills of the American Woolen company, which have been on a four and five-day schedule for several months, will run on full time. This includes the Riverside mills, which have been closed for three weeks.

While the mills are not running to their full capacity, the depression which has held the community in its grip for some time is disappearing and a more promising outlook is in sight.

New York, Aug. 19.—Nothing has developed to indicate that Mayor Gaynor is not making daily progress toward recovery. The bulletins issued by his physicians are brief and optimistic.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

SHUBERT THEATRE.

The opening attraction of the season at the Schubert Theatre, Boston, on Monday evening, August 22nd, will be the ever popular romantic actor, Wright Lorimer, presenting his famous biblical spectacle, "The Shepherd King." Although the play has been seen several times in Boston, its popularity seems ever on the increase. On each successive visit the demand for seats is greater and efforts have been made to induce Mr. Lorimer to take a theatre in the Hub for an indefinite period of time. "The Shepherd King" is one of those rare plays that appeals to the church-going public by its highly moral tone and influence, as well as by its reverent and masterly treatment of the life-story of that most beloved of biblical heroes, David. Its intensely dramatic plot, fine climaxes, ornate and gorgeous scenes, wonderful barbaric pageants and tableaux, its beautiful oriental dances and general magnificance make it a powerful attraction for the general habitue of the theatre. It draws everybody to the playhouse and is a potent factor in the unification of the church and stage.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Rose Pitonof, the 15-year-old girl who by her swim to Boston Light performed a feat that baffled the strongest men swimmers for the past 25 years, has proved to be one of the greatest attractions Keith's has had in a long time, and the entire week the house has been jammed by admirers of the plucky little girl and she has received an ovation at every performance. It is doubtful whether Miss Pitonof's feat will be duplicated, as since she has tried many others have attempted to make the swim and failed. At Keith's in the handsomest stage setting that famous house has ever provided, Miss Pitonof is giving a remarkable exhibition of swimming and diving, a most interesting feature of it being the demonstration of the now famous "Pitonof Kick," which she used during her entire swim. Another feature of the bill this week will be Charles Miller, one of the most popular leading men that has ever appeared in stock companies in Boston. Mr. Miller will give a monologue that has met with great success on his recent rtip through the West. Another big feature will be the first production here of Joseph Hart's new play called "The Little Stranger," which was originally presented at a Lambs' Gambol in New York, and is said to be even better than "Dinkelspiel's Christmas."

BOSTON THEATRE.

Monday evening, Aug. 29, marks the beginning of "The Girl from Rector's" limited return engagement at the Boston Theatre. So great was the success of this laughable farce when presented at this same popular playhouse last spring that its reputation as a most diverting entertainment has been fully established with the result that since seats for its return appearance in Boston were placed on sale the demand for tickets at the Boston Theatre box office has been incessant. "The Girl from Rector's" returns with a sensational record from the entire country where it carried off all honors for large audiences and phenomenal box-office receipts. It has played three hundred nights in New York; one hundred nights in Chicago; one hundred nights in Philadelphia.

The original cast will be seen with this famous Potter farce at the Boston and includes such well known and capable players as Elita Proctor Otis, Gertrude Millington, Nena Blake, Nella Webb, Wm. Sellery, Kenneth Davenport, Charles P. Morrison, E. R. Burton and others.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

Owing to the tremendous sucess enjoyed last week by Clyde Fitches big laughing comedy, "Girls" and the numerous requests which have been received from American Music Hall patrons for its repitition, Manager Morison has decided to present it at the American Music Hall next week. It is not at all unusual for a stock play to be presented two weeks in succession but to have it presented one week and then taken definitely from the boards only to be put on again after a week's intervention is something that has never before been heard of in Boston theatricals. If it were possible to present it in place of Quincy Adams Sawyer" this week Manager Morison would have done so, even though he also had many requests for the production of this great rural play. He was under contract however, to play it and was accordingly forced to allow this one week to intervene before the return of "Girls." Practically the same cast of favorites will be seen next wek as appeared in the production a week ago. Next week will be the farewell week of the Lindsay Morison stock company in Boston. Souvnir chocolate bon-bons wil be presented at Monday matines and there will be a big floral display in honor of the company, Saturday the closing night.

MABEL WILBER IN THE MERRY WIDOW

At the Majestic Theatre.

Only on Approval.

At the Wednesday evening service in the church parlors the minister chose honesty for the subject of his brief discourse. In less than a quarter of an hour he found time to lambaste nearly everybody who had ever deviated from the narrow path, but he was particularly hard on those persons who buy things on approval. After the sermon everybody enjoyed himself socially. There were some big guns there from other parishes, and the parlors had been done up especially for the evening. There were two lovely new red velvet chairs that the minister found particularly comfortable. He complimented the head of the furnishing committee on her thrift and taste.

On Friday evening there was another meeting in the parlors. The minister looked around first thing for those velvet chairs.

"What have you done with them, Mrs. Blank?" he said to the head of the committee.

"Oh," said she serenely, "they went back yesterday. The furniture store just sent them up for Wednesday night on approval."—New York Press.

Stage Names.

Kid Bustum, the lightweight, I used to admire—
His punch was exceedingly hard—
But I found, to my grief, when I chanced to inquire,
Chide Weeks was the name on his card.

I listened enraptured when Mellada sang
She wakened the god in my heart
With her marvelous voice till I found with a pang,
She was plain Mrs. Patrick McCart.

As Dizzo, the diver, comes down with a turn
My bosom with wonderment thrills,
But somehow it shortens my pleasure to learn
That his true name is Thomas P. Mills.

When Edmund Fizzaro, the tragedy king,
Brings Hamlet and Shylock to town
I never go near him. I can't care a thing
For talented people born Brown.

I take no delight as I gaze at the names
That history asks us to view,
Old Plato was likely a Smith or a James
And Caesar perhaps a Depew.

"Why not?"

"We have too many dialects."

"Write it in baseball vernacular."—Washington Herald.

TROUBLE AHEAD.

When gentle woman goes to vote—
They say the time is coming—
As certain as that cork will float
Or as a bill for plumbing
She'll always vote her ticket straight
And never, never scratch it,
For that would spoil it, sure as fate,
She'd feel she'd have to patch it.

Her gloves will have to match her hat,
Her gown be tailor fitted
And of the latest mode at that.
'Twill have to be admitted
That when fair woman goes to choose
And cast the ballot cunning
From picture hat to dainty shoes
That voter will be stunning.

But should the tailor fail to send
The new gown as directed
The charming dame will never lend
Her aid to the elected.
What use is woman suffrage, pray,
With which the age is humming,
If gowns upon election day
Are old or unbecoming?

ADMIRAL INVENTS CRAFT FOR LAND AND SEA USE.

Howells of Torpedo Fame Predicts Many Uses For It.

Experiments are being made at Bath, Me., with the Amphi II., a unique craft built for Rear Admiral John A. Howells, U. S. N., retired, which is designed for use on land as well as on sea.

Rear Admiral Howells, who was the originator of the Howells torpedo, experimented with a similar craft a year ago, but the results were not just what he wanted, so this second craft, considerably larger, has been built, and there is great interest manifested in her trials.

The craft measures twenty feet long and six feet beam, while she has a tail ten feet in length. She is equipped with a single cylinder ten horsepower engine, which will send her along, it is hoped, at the rate of seven miles an hour in the water or twelve miles on land. Mammoth thirty-six inch wheels are situated forward of amidships of the craft and another in the tail of the craft, thus giving the boat the general appearance of a tricycle.

Buckets are attached to the forward wheels for use in the water, while there is also a small propeller, which is situated on the port side, for auxiliary service in the water. There is also a small centerboard in the tail which acts as a rudder for steering the craft either on land or on the sea.

Admiral Howells will take his craft to the mouth of the Kennebec river, where she will be tried upon the sands of Popham beach, and she will also be given trials at Old Orchard, and if she works satisfactorily she will be taken to Long Beach, N. Y.

Mr. Howells believes that such a boat has many uses. It could be used as a surfboat at life saving stations, while it could also be used by sportsmen gunning along the coast, who could sail on the water or go upon the beaches at will.

WORLD COINAGE PLANNED.

Leipzig Savant to Explain Trade Expansion Idea In Berlin.

Professor Wilhelm Ostwald of Leipzig university, one of Germany's most distinguished savants, who lectured at Columbia and Harvard universities in 1905, has originated a novel project for a universal world coinage.

He has been invited by the Merchants and Manufacturers' association of Berlin to make the first public exposition of his idea before that organization some time in September or October. The association will ask leading bankers and exporters to attend the meeting and join in the discussion as to the practicability of Professor Ostwald's proposals.

The scientist's general idea is that the commerce and intercommunication of nations would be immensely facilitated and simplified by the adoption of a money system and coinage common to the whole civilized world.

Professor Ostwald holds honorary degrees from the leading universities of the world.

WAR ON HAT SALUTES.

Darmstadt Society Says It's French and Unpatriotic.

"Why raise your hat?" is the motto of the Society For the Promotion of German Modes of Greeting, whose headquarters are at Darmstadt. It is a wasteful habit, the society urges, because it wears out the hat brim. It is unhealthful because in bad weather it is apt to bring on colds. And, worst of all, it is unpatriotic, for the custom was adopted from the French, the first nation in Europe to bare the head as a form of politeness.

The true mode of greeting for Germans, the members say, is the military salute, which is of purely Teuton origin, having originated among the officers of the Prussian grenadiers.

The society has gained many adherents, and the inhabitants of Darmstadt are now accustomed to see elderly civilians stand rigidly at attention and bring the hand smartly to the forehead when they meet acquaintances in the street.

BRIEFS

Arthur L. Brew of Somerville is visiting with friends on Cross street.

Frank J. Cronin of Barry street is on his vacation.

Miss Frances Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones of Beach street, is convalescing from a successful operation for appendicitis.

Harry Carew of Filbert street has returned from a month's tramp in the Maine woods. He enjoyed it immensely.

The body of Thomas Bowles, the son of President Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, who died in a hospital of Germany, will be brought to this country for burial, and is expected to arrive Sept. 2.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Sullivan celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary Thursday evening by entertaining a large number of their friends at their home on Copeland street. They received a number of wedding gifts from their friends.

GAS EARNINGS.

The net earnings of the Citizens Gas Light Company of Quincy for July were $2,079, at the rate of $24,000 per year. In July, 1909, they were but $612, and in July, 1908, there was a deficit of $36.

Completing the Circuit.

Uncompromising integrity voiced with irony was a marked characteristic of the Duke of Wellington. When he was in India after the British victory at Assaye the envoy of the nizam offered £70,000 for some information as to the districts to be assigned to his master. General Wellesley, as the duke then was, listened to the proposal with great gravity and when the Indian had ceased to speak said to him, "Can you keep a secret?"

"Certainly, sahib," said the envoy eagerly.

The general made a low bow. "And so can I," he said dryly.

Like the Trip?

Pretty good weather to sail to the pole
On an iceberg, broad and high.
With icy dreams for to cool your soul
'Neath an icicle bordered sky.
But over and over the task to do,
For the bread that's life to the land and you,
And never a vision of rest in view
Till time for the last "Goodby!"
—Atlanta Constitution.

Needed In New York.

Briggs—I see now they have a company to operate a line of flying machines across the English channel.

Griggs—That's a good idea. Let's hope that some day we will have a line across Broadway.—Town and Country.

DEATHS.

HARDING—In Wollaston, Aug. 19, Capt. William F. Harding, of 21 Winthrop avenue, in his 54th year.
Funeral services on Sunday at 2 P. M. from his late residence. Relatives and friends invited. Burial at Brewster.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR TAFT CUP

Great Work by Harpoon in the Sonder Races

Because the Harpoon was disqualified on Wednesday and secured no points, she has now no chance of winning the Governor Draper cup for Sonder boats awarded for the most points, but it is the President Taft cup that she is after with good prospects of success. The Beaver won a leg on Wednesday, and the Harpoon on Thursday.

HARPOON WINS AGAIN.

In today's race off Marblehead the Harpoon of C. F. Adams, 2d., won again, and needs but one more victory to secure the President Taft cup. She has two legs to one for the Beaver.

The Chonta, one of the Spanish boats was second in the race, the Cima third, Beaver fourth, Papoose fifth, and Mosquito sixth.

THURSDAY'S RACE.

The Harpoon won on Thursday by 1 minutes, 6 seconds in the second of the Spanish-American sonder races, and the Beaver dropped down to third place. The Cima was second. One of the Spanish boats made a good showing, the Chonta being only 1 minutes and 1 second behind the Beavers, and 2 minutes 36 seconds behind the Harpoon. The elapsed time was:

Harpoon, America	2 25 33
Cima, America	2 26 39
Beaver, America	2 27 08
Chonta, Spain	2 28 09
Papoose, Spain	2 35 34
Mosquito II, Spain	2 46 09

Short Stories.

Of all the people who get married widowers are most shy of their age.

During the next two years 300 more public schools will be built and opened in the Philippines.

Nearly 90,000 camels are used in the Vilayet of Bagdad as beasts of burden, and, with donkeys, they form the only means of carrying goods to inland points.

The value of the stamp collection of the postal department is modestly placed at $200,000, but it would bring a figure many times that if placed on the market for sale.

Current Comment.

"Father" doesn't want "a day." He wants a week off.—Columbia State.

There is a very bad two dollar bill in circulation. Insist on getting your change in twenties and fifties.—Chicago News.

People who find themselves without money can now explain matters by the remark they have sent it to the government laundry.—New York World.

It would be just as well for young men to remember there are more prizes offered for agriculture than for aviation, and the game is safer.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Pert Personals.

A Russian law forbids a person marrying more than five times. If Nat Goodwin lived in Russia he would join the Terrorists.—Kansas City Star.

Count Zeppelin is as persistently plucky in his airship ambitions as Sir Thomas Lipton used to be with his yachting challenges.—Washington Star.

England complains that George is too independent. But his mother seems to be doing her best to break him of the habit.—Springfield Republican.

Color Blind.

I guess I must be color blind;
I don't know what is right.
Wayman says that White is black,
And Browne is black as White.
I thought myself, both White and Browne
Were yellow through and through,
But wife maintains that White is green,
And Browne is surely blue.
—Chicago Tribune.

The Stiff Part.

"The judge gave Townson Bowers a stiff sentence."

"Why, it was only ten days in jail?"

"I know, but the judge recommended that the first day be spent in a straitjacket."—Toledo Blade.

You Bacchanalienist!

I wrote my wife I was temulent
(She's where there is diction nary),
And she can't find out what the deuce I meant.
It's well to be honest—and wary.
—New York Mail.

THE Y. M. C. A. OUTLOOK

New Physical Director and New Life Expected

The Y. M. C. A. classes will start in September under the new physical director, Louis F. LaRose. There is every indication of a large attendance as the enrollment of new members was large during the spring, and few former members failed to renew their cards.

The gymnasium, whose equipment is very complete, will be thoroughly cleaned after its all summer term of idleness, and with the termination of the outdoor season it will be in daily use, as will the swimming pool and baths.

The boys' department is a large and difficult one to manage, but under the direction of Lester F. Clee, is always appreciated and well handled.

The reading room is no small attraction, and during the winter months is always in use, there being magazines of high class fiction, as well as mechanical and engineering periodicals; a source of profit to men engaged in engineering work.

Ernest G. Gay, general secretary, who will soon return from his vacation, has now been in charge of the Quincy building for some years, and is thoroughly acquainted with its management and a successful season is promised by the present indications.

Last year the basketball games were a source of revenue for the support of the teams, and followed by a large faction with never failing interest that is sure to revive again. The basket ball teams are sure to be faster this year than ever before.

On the whole, the outlook is very bright and the satisfaction of those who have attended the gym classes and become familiar with Association life is of great assistance all their lives.

The Music Was Fatal.

A New York politician once found it necessary to attend an entertainment at an orphans' home and he was having a bad time of it. The selection by the boys' band was particularly distressing. Turning to a friend the politician said with a shudder, "No wonder they are orphans."—Success Magazine.

Multiplication.

I had a little secret,
And it just belonged to me,
But Betsey Morris stayed all night,
And as we watched the fading light
It slipped out ere I knew 'twas gone
As slyly as could be.
And now my little secret
That I guarded faithlessly
Belongs to Betsey Morris, too,
The whole wide town—and me.
—St. Nicholas.

The Only Way.

"Why did he leave all his money to the black sheep of the family?"

"He said the other children were too good to go to jail."

"Well?"

"And he wanted to fix it so the black sheep would be too rich." — Kansas City Journal.

What He Got.

Each night ere his coming
He sent her a lot
Of candy tied up
With a true lover's knot.

And then when he thought
He'd perfected a hit
He asked her, and all
He got back was a "Nit!"
—Houston Post.

Something Appropriate.

"See my new canoe?" said the boat enthusiast. "I haven't christened it yet. I want something neat and appropriate to paint on its bows."

"I suppose it must be short."

"Not necessarily."

"How would 'This Side Up With Care' do?"—Washington Star.

A Way Out.

"She insists that her paternal ancestor came over on the Mayflower."

"But I thought they proved to her that there was no such name on the Mayflower register?"

"They did. And now she says he was a stowaway."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Story Needed Confirmation.

"Georgie, did you know that I was going to marry your sister?"

"Well, I heard her say so, but she's had that idea about so many other fellows that I didn't feel sure about it till you told me."—Brooklyn Life.

Poor Product.

"I'm a self made man, I am."

"Well, there is one thing you needn't worry about."

"What is that?"

"Taking out a patent."

The Heaviest Meal.

"When do you take the heaviest meal of the day?" asked a bachelor of a married man.

"When my wife cooks it," came the reply.

SPORTING CHAT.

The Old Colony schedule for Saturday is:
Rocklands at Quincy.
Randolphs at Weymouth.
Lincolns at Stoughton.

• • •

The following games are scheduled for Saturday in the Granite City league:
Fore Rivers vs, Hardy A. C.
Cranch A. A. vs. Bigelows.
Adams A. A. vs. Bryant A. C.

• • •

At Merrymount park on Saturday the Ramblero will meet Dorchester A. A.

• • •

It is not officially announced, but it is thought that the Quincy team will play against the Deweys at the Weymouth Fair and at the Labor Day picnic.

• • •

Quincy's new pitcher is a friend of Lonergan's, and has his endorsement, so he should be all right.

• • •

I said not long ago that Bill Duggan wasn't much on the long throw, but I'll have to hand it to him. No one in the league can beat him on the throw by evidence of several practical demonstrations.

• • •

The Norfolk County baseball league has been dissolved, and a series of games has started between the Norwoods, Walpoles, Hyde Parks and Cantons.

• • •

There will probably be some great games tomorrow—the Ramblers will try to avenge themselves for last Saturday with the Fore River Apprentices, and Cranch will scramble to get away from Adams. In the Old Colony League, Quincy, without Johnny Glaze, will be slightly at sea, but never fear, gentle fan, they will win, nevertheless.

• • •

If the basketball league comes to Quincy I will boom Mike Shea for manager of the Quincy team against all comers. A man who has put Quincy where she is in league baseball surely has ability in a generous quantity and should make basketball hum.

• • •

By error, Nowell's batting average was announced at .200, but it really is .312. I'm sorry the mistake occurred. When Nowell came to the team he was no fielder but a great hitter, and is going steadily now.

• • •

Isn't that Armstrong-Fay combination all right?

• • •

Briggs is in town now working at Squantum.

• • •

If Quincy wins three out of the games remaining she will certainly secure the pennant.

• • •

The opening of High school isn't far away. Football will be the next topic of the day.

• • •

How fleeting is fame. Last year year Johnny Murray was popular here but this year the crowd hisses him.

• • •

"Pop" Mahan has been deposed at Rockland, and the line-up will look new with about nine new faces round about. They expect to spring a surprise and win at Quincy.

• • •

The North Quincys and Montclair teams will meet at the Pines Saturday afternoon. The line up will be

No. Quincy	Montclair.
Bent, c	Kapples, ss
Smith, p	Packard, 3b
Curtis, 1b	Sullivan, 2b

Flynn, 3b	Morton, c
Quinlan, lf	Foley, rf
Lyons, cf	Gerstrel, lf
Cox, rf	Colligan, p
	Ramsey, utility

Ramsey will try out a new spike invented by himself, and all who have seen it, say that it looks as though it would fill a long felt want should it be adopted.

• • •

The Dorchen II won second prize in Class I at the annual open race of the Gloucester Yacht club at Gloucester on Thursday.

• • •

R. R. Freeman and T. M. Claflin of the Wollaston Golf club both qualified in the first sixteen at Manchester on Thursday for the Essex cup.

Optimistic.

"I was pinched for being too optimistic."

"Aw, come off."

"Fact. I thought the stock I was selling would be worth something some day."—Washington Herald.

RABBIT ACTED AS BASEBALL.

Pitcher Jack Krausse of the Upland "Big Four" team should play in phenomenal luck during the balance of the season if there is anything in the rabbit foot superstition. In a practice game held on the grounds of the Media (Pa.) Delaware County League club a rabbit jumped out of a clump of grass and started across the diamond. Krausse did not see it, but was endeavoring to catch a ball thrown in from the outfield.

Before the ball arrived, however, the rabbit jumped into his hands, and, thinking he had the sphere, he threw the animal to the second baseman to catch the runner. The latter ducked, and the rabbit made its escape.

FORD FIND OF SEASON.

Highlanders' Star Twirler One of Best Developed In Recent Years.

Russell Ford, the pitching marvel of the New York Americans, is the greatest find of the 1910 baseball season. His good work in the box this season has done much to keep the Highlanders so high up in the pennant race. Ford has more than made himself solid with the baseball fans and, unlike most of the youngsters who break into the big show, has done even better work than the team's followers expected. Many nice things were said about Ford during the off season, but few persons thought he would pitch such spectacular ball when he donned the spangles under the big tent.

Ford was with the Highlanders for a few weeks in 1909, then was farmed to Jersey City, and, though the Skeeters finished last in the race, he won half his games, striking out 189 men. Russell's other minor league training was gained with Cedar Rapids of the Three Eyed league and Atlanta of the Southern association. Ford is the only spitball expert in captivity who can make the ball break three ways. All the players who have batted against him say he has a most puzzling delivery. Ford won fourteen out of the first nineteen games he pitched this season.

GOLF QUARTET DEFIES.

Chicago Champions Challenge Any City In United States to Beat Them.

Chicago's champion and former champion golfers have issued an informal challenge to any city in the United States to produce a team which can defeat National Champion Robert A. Gardner of Hinsdale, Western Champion Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, Intercollegiate Champion Albert Seckel of Hinsdale, former National and Western Champion H. Chandler Egan of Exmoor, with Paul Hunter of Midlothian as substitute.

Japanese Ball Players Coming.

Japanese baseball may be seen at Marshall field, Chicago, next summer, with the Waseda university and the University of Chicago teams competing. A. A. Stagg has invited the Japanese team to come to America for a return series with the Maroons, and it is expected that the oriental players will accept.

MINOR LEAGUE NOTES

The Athletic recruit now with Baltimore, Ben Egan, has developed into the best catcher in the Eastern league and also into a terror with the stick.

Manager Ganzel of the Rochester (Eastern league) club announces that he has sold pitcher Ed Lafitte to the New York Americans for cash and other considerations. Lafitte will finish the season with Rochester.

Jesse Tannehill, the veteran pitcher of the Minneapolis (American association) club, has quit the Millers. Jesse figured that he was not earning his salary. He is seeking a managerial berth with some minor league team.

President T. M. Chivington announces that the appearance of the name of Ralph Glaze as being released by the Indianapolis club in the last American association bulletin was a clerical error. Glaze is still a member of the Indianapolis club.

Vol. 24 No. 194 QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY EVENING, AUGUST 20, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

WHY CITY OF QUINCY CAN BOAST A LITTLE

Daily Ledger Accepts the Challenge of the Free Press of City of Waltham

How City of Presidents Has Forged Ahead of Watch City

"The Quincy Ledger has been doing considerable boasting of late about the rapid growth of that city. Well, it does seem to have completely outgrown its clothes if we may judge by the 16 columns of tax sales of real estate the Ledger is publishing."—Waltham Free Press.

The Daily Ledger is sorry if the Free Press does not occasionally have a collector's sale. But 12 columns of tax sales on Wednesday were wholly the property of non- residents, who do not appear to be prospering at home. They should move to Quincy.

The Ledger will, however, accept the challenge of the Free Press and show why Quincy can do a little boasting at the expense of Waltham. Waltham became a city in 1884, four years ahead of Quincy. In 1889 Waltham led Quincy in population, valuation and polls, but now the situation is reversed and Quincy is leaving Waltham far behind.

POPULATION FIGURES.

Figures of every census since 1880 are given below. It will be seen that Waltham led Quincy in 1880 by over 1100 population, and continued ahead until 1900, when the two cities were neck and neck. In 1905 Quincy had taken a big spurt, and expects to do still better by the census of this year. The Free Press should study these figures:

	Waltham	Quincy
Census of 1880,	11,712	10,570
Census of 1885,	14,609	12,141
Census of 1890,	18,707	16,723
Census of 1895	20,876	20,712
Census of 1900,	23,581	23,899
Census of 1905,	26,239	28,067
Census of 1910	?	Abt 33,000

VALUATION FIGURES.

But taxes are more closely connected with tax sales, so the Daily Ledger will make a comparison of valuations. The figures for 1883, 1889, 1895, 1901, 1904 and 1907 are taken from the "Manual of the General Court" as compiled by State officials every three years as a basis for the State tax.

It will be seen that in 1883 Waltham had over $2,000,000 more wealth than Quincy, and in 1889 $3,569,261 more. In 1895 Quincy had reduced the lead nearly to $2,000,000, and in 1901 to $359,701. In 1904 Quincy forged ahead of the "Watch City," and in 1907 had over $2,000,000 more wealth. The "City of Presidents" was $4,500,000 ahead in 1909 by the Assessors' figures, and this year the Assessors report that Quincy has $6,353,690 more wealth than Waltham. Here are the figures:

Year,	Waltham	Quincy
1883	$10,078,480	$7,997,580
1889,	13,827,879	10,258,618
1895,	19,584,719	17,487,205
1901	21,316,372	20,956,671
1904,	23,297,415	23,894,528
1907,	25,315,436	27,428,499
1909,	25,424,620	29,944,965
1910	26,104,365	32,458,055

While Waltham was gaining $16,025,885 in valuation in 27 years, Quincy increased her valuation $24,460,475.

Wonder if the Free Press wants anything more convincing! It is the same story relative to assessed polls, and if the city of Waltham wants to make any comparison of school property, school children, public library, industries, improvements, miles of streets, miles of water main, aviation fields, etc the Daily Ledger is ready.

RESCUE BY THE SPRAY.

The fishing trawler Spray, built at Quincy, while bound for Georges banks yesterday afternoon, rescued three men from being carried out to sea in a broken-down power boat, off Boston Light, says the Boston Advertiser. The men were J. R. Shaw of Weymouth and two friends.

Mr. Shaw and his party left Weymouth early in the morning to fish off Thieves ledge, in the 22-ft. launch Jennie, owned by Mr. Shaw. Arriving on the fishing grounds, the tender broke loose and while maneuvering to recover it, the engine broke down.

Capt. Michael Green of the Spray took the boat in tow and signalled the Stony Beach life-saving station. Capt. Sparrow secured a voluntary crew and towed the Jennie to Pemberton.

LARGE GRANITE DIE.

An unusually large block of granite is being quarried at the Hitchcock quarry. The block is for a die of a large monument whose dimensions, when finished, will be 9 by 5 by 9. The block will weigh between 45 and 50 tons in the rough. The bottom base of the monument is to be 12 by 8 by 2.

HARPOON WINS CUP

Finished First in All Races with Spaniards

TODAY'S RACE.

The Harpoon made today's race the decisive one by securing three out of four races. She also finished first in the other race, or four straight. She thus wins the President Taft cup for which three Spanish yachts have been competing against three American yachts.

Friday's race gave the Harpoon two wins for the President Taft cup in the American-Spanish races for sonder boats, and the Beaver has one win. A victory by the Harpoon today will secure the cup. Should one of the other American boats win, all three of the Spanish yachts will be out of the contest. Only yachts which have won one race in the four can continue for the Taft cup.

Different rules apply to the Governor Draper cup, and both cups cannot be won by the same yacht. The standing this morning for the Draper cup was:

	1st	2d	3d	Total
Beaver	6	4	5	15
Cima	5	5	4	14
Harpoon	*0	6	6	12
Chonta	4	3	3	10
Papoose	3	2	1	6
Mosquito II	2	1	2	5

* Finished first but disqualified.

If the Harpoon takes the Taft cup today, either the Beaver or Cima will win the Draper cup, all depending on which one of the two leads the other.

The race of yesterday is reported in the telegraphic news today. The elapsed time was:

Harpoon	2	59	37
Beaver	3	03	22
Cima	3	04	13
Chonta	3	08	43
Mosquito	3	21	02
Papoose	3	26	11

NORTH DAKOTA SILVER SERVICE

Miss Larshbough of Fargo Wins Prize for Design

The battleship North Dakota, built built at Quincy, will soon have a rich silver service. In competition with many expert designers, Miss Lilia Lorshbough, a society girl of Fargo, N. D., has won the prize for a decorative design to be used on the $10,000 silver service. Miss Lorshbough has long varied her social duties with art work, but only in an amateur way. Her prize design consists of an eagle, an anchor and a steering wheel, emblamatic o fthe navy, with a sheaf of wheat in the centre, typical of the great Dakota product. All this is upon a crest, interwoven with the letters "U. S. S. N. D."

TODAY'S COURT.

BINGVILLE KLUB AT HOW'S NEK

Fellers an Gals All Slicked Up for Danse

The Bingville Klub of Hows Nek give its Fifth annuel Danse last nite at Squire Brown's Summer Ballroom, Hows Nek. Befoar the gran march at half past eight the members of the klub, fellers an gals, all slicked up, marched the streets with the Bingville Horn Band in the lead, playin like all git out. Frankie Flaherty wuz captin of the parade. He wuz floar director, too.

The fellers hed on theyre best overhails and boots and harvest hats, an the gals hed on theyre sunbonnits an gingham aprons. They wuz one bunch of young wimmin that called theirselves Yama Yama Gals all togged out in outlandish clothes which wuz purty funny.

Mayer Jawn Fitzgerald uf Bustin cum along kinder erly too lead the gran march which wuz turrible long. He sed he wuz reminded o' the dad blimmed hard time had gettin to the danse last year, and how tarnation good it seemed to cum again.

They wuz a turrible crowd which continued too cum in hay waggins and rigs and new fangled things called autymobiles til after ten o'clock. Bingville is uzerally rapped in slumber at that lait hour, but twuz long after twelve oclock when the visitors frum the uther villages started fur hum. The 'lectric cars looked jest like treemenjus bugs a crawlin up the hill when they started off.

It appears that the barn danse wuz the must brillyuntest thing which hes ever bin dun by the Bingville Klub, an peeple cum es fur es fifty miles on tother side uv the ridge and nary one wuz sorry fur the long drive back agen.

At Post Islan they wuz a passel of bo'ts in the water which hed lights all over em, and which everybudy in the curs ser wuz reemarkable nice.

All the fellers which owns klubs down to Hows Nek left 'em open last nite, so that ef a feller 'n a gal got tired they cud jest go in 'n' set down. They's give ye water an suthin to eat besides, ef ye wanted it.

The late Henry E. Hardwick left a will in which his four sons are named as executors. The citation is returnable Sept. 14.

ANNUAL FLOAT NIGHT AT POST ISLAND

Pretty Parade of Illuminated Boats in Two Divisions Along the Shore

Followed by an Entertainment and Dancing

The annual "float night" and illumination of the shore front at Post Island was held last evening, and was an unqualified success. Many social events are held during the summer months among the cottagers at Post Island, which is almost like one large family, the crowning event being the annual float night. The committee in charge included someone from each cottage, and all worked together for the one end, that was that the 1910 float night should excel all previous events.

Along the entire shore front there was strung a row of Japanese lanterns, others being used along the run leading to the boat landing, and on the landing float. At the head of the run leading to the float was an illuminated sign reading "Post Island 1910." No attempt was made to illuminate the cottages, as it was feared that it would detract from the shore front decorations and the floats, although one cottage decorated.

The lanterns were lighted shortly before 8 o'clock and from the water they gave the appearance of one long beam of light. The parade of decorated floats was held at 8.15, and made a beautiful sight. The parade was in two divisions, each division being towed by a power boat. That of Commodore C. B. Nash leading one division, and that of C. L. Green the second division. The route of the parade was from the landing float to "the bit," along the shore line, thence to Adams shore float, return to Post Island, and repeat.

The boats to take part in the parade were those of Wilson Marsh, John Shriver, J. L. Maclary, Messrs Nichols, Bates and Harper, Chester Bennett, Fred Howe, J. W. Buchanan, John Vaupel, Henry Miller and Chandler & Harper. Unfortunately one of the boats that had been hauled upon the flats could not be gotten off in time to participate in the parade. During the parade one cottage at Adams Shore burned red fire and set off some roman candles.

Japanese lanterns and American flags were used in great numbers to decorate the boats, and while they looked very pretty when tied to the float, it was nothing compared to the pretty sight they made as the paraded back and forth at quite a distance from the shore front. Each line presented a view of almost unbroken light, and it required but a little stretch of imagination to liken them to a row of minature ships of war on parade. The reflection of the lanterns on the water made a very pretty sight. Each division executed a number of evolutions, and as they passed along the shore they were greeted with round after round of applause by the cottagers on shore.

Two prizes were awarded for the best decorated boat. The first, a silver cup, and the second a pennant. The judges who were unknown awarded the silver cup to John Shriver, and the silver pennant to Luther Bennett.

Immediately after the parade the ladies served refreshments, after which the cottagers gathered in front of the Webster cottage occupied by Mr. McLellan, where an entertaining vaudeville show was presented.

The program opened with a selection on the Victor phonograph. Then came the only Galen, who while not scheduled on the program was prevailed upon to sing one of his popular selections. The applause that greeted his efforts showed that they were glad he came.

Other numbers on the program were: Selections by the Homestead quartette, the Packard sisters; Scotch reading by Mrs. Ferguson; minstrel act by Lew Dockhem, impersonated by J. L. Maclary; selection by Miss Sawyer, the child vocalist monologue by Miss Packard; songs from Frost by Fatty Felix, who was impersonated by C. B. Nash; selections by the Victor phonograph.

The program was an interesting one and each number was loudly encored. It was 10 o'clock before the vaudeville program was over. Then came dancing. The dance was held on the broad piazza of the Ricker cottage occupied by C. L. Green, and the younger people had a jolly time. Some of the papas and mamas took an active part, but the dancing was largely among the younger people.

This was the closing event of the evening, and when at last lights were out, and the cottagers had sought a little sleep, it was with the thought that the float night of 1910 had been a grand success.

"Is that baby strong?"

"Well, I should say so. He raised the whole family out of bed at three o'clock this morning, and scientists say that that's the hour when everybody's strength is at its lowest point."

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The army of men in this country employed in the many branches of the public service show a fidelity to duty that is at once striking and refreshing. Take for example the rural mail carriers. The grand total of them numbers over 41,000 and of this large number, only 175 have been dismissed for misdemeanors. A fine record of devotion to duty and one that shows that Uncle Sam's servants are typical good citizens.

The old joke about the office boy sneaking off to the ball game under the pretence that he wished to attend his grandmother's funeral, will probably be revamped to suit the needs of those who wish to attend the great aviation meet at Squantum next month. There will be intense interest aroused and some marvelous doings generally and the excuses to get away and see it all will probably be many and ingenious.

The wise man like the ant in the old fable, is busy about this time preparing for the rigors of the coming winter. Coal is high enough at all times but the price is likely to advance before long and the "forehanded" householders will see that his bins are filled before the increased rates go into effect. By so doing, he will not only cut down expenses, but also assure himself and his family a warm shelter when the north winds blow.

Our leading editorial is on the first page today "Why City of Quincy can boast a little." We all know that Quincy is growing rapidly, but when a comparison is made like the one today with a city which was larger a few years ago, the growth is astonishing. But as the Daily Ledger has often noted, Quincy stood No. 31 in population in Massachusetts in 1875, No. 29 in 1880, No. 27 in 1885, No. 23 in 1890, No. 22 in 1895 and No. 21 in 1905. Whether Quincy made No. 20 by the census of 1910 yet remains to be seen.

There are always some people who are finding fault, real or imaginary, with men or things. A striking instance of this is the contention recently made that the Pilgrim monument is not only out of plumb, but is also shockingly inartistic. As a matter of fact this beautiful memorial recently dedicated at Provincetown, has been subjected to the most rigid tests and shows not the slightest deviation from the perpendicular. The stately shaft is modelled after the tower of an ancient palace at Sienna, Italy, and who is there who dare to assert that Italian architecture is lacking in beauty?

According to a recent announcement made at the post office department the city of Washington, D. C., will have one of the first of the fifty experimental postal savings banks to be established under the postal savings banks' bill. The committee estimates that each post office in the country will have to keep an average of two ledgers. This will mean about 100,000 ledgers and employment for 4,000 bookkeepers. This is probably a conservative estimate, but at any rate it will relieve the glut on the market caused by the wholesale graduation of lightning calculators by the business colleges and correspondence schools of the country.

When people get tired of their daily work they are apt to hold up the life of a farmer as a shining example of happiness and independence. We quite agree with this view in a great many cases but of late years the farmer is having troubles enough to keep him busy. The climatic changes, the high cost of living and last but not least, the great and ever increasing army of insect pests have combined to rob agricultural pursuits of many charms. There used to be a bug for everything and now there are two or three for the same plant. The insect eating birds have been largely killed or driven away and the various sprays and insecticides often work more harm than good so that the lot of the modern husbandman is anything but a life of ease and affluence. This year we have had a cold rainy spring followed by a hot, dry summer and so many new and strange moths, flies, worms, etc., have appeared that the tiller of the soil are having a hard time to get a decent crop.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Summer vacation schools and playgrounds and autumn evening recreation classes may seem like mere fun to the young people who belong to them, but how much training and experience on the part of the conductors are necessary to make the fun of the right sort, that is, to show the children how to get fun out of things that are worth while doing and to take recreation that is worth while, is suggested by the announcement of the requirements of those who would teach in these departments in the city of New York. That vacation schools and playgrounds have become a serious part of the city's educational system is evident; and it is evident, too, by the statement of the qualifications for teachers who would seek licenses next December in competitive examination, that education and training are necessary if one would successfully show children how to enjoy their leisure, teaching them meanwhile useful arts and devices and leading them into the paths of physical and moral health.

To be a principal of a vacation school, one must be a college graduate and have one year's satisfactory experience in teaching or supervision; or a one year's satisfactory course in the theory and practice of physical training and two years' satisfactory experience in teaching or supervision, or, reversing the time, have had two years' study and one year's practice; or have had a high school education or its equivalent, together with either five seasons' successful experience in New York city public playgrounds or three years' successful experience in New York city recreation centres. That is to say, one must either have proved his especial fitness by actual, well-tried experience along the lines of this work or he must show himself qualified by education and practice for work. If one would be a teacher, he or she must have had at least one year in college or one year's course in physical training or in kindergarten theory, or, in lieu of the special education, three years' experience in New York playgrounds. An assistant teacher must have had a high school education or its equivalent or have already passed the examination for substitute teachers in the day elementary or high schools. To be eligible as a teacher in manual training one must have had satisfactory experience in teaching the branch; to teach swimming, satisfactory training and experience; to be pianist, not less than two years' satisfactory experience in piano playing.

All this preparation suggests the importance of the position of teacher in playgrounds and vacation schools, and, by inference, the important influence those schools exercise upon the lives of the children who become a part of them—if they accomplish as much as the theory back of them aims at.—New Bedford Standard.

QUINCY MUSIC HALL.

Like a crisp and refreshing autumn breeze, straight from the hills of New England, bringing with it the sweet aroma of the woods and the homely music of the farm-yard "Quincy Adams Sawyer" will come to Quincy Music hall, Sept. 6. Quincy Adams Sawyer" is entirely unlike any of the several great rural dramas that have foud their way to the hearts of the people in the past decade. It has a quaintness and unobtrusive sentiment peculiarly its own. Its chief charm is its naturalness. It is never theatrical, never dramatic but always natural. The characters are drawn so near to life that it requires an effort to become convinced that it is not real. Though the story is simple and very homely, it appeals in a mighty way to all kinds of play-goers. Nearly every one of the country plays on the stage today made it a point to caricature rural life and rural characters, but "Quincy Adams Sawyer" depicts life as it really is in a quiet Massachusetts farming town. The husking beescene in the third act has created more talk among those who have seen it than any one inciden in a play for a long time in this country. We will have here the same cast and scenic efferts used in the New York, Philadelphia and Boston runs.

—Aug. 24th marks the 100th anniversary of the birth of Theodore Parker and the event will be observed in Unitarian churches all over the country.

WILL STICK TO NEW YORK

Man Without a Country Runs Into Many Difficulties

Washington, Aug. 20. Marcelino Uribe, once a son of Mexico, was a man without a country until yesterday, when Assistant Secretary Cable of the department of commerce and labor came to his rescue. Now Uribe will go to work in New York with a solemn vow in his heart never to leave the Untied States again.

Four years ago Uribe came from Mexico to be an ironworker in New York. This summer he thought a journey back to a hacienda he knew as a lad would be pleasant, so he went by way of Havana. The Cuban authorities refused to let him land, so he took passage as a stowaway on another ship for Mexico. The Mexican authorities refused to let him go ashore because he could not prove his citizenship.

The expatriated traveller turned back to New York and was promptly held up at Ellis Island, as he had no money and no prospects. But his old employer promised the immigration officers to take him back, and Cable authorized his entry.

FOR SLEEPING ON WATCH

Lieutenant Beall of the Navy Is Reduced to Foot of List

Washington, Aug. 20. — Found guilty of leaving his post of duty before being relieved, and of sleeping on watch, Lieutenant Grafton A. Beall, U. S. N., was reduced thirty-one numbers and publicly reprimanded.

On July 5 Beall was officer of the watch on the battleship Delaware. It was alleged that he left the deck and was later found asleep below. A court martial found him guilty, but recommended clemency. Acting Secretary Winthrop of the navy department approved the sentence, but declined to grant clemency. The effect of the sentence is to place Beall at the foot of the list of junior lieutenants.

It is understood the reason for Winthrop's refusal to grant clemency was that an enlisted man, found guilty of going to sleep while on watch, must be dishonorably discharged and sentenced to imprisonment for one year and ten days.

THIRD CLEAN SWEEP FOR YANKEE BOATS

Harpoon Wins Again In Spanish-American Race

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 20.—Harpoon won the third Spanish-American sonder yacht race off here. Beaver was 2½ minutes behind and Cima 4½ minutes, all three American boats being well ahead of the Spaniards. Chonta finished fourth; Mosquito II., fifth and Papoose, sixth.

It is generally admitted that Chonta, which has been ably sailed by Louis Arana, is the fastest of the three yachts, although the oldest of the Spanish team. Chonta has always been regarded as one of the best of the sonder yachts in Spanish waters.

Chonta has also demonstrated that it is possible to keep fairly close to the very latest American sonder yacht production in windward work by using a loose-footed jib, and some of the American yachtsmen seem to think that the Yankee skippers might learn a bit of such sailing methods from Spain.

BOTH REMAINED UNMARRIED

Miss Nightingale's Girlhood Vow to Her Sweetheart Is Revealed

Fox Lake, Wis., Aug. 20.—Florence Nightingale, "the Angel of the Crimea," had her romance, which may be told now that she is gone.

In her girlhood she was the sweetheart of William Shore, her cousin. As the church canon of consanguinity forbade them to marry they parted wtih mutual vows of constancy. Shore left England for America and settled in Fox Lake. He remained here unmarried. On his death, in 1868, his body was buried in Waushara cemetery in the village.

Florence Nightingale awaited in her English home the call to join her lover, which she has just answered at the age of 90.

MAY PLAY FOR CHARITY

Mrs. Corey Says She Is Not to Return to the Theatrical Profession

Paris, Aug. 20.—Mrs. W. E. Corey, known on the stage as Maybelle Gilman, says that the report that she intended to return to the theatrical profession is incorrect.

"The rumor to that effect," says Mrs. Corey, "must have arisen from my studies in grand opera, which now engage my leisure time. I volunteered to play for charity in London some time ago, and may yet do so."

Lacey Held In $5000 Bail

Boston, Aug. 20.—William Lacey, night engineer at the Hotel Somerset, waived examination when arraigned before Judge Williams charged with assault with intent to kill Joseph Levy, a fellow employee at the hotel, who is in a serious condition. Lacey was held under $5000 bonds for a continued hearing pending the fate of Levy, who has a fractured skull.

NURSES' FREE SCHOLARSHIPS.

The Philadelphia School for Nurses, 2219 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, announces that enrollment for the fall classes will shortly begin. This institution is recognized and endorsed by leading physicians everywhere. Free scholarships in the two year course are available and provide room, board, laundering, incidental expenses and rail-road fare home on completion of the course. A Home study course and a resident short course are also provided. The school provides full instruction under safe and wholesome conditions and opens the way to almost immediate financial betterment for those who need to increase their earning power. A special short course class opens October 5th. This class is formed at the request of leading physicians who are anxious that some provision be made to meet the increasing demand for nurses in all sections. This is an opening which will be appreciated by those who need to quickly prepare themselves for self-support and nursing duty. An illustrated number of the School Bulletin, which is sent free to interested persons, gives all the details.

—The common drinking cup, which has held its position in all public places in this state for many years, will be prohibited in Massachusetts, beginning Oct. 1, this year, in accordance with an act passed by the last state legislature. The state board of health authorized this action following the passing of the act of the legislature.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

AT EXPENSE OF DYING MAN.

Editor of the Ledger:

Will you kindly allow me a little space in which to reply to an article headed, "Boston Suspect Had a Brogue," which appeared in a Quincy paper, not the Ledger, a few days ago. The article had to do with my brother, Miles Barrett, who was fatally stricken with illness in East Boston and who died two days later in the Boston city hospital as a result of this illness.

This newspaper article begins by saying that Miles Barrett was "the latest Restelli to be discovered", that he staggered into the East Boston relief station and asked to be treated at once; that the clerk there noticed his resemblance to Restelli, and became so convinced from Chief Burrell's description of Restelli that my brother was the unfortunate man sought by the police, that he induced Chief Burrell to go to East Boston to see this "suspect."

Without questioning the right and duty of the clerk to report to the proper authorities any suspicions he might have, I want to say that Miles Barrett did not stagger into the hospital and ask for treatment. He was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage and partial paralysis and could not talk or walk. He was brought to the hospital in an unconscious condition and I have been given to understand that when the clerk read the description of the patient to the chief the latter declared at once this man in the hospital could not be the man he wanted.

To thus connect a dying man's respectable name with such a murderous crime when it was only too evident the dying man was not and could not be the man wanted by the police, was a gratuitous insult and an uncalled for comparison.

Continuing this suggestively-written article rounds out its period of insult by saying that when Miles Barrett regained consciousness for a few minutes, "an inquiry as to how he felt was answered in such a rich brogue that all suspicions fled." If the latter part of the sentence be true, why was it necessary to drag the name of Miles Barrett through half a column of a newspaper article as a Restelli suspect? And why was it necessary to again insult his family by suggesting his brogue?

Did the writer intend to be jocose even at the expense of a dying man? It looks like it, very much, Mr. Editor. The fact is, that Miles Barrett could talk as intelligently and intelligibly as the writer of the aforesaid article. A shock sustained at the time of his fatal attack of illness so impaired the vocal organs that it was with difficulty he could make himself understood at all, and this cheap attempt to make a "yellow" newspaper article with the sick bed of a helpless,dying man as the subject, is such a travesty upon American journalism and American fair play, that it would be a reflection on both to let such an article go by unanswered. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for an opportunity to make this reply public, I remain, Very respectfully yours,

Michael M. Barrett.
Whitwell street, Quincy.

—A movement is on foot in Medford to form a league for the abolition of unnecessary noise and to gradually extend the league to other cities and towns about Boston. The movement is yet in its infancy, but it proposes to secure the cooperation of the city government at its reconvening in the fall, when the formation of the society will be put upon a permanent basis. Train and automobile whistles have fallen under the ban of the new society and steps are to be taken to have the noise abated.

LAND COURT.

To Charles H. Wilson, Mary A. Harvey, Etta J. Moses, Gerda E. Nelson and Harriet E. Turner of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; M. Josie Belcher, Helen A. Dearing and Frank H. Dearing, of Braintree, in said County of Norfolk, Trustees under instrument recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 1017, Page 572; James D. Taber, of Boston, in the County of Suffolk and said Commonwealth, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Carrie E. Darrow, of said Quincy, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situate in said Quincy, bounded and described as follows: Southerly by Bay View Avenue forty five (45) feet; Westerly by land now or late of Mary A. Harvey one hundred sixty eight and 67-100 (168.67) feet; Northeasterly by land now or late of Etta J. Moses fifty and 5-10 (50.5) feet; and Easterly by land now or late of Gerda E. Nelson one hundred forty six and 83-100 (146.83) feet. Containing 7099 square feet of land; and being shown on a plan by White & Wetherbee, C. E., dated Jan. 1906, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 1017, Page 575.

Petitioner claims as appurtenant to the above described land rights of way in Bay View Avenue (private way) in common with others entitled thereto.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twelfth day of September A. D. 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, CHARLES THORNTON DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eighteenth day August in the year nineteen hundred and ten.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

[Seal] CLARENCE C. SMITH, Recorder.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

NORFOLK, SS. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next of-kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of HENRY E. HARDWICK late of Quincy in said County, deceased:

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Charles H. Hardwick, Sidney C. Hardwick and Robert A. Hardwick of said Quincy and Everett V. Hardwick of Dorchester County of Suffolk who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bonds.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy in said County of Norfolk, on the fourteenth day of September A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in Quincy the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, JAMES H. FLINT, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this nineteenth day of August in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

SQUANTUM !?
(EVER HEAR OF THE PLACE?)
IS A PART OF QUINCY !?

¶ It is not under water nor a hundred miles from Boston. In a short time (through the kindness of the City Fathers) you will be able to get there without swimming or fear of drowning.

¶ It has some city water, some electric lights, and telephone connections for such as pay for it. Also electric cars visit this place occasionly, with five cent fares from all parts of Quincy.

¶ With the above information would you risk the price (5 cents) and take a journey to the wild domains of this unexplored region?

¶ As a minor side attraction it might be mentioned that the Harvard Aviation Field is located here, on which a few pennies are being expended preparing the grounds and a few more may possibly be expended during the meet, Sept. 3rd. to 13th.

¶ Finally, though perhaps of less importance, the undersigned begs to add that he has a few (hundred)

OVERTAXED

Hundreds of Quincy Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed;

Have too much to do.

They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache.

Early symptoms of kidney ills.

Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Quincy citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

Mrs. George McDonald, 133 1-2 Quincy Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have more faith in Doan's Kidney Pills than in any other remedy I have ever known of and it gives me great pleasure to publicly recommend them. For at least six months I was feeling all out of sorts as the result of kidney trouble. I became tired easily and had but little strength or energy to do my housework. Pains through the small of my back annoyed me a great deal. A friend, knowing of my condition, advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug store. A short time after beginning their use, I was helped and I now feel like a different person."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BRIEFS

The Orcutt Family Association is to hold an outing at Island grove on Aug. 27.

Rev. E. W. Bishop of Grand Rapids, Michigan, is to preach at Bethany church on Sunday.

Several members of the Packard family in this city are interested in the Packard Family reunion to be held in Brockton on Sept. 7.

Rev. John R. Sewell will speak at the Park and Downs church Sunday morning at 10.45. Subject, "The church's relation to the Boston 1915 movement."

The Friday evening prayer service of the Wollaston Baptist church will be held in the chapel, lead by Supt. Elford L. Durgan.

Union services with preaching by Rev. Preston Gurney will be held Sunday morning at the Wollaston Baptist church.

Mrs. Eugenie Crawford, formerly of 30 Brooks street, is now pleasantly located with Mrs. Erickson, 321 Farrington street. Mrs. Crawford is well known among the medical profession as a nurse of great ability, and is having marked success in her chosen profession.

—We owe it to the community in which we live to do everything we can in every way possible that will be to its advantage. Our neighbor's prosperity means a great deal more to us than someone's who lives elsewhere. We should bear this in mind in buying our goods. We can afford to pay our home man a fair price for his wares rather than send our money away, knowing as we do, that every dollar our own citizen makes will help in sustaining our schools, churches and public institutions. It pays richly to patronize home industry. This applies also to the merchants themselves. —Norwood Messenger.

YOUNGSTERS SEEKING FUN

Tie a Can to the Tail of a Gotham Bull Terrier

DOGGIE GOES ON A RAMPAGE

Bites Ten Persons as He Runs Through Streets Which Are Rapidly Cleared of Pedestrians — Bullet Aimed at Animal Hits Boy, While Another Creates Havoc In Butcher Shop During Miniature Panic

New York, Aug. 20.—Ten persons are suffering from dog bites, a boy from a pistol shot wound and several panes of glass in the neighborhood of Lenox avenue and 136th street are shattered, all because some fun loving children tied a tin can to the tail of a bull terrier, which immediately acted as though mad, rushing among the children and biting everybody who came near him.

Mothers, fathers, sisters and brothers threw innumerable plates, cups, saucers, dish-pans and frying pans at the animal as he barked and bit. Some of the articles, instead of hitting the terrier, landed on the heads of pedestrians scurrying out of the way.

Several men blazed away at the terrier from the windows of houses on the block with revolvers. One of the shots penetrated the foot of a boy. Another went through the window of a butcher shop, doing about fifty dollars' worth of damage, while a third broke another pane of glass.

Notwithstanding that more than one hundred shots were fired at the dog, that he was chased for nearly a mile by the reserves of two police stations and citizens, the animal, with the tin can still trailing and bumping after him, got away.

The dog was a full grown white bull terrier, owned by Harry Demore of Seventh avenue, and was well known in the neighborhood.

The dog appeared in 136th street, between Lenox and Seventh avenues. A leash was trailing from his collar, and it subsequently was learned that he had been taken for a walk by a friend of Denmore, but had broken away.

Children playing on the sidewalk called the dog. He showed a friendly interest in them and everything was going lovely until some one conceived the idea of tying the can to his tail. The children laughed with anticipation of the comical spectacle the dog would make running down the street with the can rattling on the pavement behind him, and struck him several sharp blows to accelerate the fun.

The dog hurled himself against the children like a cyclone, knocking some of them down, and snapping at everything human within reach. Most of those bitten were in the melee.

In a jiffy the block was cleared of persons and the dog ran into 135th street. As he ran up and down negroes appeared with revolvers at the upstairs windows of flat houses and opened fire on him. Their bullets went wild.

One of the bullets entered the right foot of little Otto Colman, who had ventured to return to the street. He fell, and the dog ran toward him. Henry Phillips jumped to his rescue and was bitten, but helped the Colman boy to safety before the dog had done them any further harm.

The dog seemed dazed, but continued up Seventh avenue. The cry of "mad dog!" had been given along the avenue and persons had taken refuge in doorways. The dog encountered nobody until he reached 139th street. Then he met Mrs. Tilton and Mrs. West. Mrs. West was wheeling her baby in a go-cart. She leaned over to protect the child and was badly bitten, but saved the baby from all but a scratch.

Those bitten were taken to the hospital and had their wounds cauterized, after which they went home. All trace of the dog was lost at 139th street, but policemen continued in pursuit.

ELFIE FAY OWES $2573

Actress Seeks Relief by Filing a Petition In Bankruptcy

New York, Aug. 20.—Elfie Fay, the actress, is flat broke, and has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, in which she asks the United States district court to relieve her of debts aggregating $2573.95.

Miss Fay, who for years was a Broadway favorite, and is still on the smiling side of 40, owes a good deal of money to some of the hotels in the theatre district, and owes theatrical costumers and half a dozen merchants.

CHOLERA EPIDEMIC GROWS

People In Southern Italy Thoroughly Alarmed Over the Situation

Rome, Aug. 20.—The epidemic of cholera, which has broken out in southern Italy, is steadily showing an increase in the districts already affected, particularly in the town of Trani.

The epidemic is of a virulent type and the death rate is high. Even graver danger is anticipated from the flying population of the infested districts, who may bear the germs of the disease to regions not yet involved.

Trains seem almost deserted as a result of the panic, 20,000 of the residents, fully one-half of the population, having fled the town. Fully as many have escaped from the island town of Barletta.

SEEKING $10,000 BAIL

Friends of Wezosal Deny That He Is a Virulent Russian Anarchist

Boston, Aug. 20.—Bail for Julius Wezosal, held in $10,000 upon the charge of larceny of $50,000 from the imperial treasury of Russia, following an attack upon a sub-treasury car in Tiflis, Dec. 7, 1907, will be furnished if plans of Russian advocates of freedom in Boston succeed.

Following the formation of a "Political Refugees' Defence League" active efforts were begun to obtain bail for the music teacher whom Russia declares to be one of the most virulent of anarchists, but whom Boston friends say is but an educated, progressive young Russian, interested in the amelioration of his fellow countrymen.

CITY RESEMBLES BIG PICNIC GROUND

Thousands of Jackies Enjoying Hospitality of Newport

Newport, R. I., Aug. 20.—Six thousand men from the fleet were given shore leave last night, the largest number of any night since the fleet arrived. These with the hundreds of sightseers who have been flocking into the city for days are crowding the streets until the city looks like one big picnic ground.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer completed his personal inspection of the ships of the Atlantic fleet which was commenced last week at Provincetown, visiting eight vessels here. In each instance he was saluted by the firing of nineteen guns and his flag was raised to the masthead.

Rain at one time threatened to cause a postponement of the final clambake for the enlisted men of the fleet, but when the sun broke through the clouds nearly 5000 men were treated to one of the kind of dinners that have made Rhode Island famous.

TEXTILE BUSINESS DULL

Short-Time Policy Adopted by Many New England Cotton Mills

Boston, Aug. 20.—Millions of spindles in the cotton mills of the country will be idle for periods varying from one week to sixteen days during the latter part of this month and the first half of September.

Mills in New England employing 50,000 operatives have already posted notices announcing a further curtailment and it is understood that similar action will be taken by many concerns.

In the southern states more than 3,000,000 spindles will be idle one week in Setpember. In New England a number of mills shut down last night until Sept. 6.

Duck Mills to Reopen

WANTS BODY TO BE CREMATED

Ashes to Be Strewn Along Road Near Old Homestead

WILL OF MILLIONAIRE NYE

Nothing Bequeathed to Spiritualists' Society, Though He Gave It Financial Support For Years, Thoroughly Believing In Its Teachings—Son Comes In For Most of Large Estate of Man Considered Eccentric

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 20.—The will of William F. Nye, the eccentric Fairhaven millionaire, was filed yesterday afternoon in the registry of probate in this city.

Mr. Nye was the leading figure for many years in the Onset Bay Grove association, the spiritualist meeting place. He gave it financial support for many years, and was himself a firm believer in spiritualism. It was popularly thought his will would bequeath something to the association, but it did not.

On the contrary, provision is made for the sale of large holdings of his stock in the Grove association and in the New Bedford and Onset Street Railway company and the distribution of the proceeds among relatives and others.

The will reflects the character of the man. The introductory clause directs that his body be cremated, as this "assists the spirit in more completely eliminating itself from the past environments and the last kind act is performed that one can bestow upon dear mother earth in her over-burdened conditions with diseased and decaying mortal and animal forms so contaminating the well springs of the fountains of life to the living.

"Immediate friends or neighbors may scatter my ashes from the road along the old homestead field overlooking the pond and stretch of woodland where I spent my boyhood trapping the wild game."

Another characteristic clause appears in the codicil: "To Reuben Lawrence, I wish presented $50 in gold as a souvenir of my very early memory of his grandfather, Uncle David Lawrence, as the eccentric schoolmaster of my father, who when aroused from his slumbers at his desk would exclaim, 'Zounds, boys, go to Eben with your questions.'"

The heaviest beneficiary is his son, Joseph K. Nye, to whom he leaves his Fish Island property with the oil refineries and the balance of his stock in the Grove association and the Onset Street Railway company, after certain blocks have been sold to pay other legacies. Bequests up to $2000 are made to other relatives and to old friends in smaller amounts.

Joseph K. Nye is made executor and also receives the residue of the estate. The will was drawn July 9, 1910. An unofficial estimate of the estate places its value at a million dollars.

BARONESS VAUGHAN

Leopold's Last Love, Who Got Much of His Fortune

BRIDE OF A MERCHANT

Another Matrimonial Venture by Widow of King Leopold

Paris, Aug. 20.—Baroness Vaughan, the morganatic wife of King Leopold of Belgium, and Emmanuel Durieux, a retired and rich merchant living at Neuilly sur Seine, were married at Arronville, where the baroness has been living at the chateau Balincourt.

In spite of all precautions to keep secret the marriage arrangements, the news came out and a large crowd gathered and cheered and annoyed the baroness and the prospective bridegroom as they hurried first to the mayor's office and then to church.

The mayor and cure succeeded in performing the respective ceremonies in a total of fourteen minutes.

JAPAN IS SHOWING ACTIVITY IN KOREA

News of Annexation Will Cause No Surprise In Washington

Washington, Aug. 20.—Dispatches are expected hourly at the state department telling of the announcement of an arrangement for Japan to take over the empire of Korea, forecasted by Ambassador O'Brien in a dispatch to the department from Tokio. Press dispatches describing the unusual activity of officials in Korea and of the warships controlling the Korean coast, are interpreted as substantiating the information conveyed to the department by the American ambassador.

The American government thus far has made no protest concerning Japanese domination in Korea. Following the course taken by other powers, no protest was made to that article of the Portsmouth treaty between Japan and Russia which Japan probably regards as the latest recognition of its right to take over Korea.

PRACTICALLY CURED

Doctor Says Gaynor Will Leave Hospital Within Ten Days

New York, Aug. 20.—Mayor Gaynor will leave the hospital in Hoboken within ten days practically cured, one of his attending physicians says.

The physician further states that there are no present indications necessitating an operation, and that the bullet gives the mayor no inconvenience and will not if it remains there the rest of his life. The bullet will probably become encysted, the physician says, and the worst that can be looked for will be a slight suppuration that can be as easily treated as a case of quinsy sore throat. The wound in the mayor's neck is nearly healed and the scar that will be left will be hardly noticeable.

The accident is supposed to have happened at least half an hour before the body was discovered, and the best explanation that can be found is that he slipped on the stone floor and fell in such a way that the driving rod of one of the saws struck him.

THE BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Jewelled Canes are Carried by North Shore Belles—Wear Gloves All Day and Red Silk Pajamas at Night is Fashion's Warm Edict for Luckless Men—Each Day Brings Announcement of a New Theatre in Boston—Murdered Operatic Heroes No More Will Come to Life to Receive Flowers—Suffragist Policewomen, Armed with Clubs and Revolvers, May Soon Protect their Sex from Common Rowdies.

The Hub had hardly ceased discussing the visit of President Montt of Ghili and rehearsing his many manly and brilliant qualities when the news of his sudden death in Germany was received. The peace-loving statesman will be mourned far and wide. Bostonians are glad to have had him in their midst even for so short a period, and even though his physical condition would not permit of his enjoying extensive hospitality.

Long walks with the support of jewelled walking sticks are the vogue among society matrons and maids along the fashionable North Shore. Walking is becoming very popular as a pastime among the arbiters of fads and fancies, and the swagger canes which have lately been introduced by a social favorite are rapidly increasing the numbers of converts to this wholesome exercise. Miss Rosamond Dixey, who is said to be the originator of this fad, was first seen walking with a dainty bamboo stick ornamented with diamonds and emeralds. On her second appearance she swung a dark, polished thornwood in the handle of which were rich arabesques of turquoises. The really important problem which is stirring the North Shore colonies now is that of designing the most original and attractive walking stick. Here is a field for the arts and crafts workers who are ever alert to discover new opportunities.

As a theatre town Boston has long been considered by professional folk to be second only to Gotham. Two new theatres, to be built in the near future, will further emphasize this reputation. When William Morris completes the new American Music Hall to be erected in the much discussed Park Square territority he will have added an important feature to Boston's amusement facilities. This theatre will cost for land and building over a million dollars, and, in addition to a seating capacity of 2600 people, will have a summer roof garden accommodating 1700 people. The present American Music Hall will be operated under its old name of the Orpheum as a moving picture house. The second playhouse is being built by Leibler & Company, on Eliot Street, and these two theatres will go far toward improving the district in that vicinity. The Hub is not so dead, after all, and has several of the larger cities beaten by long odds in the matter of entertainment facilities.

The most recent edicts concerning fashions for men somewhat staggered a Boston writer at the Chicago Fashion Show. The poor stylish men in order to live up to their laboriously acquired reputation must henceforth wear silk hats in the morning, must always wear gloves, no matter how warm the day, must wear a waistcoat of white or colored flannel which there is no possible excuse for discarding in hot weather, must discard jewelry, excepting perhaps an unobtrusive scarfpin, and—oh, Woe! last but not least—must lay in a stock of flaming red silk pajamas, or at least those of a similar brilliancy. The seriousness of this last edict depends on whether one is blonde, brunette or Titian-tinted as to complexion. Socks, gloves and cravat must match, and under no circumstances shall a gentleman remove his coat outside the confines of his own dressing room. The poor dear men would have nearly as hard times as do the feminine butterflies of fashion, were it not that most males are far readier to assert their independence of mere fashion.

Hereafter on the plan of the old grand opera composers will the Boston opera house be conducted. No more shall discordant applause mar the beauties of harmony nor the waving of hats and handkerchiefs conflict with the scenery. The directors have decided that the operas shall move steadily from beginning to end with no ripple of hand clapping to disturb the action, and with no more such infelicities as those of the murdered hero coming back to life to accept a bouquet of roses, or the dying heroine rising up in her bed to smile and bow to an appreciative audience. Henceforth the stabbed villain shall remain stabbed until the performance is ended, and the nightly miracle of resurrection from the dead will cease. Another welcome innovation in Boston opera rules will be the holding up of all late comers. Either opera lovers must be in their seats before the rising of the curtain or they may possess their souls in patience without the sacred portals until the act is finished. In such a production as "Parsifal," for instance, where the first act lasts about two hours, this would be a sufficient punishment for tardiness. There will doubtless be more or less fussing and fuming among the patrons of the opera, but what Director Russell and his fellow directors have said will stand.

Suffragist policewomen are the latest proposition from the equal suffrage headquarters. The officers of the association recently sent a petition to Commissioner O'Meara to allow women police officers in certain sections of the city. They found that legislation would be necessary in order to make this possible, and now they are out for the legislation. Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald, secretary of the Association, is highly in favor of having women guardians on the Common particularly, for the protection of other women. These policewomen would be supplied with clubs and revolvers—it is probable that they would also take a few lessons in shotting, although skilled marksmanship has not always been notable among the present police force—and they would be specially vigilant where mashers are concerned. There are policewomen in a number of American cities and they have been very sucessful. So the masher who holds down the beach on the Common had better beware of how freely he makes his advance to demure looking feminine passersby, else he may suddenly be hit over the head with a billet and lugged off to the station house by the strong arm of the suffragette cop. In other directions the good ladies are unceasingly active. They are undismayed by the torrid sun and summer fatigue, and are still invading the principal New England cities, where they are holding campaigns of a week's duration in each place. A notable feature of these events is the presence of three young English girls who have given matters a new impetus since their arrival, and have introduced novel methods into the campaign. A recent feat was the successful invasion of the exclusive summer resort at Nonquit, and the conduct of a drawing room meeting in the house of one of the colony's most distinguished women. The English girls find that Massachusetts women have much less of prejudice to contend with than do the women in England. They have experienced no such treatment in America as has habitually been accorded them by the men of their own country.

The Brahman Funeral Pyre.

After the body of a Brahman has been anointed with sesamum oil the two toes are bound together and the two thumbs. It is then lashed to a litter made of two long parallel poles, to which are fastened seven transverse pieces of wood. The shroud is very simple, a large piece of cloth wrapped round the body and bound with ropes of straw. If the dead Brahman leaves a will his face is not covered; otherwise the shroud is brought up over the head. The burning ground, or ghat, is usually near a river, that those who have taken part in the ceremonies may purify themselves as quickly and as easily as possible. Before erecting the funeral pyre a shallow pit is dug and partially filled with dry wood; the body is covered with splinters of dry wood and sprinkled with panchagaria, an inflammable liquid, and placed on the pyre and covered with branches and roots, like a hut. The nearest relative or heir then takes a lighted taper and sets fire to the four corners of the pile and leaves at once to perform the ceremony of purification. The carriers, being of the lowest caste, remain until the body is entirely consumed.

BREAK SEEMS NEAR AT HAND

Leaders Foresee Fight For the Presidency In 1912

ROOSEVELT MAY ENTER FIELD

Friends Say He Will Not See His Policies Sidetracked—Does Not Intend to Engage In Fight In Empire State but Will "Jump In" If He Believes Occasion Requires—Open Rupture May Not Be Long Delayed

New York, Aug. 20.—Mr. Roosevelt will in all probability run for president in 1912. President Taft will fight him for the nomination.

While a break in the personal relations between the president and his predecessor has not yet developed, at least on the surface, it is not seen how it can be deferred long in the inevitable course of events.

No prospects of truce between the republican factions in the approaching campaign is in sight.

These are the developments which political leaders say stand out after the smoke of the preliminary skirmish, in which the Roosevelt supporters were routed by the "Old Guard."

In the Beverly despatches which report that President Taft is ready to fight for renomination against Roosevelt should the latter enter the lists against him, it is asserted that Taft is willing to submit his record in office against that of Roosevelt and let the people of the United State arbitrate the issue.

Mr. Roosevelt, personally, is giving out no statements. He came to The Outlook office in this city, but announced that he would have nothing to say on the situation. He received a number of visitors at Sagamore Hill and held a three-hour conference with a number of close friends. Among them were William Loeb., Jr., Representative Cocks, of Roosevelt's home district, Lloyd C. Griscom, Representative Calder of Brooklyn, and Naval Officer Kracke, who has been one of Roosevelt's closet political advisers for years.

It is learned that the ex-president and his friends have agreed on a plan of action which will hold until the situation shapes itself more clearly. Briefly stated, it is this: Roosevelt is to stand aside in the New York state campaign, and let the "Old Guard" fight its own fight, and thus shoulder all the responsibility for the conduct and result of the campaign. He is neither to indorse nor criticise the Taft administration.

One important proviso was emphasized at the conference. Those with whom he talked were made to understand clearly that Roosevelt reserves to himself the right to jump into the thick of the fight at any time if he believes that the policies of which he is the exponent are in serious jeopardy. But he let it be known that he would do so with extreme reluctance, for he feels that in such a contingency he might be led inevitably into a controversy with the Taft administration.

From what was said after the conference, it was gathered that Roosevelt believes the present attitude of men who are influential in the national administration are hostile to him, and that an open rupture may result. In such case Roosevelt feels that he may be compelled at some juncture to exert his influence against the administration.

Those who are closest to the ex-president believe that he will do everything in his power to avert such a crisis during the fall campaign. It is their opinion that if he should decide to fight, he prefers to postpone the struggle until the 1912 campaign, when the question of the nation's policy for the next four years is to be brought before the entire country, and when a successor to Taft is to be elected.

Should such an issue between Roosevelt and the administration present itself at that time, it is the firm belief of the colonel's intimate associates that he will be in the fight to the end, that he will stake his own future on the outcome, and again become a candidate for the presidency.

NEGROES PLEDGE SUPPORT

Declare Themselves Ready to Vote For Roosevelt In 1912

New York, Aug. 20.—The support of the negro electorate of the United States for a possible third term was pledged in behalf of Colonel Roosevelt by the 110 delegates of the National Negro Business Men's League here in convention.

The indorsement of the former president came after he had addressed the delegates on the opportunities for advancement open to the negro in this country, and as the climax of an earnest and eloquent eulogy of his conduct in office made by Bishop Clinton of this city.

In his address Roosevelt urged his hearers to practise the doctrine of self help. He condemned the false prophets who preached envy and bitterness, and counselled the negroes to make the most of the many opportunities now open to them.

PILES
"I have suffered with piles for thirty-six years. One year ago last April I began taking Cascarets for constipation. In the course of a week I noticed the piles began to disappear and at the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. Cascarets have done wonders for me. I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Kryder, Napoleon, O.

BRIEFS

Miss Mabel Johnson is a guest of her sister, Mrs. Samuel Johnson at Cochesett.

Friends of Mr. P. P. Burke of Larry street are pleased to know he is convalescing from his serious illness.

The famous European novelty artists, Misses Tearle and Provan will be at Music hall tonight.

The annual outing of the Washington M. French Hose association will be held next Saturday at the Squantum Inn.

Ruel Dunbar and O. B. Mirling of Brockton are enjoying a few days' fishing trip in Quincy bay on Capt. Clark's boat.

The beam trawler Foam has been launched at Quincy. The first boat of this type was the Spray. This beam trawling seems to be a splashy business.—Globe.

Officers Milford, Johnson, Larkin and Curtin returned from their vacations today and Officers Reiley, Duane, Corbett and Ford begin their vacations.

Elisha Packard was at Rockland this week, calling on friends in the interests of the Beal Family reunion, of which family Mrs. Packard is a member.

C. Theodore Hardwick is doing very well since his misfortune. His leg has been put in a plaster cast, and it is expected that he will soon be able to walk with the aid of crutches.

A party of twenty young people from Campello enjoyed an auto ride to Houghs Neck Thursday evening, where they spent the evening dancing, returning by moonlight.

Mrs. Harriet Hoeffner, wife of Charles Hoeffner, upholsterer, died yesterday at her home on L street, Brockton. She was 53 years old. Mrs. Hoeffner was born in Quincy, but she had made her home in Brockton for some time.

Major James McKay of the State police, formerly of this town, is looking after Restelli, the Quincy murderer, among the Italian colonies along the Vermont line. The Major speaks Italian in several Berkshire dialects, and he ought to get his man—if he is up that way.—Hyde Park Gazette.

Mayor Shea does not relish the advertising that some of the Boston papers have been giving him of late in relation to becoming a judge at the barn dance at Houghs Neck and other events. According to his honor the use of his name as a judge was unauthorized and furthermore he was not even honored with an invitation to the affair if all reports are true. It is hardly necessary to say that he was not numbered among those present.

DEATHS.

HARDING—In Wollaston, Aug. 19, Capt William F. Harding, of 21 Winthrop avenue, in his 54th year.
Funeral services on Sunday at 2 P. M. from his late residence. Relatives and friends invited. Burial at Brewster.

MOSHER—In South Braintree, Aug. 18, Rev. Benjamin F. Mosher, aged 78 years, 7 months and 12 days. Funeral private.

CAMPION—In Randolph, Aug. 19, Mr. John Campion, aged 81 years.

DOLLY TWO AND IRIS TWO

Today's Race Will Decide Who Gets Day Cup

Friday's race for the Day cup, under the auspices of the Interbay Catboat Association, was captured by the Dolly III of the Quincy Yacht club. The race was held over the course of the Conduit yacht club at Jamestown. It was a close race between the Dolly and Iris, and the latter boat would doubtless have won but for a slight accident at the outer mark when she carried away a part of her mast head. At that time the Iris had a lead of over two minutes over the Dolly. She made temporary repairs and was able to finish the race, but in last place.

The Dolly after the Iris had dropped behind, had things her own way and at the finish had a lead of exactly nine minutes over the Ina, the second boat. As a result of Friday's race the Iris and Dolly each have won two races, and today's race will decide the ownership of the cup.

The summary:

Post Island nestled on the coast in a quiet spot midway between Quincy and Houghs Neck has considerable social life of a neighborly happy kind in which all participate. Last week there was an outdoor minstrel show at which Mrs. William B. Ferguson of Wollaston was interlocutor. Last night was held the annual illumination which was a great success and was a pretty sight to view.

• • •

BRAINTREE HIGHLANDS

Ray S. Hubbard spent this week in Amherst, Mass.

Miss Lottie Haskins of Montello is visiting Miss Helen Emery of Washington street.

Master John Chase returned yesterday from a ten days' stay in Wilton, N. H.

The Braintree Highlands Neighborhood club held its third annual lawn party—its first under its present name— Wednesday evening. The attendance was good, in spite of the cold weather. Hollis' automobile was kept busy giving joy rides to parties of young people.

In the progressive whist, participated in by some of the visitors, Mrs. Nora Warner was the winner of the first souvenir and Ralph Cain of the booby.

The candy booth, presided over by Miss Edith White, was well patronized, as were the ice cream table in charge of Miss Albina Cain and Mrs. Thomas Murphy and the grab table, in charge of Mrs. Hannah Horton.

Music was furnished by a Quincy orchestra and the grounds were prettily lighted with Japanese lanterns.

The prize of $2.50 in gold for the lucky ticket went to Francis Mahar of Braintree. Master Harland White, aged 4 years, drew the number from the box.

The affair was in charge of the executive committee, Mrs. Edith Cain, Mrs. Herbert White, Mrs. Hannah Horton, Miss Albina Cain and Mrs. Anna B. Hubbard, but many of the other members worked equally hard for its success.

FORE RIVER SCHEDULE

Association Football Season Will Begin in Two Weeks

The Fore River Association football team has been in existence for seven years, and has a remarkable record. Its present manager is Duncan McVickar.

Three years ago the team drew with the Corinthians of England by a score of 1 to 1, in the finest game ever seen in America. They won the Merrimac Valley league cup three times in succession, so that it is now the sole property of the club. They were nosed out, 2 to 1, in the finals for the New England cup, by the Gothams of Providence, two years ago. Last year they were barely defeated 2 to 1 by the Boston Rangers at the Caledonian games.

The club held a smoke talk last night at which the gold medals were presented which were won as second prize by the following men at this year's Caledonian games: D. McDonald, G. Eliot, R. Carruthers, R. Lewis, R. Melville.

The football team is notably one of the strongest in New England, and will undoubtedly make a strong play for the cup. The Team will be chosen from the following: Neil, Riddes, Lewis, McGregor, Harkness, McDonald, Meldrum, Newman, J. McDonald, Melville, F. Carruthers, Barnes, Hughs, Eliot, Farrell, Richie, D. McDonald, Nuttle.

The schedule as arranged by the Fore River team for the season is:

Sept. 3, Brockton at Quincy.
Sept. 10, Open.
Sept. 17, Charlestown at Quincy.
Sept. 24, Boston Rovers at Boston.
Oct. 1, McGregors at Quincy Point.
Oct. 8, Lynn City at Lynn.
Oct. 12, McGregors at Water street.
Oct. 15, Lynn Fosse at Quincy.
Oct. 22, Lynn Fosse at Lynn.
Oct. 29, Beverly at Quincy.
Nov. 5, Brockton at Brockton.
Nov. 12, Boston Americans at Quincy.
Dec. 3, Boston Rangers at Brighten.
Dec. 17, Charlestown at Charlestown.
Dec. 24, oston Americans at Boston.
Dec. 24, Boston Americans at Boston.

SPORTING CHAT.

There is a possibility that some of the games played by Quincy of the Old Colony league may be thrown out. Information was received from President McEldowney of the Altoona, Pa., club of the Tri-State league, that Glaze is the property of the Altoona club and under reserve by that team which is under National protection. President Shea of Quincy states that he knows nothing of this. He was assured that Glaze was a free agent and eligible to play Old Colony league ball. President Farrell of the National commission will be approached as to Glaze's standing. If Glaze is under National protection, the games he pitched will be thrown out and played over again, by provision of the league's constitution. Glaze is the best pitcher in the league, and has won every game he pitched. He will be away until Labor Day on his vacation. If Johnny Glaze is found ineligible to pitch Old Colony league games it will cause a most remarkable mix-up in the league. There is little doubt but the rumor is the upshot of jealousy. President Murphy of the Old Colony league has been notified.

THE FRIENDLY FOES MEET.

By James C. Dunn.

C. F., the second, the Noblemen meet,
And sailed the Harpoon friendly foes to defeat,
It's the word of an Adams that never has failed;
These victories he's won friendly foes he's out sailed,
The descendants of Nobles who discovered our land
Ruled by his ancestors, faithful and grand.

Thunder and Lightning.

A bishop came to visit a church where a colored minister was presiding. Loudly and with much gesticulation the preacher proclaimed salvation. When he had finished he approached the bishop and asked how he liked the sermon.

The bishop answered, "Why, pretty well, but don't you think you spoke too loud?"

"Well," said the preacher, "it's this way: What I lacks in lightning I tries to make up in thunder."—Ladies' Home Journal.

MARVELLOUS RECORD FOR THE HARPOON

Taft Cup Will Be Presented by President Aboard the Yacht Sylph

One More Race to Determine Winner of Draper Cup

Saturday's race between the American and Spanish sonder boats for the President Taft and Governor Draper cups determined the ownership of the Taft cup, as the Harpoon, owned and sailed by Charles Adams of Quincy won again. Four races were sailed last week, and the Harpoon finished first in every race, although she was disqualified in the first race for fouling a buoy.

These races give the Harpoon a unique record. Of all the races in which she has sailed in only one race has she been headed. This was during the trial races when the Beaver and Cima by going to the eastward received a decided lift. In the other races the Harpoon lost two races, both by fouls and one because she was not within the class limitalions. In all she has won at least 12 races and finished first at least 14 times.

Three times has Charlie Adams tried for the principal trophy in the international sonder matches. In 1906 he sailed the Auk, but lost to the Vim. He then built the Crooner, but she did not develop the speed expected, and she was not selected. This yar the Harpoon was built and she has proved herself almost invincible.

In all of the boats that Charlie Adams has built for racing the "O O" have been prominent in the name, and there seems to be luck for him in the combination of these two letters.

In Saturday's race the wind was true from the northeast throughout the race, so that none of the six racers received any advantage by a shift in the breeze, and the race was won on its merits.

President Taft witnessed the race from the deck of the Sylph, and his presence added interest to the race. The Spanish boats were thoroughly outclassed by the American boats, so that the race settled down to practically two races, one between the American boats, and one between the Spanish boats.

After the race Saturday the Harpoon remained near the starting line until the first of the Spanish boats finished, when her skipper and crew gave the visitor three hearty cheers.

There is one more race today to decide the winner of the Gov. Draper cup. The Harpoon, however, having won the Taft cup is eliminated from this race. The standing for the Draper cup up to today was Beaver 20, Cima 18, Chonta 13, Papoose 8, Mosquito II 6.

The Taft cup will be presented to ex-Commodore Charles F. Adams 2d. on the deck of the Sylph by President Taft.

The elapsed time in the race of Saturday was:

	h	m	s
Harpoon, C. F. Adams 2d, America	2	14	30
Beaver, C. H. W. Foster, America	2	16	37
Cima, Guy Lowell, American	2	18	19
Chonta, Luis de Arama, Sbain	2	36	37
Papoose, Antonio Echeguren, Spain	2	38	25
Mosquito II, Victoriano L Dotiga, Spain	2	41	14

ILLEGAL SALE.

George Seymour, a deck hand on the steamer Houghs Neck, was arrested about 10.30 Saturday night by Officer Goodhue, for the illegal sale of liquor. Seymour slept in a small shanty at the end of the steamboat wharf, and to increase his revenue decided to go into the liquor business. Friday night he laid in a stock of whiskey in pint bottles and was then ready for business.

Saturday night Officer Phillips disguised as a workman entered the shanty and purchased one of Seymour's pints, for which he handed over fifty cents. While the transaction was taking place Officer Goodhue was looking in through the window. As soon as the money passed he stepped in and placed Seymour under arrest. In court Seymour was fined $50.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Stephen Kusser, aged 65 years, was found dead in bed Sunday morning at his home 12 Wittich place. Mr. Kusser was a granite cutter by trade, and had not been in good health for some time. Sunday A. M. not appearing as usual his family entered his room and found him dead. Medical Examiner Fraser, who was called, gave the cause of death as heart disease.

LONG SWIM BY GIRLS.

Quincy also has young ladies who are making a reputation as long distance swimmers. On Sunday at noon Miss Mary Hayward of Quincy avenue and Miss Gertrude Labadre of Germantown, each about 17 years of age, swam from Hayward's creek to Wessagussett beach at North Weymouth, a distance of three or four miles in one hour and fifteen minutes. They were accompanied by friends in boats, while others in motor boats hampered them on the course. The girls say they will swim to Peddocks island some day. They attracted much attention.

CHAMPION CAT BOAT

Dolly and Iris Captain Dozen or More Trophies

The champion Cape cat boats of the Atlantic seaboard, the Dolly III and the Iris returned today from their triumphal series of races in Narragansett bay, where they met the crack yachts of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and established a great record. Great as was the victories in the races, the Iris made a wonderful trip home. Leaving Narragansett bay at 2 A. M. Sunday she reached her Quincy moorings at 2.45 A. M. Monday. Less than 25 hours for this long and dangerous outside trip around Cape Cod which has been the grave for many large ships.

Two cups were offered in the daily races which these yachts entered last week in addition to the pennant and principal trophy and the Dolly and Iris captured twelve or more trophies, either first or second prizes.

The Quincy yachtsmen are enthusiastic over the courtesies extended to them everywhere. At a grand banquet at the Belvidere Hotel at Bristol, R. I., Saturday evening the crews of the competing boats were each presented a medal.

There will be a gala night at the Quincy Yacht club house later when the cups are formally presented.

Saturday's race for the Thomas Fleming Day cup in the Interbay series at Narragansett bay was little more than a drifting match. The course sailed was one of five miles, and after the race started there was scarcely enough wind to fill the sails. After being out two hours there was a little puff of wind from the northwest and the Bother which was then drifting backward came to the front in company with the Dolly and Iris.

The Dolly finished first, but the Bother got first position on corrected time. The result of Saturday's race does not alter the destination of the cup, for four of the races were won by the Massachusetts bay boats, so that the cup will be brought to Quincy to be raced for next season off the Quincy club house in Hull bay.

As the Dolly won the first day's race the special pennant as the champion Cape cat of America goes to her. During the race the Dolly scores two firsts and three seconds while the Iris scored two firsts, a second, and two lasts, one of the latter being due to a breakdown in Friday's race.

The Day trophy was awarded on the point system. The number of points by each boat was as follows: Dolly, 440; Iris, 320; Ina, 280; Bother, 260; and Virginia, 200. On the percentage basis the boats stood Dolly .88; Iris .64; Ina .56; Bother .52 and Virginia .40. The team percentages were Massachusetts, .76 Narragansett bay, .54 and Barnegat bay .40.

Saturday evening the visiting yachtsmen were tendered a banquet by the Narragansett bay club at which there were addresses by Mr. Day the doner of the cup, Rear Commodore Crane and others, and medals were presented to the members of the several crews. The Dolly and Iris started in tow for home Sunday. The summary of Saturday's race:

PROBABLY NOT RESTELLI

But Dead Man at Hartford Resembles Him

Inspector Daniel R. McKay, who has been in New York and Vermont for the past three weeks on the Restelli case, returned to Quincy this morning. While he did not find any trace of the wanted man he perfected arrangements with the police in the places visited, so that should Restelli show up in any of them he could be recognized and apprehended.

The police do not place much credulence in the story from Hartford, Conn., that the man Luigi Coletti who was murdered there Aug. 9, is the Luigi Restelli of Quincy. The description of the two men is very similar however. The man known as Coletti, according to receipts in his trunk, purchased a watch and revolver in Boston. He also had a passport issued at Palermo, and a picture showing him in the uniform of a soldier in the Italian army.

If these articles were the property of the dead man, the police say he cannot be Restelli, as the latter is a native of Lombardy. Then Restelli never served in the Italian army.

Chief Burrell, however, sent the Hartford police a complete discription of Restelli, which contains some prominent features, so that there can be no mistake in finding out if Coletti is the man wanted in Quincy.

A Restelli suspect was arrested in the South station this noon as he was about to board the 12.45 train. The suspect had a mustache and wore a light colored cap. Three women were with him at the time the police pounced upon him. He satisfied the officers that he was not the man wanted.

SQUANTUM !?

(EVER HEAR OF THE PLACE?)

IS A PART OF QUINCY !?

¶ It is not under water nor a hundred miles from Boston. In a short time (through the kindness of the City Fathers) you will be able to get there without swimming or fear of drowning.

¶ It has some city water, some electric lights, and telephone connections for such as pay for it. Also electric cars visit this place occasionly, with five cent fares from all parts of Quincy.

¶ With the above information would you risk the price (5 cents) and take a journey to the wild domains of this unexplored region?

¶ As a minor side attraction it might be mentioned that the Harvard Aviation Field is located here, on which a few pennies are being expended preparing the grounds and a few more may possibly be expended during the meet, Sept. 3rd. to 13th.

¶ Finally, though perhaps of less importance, the undersigned begs to add that he has a few (hundred)

LOTS OF LAND

overlooking sea and country, islands and bays, dotted with beautiful shade trees and bounded by sandy beaches, cool healthful and restful, which he wishes to transfer to sojourners for only a fraction of their value.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Nothing ever happens that shakes our opinion that the pistol toter is this country's most deadly menace.

The silver lining of our cloud these days is that the pirate who sells us meat has also to buy ice.

There is to be aneclipse of the moon in November. It is predicted that there will also be some political eclipses about that time.

The census gives poor old Houston, Texas, only a measly 78,000! What Houston lacks is population, however, it makes up in holler.

Texas is for Bailey for President. Texas is the lone star state and we shall not be surprised if it proves to be the lone Bailey State.

If conservation of national resources was an issue that could be disposed of by a few humorous anecedotes, Mr. Cannon would have been rid of it a long time ago.

Would that Quincy base ball fans had more of the spirit displayed by Charles Franics Adams, 2d, in yachting. Last year ex-Commodore Adams lost the Quincy Challenge cup, but he did not cry baby. This year he went out to win it back, but only in a true sportsmanship way. All Quincy was looking to him to win and considerable was at stake. In the first race he finished first, but he protested himself and was disqualified. Then and there he established himself as a gentleman. But the other races also came his way and he won not only a reputation but the trophy. All the papers commented on the true sportsmanship of Mr. Adams, which was worth more to him than victory.

Again, in the International races, when all America was hoping the American boats would win, Mr. Adams finished first in the first race, but again disqualified himself for a foul. This true sport, however, won a big cup, in the races which followed and set an example in all sports.

How different the affair at the Wateş street base ball grounds on Saturday. At the last moment two men were drafted as umpires because the man expected did not show up. They alternated each inning in judging the pitchers' work and the bases, but the Quincys were getting beat by good work of the visitors, and the pitcher of the home team kicked in the seventh inning. Up to that time only one Rockland man had obtained his base on balls, so there had not been much favoritism, but the crowd took sides with the pitcher, and were not inclined to give the umpire or the visitors fair play. Only police protection at the end of the game prevented bodily injuries to Mr. Donovan.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

A Quincy paper recently protested editorially that dispatches concerning the Boston-Harvard aero meet should be dater from Quincy and not from Atlantic, because papers outside of New England would be sure to get it as "Atlantic City." And pat upon the suggestion, the New York Worldof yesterday made just that mistake. Of course, if "Quincy" is used, there is some small chance of confusion with Quincy, Ill. Why not date the stories from Squantum? Then there would be no possibility of mistake.—Globe.

Diggs—So your daughter is married,, eh?

Biggs—Yes.

Diggs—And how does your new son-in-law strike you?

Biggs—For a "V" or an "X" usually.—Chicago Post.

CHILD KILLED.

Audrey, the three and one-half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Walter, of 124 Fayette street, was instantly killed at Norfolk Downs Saturday afternoon by being run over by a runaway horse and tip cart said to belong to Hugh Gilmartin of Atlantic.

The tip cart was being used in excavating for an addition to the Pneumatic Scale Co., plant at Norfolk Downs. The little girl was at play beneath a tree. The horse became frightened and ran away. The driver started after him but before he could be captured the horse had passed so near the little girl that one of the wheels struck her in such a manner as to break her neck. She also received a fracture of the skull and death was almost instantaneous. It is said that the little girl saw the horse coming, but did not have time to get out of the way.

Medical Examiner Jones was out of town, and word was sent to Medical Examiner Fraser of Weymouth, who viewed the body which was taken in charge of Undertaker Fay and removed to her home. The child's parents are grief stricken over their great loss, and are inconsolable. Funeral services were held this afternoon from her late home.

McGREGOR WIN.

Saturday, Sept. 3, the soccer football season starts and the teams are training and playing practice games preparatory to the start. Saturday at New Downer Landing, the McGregors of Quincy defeated Charlestown, 5 to 2.

After a few minutes of play Hendy scored for McGregor and almost immediately after the whistle scored again, Roe and Hendy notching the third and fourth. The first half was fast and McGregor had the play almost entirely.

The second half was hot and exciting, Charlestown notching two goals on Daly's fast work. Rennie then took the ball for McGregor, and passed it down the field to Roe who notched the fifth and last goal.

Drysdale in goal, Craig as left back, Meldrum as left half, Rennie and Roe as forwards, were the stars for McGregor, playing fast and brilliantly. Charlestown was strong but were unable to cope with the play of the McGregors.

NORTH QUINCYS WIN.

The North Quincys defeated the Montclairs Saturday afternoon by a score of 6 to 5. The features of the game were the batting of Hoyt, who made three hits for a total of 10 bases; the first base playing of Curtis, and the pitching of Smith, who struck out 10 men. Melanson of the Montclairs caught a fine game, and showed great form at the bat, and it was conceded by many that he has a great future before him. First baseman Quale played a snappy game. The North Quincys have playcd 15 games, winning 14 of them.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
No. Quincy	0	1	2	2	1	0	0	0		—6

QUARREL OVER CARDS

Leads to Probable Murder Directly In Front of Boston Church

Boston, Aug. 22.—A quarrel over a card game in the North End led to a probable murder in North square last night, when Pasquale Nigratti, 22 years old, was shot in the abdomen by Charles Attolino, 22. Nigratti is dying.

Two shots were fired by Attolino when he and his victim met directly opposite the Sacred Heart church. The shooting terrorized those who were on their way to church for devotional exercises, and they fled into nearby houses, while citizens put after and captured the fleeing Attolino.

Try This "RICHMOND"
Suds-Maker Free

You simply turn the faucet and the "Richmond" Suds-Maker delivers thick, hot suds. It does not in any way interfere with the hot water faucet and can be easily attached to it. It gives you instead, two faucets—one for clean, hot water—the other for thick, hot suds.
Think of the dozens of ways this ingenious device will cut down the work in the kitchen! Learn what it means to save hundreds of steps every day—to always have thick, creamy soap suds on tap. The "Richmond" Suds Maker gives you any quantity of soap and water thoroughly mixed in scientific proportion—it is always ready to meet your instant needs. It puts an end to the drudgery of dish washing—simply place dishes, silver, glassware under its creamy suds for an instant, then just rinse and wipe. It puts an instant, automatic end to waste, to unsightly soap dishes, to the nuisance of using up the odds and ends of soap. Use any kind of soap.
Just call on the plumber whose name appears below and ask to see the Richmond Suds-Maker. He will let you take one home to try. Use it ten days—then if you think you can spare it, return it, for the trial places you under no obligation to buy. This is your chance to learn about the greatest convenience, money and time saver you can install in your kitchen. Call today.

STRUCK BY AUTO.

While crossing from the west to the east side of Hancock street Sunday evening at 5.40 o'clock, Charles B. Cummings, 69 years old, who lives alone in the rear of 1597 Hancock street in front of which he was struck down was struck by an automobile owned and driven by W. R. Connell of Milton. Cummings was taken to his residence and attended by Dr. Ellsworth, who found no indication of anything but a severe shaking up.

The auto, which was going toward City Square, turned to the right to pass Cummings, but he being deaf did not hear it, and continued to walk across the right hand roadway. In the effort to avoid him, Connell drove onto the sidewalk, and was only able to put on his brakes after Cummings had been struck. He was struck on the right side by the left mud guard of the machine and knocked to his face. He sustained no serious injuries. He is a member of Paul Revere G. A. R. post..

THE SUNDAY FIRE.

The alarm from Box 24 at 6.24 Sunday night, followed in a few minutes by a second alarm from the same box, was for a fire in a small stable on Whitwell street owned by John Anderson. The stable was situated near a house, and as the fire department did not arrive as quick as expected it was thought to hurry them up by sounding a second alarm. The second alarm did not hurry the department any, for it was already making good time, but it did result in sending a large crowd to the box which is located near the City Hospital, many fearing that building was on fire. The fire department made quick work of the fire which started in the hay loft of the building. The loss will not exceed $150.

COWARDLY HUSBANDS.

Miss Floretta Vining, the publisher of the Hull Beacon, and well known in Quincy, wields a fearless pen. In an editorial today on "Cowardly husbands" she says in part:

"Oh, you gay South Shore hubby! I have lost all faith in husbands. The habit of married men and women being off to supper with other husbands should be condemned. What are we coming to if this thing continues? A woman has no way of keeping in sight a husband when she has little children to care for, and she is mean to deprive her husband of enjoyment when he works hard all day. This is the cry. No, sir, she cannot let her husband out of her sight. I have seen so much of it this year that if the children are sick he should stay at home with her and at least keep her company while she takes the responsibility.

"I certainly shall say aloud, don't believe all your husbands tell you. Out of these neighborly automobile trips and suppers will come harm that never can be made whole, and married women are to be condemned to the extreme. The single women are not in it with the married women. The whole thing is scandalous. Mothers, behave yourselves, and do not show the world your miserable character.

"Those that know you and see you drinking and feasting put a nail in your character that goes down to your children, and don't for one moment forget it. It is as sure your ruin as can be. What a single man or woman does is not harming anyone but themselves, but these reverse married couple business should be condemned by every decent man and woman. The practice of a man of family hiring a summer cottage and all having its benefit was the best policy; now the children suffer on the score of economy while the father and mother use their own or their neighbor's automobile, and this is the way things are drifting this year, 1910.

"Beware, I tell you, of its consequences, and, cowardly husbands, assume your part and don't leave the disagreeable things to your wife to do, and find a way to go with your husband. It doesn't pay to let him out alone. It is well to get him, but keep him after you have got him by simply keeping him company and if you don't somebody else will. You live on Nantasket Beach for a couple of summers and you won't wonder at the attitude I take on cowardly husbands."

W. Y. C. DORY RACE.

The weekly dory race under the auspices of the Wollaston yacht club was held Sunday. There were only three entries and the Elizabeth F., was a winner by nearly ten minutes. The wind was fresh from the southeast, and the course was a triangular one of seven miles.

Crippen Nearly Falls Overboard In Ominous Accident

Dew Leaves Quebec With Prisoners Charged With Murder of Belle Elmore—Inspector and His Assistants Under Assumed Names—Race With Reporters In Effort to Smuggle Crippen and Miss Leneve Away

Quebec, Aug. 22.—Hawley H. Crippen and Ethel C. Leneve have sailed for England, on board the White Star liner Megantic, due at Liverpool at noon next Saturday. By Saturday night they will probably be lodged in a London jail to await trial for the murder of a woman supposed to be Crippen's wife, Belle Elmore.

An extraordinary accident occurred as Crippen crossed the gangplank. It carried an omen that might well depress a man in the shadow of the hangman's rope. Crippen came hurrying across the plank handcuffed, his hat pulled low over his eyes and his chin buried in his collar, trying apparently to dodge the photographers.

In his haste he ran squarely into a rope that held the gangway steady. The rope caught him under the chin and jerked him backward, and had not Inspector Dew, who was close behind, caught him, Crippen woud have fallen and possibly pitched into the water. The next instant Dew had set him on his feet, and the pair disappeared on the steamer.

Miss Leneve, who had left the jail with every evidence of willingness, had to be supported as she crossed the gangplank. As she reached the deck of the Megantic she fainted and had to be carried to her cabin. It was half an hour before she revived.

Inspector Dew managed the departure of the pair in a manner that furnished a fitting climax to their sensational capture. He entered his name on the passenger list as "Silas P. Doyle." This in spite of the fact that Dew was probably the best known man aboard and that among his 900 fellow-passengers fully 600 had met him in Quebec.

Consistently he registered his assistant, Sergeant Mitchell of Scotland Yard, as "M. F. G. Johnston." Mrs. Stone, one of the wardresses, brought from London to look after Miss Leneve, appeared on the passenger list as "Mary Byrne," and Miss Foster, her companion, as "Miss Ogilvie."

After making secret arrangements to board this steamer Dew conducted his prisoners with an air of mystery that set the city in an uproar and brought every reporter and photographer in Quebec upon his heels. He smuggled them from the local jail with three hacks and five provincial detectives to help his own Scotland Yard force. Then, by circuitous routes he drove to the river at Sillery, a village only a mile from the jail in a straight line, but a measured seven miles over the road he chose.

In an automobile the reporters reached Sillery in time to see the tug Queen puffing up the river with Dew on deck wearing a triumphant smile. Thus the British detectives escaped the photographers on shore, but the Queen had to lie off Cape Rouge for nearly three hours until the liner arrived.

Alert photographers had thus all the chance in the world to charter a tug in Quebec and steam up the river. And they took it. The Queen was overhauled just as the Megantic hove in sight.

Finding his task impossible, Dew finally had the Queen lashed to the steamer's side, and put Crippen and Miss Leneve aboard under a camera fire partly masked by the efforts of the two prisoners to hide their faces.

While the prisoners were being transferred from the Queen to the Megantic, passengers on the latter were barred from the shelted deck by which the pair entered. There was a heavy fire of small cameras, however, from the deck above.

SHOOTING AT HINGHAM.

Passengers waiting to take a train from the West Hingham depot this morning about 7.30 o'clock, were thrown into a state of frenzie when three shots in quick succession rang out, and a man with a smoking pistol in his hand started to run toward East Weymouth.

Lying on the depot platform was Rocco Cauldi with three bullet holes in him. The police were promptly notified and the injured man taken to a Boston hospital, where it is said he is not dangerously injured.

The police of adjoining towns were notified and a hunt for the assassin was instituted. Shortly after the police arrested an Italian as the man who fired the shots. He gave his name as Domenico Crea. He was taken to the police station and later to the hospital to see if Cauldi could recognize him. The shooting is said to have grown out of a dispute between the two men.

MUDJEKEEWIS A WINNER

Also the Brownie and the Polaris

Three classes took part in the race of the Quincy Yacht club Saturday afternoon, and there was considerable interest in the race, for in addition to a regular club race of the local club it was a sail-off race of the Columbia club, so that a win counted not only in the Quincy club but in the Columbia club as well.

The breeze was a light one from the southeast, and the course selected was one of six miles. In Class D the Dartwell was the first to finish, but she lost to the Mudjekeewis by one second on corrected time. The Josephine was third and the Emeline fourth. The C. C. withdrew during the race. The Brownie won in the special class and the Polaris in class B. The judges were John O. Hall, George S. Morse, and A. A. Acorn.

CROSSES SOUND IN AIR

Harmon Wins $2000 Cup and "Drops In" on His Father-In-Law

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 22.—Clifford B. Harmon, the millionaire aviator, landed safely here in his Farman biplane, after a thirty-minute night flight across Long Island sound and up the Connecticut shore, a total distance of twenty-eight miles. The last ten miles of the flight he travelled at the rate of a mile a minute.

This was the first flight across the sound in a heavier-than-air machine. Harmon started from the aviation grounds at Garden City, flew over Mineola, Roslyn, hence over Long Island sound to Larchmont, where he turned northeast and continued upshore to Indian Harbor in this town.

He made the flight for various reasons. One is the $2000 cup offered for the first airship flight from Mineola across the sound to any point beyond (or east of) the Mamaroneck river.

Another reason was a promise to a group of Englishmen at the Larchmont club that he would fly across the sound and within sight of the Larchmont club, so the Englishmen could see him in mid-air.

A third reason was his promise to his father-in-law, Commodore E. C. Benedict, that some evening he would "drop in" with his airship for dinner at the Benedict summer home at Indian Harbor.

The machine was badly damaged by the hasty landing, but Harmon was unhurt.

RAMBLER VICTORY

Almost Shut Out Dorchester at the Park

The Ramblers won their 16th game Saturday from Dorchester, by the score of 8 to 1 at Merrymount park.

"Mil" Chapman pitched a steady game striking out 11. In seven men up in the 7th and 8th he struck out six. His six hits were all scattered, and would have blanked the crack Dorchester nine but that Miller held the ball just a little too long to get his man at the plate.

Caine, recently a Bigelow, played his first game getting in a good hit, three assists and sent-out. O'Brien hit the ball to the far end of centre field fence for a triple, also getting in a single, 3 runs and 4 stolen bases. The all around hitting o the Chapman brothers was a strong feature, they getting 5 of the 12 hits.

Desaulnilis who pitched against the Boston Typers for a 17 inning tie was good for two innigs.

The way the Ramblers played Saturday at bat and fielding was enough to take starch out of any team.

OTHER GAMES.

The Quincy Points trimmed the North Weymouths 18 to 10 Saturday. Metcalf of the winning team struck out 16 men.

At Norwell on Saturday the Norwells beat Makaria by a shut out score. The pitching of Burrell for Norwell won the game. He fanned nine. Curtis fielded brilliantly.

The Glenwood A. A. of Cambridge won over the Washingtons of Quincy in a fourteen inning game, score 10 to 7. H. Leland of victors accepted 18 chances. Blanchard and McDonald featured for the home team.

SHERMAN AND CURTIS ARE EXONERATED

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 22.—The congressional committee investigating the bribery charges brought by Senato Gore in connection with the proposed Indian lands contracts held by J. F. McMurray, formally and officially exonerated Vice President Sherman and Senator Curtis of Kansas of any connection with the contracts.

This action followed the reading of a statement prepared by Gore exonerating the two men and urging the committee to take formal action on the matter.

LOWELL HAS QUAKE SCARE

Surrounding Towns Also Have Tremors Lasting Several Minutes

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 22.—Residents of a portion of the city of Lowell and of several of the surrounding towns in the Merrimac valley were disturbed physically and mentally by a seismic disturbance which occurred Sunday afternoon.

The earth tremors lasted for several minutes and were of sufficient force to ratttle dishes and to be distinctly felt by all those persons within the zone. The shocks were accompanied by rumblings resembling thunder at some points, while at others the accompanying noise resembled a sharp explosion.

No one was injured, though some of the residents of Chelmsford were slightly affected by the shock. There was no material damage.

THE QUINCY GAME.

After a game that was actually in doubt until the last man was retired, Rockland won from Quincy at the Water street grounds Saturday, 3 to 2.

In the first, although Kane singled and was sacrificed to second and third, Smith grounded out to Briggs shutting off the run.

Duggan went out third to first, Armstrong grounded to Butman but Lonergan was passed and stole second. On Smiths poor throw to catch him stealing third he scored, the ball going to left field. Briggs grounded to Mahar. Quincy 1, Rockland 0.

For Rockland Butman flied to Nowell, Rudderham fanned and Killilea fouled to Briggs.

For Quincy Nowell grounded to second, Connelly rolled to Rose and Fay whiffed.

In Rockland's third Rose grounded to Lonergan, Donovan sent one that Armstrong cared for, and Kane let Fay throw him out.

Quincy came to the bat, but Fish fouled out, Ford struck out and Duggan boosted one to left.

Hart singled for Rockland and was sacrificed to second, but Ford caused Smith and Butman to flail the breezes.

In Quincys half of the fourth, Armstrong grounded out and after Lonny singled Rose kept pegging to get him off first and after six tries tired him out and Lonny was down. Briggs smote mightily but failed to connect.

In Rockland's fifth things happened Rudderham went down, second to first. On Armie's error Killilea was safe. Rose bunted and Ford fielded the ball and threw to Briggs, but hit Rose on the head, the ball bouncing to right. Nowell fumbled it and threw wide, Killilea crossing the rubber. Fish slammed the ball to Lonergan but it was high and Rose came home. Donovan fell before Ford's curves, Kane was passed but on Hart's tap to Fay, Kane was forced. Two runs.

Ford had a great chance to win his own game in the fifth. Nowell flied out to right. Connelly and Fay singled, Con taking third, but Fish grounded out and Ford fanned again. Score Rockland 2, Quincy 1.

Armstrong and Lonergan retired Rockland in the sixth.

Duggan popped a Texas leaguer on which Mahar made a great catch. Armstrong was called out on Strikes. Lonny passed but Briggs forced him.

In the seventh Rudderham walked and Killilea dumped a foul bunt ou the first base line. Umpire O'Donnell called it fair and after a five minute argument in which spectators mixed the game was resumed. Rose banged to Ford who forced Rudderham at third. Donovan popped to Armie who tossed to Fay catching Killilea off the bag for a double.

For Quincy, Nowell popped to short, Connelly popped to Rose, and Fay sent an easy one up for Donovan.

For Rockland, Kane bingled and Armie dropped Fay's toss for a double, and Kane and Hart were safe. Mahar hit to Ford forcing Kane, but Smith singled over second and Hart scored the third run. Butman popped and Rudderham fanned.

Fish popped to short, Ford fanned and Duggan singled. On Armstrong's tap and the hit and run, Duggan was over second before Killilea made his sensational stop. He stopped the ball bare handed while flat on his back and tossed Donovan in time to get Duggan. Score—Rockland 3, Quincy 1.

Rockland went out in order, and Quincy rallied but weakened. Lonergan flied to right, Briggs fanned. On Donovan's error Nowell was safe and with two strikes on him Connelly whaled an awful one far into center and Nowell scored, Con taking second. Fay fanned.

The result was 3 to 1 in favor of Rockland the full score being:

RIOT AFTER GAME.

Immediately after the game an angry crowd surrounded Umpire O'Donnell of Rockland and prevented Manager Shea from paying him, and there were cries of "kill him" etc. Three policemen were on duty, and under their escort O'Donnell was permitted to leave the ground. at the street he started alone toward the Quincy Adams station, but a crowd made up mostly of boys soon crowded around him and threatened him with bodily harm. One of the Policemen went to his assistance and escorted him as far as the station, while another policeman followed behind but did little to quell the riot.

When the railroad was reached the officer escorting O'Donnell started toward the police station, and O'Donnell concluded to accompany him. For awhile the other officer held the crowd back from the freight yard, but soon the crowd followed on even to the station. After a wait, O'Donnell left for a car, and by running got away. Such scenes do not speak well for Quincy.

SPORTING NOTES.

At the George G. Fox Company's picnic Saturday, the McGregor association football team of Quincy defeated the Charlestown team. The McGregors are in the Boston and District League and expect to lift the cup.

The Fore River Apprentices will play at the Labor Day picnic of the Quincy Central Labor Union against the Cranch A. A. for five prizes. The Unions having offered gold watches and silver watches to the winning and losing teams and will furnish baseballs. Manager Butler had barely signed the agreement when the Copelands' manager entered the athletic manager's office to get the chance. Mr. Neary of Fore River will take his track team over. In the 100 and 440 yard dashes Ferguson, captain of last year's track team at Mechanic Arts High and Ev Prout of Quincy High will run and expect to land prizes. Ferguson took two in the July 4th meet. In the half-mile and mile Graham of English High and Allen are entered and in the five-mile Hackett and Phalen will compete. Neary expects his boys to make a great showing.

NEW CONVENT INSPECTED

St. Johns Parish Have Well Equipped Commodious Home

The new St. John's convent on Phipps street was opened for public inspection Sunday afternoon and was visited by a large number. The convent which is ideally equipped as a community house was formerly family home and has been entirely remodeled. There are 14 rooms beside kitchen, laundry, chapel and parlor. The convent will be occupied by the Sisters of St. Joseph who will teach in the new parochial school adjoining The school, which is without exception the finest in the city, will be open for inspection on Sunday afternoon.

WANT DIRECT NOMINATION

Question to be Submitted to Voters at State Election

Councilman Smith is circulating a petition among the voters of the city to have the clause relative to the acceptance of Chapter 520 of the Acts of 1910 accepted. The act in question relates to the nomination of candidates for representatives and senator by direct plurality vote. Quincy has already accepted the act as far as the nomination of representatives is concerned. The present method of nominating a senator is by selecting delegates at the fall caucuses for the senatorial convention. Should the city at the coming state election accept the provisions of the act nominations for senator will hereafter be made by direct vote at the caucuses.

There are about 19,000 voters in the First Norfolk Senatorial district and under act of 1900 signatures are necessary to have the question submitted to the voters. Councilman Smith says that he expects to get about 900 signatures in Quincy.

The act which was introduced in the legislature at its last session provides that upon petition of ten per cent of the voters of the district the question "Shall nominations by political parties of candidates for Representative and Senator in this district be by direct plurality vote" shall be placed on the ballot at the next state election.

BUSY SCENES DAILY NEAR AVIATION FIELD

Preparing for the Grand Meet to be Held in Quincy Sept 3 to 13

The City and Street Railway Making Improvements

Quite the busiest section of the city at the present time is Squantum where a scene of activity exists such as was never known before. At the present time there are practically three large jobs under way.

First and foremost of all is, of course, the aviation field; then the city is at work rebuilding the street for which an appropriation of $8,000 was made last year. In addition to these, a new line of poles has been erected, the linemen of the Electric Light Co., Telephone Co., and fire alarm are practically rebuilding all the lines leading from Quincy to that section. Then the street railway company is busy running a new feed wire to furnish more power for the many cars that will be run on this line next week. The street railway company is also filling in a section of the marsh opposite the roadway leading to the aviation field so that passengers may have plenty of room and can board or leave the cars from either side.

Of course the main interest centres in the work going on at the aviation field. Hundreds of men are now at work here and it means a hustle to get everything in shape for the opening day. The grand stand is well under way and the entire frame work will be up before the end of the present week and a good section of it will have been completed.

A row of cedar posts have been set in the ground marking off the grand stand and automobile inclosures as well as the field from which the flyers will start. Well over toward the Commercial Point side of the field a number of small buildings are being erected. These will be used to store the flying machines in when not in use.

Certainly no more ideal spot could have been selected for an aviation field. It is almost level and there is but one way to reach it. That is by the roadway now being built. Before anyone passes over that roadway he or she must part with the necessary credential. There will be plenty of opportunity however for the general public to witness the flying for there are many vantage points not only at Squantum but along the Neponset shore.

The roadway being built into the field is a wide one and is divided in the centre by a row of posts and iron rails. That is so that those entering will use one side while those leaving will use the opposite roadway thus avoiding much confusion.

The building of this roadway is well under way yet it is quite a task. At the present time a large number of men and tip carts are being used and the gravel is being carted in at the rate of 100 loads per hour which means 1000 loads per day. This has been going on for some days and will take some days more so that an idea of the amount of gravel necessary to build this driveway may be had.

Those connected with the meet are entirely satisfied with the way things are progressing and they express no doubt but what the field will be ready for the meet on Sept. 3.

There are still remaining standing a number of trees between the grand stand and the water front but these are being removed as fast as horses and men can do it.

There are many visitors to the aviation field every day and on Sunday so great was the crowd that an officer was put on guard at the Squantum street entrance to the field and no one was allowed on the field except those that had business there.

The Harvard biplane which arrived last week is at present housed in a tent. This has been but partly assembled as yet, but nevertheless it is the goal toward which all visitors rivet their eyes. The tent is closed to visitors but there is plenty of opportunity to look through the flaps at the end and see the machine.

It is estimated that $250,000 will attend the meet and it has become quite a problem how to handle this crowd. Many of course will come in automobiles and parking ground for the accommodation of 1000 machines has been provided in the field. Then the old wharf nearer Squantum has been put in shape and it is expected that many boats will land their human freight here.

The other method of reaching the field will be by carriages or electric cars. While the street railway is greatly handicapped by having but one line to the field the officials are doing their best to accommodate the crowds. Supt. Gammons who was at Squantum Monday looking over the ground said that plans for handling the crowds had not as yet been definitely settled.

As far as outlined however will be the placing of fifty cars on the line

NEW ROUTE TO BOSTON

Boston Elevated Has Made Extension to Granite Bridge

The erection of several large factories on the banks of the Neponset river at Dorchester has made it necessary for the Boston Elevated to extend its tracks in Adams street to the Granite avenue bridge. The officials of the Old Colony road are now considering the proposition to extend the tracks of that corporation from East Milton to Granite avenue, and if the plan materializes it will give a new avenue of travel between Boston, Milton, Quincy and the South Shore.—Boston Journal.

This is the connection for which the West Quincy Improvement Association and also East Milton is working. It would furnish a quick means of transportation by street cars from West Quincy and East Milton to Boston via Dudley street as well as to open much available building land on Granite avenue in Milton. People of West Quincy and East Milton in order to go to Boston by street cars have to come by a long route through Quincy. By the new route the running time between West Quincy and Dudley street would be cut to 45 minutes. The present route consumes something over one hour to Dudley street.

HAS CAUGHT THE PEOPLE.

Howard M. North of Newton, a former Quincy boy writing to the Record says:

Dear Looker-On: The coming aviation meet certainly has caught the people in good shape. I asked my young caddy when his school opened again, and he replied, "Monday after aviation week." What do you know about that?

—Few people realize that gasoline engine would be impossible without electricity. It is the tiny electric spark which at the proper moment releases he hidden powers of the gasolin vapor.

GRANITE MEN OFF TO BOOM QUINCY

Making a Big Exhibit at Rochester for a Short Convention

Display, However, a Great Credit To the City of Quincy

The committee which will represent the Granite Manufacturers Association of Quincy at the Rochester convention of the National Retail Granite Dealers Association will leave Quincy at 6.10 P. M. today, and will arrive in Rochester tomorrow morning. They are John C. Murray president of the local association, Joseph Walker and George Clark and will be accompanied by Walter Jackson, Andrew Johnson of Hughs & Johnson, Ray Barnicoat, J. Bizzozero of West Quincy, Forbes Craig, J. S. Swingle and several others.

The display of monumental work which is intended to boom Quincy granite and workmanship has been shipped to Rochester and is valued at $2,000. It will probably be sold before the committee returns to Quincy. The display comprises granite from every quarry in the city and is worked in first class style, the most expert workmen having shaped it.

The sending of such a display to so great a convention is in pursuance of the policy of the local association to boom Quincy granite, than which there is no better, and a first class display of granite and workmanship is a great advertisement.

President Murray says that Quincy's monumental trade was never better, and that the additional work which a successful campaign in Rochester will bring to Quincy, will far surpass anything previous.

The convention last s three days and the Quincy party will return to Quincy on Saturday.

FIRE INSURANCE
THE 80 PER CENT. CLAUSE

THE merchant who has once been burned out is forever after a very earnest convert to insurance in full of the value of his property, but that is an expensive way to gain experience. Of course your insurance is an expense and should be included in "the cost of doing business," and its proportion charged against the goods you sell.

¶ The average annual loss by fire in the United States is two hundred and fifty million dollars. A fact which emphasizes the need of adequate insurance on every stock of goods.

¶ The 80 per cent. clause in insurance policies is not fully understood and we cite an example here to explain it more fully. A merchant having $5,000 stock places $2,000 insurance. 80 per cent. of stock value would mean to carry $4,000 insurance instead of $2,000. The $2,000 insurance carried is therefore one-half of the 80 per cent. of the cash value of the stock and in case of loss the company is obligated, under its policy, to pay one-half of the amount of the insurance. The amount collectable under such a policy therefore would be $1,000.

¶ The fact that you have never had a fire is more likely due to good fortune than to any other cause, since a widespread and disastrous fire even with apparently adequate fire protection is a possibility at any moment, wiping away the savings of years if not properly protected by insurance.

¶ Our insurance department places for you the highest grade of insurance at the lowest possible cost. We solicit a portion or the whole of your business and will give your orders the greatest possible attention and the kind of protection you are entitled to.

¶ Drop a postal or telephone and our representative will call.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Baltimore is getting so stylish that it rides its prisoners to the police station in automobiles.

Aviator Hamilton says there is no danger in flying high. That's what they all say.

"This" the scientists assure us, "is a brand new comet." Good! No more warmed over comets are wanted.

No city need apologize if census returns fail to square with that city's previous claims. Not many cities, perhaps, will be in a position to guy any other city extensively along that line.

The action of the Democrats of Nebraska in throwing Mr. Bryan overboard seems to be accepted by the country at large as the final elimination of his national and state leadership of the Democratic party. Mr. Bryan has been remarkable in sustaining his prestage in his party in the face of repeated and overwhelming defeats. In looking back over his remarkable career there are a number of instances which show that personally he was quite selfish. In 1896 in his first campaign, when wealthy friends and supporters were scarce, Mr. W. R. Hearst made a tremendous fight for Bryan's election. Not only that, but Mr. Hearst made a proposition to the Democratic Committee that he would duplicate every dollar that was raised by the National Committee. Mr. Hearst's contribution on this proposition amounted to a very large sum. Mr. Hearst not only did this but he gave Bryan earnest and loyal support in 1900. In 1904, when Mr. Hearst aspired for the Democratic nomination Mr. Bryan in utter forgetfulness of the great favors he had received from Mr. Hearst in the past, refused to throw the Nebraska delegation to him in the convention and got up in the convention and nominated Senator Cockrell, of Missouri, who was then too old to be considered as a presidential possibility. This act on Mr. Bryan's part was certainly one of the basest ingratitude. There are other instances that might be mentioned but this is sufficient. A man who forgets his friends and the favors they bestow is sooner or later bound to reach his bitter end, and this seems to be the case with Mr. Bryan.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The contractor of a macadam road in Connecticut has given warning by means of a posted notice to the automobilists who wish to use the newly constructed road to limit their speed to fifteen miles an hour, as any greater will certainly tear the road to pieces; and in a newspaper statement he explains that thousands of dollars of damage upon any new macadam road would almost inevitably be caused by excessive speed upon it before it has had time to settle and bond itself. This takes something like three months, he says, after which the harm is less than while the road is still comparatively loose.

But the day never comes when the excessive speed of a long trail of automobiles will not do roads of this sort damage. This contractor says that after twenty years of building roads and close observation he has no hesitation in saying that "the speed maniac has caused an increase in the contract price for macadam roads of over 25 per cent." He says: "A speed of 25 miles an hour over an old and settled macadam road will not do the same any harm, and they can be maintained in perfect repair at a slight expense, but a speed much in excess of that raises the dust and loosens the stone to such an extent that it is almost impossible, without constant attention to keep these roads in shape."

Certainly a few selfish automobilists ought not to be allowed to increase the burden of road maintenance of any community.—Norwood Messenger

MEASURES OF PRECAUTION

Portuguese Government Prepared to Resist an Attack

CONSPIRACY AGAINST THRONE

Clericals Said to Be Plotting to Overthrow King Manuel and Establish Dictatorship—Arms and Ammunition Unearthed In Homes of Republicans—Duke of Oporto, Heir Apparent to Throne, Takes Refuge In a Fortress

Lisbon, Aug. 23.—Distracted on the one hand by the reports of a clerical plot to depose King Manuel and establish a dictatorship, and by the activities of the Republicans on the other, the Portuguese government is taking extreme precautions for the preservation of order in the country, pending the general elections, which are to be held on Sunday next.

The fear of disturbances at that time is confirmed by the finding, in the houses of many Republicans, of arms and ammunition. It is known that arms are being daily smuggled into the country from Spain and that the Republicans are well armed.

Alarming reports of the alleged intention of the clerical party to overthrow the throne are being published by the newspapers.

The Seculo says the clerical party's strong and growing dissatisfaction with the liberal policy of the government has culminated in the organization of a revolution to overthrow the administration, seize its members and set up a military dictatorship, the first object of which will be to stamp out the Republicans.

El Mundo says that several regiments have joined the movement and that the Duke of Oporto, the heir apparent to the Portuguese throne, while at the Casino at Cascaes, was apprised of this fact and took refuge in the fortress.

The paper says also that alarm is general and that the military and naval forces are under arms night and day. While the government refuses to give out any information either confirming or denying the reports, it continues to take the strongest precautions.

No explanation has been vouchsafed by the government as to why it considers the papal nuncio at Lisbon, Mgr. Tonti, objectionable. A semi-official communication says that the Portuguese charge d'affaires to the Vatican has explained the situation to the pope.

BEEF TRUST PROBE

About to Be Undertaken by Federal Grand Jury at Boston

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 23.—Hugh J. Robertson, Jr., of this city, president of the Eastern Oil and Rendering company, has been summoned to appear before the federal grand jury at Boston today, when an investigation of the beef combination which is said to exist in New England is to be started under the direction of United States District Attorney French.

Robertson, previous to the establishing of the company with which he is now connected, was New England manager of one of the large packing houses, and was recently before the grand jury in Chicago which is still in session investigating the beef situation.

Oil Burning Torpedo Boat Destroyer Will Be a Swift One

Bath, Me., Aug. 23.—The torpedo boat destroyer Drayton, named in honor of Commodore Percival Drayton, who was chief of the bureau of navigation in 1865, was launched with Miss Emma G. Drayton as sponsor.

The Drayton belongs to the new class of oil burners and will be expected to cut the water at a rate of 29.5 knots an hour, thus placing her among the first class of fast fighting vessels of the world.

Miss Drayton, niece of the late naval officer, performed the christening ceremony with a bottle of champagne encased in silver.

FACE DOWN IN VAULT

Body of Missing Child Is Found After an All-Day Hunt

Central Falls, R. I., Aug. 3.—Lying face downward in a vault in the rear of an outbuilding, the body of Louis Krawczyk, 3 years of age, for whom the police and several searching parties had been hunting all day, was found last night.

One of the searchers noticed that the boards which covered the vault on the Krawczyk property was rotted away and pulling it aside discovered the child's body. The medical examiner pronounced it a case of accidental death.

Practice Squadron Returns

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 23.—The naval practice squadron from Annapolis, composed of the battleships Iowa, Indiana and Massachusetts, has returned from an all summer practice cruise in European waters, with naval midshipmen aboard.

HER WORST ENEMY.

"My own opinion is, my dear, that the woman is an adventuress!"

Rita Murton sipped gratefully at her cup of tea before making any comment on this outspoken criticism. "You mean that this woman—Lillah—"

"Hendren. Lillah Hendren, my dear!"

"Oh, yes. You mean that she likes the idea of his money?"

"Precisely!"

Rita turned herself about so as to command a view of the tennis lawn below, where an animated group of Mrs. Eyre's guests was vociferously debating the constitution of the next set. "I can't make out her face from here. She knows how to dress, at any rate."

"Oh, yes." Mrs. Eyre's tone conveyed the impression that to be able "to dress" is a criminal accomplishment.

"Well, what does she look like?"

"Very fair hair, very blue eyes, and quite fascinating teeth."

"And complexion?"

"Her complexion is all that can be desired, my dear."

"Oh, well, that doesn't sound so bad!"

An acute observer would have noted the shade of disappointment in Rita's last sentence, but at the moment such nuances were lost on Mrs. Eyre, who proceeded to give concrete reasons for her misgivings. "Of course, she is pretty, my dear; but there are other things, too—lines, and a certain hardness of expression, which tell me that she is a scheming woman. You will know what I mean the moment you meet her!"

"But what I don't understand is why she ever came to be here at all—one has never heard of the person."

Mrs. Eyre nodded sagely. "It was my fault. I blame myself for so readily acquiescing in a suggestion of Richard's. He asked me to invite her. He had met her at Lady Whitmore's, and described her as a jolly person—I use his own words. How could I anticipate anything of this sort?"

"And you have written to Lady Whitmore?"

"Lady Whitmore will only commit herself to the somewhat equivocal statement that the person in question has always proved popular with men!"

"Perhaps, after all, you are exaggerating the danger."

"My dear, the boy is infatuated. I live in terror of what the next hour will bring. Every minute I expect him to come to me with that person on his arm to say that they are engaged. Do you imagine I should have asked you to change all your plans and come here a week before you had arranged, if the danger wasn't real? Now, do you?"

Rita laughed, but her laughter was sympathetic.

"You dear old thing!' she said "Of course, I don't; but I'm still in the dark as to why you should send for me."

Mrs. Eyre was frankly sceptical concerning the veracity of this statement. "You know very well, my dear, that I shall never be satisfied until I see you and Richard safely married. Moreover, I feel certain that when my son is in his right mind he will desire it as much as I do. I want you here now because you are the one person whose presence can help him to throw off this spell. I hope I make myself clear?"

"My dear Mrs. Eyre," exclaimed the girl, "you really mustn't be foolish, or I shall certainly not help you. Why, Dick simply regards me as a sister!"

For a second the old lady's gaze rested admiringly on the beautiful girl before her. Then she spoke with an acidity that was quite unusual. "The man who can regard you as a sister, who are no sister at all, is a fool—neither more nor less."

Rita rose from her chair, and tripping lightly across the room, kissed her hostess tenderly on each cheek. "You're a nice old thing," she said; "and I will help you. Don't worry—just leave it to me. I shall begin at once, which means that I must go up and change, preparatory to offering myself as a sacrifice to those tennis maniacs. At least, it will be a pleasant change after the smoke of London."

Before Rita had been a member of Mrs. Eyre's house-party for many hours she was as convinced as her hostess of the danger which threatened Richard. She spent a troubled night in searching for some method by which the woman—whom in her own mind, she had already christened "the Siren"—could be spirited away. Unrefreshed, she descended to the breakfast-room a full hour before the proper time in the vague hope that a solitary meal might give the required inspiration; only to find, however, that Richard and "the Siren" were breakfasting tete-a-tete.

Rita ate in silence, and soon slipped quietly away, for, truth to tell, something in the uncomfortable atmosphere had supplied her with the idea she was seeking.

In the solitude of the library, the girl, taking pen and paper, wrote a letter. It was quite a short letter, but it took a prodigious time to construct, and Rita smiled in a happy, self-satisfied way as she fastened the envelope.

Later in the day, and alone, she paid a visit to the village postoffice, where she indulged in quite a confidential chat with the man in charge, who, it seemed, felt quite confident that a letter posted now would not be delivered within an area of four miles until the first post in the morning. Assured on this point, Rita dropped a letter into the box, and returned to her friends in the best of spirits.

When Rita entered the breakfast-room on the following morning her face was flushed in a manner that would, under ordinary conditions, have indicated nervousness. The flush, however, only accentuated her beauty, a fact of which Lillah Hendren noted before nodding coldly in Rita's direction. As for Rita herself, having noted that Richard and "the Siren" were the sole occupants of the room, and that a letter addressed to Miss Murton rested on the plate opposite her own chair, she dropped into her place with a little sigh of relief.

Without indecent haste, she opened the letter and read it carefully through. Then she looked across at "the Siren."

"Why, I never knew that you knew Joan Silby, Miss Hendren!" she exclaimed.

Apparently "the Siren" was not conversationally inclined. "I was unaware of the fact myself until you told me."

"Oh, I see, it's a case of that sort. Well, at any rate, Joan seems to know a great many interesting things about you." And Rita went off into a little peal of irritating laughter—irritating because it gave no indication of what the "many interesting things" were.

"The Siren' was softening visibly. "Come. I hope you are not going to keep all the good things to yourself," she said.

But Rita had replaced the letter in its envelope, and, ignoring the last remark, she proceeded to change the subject of conversation.

"Dick," she said, half an hour later, "what about that novel that you were going to lend me?"

"Oh, I'm sorry; I've a brain like a sieve. Let me fetch it for you now—it's only in my bedroom."

"If it wouldn't be too much trouble, I should like it, I do feel rather like reading at the moment."

As soon as Richard had left the room, Rita followed. At the door she turned towards "the Siren." "Please tell him I've gone into the library," she said.

The library door opened slowly, and Richard entered, closing it after him. Rita put down her book and smiled at him, albeit a little nervously.

"Oh, Rita," he said. "You got the book all right. Sorry I couldn't bring it myself just then."

"Yes, thanks, the maid brought it to me. But, Dick, how seedy you look. What is the matter with you?"

He ignored the remark and dropped a letter into her lap. "Look here, you left this on the breakfast-table this morning. I've been trying to give it to you all day, but I could never find you alone.

Rita examined the letter with a frown; but she did not speak, and he continued, gloomily, "I suppose you've heard that Miss Hendren has gone?"

No!"

"Yes—caught the noon train to London. We've fought."

"Oh, Dick! Whatever about? But please, don't tell me unless you wish."

"I don't see that it can do any harm now, and I feel as if I must tell someone. The fact is, it was about that letter of yours. You remember how I went upstairs this morning to get that book for you? Well, when I came down she was reading it—your letter, I mean!"

"I see."

"It wasn't the fact of reading someone else's letter that I minded so much—for, after all, women are curious, I suppose—but it was the way she regarded the whole thing. Really, to hear her talk, you might have imagined that she was the suffering party."

For a second Rita hesitated. Then quite suddenly she came to a decision.

"Dick," she said, "I think, if you read this letter, it will help you to understand why that person behaved as she did. Read it aloud, please."

Without question, Richard took the proffered letter and read:—

"Dear Rita:—Molly tells me you are staying with the Eyres. If so, you will know all the news. Now do, like a nice girl, write at once and tell me if what I hear is true—that that Hendren woman is making a serious attempt to lead Richard to the altar. By the by, does she share the popular fallacy that he has an income of his own, or has some kind friend told her the truth?—that he is dependent on his mother, and that when she dies her money will all be diverted to that rascally elder brother in Australia. However, write to me at once. I am fearfully interested, and so is Bob. You know, he was at Oxford with Richard for three years.—Yours, in haste, Joan."

"Now do you understand?" Rita's voice was strained and unnatural.

"I understand that this letter is a pack of lies!"

"It doesn't alter the fact that 'the Siren' only cared about your money."

"No; that is true."

"You see, Dick, you never could have found that out in a legitimate sort of way, could you?"

"You don't mean to say—"

"Yes, I do. As a pal, I simply couldn't stand by and see you taken in by that wretch!"

Richard was examining the letter very minutely. "Why, it is your writing—disguised! But it's your's right enough. And you actually meant her to read it all the time?"

"I hoped— I prayed that she would!"

"You little wrong 'un!" It was an abusive phrase; but somehow Richard made it sound complimentary rather than otherwise. The admiring way in which he regarded her, too, gave reason to believe that sooner or later Mrs. Eyre's hope will be fulfilled.—Boston Courier.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Peach Puree. Press canned or fresh peaches through a sieve, measure, and to each pint allow a pint of water, the juice of a lemon and a half-teaspoonful of bitter almond. Bring to the boiling point, and thicken with a teaspoonful of arrow root moistened in a half-cupful of cold water. Stir until smooth and thickened, then set aside to cool. When ready to serve pour into tumblers and fill with cracked ice, or put in small bowls set in saucers of ice and send to the table.

Iced Chocolate. Put into a porcelain lined or granite kettle a quarter pound, grated, unsweetened chocolate; add six ounces of sugar and a half cup of water and cook until shiny and smooth; add three cups more hot water and boil until the chocolate is of the consistency of thick cream; remove from the fire and beat while cooling; flavor with vanilla, and if liked a little cinnamon; then set on the ice until chilled; serve in tall glasses with a little chipped ice and a spoonful of whipped cream on top; this chocolate syrup may be made in quantity and kept in glass jars in the refrigerator ready for an emergency.

Sweet Spiced Beets. Boil one quart of mediumsized beets till tender, peel, slice and put in glass jars, pouring over them the following dressing. Allow to stand at least one day before using.

Dressing. Boil one pint of vinegar, onehalf cup brown sugar, one teaspoon salt and put one teaspoon of spices in a muslin bag. Boil for five minutes and turn over the beets.

Currant Cookies. Cream one cup of butter with two cups of sugar, add two well beaten eggs, one cup of sour milk and one level teaspoon of soda sifted twice in five cups of flour. Stir in onehalf cup of currants. Make into cookies one-third of an inch thick and bake. If flavoring is preferred, use one teaspoon vanilla and shape the cookies a little thinner.

—Dorrance street from Fulton to Weybosset street, Providence, R. I., will be a great white way, illuminated by upwards of 5000 incandescent lights, on the evenings of the coming convention of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association. There will be electric arches at each end, while at the corner of Westminster street will be installed an electric bower that will surpass anything of a similar nature ever before attempted in the city.

EMULATE PAUL REVERE

Midnight Ride of Quincy Police to Houghs Neck

The midnight ride of Paul Revere was emulated by Officers Goodhue, Phillips, Mann, Bishop and George McKay, at 1 o'clock this morning when they paid a visit to Houghs Neck to break up one of the nuisances that has been complained of by the residents of that section. The officers unlike Paul of old did not shout out their warning of the approaching raiders but proceeded quietly to their destination which was the house at 58 Crosby street occupied by a woman who answered to the name of Mary Clark.

There was a great hustle to get out of the way when the officers entered, one man making his escape by jumping from a second story window. The officers found plenty of evidence that the place was not what it should be for they seized a large number of empty beer bottles and a small quantity of liquor. In addition to this they found a barrel full of old cigarette boxes, burnt matches all over the floor and a number of women in the house. The woman Mary Clark the alleged proprietor was arrested for keeping a disorderly house. She was arraigned in court this morning when her case was continued until Sept. 1.

BUSY SCENES

that will run between the Atlantic depot and the street leading to the field. Passengers wishing to continue on to Squantum will change cars at the head of the street for a car that will run only between that point and Squantum while at the Atlantic depot end a change will have to be made for cars to Neponset bridge and other parts of Quincy.

There is but one turnout on this line and this will admit of but five large cars passing at a time. The run however is a short one and the cars will be run in trains of five or ten cars every ten minutes. In this way over 600 people can leave Atlantic every ten minutes. This means about 4,000 per hour which is going some.

It is reported that there has already been a great demand for tickets and that every seat in the grand stand which will accommodate 12,000 and there are a number of boxes each of which contain six chairs.

Arrangements have been made with the Point Allerton life saving station for patroling the course in the vicinity of Boston light, for reporting the accidents. Capt. Storrow will have his life boats, power boats and other life saving devices in readiness but little apprehension is felt.

Assessed Valuation of Brookline, With 30,000 People, Is $104,586,100

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 22.—The town of Brookline's assessed valuation is $104,586,100 and her population is about 30,000, according to a statement just issued by the town officials. This is an average valuation of about $3486 for each person in the town.

Brookline is called the second richest community in the land, in proportion to its population. The tax rate is $10.50.

Insurgents' Victory Grows

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—With the continuing of the official canvass and the receiving of late returns from remote districts, indications are that the Lincoln-Roosevelt league, the champion of insurgency in California, elected its whole ticket at Tuesday's primary election.

Love, Honor and Obey.

The controversy about including the word "obey" in the marriage vow is probably as old as the marriage ceremony itself. When Marion Harland's parents were married in 1825 (as she tells us in her autobiography) the bride had "laughingly threatened that she would not promise to 'obey' and that a scene would follow the use of the obnoxious word in the marriage service. The young divine, with this in mind or in a fit of absentmindedness or of stage fright, actually blundered out, 'Love, honor—and obey in all things consistent!'" The costumes worn on this occasion were hardly as modern as the unfortunate amendment. "The bride wore a soft sheer india muslin a veil falling to the hem of the gown and white brocade slippers embroidered with faint blue flowers. The bridegroom's suit was of fine blue cloth with real silver buttons. His feet were clad in white stockings and low shoes with wrought silver buckles."

Health Certificate For Hair.

Any woman who changes doctors no doubt has her own reasons for making the change. The woman in this case was threatened with fever. Her first question was, "Shall I lose my hair?"

"Most likely," said the doctor.

"Doctor," said the man, "I wish you would write out a certificate that this hair is healthy. The lady wants to sell it. She says if she's bound to lose it anyhow in this spell of sickness she is in for she might as well get rid of it now while it will bring a good price. If she waits till it falls out nobody will buy it. Women with nice hair and not much money are smart enough nowadays to sell their hair as soon as they fall ill. Most dealers take it and no questions asked, but I'm too conscientious. I want a doctor's certificate every time in a case like this. I hope you'll be obliging."

The doctor was not obliging, and the next day a new doctor was called in.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Wood Pulp Paper.

Wood pulp paper is made from wood—poplar, spruce or pine usually—which has been reduced to a fine pulp either by grinding while wet or through chemical means. The pulp is kept diluted with water while fed on to the bed of the paper machine, this bed being a continuous band or wide belt of finely woven wire. It is supported by rollers set close together and in rapid motion, the latter to set the fibers of the paper. The sheet forms almost at once, as soon as the water drains through the wire cloth, though it is then moist and weak. Successive rollers and vacuum boxes press and dry out more moisture, big rollers heated by steam finally render it perfectly dry, and then it is run between finishing rollers, varying according to the exact kind of paper to be made.—London Standard.

The Norwegian Costume.

It is at church in Norway that the national costume is best seen. In the north the women wear short dark gowns, with fringed handkerchiefs tied becomingly over their curly fair hair, black ones for the matrons and white ones for maidens. In the south the old Norwegian dress is often worn. It consists of a short dark petticoat, with a stripe of bright colors, a full white blouse and a red bodice heavily embroidered, while on Sundays a quantity of silver pins and chains are added. The headdress varies according to the occasion and the wearer's social condition. The girls wear jaunty red caps, the married women a coif made of many folds of starched white linen, plaited over a wooden frame, and a bride wears a high metal crown curiously chased and set with jewels.

Pascal's Early Observation.

Blaise Pascal, who wrote a remarkable treatise on the laws of sound, was constantly observing the familiar occurrences about him even as a boy. When he was only ten years old he sat at the dinner table one day striking his plate with his knife and then listening to the sound.

"What are you doing with that plate, Blaise?" asked his sister.

"See," he replied. "When I strike the plate with my knife it rings. Hark!"

Again he called forth the sound.

"When I grasp it with my hand so," he continued, "the sound ceases. I wonder why it is."

To Avoid Telling Secrets.

A New York theatrical manager was advising a friend to be cautious in an undertaking he had in view.

"You can't take too many precautions," he asserted. "'An ounce of prevention,' as the copybook used to say, 'is better than seven pounds of allopathic, homeopathic or hydropathic cure.' One of the most contented men I ever knew was the most cautious. He was deaf and dumb, and he never went to bed without putting on boxing gloves."

"Boxing gloves? What for?"

"So that he wouldn't talk in his sleep."

Gold Filled.

What does "gold filled" mean? Probably most people who buy gold filled watches fancy that they are mysteriously impregnated with gold. The term is misleading. Gold filling consists in taking two sheets of gold, between which is placed a section of solder coated base metal. This metallic sandwich is heated and pressed, so that the three parts are welded together, with the gold outside.—Chicago News.

Her Hard Task.

"That's a beautiful girl you have in your store," said the man acquaintance. "I've seen her in the window several days as I passed."

"She isn't an employee," the milliner answered wearily. "She's a woman trying to decide on a new hat."—Buffalo Express.

NEW ENGLAND PUT TO TEST

Grave Questions before the Waterways Convention

The city of Providence and the state of Rhode Island will do their full duty toward the visiting host at the Waterways convention Aug. 31-Sept. 3. Providence witnessed the enthusiasm at Philadelphia, at Baltimore and at Norfolk, and it has taken enthusiastic official action to ensure the success of the convention and to extend that hospitality which is so pleasing to the "stranger within her gates.

President Taft who originally, it is asserted, set the date of the convention and is looked upon as an ardent friend of the project, has disappointed many of his friends by his decision not to come after all, but members of the cabinet, governors of states, national representatives and senators are to be among the distinguished speakers.

Beautiful Narragansett Bay, with its attractive resorts and snug harbors; ancient Newport, with its picturesque and costly homes, its fortifications and government training station to say nothing of the famous Rhode Island clambake, are to enter into the instructive and entertaining features of the occasion.

Hundreds of people are coming from south of Mason and Dixon's line and have chartered special steamers to bring them to Narragansett Bay. The opportunity to enjoy a "personally conducted" tour to the famous summer resorts of the north, when the season is at its very height, gives a fine opportunity to combine pleasure with promotion of a great commercial undertaking.

But pleasing as is the prospect from the Providence and Rhode island viewpoint, the spirit of New England with regard to its own progress will be put to the test at this convention. Grave and serious questions which concern the entire Atlantic coast, affect New England perhaps more seriously than any of the other seaboard states. It was because of these conditions that the governor of Rhode Island, the Hon. Aram J. Pothier, urged the Providence meeting and labored to arouse his compatriots of the other New England states. Governor Pothier realized the vast significance of adequate transportation facilities to the future extension of New England's industrial activities.

It has frequently been observed that New England, in spite of its spirit of independence, is now submissive to unnatural and artificially restricted conditions. "It is conceded," said Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, President of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, in a speech on the subject of the proposed ship canal recently delivered in Congress, "that there is no more important link in the proposed system from Beaufort in North Carolina to Boston than this at the northern end, and yet Massachusetts cannot be interested, and thinks of nothing but railroad development, when almost for the asking, we have a remedy for high rates and long delays at our very door."

The Song of the Aviator.

(After Ben King.)

Nothing to do but fly, over the hill and town;
Nowhere to go but up, nowhere to fall but down.

Nothing to see but clouds; nothing to breathe but air;
Nothing to dodge but winds; nothing but death to dare.

Nothing to do but go, wherever the mad swirl wills;
Nothing but storms to face; nothing to feel but thrills.

Nothing but necks to risk! Alas, and again, alack!
Nothing but arms to break; nothing but skulls to crack.

'Tis a tame and a quiet life! More stirring by far to be
In the path of a wild joy ride when the riders are on a spree.

—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Rossetti Liked Odd Words.

Dante Rossetti, like Signor d'Annunzio, took infinite pains to extend his vocabulary, says the London Chronicle. W. M. Rossetti relates that his brother used to hunt "through all manner of old romaunts to pitch upon stunning words for poetry" and make lists of them. The words thus noted were of a miscellaneous character, such as euphrasy, fat kidneyed, fat witted, fleshquake, foolhappy, gorbellish, grogram, lass lorn, lustral, primerole, recreandise, angelot, cherishance, trifulcate, laureole, novelries, flexuous, cumberworld and jobbernowl." Some of these explain themselves, but how many people could say offhand what "gorbellish" means? It does not figure in the English Historical Dictionary. And yet a good mouth filling epithet surely deserves to live.

AN AMERICAN KING IN HAWAII.

"The Pineapple King" is what they call the Boston boy who went out to the Hawaiian Islands a little over ten years ago in search of a chance to make a success in the field of agriculture. Son of a prominent Unitarian clergyman in the Jamaica Plain section of Boston, and just graduated from Harvard University, James D. Dole, finding that he wanted to engage in some outdoor occupation, decided to study agriculture and to specialize in some branch that promised success. That was in 1899, just when we were making ready to take the Hawaiian Islands under the American flag, and as Mr. Dole had relatives out there who had achieved distinction, he naturally thought that the chance he wanted might be found in that beneficient climate where many crops thrive the year round.

THE START.

Going out and looking over the ground carefully, he decided to be a pineapple farmer, and began with some forty acres of land which he was not able to obtain complete title until the end of the year, when the annexation of the Islands was completed. The Hawaiian Pineapple is the smooth coated fruit, known as the "Smooth Cayene" conceded to be the finest variety grown. It weighs at maturity from seven to nine pounds, and when perfectly ripe is luscious, juicy, and tender as a peach, with none of the woody fibre or acrid quality of the ordinary pineapple shipped here in a green state and allowed to ripen afterward as it can. The enterprising young farmer soon found himself in possession of a crop of fruit sure to obtain a ready market in the United States if only it could be brought there in prime condition. Dead ripe fruit will not stand a long sea voyage and the Hawaiian pine is at its best only when allowed to ripen on its stalk. He saw that the only solution was to can the fruit on the spot where it was grown and to have the canning process of the best possible sort, so that there should be no deterioration when the fruit was sold to the people at home.

THE INCORPORATION.

Capital was needed and cooperation, and accordingly he formed and incorporated The Hawaiian Pineapple Company, and succeeded in interesting Mr. J. H. Hunt, the well known California canner and some of his associates, as well as several Boston capitalists. A cannery was erected in 1903 and the output that year was something less than 3,000 cases. Only one other cannery existed on the Islands and its output had not exceeded 1000 cases. The growth of the business has been wonderful, increasing to nearly 500,000 cases the past season; the acreage showing a corresponding expansion from 40 to nearly 6,000 acres in a little more than ten years. The superiority of the fruit placed on the market was the greatest element in this success. The Hawaiian pineapple bearing about the same relation to the common fruit stand sort that "A turnip does to a Baldwin apple," to quote Mr. Dole's own phrase.

THE PLANTING AND GROWING.

The pineapples are grown from a sucker, slip or crown, the latter being like the green top familiar on ordinary pineapples. Planted in rows, three or four feet apart, at intervals of about two feet, these are cultivated by horse or mule power, supplemented by hand work in the weeding. Set out in the fall they bear fruit a year from the following summer, on an average, though many plants mature sooner than this, and the same plant, as a rule, produces three good crops when it is destroyed as the fruit deteriorates after this. The growing plants are of a grey green color, not unlike that of a cabbage, and the blossom starts in a bright red little bloom right at the center of the plant, developing into the pineapple, which remains green until nearly ripe, when it assumes a deep yellow tone.

CANNERIES AND BOTTLING PLANTS.

The canneries are large wooden buildings located in the fields where the fruit grows. Plainly but carefully constructed, and equipped with every latest device for handling, peeling, slicing and crushing the fruit, most of the work, outside the picking, is done by machinery, yet in the busiest season in July, more than 2,000 people are employed.

Beside the sliced, crushed and grated pineapple, sent out in cans there has been added recently a bottling establishment as perfectly equipped, where the pure juice of the fruit, liquid, crystal clear and delicious, is put up in several sized bottles, and this is being even more appreciatively received in the States than the more solid product.

This is the gratifying result of years of experiment to preserve the globules of fruit juice in full aroma and delicacy with not a single additional ingredient—no sugar or water, or anything which would change its consistency or flavor.

Knowing the peculiarity and delicacy of the plant it was natural to conclude that no ordinary methods of refining and bottling would secure the results wanted. Original methods were necessary in sympathy with the delicacy of the fruit itself. The success of the new process has been demonstrated in the preservation of the full flavor of the sun ripened Hawaiian Pineapple in the bottled juice put up without anything else whatever.

—A hundred million pounds of rubber were imported for the year ending July 1. A large portion of this rubber will be used in the electrical industry for insulating purposes.

BRIEFS

Donald Berry is spending his vacation at Camp Wyanoke, Wolfboro, N. H.

This is the time of year to visit Blue hill and also Third hill at Wollaston.

Mrs. Fred Burr of Henry street has returned from a two weeks' visit in Maine.

Miss Clara M. DeCoste of Pleasant street is spending her vacation at Cottage city.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Waterman of Arlington street spent the week end at Leominster.

Mrs. Walter Berry has returned from a three weeks' vacation spent at Wolfboro, N. H.

Miss Sadie Nelson of East Braintree is spending her vacation with relatives in Maine.

Miss Mary A. Manhire of Albertina street is spending a two weeks vacation at Ocean Point, Me.

Miss Esther Viden of Viden road is in Fall River, where she is visiting friends for a few weeks.

Miss Julia Barber of Appleton street has returned from a month's visit with relatives in Chicago.

W. A. McCormick and family of Willard street were week-end guests of friends at Winthrop Highlands.

New concrete sidewalks are being put in on Liberty street Water street and other streets under the order of 1910.

Miss Nettie Parlee and George Parlee of John street Montclair have gone to Chelmsford for a brief visit to their grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant E. Edgar of Grand View avenue spent the week end at Wolfboro, New Hampshire going up in their automobile.

One of the longest and most delightful trips by electrics is to Spot pond in the Middlesex Fells. It can be made from any part of Quincy via Dudley street and Sullivan square for ten cents and requires about two hours.

The steam trawler Spray, built at Quincy, brought to Boston, on Monday, 55,000 pounds of haddock, 1500 pounds of cod, 300 pounds of pollock, 800 pounds of hake, 3000 pounds of scrod and 200 pounds of sole, the work of a few days.

Union services were held in the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday. The Rev. John Garland, pastor of the church, occupied the pulpit both morning and evening. Mr. H. B. Lowe, a well known singer of Boston was the soloist.

Sunday evening the Rev. John F. Brant, Secretary of the International Reform Bureau spoke at the Hall Place church on the subject of "Civic Righteousness." Mr. Brant is an excellent speaker and was favored with a good audience who appreciated every word.

Rev. George Alexander Strong formerly rector at Christ church was a special guest Monday at the laying of the corner stone for the new Episcopal church at Whitman. It was while Mr. Strong was rector at St. Pauls, Brockton that the Whitman society was a mission of that church.

ARE SCATTERED ALL OVER WASHINGTON

Important Documents Not Located When They Are Needed

Washington, Aug. 23.—Immigration records of the port of Boston for the months of October, November and December, 1867, and of April and May, 1868, are missing. Manifests for the port of New York for the last three quarters of 1867-68 and for the last nine months ending June 30, 1868, for nine other ports are missing also.

If the documents are not found, it will be impossible to write an accurate record of immigration into the United States since 1822, as was the purpose of the immigration commission. The discovery was made through the request of the commission for records covering this long period.

The discovery is of some importance also as indicating that other valuable papers may be found missing when demand for them is made. Washington is spread all over with valuable papers for which the departments have no room. This latest disclosure may help to prod congress to supply a new fire-proof building for unused files.

BRIDAL COUPLE LACKING

Committee In Charge of Public Wedding Forced to Call It Off

Wareham, Mass., Aug. 23.—A throng of over 500 waited in front of E. N. Thompson's general store in this town until after midnight waiting for a much-advertised public wedding to take place. While the huge crowd waited, the committee in charge of the affair was hustling all around Tremont, Onset and East and West Wareham, trying to persuade some couple to get married at once and thereby gain 101 useful presents.

At about midnight the members of the committee agreed that it was a useless task trying to get couples to marry at such short notice and the much-heralded affair was called off for good.

The Wareham Merchants' association devised the feature. All of the members agreed to donate something for the use of the married couple, provided that the ceremony should be performed on the balcony over the Thompson store.

Woman Accussed of $45,000 Theft

Berne, Aug. 23.—The police arrested a chambermaid at Vichy and her husband, charging them with the theft of $45,000 worth of jewels from Mrs. Daniel Bacon of New York.

Wanted In Death Case

Bangor, Me., Aug. 23.—David Shepherd, who has been sought since the death of Willis McLeon in a brickyard of this city on Saturday, was caught last evening by the local police. Shepherd was hiding in a stable.

Mad Mullah Very Much Alive

Aden, Aug. 23.—The Mad Mullah, reported some months ago to have been killed, is again on the rampage. He reappeared with a large force near Buras, Somaliland, and the friendly natives fled before his army.

Libelled Schooner at Auction

Calais, Me., Aug. 23.—The libelled schooner Odell was sold at public auction by United States Marshal Mayo to Captain T. W. Hinkley of Calais. The vessel brought $140.

SUED FOR GAMBLING DEBT

New Jersey Man Who Bet $100 on Jeffries Refuses to Pony Up

Ramsey, N. J., Aug. 22.—James W. Chappell of this place has brought suit against James Shuart, a wealthy man and a tax collector of the town. Shuart bet Chappell $100 against $25 that Jeffries would win the fight at Reno. Frank Pool was made stakeholder and each man gave him a check. After the fight Chappell tried to collect his $100, but found that payment had been stopped.

Chappell's lawyer says he is aware that the statute against gambling makes impossible the recovery of a judgment and he explains that the object of the suit is to put the case on record and give Shuart a chance to pay up.

Guests Hustle From Burning Hotel

Bangor, Me., Aug. 22.—Guests at the Trustee house, a country hotel at Charleston, had barely time to escape with their lives when the hotel was burned. The loss is $8000. The fire started from a defective flue.

Twenty Hurt In Trolley Crash

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 22.—A head-on collision on the Old Orchard branch of the Portland electric railroad occurred one mile from Dunstan. More than twenty of the passengers were injured, eight seriously.

Insane Man Kills Steamer Captain

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—A wireless report says that Captain E. B. Wood of the steamer Buckman was killed in a struggle with an insane passenger. The steamer is bound from this port to Seattle.

Boxer Killed In Bout

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—Frederick Castor, 20 years old, died after participating in a six-round bout with Frank (Spike) Sullivan of this city.

PLANNING TO "SAVE" G. O. P.

Roosevelt Has Nation-Wide Program of Political Policy

"MY POLICIES" CHIEF FACTOR

Former President Reaches Conclusions Without His Successor's Assistance —Speeches Will Touch Upon Tariff, Conservation and Federal Regulation—Ballinger Episode and Standpatism Will Receive Consideration

Washington, Aug. 23.—On the day of former President Roosevelt's departure from Oyster Bay, on a speech-making tour of the west, Washington was set agog by a well authenticated report that Roosevelt proposes in his coming speeches to announce a nation-wide program of political policy which he believes will save the Republican party from impending defeat in the coming congressional campaign.

This program, it is understood, will set forth Roosevelt's views on the political issues of the day, including the tariff, conservation, corporation and railroad regulation and other issues and the pronouncement will be thoroughly Rooseveltian, according to the report.

The speeches will bring the Roosevelt policies up-to-date, but will not mention the Taft policies directly. If there is any diversity of opinion between Roosevelt and his successor in the White House, the inferences will have to be drawn from the coming Roosevelt speeches. It is understood that Roosevelt will handle the Ballinger episode and the insurgent-standpat fight without gloves and that he will make his position unmistakeably clear on both subjects. If current reports from those who profess to know the drift of Roosevelt's mind are correct, Republican insurgency will be the gainer after Roosevelt has concluded his trip.

There is no doubt among the friends of the former president here that he has definitely determined upon a program of political action which will govern his future participation in political events and that this determination was reached two weeks ago, since when Roosevelt has turned his mind to other things.

It can be stated with some definiteness that Roosevelt has reached his conclusions without outside assistance, at least so far as President Taft is concerned, it being understood here that little communication on political subjects has been passed between the two since Taft became president.

Mr. Roosevelt started today on a journey of 5493 miles, which will extend over nearly three weeks, and in the course of which he will travel through fourteen states. During the tour he will deliver fourteen set speeches, one for each state.

Ernest Abbott and W. B. Howland of New York, who are associated with him in his editorial work, and Frank Harper, his secretary, will travel with him. In addition to his set speeches, Roosevelt will make many extemporaneous addresses from the rear platform of his car.

At almost every point along the line of travel elaborate preparations to receive him are being made, and from start to finish he will be governed in his movements by a schedule which will keep him on the move during his waking hours.

TAFT WITH PROGRESSIVES

Was Misrepresented by Old Guard Leaders In New York

New York, Aug. 23.—In a letter sent from Beverly to Lloyd C. Griscom, leader of the insurgent forces in the state warfare, President Taft takes a firm stand with the progressive element in the organization; announces that there is no break between himself and Mr. Roosevelt on the state issues and gives the Sherman-Woodruff-Barnes combination a swat which the insurgents declare will prove fatal to the "regular" leaders.

Mr. Taft declares that he was misrepresented in every particular by the old guard leaders who justified their course in rejecting Roosevelt for the temporary chairmanship of the state convention by making it appear that such a course bore the approval of the president.

It is the president's first statement regarding either his relations with the recent president, or his attitude toward the two factions which are engaged in a death struggle throughout New York state.

The insurgents are jubilant and declare that the president's utterances mean the complete elimination of the "regulars" unless they make an unconditional surrender.

Mr. Griscom supplemented Taft's letter with a statement of his own calling on all progressive Republicans in the state to unite in the fight against the "old guard." That the contest will be carried into the primaries and that there will be no quarter given is stated emphatically by Griscom.

Emphasis is given three statements —those of Taft, Roosevelt and Griscom—that all references to the relations between the president and former president are to New York state alone.

AWAITING GAYNOR'S WORD

Mayor Can Have Nomination For Governor If He Wants It

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 23.—If Mayor Gaynor says the word, he will get the nomination for governor from the Democratic party of New York. This does not mean that all the leaders are eager to have Gaynor accept. In view of Tammany's experience, it is feared that he would hardly be an "organization" governor. The historic Democratic machine of New York has found out, if they did not know it before, that he is not a "machine" mayor.

In addition the Democrats are so confident of victory that some of them feel that they would win with a man who would not be likely to be at odds with the machine after he established himself at Albany.

It is believed, however, that Gaynor would, if he accepted the nomination, easily defeat any man that the Republicans could nominate.

KEEPS OUT OF PRIMARIES

La Follette Won't Fight For Nomination Unless He Has To

Milwaukee, Aug. 23.—United States Senator La Follette will not enter the primary campaign in the contest for renomination unless has has to, according to a story from Madison, which tells about a conference between the senator and a number of his adherents, bearing on the primary struggle. The only issue in the campaign is that for representative government, according to La Follette.

"A physical ailment has prevented me from entering the campaign," La Follette is quoted as saying. "I have just had a long talk with my doctor and he advises me to stay out of the campaign for the present unless it is absolutely necessary for me to enter it. I prefer to save my strength for the more strenuous fight that we shall have to make after the primary."

FITZGERALD WOULD NOT DECLINE OFFER

Willing to Be Nominated Governor of Bay State

Boston, Aug. 23.—There seems to be no longer any doubt as to the gubernatorial aspirations of John F. Fitzgerald, mayor of Boston. The mayor, in answer to much importuning, issued a statement in which he says he believes in nominating the "strongest man on the day of the convention," and when asked if he were in that position he would decline the nomination answered "No."

The opinion is generally expressed that the Foss men, in opposing Vahey, and the Vahey men, in opposing Foss, have forced the mayor into a position of becoming a candidate. Notwithstanding the coyness of the mayor's statement, it is generally believed that he has a pretty good idea that the strongest man on the day of the convention will be John F. Fitzgerald.

IRISHMEN ARE PLEASED

Cunard Company Decides to Have Steamers Stop at Queenstown

Boston, Aug. 23.—Thousands of Bostonians are interested in the victory Ireland has just won in the rivalry that has waxed bitter over having Queenstown as a port of call for the Cunarders, instead of Fishguard, Wales.

Since the beginning of the fight Irish-Americans throughout New England have taken a lively interest in the final outcome of the controversy, that has just been settled by the announcement that all the Cunard line ships except the Mauretania and Lusitania will call at Queenstown, beginning Sept. 1.

BECAME HOLY ROLLERS

Former Baptist Preacher Made Death Pact With a Girl

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 23.—By weaving the broken threads of a story told by Alice Griffin, 16 years old, the authorities here learned that John I. O'Neil, who died as the result of a death pact, formerly was a Baptist minister of Dallas, Tex.

O'Neil met Mrs. Nellie E. Boyle, with whom he lived here, in Jersey City, N. J., and then converted her to the Holy Roller faith, which he had taken up. The officials say Alice Griffin is a niece of Dr. George A. Griffin, a Brooklyn optician.

Fifty-Three Years In One College

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 23.—Dr. J. J. Rucker, for fifty-three years professor of mathematics at Georgetown college, died last evening, aged 85.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Quincy People Know How to Save It.

Many Quincy people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Quincy citizen's recommendation.

Nicholas Albanese, 16 Gilmore street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I was annoyed by attacks of backache for some time, often while at work sharp, shooting pains darted through my loins, causing me great misery. I also had dizzy spells and my sight seemed to be affected. I tried many remedies, but did not receive relief and as a last resort, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and in a short time after using them, I was helped. I have no hesitation in giving Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Worms

"Cascarets are certainly fine. I gave a friend one when the doctor was treating him for cancer of the stomach. The next morning he passed four pieces of a tape worm. He then got a box and in three days he passed a tape-worm 45 feet long. It was Mr. Matt Freck, of Millersburg, Dauphin Co., Pa. I am quite a worker for Cascarets. I use them myself and find them beneficial for most any disease caused by impure blood." Chas. E. Condon, Lewiston, Pa., (Mifflin Co.)

JOSE MADRIZ

President of Nicaragua, Whom Insurgents Have Driven Out

© HARRIS & EWING

MADRIZ FLEES THE COUNTRY

Gives Presidency to Jose Estrada Before Leaving Capital

LATTER WILL NOT KEEP IT

Will Turn Office Over to His Brother, Who Led Rebel Forces During Nearly a Year of Severe Fighting—Vanguard of Revolutionists Now Close to Managua, Which They Expect to Reach Without Organied Opposition

Managua, Aug. 23.—The advance guard of the revolutionists is now one mile from Managua.

President Madriz left the capital Sunday night for Corinto, accompanied by his chief advisers.

There was rioting Sunday night, but it was quickly quelled. The situation is critical.

Before departing for Corinto with Generals Toledo, Vasquez, Ortio and Montenegro and Julian Irias, the presidency was turned over by Madriz to Jose D. Estrada, the leader of the revolution.

Immediately afterwards Jose Estrada issued a proclamation, saying that he would give the office to his brother, and started a peace commission of foreign consuls for Granada, to inform General Estrada of his intention. The committee was compelled to return to Managua, however, for the railroad tracks had been torn up.

After almost a year of severe fighting the revolution which was begun by several hundred Nicaraguan insurgents at Bluefields on Oct. 10, 1909, is now ended.

It is expected that the vanguard of Estrada's troops, under Generals Mena and Chamorro, will reach Managua some time tonight. They expect to meet with no armed resistance. The war is over so far as further hostilities between Estrada's army and the remnants of the troops which once fought for Zelaya are concerned.

The chief source of concern now is whether Juan Estrada, leader of the insurgents, will have to fight to retain his office. It is declared General Chamorro, chief of staff of the Estrada army, has presidential aspirations.

Pittman Escapes From Jail

Managua, Aug. 23.—William Pittman, the Boston engineer accused of laying mines, is free at the American consulate. All the prisoners in the penitentiary made their escapes yesterday afternoon.

Warner Through With the Senate

Washington, Aug. 23.—Senator Warner of Misouri, in a formal statement last night, announced he would not be a candidate for re-election. He gives ill-health as the reason.

Colt to Succeed Aldrich

Newport, R. I., Aug. 23.—It is said that Samuel P. Colt of Bristol, the head of the rubber trust, has been selected by the Republican party of Rhode Island to succeed Senator Nelson W. Aldrich.

BEAVER GETS DRAPER CUP

Spanish Yachts Far In Rear In Final Sonder Class Race

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 23.—The Spanish-American sonder yacht races ended with the contest for the Governor Draper cup, the second of the principal trophies, and Beaver, owned and sailed by C. H. W. Foster, won by 13 seconds over Guy Lowell's Cima.

The two Spanish boats, Chonta and Papoose, were never factors in the race and dropped steadily behind from the start. The third of the Spanish yachts, the Mosquito II, did not start.

The pleasure of sailing against two American opponents was the only incentive that took the Spanish sonder yachtsmen out of the harbor for the final race of the international series. The three challengers, Chonta, Papoose and Mosqpito II, were so decisively beaten by the Americans last week that after Harpoon had won the President Taft cup the only boats left in the contest for the Governor Draper cup, the other big trophy for the series, were Beaver and Cima.

HELD AS RUSSIAN FUGITIVE

Admittance to Bail Is Refused In the Case of Pavlutchek

Boston, Aug. 23.—On the complaint of being a fugitive from justice in Russia, Theophile Pavlutchek was taken before Commissioner Hayes, who found probable cause, and a continuance of one week was granted. Counsel for the defendant urged that bail be fixed at a sum of not more than $10,000. The commissioner declined to give the prisoner the privilege of bail at this time.

It is claimed by the Russian government that Pavlutchek, while employed as a postal telegraph operator in one of the provinces, was given a package of money to deliver and that he kept the money and immediately disappeared. The amount of cash in the bundle was 6380 roubles, or about $3300.

PREACHERS WILL RAISE CRANBERRIES

Purchase a Big Bog and Form $75,000 Corporaion

Wareham, Mass., Aug. 23.—The growing tendency of ministers to leave the pulpit to embark in business pursuits has been again illustrated by the formation of the Sippican Cranberry company, a corporation capitalized at $75,000, all the officers of which are clergymen.

Some of the ministers interested in the venture have become so enhusiastic over the prospects of the company that they have already resigned their pastorates, or are intending to do so within a short time. Others who are taking a less active part in the management of the concern will use the profits they derive from it to supplement their earnings in the pulpit.

The company controls a cranberry bog of 165 acres in this town near the Marion line, most of which is yielding fruit.

GET A DAY IN JAIL

Chicago Girls Cannot Smoke Cigarets on Streets of Omaha

Omaha, Aug. 23.—Miss Doris Roberts and Miss Smith, fashionably dressed young women from Chicago, were arrested when walking down one of the crowded business streets smoking cigarets. They were arraigned in police court on a charge of "disorderly conduct."

"Why, Omaha is a mile behind the procession," said one of them to Judge Crawford. "Women can and do smoke cigarets in Chicago and nobody thinks anything about it."

"But you are in Omaha," answered the judge, "and we don't tolerate such things out here. I'll give you each a day in jail to think this thing over."

EIGHTY REPORTED DEAD

Great Section of Forest Burned Over In Coeur d'Alene Region

Wallace, Ida., Aug. 23.—The loss of life in the forest fires that swept over the Coeur d'Alene region Saturday and Sunday is placed at eighty persons. Forestry officials received word that thirty-four fire fighters had met death on Superior lake.

Word came that 106 men near Avery, on the St. Joe river, had been burned, but a later report said that all but four came out safely.

The whole country from here to the St. Joe river, twenty-seven miles, has been burned over.

SMITH OF IOWA FOR SPEAKER

Gossip Credits Him With Having President's Indorsement

A HIGH PRIEST OF REGULARS

Weeks of Massachusetts Will Probably Be His Strongest Opponent Should It Come to Showdown Between Middle West and East, as Expected In the Event of Cannon's Retirement From Office

Washington, Aug. 22.—As often as fresh opposition arises to the re-election of Uncle Joe Cannon to the speakership of the house, just as often there is new speculation as to the most likely man to succeed the veteran legislator as the presiding officer of the house.

With the open rebellion of Representative Longworth and his declaration that he cannot again support Cannon for the speakership, discussion of the possible identity of the next speaker has been renewed in Washington.

Just now the stock of Walter I. Smith of Iowa seems to be on a rising market. It is said the president favors him as Cannon's successor. To have the support of the administration would be a tremendous advantage in a party fight of this character. There is no definite announcement of the president's attitude, but it would be an easy matter for the word to go out that the president wanted Smith elected.

Judge Smith has been a high priest in the camp of the regulars. He has served faithfully upon Cannon's committee on rules and is as familiar with the legislative details and organization practices as any man in the house. This may qualify him for the speakership from the standpoint of a reactionary, but it may also disqualify him when he comes to securing the support of the progressives.

If Cannon should retire from the race or be retired, and it comes to a showdown between the middle west and the east over the election of the next speaker, the fight would probably narrow down to Representatives Smith of Iowa and Weeks of Massachusetts. Weeks is strongly supported by Senator Crane, who is probably the smoothest and most effective politician in either branch of congress.

Representative Mann of Illinois, co-author of the railroad bill, will be a candidate without doubt, but his personal unpopularity will militate against him. He is recognized as a very able statesman, but at one time or another he has antagonized about every member of the house through constantly objecting to their measures.

Chairman Payne if the ways and means committee, a very important factor in the house organization, is talked of for the speakership, but he is physically unable to perform the duties and on that account would probably refuse to allow his name to be presented.

Marlin E. Olmstead of Pennsylvania has become a commanding figure in the house organization and would have the united support of the Pennsylvania delegation in a Republican caucus, but it is hard to determine how much other strength he could control. The same might be said of Representative Fassett of New York. His state delegation would no doubt vote for him.

Among the other names discussed in connection with the speakership are Chairman Tawney of the appropriations committee, Representative Currier of New Hampshire, Asher C. Hines, the house parliamentarian and a candidate for congress from Maine, and Representative Crumpacker of Indiana.

All this, of course, is predicted upon the assumption that the Republicans will control the next house. If they lose it to the Democrats Champ Clark of Missouri will be the next speaker. He has some opposition in his party, but not enough to control a Democratic caucus.

MURDER IN BANGOR

Man Who Resented Insulting Remark to Daughter Is Killed

Bangor, Me., Aug. 22.—An insulting remark said to have been made to his 17-lear-old daughter by a man whom the police are now seeking, is given as the cause of the murder of Willis McLeod, 45 years old, a boarding house keeper, whose body was found in a field near his home. The man alleged to have made the remark, Donald Sheppard, has disappeared.

McLeod is known to have had a fist fight with Sheppard soon after supper. It is said that Sheppard made the remark to Sadie McLeod while she was waiting on table, and that the fight resulted.

RESTAURANT MEN MUST LABEL PIES

Public Will Know When There Is Benzoate In the Filling

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—A label on every wedge of pie or cessation of the use of "pie filler" containing benzoate of soda is the ultimatum of the state dairy and food authorities.

Hotel keepers, restaurant men and dairy lunch men who serve cuts of luscious pie which away down deep contains benzoate must comply with the pure food law, which prohibits the use of benzoate of soda in quantities greater than one-tenth of 1 percent, and requires that all foods containing even that small amount shall advertise the fact.

The agents of the dairy and food division are going up and down the state buying pies. Pie is going under the chemical test because it has been found that many bakers have been using the "uller," some of which is preserved with benzoate.

AFTER THREE-YEAR CHASE

Detectives Make Another Arrest For the Russian Government

Boston, Aug. 22.—As the climax to a chase that has extended from Siberia to this country, Theophile Pablutchek, 29, charged with the larceny of 6380 roubles from the imperial Russian government, was yesterday arrested in Chelsea through the instrumentality of Pinkerton detectives, who have followed the man from place to place for the last three years.

This man is believed by the officers making the arrest to be one of the leaders of the gang of revolutionists that caused so much disturbance in Russia during 1907-1908. He is also believed to have been a co-worker with the Russian, Andrew Rullow, who was arrested a week ago, charged with the larceny of many thousands of roubles from the imperial Russian sub-treasury at Tiflis.

REMARKABLE GUN BLAST

North Dakota's Whole Battery Thunders at Same Time Without Mishap

Newport, R. I., Aug. 22.—The battleship North Dakota came in from trials with her battery of ten twelve-inch guns which were fired at one time, marking the heaviest warship battery ever fired together in the world.

There were no mishaps and no damage to material from the gun blast except of minor nature, such as can be easily repaired on board the newest Dreadnaught of the United States navy.

The board of inspection which watched the gun fire is highly pleased with the proactice. Officers and men of the North Dakota are also highly elated over their gun work.

BENNETT—WILLIAMS.

Wallace Cherrington Bennett and Miss Lois Elmer Williams, both formerly of Quincy and well known among the younger set were married at the bride's home on St. James street, Newton, Saturday, Rev. R. Perry Bush of Chelsea uncle of the bride officiating. Miss Mildred H. Williams sister of the bride was maid of honor and Edward Gilman Curtis, Harvard '09 was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery L. Bennett were present at the wedding, having returned from a two months stay in the Catskills where they have been since their marriage in June. They will remain in Wollaston as guests of Mrs. George Bennett until the schools open in September.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bennett are graduates of the Quincy High school where they were prominent in school athletics. Mrs. Bennett was a teacher of special work at Laselle seminary at Auburndale.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett will be at home to their friends after Sept. 1st at St. James street, Newton.

WAS NOT RESTELLI.

Word has been received from Hartford that the man Pietro Colletti, who was thought to be the Luigi Restelli wanted in Quincy is Colletti and not Restelli. On receipt of a complete description of Restelli received from Chief Burrell it was clearly established that the Italian shot in a row at Hartford was not the Quincy man. The resemblance was very much alike but the missing toe businesssettled the question beyond any doubt. The man buried in Hartford had ten toes and a good head of hair. Restelli had but nine toes and no hair.

L. O. L. PICNIC.

Quincy L. O. L. 194 hold a grand picnic on Saturday afternoon and evening at Merrymount park. Music by the Quincy Fife and Drum Corps, sports and refreshments are on the program. The committee includes: Dr. J. H. Anderson, Andrew Stewart, Richard Rundle, Gustaf Lumberg, Herbert Sproul, Oscar Swanson, Alex White, James Freeborn, Al Morrison and William Littlewood.

SPORTING CHAT.

The committee in charge of the coming union picnic of the Associated Order of Scottish Clans held a meeting which lasted nearly three hours. The football competition now has eight teams entered among them the two Quincy teams. Football of the soccer variety has grown marvelously popular of late years.

• • •

Mike Shea said himself that Glaze never pitched better for Quincy than young Ford did and its so. He certainly had the Rockland boys buffaloed and it was the hardest kind of luck that lost him the game, Quincy should have won, 2 to 1. With good backing Ford is as good as there is hereabout.

• • •

What do you think of the deal the ump got Saturday? Of course the crowd showed itself up but that decision was awful.

• • •

Rose pitched better ball Saturday than ever before in his career. The last time he was here he was touched for five runs in two innings.

• • •

Killilea pretty nearly turned himself inside out getting that grounder of Armstrong's and throwing Duggan out. Some class to the stop.

• • •

Connelly's bang to centre was terrific but it went so high it didn't roll far when it struck. A faster man would have made third.

• • •

• • •

Ford struck out Rudderham twice and the mighty Smith and Butman in succession when a hit meant a run.

• • •

The Fore River Apprentices who are theoretically tied with Cranch for the lead of the Granite City league will play at the Water street grounds next Saturday before the regular game between Quincy and Stoughton. The game is bound to be fast and the rivalry between the two assures it. The junior teams start at 2 o'clock sharp and not a minute later. Billy Flynn will ump.

• • •

The game of football as it will be played this year will be radically different than it was formerly. Under the new rules a premium is put on quickness and speed rather than weight and crushing power. The new rules provide that the receiver of a forward pass be given a clear path to do so and not touch until he has advanced at least one step with the ball. The flying tackle is prohibited. The runner must not crawl or hitch forward. This obviates piling up as practiced in former years and which was the cause of the majority of hurts.

The team in possession of the ball must not pull or push the man rushing, thus the fate of the runner rests with himself and one of the opposition so that there will be no more pile-on's where the last five on, jump on feet first to crush whom they might. Players may be re-substituted. There will be four periods instead of two. No locked interference. Under these and several minor changes the game bids to be as clean as basket ball or base ball, since with a good referee no fouls will be permitted and the brutality of the game eliminated.

• • •

The new rules put seven men on the line "instead of six as formerly." Just count how many there were last year. Center, two guards, two tackles and two ends—seven. Now what happened to the rule makers?

• • •

The ball may be passed to any player on a team except the guards and may be taken across any part of the scrimmage line. It may be passed anywhere, also.

• • •

Should a man get beyond the enemies line there is a space of 20 yards where he is absolutely to be free from interference on an outside kick or forward pass until he has taken one step with the ball.

• • •

The Ramblers will play Cranch A. A. Saturday, Sept. 3, if Capt. Gallivan will phone Quincy 574-2, and make arrangements with Manager Burton.

• • •

The Ramblers would like to play either Fore River or Adams A. A. on Labor Day in the morning at Merrymount park.

• • •

Oh, Mister Neary! Will you make Hardy forfeit that game to you.

• • •

The Wawenock, owned by G. D. Sargent took first prize in Class S at Winthrop on Saturday.

There are a great number of fans in this city who would like to see a game between the Ramblers and Makarias.

• • •

The Dorchen II won again on Saturday at Marblehead.

MCGOVERN—CONNOLLY.

A very pretty wedding took place Friday afternoon when Helen McGovern and Thomas Connolly were married by the Rev. Fr. Coan at the Catholic church. The bride wore a gown of blue silk and a black picture hat. The bridesmaid was Miss Lillian Lawton of Adams street and she was gowned in white silk, trimmed with blue and looked very attractive. The best man was Mr. Harry Connell of Brighton.

The bride and groom will leave the later part of the month on their honeymoon to Scotland.

TODAY'S COURT.

Patrick Donahue, Patrick Messenger and Fred Peterson were fined $10 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Frank D. Costello and Richard Budvinkel were fined $10 each for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

STILL ALARM.

The Central station combination responded to a still alarm at 12.05 this noon for a fire in an oil stove at the residence of Arthur Feltis on Mechanics street. There was considerable smoke but no fire loss.

PASKERT REGAINS NERVE.

Red Player Now Hitting Because He Has Confidence In Himself.

Last fall Manager Griffith was asked to trade Outfielder George Paskert to the Boston National club. He was to receive a pitcher in return. Griffith thought the matter over very carefully before he declined to make a deal and by doing so saved himself from future humiliation. Paskert didn't look like such a very valuable ball player. He struck out too often, especially in the pinches.

There was a reason for it too. The Cincinnati players made Dody believe he couldn't hit a curve ball. They told him that so often and teased him about it so much that, when he stepped to the plate and saw a curve coming his way he simply gasped and expired or swung a yard or so above or below the ball.

Paskert doesn't believe he can't hit a curve ball now. He thinks he can hit any kind of ball any pitcher ever threw. Why? Because his teammates have ceased telling him he can't hit curves and his friends are telling him he is a natural hitter and can hit anything. They charged him with confidence at the season's start and continued to tell him he was a good batsman. As a result Paskert is now leading his team in batting and also the National league in base stealing.

John E. Madden to Race Abroad.

The latest recruit to the foreign brigade of horsemen is John E. Madden. For the first time in his career his racing colors will be seen on the English and French turf next season. He will send over a small but select string of racers, but he does not expect to cut a wide swath in the big event until 1912. Then he will start some youngsters born in France, the progeny of Plaudit, which will introduce him to European turf circles as a breeder. He will not, however, abandon the American turf and will still maintain his breeding farm at Hamburg Place, Kentucky.

Sprinter Lunghi Coming Back.

Lunghi, the Italian runner, who beat it to Italy last summer, is thinking of coming back to these lands again.

STORIES OF THE DIAMOND.

Griffith Wants More Allowance In Scoring Sacrifice Hits.

LIKES OLD METHOD BEST.

Give Credit to Player Only When He Bunts or Call Everything That Advances a Runner a Sacrifice, Says Reds' Manager—Base Running.

No. XX.
By CLARK GRIFFITH.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Here is something that I've been hammering at for some time. It is for more allowance in scoring sacrifice hits. My idea is either bunts only should count as sacrifice hits or that all fair balls which advance a runner at the expense of the batter being put out should be called sacrifice hits—that is, one should be the whole hog or none. I believe in the old way of scoring hits, giving credit for one only when a player bunted, or would call everything that advanced a runner a sacrifice. I contend that if a long fly which scores a runner from third base is to be called a sacrifice then a slow grounder that accomplishes the same result is just as much entitled to that credit.

Very often a runner is scored from third by a ground ball which bounds over the pitcher's head and cannot be fielded in time to get the man at the plate, though the batter is thrown out at first base. This kind of a hit does the club just as much good as a long fly and is entitled to the same consideration. If a runner is advanced from second to third on an out the batter should be entitled to a sacrifice hit even if he did not bunt the ball. This seems to be much fairer to the batter than to single out and call it a sacrifice, to the exclusion of the other kinds, which may be just as helpful to the teams.

Most of the scorers are in favor of going back to the old rule that only bunts shall count as sacrifice hits, thus restoring the value of the sacrifice hit column. But if the long fly sacrifice is to be retained I think my idea is a fair one—namely, to count as sacrifices all outs which advance a preceding runner. Undoubtedly this change would be welcomed by all the ball players, as it materially would increase the batting averages.

Is clever base running as important a factor in deciding games as ever? You can bet it is. Since I have taken hold of the Reds I have had my men practice base running continually. Take, for instance, when there is a clever base runner on the sacks. He works the catcher for many throws, and once you get them pegging you can pull off many tricks on them. I do not believe in headlong sack purloining when there are accurate throwers behind the plate. But take the average backstop and as a general rule it pays to keep 'em pegging. Of recent years there has been so very little great base running that the infielders are at a loss to know what to do with fast men coming at them all the time. A majority of them go up in the air when runner after runner starts round the sacks without waiting to be pushed by the batters.

Backstops do not always throw accurately. Infielders take the throw and immediately grope around as if they were in the dark. If the runner has a little nerve he can steal almost all the time. There has been a great howl about spiking of infielders. I think this is largely due to the infielders not knowing how to tag the runner. Why, in the old days, when base purloining was one of the leading features of the game, the infield stationers were experts in tagging and dodging them. Today the infielders don't know what to do with them. They go over the sack in clumsy fashion and get spiked by the man sliding, instead of being to the side ready to tag the player as he arrives. Some time when you have a few spare moments just glance over the records of the old timers and you will see that more base runners used to get hurt than the men holding down the sacks. Seldom was the infielder injured. It was generally the base runner that got the bumps.

DISCARDS MAKE GOOD.

Daubert, Lennox and Tony Smith All From American League.

Three of the members of the Brooklyn infield—Jake Daubert, Tony Smith and Edgar Lennox—used to play in the American league, each man having been pronounced N. G. by the leader who employed him. The commander who said that Daubert wouldn't do was Napoleon Lajoie; the pilot who couldn't discern merit in Tony Smith was Garland Jacob Stahl, while the skipper who tin canned Lennox was Connie Mack. Daubert was originally discovered in the Ohio and Pennsylvania league. Smith went to Washington from the Texas league, and Lennox was playing in the Tri-state when Connie Mack signed him.

Pirates Have Had Many First Sackers.

The Pittsburg club has had enough first basemen in recent years to put a while nine on the field—Beckley, Harry Davis, Bransfield, Gill, Swacina, Kane, Abstein, Sharpe and Flynn.

The Vampire Bat.

The true vampire bat is a quite insignificant creature, not unlike our noctule but in general appearance and size, but with a small "nose leaf" and no web between the hind legs. The really remarkable thing about it is its perfect adaptation for secret and painless bloodletting. Most bats have teeth very like those of the carnivora, with long canines and small incisors, but in the true bloodsucking vampire bat the incisors are very large and broad and exceedingly sharp edged, thus being able to inflict a shaving surface cut which causes no pain, but a great deal of bleeding. Indeed, not only does the sleeper very rarely wake under the winged bloodletter's attentions, but a bite may be inflicted unfelt on a person who is awake at the time.—London Graphic.

All Depends.

There are distinctions, it would seem,
In current vogue.
A man who waters milk we deem
A common rogue.

A deal depends upon the haul,
It would appear.
A man who waters stocks we call
A financier.

WESSAGUSSETT CLUBHOUSE

Yacht Club to Dedicate a $3500 Building

The handsome new clubhouse of the Wessagussett Yacht Club at Wessagussett beach, North Weymouth, will be formally opened this evening. Following a reception, there will be a musical and literary program, dancing and refreshments.

The new clubhouse is situated on the shores of Wessagussett beach overlooking Weymouth Fore River and the surrounding country. It is of the bungalow type and has broad piazzas on three sides and is described by the Monitor as follows:

The new building is 60x40 feet and has a balcony on front 12 feet square. On three sides of the structure there is a piazza 10 feet in width.

The main entrance is on the east side of the building. This leads into a hall 40 by 50 feet. In the rear of this are located lockers for members. On the south side of the building is a men's wash and toilet room and in the rear of these are a ladies' parlor and dressing room. The building has been so arranged as to enable an addition to be made to it when needed. The hall is finished throughout in natural wood and the furniture is of weathered oak. It is lighted with electricity.

A landing pier 120 feet in length has been built from the clubhouse. The cost of the new clubhouse was $3502. It was built by Charles H. Blackwell.

The Wessagussett Yacht Club is the youngest on the South Shore. It was organized by summer residents of Wessagussett Beach in 1903, with 12 charter members. R. O. Clark was then elected commodore and has filled the position since that time. Its membership is limited to 75. Its present number is 60.

Other officers o fthe club are: Vice-Commodore Everett Hollis; secretary and treasurer, Frank Fulton; house committee, John H. Miller, Andrew Eppler and William H. Weston; entertainment, George A. Walker, W. H. Wye, John Guy, Arthur R. Sampson and George E. Sampson. The club has a fleet of 50 boats.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

George Donahue, aged 45 years, of Prospect street, Braintree, died at the Quincy Hospital, Tuesday, from a fracture of the skull received at the Fore River ship yard, Monday, by falling from a staging 12 feet high. He leaves a widow, and brother who reside in Lynn. The body was taken to Lynn for burial today.

—The need of the Floating Hospital for $10,000 to complete its summer's work needs only to be made known to be met eagerly and with fullest appreciation of what the money will accomplish. The record of over 14,000 separate days' service on the water to babies and mothers already this summer is indicative of the width of the group it reaches and aids It is essentially emergency work, and peculiarly adapted to meet the child life of the city. Its effort today is to get parents and physicians to send children before it is too late to make help effective. It is life-saving service of high efficiency and truly expert character. It deserves the full support it gets each year and the special aid it requires at this moment.—Boston Record.

COMPANY TO PROTECT LIGHTS

Will Promptly Arrest Those Breaking Globes

The Electric Light Company is doing everything possible to bring to justice the men and boys who amuse themselves by smashing the electric light globes and fixtures. In certain districts the company has found it next to impossible to keep the streets lighted. This is particularly true as to the Squantum street causeway, where they are broken almost as fast as the company can put them in. From now on, however, the company intend to make warfare on this class of mischief workers.

One Roxbury boy was brought into court Tuesday for breaking lamps on the Squantum causeway, and other arrests are likely to follow if the practice of breaking lamps continues, as the Electric Light Co., has employed a special officer to look after its lights.

BRIEFS

Herbert Pratt of Coddington street was a guest on Sunday of his brother at Bridgewater.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman B. Gammons have returned from a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Elijah B. Gammons of Bridgewater.

Tickets for the Massachusetts association of Elks outing, Aug. 31, may be obtained of Leo J. McMaster or of James Sweeney.

David Sullivan of Quincy avenue, has accepted a position with the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company.

Joseph N. Lincoln of Washington street will complete his course of Thayer Academy the coming year. He is taking the five-year course.

John Eldridge, formerly of Quincy Point, now resides in Boston, and is employed by the South Terminal Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pierson of Washington court are receiving the congratulations of their friends on the birth of a handsome daughter.

The metal trade unions at the Fore River shipyard will be organized into a metal trade council early in September.

A heavily loaded stone team broke through the planking of the City Scales on Granite street this noon. It was some time before the team could be gotten out.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Orne, now of Gloucester, left Tuesday night for Portland, to attend the reunion of Mr. Orne's old regiment, the 25th Maine, and the 30th Maine.

The Norfolk County Association of the Grand Army and Woman's Relief Corps are arranging for their quarterly meeting which will be held Sept. 7 in the town hall at Stoughton with the A. St. John Chambre post of that town as hosts and the Relief corps will serve a dinner.

PRAY-BARNES WEDDING

Wollaston Girl the Bride of a Natick Man

One of the prettiest and most simple of the late summer weddings was that on Tuesday evening, of Miss Helen Canterbury, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Barnes of Wollaston, when she became the bride of Mr. Rutledge Peyton Pray, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Pray of Natick. The house on Pine street was beautifully decorated by friends of the bride, the color scheme being lavender, green and white.

The bride's sister, Miss Margaret Thayer Barnes, was maid of honor, and wore a beautiful hand embroidered gown of lavender silk mulle. Miss Dorothy Crowell of Franklin was the flower girl, scattering sweet peas, as she entered the rooms. The maid of honor also carried sweet peas. The best man was the groom's oldest brother, Mr. Herbert Pray. The bride looked very handsome in her lace robe over white satin. She carried bride's roses and her veil was also caught by the same flower.

A wedding reception followed at which only a few of the relatives and friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Pray left amid a shower of confetti and good wishes. Their auto made good connections with the electrics, so their friends at the station were greatly mislead.

Mr. and Mrs. Pray will be missed by their many friends here, as they are to make their future home in Elizabeth, N. J. Mr. Pray is an inspector of electrical work, having an office in New York City.

IN ELKDOM.

A lodge of sorrow was held by Quincy lodge of Elks on Tuesday evening, in memory of James H. Welsh, who died Aug. 13, 1910. The exercises were conducted by Exalted Ruler William J. Coleman. Several applications for membership were received and others were elected. There was no initiation work however at this meeting.

Considerable interest is being by the members of Quincy lodge in the Association of Massachusetts Elks, and quite a number from Quincy lodge are being enrolled.

Considerable interest in shown taken in the first annual meeting and outing of the association which will be held next Wednesday, Aug. 31 at the club house of Boston lodge. The meeting will be held at 1 o'clock, and will be preceded by a lunch at the club house which will be served from 12 to 1 o'clock. At 3.20 a special boat will be taken from Rowe's wharf for Nantasket. The headquarters will be at Paragon Park. An hour or two will be spent at the park, and at 6 o'clock an adjournment will be made to the Palm garden where a dinner will be served. It is expected that Quincy lodge will be well represented at the meeting.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

If the prohibition wave spreads all over Texas, it necessarily will spread pretty thin in spots.

This is going to be a mighty poor plum season in the opinion of a majority of the candidates.

The emotion that an Indian is a legitimate object of plunder may be somewhat belated, of course, but it seems to be spreading nevertheless.

Nobody seems to think that Senator Gore made a mistake in holding up the attempted $3,000,000 fee grab, anyway.

Hingham and Abington have found it necessary to relocate their auto traps after allowing autoists every opportunity to make good on the required regulations. Why cannot people do the right thing of their own accord without being compelled to by law?

Ex-Gov. Curtis Guild is something of a linguist in this country where one language is in common use. He has for some time had five languages at his command and has recently added Spanish which will come in handy when he delivers his address in Mexico in October.

The champion Harpoon will not compete in the German-American trial races for sonder boats in Buzzards bay next week, being ready to give others a chance. The Beaver, Cima and Sally XI will enter. The Sally has been purchased by Demarest Lloyd, and the Beaver by George Dabney.

Flint, Mich., is one of the cities that probably passed Quincy between 1900 and 1910, having increased from 13,103 to 38,550, because of the automobile industry. But Quincy has passed Jackson, Mich., which increased from 25,180 to 31,433. Battle Creek is forging along and now has 25,267 an increase from 18,563.

If those proposed telephone districts were political districts, a political party would invite censure for gerrymandering. The idea of putting Lexington and Stoneham in a district and leaving out Weymouth, Braintree, Milton and Dorchester. Many of the Dorchester subscribers reside in Quincy. But our district will not compare with Cohasset, Hull, Hingham, Norwood, Lincoln and Reading.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The coming meet at Atlantic, next month has added to the interest in flyers. We read of apparently marvelous flights of the man-birds, and also of many fatalities connected with the—shall we call it sport? The accidents to both machines and operators may well cause cautious men at least to pause before they trust themselves to the strength of the artificial birds, yet the strenuous endeavor to make the heavier-than-air machines really carry a passenger or passengers, is going on without a let-up. Enthusiasts with brains, capital and time to devote to the cause are striving for ultimate success. Who of us can say, in the light of modern discoveries and inventions, that success will not be secured in time? We should hesitate to predict total failure. At present, however, we feel sure that traveling on the solid earth is far safer than the air, even though it be in a "mile-a-minute" automobile.

It is quite certain that the attempt to make flying a practical success will not be given up for a long time and every successful flight of course adds to the zeal of the aviators and inventors.—Salem News.

The cable has brought us the announcement that the belt line railway of Paris is to be electrified at a great cost.

This system, which encircles Paris, is highly important in the transporation scheme of the city. Such a belt line is a growing necessity of Greater Boston and will soon become too urgent to be neglected. Convenient not to say quick, transit between our numerous and popular suburbs is second in importance only to rapid transit between the center of the city and outlying places. There is, to be sure, a gradual and commendable growth in the facilities of intercommunication between the suburbs, but before long a systematic and complete plan will have to be considered and adopted.

In many instances the people of a large city in the metropolitan district are under the necessity of coming into Boston in order to get a car for a city lying immediately beside them. A heavy waste of time and energy is the consequence. The absence of certain links of this kind, which could be more or less easily supplied lays an unnecessary burden on business and social communication.

A Greater Boston belt line is an increasing need, and besides, it would pay. Its omission thus far must be due merely to an oversight in the great progress which has been made in our means of transportation.—Boston Globe.

The great number of assaults on policemen, while in the line of duty, by gangs of young toughs, calls for drastic measures to teach the assailants that their sport is dangerous. When an officer makes an arrest and takes his prisoner to the patrol box, a crowd immediately gathers at the same point. The majority of them are actuated by curiosity, but it often happens, especially in the night, that friends of the arrested man are in the crowd, and quite ready to attempt a release of the prisoner. Recently at South Boston an arrest was made on a charge of rioting, and the friends of the arrested one rallied, beat the officer to insensibility, and got away with the prisoner. It is time that measures were adopted that will effectively stop this sort of proceeding. The officer is not always able to summon help, and must act alone, or allow a man who is wanted for crime to escape. The officer is well aware that in so doing he takes his life in his hands, for there is always the chance of an attempt to rescue, and the gang of thugs will stop at nothing to accomplish their purpose. The Charlestown officer showed how such cases should be handled. It was thought his example would be followed by other policemen, but they seem loth to avail themselves of it. In a battle with a mob of roughs one man with only a billy for a weapon stands a poor chance of landing his prisoner or of escaping with his life. With a drawn pistol in his hand the case is different. If there were more pistols in actual use there would be more policemen without wounds. There ought to be a change of tactics in the police force of large cities.—Lynn Item.

"The diving tackle, hazardous to both tackled and tackler, has been discarded," says an exchange in explaining the new football rules. That being the case, it will be in order on the gridiron this fall for a player to rush up to the runner with the ball, courtesy, and then in most excellent English remark: "Now, sir, I am about to throw you to the ground; prepare yourself against accident, please," whereupon the runner with the ball will kindly topple to the ground. Mollycoddle, indeed!—Barre Times.

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

Autoists Continue to Run at Reckless Speed

The open meeting of the Men's club of the Houghs Neck Union chapel was attended Monday evening by an enthusiastic audience.

After quickly disposing of club business, President Henry W. French introduced the speaker of the evening. Dr. Frances F. Joyner of Bird street who gave a most interesting lecture on "Preventative Tuberculosis." He handled the subject in an easy, familiar manner, made the more interesting through charts and X-ray photographs, loaned to the club, by Dr. Von David, a member.

At the close of the lecture, Dr. Joyner conducted a question box, which was most instructive, as it gave members a chance to obtain information worth many dollars, as one man put it. Dr. Joyner, became a members of the club Aug. 22.

Real live testimony is being vigorously gathered by the lawyers, for The club mock trial. "40 miles an hour" which is scheduled at the Casino, Sept. 1. The impanneling of the jury will give no end of laughter and the body of the trial touches on, well, go and see it. Most any child on the beach can supply tickets, as well as at the stores of several merchants.

It probably won't make much difference, now that the summer season is most over whether Houghs Neck succeeds in checking the speed of autoists on Sea street by the school house, or not. Neighbors at must we repeat it.—"Calamity Corner," were pleased to hear that the Mayor had informed President Maloney of the Houghs Neck Associates on Aug. 3, that immediate action would be taken on the matter, and that within ten days, a sign would swing over the street restricting the speed of autos. Ten days, and ten days more have passed and while we have made some motions, we fail to see the sign.

We were pleased to see the sewer department digging in the section referred to, and enjoyed the necessary precaution autoists' were obliged to take, and we thank the Sewer department for butting in about that time. Now some day Sea street may be paved with stone. It has been paved with good intentions thus far. Help us patch up the present difficulty, and when you take the final count, Mayor we'll try and remember you, when you devote your future attention to paving.

WOUNDS ARE NOT SERIOUS

Negro Fires Bullets Into His Wife, Daughter and Self

Providence, Aug. 24.—After shooting his wife and 3-year-old daughter, Paul Davis, a negro, aged 35, then shot himself in the abdomen at his home in this city. None of the wounds are serious.

Davis came here with his wife and daughter about a week ago from Boston. He had been drinking heavily, it is alleged, and while under the influence of liquor became jealous of his wife and attacked her.

PAULDING SHOWS 33.94-KNOT SPEED

New Record For Oil-Burning Warships Is Established

Rockland, Me., Aug. 24.—The torpedo boat destroyer Paulding established a new record in the class of oil-burning warships during her standardization trial over the Rockland course.

Her fastest mile was at the rate of 33.94 knots an hour, or almost two knots in excess of the fastest mile made by the Roe on the Delaware course.

The Roe is the only other destroyer of this class which has yet been tried.

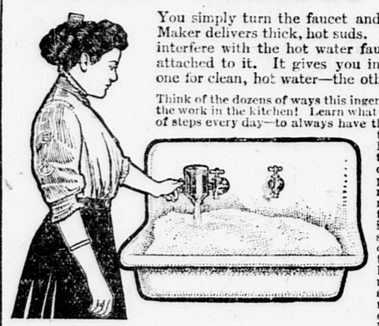

The average of the Paulding's five top speed runs was 33.07. The maximum amount of horsepower developed was above 17,000, which is 5000 more than the horsepower for which she was designed.

Germans Capture British Spy

Emden, Aug. 24.—A young Englishman who was arrested at Borkum was brought here, accused of being a spy. It is reported that he took flashlight photographs of fortifications.

Try This "RICHMOND"

Suds-Maker Free

You simply turn the faucet and the "RICHMOND" Suds-Maker delivers thick, hot suds. It does not in any way interfere with the hot water faucet and can be easily attached to it. It gives you instead, two faucets—one for clean, hot water—the other for thick, hot suds.

Think of the dozens of ways this ingenious device will cut down the work in the kitchen! Learn what it means to save hundreds of steps every day—to always have thick, creamy soap suds on tap. The "Richmond" Suds Maker gives you any quantity of soap and water thoroughly mixed in scientific proportion—it is always ready to meet your instant needs. It puts an end to the drudgery of dish washing—simply place dishes, silver, glassware under its creamy suds for an instant, then just rinse and wipe. It puts an instant, automatic end to waste, to unsightly soap dishes, to the nuisance of using up the odds and ends of soap. Use any kind of soap.

Just call on the plumber whose name appears below and ask to see the "RICHMOND" Suds-Maker. He will let you take one home to try. Use it ten days—then if you think you can spare it, return it, for the trial places you under no obligation to buy. BRIEFS

Many Quincy people may be seen daily taking the steamboat trip to Gloucester.

The westerly side of Hancock street between Saville street and Dimmock street is being resurfaced.

E. H. Angier, W. B. Nichols and C. E. Haskins leave tonight for a week-end visit to Casco bay, Me.

The battleship North Dakota leaves Newport today for another shaking down trip.

The office of the School Committee, which has been closed during the summer vacation has been reported.

The three days' fair of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Houghs Neck Associates opens this afternoon, with attractions afternoon and evening.

It is understood that some of the flying machines that are entered for the aviation meet are to be tried out next week at North Weymouth.

The City Clerk has been flooded with applications for permits to run refreshments booths, etc., on Squantum street during aviation week.

At Marblehead, today, President Taft will present to Charles F. Adams, 2d, the President Taft cup won by the Harpoon in sonder races against the Spanish fleet.

There will be fifty uniformed officers on duty at Squantum during aviation week, and scores of plain clothes men who will give their attention to the light fingered gentry who may always be expected where there is a crowd.

Mrs. Minot Holbrook of Salem died on Monday at the residence of her son, Minot A. Holbrook, at Bayside, North Weymouth, in her 76th year. She formerly resided at South Weymouth. She leaves two sons, W. Edmund and Minot, and a daughter, Mrs. Maria C. Davis.

Everybody will be able to see the aviators even if the field at "Quincy-Squantum-New Squantum and Atlantic" becomes so crowded that the gates have to be closed. Nobody yet has been able to take a lien on the air under the sky, though the political slogan of the future may be, "You shall not fly over my yard. You shall not rest your weary wings on the roof of my steam-heated flat."—Globe.

FRANCE LIKES HORSEFLESH

More Than Two Hundred Thousand Animals Eaten In a Year

Paris, Aug. 24.—The consumption of horseflesh in France, according to figures gathered, is constantly on the increase. In Paris alone there are 600 meat shops, mainly in the poorer quarters, where horseflesh alone is sold, and the consumption now exceeds 200,000 animals a year.

The butchers report that the increase is due quite as much to the growing favor of horseflesh for food as to its cheapness compared to beef.

JOSEPH C. SIBLEY

Millionaire Ex-Candidate Held In Voting Scandal

JOSEPH SIBLEY IS ARRESTED

He Is Charged With "Conspiracy to Debauch Voters"

NOMINATION COST $42,500

Three Other Politicians Accused In Warrant Under Which Millionaire Congressional Candidate Is Held—Suddenly Makes Up His Mind to Withdraw Because He Has "Heart Trouble"—Once a Democrat

Franklin, Pa., Aug. 24.—Joseph C. Sibley, who withdrew as a candidate for congress on the Republican ticket in the Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania district, after spending $42,500 to get the primary nomination, was arrested on a warrant charging "conspiracy to debauch vtoers."

Sibley was released on his own recognizance to appear before Justice of the Peace Perry at Warren, Aug. 28. The arrest of Sibley came a few hours after he had announced his withdrawal from the congressional race.

In the warrant under which Sibley was arrested three other prominent politicians are also charged with conspiracy to debauch voters. They are Charles Crandall, D. M. Howard and G. M. Dunn. Frank H. Taylor, Sibley's secretary, is named as a co-defendant.

According to his own figures, filed in obedience to the legislative act requiring a public statement of a candidate's expense account, Sibley spent $17,000 in Warren county to secure his nomination and in the entire district $42,500, which, according to population, averaged $4 per vote. This expense account is being investigated.

Sibley was forced into the limelight during W. R. Hearst's campaign for president, when Hearst published letters showing that Vice President Archbold of the Standard Oil company had credited Sibley with large sums for "legislative services rendered."

In a letter to the voters of the district, announcing his withdrawal, Sibley, now in his 61st year, says he has heart trouble and expresses the opinion that the days of his physical activities are numbered.

Sibley's enemies assert that his plea of ill health is only an excuse, and that he is withdrawing from the race because his enormous election expenses are to be audited next Monday, and that by withdrawing he hopes to have this action called off.

The investigation of the $42,500 primary expense account was inspired by William J. Breene, his Democratic opponent.

Sibley has had a varied and exciting political career. He was first elected mayor of Franklin, Pa., on the Democratic ticket, but later turned Republican in local politics. Later he went to congress as a representative of the Democratic ticket.

He was a rabid free silverite and bimetalist and especially active in the interests of W. J. Bryan. Tiring of free silver he came to the assistance of Matthew S. Quay when that bulwark of Pennsylvania politics was having a hard fight for re-election to the senate.

Sibley is a manufacturer and farmer and reputed to be a millionaire. He was elected as a Democrat to the Fifty-third and Fifty-sixth congresses and as a Republican to the Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth congresses and re-elected to the Fifty-ninth congress.

Six Dead In Northfield Wreck

Northfield, Vt., Aug. 24.—Only six persons lost their lives in the wreck and fire which followed the head-on collision between two freight trains at Northfield Falls. All were trainmen. Earlier reports placed the number of deaths at seven or more.

PRESIDENT IS STRENGTHENED

Letter Clears Political Atmosphere In New York

ROOSEVELT BOOM IS SHAKEN

Pretexts For His Candidacy In 1912 Are Swept Away—Former President Now Regards Issue as Clear-Cut and Says There Will Be Absolutely No Compromise With "Old Guard" In the Empire State

New York, Aug. 24.—Clearing up the political skies, which have been clouded in this state since the defeat of Theodore Roosevelt by Vice President Sherman for the post of temporary chairman of the Republican state convention, the letter written by President Taft to Lloyd C. Griscom is expected to draw out a further statement from Roosevelt, whose tour through fourteen states has just begun.

Mr. Roosevelt is expected to define his position in the situation more fully later on. He has already expressed his pleasure at the explanation of the mysterious circumstances surrounding the incident in which he went down to defeat before the organization leaders.

As the case stands, President Taft, in the opinion of his friends, has come out of the affair with flying colors. His dignified silence, while omnious mutterings and thunders were heard from the direction of Oyster Bay, now followed by a lucid explanation of his attitude upon Griscom's request, are considered not only to have set him right with the public, but to have utterly confounded the case which certain busy "insurgents" had been actively building up in the vicinity of Sagamore Hill. The allegations reflecting upon the honor and good taste of the president, and which were the pretexts for a 1912 boom for Roosevelt, have been swept away.

"I am very much pleased with Mr. Taft's statement. It makes the situation perfectly clear. If Nassau county wishes me to go to the state convention, I shall go. I regard the issue as clear-cut and as far as I am concerned there will be absolutely no compromise."

This declaration was made by Roosevelt a few minutes before his departure on his western speaking tour, and followed a short conference with County Chairman Griscom in the former president's private car Republic.

The declaration of Roosevelt was quickly taken to mean by politicians that he now proposes to go to the convention at Saratoga and make his fight against the "Old Guard" for the platform and candidates that he thinks most desirable. Roosevelt made it clear that he meant every word he said, for he punctuated the closing of each sentence in his statement with a clap of his hands.

But beyond the statement he said he had nothing to say on politics. He branded as false a story printed recently that he had sent Griscom to Beverly with an ultimatum to Taft.

While the "insurgents" have been baffled in one respect, they profess to see a victory for themselves as the result of the president's declaration. In his indorsement of direct primaries it is asserted that the president delivered to the Sherman-Woodruff-Barnes combination a blow which will prove fatal to the "regular" leaders, so far as the state campaign is concerned.

PRAISES SHERMAN'S ENEMY

Roosevelt Touches Upon Politics In His Speech to Farmers

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Theodore Roosevelt wound up the first day of his pilgrimage into the west by placing himself directly in opposition to Vice President Sherman.

Speaking in the vice president's own county, he warmly indorsed State Senator Davenport, a staunch progressive, who Sherman has said that he would not support.

Ten thousand persons who attended the grange picnic were waiting for Roosevelt and raised a cheer as the figure of the ex-president appeared on the platform.

Conservation was the keynote of his set speech. The ex-president said that tillers of the soil must take advice from the giants of the business world. The home life should be much happier, he said, and the condition of the hired man and his wife should be taken into consideration.

REVISION OF TARIFF

Keynote of Coming Campaign Is Sounded by President Taft

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 24.—President Taft's keynote for the coming congressional campaign became known here last night. The president will favor a further revision of the tariff.

While he is still convinced that the Payne-Aldrich law is the best tariff the country has had up to this time, he has at last reached the conclusion that there is decided room for improvement.

Mr. Taft does not propose that business shall be upset by another wholesale revision, but he will recommend to congress that individual schedules in the tariff system be taken up separately and be disposed of on a scientific basis, the new revision to be based upon the findings of the tariff commission as to the cost of production at home and abroad. Only a fair profit is to be allowed the American producer by Taft's plan.

"Extortionate and unreasonable" profits, the president declares, are to be tolerated no longer.

The president has stated these facts and has outlined his position in detail in the letter he has sent to Representative McKinley of Illinois for publication in the Republican congressional campaign textbook. The time of making the letter public has been left entirely to the judgment of the committee.

NEW JERSEY SENATORSHIP

Former Governors Stokes and Murphy Are Seeking the Honor

Trenton, Aug. 24.—Former Governor Franklin Murhpy has filed a petition making him a candidate for indorsement for United States senator by the Republican voters in the primaries to be held on Sept. 13.

This action of Murphy's follows the filing of a similar petition by former Governor Stokes.

TWO CONVENTIONS ON THE SAME DAY

Bay State Republicans and Democrats Meet Oct. 6

Boston, Aug. 24.—The Democratic state convention will be held in Faneuil hall, Boston, on Oct. 6. This was decided at a meeting of the Democratic state committee at the Quincy house. The Republican convention has been called for the same day in Tremont temple.

John F. Fitzgerald's possible—and today even probable—nomination for governor by the Massachusetts Democrats is the principal topic of discussion wherever politicians of either party meet.

Most of the observers within the Democratic party, as well as those in the Republican party, believe that the Democratic state convention this year will be a Fitzgerald convention.

HAD PLAN OF HEAVEN

Dealer In Celestial Real Estate Swindles Many Credulous Bravas

Wareham, Mass., Aug. 24.—Many Bravas in this vicinity are complaining that they want their money back which they invested in so-called lots in heaven. According to Peter Gomes, a Brava dressed in the height of fashion went among his countryman the other day, showing them a plan of heaven and stating that he was willing to sell lots to a few selected ones provided they would pay enough.

Peter says he invested $15 for a good-sized lot and that the dealer in celestial real estate had urged him to buy a corner lot on one of the principal streets. Peter's pocketbook did not allow him to make this purchase.

When Peter came to his senses and realized that it was too much of a bargain to be true, he told the whole story, and the police are looking for the man.

TWELVE STITCHES IN HEART

Young Man Expected to Recover From Remarkable Surgical Operation

New York, Aug. 24.—After one of the most remarkable operations in the history of the surgery, Samuel Harmon, a 21-year-old waiter, has good prospects of living at Gouveneur hospital.

Twelve stitches were taken in his heart, which was cut open for an inch by a man who objected to the way Harmon served soup. Only six times before has such an operation been attempted.

Harmon was operated on by Dr. John F. Erdman. After he had been sewed up the patient fell asleep with a temperature of only 99, and the doctors predict his recovery.

"NEVER AGAIN"

Short Temperance Pledge Administered In New Jersey Court

Bayonne, N. J., Aug. 24.—Perhaps the shortest temperance pledge on record was that administered by Recorder Mara to Thomas Collins, who had been arrested for being drunk.

Collins said he was ready to swear off. "Then hold up your right hand," snapped the recorder. "Now repeat after me, 'Never again!'". "Never again!" boomed forth from Collins' dry throat.

BOTH SITTING BOLT UPRIGHT

Dead Woman In a Carriage and Husband on Veranda

DOUBLE TRAGEDY IN VERMONT

Farmer Who Advertised For Wife Married a Western Woman Who Subsequently Left Him—Laid In Wait For Her a Week and Kills Her as She Drives Past His Home—He Then Kills Himself

Perkinsville, Vt., Aug. 24.—G. F. Hewey, a farmer, who has been sitting on the veranda of his home in the woods for the past week, ended his vigil yesterday afternoon by shooting through the heart the wife who had left him, then lodging another bullet in the heart of the horse she was driving, and finally killing himself.

For hours the dead bodies lay undisturbed, the wagon blocking the unfrequented road, and the dead husband still sitting on the veranda glaring with unseeing eyes.

At dusk, through the deepening shadows, an automobile, filled with laughing tourists, shot along the road. The car whirled around a curve and suddenly stopped, narrowly escaping a collision with the carriage that blocked the way.

They shouted from the automobile and then waited for the vehicle to pull out and let them by. Then one of the men in the auto jumped out and walked to the carriage.

His shout brought the rest of the party to him. They saw the woman, her hands still grasping the reins, sitting bolt upright in the carriage. Her white waist was stained red over the left breast.

Sprawled across the road lay the horse. The horse had been instantly killed.

The motorists were at a loss to account for the conditions. Finally one saw the house through a break in the trees, and the entire party rushed toward it, thinking to summon assistance.

On the veranda they found a man. He was still sitting in his rocking chair, the butt of the rifle resting on the floor between his feet, and the barrel, pressing against his breast, propping him back in the chair, just as he had arranged it when he shot the last bullet into his own heart.

In a panic of fear the automobile party raced back to Perkinsville and notified the authorities, then continuing on their trip.

Hewey, who had been seen by many for some time sitting on his front porch, waiting, his rifle across his knees, had come to Perkinsville from Springfield, Vt., two years ago with his wife.

Her maiden name is unknown here, and but little is known of either husband or wife. It was known, however, that Hewey had secured his wife by advertising. He had inserted a matrimonial offer in a newspaper, stating that he possessed a good farm and wanted to share it with an acceptable member of the opposite sex.

Out of the grist of answers he received he selected that from a western woman and sent for her. She became Mrs. Nancy Hewey. In spite of the romantic manner of courtship, the married life of the couple seems to have been unhappy.

TURMOIL IN SPAIN

Two Hundred Manifestations Planned Against the Government

San Sebastian, Aug. 24.—A collision between the clerical and liberal factions occurred at San Andres de Palomar, a northern suburb of Barcelona. Troops restored order.

The clerical press of Barcelona says that 200 manifestations against the government have been arranged throughout Catalonia for next Sunday. Radical leaders are organizing a score of opposition meetings in Barcelona and vicinity for the same date and trouble is expected.

City Books Show Surplus

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 24.—Experts have finished the investigation of the accounts of Tax Collector Dolliver of this city. They found that the accounts of Dolliver show a balance of over $1000 more than it should be. Dolliver states that he had placed $1000 of his own money to the credit of the city on discovering a supposed shortage in his collections recently.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

MOONLIGHT TRIP.

The Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church spent a very pleasant evening on board "My Lady" in a moonlight trip down the harbor. This event was one o fthe most sucecssful that has been held during the summer season. The members turned out in large numbers and each one played an important part in making the evening one great enjoyment. This merriment fitted one and all to a keen appetite for refreshments, which were served to the great satisfaction of all and to those who had charge of same.

—The fall season is nearly here and it finds George W. Jones stocked up with felt hats in the latest styles. If you would be in style call now and get your pick.

GERMANS' POWER RULES PALESTINE

Teuton Consul Biggest Man In Holy Land.

HAVE COMMERCIAL CONTROL.

Invasion of Turkish Domain Dates Back to Early Fifties, and Spread Became Possible Through Friendship of Kaiser Wilhelm and Deposed Sultan, Abdul Hamid.

The Germanization of Palestine is proceeding rapidly. In the early fifties of the nineteenth century a body of Germans calling themselves Templars left their native land for Palestine. These early pilgrims were well supplied with money. Each of them bought land and built a house for himself.

In less than three years a colony of 200 well built houses of European style stood on the slopes of Mount Carmel. Little by little from this center the German colonists branched out to Jaffa, Jerusalem and other places. Recruits came freely from the fatherland.

In thirty years the German proprietors could be counted by thousands. With Teutonic tenacity of purpose they worked to open up a market for manufactures and find an outlet for all kinds of articles of German production. Every inducement possible, cheap prices and long credit, courted the patronage of merchants.

Merchants' Influence Powerful.

Commercial travelers followed closely after one another. Some of them remained at Haifa, Jaffa and Jerusalem as commission agents. They offered their wares at very low prices and were willing to wait long for payment. Thus they became powerful and popular.

When the ground had been thus prepared the Emperor Frederick visited the country, an event which greatly heightened German prestige in Turkey. When the present kaiser ascended the throne he prosecuted his father's policy with far greater vigor.

The friendship between Wilhelm II. and his "cher et tres grand ami," Abdul Hamid, made the position of the Germans in Palestine stronger than ever. After the visit of the kaiser and kaiserin to Jerusalem in 1898 there was another increase of German influence. Germans acquired immense tracts of land in all parts of the country. The recent visit of the Prince and Princess Eitel Friedrich has kept the German influence strong.

German Consul Rules Country.

The German consul today is the great man in Palestine. Germans are still flocking into the country on every side. Most of them remain. If they have the money they buy property at once, cultivate it and build houses. If they are poor they are financed by the Templar bank, which is subsidized by powerful political syndicates.

This German immigration is carefully planned and cleverly organized by influential syndicates composed of great financiers, princes, manufacturers and military officers. The kaiser himself is said to preside over the meetings of the principal of these syndicates. The conquest of Palestine seems to have begun.

DESERTED VILLAGES REVIVING

Maine's Abandoned Communities Get New Lease of Life.

Maine has had her deserted farms, and now and then one can find her deserted villages. Such a one is Welchville, in the town and county of Oxford, where once the pulse and machinery kept life beating fast in a thriving little community.

Today the population is scattering, on the farms thereabouts chiefly, while the change in the value of the property is indicated by the story recently related of the sale of a two and a half story house for $175 which was worth $1,500 seventy-five years ago.

But the number of such towns is small. Maine is building up fast. Her deserted farms are being taken up, sometimes by progressive young farmers and again by summer people, and the deserted Maine villages promised a new lease of life.

RECORD APPETITE LEADS TO DEATH

Advertising Solicitor Succumbs to Diet of Hardware

Cairo, Ills., Aug. 24.—Before Frank W. Wilson, an advertising solicitor of St. Louis, died in a hospital here he told the physicians he had swallowed several articles of a foreign nature and that they had better put the X-ray at work. He was operated upon on the theory that he was afflicted with appendicitis.

Three incisions were made in the man's stomach and, according to the physicians, the following articles were removed:

One shoe button, a hatpin, three keys, a lead pencil, a belt buckle, a tin toy pistol, three small nails, a needle and a thermometer.

Wilson, according to his physician, had been in a depressed mental state for some time, during which he swallowed anything that he could get down his throat.

DUMPS CORPSE INTO RIVER

Undertaker's Horse Takes a Sudden Notion to Do Unusual Stunt

New York, Aug. 24.—A sleepy old Dobbin which had drawn a West Side undertaker's wagon for years in most approved funeral pace, ran away, causing a weird accident. After a wild flight of several blocks the horse and wagon plunged into the Hudson river.

The doors of the wagon flew open and a casket containing a body floated down stream. The driver managed to save himself. The watchman of a pier swam out in the tide and towed the casket ashore. The horse and wagon were finally brought ashore.

Wise Men and Women Know that most of the sicknesses of life come from inactive bowels and from unhealthy condition of the organs of digestion. If your digestive system is not working right, your food does not nourish you—poor blood and weakness follow; if your bowels are inactive—waste matter poisons the whole system and serious sickness is sure to follow. To take promptly is to save yourself trouble and expense. Gentle, but quick; safe, but thorough, they enable the bowels to carry away waste matter naturally and tone up the whole digestive system. They will not injure the most delicate. They help you to get your bowels and your digestive organs in that condition when they can take good care of themselves and of you. Beecham's Pills

BEECHAM'S PILLS

SPORTING CHAT.

O'Brien, who was recently the property of the Hartford club of the Connecticut State league may pitch for Quincy on Saturday against Stoughton. Stevenson will probably twirl for Stoughton.

At 2 o'clock sharp on Saturday, the game between the Fore River Apprentices and Cranch will start at the Water street grounds. The opposing twirlers will be Kerr and Smith. Billy Flynn the most popular umpire in the Granite City League, will handle the indicator.

The "brownies" at Jack Starr's beach ought to start a swim to Boston Light, as there are several of them, boys and girls, who think nothing of a swim to Wessagusett or Houghs Neck, and have accomplished it this summer.

A cricket team was started this summer, but after playing one game dropped out of sight. While cricket is a very athletic game it is not fast enought to satisfy the American taste, any more than a tennis league could operate successfully by popular support.

Will the secretary of the Granite City League publish an account of the actions of his last meeting? The confusion was all ends and it is not known what was really done.

I hope Cody is assigned to Quincy on Saturday. The fans think he's just about right and the players don't have anything to says about his decision, either.

When Armstrong let that ball get away in the fifth there was never a more disgusted person than he. He couldn't get over it.

The Marathon, which has been a feature for the past two years of the last day's programme at the Brockton fair, will be repeated this year, says the Enterprise. The runners will leave the B. A. A. headquarters in Boston as usual and follow the usual route to Brockton. The only change in the run will be in having the runners circle the fair grounds track twice upon their arrival there, rather than once, as in the other two years. Entries for all athletic events should be sent to Horace A. Keith, 29 Pinkham street, Brockton.

JACK JOHNSON, BEWARE!

Miles McLeod, Young Giant, White Man's Hope, Has Been Located.

James J. Corbett's "unknown," the embryonic white man's hope for the heavyweight championship, was located at Albany, Mo., recently. He is Miles McLeod, a youth of twenty-seven years. Miles weighs 235 pounds, but he has never been in a prize-fight. He is six feet six inches tall and was born in Gentry county, and he looks it. He is as strong as an ox. When he contracts the muscles the upper part of his right arm measures in circumference exactly fourteen inches.

His normal chest measurement is forty-two inches, as much as Johnson's chest measures when it is fully expanded. McLeod's chest expanded measures forty-six inches. Jack Johnson has a remarkable forearm; it measures fourteen and one-half inches. Jeffries' forearm measures thirteen inches. Miles McLeod's forearm measures twenty-one inches, and he has a reach of eighty-one and a half inches, nine inches greater than the reach of Johnson and six inches greater than that of Jeffries.

McLeod's first official act as challenger of Jack Johnson for the championship of the world was to have his picture taken. Within the next few weeks McLeod intends to start in boxing. Later he will meet all comers. Miles thinks that in a year or two he will be ready to lower Johnson's colors.

WEDS IN DADDY'S CLOTHES

Young Eloper Not Feazed by Loss of Her Wedding Dress

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—Miss Blanche V. Potts had bought a beautiful white satin wedding dress, but when she stood before Rev. Eli G. Kliese, in his Wilmington, Del., parsonage, and became the wife of George P. Milward, she was clad in her father's huge coat and trousers.

Miss Potts is 19. Her mother became suspicious that wedding bells were in the wind, and when Miss Blanche awoke on the morning planned for her elopement she discovered that all her dresses, including the new wedding gown, were missing.

She quietly slipped into her father's room and took his suit. Hastily putting it on and turning up the trousers four times, she ran out of the house and was whisked away to Wilmington in an automobile which Milward had kept waiting. After the wedding they left for Niagara Falls.

METCALF COMET DOUBTED

Declared by French Astronomer to Be the Real Halley Comet

Boston, Aug. 24.—Hardly has the astronomical meeting closed at Cambridge, where eminent scientists from many countries have been discussing Halley's comet as the luminary of the early spring, and Metcalf's comet as one discovered by the Taunton clergyman within a fortnight, when word comes from France that these eminent men are all wrong, that Metcalf has "discovered" nothing more or less than Halley's comet, and that the heavenly visitor of the spring, which was observed and photographed with so much care everywhere, was only a tramp.

This belief is put forward by Colonel Marchand, a French astronomer, who says that Halley's comet is not due until about this time of the year. It is his contention that the luminary seen by Metcalf and since observed at different points in France, is the Simon pure Halley.

CHINESE GIVES TESTIMONY

Identifies Members of Saxonia's Crew Implicated In Smuggling

Boston, Aug. 24.—After hearing the evidence of the government against William Hackett and James Evans, members of the crew of the Cunarder Saxonia, on the complaint of aiding and abetting in the landing of Chinese in the United States, Commissioner Hayes continued the case until Sept. 10. The date was set to permit the return of the Saxonia to Boston and other members of the crew will probably be called in behalf of the defense.

Without the slightest hesitation Ju Suey Kee, the London Chinaman whose arrest was closely followed by the arrest of Evans and Hackett, positively identified both Evans and Hackett as the men who had put him on board the steamship Saxonia at Liverpool.

FASTEST IN HIS CLASS

Three-Year-Old Trots Straight Heats In 2:07¼ and 2:07¾

Yonkers, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Seven thousand trotting horsemen, owners, breeders, drivers and followers of the sport, cheered wildly when Colorado E., a bay colt by The Bondsman-Bess McGregor, established a new world's record for 3-year-old trotters at the opening of a five days' grand circuit harness meeting at the Empire City track.

In the Matron Futurity stake of $15,000 he won in straight heats of 2.07¼ and 2:07¾, the fastest work ever done by a 3-year-old in the history of light harness racing.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

Vol. 24 No. 198 QUINCY, MASS., THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 25, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

"THE BEST SAILOR ON ATLANTIC COAST"

So Says President Taft of ex-Commodore Charles Francis Adams 2d

Who Sailed the Harpoon to Victory Against Spaniards

The formal presentation of the President Taft cup to ex-Commodore Charles F. Adams, 2d, skipper of the Harpoon, which won the series in the races at Marblehead last week between the American and Spanish sonder boats, took place Wednesday on board the President's yacht Mayflower.

The members o fthe Spanish crews were present as were also the crews of the American yachts and officials of the Eastern Yacht club. In addition there were also present the French and Russian naval attaches, the German military attaches, secretary of Treasury McVeagh, Justice Holmes of the U. S. Supreme court, Representative Loudenstager of New Jersey, Lieut. Gov. Frothingham and Senor Riano the Spanish minister.

After a brief address, President Taft preposed the health of the King of Spain, saying, "Long live the King of Spain."

Senor Riano responded and in closing said, "I propose the health of the President."

The President also read a telegram from the Royal Sporting Club of Bilbao, expressing gratitude for the reception and attention given to the Spanish representatives.

Charley Adams and his crew, T. Nelson Perkins and Arthur Adams, then came forward and the President presented Mr. Adams the cup, saying that he had heard of Mr. Adams prowess and presented the cup as an evidence of his hard work, and because he was the best sailor on the Atlantic coast.

Mr. Adams in accepting the cup responded with a few words of thanks.

Luncheon was served in the cabin of the Mayflower.

Ex-Commodore Adams is a great grandson of President John Quincy Adams, who was the son of President John Adams who was at the head of this government from 1797 to 1801, Vice President with Washington from 1789 to 1797.

GRANITE MEN AT ROCHESTER

Papers at Convention Which Will Be Profitable

The meeting of the National Retail Monument Dealers association opened Wednesday at Rochester, N. Y., and will continue through Friday. The convention is being attended by many of the Quincy manufacturers and much good is expected to result from the fraternizing of the granite manufacturers from the different parts of the country.

The convention opened with a meeting of the executive committee Wednesday at 9.30, and the convention proper opened an hour later with an address of welcome by Mayor H. H. Edgerton of Rochester, with response by F. R. Stewart of Mannington, W. Va. This was followed by the president's annual address and greeting from representatives of other organization. The topic for discussion at the morning session was "Uniformity of prices: Are they desirable? Are the practicable?"

At the afternoon session there were reports of officers, the appointment of special committees. At 8 P. M. there was a joint session of all representatives of the trade and papers on "Cost system of retail monument dealers" and "Co-operation between manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers that will eliminate undesirable trade conditions." On the latter subject President John C. Murray of the Quincy Manufacturers Association spoke for the manufacturers.

Today's program will include miscellaneous business and papers on the "Building up a successful retail monument business," "The monument business as seen from the standpoint of the consumer," and the question box on "Can monument dealers be friends and competitors at the same time." In the evening the Izzers will hold a banquet at hotel Seneca.

Miscellaneous business will be in order for the morning session on Friday, to be followed by a paper on "Raising the standard of the monument business," and the question box "Advertising, when, where and how. How to economize in operating expense in the office, workshop and on the road to get the best results and at the least expense." There will also be reports of various committees including the selection of the place for the next meeting and unfinished business.

During Friday afternoon the delegates and visitors will visit the various cemeteries in the city by invitation. Many side trips are also in store for those attending the convention, and everything possible will be done by the citizens of Rochester to make the visit one of profit and pleasure for all.

"Did you get back that half sovereign your little boy swallowed?"

"No; the doctor stuck to it for his fee."

"DONE ON BOTH SIDES"

Farce to Be Presented at Lady Associates Fair

The Houghs Neck Lady Associates, Mrs. Alexander Boutilier president, opened their three days fair Wednesday in Associates hall. The fair will continue over today and tomorrow.

This afternoon there will be a whist party from 2 to 4. Friday evening a one act farce, entitled— "Done on Both Sides" will be presented.

Following is the cast of characters:

Mr. Whiffles W. H. Rupert
Mr. John Brownjohn H. W. Boutilier
Mr. Pigmalian Phibbs J. B. McCarthy
Mrs. Whiffles Miss A. E. Stewart
Lydia Whiffles Miss E. M. Boutilier

The hall and tables are decorated with American flags, and white and yellow is the color scheme.

The ladies in charge of the tables are:

Candy—Miss Theresa Slannwhite and Doris Smith.

Refreshments—Mrs. J. W. Lucas, Mrs. Kelliher and Mrs. Howard.

Guest table—Mrs. A. Boutilier, Mrs. W. H. Sturgis and Mrs. Stewart.

Fancy work table—Mrs. A. H. Dunham, Mrs. Daniel J. Maloney and Mrs. Antonio Medros.

Domestic table—Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Howard.

Handkerchief tree—Mrs. Southwick and Miss Josephine Foster.

Grab Bag—Edie Higgins.

Wheel of Fortune—Daniel J. Maloney, president of the Houghs Neck Associates.

The money raised at this fair will be added to the steadily growing fund with which it is intended to purchase a permanent home for the Lady Associates.

BACK FROM MAINE.

Dr. Henry C. Hallowell returned Tuesday from Winterport, Me., where he had been to attend the Clements family reunion which was held in that town Aug. 18. There were a number of the Clement family from Massachusetts present at the reunion including Dr. Henry C. Hallowell of Quincy and Dr. Clement Howard Hallowell of Norwood. While in Winterport Dr. Hallowell and his brother were the guests of their uncle, Eben Clements at the old family homestead.

RECEPTION TO McNARY.

A reception is planned for former Congressman William S. McNary by a number of South Boston social clubs at Houghs Neck on next Sunday night. McNary is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Tenth district.

FURNITURE STYLE

STYLE in furniture changes as well as style in hats and gowns. The new creations in furniture just arriving from Western factories certainly surpass anything we have ever been able to show before.

If you buy your furniture at this store you'll be proud of it, not alone because its the newest style, but because you bought it low in price, No matter what you think of buying in home-furnishings we urge you to get our price. Cash or Credit.

AVIATION RECORDS

Special Prizes of $1,000 for Those Broken at Quincy

Some of the world's records in the aviation field which may be smashed at the Quincy meet next month are given below. A special prize of $1,000 is offered for a world's record in each event.

Altitude—Greater than Brookins' record of July 8,1910, at Atlantic City, 6160 feet, and possibly that of Drexel, Aug. 11, at Lanarck, Scot, 6752 feet (not yet confirmed as official.)

Distance—Exceeding that made by Olieslagers July 11, 1910, 244 miles. This would be 122 laps of the Quincy course.

Duration—Remaining longer in the air than Olieslagers July 11, 1910, five hours three minutes and five seconds.

Speed—Faster than Bleriot July 10, 1910, 66.2 miles per hour, using one minute and 48 seconds, making one lap of the Quincy course.

Accuracy—Beating C. F. Willard Jan. 10, 1910, landing at Los Angeles within a 20-foot square.

Getaway— Beating C. Grahame-White Aug. 16, 1910, 20 feet 9 inches.

The record made at Quincy for "slow laps" will be the first of this class.

Real flying in a dirigible will be seen by next Thursday from all over the city when Cromwell Dixon, the boy aviator, takes the Harvard in a flight from the Atlantic aviation field up the harbor over the city and around the State House dome and makes a landing on the parade of Boston common. Mr. Dixon is expecting his airship and hydrogen gas plant to arrive soon, as they were shipped from Montreal, Canada, last Saturday, and he is anxious to get the plant set up and in operation.

Harvard's baseball bleachers will seat part of the crowd that attends the Quincy meet. They are being taken from Soldiers' field to the aviation grounds on lighters via the Charles river and Boston harbor. At the aviation grounds they will be erected to form the smaller stand to which an admission charge of 50 cents will be charged.

The first concession for privileges during the meet has been granted to the Aram studio, and Aram Kazanjiam has been appointed as the official photographer of the meet. There is a large space for concessions behind the grandstand and it is expected that every variety of small trade will be represented.

D. C. Wyman has taken over the problem of feeding the thousands of people who will visit the aviation field during the meet and he expects to have a tent up very soon in order to accommodate the many workmen, participants and others who will be at the grounds from now on.

The management of the Old Colony trolley line has advised Manager Adams D. Claflin that it will run back and forth continuously an equipment of 20 cars, which will carry from 1200 to 1500 people on one trip.

The steam railroad has regularly an express train running every hour from the South station to Atlantic without stops and these trains are met by the trolley cars on Squantum street, going directly to the grounds.

The elevated will also increase its service, running extra Neponset bridge surface cars from the heart of the city up Washington street and extra cars from the Dudley street terminal to Neponset bridge.

The contest committee has appointed Everett Jackson Wendall of New York official timekeeper of the meet and George M. Cox, treasurer.

D. Frank Lord of the Savin Hill Yacht club will have charge, with his 40-foot cabin cruiser, of a fleet of boats which will patrol the water in the imemdiate vicinity of the shore of the aviation field and keep all water craft outside of the 300-foot limit.

—The postal savings bank system will not be in operation until after the beginning of the year. In the mean time, you can get three and a half or four per cent, interest on your money from the Massachusetts savings banks.—Somerville Journal.

HOUGHS NECK BY THE SEA

A Night Census Would Amount to Nearly 5000

As yet the number of summer visitors at Houghs Neck is unabated though the passing of another week will see the first crumbling of the solid accumulation pleasure seekers.

James E. Daly of East Boston has returned to his home after a week's visit at the Crimson cottage.

William A. Turner of South Boston will visit friends in the Eureka cottage.

The Houghs Neck fire station has had a very quiet season, there having been but few blazes and those of no consequence. Nevertheless the men on duty have not relaxed their vigilance and care. The horses are in good condition having been exercised every day.

Just across from the fire station the new school is going up rapidly. The builders have started on the interior work such as lathing, plastering and finishing. The exterior work is still incomplete, but will be finished soon. The building will be about a month behind contract time.

It is estimated that fully 5000 people make their homes at this season of the year at Houghs Neck, Rock Island, Post Island and Adams Shore.

Large numbers attended the fair of the Houghs Neck Lady Associates. With continued patronage as large as that of yesterday the fair will be a signal success.

The ice pond is practically stagnant and covered with green slimy accumulations. The owners of the ice house should be prohibited from cutting ice in such a place.

In the hollow across from the engine house is another stagnant pool which should be filled in, as it is most injurious to those who live about it.

Miss Mabel Botsch of Somerville is visiting at Turner street.

Miss Katherine Soule is visiting Mrs. B. A. Brown on Sea street.

The Houghs Neck clubs are all in the thick of arrangements for the success of their grand blow-off Labor Day evening, preparatory to a return to winter habits.

BACK FROM EUROPE.

Several Quincy people returned from Europe this morning on the steamship Ivernia, including Mr. and Mrs. Troup of South Quincy, Miss Elizabeth Flynn, Miss Mary Elcock and Miss Carmel Brogan. Misses Flynn, Elcock and Brogan sailed for Europe June 14, and since that time have visited England, Germany and Ireland. They also witnessed the famous passion play at Oberammergau.

TODAY'S COURT.

Michael Johnson and Jim Stroup were fined $75 each for violation of the liquor law at Weymouth.

John J. Mullen was fined $15 for two complaints for drunkenness at Holbrook.

Gust Kampilla was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Paul K. Brown was arraigned for manslaughter at Quincy and held in $500 for the grand jury.

SIX YEARS NOW SCHOOL AGE

School Committee to Elect Medical Examiner

There have been several resignations in the teaching force of the public schools during the summer vacation. These include William R. Kramer of the Willard school, Ralph P. Currier of the High school, Miss Marion Chadbourn, English teacher of the High school, and Miss Ruth Small of the Wollaston school.

The regular advertisement of the school committee, in relation to the opening of schools will probably be published next week. The advertisement will be similar to that of other years with one exception. That is in regard to the school age. Heretofore the school age was five years. Under the new rules the school age is six years. Children will, however, be admitted twice a year, that is in September and January. This change in the rules is expected to result in a smaller first grade.

Attention of parents is also called to the new law in relation to labor certificates. Under the law passed by the legislature this year, a child leaving school to enter employment, in addition to obtaining a labor certificate from the School Committee, must also receive a certificate from the school medical examiner. This law creates a new school officer who will probably be appointed by the School Committee at its next meeting.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Senator Gore's willingness to talk right out loud in meeting, however, seems to be thoroughly approved throughout the United States.

Somebody wanted John D. Rockefeller to invest in an airship, but he said the earth was good enough for him. That explains why the Standard Oil Company has come so near acquiring the earth.

A recent photograph of the Roosevelt residence, Sagamore Hill, shows a cannon in the foreground. But whether this is a mark of respect for the tariff views of the Speaker of the House or a shooting iron loaded for Col. George Harvey is not explained.

The purpose of the income tax is to enable the government to raise more money so that it can spend more money. This is a $2,000,000,000 country now, and when the income tax amendment to the Constitution is adopted it will speedily become a $3,000,000,000 country.

Ex-Governor Bates and ex-Governor Guild will assist Governor Draper and Lieut. Governor Frothingham in their campaign this year, both having agreed to speak ten or twelve times. It promises to be a speaking campaign with all the congressmen and 200 to 300 others on the stump.

Salem reports the lowest city tax rate for 1910, on $16.16 per $1000, a reduction from $16.53. The valuation is $33, 318,328, less than a million dollars larger than Quincy. Salem real estate is valued less than Quincy, but the Witch City has $10,086,200 personal property where Quincy has $7,467,055. The tax levy of Salem was less than Quincy.

The nominations made for the Republican State convention should commend themselves to the delegates of the party. Ex-Representative Robert Luce of Somerville for chairman, has for years been one of the ablest men in State politics—clean, aggressive and independent. A gentleman who should in the near future be elected Governor of Massachusetts. A congressman has been placed at the head of the committee on resolutions, and the candidates at large include President Treadway of the Senate, Speaker Walker of the House, an ex-president and an ex-Senator.

It cannot be that the Democrats of Quincy want direct nomination of Senators in this district because this system has been such a howling success in our Representative districts. At the State caucuses of September last year, only two Democrats voted in the Fifth district, and but 85 in the Sixth district. Two votes put Michael T. Sullivan in nomination, yet he had 1028 friends on election day. James M. Flaherty was nominated by 85 votes, and on election day he received 693 votes. In both cases direct nomination amounted to little, and certainly did not express the sentiment of the party at the caucuses.

In the past the Democrats have delayed their Senatorial convention until after the Republicans have made a nomination, and have taken advantage of the situation in naming their candidate. They would lose this opportunity by direct nominations.

Many Democrats of Quincy are willing, however, to take an unfair advantage. They are enrolled as Republicans, and vote as Republicans at the caucuses for the weakest candidates, but on election day they vote as Democrats. This is why they want direct nominations, and one of the reasons why direct nominations should not be adopted in the Senatorial distrist.

It is hardly probable that the towns in the district will take kindly to the direct nomination of candidates for senator as contemplated in the petitions, because they want to be free from methods adopted in cities. Then again they would seldom secure a candidate that is the small towns which have only a few votes. Quincy has about one-third of all the Republican voters of the district, and also one-third of all the Democratic votes, and Quincy could if she wanted to "hog it,' have the nominees of both parties every year. Certainly Quincy and Hyde Park together, if united, could have everything their own way.

Unless five of the eight towns of the district are in favor of direct nominations the method should not be adopted. In the district are: Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Hyde Park, Canton, Milton, Randolph and Holbrook.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

They are saying now in Paris that the "fettered" skirt originated in America. Wherever it originated Americans who may be tempted to adopt it may like to know what a "leading man dressmaker" in Paris, as a newspaper item characterizes him, has to say about it. "It is only worn," he says, "by women who especially desire to make themselves remarked in the public streets." Reputable makers of Paris modes have always opposed it, he adds, and further says that it has never been acclimated in the upper social circles in Paris. Another Paris "grand couturier" is quoted in the same item as labelling the "hobble" skirt grotesque and absurdly impossible. Perhaps these views may discourage any who have looked longingly upon the skirt that is smaller at the bottom than at any other point, as something new and nobby and "the thing" in Paris. Whether or not it originated in America, it will never have any vogue in America among nice and sensible people.—New Bedford Standard.

People living in the neighborhood of white pine growth in this state are invited to co-operate with the state forester in securing a supply of seeds from the cones that will be ready to pick when they begin to turn brown about the last of this month. Massachusetts is pledged to an interest in forestry and, besides having lands of its own to plant, it encourages other land owners to undertake timber culture by offering to supply seeds and trees at the minimum price. Apparently there is no need to introduce new varieties of pine, nor inclination to experiment with the culture of those belonging to other climes. Our own white pine meets the approval of the state forester and he sends out an invitation to the boys of the country to help him gather a generous harvest of seeds this fall. As in all good causes, the laborer is worthy of his hire, so a price goes with the invitation. A bushel of cones makes about a pound of seeds. All details of information are contained in a pamphlet to be had upon application to State Forester Rane at the state house.—New Bedford Standard.

What is called the "daylight saving" plan has been tried in Ottawa and found to work successfully. The experiment has been made by the big plant of the American Bank Note company. The plan is what its name implies—a measure to conserve more of the sunlit hours for work and pleasure, and give the dark ones up to rest and sleep. To effect this the plant begins work an hour earlier in the summer and closes an hour earlier, thus giving all employes time for recreation between work and night. Thus, unless one is over-festive, the napping period is not shortened. The manufacturers of St. Paul have investigated the plant and eighty-nine of them have agreed to give it a trial As these firms employ over 6000 hands, the test ought to be a fair index of the worth o fthe scheme.—Haverhill Gazette.

The aviators who lose their lives experimenting with airships sacrifice them in the interest of the development of air transportation, although the individual may, of course, be more interested in earning money through his daring than in arriving at the ultimate solution of a problem of the centuries.

But the parachute "drops" are made for no other purpose than providing a thrill for the spectators. They sometimes result in fatalities, and the tragedy is always marked by the most shocking and revolting detail. The spectators are usually of all classes, and women and children are always plentifully in evidence.

Perhaps there may be, at some future time, a widespread sentiment for laws preventing the needless risk of life in spectacular exhibitions of foolhardiness designed to give jaded nerves a more or less agreeable sensation.

In the meantime the decision of the aviators that at the meet at Boston no balloons shall be entered draws a nice distinction between ballooning and aviation, and may result in the avoidance of such an accident as that which occured to Mr. Prinz.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

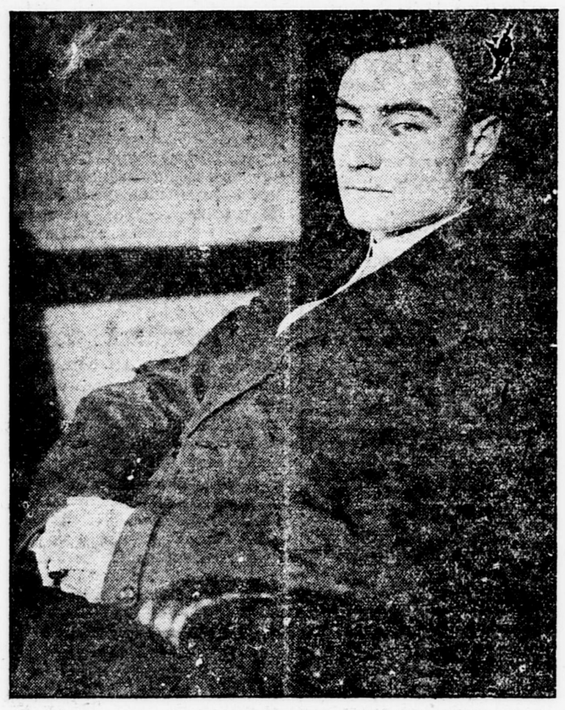

NEW YORK'S ACTING MAYOR HAS REPUTATION AS GRAFT PROBER

WITHIN an hour after Mayor Gaynor had been struck down by an assassin's bullet it is safe to say that at least half the men in New York who give any attention to public affairs and their management had thought of John Purroy Mitchel, the young president of the board of aldermen, who, under the charter, would succeed to the first office in the city if the mayor's wound should result fatally.

And it is equally safe to say that with most of those who thought of him it was a source of satisfaction and assurance that the man in second place was of proved character and ability.

Young Mr. Mitchel may not have quite reached the idol stage in New York city as yet, but he is very near it. And he is there chiefly—in fact, almost solely—because of one achievement.

It is true that that achievement involved several phases. It was the eminently successful administration of the office of commissioner of accounts, which he held for the last two years of the McClellan administration. His success lay in the vitalizing of the office. He found out and used the powers of the place.

JOHN PURROY MITCHEL.

Exposed Tammany Graft.

He put energy, vigor and enthusiasm into his work, not to mention a matter of highly specialized and trained intelligence, without which all the rest would have been useless. The immediate and spectacular result was the downfall of a pair of Tammany chieftains who had long been engaged in demonstrating to their political henchmen the pleasing fact that public office in New York under the regime of the tiger was decidedly a private snap.

The more remote but also more substantial and durable result was the public showing that administrative methods in the city would be simplified and made much more nearly if not quite thoroughly honest, with a consequent saving of considerable sums of money to the city taxpayers.

Mr. Mitchel found a great many ways in which petty graft was being levied on the city. He paraded them all before the scandalized if not ignorant eyes of the citizens.

Wise For His Years.

Accompanying each one was a plain and simple chart showing how it was worked, so that even the dullest and least interested could hardly fail to understand; also he showed in each case the way to bring the graft to an end.

The president of the board of aldermen is a singularly wise young man. He is ahead of his years and his fellows in that respect.

As he walks down the street he would be taken, even by the closely observant, neither for a dude nor a doer. He is well dressed, but not a fashion plate. He stands erect, steps off smartly and is nervously alert to what is going on around him, but there are no doubt thousands of other young men in New York to whom all that applies with equal truth, and none of them has overthrown two borough presidents and been elected to the second place in the New York city government.

He is tall and slender. Thin would not be an inappropriate term of description. The brevity of perimeter probably increases the effect of altitude; but he looks to stand about six feet, and maybe he weighs 150.

It is in the face and hands that there shows the personal force which put him through his years as commissioner of accounts so brilliantly. He has the long fingered, large jointed, big veined hands which almost invariably belong to men who actually do things. His head is neither large nor small, and it gets a good poise at the top of a long and supple neck. He has a high forehead, broad at the base, with high, arched eyebrows.

Educated at Columbia.

Mitchel was born thirty-one years ago in Fordham. When only twelve years old he entered St. John's college. Later he went to Columbia university, where, by the time he was in his sophomore year, he attracted attention as a speaker and debater. He was a member of the Philolexian society, the King's Crown and the Gun club. In his senior year he won the Philolexian oratorical contest, the most important prize of its kind in the college year. On being graduated from Columbia Mitchel became a student in the New York Law school, from which he received his diploma two years later. Then he entered the office of William B. Ellison, a lifelong friend and the counsel of Mitchel's uncle, Henry D. Purroy.

The break of Purroy with Tammany is a famous story in the history of New York politics. It took place in the early eighties. Purroy, who was called "the czar of the Bronx," had a falling out with Croker and organized the Purroy Democracy, afterward called "Little Tammany Hall." He fought successfully for a time and in 1891 nominated Louis F. Haffen for commissioner of street improvements in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards, a position corresponding to the present day one of borough president. Haffen was beaten by Louis J. Heintz, a Tammany man backed by the Citizens' Improvement league.

On the death of Heintz, a year and a half later, Haffen was appointed to his place. The following year he turned against Purroy and became local party leader in his place.

Purroy never forgave Tammany for its treatment of him, and it was stated by Haffen himself that the hatred of Purroy was handed along to his nephew, John Purroy Mitchel. A further reason for the dislike of young Mitchel for the Tammany organization is found in the fact that his father, James Mitchel, was appointed deputy in the office of John H. J. Ronner while the latter was serving as register. When Frank Gass was elected to succeed Ronner, Haffen's influence was sought to retain the elder Mitchel, but he was turned out through the influence of Haffen, politicians say.

Proved Able Investigator.

When Mayor McClellan decided to investigate the office of Borough President Ahearn he asked Mr. Ellison, who had become corporation counsel, to assign a man from his office to assist the commissioners of accounts in the work. Ellison chose Mitchel.

The young man was appointed special assistant corporation counsel and speedily became the most important figure in the investigation. When Mr. Ahearn's counsel objected that Mitchel was taking the inquiry entirely out of the hands of the commissioners, thereby violating the charter, Mayor McClellan obtained the resignation of one of the commissioners and appointed Mitchel to his place. The investigation resulted in Ahearn's removal.

Then followed the investigation of Borough President Haffen, also resulting in a removal. Mitchel proceeded to look into the work of the other officers, including Borough President Coler of Brooklyn, and investigated the water department, the fire hose scandal, the board of education, the police department training school, the bureau of licenses and many other municipal affairs with brilliant results.

THE KOREAN CONVENTION

Powers Receive Official Notice of the Annexation Pact

Tokio, Aug. 25.—The text of the convention under which Korea, the "Hermit Kingdom," is annexed to Japan was communicated yesterday to the representatives of the powers. The document, which, according to now established facts, was signed Aug. 22, will be effective when officially promulgated.

This will occur, according to some of the ministers, Aug. 29 or Aug. 30, when the independent existence of the little kingdom, the struggle for whose control started the Russo-Japanese war, will cease.

The Japanese government, which has a large number of representatives already in Korea, will be prepared to take over the machinery of administration in Korea without any delay.

COMPLETELY WIPED OUT

Three Powder Mills Blown Up and Three Employes Injured

Acton, Mass., Aug. 25.—Tons of black powder blew up with three terrific explosions at the mills of the American Powder company on the Maynard road last night, startling the country for a radius of ten miles around, probably fatally injuring Charles Rogers, a workman, and seriously injuring Daniel Splaine and James Rady, two other employes.

The three mills were one-story buildings of wood and tin and contained black powder only. They were wiped out as completely as if the earth had swallowed them up. Great trees were blown down and the shock was felt on trolley cars half a mile away. The exact amount of powder blown up could not be learned.

WANT ANNEXATION TO UNITED STATES

Moros Will Fight If We Withdraw From the Philippines

Zamboanga, P. I., Aug. 25.—A demonstration in favor of the annexation of Mindanao to the United States occurred here. Two hundred Filipinos had presented to Secretary of War Dickinson, who is now visiting the Philippine islands, a petition asking that the Moro islands be placed under Filipino control and the entire archipelago granted independence.

Secretary Dickinson in reply said that the American government was not willing to intrust the government of 335,000 Moros to 66,000 Filipinos living in widely scattered regions.

Four Moro chiefs, representing 40,000 Moros, at this point dramatically tendered their allegiance to the United States and announced that they would fight if the Americans withdrew. A wild demonstration followed and the cry that the province must become American territory ran through the crowd which had gathered to hear Dickinson.

IN GAY BUENOS AYRES

Some Things in Argentina Seem Very Expensive

There are in Quincy several members of the Argentina naval commission and attaches, and it would be interesting to learn their comments on the cost of living here etc. We do know that they are enjoying themselves very much. Certainly many things are different

The following correspondence from South America recently appeared in the New York Herald, which gives some idea of cost of living in Argentina.

The expensiveness of Buenos Ayres comes on one insidiously. Besides the American gold dollar there is in circulation the silver dollar or peso, the value of which is 44 cents. So when you are informed that your room and bath is to be $11 or $12 a day you make a rapid mental division by one hundred, multiply by forty-four and reason that since it is less than a five dollar bill it is not very much, especially in view of the accommodations you are getting.

A story is going the rounds about Mr. Lamar C. Quintero, member of the American delegation, who went into a cafe for lunch, following it with a cigar and a cordial. The lunch was $1, the cigar $1.50 and the cordial $2.50

But the delegates did not really find out how expensive Buenos Ayres was until they had begun to settle down. One member went out to get a new top hat and hat box about the second day in the city. He found what he wanted, price $90.

Meanwhile Mr. Lewis Nixon had been making arrangements for an automobile. He found one that would do, but decided not to take it.

"They are not going to get $150 a day of my American money for any automobile," he said.

About this time Mr. John Bassett Moore returned from a walk down town with two books under his arm. They were ordinary paper covered books that he had neglected to buy in New York before leaving. He seemed delighted to have the books, but said he: "What do you suppose they charged me? Ten dollars, in gold, apiece! And quite ordinary volumes!"

"Why, that's just what I've paid for a derby hat, $10, gold," answered Mr. Cabot Ward. "Who was it said this place wasn't expensive?"

But there were other reminders ready. The laundry bills were coming in to the delegates marked $19.50, $24.00, $27.80, and the bills for cloths pressing were pretty well keeping pace.

One of those in the party had a tear half an inch long in a coat, such a matter as would prompt one to give a tailor a cigar in New York, for drawing together.

"That'll be at least sivin dollars," said the Argentine-Hiberian maid when asked to send it to the tailor. "Any' kind of sewin' here is viry expinsive."

What a new suit of clothes would cost no one has dared inquire.

In brief, everything that has to be manufactured is costly here because it must come from abroad, Argentine is an agricultural country, a fact which continually impresses such a good patriot as Mr. Lewis Nixon with the desire to see the United States, the great manufacturing nation, and Argentine, the great agricultural nation, get together.

It Happens.

"How did your husband enjoy his vacation?"

"He is very much alarmed about it."

"How is that?"

"Why, he has come home with an appetite in excess of his income."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

—The professional solicitors for charities and advertising pamphlets have stung Boston business men worse than ever the past 12 months. They solicit contributions for all sorts of charities, outings and entertainments, and advertisements for programmes and year books, and the commissions run as high as $250 a week. Two or three experiences have waked up a few, who followed up the outcome of the venture and discovered the size of the graft.—Boston Record.

DRUGGIST IS HELD

Charged with Manslaughter for Death of Infant

The continued inquest case on the death of Ruth Kelley, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Kelley of Norfolk Downs, came up before Judge Avery this morning. As a result of the inquest, Paul K. Brown a druggist of Norfolk Downs, was arraigned for manslaughter by negligence and was held in $500 for the grand jury.

The child died May 16 as the result of taking a medicine said to contain about equal parts of sugar of milk and boracic acid. At the time it was stated that the attending physician had ordered sugar of milk for the child. Another daughter was sent to the drug store of Brown, and it is alleged that he gave her a preparation containing as stated above sugar and milk and boracic acid. It is claimed that death resulted as a result of giving this preparation to the child.

GRANITE OFFICERS.

"COMPARISONS ARE ODOROUS"

At least the editor o fthe Waltham Free Press thinks so for he writes:

Our little editorial item regarding the big list of Quincy estates to be sold for taxes seems to have seriously disturbed Brs. Prescott, and he has come at us with challenges on wealth population, etc. Well, Bro. Prescott, as Mrs. Malaprop says, "comparisons are odorous." We might say that Waltham had the biggest Watch factory in ther world, and the Ledge would come back bragging about the Fore River ship yards; we might say we had the handsomest country hereabouts and the Ledger would respond with something about its fine water front.

"As to valuations they are mighty uncertain and depend upon assessors. It is probable that Quincy has a larger population but our Bro. Prescott will doubtless admit that the city would have a better reputation without some of them. And in any event 16 columns of real estate to be sold to pay taxes assessed is not a very desirable asset, is it? and doesn't speak volumes for prosperity, does it?

THE ANSWER.

The valuation of Waltham has increased $16,025,885 in 27 years, while in the same period the valuation of Quincy has increased $24,460,475.

—When the peace of the world has been secured by mutual consent and co-operation o f the great powers, some new questions will be submitted to the new international court of arbitral justice. The weak, dependent nations that are governed without their own consent will make an appeal to this court and demand the credentials of those who claim the right to govern, and beg also to be informed as to the terms and limits of their enforced apprenticeship. They will desire to know when the hour will strike when freedom for them will be proclaimed. Undoubtedly, the Mediterranean Sea serves the purposes of all nations better than it did in the days of the Barbary pirates. If European control were withdrawn from the north of Africa, some strange things would happen. Some strange things may happen yet if the forces accumulated in the hinterland break loose in a pan-Islamic war.—Christian Register.

LONG TRIP FOR A BOTTLE

And a Quick One, Too, for Thirty-eight Days

The vagaries of the sea were strikingly exemplified, recently when G. S. Baker, a popular member of the Squantum Yacht club received a reply to a bottle which he had dropped into the ocean some two months ago. While off the Massachusetts coast near Provincetown on June 27 Mr. Baker threw overboard the bottle which contained a request that the finder communicate with him. Several days ago Mr. Baker received a letter from Gasper E. Perry of Cape Negro Island, Nova Scotia, stating that on August 4 the latter had picked up the bottle five miles south-by-east of the island. The distance from Provincetown to Cape Negro Island, which is something over four hundred miles, shows the speed at the lowest estimate the bottle travelled in the 38 days of its watery journey.

MUTINY IS CHARGED AGAINST FIVE MEN

Baltimore, Aug. 25.—Charged with mutiny on the high seas, five young men of Massachusetts were lodged in jail here after having been brought 3000 miles to answer for their alleged crime. They are William D. Albert, Charles Mitchell, E. W. Lilleya, Charles Turner and George White.

They arrived in this city on the revenue cutter Apache, to which they were transferred in irons from the vessels of the midshipmen's practice squadron, on which they were brought from the Azores at the request of the United States consul stationed there. They had been placed in his custody by Captain Carvallo of the whaler Pedro Verilla of New Bedford.

The specific allegation against the men is that they disabled the Varilla by mutilating the windlass and throwing it overboard, making it necessary to go into port for repairs.

The men allege they were brutally treated and altogether inadequately fed and that their protest to Carvallo was disregarded.

Detective Says New York Woman Pickpocket Is Worth $100,000

New York, Aug. 25.—Minnie Cohen, whose aliases include Rabinowitz and Schissel and who is declared by Detective Cavane of the Italian squad to be worth more than $100,000, was held for the grand jury by Magistrate Cornell in the Tombs court on a charge of pocket picking.

The woman said she was 35 years old and lived at 486 West Fourth street.

Rain Quenching Forest Fires

Missoula, Aug. 25.—A heavy snowfall in the mountains and rain in the valley has done much toward bringing the forest fires under control. The storm has extended over an area of 100 square miles.

Coerced Domicile.

Italy retains a special form of banishment introduced under the Roman emperors known as coerced domicile. This punishment corresponds to the Roman deportation to an island and like it consists in criminals being confined to an island for a definite time and enjoying within its limits personal freedom.

Overfatigue.

Overfatigue lessens vitality and in consequence leaves the system more liable to fall a prey to any disease germs with which it comes in contact.

Boils.

Boils come from the staphylococcus pyogenes aureus and are very common in people with Bright's disease, diabetes, gout, tuberculosis and disorders of digestion and often appear after severe fevers. Boils are commonest in the spring, and sometimes epidemics of boils run through hospitals, jails, barracks and asylums.

QUALEY AND CORBETT HELD

Charge of Grand Larceny In Indictments Secured by Mrs. Bull

New York, Aug. 25.—Indictments charging grand larceny in the first degree were returned against John A. Qualey and Harvey W. Corbett, officers of Magnesia Asbestos company, by the grand jury.

Both Qualey and Corbett were recently in court on a charge of swindling Mrs. Marie N. Bull, widow of the noted surgeon, out of $35,000. The indictments are based on a complaint filed by Mrs. Bull.

Both men are now out on $10,000 bail each in connection with the earlier complaint, but will be brought into court to plead to the indictments by their counsel.

ENGAGED TWO YEARS AGO

Latest Gossip Concerning Duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Elkins

Paris, Aug. 25.—The Petit Parisien's Rome correspondent says that Duka degli Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins have been engaged unofficially for more than two years with the approval of King Victor Emmanuel, who stipulated that the official announcement should not be made until the duke had attained the rank of rear admiral, at the end of this year.

The marriage of the couple, the correspondent adds, will follow shortly upon that event.

NECK WOUND IS HEALED

Gaynor Goes Back to Regular Diet of Three Square Meals a Day

New York, Aug. 25.—The bullet wound in Mayor Gaynor's neck has healed on the outside, and the irritation of the throat caused by granulation on the inside has ceased.

The mayor went back today to his regular diet of three square meals a day. He is allowed to take a little exercise in the hospital corridors.

Two Shorthand Champs

Denver, Aug. 25.—Clyde M. Marshall of Kingston, N. Y., with an average of 268 words a minute, won the national shorthand reporting championship and cup. W. B. Bottome of New York, holder of the title and ineligible for the cup again, broke the world's record with an average of 269 words.

The Deadly Fly.

A fly bacteriologically examined has been found to carry 100,000 bacteria.

Raisins.

Containing but 13 per cent of moisture and the balance almost wholly grape sugar (carbohydrates) the raisin is on a par with the date and the dried fig as an energy producer in the system.

Well, Well, Well!

"He took her out boating the other day."

"Well?"

"And they got to talking about what he would do if the boat should capsize."

"Well?"

"He told her he would clasp her in his arms and keep her head above water."

"Well?"

"She immediately capsized the boat." —Houston Post.

The Coquette.

Too late, O daughter of a turtledove,
You recognized the pleading of a mate!
Long he had called you, but you stayed above
Too late!

Mourning alone now are you? That is fate
That strips your selfhood from you like a glove.
Ah, but your careless vanity was great!

A woe that you shall now have knowledge of
Drove him away at last, and you shall wait
For aye—for any happiness or love
Too late!
—Cleveland Leader.

Rice Hash.

A quick and easy way to prepare hash is to make it with rice, instead of potatoes. This is called dry, or rice, hash or mince. Rice goes well with any kind of meat. Wash as much as needed, throw into plenty of boiling water, cook twenty minutes and turn into a colander, drain and add to the chopped meat.

Late Hours.

"I understand that you recently stayed out till after midnight," said the friend in a shocked tone.

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton.

"Where did you spend all your time?"

"Out on the front step waiting for Henrietta to relent and let me in."—Washington Star.

BRIEFS

Showers and cooler tomorrow.

The last Thursday of the month.

The first of September may bring your 1910 tax bill.

Many Quincy people are taking in the Marshfield fair this week.

The annual open race of the Wollaston Yacht club is scheduled for Saturday.

Miss Edna V. Watts of East North avenue Baltimore, Me., is visiting her sister Mrs. Harry Brooks of Upland road.

Whist party tonight at the Quincy Yacht club house. It will be one of the closing events of the social season.

Mayor Shea was one of the guests at A. O. H. convention at Lowell on Wednesday, and atended the banquet in the evening.

Members and friends of the Washington M. French Hose association are looking forward to the annual outing to be held at the Squantum Inn on Saturday afternoon.

Two important hearings will be held on the night of Sept. 19 when the City Council convenes after its summer vacation. One of these is the widening of Sea street to 60 feet, and the other on restricting Crescent street to pleasure vehicles.

UNWRITTEN LAW UPHELD

Jury Frees Young Slayer of Saloonkeeper Who Betrayed Her

New Orleans, Aug. 25.—With the unwritten law as her plea, Mamie McLaughlin, 18 years old, charged with the murder of Hugh Smith, was declared not guilty by a jury. The girl said she killed Smith because he had betrayed her. Smith was a politician and saloonkeeper.

The girl, who is an orphan, was supported by the Era club, an organization of New Orleans women.

Four Alphabets on Pin Head

Sharon, Pa., Aug. 25.—On the head of an ordinary pin Paul P. Wentz of this city has engraved the alphabet four times and then added his name and the date when he completed the work, making 113 characters in all.

Funeral of President Montt

Berlin, Aug. 25.—The funeral of President Montt of Chile took place at the Roman Catholic church of St. Hedwig here today.

ALDERMEN WANT A MAYOR

Ask That Supreme Court Settle the Matter For Lawrence

Boston, Aug. 25.—A petition signed by a majority of the board of aldermen asking Attorney General Malone to petition the supreme court for a writ of mandamus to compel Acting Mayor Jordan of Lawrence to call a special meeting of the common council of that city, in order that it may meet in joint convention with the board of aldermen for the purpose of electing a successor to former Mayor White, was filed with the attorney general by City Solicitor Murphy of Lawrence.

The petition is the outgrowth of the resignation of Mayor White on July 25, following his conviction of the charge of bribery and subsequent imprisonment in the house of correction for a term of three years.

Under the city charter, Alderman Jordan, president of the board of aldermen, became acting mayor, to serve under the terms of the city charter until a mayor should be elected by the aldermen and common council, in joint convention, for the unexpired term.

WAS LARGEST IN MAINE

Saw and Box Factory Burns While Employes Are at Fair

Orono, Me., Aug. 25.—After having been in operation sixty years the saw and box factory of James Walker & Co. at Basin Mills, a part of this town, was totally destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $100,000, and the insurance is $90,000.

The mill, which was one of the oldest of its kind, and the largest in the state, was deserted except for the watchman, when the fire broke out late yesterday, most of the 250 employes and their families being in Bangor in attendance at the annual Eastern Maine fair. It had been closed for the day that they might have an opportunity to attend the fair.

WOMEN'S HATS WILL GROW STILL BIGGER

Dame Fashion Decrees Against Medium-Sized Headgear

Chicago, Aug. 25.—There is no relief in sight for women who have accepted the dictates of fashion and struggled under the unwieldliness of hats of the size of an umbrella. That is the edict of the National Association of Retail Milliners which is holding a convention here.

Big hats are to be bigger and small hats smaller than ever before. There are to be no medium-sized hats.

The desire for extremes extends even to the coloring, according to Mme. Maerie, president of the association. The more brilliant the coloring the more nearly to the ideal effect will the new hat conform.

New shades will include magnolia, a shade of orange; daualk, a coral red; pompeiian, a dead rose; herue, a light mahogany, and acajou, a raisin color.

BALL FROM TALL MONUMENT

Lands In Mit of Backstop Sullivan of Chicago Americans

Washington, Aug. 25.—Catcher "Billy" Sullivan of the Chicago Americans duplicated the feat of Catcher Charles Street of the Washington American league team in 1908 by catching a baseball thrown from a window at the top of the Washington monument, a perpendicular drop of 542 feet.

It was only after thirteen attempts that Sullivan finally caught the ball, although he succeeded several times in so gauging the sphere as to get it in his mit, but could not hold it. Street's feat was performed upon the thirteenth attempt.

AFTER NINETEEN MONTHS

Big Steel Strike In Three States Will End on Saturday

Pittsburg, Aug. 25.—President McCardle of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, announces that the strike against the United States Steel corporation will be ended Saturday. The decision was reached at a meeting of the executive board.

The strike has been on for nineteen months and 7000 men have been affected. Plants in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana have been shut down because of the strike.

Cholera Continues to Rage

Bari, Italy, Aug. 25.—During the past twenty-four hours eleven cases of Asiatic cholera and seven deaths have been reported at Barletta, four cases and four deaths at Trani and one case and one death at Cerignola.

STRICKEN IN A CHEAP CAFE

Stage Career That Brought May Yohe Fortune Is Ended

SHE GAINED FAME AS SINGER

Became Bride of Lord Francis Hope and Possessor of Famous Jewels, Including Gem From Indian Idol—Deserted Nobility to Elope With New York Man—Finally Drops In San Francisco With Every Cent Gone

New York, Aug. 25.—The wheel of fortune has swung full circle for May Yohe, actress.

A dispatch from San Francisco states baldly that this woman of the world was stricken with the silent blow of paralysis as she was singing one of her old songs in a cheap cafe.

The stage career that yielded May Yohe a fortune is at an end. Every cent of her money is gone.

May Yohe years ago was a simple little girl in a little town not far from Philadelphia. Her mother took her to Philadelphia, and while she worked as a dressmaker she let May be taught the things that usually only society buds acquire. She learned French and German, dancing and singing and finished with four assets to her career.

The four assets were four remarkable contralto notes in her voice, which she had been trained to sing with their utmost effect. She took these four notes with her into a church choir and became talked about. Then she took them upon the stage.

Philadelphia was but the stepping stone to New York. The four full-throated contralto notes gained her a reputation here over night. The circle had started on its swing upward.

New York led to London. But by this time May no longer was the little miss from the Quaker City. Personality had been infused into the four famous throaty notes and that meant a stage-door crowd.

One of this stage-door crowd was Lord Francis Hope, son of the Duchess of Newcastle, one of the oldest and richest earldoms in Great Britain. He spent his mother's fortune on her and her stage ventures and he gave her another fortune in the family jewels. Then, in 1893, he married her and her wedding gift from him was the great Hope diamond.

By a strange dovetailing of circumstances, the glinting jewel that had once glittered from out the forehead of a placid East Indian idol, that had afterward been the central gem in the kingly diadem of France, now sparkled, pendant, at the corsage of the erstwhile demure miss from Pennsylvania.

Lord Francis and his wife came to New York and she returned to the stage. Seven years had been the span of their married life. Lady Hope blazed with diamonds as she appeared at the New York theatre. But the ill luck of the Hope diamond was enough to offset the lucky number "seven."

Putnam B. Strong, son of one of New York's proudest families, whose father was mayor of the city, back from service in the Philippines with a captaincy, then promoted to the rank of major, saw Lady Hope in San Francisco. She smiled at him and he was at her feet. She flung away title, ambition, everything—and eloped with Strong.

Their hearts ran away with their heads—both have since said it. They went to Japan and Hope divorced her. Then they trotted over the whole bowl of the globe. They quarrelled, they made up; they quarrelled again, and then they went their separate ways.

Strong was last heard of at Macao, the Monte Carlo of the east. May Yohe bobbed up into notoriety now and again, but always successively one peg lower.

And at last, in the cheap cafe of the west, nature strikes at her. She was skipping from one to another of the four contralto notes, now coarsened and raucous, when suddenly her mouth slipped from her control, twisting to one side of her face, and the last of the four contralto notes became a groan as she fell to the little stage, a cripple.

CLOSE TO REVENUE OFFICE

Illicit Still Discovered When Negro's Home Is Raided

Washington, Aug. 25.—Almost within sight of the United States internal revenue headquarters, an illicit still was discovered when revenue officers raided the home of Samuel Gomillion, a negro.

The authorities confiscated a large amount of illicit whisky. The negro, who had driven a thriving trade with members of his race in the neighborhood, was held for the grand jury.

Veteran Expires at Reunion

The Weirs, N. H., Aug. 25.—While surrounded by hundreds of his old comrades of the war days at the annual encampment of the New Hampshire Veteran association, Joseph E. Stevens, past commander of Post 26, G. A. R., of Roxbury, was seized with an attack of heart failure and died in the midst of his comrades.

DENATURED GRAND OPERA.

[A protest has been lodged against the gloomy nature of the grand operas featured in the Covent Garden season.—Dispatch From London.]

"Les Huguenots"—two people die;
One death in "Rigoletto;"
La Tosca leaps from bastion high;
"Lucia" spells stiletto;
Consumption wins in "La Boheme;"
In "Carmen" there's much slaying;
'Tis thus the operatic game
Gives worth for what you're paying.

"Cavalleria" calls for knives
And deaths that are most blotchy,
While notches totaling three lives
Are cut in "Pagliacci;"
In "Butterfly" 'tis varied some
By stunt of harakiri;
From overture to closing drum
Grand opera is teary.

Oh, speed the day when warblers, then,
Shall waste no art in dying,
When handkerchiefs of maids and men
Shall call no more for drying!
Then shall the tired business man,
Who bears a burden weary,
No more demand the hook, the can,
When opera is cheery.

WITCHCRAFT ENTHRALLS PHILIPPINE ISLANDERS.

Tender Portion of Victims Appears to Be the Neck.

That a firm belief in witchcraft persists in some parts of Pampanga province is the purport of a communication received in Manila from an investigator who has investigated the claims of Filipinos that they were being afflicted with various bodily ills by persons who are called Magcalums.

While the educated inhabitants scorn at the belief, it was found to be widespread throughout the towns as well as in the agricultural sections far from large centers of population. Extracts from the communication follow:

"The belief is an old one, probably coexistent with the tribes. It is not confined to one or two towns, but exists to a greater or less degree in all, though the idea probably is having a greater hold upon the people of Lubao, Macabebe and Masantol than any of the other municipalities.

"The belief is that a person who has this power can create illness in another, provided the other is a believer in Magcalums. A careful and extended search has failed to produce a single Pampangan who impressed the investigator as being entirely free from the idea that people might have this power. Many laugh at the mention of such a power and in a general way say that they do not consider it possible, yet references to specific cases will usually elicit the fact that they can ascribe no other cause to certain effects.

"It would seem that the tender spot of these near divinities is the neck of the intended victim, the Magcalums causing an enlargement of that part of the body.

"Sometimes the infliction is related to a specific event. For instance, in Arayat a woman once told a prospective purchaser that she had no eggs, which the customer found out to be false. Later it was said a chicken grew inside the stomach of the woman.

"Another account is of a Magcalum who was bound and an attempt made to burn holes in her face. The instruments made no impression upon her, but the marks of burns appeared upon the face of the woman who had instigated the maltreatment."

ARMY TRIES MOTOR TRICYCLE

Considered Good Field Hospital Adjunct In Germany.

In this year's German army maneuvers the sight will be witnessed of motor tricycles speeding about the battlefield. Hitherto it has been found that much time was lost in rendering medical assistance to the wounded.

To prevent such delay during the coming maneuvers field surgeons will be mounted upon specially constructed motor tricycles made on the lines of those now used by tradesmen, in which will be carried all the necessary material for first aid.

In the past a wounded man had to be carried on a stretcher to the nearest lazaret before help could be rendered. In future should he find it impossible to treat the case on the spot the surgeon can himself convey the man to the lazaret on his motor tricycle.

The machine will be built so that it can go over heavy ground, and it will, owing to its speed, save many hours of weary waiting to the wounded.

BIG PRIZES FOR ALPS FLIGHT

First Aviator Offered $14,000—High Altitudes on Route.

What promises to provide the most sensational performance yet attempted by air men is the flight proposed in connection with the Milan aviation meeting, which opens on Sept. 18. It is the feat of making a trip across the Alps, and three prizes of $14,000, $4,000 and $2,000 are offered to successful competitors.

Nominally the distance to be covered is only ninety-five miles, but the aeroplanes in the course of their journey will have to fly over mountains exceeding 6,000 feet in height.

No flying by night will be allowed, and a maximum of twenty-four hours will be allowed for the journey. The race will start from Brigue, on the Swiss side of the Alps, and end at Milan.

SQUANTUM !?
(EVER HEAR OF THE PLACE?)
IS A PART OF QUINCY !?

¶ It is not under water nor a hundred miles from Boston. In a short time (through the kindness of the City Fathers) you will be able to get there without swimming or fear of drowning.

¶ It has some city water, some electric lights, and telephone connections for such as pay for it. Also electric cars visit this place occasionally, with five cent fares from all parts of Quincy.

¶ With the above information would you risk the price (5 cents) and take a journey to the wild domains of this unexplored region?

¶ As a minor side attraction it might be mentioned that the Harvard Aviation Field is located here, on which a few pennies are being expended preparing the grounds and a few more may possibly be expended during the meet, Sept. 3rd. to 13th.

¶ Finally, though perhaps of less importance, the undersigned begs to add that he has a few (hundred)

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Quincy Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement the public expression of Quincy people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Quincy reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were very severe at times and cold or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew that my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give them a trial and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had taken the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

HOKE SMITH

Nomination Is Equivalent to His Election

SMITH DOWNS AN OLD ENEMY

Easily Defeats Governor Brown In Georgia Primaries

HE WILL BE NEXT GOVERNOR

Present Chief Executive Was Dismissed From Office When Smith First Went Into Governor's Chair—Livingston, After Twenty Years of Service In Congress, Is Defeated Because He Supported Cannon Rules

Atlanta, Aug. 25.—Hoke Smith has eighty-two counties and 204 votes in the state convention, enough to give him the Democratic nomination for governor of Georgia, according to returns from the Georgia primaries. Reports give thirty counties to his old political enemy, Governor Joseph M. Brown.

The issues in the campaign have been largely lost sight of in the strong political antagonism of the two men. Three years ago, when Smith first went into the governor's chair, he summarily dismissed Brown as a member of the railroad commission because of Brown's conservative policy in dealing with the railroads.

Mr. Brown then waited his time, and three months before the primary of 1908 announced his candidacy for governor against Smith, although it is Democratic unwritten law to give a governor the indorsement for election to a second term. Smith then spoke all over the state, while Brown remained in his office and wrote cards, carrying the election by approximately 11,000 votes.

This year Smith three times refused to run, but after Brown's first message to the legislature, June 25, Smith's friends insisted that he would have to make the race as a vindication of his policies, which were vigorously attacked in the governor's message. This related particularly to the Smith registration law, which provides for a closing of the registration books six months in advance of the state election, and which was vigorously opposed by Brown upon the theory that it results in the disfranchisement of many voters.

One of Georgia's oldest congressmen in point of service, Leonidas Livingston, was defeated for renomination in a campaign in which his alleged support of the so-called Cannon rules at the organization of the house last winter was made a principal issue. William M. Howard, also accused of being a friend of Cannon, appears to be defeated.

The state officers were nominated without opposition.

"REGULARS" IN CONTROL

Officers For Massachusetts Republican Convention Are Chosen

Boston, Aug. 25.—By the choice of Robert Luce of Somerville as presiding officer of the state convention, and Congressman Washburn of Worcester as chairman of the committee on resolutions, the Republican state committee made it certain that the insurgents will have little to say in the organization of the meeting and writing the platform.

It is true the Speaker Joseph Walker of Brookline, who classes himself as a "progressive," was given a place on the committee on resolutions as a member at large but he was denied the chairmanship, for which he had been prominently named, at least up to the time of his speech at the Plymouth county Republican outing last week. The other members at large—all standpatters—are Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge, president of the senate; Eben S. S. Keith of Bourne, former state senator, and William D. Chappelle of Salem, former president of the senate.

Up to the time of the meeting of the executive committee, to which the choice of the convention officers had been referred, indications were that Luce would be chairman of the convention and that Walker would be given the chairmanship of the committee which would draft the platform.

IF SO, WHERE?

There is a problem which impels
Me oftentimes to stop
And watch the lobby in hotels,
The bar, the barber shop—
All places where the guests abound—
Yet still I ask, enraged,
Is anybody ever found
When he
Is Paged?

You calmly sit consuming beer
Or dallying with cheese.
A buttons hollers in your ear,
"Misterrrrr Gazzookus, please!"
In vain! The latter's hidden, drowned,
Or otherwise engaged.
Is anybody ever found
When he
Is Paged?

The bellboys come, the bellboys go.
Their hope undying seems.
"Misterrrrr McHaggis, Dr. Doe!"
(Poorlads! Respect their dreams!)
Through heartless space their voices sound
Till they grow worn and aged.
Is anybody ever found
When he
Is Paged?

WOMEN'S RISE O. K., SAYS KAISER, BARRING POLITICS.

Suffrage Indication of Country's Hopeless Decadence His Belief.

The kaiser recently seized an opportunity of ventilating his views on the feminist movement, and the substance of his utterance has been made public, presumably with his permission.

The kaiser used to be credited with limiting woman's sphere to three departments—church, children and kitchen—but if that was ever true he seems to have changed his opinions, for it is said that he views with profound sympathy the general movement proceeding in all the civilized countries of the world for the amelioration of the position of women, including higher education.

He believes in technical education for women and the invasion of different businesses and professions by women, holding that in the present numerical proportion of the sexes this is inevitable and could not be denied to women without grave injustice to them.

Consequently women lawyers, women doctors, women dentists and women in many other branches of activity may count on the kaiser's approval.

In brief, the kaiser is a supporter of every phase of the new woman movement, with the single exception of its political aspect. He is a resolute opponent of woman suffrage. He abhors the idea of women in political life.

The introduction of woman suffrage in any country appears to him to be an unmistakable sign of hopeless decadence and decay. Women in politics would, he thinks, be the beginning of the end of any country.

WOMEN SEEK BIG FEET.

Healthful and Beautiful, Assert Munich Aristocrats.

Big feet in a woman may be beautiful, but most people need to be educated up to appreciating them. Ridicule is therefore being leveled at a society formed by some aristocratic ladies of Munich which has for its object the cultivation of big feet.

The society will preach the gospel that big feet in a woman are not only healthful, but beautiful.

The founder of the society is the Austrian Baroness Mohn. She declares that she made this important discovery about feet while touring in the Bavarian highlands, and she was led to start the reform movement as the result of witnessing the efforts of many women to climb mountains in lace dresses and French shoes with high heels.

Despite the sneers of newspapers the society has several hundred members. These have pledged themselves to appear everywhere, even at court functions and dances, in the biggest possible shoes, with sturdy heels, and they further undertake to bring up their children on the same principles.

TAXES NEVER ARE COLLECTED

Irish Islanders Fight Off Officers In Annual Battle.

The Irish peasants dwelling on the bleak islands of Aran and Valentia, off the stormy coast of Galway, absolutely decline to pay taxes. The Galway tax collectors each year storm the islands and endeavor to compel the peasants to pay their taxes. A battle always ensues, and the collectors are driven back to the mainland.

The islanders call the collectors "black soldiers," and their annual battle with them is looked forward to with as much interest as the peasants elsewhere look forward to the annual county fair day.

This year the Galway county council had difficulty in finding men who would tackle the job of collecting taxes from the islanders, but finally one of the clerks undertook the contract. He has not yet had the courage to proceed to the island battlefields with his assistants.

Telephones Need Precious Metals.

Few persons realize what an enormous amount of the precious metals and even precious stones, such as diamonds, are used in the manufacture of telephone apparatus. In a single year one company uses upward of a ton of platinum for this class of apparatus alone. And platinum costs 30 per cent more than pure gold.

FIGHT MAKES BARNES GLAD

Welcomes Contest With Former President "In the Open"

THERE WILL BE NO QUARTER

Leader of "Regulars" Has Something to Say of Opponent Giving Up Practice of Sending Dictatorial Telegrams to Persons He Can't Control —Roosevelt Declares That "Old Guard" Will Have All the Fight They Want In Convention

New York, Aug. 25.—In a vitriolic reply to the defiant statement made by Theodore Roosevelt, on the eve of his departure on his western tour, to the effect that there will be "no compromise" in the fight he is to wage before the Republican state convention, William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, the "regular" leader, sarcastically bids the retired president welcome to a "fight in the open."

Mr. Barnes expresses pleasure over the fact that Roosevelt "has ceased the practice of sending dictatorial telegrams to persons whom he can't control" and says he takes it for granted that Roosevelt, as a good party man, will abide by the decision of the convention in the event of his defeat.

Mr. Barnes emphatically denies that the "regulars" deceived President Taft in the selection of Vice President Sherman as temporary chairman of the convention. The Albany leader flatly denies that Sherman, Lloyd C. Griscom or any one else had any authority to represent the state committee preceding the committee meeting at which Roosevelt was defeated by Sherman.

In the meantime the "regulars" and the "insurgents" are opening an active campaign in the primary contests for delegates. No quarter will be given by either side in the struggle of the opposing factions which will be waged from this time until the convention roll is called at Saratoga on Sept. 27.

Timothy L. Woodruff, chairman of the state committee, is hurrying back to New York from his vacation in the Adirondacks to consult Barnes and the other generals of the "regular" force.

Roosevelt Ready to Fight

Herkimer, N. Y., Aug. 25.—"They will have all the fight they want." Theodore Roosevelt made this announcement after he had studied the statement given out by William Barnes, Jr., of Albany at New York, in regard to the fight between the old guard, including Vice President Sherman, and Roosevelt in the coming state Republican convention.

"I am only going to the convention," continued Roosevelt, "because I feel that the public interest, the interest of the people of New York, demands that the Republican party be given a chance to stand squarely and uncompromisingly for clean, decent, honest policies.

"I go to that convention to make a speech exactly as originally planned, and while I hope there will be enough good sense to prevent anyone from opposing the principles for which I shall stand, if they do oppose them it is their own affair and as far as I am concerned the issue shall be absolutely clean cut."

It was plain from Roosevelt's manner as he gave this notice that his fighting spirit was up.

CANNOT GO ON BALLOT

Decision In Case of Man Who Declined to Pay Registration Fee

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 25.—Charles S. Collins of this city cannot have his name on the ballot in the primaries next month as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the state senate, because he attempted to contest certain provisions of the new primary law by failing to file the $10 registration fee required by the statute.

Chief Justice Wallace of the superior court, after a hearing here, dismissed Collins' petition for a writ of mandamus to compel Secretary of State Pearson to place Collins' name on the primary ballot.

The "Best Girl" Habit.

"Why," asked her anxious and excited mother, "do you think he is coming to the point at last?"

"Well," the maiden replied, looking demurely down at the rug, "when he took me in his arms and kissed me last night he said he'd got so used to me he didn't believe he could ever break himself of the habit."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SIRES AND SONS.

Representative Hughes of West Virginia served in both the Kentucky and the West Virginia legislatures before he entered congress.

Van H. Manning of Mississippi has been appointed chief clerk of the new bureau of mines in the interior department at Washington.

Sir William Crookes, the chemist, and Thomas Hardy, the novelist, were recently invested with the Order of Merit by King George at Marlborough House.

James J. Hill began work as a farm hand at 50 cents a day. His income now is estimated at $6,000 a day and his fortune at more than a hundred millions.

For seventy-four years Earl Nelson has been drawing a pension of $25,000 a year from the British government because he happens to be the son of a man who was the nephew of the brother of the victor at Trafalgar.

Gerald Du Maurier, who is coming next autumn to America as a star of the stage, is the son of the late George Du Maurier, famous for his satirical drawings in Punch and as the author of "Peter Ibbetson" and "Trilby."

Francis E. Leupp, newspaper man, biographer of Roosevelt and former commissioner of Indian affairs, whose study of the Indian, called "The Indian and His Problem," was published in the spring, was given the degree of doctor of laws last commencement day by his alma mater, Williams college.

Sir Clements Markham is regarded as the grand old man of British geography and exploring enterprise. His official connection with the Royal Geographical society has lasted for nearly half a century, and when he retired from the presidency in 1905 he had held that post continuously for twelve years.

A Tea Test.

To test tea, burn a small quantity on a metal plate. With good tea the amount of ash remaining is small, increasing in quantity as the quality of the sample tested deteriorates.

India.

India is not a nation, but simply a collection of heterogeneous people. The mass of the population in spite of their sun tanned skins are Aryans, but the yellow race is represented on the northeast borders, while the Caromandel coast section consists in large part of the colored race.

Rice Wine.

Excepting grape wine, the oldest alcoholic beverage known to man is saki, a rice wine. It has been used by the Japanese for over 2,000 years.

A Bee Line.

The directness of the bee's flight is proverbial. The shortest distance between any two given points is called a bee line. Many observers think that the immense eyes with which the insect is furnished greatly assist if they do not entirely account for the arrowy straightness of its passage through the air.

BRIEFS

Beatrice Medlin of Water street is sojourning at Hardwick, Vt., for three weeks.

Miss Helen Johnson will soon return from Portland, Maine, where she has spent the summer, to resume her studies at Quincy High school.

James and Harold Hill of Wollaston have spent an enjoyable summer at their father's cottage at Old Orchard. Harold is an expert yachtsman.

Masters McAnarney, Brown, Faxon and Berry, four Quincy boys, returned this morning from Camp Wyanoke, Lake Winnepesaukee.

Robert T. Johnson, who has been suffering from rheumatism and malaria left this week for Michigan, where he is to try the salt baths.

Miss Selma Gustafson left Wednesday for Chicago, where she will visit relatives and friends for the next two months.

Mayor Shea has accepted an invitation to review the parade on Labor Day morning in front of City Hall, and to speak later in the day at the picnic at New Downer Landing.

HARPOON BARRED.

Followers of sonder yacht racing in this country will learn with regret says the Monitor, that Charles Francis Adams, 2d, winner of the President Taft trophy in the Spanish-American race this year, will not be able to be a contender either in the German trials off Buzzards bay next month or to represent this country at Kiel in the races for the German Emperor's trophy in 1911.

Mr. Adams is one of the best sonderklasse skippers in this country and is a true sportsman of the highest type. He has in the Harpoon what is unquestionably the fastest sonder boat ever built on this side of the Atlantic, if not in the world, and the eliminating of this fast little yacht from the trials and races robs them of an interesting factor.

While Mr. Adams thinks much of the Harpoon, he will gladly sell her to an American, if the purchaser will take part in the trials and go to Germany should his yacht be selected. It is one of the conditions of the sonderklasse contests that the owner shall be a member of the racing crew, so that Mr. Adams cannot send the boat abroad under another skipper, a thing which he would probably do were it not against the rules.

There are a number of fine sonder skippers in this country who have not boats in active competition this year, and it is to be hoped that some one of them will secure the Harpoon and race her in 1911, that this country may have the benefit of being represented by the best boat we have.

—A telegram sent out from Washington says that "the new Japanese tariff hits the United States." Now, that is all folderol. Any tariffite will tell you that our tariff doesn't hit anybody or anything. So, how can a Japanese tariff hit (hurt) the United States?—Rochester Herald, Ind't.

SPORTING CHAT.

The Makarias and Atlantic will play a series to decide the question of superiority. The first game will be pulled off at Merrymount Park on Saturday. The line-up of the Atlantic team is uncertain, but they will put in a good team.

• • •

Stoughton has been in quite a rush to get players for Saturday's game against Quincy. Come to the Water street grounds and see the double header.

• • •

The freshman class at High school will give the other classes a strong rub for honors in the class meet.

• • •

The Y. M. C. A. team challenges the Glovers of Atlantic to a game at any time and any place. Address, Sporting Editor, Quincy Daily Ledger; or Alec Robertson, 1 Franklin place.

• • •

The little teams are finding it hard to get games in their own class now. The first of the season all of the teams go up against teams calculated to beat them, and in consequence of losing repeatedly they break up. The surviving small teams who played in their own class are therefore, without rivals and have to give up the ghost also.

• • •

If that Glaze protest goes, won't it be awful. Just imagine losing the credit for eight wins. There is this much about it, the Manager who registered the kick has used Glaze himself in days not long passed, and by placing such an unsportsmanlike protest has laid himself to the derision of every good fan. To let jealousy of another's sucess exert such an influence is unbecoming in a man, especially when he is in the cleanest of sports—baseball.

• • •

Get ready for the opening of the Y. M. C. A. gym. It will be in fine condition.

• • •

The contest between the leaders of the Granite City league is resolving itself into a bitter struggle as every game counts tremendously. Cranch, the leaders, play the Apprentices on Saturday on the Old Colony Grounds at 2 o'clock sharp. The Apprentices are tied for second place with Adams. Adams has no game scheduled for Saturday, so that the top three in the league will be wonderfully tumbled about, no matter which of the first two wins.

• • •

That Hardy game was Kerr's first lose in the Granite City circuit.

• • •

Smith will bend them over for for Cranch.

• • •

Boyle, of the Apprentices, says "Never again" on third base.

• • •

Who is the best all-around player in the Old Colony league?

• • •

Over 30 tubs competed in the annual muster for hand engines at Fall River on Wednesday. First prize of $200 went to the Alabama Coon of Stoughton which played over 234 feet. The Hancock of Brockton was second and the Hingham Veterans third.

• • •

A yacht with the double O headed the sonder class at Buzards bay on Wednesday—the Seacoon owned by J. L. Stackpole. The Beaver sailed by her new owner was third.

Unafraid.

Who's afraid of a cow?
They're so gentle and kind
You can go up quite close and they none of 'em mind.
An' they like little girls, so I've heard people say.
But I wish, oh, I wish, they was furder away!

Pooh! Who's afraid?
They're as good as can be,
An' one's a child cow that is younger than me,
An' they give us good milk, an' there's nothing to fear.
But I wish, oh, I wish, that my daddy was here!

LETTER FROM THE PHILIPPINES.

The following interesting sketch is from a letter written by Jack Arnold who is in the government service in the Philippine Islands, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zenas S. Arnold of Coddington street, and will be entertaining reading for his friends here at home.

The only special thing I have to write about is a trip I took with Dr. Robertson and Dr. Beyer. I went up to Beyer's house to sleep, so that we could get an early start, and save about two miles walking through the city. We had breakfast by artificial light, and got going before 5.30. We took a road which follows the course of the city water main, between the city limits and the Mariquina valley, whence the water is drawn. A good part of the distance the main is above ground and squirms over the country like a huge black snake. The road rises pretty steadily, but so gradually that for the first six or eight miles the country looks flat. It is pretty well deserted and there are few large trees. The only crops we saw were zacate, a luxuriant grass which is pressed while still green, into bales and forms the chief fodder for the native ponies of the city. The road is pretty good until you reach the city reservoir; there it degenerates into a trail. The reservoir is a large one; there were forty-two feet of water in it then at the middle of the dry season, so it ought to answer all purposes.

About two hours after starting we climbed a ridge of hills and could see the whole Mariquina valley with the hills beyond spread out like a panorama. It was certainly fine. The hills are not very high, but very rugged and picturesque, while the floor of the valley is perfectly level for the most part, divided by little ridges into irregular patches of rice fields, and dotted here and there with villages and clumps of bamboo and mangoes. We had rather a long hot walk down the hill and part way across the valley to the river. Here we routed out the ferryman, who appeared in a costume that made the fig leaves of scripture look like a full dress uniform. He had to transport us one by one on his shoulders across a bit of swamp to reach his canoe. We crossed without adventure, despite the fact that the boat was only about eight inches wide. Once on the other side a short walk across the fields brought us to the town of San Mateo, a good sized, clean looking place, with the usual ark of a church. We had then walked about twelve miles.

San Mateo's chief claim to interest consists in its being the place where Gen. Lawton was killed during the Insurrection. We made for the railroad station and caught a train for Montalban, the terminus of the line about three miles further on. From Montalban we were bound up to the gorge of the Mariquina, where the new dam of the water works is located. The station at San Mateo has an elevated platform with a fine view across the valley and a good breeze. The inhabitants of the town evidently appreciated the latter at least for they were sitting all over it. The local barber had set up his shop there temporarily and put three or four boys through the mill while we were waiting. The small boy appeared specially interested in our puttees, which they call "funny shoes." Montalban is not a very prepossessing town, but once out of the village itself, the scenery is very fine—though as it is in a valley, the name "Alban Mount" seems a little off.

The road to the dam (a distance of about four miles) at first runs over a hill and out of sight of the river. On the sheltered side of the hill the houses are clustered thickly and here we saw several trees I never noticed right around Manilla—cacao, breadfruit, betel palm, all with fruit in various stages. The nut of the betel palm, as perhaps you know, is universally used among the lower classes in this quarter for chewing—a slice of nut, a leaf of the "buyo" (a climbing plant looking a bit like our scarlet bean) and a pinch of lime, rolled up constitute a "quid." Its most remarkable effect is to stain the saliva so red that the spittle cannot be distinguished by the naked eye from blood. Hence to walk down the street after a betel-chewer is to a novice rather distracting. After mounting the hill we could get a view of the river. Both river and road made a sharp turn and entered a narrow valley where the road (a very good one, passable for autos) was "scupped" out of the hillside. The valley grew continually narrower, and finally became a gorge and the scenery very pretty indeed, with the river a couple of hundred feet below us.

Finally we got into the neck of the gorge. Here the cliffs were perpendicular—almost overhanging, and a narrow path was carved like a gallery, out of one side. The opposite cliff was very close on 1000 feet high. The river was half choked with boulders of fantastic shapes, and these as well as most of the rock walls, were composed of crystalline limestone, almost as white as marble, which gave a very weird effect. The dam brought the vista to an end beyond. We could not get back to see the basin itself—it extended two miles back into the hills—as the gates were locked. We rested a while and then hiked back to Montalban, having in our mind's eye a small building we had passed coming out with the sign ICE COLD BEER AND LEMONADE SOLD HERE. When we reached the sign again we stopped and proceeded to put it to a test—Beyer the beer and Dr. and I the lemonade. The lemonade is a Spanish concoction, colorless and aerated, flavored, I imagine, with extract of lemon, but very refreshing after a walk. The shop, like all of its kind, had a continuous window around three sides and outside of this under the very wide eaves, a bamboo bench three feet wide. We sat cross-legged on this, drank and ate deviled ham, crackers and fruit. Then we used the bench to take a siesta until our train went.

We took this train down the valley to Rosario Junction and there caught another train for Antipolo. But we were a long while getting there. Antipolo, I may explain is the most important centre for religious pilgrimages in the Islands. These occur early in April and May and always come to a head some Sunday early in the latter month. On the day I am speaking of the Jesuits had taken up a pilgrimage of 7,000 souls from Manila early in the morning. The center of attraction is the church which contains the celebrated image of the Virgin "Mustra Senora da Pazy Buenviaje"—"Our Lady of Peace and Prosperous Voyages." This was brought from Spain at a very early period and placed up here in the church to protect it from Mohammedan pirates who nearly carried it off once when it was in a church near Manila. There is a very long and interesting legend connected with it, concerned chiefly with its being carried back and forth across the Pacific the vessel on each of these occasions having a perfectly smooth passage whence the name. This has all been disproved, but it lends an interest.

The train we were on stopped for nearly an hour at Taytay on the edge of the valley, waiting for the special train with the Archbishop to come down. The half hour's ride from Taytay is very interesting. The grade is very heavy and the road twists and turns around hills, along the edge of gorges, past waterfalls, etc., at one point giving a view of Manila bay fifteen miles distant. The town itself is built on a couple of hills, the church crowning the larger. There is no view of anything but trees. Between the hills is a narrow valley with a small stream. The streets (or rather paths) wander up and down hill at any old angle, and there is not a horse in the place. The only vehicles are rattan hammocks with an awning of cloth or matting carried on a bamboo pole by two bearers naked to the waist. The native women get in and manage to stow their feet away somehow, but they do not look very comfortable. The water of the stream was supposed to have curative qualities, and there are various baths with such names as "Popular Baths," "Virgin's Baths," "St. Joseph's Bath," but they seem to be partially supplied from artesian wells. It was a great chance to see a Filipino crowd holiday making. There were fifteen thousand people in the place, all in their gayest costumes—indeed, I am not sure that the village itself was visible at all. Except for the church everything seemed to be temporary structures of bamboo, dispersing refreshments and the usual amusements—all the shows that get into a beach resort at home were here in full swing.

We made our way up to the church. The yard was filled with beggars and peddlers. The former were not in full force—you don't generally see very many here. The pedlers were selling candles, rosaries and wax images. The church is pretty large and has a fine situation, but is not remarkable architecturally. There was a crowd inside nearly all kneeling and gazing up at the special object of veneration which was set in a niche at the top of the altar. The altar itself is very fine. The upper part is said to be of solid silver and the whole to be coated with gold leaf. On either side were immense numbers of native candles. The image itself is much better as a work of art than most of those I have seen here. It was difficult to estimate the size it was placed so high up. The figure is seated holding a staff. The elaborate costume and tiara are studded with diamonds—the worth is variously estimated; the most conservative guess I have seen being $150,000. We got as near to the altar rail as we could to look, and found some of the people there almost beside themselves, ejaculating prayers, and scraps of broken latin.

We went out and viewed the crowd some more till it got dark, and then we caught the first train for home. We slept most of the way. I woke up Beyer when I got off but I am not sure he was still awake when he got to his own station. It was an extremely interesting day, but a little too crowded for comfort. The Mont-Montalban and Antipolo trips really ought to be taken separately.

Pen, Chisel and Brush.

Willy Pogany, who illustrates an edition de luxe of "The Ancient Mariner," published recently, illustrated a similar edition of "The Rubaiyat" last year.

Francois Coppee is the latest of writers to be honored by a statue in Paris. His effigy in bronze has been fashioned for erection in the Place St. Francois Xavier. It represents him with a cigarette between his fingers.

Recent Inventions.

The inventor of an air buffer for locomotives, recently patented, claims it will prevent a serious wreck in the event of a collision.

A German inventor has designed an electro-magnetic drill, two magnets holding it against the metal to be bored while a motor drives the drill.

A convertible wagon bed which can be changed into sixteen different kinds of bodies for as many uses about a farm without adding to or taking from it a single piece has been invented.

Tactless.

"May has lost her chance to marry that rich young man."

"Is that so?"

"Yes; she hasn't any tact at all. He asked her the other evening if she objected to his smoking in the house, and she said she did."—Detroit Free Press.

A Pessimism.

This world is but a whirling thing
That rushes on through space;
It always travels in a ring
Back to the same old place.
And we who cling as best we may
Unto its fragile shell
Repeat experience day by day,
With nothing new to tell.

National Forests.

The national forests under government care in this country amount to 194,500,000 acres, about the same area as that of the states of Texas and Ohio combined.

Roman Roads.

The oft quoted saying that "all roads lead to Rome" originated in the fact that it was part of the policy of the Roman empire to build excellent roads into all the countries it conquered, so that whenever a road worthy of the name was found throughout Italy and the provinces it was known to lead to Rome.

Precocious Barretier.

Barretier at the age of nine was master of five languages. In his eleventh year he achieved a translation from the Hebrew into French, with notes of a character that might have come from an aged savant.

Lightning.

The string of beads of light sometimes seen for several seconds after a flash of lightning is due to the incandescence of the air.

Ole Roemer.

Ole Roemer, who first calculated the velocity of light, was born in Aarhuus, Jutland, in 1644, and died at Copenhagen in 1710. A child of the bleak north, with its murky, ashen heavens, it was yet his destiny to be the first of humankind to tell how the light comes to us through the infinite spaces.

Japanese Gardens.

The Japanese gardener usually plans the garden so that it appears to the best advantage from the window of the guest room.

Persian Caravans.

When a Persian camel caravan is on the march the very young camels are often tied to the backs of the mother animals, since they cannot endure the fatigue of a long march. Valuable dogs also ride in the same way.

Very Different.

Chinese Words.

Without exception every word in Chinese when uttered is accompanied by its own peculiar intonation, without which the word would be unintelligible. The same monosyllable is often intoned in eight different ways.

Hume, the Historian.

Hume, the historian, was said to be the ugliest man of his time. His face was fat, coarse and vulgar, with no striking or pleasing features.

Horrid!

"We were all on the beach," says the lady, "in our bathing suits, and one of those horrid newspaper photographers came along and took snapshots of us."

"The wretch!"

"Yes. And I've bought his paper every day since then, and he hasn't printed my picture at all."—Chicago Post.

WAS OFFICER MALONE LEGALLY APPOINTED?

Lawyer Raises the Point at Trial for Assault on the Officer

Case Continued and Briefs Will Be Submitted

A question that is exciting much interest in police circles is now pending before the District court. The case is that of James Sweeney, Herbert DeCoste and John Collins, who are charged by Thomas A. Malone with assault upon an officer while in the performance of his duty. The question at issue is whether or not Malone is a police officer in the meaning of the Civil service law.

J. J. McAnarney represents the government and Congressman O'Connell the defendants. The point was raised by Congressman O'Connell, which is that Malone was not appointed a police officer in accordance with the law, and therefore had no right to act as a regular or reserve officer. That is Malone is not an officer at all. In support of his claim, he quotes at length from the civil service rules which provide that no appointment shall be made without requisition and certification. Furthermore, he claims that nothing is said in the civil service rules about the appointment of special police officers.

Lawyer McAnarney's contention is that Malone is a police officer.

No finding, however, was made in the case today, and it was continued to allow both sides to submit briefs.

The question raised is a most important one, for Malone has been known as a special police officer for a number of years, and has done duty as such. If, however, the claim that he was not legally appointed should hold then all his acts while doing duty as an officer were illegal.

An officer of the local board of examiners, when interviewed, said that the method in Quincy was this.

After an applicant had successfully passed the civil service examination for the police service his name was placed on the list eligible for appointment to the reserve force. At the same time the names of those having sucessfully passed, were certified to the appointing officer as eligible to appointment as special policemen. When the Mayor appointed them as such he notified the Civil service Commission that he had made such appointments, which fact was recorded on a book kept for that purpose and became a matter of record.

In regard to Malone, the gentleman said, that while he had not consulted the records in regard to his appointment as a special officer he presumed that his appointment had been made in the same way.

As stated above, the question raised is an important one, as it effects a number of other men who are known as special police officers.

There does not seem to be a clear understanding on the part of the general public as to the meaning of the terms "special police," "reserve police," and "permanent police."

Under the civil service act, which the city accepted some years ago, all appointments to the police force must be made in accordance with these rules, and a man in order to become a police officer must take the civil service examination, and must also be between the ages of 22 and 40 years, unless a veteran of the Civil war. If he passes the examination, that is if he receives 65 per cent. or over, he becomes eligible for appointment, and his name goes on the eligible list.

Unless appointed in the meantime

GRANITE CITY CLUB OUTING

Personally Conducted Auto Trip to Nantasket Repeated

Nearly forty members of the Granite City club participated in a personally conducted automobile trip to Nantasket Thursday evening and enjoyed an evening of rare pleasure. Nine automobiles owned by club members left the club rooms with the party at 6.30 for the Pequot Inn, which was to be their headquarters. The route taken for the beach was via East Braintree, Weymouth Landing, East Weymouth, South Hingham and Cohasset.

The ride was a delightful one coming as it did after a hot sultry day, and the only regret was that the ride could not have been longer. The inn was reached shortly before 8 o'clock, and a little after that hour the party was seated at a long table that had been laid in a private dining room. There was no speechmaking of any kind, everything being informal and therefore all the more enjoyable.

President Tilden occupied the seat of honor at the head table, and near him were Mayor Shea, Senator Hultman, County Commissioner Merrill, Representative Thomas, Councilman Erieson and officers of the club.

No regular dinner had been ordered for the party, the choice of several menus being left to the individual tastes of the party. Lobster dinners however seemed to be the favorite and everybody pronounced them excellent.

During the dinner there was continuous music by a ladies' orchestra and male soloist. There were also several solos and many choruses by club members. No attempt was made to hurry the dinner, so that it was nearly 10 o'clock when the feast was over.

By this time the bright moon began to show itself and there was a cool southwesterly breeze which made automobile riding a pleasure, and made one glad that he was living. On the way home the route led the party through Hingham and the Weymouths to East Braintree, where a brief stop was made at the home of J. Frederick Kemp, where they were entertained for an hour with vocal and instrumental music. The run home from East Braintree was a short one, and the clock on the First church tower tolled the hour of midnight as the automobiles arrived in City Square.

It had been an evening of unalloyed pleasure, and the only regret was that the summer season was rapidly drawing to a close and that another similar outing this season would not be possible.

PRIZES ON EXHIBITION.

Fifty-four of the prizes which will be awarded at the Labor Day picnic of the Trade Unions have been placed on exhibition at the store of W. G. Shaw. They include 32 cups and 22 watch fobs. Other prizes will also be given.

Two union bands of Boston have been engaged for the parade which will form on Adams street, and march over Hancock street, Granite street, Water street, Franklin street, School street, Hancock street and Maple street to the cars on Washington street.

It is expected there will be from 1200 to 1500 men in line, and they will be reviewed at City Hall by Mayor Shea.

Many entries have been received for the athletic events which close on Saturday.

—John Boyle, an aged resident of Randolph, was hit by an electric car in that town on Thursday, and was taken to the Massachusetts General hospital.

RULES FOR QUINCY MEET

Two-Mile Aviation Course Marked With Six Towers

Chairman Charles J. Glidden has promulgated the official rules of the coming aviation meet at Quincy, which are of great interest to those who intend to follow closely the progress of the various events. The rules are, in part, as follows:

The following flags will be flown from the official meet on the aviation field:

White flag denotes: "Committee have received notice of a flight."

Red flag denotes: "Flights are now taking place."

The hours for professional flying shall begin at 2 P. M. and shall terminate at sunset or later, if the committee so decide.

The aviator's right to use the field and course for any purpose shall be determined after his notification reaches the committee, this right in all cases to be subject to the contest rules.

No aviator shall start in any event until permission is given by the official starter.

Any competitor not starting within fifteen minutes of the time appointed shall lose his turn, and shall then only be allowed to start at the discretion of the committee.

COURSE MARKED.

The course (two miles) is marked out by six mark towers and all competitors must pass outside such towers when competing for any of the events; the mark towers shall be deemed to have been passed when any portion of the machine shall have crossed the line passing through the tower at right angles to the line of flight. For purpose of recording the distance traversed in any event, such distance shall be reckoned up to the last mark tower properly passed by the competitor, and in all events where speed is the deciding factor the time shall only be reckoned from the passing of the starting and finishing line in flight.

Any competitor touching any part of a mark tower in the course shall not be held to have passed it and must return and pass the tower in the proper manner, failing which his flight shall be held to have ended at the last tower properly passed.

PASSING COMPETITORS.

A competitor shall only pass another competitor on the outside (i. e., to the right of the competitor to be passed,) and on no consideration whatsoever shall the overtaking machine be allowed to pass on the inside. The overtaking (faster traveling) competitor will be responsible that he keep clear of the overtaken competitor, and must, after having passed, keep at such a distance from the latter—whether outside, above, below or in front, that the overtaken competitor may have undisturbed air to travel in. The committee are sole judges as to whether this rule has been complied with.

Aviators attempting the duration and distance contests must take an upper level of at least 300 feet, leaving the course below free for the speed or slow lap contests.

The committee have the right to prohibit any flying when in their judgment such flying is likely to be dangerous to the aviators or the public.

No competitor can be awarded more than one of any series of prizes—e. g., no winner of a first prize can be awarded the second or third. In the event of the prizes offered exceeding the number of competitors who qualify for prizes in a competition, the excess of prizes will be retained by the society.

FOLSOM FAMILY.

The Folsom family reunion was held Wednesday at Hingham, some 125 attending. The following officers were elected: President, Willis H. Folsom of Springvale, Maine; vice-president, Channing Folsom of Newmarket, N. H.; recording secretary, James E. Folsom of Braintree; treasurer, W. H. Folsom; chaplain, Rev. Harold Folsom of Portsmouth, N. H.

BEAUTIFUL DAHLIA EXHIBIT

George F. Elcock Has Fully 10,000 Blossoms

While the dahlia season is not yet on, and the dahlia shows will not commence for a month, George F. Elcock, of 233 Copeland street, has a magnificent garden display of dahlias in full bloom. In fact, his garden has been in bloom nearly a month.

The reason for this is that Mr. Elcock does not make a business of showing flowers at the fall exhibitions, but rather cultivates for pleasure, though he won two prizes at Horticultural hall last year with the Stradelli, a brilliant yellow blossom. Last year the pant was a new seedling imported from Europe.

Mr. Elcock says that while very beautiful dahlias are raised in America, the Germans and French are able to do many times better, so that all of his twelve hundred plants are raised from imported bulbs or seeds. Last spring these twelve hundred bulbs were placed in the ground, and such is his remarkable knowledge of them, that Mr. Elcock has succeeded in raising all of them and they are all prolific though some are rooted in coarse ashes.

The garden extends from the front of the house along its side, and some fifty feet back of it, the plants being placed about one to every square foot all of them covered with blooms of a thousand different colors and shapes.

On some plants different blooms grow side by side, as on the Lucy Fossett a red flower, and the Margaret Bell, a yellow bloom flecked with red grow from the same stalk. Another example of this is the French Brunette which is red with a large white center, or red with a white petal here and there. Of these, seven different styles and twenty-five blooms grow from one stalk.

The varieties of the dahlia are many there being the pompom which is quite small and round. It looks fluffy, but is compact and firm. There are about 400 different pompoms in Mr. Elcock's garden. The best of these is the Alwyne, which is a pure white with a faint touch of purple at the center, which seems to suffuse the whole blossom with a pale purple light. The Brunette of vivid red is second best of the pompoms. Next there are the show dahlias which resemble the pompom in form but are larger. Of these the Gus Duzon is the best. It is a fine red, and grows to great size, there being one which is twenty-eight inches around. The Cockatoo is a bicolor, yellow and white, which has just been imported. Mr. Elcock purchased thirty-three bulbs. Then there is the cactus dahlia of which this garden contains forty varities, whose petals grow rolled up and extend as spines in rays from the center. They are called the Alexander.

The Harrison Ware is a beautiful yellow show dahlia, excellent for exhibition purposes, and the Mrs. Roosevelt is a lively pink. English Penelope has a wonderful bronze shade which is very difficult to produce. Of single dahlia there are but few, they being without lasting qualities.

Strangest of all is the green dahlia It is a prompom of waxy petals and is as green as the leaves it grows by. Though many have tried this it is probably the only green dahlia in cultivation in this part of the country.

From front to back of the house, the garden is one mass of blooms—white, red, particolored, bicolored, purple, silver lilac, yellow, brown, bronze, pink, black red and so on, and of all the 10,000 blooms in the garden it is impossible to pick the most beautiful.

Each morning a thousand new flowers open, so that though he is very generous with bouquets Mr. Elock always has hard work to keep dead blossoms pruned.

This cultivation requires time and study, both of which Mr. Elcock gives to it, and his dahlias are a lovely testimony to his care.

—Edwin A. Olmstead, for 58 years a conductor on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., died at Cohasset on Wednesday, aged 80 years.

MR. FEGAN DISCHARGED

Was Not Reckless or Negligent at Time of Accident

The many friends of Walter R. Fegan of Hancock street will be pleased to learn that he has been found blameless for the accident at Worcester, Aug. 15, when his automobile struck and fatally injured ex-Representative Lucian B. Stone.

Mr. Fegan was arraigned in court Thursday on the charge of manslaughter, but he was discharged after the court announced that it held him blameless for the accident.

In the accident Mr. Stone stepped from an electric car directly in front of the auto, which was on the way from Quincy to Albany, and he was knocked against the curbstone, receiving injuries from which he died the following day.

Witnesses of the accident testified that the operator of the auto was running slowly at the time and did everything possible to avert a collision, that he was "hugging" the curb stone on the right side of the street and that Mr. Stone stepped off the electric while it was in motion and walked directly in front of the machine.

In discharging Mr. Fegan, Judge Esty said: "This accident was a very regrettable occurrence but in order to hold one for the grand jury on a manslaughter charge, it must be shown not only that he was negligent but that he was recklessly negligent. All the evidence given here today shows that this defendant was not guilty of either recklessness or negligence and there is, as far as I can see, nothing to justify holding him. It seems to me that it is the duty of the court to order his discharge, and I so order."

SHIPYARD CONTRACT.

The contract was on Thursday awarded by the chief of the army engineers at Washington to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy, for the construction of a suction dredge to be used on the Southwest pass of the Mississippi river below New Orleans. As already noted in the Daily Ledger, the Quincy Company was the lowest bidder. The contract is for $448,000. Several other contracts are expected soon by the Fore River Company.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Mr. John D. Rockefeller is taking, under advice of his physician, a daily whiskey bath. It should be remembered, however, that Mr. Rockefelelr takes them externally only.

The man who goes from Oyster Bay to Beverly or from Beverly to Oyster Bay these days must make up his mind that he is going to get into print whether he has a mission or not.

If Hyde Park is satisfied with the progress which it is making it should remain a town a few years longer, and allow Quincy to be the only city in Norfolk County. The tax rate of Hyde Park this year is $17 an increase of ten cents over last year.

Clocks located in church steeples are a public benefit, and should be maintained by the public. People of Washington street and vicinity have purchased and maintained the clock on the Universalist church for years. The cost is not large, but considerable work devolves on a few, and they sometimes get discouraged. The church people cannot afford to maintain the clock, and therefore the city of Quincy should.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

There is one place in this country from which they bar critical remarks about the automobile. That is in the city of Flint, Mich. The census shows that Flint has 38,550 people, which is an increase over 1900 of 194 per cent. Flint only ten years ago had but 13,000 people. The increase has been almost wholly brought about by the great business which Flint has built up in manufacturing automobiles and the immense opportunities it has given for new people to get work in the city. Of course there has been some falling off in some other industries in the country to partially balance this increase; but Amesbury, Mass., the carriage town, is still on the map, and it was only two days ago that we printed the fact that the horse, instead of being gradually wiped out, was more numerous and valuable than ever. In that event there must still be a big carriage and harness and horsefood trade, in addition to the tremendous business that has been built up in all that goes with the automobile business. In Flint they make, think, talk, and breathe automobiles; and we don't wonder.—Brockton Enterprise.

PIONEER WOMEN OF THE WEST.

Mrs. Catherine Belknap, sole survivor of the Watts wagon train party, which crossed the plains from Iowa to Oregon in 1848 and oldest pioneer woman in the Northwest, celebrated the 90th anniversary of her birthday at the home of her grandson, Walter Belknap, 2323 East Providence avenue, Spokane, a few days ago. She is in good health and expects to reach the century mark. She has not experienced a day's sickness in 83 years.

Mrs. Belknap is a native of Ohio, born on August 15, 1820. When 19 years of age, she married George Belknap and moved to Van Buren county, Iowa, then a territory, where she and her husband joined the Watts party. The train, which was composed of 40 wagons, started for Oregon, in which territory the government then offered a half section of land to every settler. The Belknaps settled 100 miles south of Oregon City, living there 30 years.

The trip across the plains was fraught with danger and troops of soldiers were assigned to guard the emigrants from attack by hostile Indians. Mrs. Belknap says scores of shots were exchanged daily, but few were injured. When the party reached the Oregon border the party divided, 20 of the wagons crossing the Cascade mountains and there again divided, 10 wagons going through to a point 100 miles south of Oregon City.

Mr. and Mrs. Belknap moved to Washington territory in 1879, and settled in the Palouse country, 40 miles south of Spokane, which then had a population of 250 and one general store and a cross-roads postoffice, the mail being brought in by pony express.

"In those days none of us believed that Spokane would ever have more than 5,000 population," said Mrs. Belknap, "and not even the most enthusiastic 'booster' dreamed there would one day be a city of 123,000. But it has all come about in 31 years."

OUTDOOR AMUSEMENTS.

Paragon Park.

Manager Dodge is wondering now, considering the rate at which the crowds are flocking to "Paragon Park" and its famous Palm Garden at this tag end of the season, if, after all, it is wise to close his regular season at the end of the Labor Day festivities, Monday, September 3, as usual. He has finally decided to compromise as he did last season, by keeping the Palm Garden open for those who wish to visit the beach in its September beauty and enjoy one of those memorable dinners in the Palm Garden. The automobilists especially enjoy this privilege. It is announced that the Palm Garden will remain open after the regular season until Sunday night, September 11th. In the meantime there are just two weeks more of the regular season beginning today and taking in two more Sundays, after this, and two more Saturday nights of special fireworks' displays, besides the additional special holiday attractions for Labor Day. It is a matter of note that in the main the attractions at "Paragon Park" are the same daily and Sunday, except that special Sunday features are offered and brilliant displays of fireworks are given on Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

Highland Park.

Carl E. Myers, the aeronaut who is making the hit of the season with his captive balloon at Highland Park, where he will conduct ascensions every afternoon and evening until the close of next week, has the distinction of having lived in the air longer than any other aviator in the world. In his 32 years of aero life he has made as many as 1150 distinct ascensions on distinct days, an average of nearly 40 ascensions a year. When he makes an ascension himself his balloon is not captive and he controls it with such skill that he never fails to land just where he desires. He estimates that he has spent fully 100 days in time in the air in his long career. Even the famous Boston balloonist, Glidden, has not, it is reckoned, spent anywhere near that time sailing in the clouds. The professor prefers to be just about 1200 to 1500 feet above terra firma. At that height an equilibrium is reached between the balloon and the air, and he can remain in an almost stationary position at that height as long as he pleases. He declares he would far rather take a ride to the skies than in an automobile, for in the former he feels no danger of collision through overspeeding joy riders.

The Tenant's Reward.

A certain landlord called on a tenant one day and said:

"Jones, I'm going to raise your rent."

"What for?" Jones asked anxiously. "Have taxes gone up?"

"No, not at all," the landlord answered, "but I see you've painted the house and put in a new range and bathtub. That, of course, ought to make it bring me more rent."—Philadelphia Record.

Shoe Laces.

A BOY'S FRIEND.

J. W. Foley.

He's got an awful burry tail,
Most times he's full of fleas;
His ear is all lopped over and
He's full of dog disease;
He can't go in the kitchen 'cause
He makes such tracks, you see,
But I can't help but like him, for
He is so fond of me.

He's all chewed up from fighting, which
A dog was made to do;
He smells some when it's rainy, but
His heart is good and true
And if I go inside he waits,
All morning if need be,
Until I'm through, which shows that he Is awful fond of Me.

I only need to pet him and
He wags his tail and barks,
And me and him together go
On lots of jolly larks.
Sometimes he chases chickens, or
A tomcat up a tree,
But I don't never whip him, 'cause
He is so fond of me.

I don't know where I got him, but
He must have been growed up
Before I can remember for
He never was a pup;
And maybe folks don't like him when
Their cats go up a tree;
But I can't help but like him when
I know he's fond of me.

SPAIN WILL NOT CHANGE HER POLICY

Attitude Toward Vatican Has Been Correct, Says Premier

San Sebastian, Aug. 26.—At a cabinet council, which was presided over by King Alfonso, who had just returned from abroad, Premier Canalejas read a telegram from Marquis de Gonzales, counsellor of the Spanish embassy at the Vatican, announcing the receipt from the papal secretary of state of a long note answering a number of points raised in the last Spanish note and exposing at length the Vatican's grievances against the Spanish ministry.

Premier Canalejas declared that although he did not know the exact tenor of the note, it would in no way affect his policy. "Whatever reasons are put forward by the Vatican," he added, "the government will not change the attitude it has maintained since the beginning of the conflict."

The premier said that the text of the note was too important to risk causing errors in it by telegraphing and that therefore it was expected to reach Spain at the end of the week.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

Disregard For the Standards Robs People of Millions of Dollars

Pittsburg, Aug. 26.—Federal regulation of weights and measures was an important matter taken up by the convention of the International Hotel Stewards' association here and a rough draft of a bill providing such regulation was read to the members. Congressman Wilson of Chicago announced he would present the bill to congress next winter.

Clement J. Driscoll, commissioner of weights and measures of New York city, said that the trade custom of short weights and measures was costing the citizens of New York city no less than $30,000,000 a year. Continuing, he said:

"Until the United States insist that a yard be 36 inches, that a pound shall be 16 ounces, and a bushel 32 quarts the general public cannot be expected to regard the condition which exists as serious.

In the great city of New York, with its 5,500,000 people, with foodstuffs already beyond reach of the poor people, there is a total disregard for the standards of weights and measures. If we must be sentimental let us think of the wholesale robbery of the poor people of America today."

GREAT WATER POWER PLANT

Important Step Toward Its Establishment at Skowhegan

Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 26.—At a meeting of the board of trade a plan was submitted outlining a program for making at Skowhegan the third largest water power plant in New England.

This involves merging the several power rights, as now established by deed, into one new corporation, the issue of $1,000,000 first mortgage 5 percent bonds, and the expenditure of the proceeds in acquiring necessary property to build new dams, canals and power station.

These changes would deliver the entire normal flow of the Kennebec river under a working head of forty feet, and generate about $500,000 worth of power each year. Responsible bond houses, it is said, stand ready to finance such a development.

AT LEAST SIX DEAD

Exact Number of Lives Lost In Railroad Wreck Is Not Known

Durand, Mich., Aug. 26.—With the clearing away of the ruins of the wrecked and burned Pullman sleeping car Nebraska probably has disappeared forever all hopes of determining the actual number of lives lost when the rear section of a Boston and Montreal express from Chicago crashed into the forward section on the Grand Trunk railroad three miles east of this village.

Estimates of the number of dead vary from eight to a dozen. Superintendent Ehrke of the Grand Trunk gave out a statement, however, saying that six passengers were killed, five were injured and eight escaped without injury in the crash.

Ennis Beats Weston's Record In His Walk Across Continent

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—John Ennis, the septuagenarian pedestrian, has completed his trip from New York to San Francisco, breaking the record of Edward P. Weston by twenty-five days.

On his arrival here Ennis tramped from the ferry building to the Cliff house on the beach, where he took a plunge in the breakers. He declares he never felt better in his life. He will remain here three weeks before returning to New York.

Cyclone Hits Michigan

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 26.—A storm of cyclonic proportions raged north of Grand Rapids, and crops, standing timber and many buildings were ruined. The terrific wind was accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain.

$15,000 ABOUT HIS PERSON

"Hermit" Found Dead In General Store Which He Conducted

North Scituate, Mass., Aug. 26.—Silas Litchfield, 84, for many years a recluse, was found dead with bankbooks representing $15,000 about his person. Three days ago "Hermit" Litchfield gave his brother, Bridge Litchfield, $3000 in $5 bills.

"Hermit" Litchfield some years ago sent his second wife to her parental home in New York, after having refused to speak to her for a period of five years.

Litchfield ran a general country store at this place, but it was not generally believed that he had any amount of property. The old man was found dead in his store by William Harney.

WEZOSAL FREED ON BAIL

Reduced From $10,000 to $5000, Which Is Raised by Friends

Boston, Aug. 26.—Julius Wezosal, the Russian who is accused by his native government of having participated in the robbery of the Russian sub-treasury at Tiflis, was admitted to $5000 bail by Commissioner Hayes, the bail having been reduced from $10,000.

The bail was obtained by the Socialist Labor party of Boston, who deposited the money with the First National bank, which in turn credited it to the Beverly National bank and was receipted for by Assistant United States District Attorney Sullivan. The case was continued to Aug. 31.

Chloroform Remedy Is Dangerous

New York, Aug. 26.—Henry B. Linsley of Dallas, who is staying at the Hotel Knickerbocker, applied chloroform to his face in an effort to cure neuralgia and narrowly escaped being killed by the fumes. He was found lying on the bed unconscious.

Strike Crisis Is at Hand

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 26.—Labor men in this city are convinced that the crisis of the strike between the hod carriers' and laborers' union and the contractors will come today, when, it is believed, the masons and carpenters will quit their jobs.

Reginald Vanderbilt Ill

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—Reginald C. Vanderbilt is ill with typhoid fever at his farm a few miles outside of Newport. Dr. Flint reports Vanderbilt's attack as a "slight" one.

Arizona.

In natural wonders Arizona is one of the most attractive parts of the United States. Its Grand Canyon of the Colorado river, a mile deep, its silicified trees or fossil forests, its vast panoramas of desert and sterile mountains that rise to a height of more than 12,000 feet above sea level, afford splendid visions for the sightseer.

For boys alone they're meet,
Like Greenhorn of the Guards, on whom
Miranda seems so sweet—

An ass, who's no attractions got Except mere length of limb—
In fact, I can't imagine what
Miss Dollface sees in him.

But there! I don't disturb my head.

Emery and Corundum.

With the exception of the diamond, emery and corundum are the best natural abrasives known. Corundum is pure aluminium oxide, and its hardness is next to that of the diamond. Emery so far as composition goes may be considered a mixture of corundum with more or less magnetite or hematite.

Deceivers.

Seed catalogues deceive us all,

LAWRENCE BATTLE OVER MAYORALTY

Attorney General Takes Case Before Supreme Court

Boston, Aug. 26.—Attorney General Malone filed in the supreme court a petition asking for a writ of mandamus to compel acting Mayor Jordan of Lawrence to call a meeting of the common council to take action on going into joint convention with the board of aldermen to elect a mayor to succeed William P. White, who is serving three years for bribery.

The attorney general had heard the parties interested and had given the acting mayor an opportunity to call the meeting of his own volition, which he repeatedly declined to do.

City Solicitor Murphy, appearing before the attorney general at the direction of the board of aldermen, said the aldermen passed a vote requesting the actnig mayor to call the common council in session.

Acting Mayor Jordan said his position is and has always been that he would call the council into session whenever they ask him to do so, but as they are taking their summer vacation he did not think he ought to disturb them except upon their own request.

REFUSE TO QUIT HOSPITAL

Pittsburg Ragmen Think That Lives of Invalids Are Happy

Pittsburg, Aug. 26.—Harrison Arnson and Sam Kruka liked the luxury of a hospital bed at St. Joseph's on the South Side so much that threats of the police and importunities of physicians and nurses could not get them out of it.

When a trolley car bumped their junk wagon they were tossed into the street and made a great outcry. They were enjoying the lives of invalids when the house physicianse broke the news that they were uninjured.

Mackerel Bring Record Prices

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 26.—A record price for mackerel was paid here when E. J. Burnham took the fare of the schooner Victor, forty barrels, at $42.50 per barrel. There were but sixty-five fish in each of the barrels, on the average.

WHERE TO VIEW AIRSHIPS

Many Points of Vantage Near Aviation Field

A question that is being frequently asked is, "Where is the best place to see the flights of airships at Squantum?" That is outside of the grand stands in the aviation field.

There are places without number within the city limits where the flights may be seen and several good places outside of the city limits.

Pope's Hill and Commercial point, Dorchester, and the shore front along by the Putman Nail works afford an unobstructed view of the field. A good view may also be obtained from the Neponset bridge although this vantage point is over a mile away from the field.

The boulevard on both sides of Squantum street, and the whole length of Squantum street from the boulevard to Squantum afford a view of the field, but the air ships cannot be seen until they rise from the ground.

Gardners woods almost due west from the field is quite elevated, but not so near as some of the lots on the east side of Squantum street. There is also Mosswetussell hill and several fairly high gravel banks along the east side of Squantum street. Then the hill near Squantum and Lee Inns affords an excellent view.

Further on is Squantum Head, where the Myles Standish cairn is located. This is public property, and is high, so that one standing there cannot only look directly onto the field itself, but has an unobstructed view of Dorchester bay across which all of the ships will fly.

Tens of thousands of people can be accommodated here and on the slope of the hill there is no danger of one's view being obstructed.

Then with a pair of powerful glasses Third Hill at Wollaston would have a commanding view, although from there the airships would probably look like small birds.

In the harbor about the field hundreds of yachts, launches and other craft can witness the flights, with nothing between them and the field unless a fence should be erected on the water front of the field, as there has been some talk of. The management will not erect this fence with the idea of obstructing the view from the water, but that curiosity may prompt some of the people to land and they might do moreor less damage to the airships which will be stored in sheds near the water front.

No one in Quincy need fear he or she may not see the airships, but they must be prepared to meet a crowd of equally as anxious sightseers and picture hats should be left at home by the ladies.

"THERE WILL BE WORDS LATER"

Hot Fight on for Democracy in the Tenth

Four weeks from next Tuesday joint caucuses will be held in Quincy, Milton, and Boston for the nomination of candidates for Congress, both by the Republicans and the Democrats. Also to nominate candidates for the Legislature and to choose delegates to various conventions.

The comments of Practical Politics are timely:

"Although the police have not yet captured the wholesale murderer who shot up Quincy some weeks ago and made a genuine sensation, Joe O'Connell has captured Quincy by a large majority. Well, he has not exactly captured the city, but he sent out a long story the other night in which he told how he had captured a large majority of the city committee. It looked at first as if Joe had actually carried the city in a special election, but 'twas not so. He had merely lassoed some committeemen.

"Joe may not know it, and Don may not know it, but the day when nominations were won by obtaining the pledges of committeemen passed long ago. The fact that Joe and Don have not found it out makes it look bad for the O'Connell campaign. Joe ought to remember how, in the old days, statements were issued showing that a majority of the ward committee chairmen had signed papers pledging themselves to the support of this or that candidate for mayor, but when the returns came in it was found that what the chairmen did or didn't made little difference.

When "Eddie" Donovan was running against John F. Fitzgerald for the democratic nomination for mayor, almost five years ago, a clear majority of the democratic ward committee chairmen signed a paper pledging their support to Donovan against Fitzgerald, but that made little difference in the result. Some of those who signed the paper were dishonest when they signed it, and whether they signed it or not made no difference to the voters of the wards. The day in which members of political committees can steer nominations has passed. The Quincy city committee can be for O'Connell or for Connolly, but its position won't affect the vote in Quincy in the slightest degree.

"Don't make any mistake about the fight in the 10th district, on the part of the democracy. It is to be a bitter one, all the way, and although the candidates are starting out in a very gentlemanly manner, there will be words later. There is not a more confident man in the fight than William Sarsfield McNary. He has the evidence to show that he can't help winning. In that respect he is almost as positive as David B. Shaw, who challenges any man to sit down figure out the vote in the 9th district and try to escape by hook or by crook a result showing that David R. Shaw is to go to the next congress.

"Curley realizes that the McNary candidacy has hit him hard, but he is sitting tight and fighting all the harder. The fact that it looked like an easy victory for him before McNary jumped in makes the present conditions all the more unsatisfactory to Curley's friends, but he says that he will clean up both O'Connell and McNary. The mayor is still keeping his hands off, and it may be taken for granted that he won't help McNary.

"The fact that McNary did not once refer to his leading opponement, Curley, in his formal address to the voters of the district, caused some comment. That McNary will get more votes in South Boston than some folks are willing to allow him is undoubtedly true. Sen. Patrick Henry O'Connor is telling what he thinks of McNary, but the senator's strength in steering votes to or from other candidates is not as marked as it is when he is soliciting support for himself."

QUINCY REMONSTRANT.

A Boston paper reports John J. Kelly of Quincy as being the only remonstrant at the hearing before the U. S. army engineers relative to a new harbor line at East Boston. Mr. Kelly said he appeared in behalf of certain private interests in which he said he was concerned in Quincy.

POQUETT—HOLBROOK.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church on Wednesday evening. The bride was Miss Helen Grant Holbrook elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Adams Holbrook of Bellevue park and the groom Arthur Russel Poquett eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Poquett of Alburg, Vermont.

The bride was gowned in cream silk with tulle veil and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas. She was attended by her only sister Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook as maid of honor who was gowned in yellow silk and carried a huge bunch of golden glow. The bridesmaids were Miss Carrie Marguerite Poland of Norfolk Downs and Miss Dolly Bicknell Arnold of North Abington. They were both charmingly gowned in white and carried pink sweet peas tied with pink ribbon. The groom was attended by his brother Beecher Poquett. The ushers were Harry Alexander Sutherland of Hull and Benjamin Atwood of Whitman. Little Miss Harriet Grant of Roxbury only four years old a cousin of the pride was ring bearer. She preceded the bride and Miss Holbrook down the aisle and went immediately to the altar. Following the bride came the bridesmaids. The groom and ushers met the bride at the altar The double ring service was used. Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Mrs. Lena Keeler and Rev. W. J. Heath was the officiating pastor.

The presents given by the bride to the maid of honor and bridesmaids were gold pins, and the groom's presents to the best man and ushers were silver scarf pins set with topaz.

A reception followed the ceremony at which Mr. and Mrs. Poquett were assisted in receiving by the bride's parents and the maid of honor and best man. Mrs. Holbrook was dressed in taupe cashmere de soie' trimmed with embroidery and gold lace.

The church was decorated with golden rod and woodbine and a handsome rockery in the centre of the pulpit was designed and carried out by John Ramsdell of Atlantic.

The wedding presents included much fine china and many pieces of cut glass and silver. Guests were present from New York, Boston, Dorchester and Quincy.

The bride and groom were showered with confetti as they left the church and again when they left home. They go to Alburg, Vermont, and Montreal, then to New York, Niagara Falls and Buffalo.

LEVOWICH—KARELITZ.

A number of Quincy friends went to Haverhill on Wednesday to attend the marriage of Hyman N. Levowich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Levowish of Quincy, and Miss Mary Karelitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Karelitz of Haverhill in Lafayette hall. About 600 guests were present from Boston, Charlestown, Lowell, Lawrence and this city.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Jacob Yaffe. The couple were given in marriage by Mr. and Mrs. Max Gill of Lawrence, the latter a sister of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Edelstein of Quincy, relatives of the bridegroom.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine, and wore a veil caught back with sprigs of lillies of the valley. She carried bride roses. Her maid of honor was a younger sister, Miss Gertrude Karelitz, who was costumed in burnt orange satin, and carried pink roses. The best man was H. P. Levowich, a brother of the bridegroom. After the ceremony there was a wedding feast. Benjamin Green the head usher, read nearly 100 telegrams of congratulation from many cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Levowich will live at 27 Glenway street, Dorchester.

DON'T LET IT STOP.

Editor Daily Ledger:

For the pride of my city, neighbors and friends and for the benefit and pleasure of everyone who comes from Quincy Point or that way to take trains or cars, or on foot, I have paid to have the clock on the Universalist church wound up and kept running for one month. Who next? Don't let it stop again! Albert Keating.

—Laws are made for the rich and poor alike, even though their operation may not always be the same. Probably John D. Rockefeller could ill afford to pay the $5 fine imposed on him in Cleveland the other day for violating the automobile speed law, and the loss of that amount will doubtless make him more observant of the law in future. A second offence might lead to a fine of double that amount, with the alternative of a sojourn in jail in case of inability to pay the fine. Our laws are for the common welfare and must be maintained even at the cost of hardship or financial burden to the individual.—Milford Gazette.

BOAT CAPSIZED IN THE RIVER

Young Man Promptly Rescued by Volunteer Crew

At 3.30 Thursday afternoon, off the Baker Yacht Basin, the sailing dory Nidji, owned by Ray Coyle and George Gavin of Quincy Point, and sailed by Roy Coyle at the time, was caught by a severe puff of wind from the high southern bank of Town river and capsized. The accident was seen by several employees of the yacht basin who put out in a boat and towed the overturned craft to Sailor's Snug Harbor, where she was righted and pumped out. Coyle then sailed her to her berth at the foot of River street.

The boat had been sailing up and down the river in front of the bath house for nearly an hour, and had just landed two bathers, who had asked for a sail, when she capsized. The breeze was strong from the southwest, and Coyle had had several narrow escapes before he finally was thrown into the water. He clung to the bottom of the boat until the rescuing party arrived.

STREET RAILWAY OUTING.

The anual outing of the New England Street Railway Association was held at Quincy and Nantasket on Thursday and was participated in by about 75 members, including officials of the Old Colony, Boston Elevated and other New England street railways. The party came from Boston on special electrics, under the guidance of Assistant General Manager Henry E. Reynolds and Supt. John Conway of the Old Colony street railway. On arriving in Quincy the party went direct to the Fore River shipyard where they spent a profitable hour. From there the cars took them to Nantasket, when Paragon Park was visited and dinner served at the Palm Garden.

BRIEFS

There are no campers now on the City of Boston property at Squantum Head.

J. B. Sutherland and family returned this week from a pleasant vacation spent in Nova Scotia.

Aug. 26 was the hottest day of August, 1909, when the mercury registered 91 degrees at noon.

Paving has arrived for the paving of Hancock street, and work has commenced at the Merrymount Park end.

The granite work of the new Memorial church at Atlantic is nearly completed, and carpenters are at work.

The old house on the Pope property at the bend of Squantum street, between the turnout and the parkway, has been razed. A number of new and attractive houses have been erected in this vicinity.

Mrs. Walter P. Sprowl, of Nightingale avenue left Tuesday with her children for an extended trip to Scotland, to visit her parents. She will be away for an indefinite time. All her friends wish her a pleasant trip.

An electric car ride to Squantum this week is not very enjoyable, as the tracks at the causeway are being relocated to the side and passengers have to walk over a new roadway which has not been graded, and which is very dusty.

Before and After.

This is the way that he went home before he took a wife.	But now he goes straight home like this and stays there, you can bet.
He was on deck for joy rides or whatever else was rife.	He's had to learn a thing or two he never will forget.
He was out late six times a week and led a frisky life.	He dares not stay out late because he wed a suffragette.

—Judge.

—"Get It Out O'Doors," followed by the words, "Restful, Refreshing Religion, Served on the Cool Comfortable, Capacious Lawn," is the heading of announcements in newspaper and big signs placed by officers of the Dean Avenue Christian church of Spokane, to attract people to a series of poplar sermons by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Bruce Brown, who is an advocate of the liberal use of printer's ink. Dr. Brown is assisted by a choir and a male quartet. The first Sunday evening service on the lawn of the Bryant school, where Dr. Brown preached upon "Popular Fancies, Fads and Follies," was so well attended that the congregation has decided upon open air meetings the rest of the summer. It may be added that Dr. Brown, who worked in a printing office when a boy, has converted many of his congregation and others to the value of advertising. He believes that the newspaper is the greatest and best medium to reach the masses, and in proof of this he points to the crowds at his meetings at a season when many prefer to pass the week-end in camps and at lake and forest resorts.

AS LEADER OF PROGRESSIVES

Signs That Roosevelt Will Be Candidate In 1912

MAKING A PERSONAL CAMPAIGN

Will Play Lone Hand In Game Which Is Certain to Line Up West Against East—Advocating Issues to Which Only Grudging Support Has Been Given In Atlantic States—After the Farmer Vote

Washington, Aug. 26.—Theodore Roosevelt will return from his western trip the unquestioned leader of the progressives of the Republican party. He will return a more than receptive candidate for the nomination for president of the United States.

This is the firm opinion of men who have reached Washington after having visited Beverly and Oyster Bay and familiarized themselves through their peculiar acquaintances with the political situation as it relates to Roosevelt.

In their opinion, the break between President Taft and Roosevelt, while not an open one or one implying a personal hostility, is of such a character that from now Roosevelt will play a lone hand, as far as the administration is concerned, and place himself in the position of chief beneficiary of the missionary work which he will do for the Republican party in the west.

Another result of Roosevelt's western trip, of even broader importance than that of candidacies, will be the inevitable lining-up of the west against the east. The three chief speeches of the Roosevelt itinerary are scheduled for Denver, Aug. 25, Osawatomie, Kan., Aug. 31, and St. Paul, Sept. 6. The St. Paul speech, being delivered before the congress held under the auspices of the National Conservation association, naturally will deal most with the subject of conservation.

In the two other cities the former president will take advanced ground in favor of the revision of the tariff by schedules, physical valuation of railroads, government control of railroads and industrial corporations, a graduated income tax and the initiative, referendum and recall.

Mr. Roosevelt probably will use the soft pedal in discussing the last-named, as he believes the time is not quite ripe for an application of the principle by the federal government. He will urge the states, however, to pass legislation embodying this socialistic program, that it may be thoroughly tried out locally before it is taken up as a national issue.

All the issues herein set forth, except the last, have been urged by President Taft, but if a distinction is to be made, it may be said that Roosevelt (or Gifford Pinchot acting through Roosevelt) is the great originator of the doctrine of conservation of natural resources as a political factor, while Taft has identified his name peculiarly, although not yet forcefully, with the plan of federal incorporation. Physical valuation of railroads, for the purpose of determining reasonable rates of charge and dividend, is a pet of the radical Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. The income tax is a Democratic idea pure and simple.

Mr. Roosevelt is not an original tariff revisionist, but he is shrewd enough to see that revision by schedule is preferable to the old plan of wholesale revisions many years apart; and in following Taft in this particular he will also align himself definitely with the western tariff insurgents on the one proposition on which they have always held together.

Not one of these issues is palatable in the east. All have received more or less support in the Atlantic states, but much of it has been given grudgingly. However, it has become axiomatic in American politics that the west and not the east must dictate presidential nominations in the future, and the man or the president who wants the country behind him will make his play direct, as Roosevelt purposes to do, for the vote of the western farmer.

The Summit Park, N. Y., speech of Roosevelt, delivered to 10,000 farmers and their families, is the beginning of the greatest campaign of political strategy ever played in this country, in the opinion of men who profess to know the workings of the Roosevelt mind. His interest in the political outcome is personal, not general, in the opinion of well-informed men. He wants to see the Sixty-first congress Republican, but he hopes that a majority of its membership will be Republicans who will stand for Roosevelt and his policies first, last and all the time.

GREETED BY BIG CROWDS

Roosevelt Announces His "Fighting Creed" as He Travels Westward

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Theodore Roosevelt traveled across Ohio and Indiana Thursday, greeted everywhere by enthusiastic crowds, to whom he talked of honesty, respect and corporations. He expressed his belief on questions which concern the public in more formal fashion than he has before since his return from Africa. His creed as he expressed it during the day may be summed up as follows:

SHERMAN AND BARNES
Around Whom the New York State Old Guard Will Rally

"I am going to fight for clean manhood. I am going to fight for clean politics.

"I stand for justice for the rich man and the poor man alike. I do not distinguish between the man of wealth and the man of poverty so long as both are law-abiding citizens.

"I shall insist upon honesty if it breaks up the best business in the land. I will make the corporations come to time, and I will make the mob come to time.

"Dishonesty and greed must be fought with absolute fearlessness, without reference to public officials or whom it may hit."

HOW BRYAN SIZES UP THE SITUATION

Thinks Roosevelt Intends to Run For Office in 1912

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 26.—W. J. Bryan believes Theodore Roosevelt is working to secure the Republican nomination for president in 1912, and accuses him in doing so of violating a time-honored precedent. Bran has the following to say in his Commoner of today:

"It looks like Roosevelt expected to be a candidate in 1912. Some of his enthusiastic friends have been talking about him, but there will be nothing to support their prophesies until confidential friends who visited him after the turndown for chairman announce that he will be a candidate only if it is necessary to do so in order to carry out 'his policies.' That means that he is not satisfied with the administration and expects to contest the nomination two years hence."

WOODRUFF'S STATEMENT

Blame For Roosevelt's Turndown Is Placed Upon Griscom

New York, Aug. 26.—The conference at Sherry's on the night before the Republican state committee meeting in which Theodore Roosevelt was voted down and Vice Presidednt Sherman chosen temporary chairman of the coming Republican convention, assumed still another complexion last night.

Timothy L. Woodruff, state chairman, in a statement given out from Republican state headquarters, puts the responsibility for the action of the committee squarely up to Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the Republican county committee, and flatly denies that he had even an intimation of any plan to present the name of Roosevelt to the committee until Griscom made the actual nomination.

MORAL BARRIER RAISED

Only the Sober Can Secure Marriage Licenses at Paterson

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 26.—Persons desiring a license to marry must be sober to get it, because of the moral barrier raised by Registrar Gall. He always refuses to issue a license if the person shows the least sign of intoxication, suggesting that he come back the next day.

"Invariably they don't come back," he said, "and no doubt there are many young men and women who today thank me for not giving them a marriage license when they wanted it."

FOREST FIRES HALT

Loss of Life and Property In the Northwest Has Been Heavy

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 26.—Rain and snow are checking the northwest forest fires. It is believed that the worst is past, and yet before the fires now raging burn themselves out the property loss will be fully $50,000,000.

Although the loss of life among the forest rangers will not be as great as was at first supposed, fresh reports indicate that the total death list will be above 200.

Two Killed In Steamer Crash

Newark, N. J., Aug. 26.—Two persons were drowned when the Majestic, an excursion boat, carrying 400 passengers, cut in two in the dark a naphtha launch in Newark bay.

JOKERS CUT UP QUEER TRICKS

Boston Groom Is Handcuffed and His Wife Stolen

EASILY FALL INTO A TRAP

They Accept Invitation to Ride In Taxicab, Where Husband Is Fixed Up So That Police Hold Him as Suspicious Character When He Is Dropped Opposite Their Station—Revenge For Secrecy In Marriage

Boston, Aug. 26.—Bert A. Kelsey, proprietor of an Essex street restaurant, and his bride of three days were made the victims of amazing practical jokes by several of their friends last night.

Handcuffed and without watch or money, and with a blackjack sticking from his pocket, the groom was pushed out of a taxicab at Roxbury Crossing, opposite a police station, where, upon appealing to the police at Station 10, he was seized as a suspicious character and held for nearly two hours.

While the groom was convincing Lieutenant Lovell at Station 10 that he was not a yeggman who had escaped from the hands of an officer, his wife was spirited away to some town twenty miles or more from Boston, her abductors telling her a very plausible story of a meeting there with her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey were married at the Old South church last Tuesday night. The ceremony was so quietly conducted that few of their friends were aware that it had happened, and it was in revenge for this secrecy that their intimates planned last night's incidents.

The couple rented apartments on Berkeley street, and last evening about 9:30 o'clock were induced by a party of six friends, four men and two women, to take a taxi ride.

They were soon on their way out through the Fens. Upon reaching the Jamaica parkway, near Jamaica pond, the groom was suddenly set upon by the four men. He realized that they were about to play some prank upon him, but did not supect its extent.

One of the jokers had gently whispered into the ear of Mrs. Kelsey beforehand that they were about to play a joke upon her husband and, with the assurance that no harm was intended, she said nothing when the four men pinned Kelsey to the bottom of the cab.

They carefully handcuffed him, removed his watch and money from his pocket, smooched his face with grime from the wheels of the machine and, as a finishing touch, placed a wicked-looking black-jack in his coat pocket.

Well Protected.

"I think there is somebody downstairs, George."

"Well, what of it?"

"Can't you get up and do something? Put your head out of the window and call a policeman."

"Why should I do that when I can put my head over the back stairs and call one? His number is 7238, and he's down there in the kitchen spooning with Mary, the cook."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NOW WAITING FOR DIVORCE

Bride of Priest Finds No Joy In Matrimonial Ties

TAKES UP MILLINERY WORK

Misses Gayety of Atlantic City and Wants Something to Occupy Her Time—Husband Off For Rome to Receive Punishment—May Be Placed In Monastery and Never Again See the World

Trenton, Aug. 26.—Mrs. Katherine J. Consolazia, bride of Rev. Father Alphonse M. Consolazia, who is now on his way to Rome, where he will pay the penalty for breaking his priestly vow, has entered the employ of a local milliner to learn the business. She is but 16 years old and is considered one of the prettiest girls in the state.

She declares that she is through with the priest and has no intention of again entering on the matrimonial sea for some time. In fact she now believes that matrimony is really a failure. Divorce proceedings are to be instituted in her behalf by her parents.

The girl insists that the marriage has already been annulled, but this statement is taken as an indication of her ignorance of the workings of the law. When informed that there was no court record of annulment she replied that she was not worrying, as her parents were attending to the legal end of the affair.

Mrs. Consolazia, who is a bride of but three months, did not seem enthusiastic over her new occupation, which she begun yesterday. She said she missed gay Atlantic City, where she has been staying almost continuously since her marriage.

She would not discuss the reasons why her marriage was not happy, but referred the reporter who questioned her to her mother, Mrs. Franz Johann, who, it is said, was displeased by the marriage.

The girl wife asserted that she did not have to work, as her parents could afford to keep her, but she declared she wanted something to occupy her time. She did not censure her husband, but intimated that she was glad to be rid of him.

Mrs. Johann still maintains silence as to her attitude toward the priest, but her friends say she soon tired of her priestly son-in-law.

The priest will surrender himself to the church authorities as soon as he reaches Rome. Just what punishment will be meted out to him is a question, but is said on good authority that once he is placed in a monastery he will never again see the world. Friends of the priest say that he is glad to get the chance to make amends.

Boy Supposed to Be Dead Creates a Panic In His Home

Pittsburg, Aug. 26.—Staney Zonchesky, 11 years old, who was struck by a passenger train Wednesday and taken home for dead, caused wild panic in his North Side home when his parents ran from their house shrieking, "our boy has come to life."

The boy was playing with companions when injured. He was carried home, his crushed body showing all signs of dissolution, according to the physicians. The lad's mother and father summoned an undertaker. Thursday, while the mother and father watched the room where their son lay apparently dead, the lad sighed.

Physicians were called, but little hope is expressed for the boy's ultimate recovery.

KNOCKED OFF A CLIFF

Clergyman's Neck Is Broken While On Outing With His Family

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 26.—Rev. William V. Davis, pastor of the First Congregational church, was killed by falling over a precipice at Bash Bish Falls, Mt. Wahington, thirty miles south of here.

While picnicking with his children, he tried to turn a carriage on a narrow cliff, when a wheel struck him and knocked him off. His neck was broken by the fall. He was 59 years old, a graduate of Amherst college, and one of the best known Congregational ministers in New England.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

Castle Square Theatre.

The third consecutive year of the John Craig Stock Company begins at the Castle Square theatre on Monday afternoon and evening. As heretofore, two performances a day will be given, and the prices will range from 15 to 75 cents. A change of bill will be made weekly, and the repertory will include all the latest successes in drama, comedy, classic drama, farce and musical comedy. No pains will be spared to have the coming season rival in its success the two previous seasons as the Castle Square under Mr. Craig's management. The box office is open daily from eight o'clock till the close of the evening performance in charge of George E. Clarke. The play selected by Mr. Craig for his opening attraction is "The Squaw Man," one of the great successes of recent seasons. It was starred in by William Faversham, and its popularity in London has been as remarkable as in this country. The scenes are laid mainly in the Far West, and the plot ranges from strong emotion to lively comedy, the hero being a young Englishman who comes to this country and here meets with strange adventures that have the greatest influence over his character and fortunes. The cast of "The Squaw Man" will be headed by Mr. Craig and Mary Young, both of whom will be seen to the best advantage, and the leading roles in the long cast will be played by Donald Meek, George Hassell, Walter Walker, Bert Young, Wilfred Young, Al Roberts, Mabel Colcord and the other principal actors of the John Craig Stock Company. There will be a picturesque series of stage settings, and the production will be under the stage direction of William Parke. The run of "The Squaw Man" will be for one week only, and it will be followed on Labor Day by a revival of "The Circus Girl."

Keith's Theatre.

Special arrangements have been made for the appearance at Keith's next week of Miss Eleanor Gordon and Theodore Friebus, and this will unquestionably prove the strongest combination of local favorites that vaudeville has had in a long time. Both appeared at Keith's last season and each scored a tremendous success, and in securing two of them to appear in a comedy written by Frank Ferguson, another triumph has been scored for vaudeville. In fact, in a twenty minutes sketch Mr. Keith will have two stars who have been the leading attraction in three-hour performances for years in stock companies here. They will be features of one of the strongest bills of the season, one that will include Joseph Hart's big company of "Bathing Girls," in one of the most novel musical and singing productions seen on the stage in a long time. A feature of it will be a large party of girls diving and swimming in the surf at the seashore. Another feature will be the four Readings, in their wonderful acrobatic exhibition, Charles Semon, the "narrow feller," who has always been a favorite in Boston; Richards and Montrose in their singing and dancing sketch; Al Haynes and Julia Redmond in a new comedy sketch called "The Critic and the Girls" and Frank Wilson, one of the greatest cyclists that has ever been on the stage.

Science Siftings.

Schoolboy Definitions.

Here are some definitions from the schoolroom: "A Jacobite is a man descended from Jacob." "Snoring is our breath meeting the air which is coming in our mouth." "Sneezing is a kind of 'coffing' in the throat." Another boy writes, "When you are cold the inside of your body rumbles and then it makes a noise which is called sneezing." "A telephone is a kind of long wire with a spout at each end."—Westminster Gazette.

Mrs. Hoyle—I have a perfectly lovely idea.

Mrs. Doyle—What is it?

Mrs. Hoyle—My husband is a candidate for alderman, and the election comes on his birthday, and so I'm going to buy him some votes for his birthday present."—New York Press.

Professional.

"Oh, haven't you got the nerve?" she cried.

"Yes," he answered in tone didactic.
For he was the dentist. She meant the nerve
Of the tooth he had just extracted.

A Clean Score.

The Man—A good canoeist? Well, I guess I am! Only tipped over twice in my life.

The Maid—How many times have you been out?

The Man—Twice!—Puck.

Guessing.

I wonder how the hens, asleep,
Their hold upon their perches keep.
I wonder also if they fall
On waking at the rooster's call.
—Buffalo Express.

Music Maxims.

Such as the music is, such are the people of the commonwealth.—Turkish Proverb.

All music is the poetry of sound; so is painting the poetry of sight, and the subject matter has nothing to do with harmony of sound or of color.—Whistler.

Bjones and the Trusts.

Bjones used to talk about the trusts
From morning until night.
He said they robbed the people and
It simply wasn't right.
He pointed to the dividends
The great trust magnates drew
And showed how all the multitude
Were milked just for the few.

But now Bjones doesn't say a word
About the awful trusts.
His sword within its scabbard rests
And figuratively rusts.
He never lifts his tuneful voice
And helps the others knock,
And I have rather come to think
That Bjones has got some stock.
—Somerville Journal.

Needed the Money.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—Been to see the doctor?

Mr. Crimsonbeak—Yes; just came from there.

"Did he find out what was the matter with you?"

"Yes; he discovered I had $5 that he wanted."—Yonkers Statesman.

Advice on the Way.

Dodge de automobile on ever' han',
Be out o' de way w'en de a'rship lan',
Don't blow too hard w'en you j'ine de ban',

AMERICA CENTER OF TOURMALINES

Gems That Orient Demands In Abundance Here.

MAINE HAS VALUABLE MINES.

Blue Variety of Stone That Chinese Value Above Diamonds Because of Lucky Qualities Also Found In California—Western States Supposed to Have Undiscovered Supplies.

"You saw the account in the papers of the remarkable demand for blue tourmalines in China," said Dr. William H. Choate of Detroit recently, "but do you know that this country is very rich in these gems and that the demand for them in the orient is so great that the mines here cannot begin to supply the market?

"To begin with, the Chinese believe that the blue tourmaline brings good luck, health and warns away evil spirits; also the gem is one of the most beautiful in the world, more beautiful, I think, than the rose tourmaline, the green or any other. There are a great many unworked ledges in Maine that are believed to have the gems. The tourmaline lies in a pocket in the ledge surrounded by decayed stone in the form of dust.

Maine's Mines Valuable.

"I have seen tourmalines worth thousands of dollars taken from the mines at Mount Apatite, Auburn, Me., and some of them have gone to decorate the crowns of such rulers as the emperor of Japan, the emperor of China and the petty kings of the Indian states, some of whom are richer than either of the emperors named. One company incorporated under the laws of Maine has mines at Auburn, Minot Corner and near Mechanic Falls.

"Apatite, one of the stones that are mined at these places, has averaged $15.30 a ton in tourmalines and $6 more in feldspar, various ores, beryls, aquamarines, etc. The cost of mining these gems is only $1.50 a ton. The vein is ten feet thick, with flat dip covering three acres, in one of the mines.

"Then there is the wonderful mine at Paris, Me., called Mount Mica, from which a steady stream of gems has come for years and not half of the territory has been scratched yet. I know a young lady in Boston, Miss Eleanor C. Hamlin, relative of the man who was vice president of the United States, who has a necklace which is the envy of all the crowned heads of Europe, and every one of the gems came from a mine owned by her family for a hundred years, situated two miles northeast of the little hilltop town of Paris, in Oxford county, Me., where Hannibal Hamlin was born.

"In the necklace are all the colors that are known to the tourmaline. Yellow, green, white, pink, blue, black and rose are shades that burn and smolder in this remarkable piece of jewelry, and I dare say that few people in America know that such priceless treasures are to be found here.

Western States Unexplored.

"It is my opinion that there are many hidden ledges in the middle and western states that contain equal deposits, but few of them have been discovered. There are mines in California that produce many tourmalines, and they are mostly shipped to China and Japan, where the average prince prefers them to diamonds because of their supposed lucky qualities.

"In 1820 two boys who were interested in minerals had been hunting over the hills of northwestern Maine for gold signs. Late one day while they were on their way home they stopped to rest on the land belonging to the father of one of them, Elijah L. Hamlin. There had been a light fall of snow, and a windstorm had uprooted a tree. While they talked one of them saw a green tint in the fresh earth under the roots of the tree, and, looking more carefully, under the impression that it might be a sign of copper, he found a beautiful green tourmaline as large as a man's little finger.

"It was perfect, with the exception of a slight fracture on one end. Digging in the frozen earth, they found several others and took them home. The next spring the Hamlins began mining the gems and have kept at it off and on ever since. It is one of the most valuable gem mines in America."

PRUSSIAN CARS DISINFECTED.

Tube Invented For Quick Work on Railroads.

Disinfection of the coaches of the Prussian state railways has been annoying the sanitation authorities with the result that the government recently established a system of steel tubes, boiler riveted, into which coaches may be backed and exteriors and interiors rendered germless through a treatment of formalin.

Cars are run into these tubes, one at a time, the end of the tube closed and its interior filled with formalin gas. The gas tank is set up as a unit in connection with the metal tubing, feeding the disinfecting gases into the tube at short range.

Annie Davis and Georgie Clair were arraigned in the Boston municipal court on Thursday for larceny from Frederick Z. Shultz of Squantum, Aug. 14, in a Boston hotel. They were held for the superior court.

BIG PRIZES IN OPEN RACE

Wollaston Yacht Club Put Up About $136

The annual open race under the auspices of the Wollaston Yacht club for yachts of the Y. R. A. of Massachusetts and the Interbay Y. R. A., will be held Saturday afternoon off the club house at Wollaston beach, and the large cash prizes as well as percentages in the two associations should bring out a large fleet of yachts.

Races are scheduled for Classes A, B, C, D, I, S, and X, also for cabin and open power boats, and for the Hingham one-design class. The aggregate cash prizes amount to $136.

The judges will be W. J. Jones, Charles G. Jones and W. M. Chase of the Wollaston club, Arthur Fuller of the South Boston club; J. H. Crawford of the Mosquito club; L. E. King of the Winthrop clubo Howard Gannett of the Squantum club; C. F. Mover of the Lynn club; W. S. Chase of the Quincy club; R. J. Huntley of the Columbia club and C. W. Chapin of the Cottage Park club.

OFFICER MALONE

his name remains on the eligible list for two years, at the end of which time he must take another examination in order to remain on the list. If, however, he reaches the age of 40 years before he receives an appointment to the reserve list, he is debarred from further examinations, and his chances of ever becoming a regular officer are gone.

While he remains on the eligible list the rule has been to appoint him a "special police officer," which means an officer that may be called upon in case of emergency for special duty, and the city ordinance fixes his salary while acting as such.

A "reserve" officer is one who has been selected after requisition by the appointing officer, for promotion to the reserve force. Once a reserve officer he is exempt from further examinations, no matter what his age, and he is at all times eligible for appointment to the permanent force.

At the time the law relative to reserve officers was adopted by the City Council and approved by the Mayor, there were several special officers and who had been such for a number of years, who were so near the age limit that another year would have debarred them from ever becoming regular or permanent policemen, and it was largely for that reason that the law was adopted.

The number of reserve men is, however, limited by law. That is in effect the department is entitled to one reserve officer for every three permanent men up to a certain number.

THE CORPSE'S EXCURSION.

"It may be economical, but it is certainly ridiculous," said Senator Tillman of a proposition he opposed. "It reminds me of Calhoun White. Calhoun White stuck his head through the ticket window of Salter depot railroad station and said:

"'Boss, gimme two round trip tickets to Society Hill, one fur myself and one fur a corpse."

"'I never heard of nobody buying excursion tickets for corpses,' said the agent, 'What's the meaning of this?'

"'Well, boss,' Calhoun White replied, 'my brother Webster died yesterday and I want to take the corpse up to Society Hill and let the family view the remains, and then I'll bring him back to Salter Depot here and bury him. That'll be a big sight cheaper than for the whole family to traipse all the way from Society Hill and all the way back again.'"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Twins were born in an American home and a bright boy set about to name them. He said: "Will they be called Peter and Repeater?"

No, his mother would not listen to such names.

Then he said, "Let them be called Max and Climax?"

"No," said she, "they are both girls, so we cannot call one of them Max."

Then he said, after much thought: "Let them be called Kate and Duplicate." After that he was sent out to play.

LOCAL SPORTS.

Games Tomorrow:
Stoughton at Quincy.
Apprentices vs. Cranch A. A.
Double header at Water street.
Weymouth at Lincoln.
Rockland at Randolph.
Makaria vs. Atlantic, at Park.

• • •

Of course Quincy will take the game from Stoughton; Rockland and Randolph will have a great struggle, and Weymouth and Lincoln are both game.

• • •

Rockland is now as strong as she wil be this season, and Bill Rose is doing good work in the box. He is at his best now.

• • •

Stevenson of Stoughton has some speed, but it takes him about three innings to work it up.

• • •

Ordway and Lonergan are the third basemen to pick from. Who's best?

• • •

Baseball enthusiasts will witness a fast and interesting game at Merrymount park on Saturday as the Atlantics will play Makaria their first game this season. The Atlantic-Makaria games of last year are still fresh in the memories of the local fans, and as this is the first game of a series all lovers of baseball want to be on hand. Durant and Murray will be the Atlantic battery while Taber and Artis will do the work for the Makaria team. All the other players in both lineups are well known ball players so be sure and come with the crowd to Merrymount Park. Game starts at 3.30 P. M.

• • •

The league seasons close September fifth, little more than one short week from the present, and we will then hear why five teams didn't win, and why they should have. In the Granite City League the experience in operation gained this year will be invaluable to next year's organization.

• • •

The flags of victory will soon float over two camps. On the Quincy in the Old Colony League. When they win give them three big cheers.

• • •

It is hard to pick a winer in the Granite City league.

• • •

Come early tomorrow and avoid the rush. Two games for one admish, both fast ones, too, at 2 o'clock sharp.

• • •

The Ramblers will play against the Revere All Stars at Ward Six, Saturday. Rice will probably pitch. The Ramblers will play the Roger Wolcott A. A. Sept. 10 at Dunbar avenue grounds.

• • •

To the Sporting Editor of the Ledger:

The minutes of the last Granite City league meeting, which you requested in your columns of Wednesday's issue, are as follows: Meeting called to order by Vice President Boyle. Adams, Cranch, Hardy and Apprentices present. Vice President Boyle was appointed president to succeed president King, who has resigned because of business taking him west. The money which was given the league by the Fourth of July committee for their games in connection with the celebration, was turned over to the managers of the winnig teams. The folowing transfers went into effect at this meeting: Kenn of the Adams to Hardy for Mulligan. The following transfers were made to go into effect immediately by vote of the teams present: O'Rourke and Bennett from the Bryants to the Hardys, and Oliver of the Bigelows to the Apprentices. The Hardys were instructed that Mulligan was no eligible to participate in their game against the Apprentices of August 20.

James E. Neary, Sec. G. C. L.

Thank you, Mr. Neary.

RELEASED ON BAIL.

Julius Vezosal, alias Andrew Rullow, the alleged Russian fugitive from justice, recently arrested at Squantum, has succeeded in furnishing $5,000 cash bail before U. S. Commissioner Hayes yesterday. It was stated by lawyer Michelson that the bail had been subscribed for by Boston members of the socialist labor party. A hearing of the case is set for next Wednesday.

—The newspapers report that a New York man awoke in the morning and found his mouth open and couldn't shut it. In this part of the country there are a number of people who make no effort to close their mouths. They keep them open and working whenever they can find anybody to listen to the noise that comes through the opening in their faces.—Chelsea Record.

GOLF HAS MADE RAPID STRIDES

Number of Players In America Is Increasing Daily.

LINKS ARE VERY NUMEROUS.

Big Gains In This Country Are Proof of Its Fascination—Nearly Every Town Has Its Course—Game Gives Many Employment.

Although golf in America is still in its swaddling clothes as compared with the game on the other side of the Atlantic, it has much to be proud of, for unquestionably the royal sport has worked wonders in a comparatively short time. It is doubtful if even the most optimistic devotees of driver and iron ten years ago would have dared to predict that in 1910 golf would give employment to thousands and add to the attractions of hundreds of towns and villages.

Time has shown that golf is not a pastime to be taken lightly, but, rather, seriously. Practically every other game has its limitations as to season. Not so with golf, for only a foot or more of snow will prevent the golfer from making his rounds of the links, and weather is never too hot to prevent it, either.

No longer does the man in the street gaze at the golfer with his set of clubs as a curiosity. Nor is the "hockey player" remark so frequently heard. One might hear a man of the navy type inform his friend that golf is a "rotten game," but even this is a sign of progress, for he knows it is golf and not hockey.

The huge strides golf is making and has made is conclusive proof of its fascination. Ten years ago the golfer had to travel much longer to reach a golf course that he does at present. Every town of any size at all has its golf course. No seaside resort is a complete success unless it has its own links, and it is the knowledge that golf is to be had that frequently brings the visitor and his family. This is also true of many inland resorts.

This means business for the resort or the village in or near which the course is located. Even in ten years Garden City, N. Y., has made big strides in the way of improvement, and much of it is due to the golf course there. Incidentally Garden City now has two courses, the second being the Salisbury links, over which the tournament of the Eastern Professional Golfers' association was played.

This is by no means an exceptional case, for there are a great many other cities and towns where similar instances might be cited. Landowners are quick to realize the fact that the ground they have hitherto looked upon as being scarcely worthy of consideration is valuable from a golfing point of view, and they charge more per acre for it than they do for their agricultural land.

HUTCHINSON, ENGLISH EXPERT, WHO MAY COME TO THIS COUNTRY.

[Considerable interest is being taken in the recent announcement that H. G. Hutchinson, the English golf expert, is coming to this country to play in the national amateur tourney to be held at Boston Sept. 12. Hutchinson is considered to be one of the best golfers in England.]

With regard to the employment that the game provides, it is difficult to estimate it. Professionals and their assistants, ground keepers, caretakers, iron head makers, golf ball makers, etc., are dependent upon the game, while there are thousands of boys and even men who make their living as caddies. The list could be considerably increased, even to those who earn their livelihood by making mixtures for the extermination of worms and other ground pests.

From the health point of view golf is a well known preserver of youth, not only being prescribed by physicians as a health restorer, but being played by physicians themselves who practice what they preach.

FIRST BASEMAN HAD NO PUT-OUTS.

Five times in the history of baseball has a first baseman gone through a game without having a put-out. In the contest between Pittsburg and Chicago recently Hofman of the Cubs did not have a put-out. His only chance was a throw from Tinker, and he dropped that. It was the fifth time in the history of the game that that record has been hung up. Here are the other four marks:

July 21, 1861—In New York city. First Baseman Mutuals in a game with Alpine.

Aug. 6, 1891—McCauley, first baseman of the Washington American association team, in a game with Columbus (O.) club.

May 23, 1906—"Jiggs" Donahue of the Chicago White Sox, in a game with the New York Highlanders.

Aug. 12, 1906—Emerson, first baseman of the Monson (Mass.) team, in a game with the Stamford (Conn.) club.

TULANE'S NEW STADIUM.

New Orleans University Getting Ready For Championship Meet.

The Tulane university field in New Orleans, which will stage the national championships of the Amateur Athletic union to be held Oct. 14, is now ready for the athletes. About $5,000 has been expended on the field. New jumping and vaulting pits have been built on the oval, and a football gridiron and basketball courts are now finished. The one-quarter mile track and the 220 yard straightaway are among the best in the country. They are modeled after those built for the Jamestown and St. Louis expositions.

The municipal government is backing the meet. Business men and civic organizations are lending help. In addition to the $5,000 secured to make the athletic field a first class ground, $3,000 has been sent to Secretary Sullivan in New York to defray the expenses of the athletes who go for the contests.

With the money and time which will be expended and the ardent support of influential citizens, it is believed there will be no excuse for criticism on the action awarding the meet to New Orleans.

WHY THE ATHLETICS LEAD.

Manager Connie Mack Has Masterful Way of Manipulating His Pitchers.

One reason why the Athletics are safely perched on the top rung of the American league pennant race is the masterful way in which Connie Mack has manipulated his pitchers.

There is no such thing as a regular turn for the pitchers on his staff. Mack picks the clubs against which he believes his pitchers will do their best without any regard to rotation. For instance, one man may pitch twice against the club in one series. Often a star pitcher gets a rest of ten days because the clubs that he is always brilliant against are not about.

Krause has been in the American league two seasons, but hasn't pitched against every one of the Athletics' rivals. There are some teams that never get a chance to bat against Morgan, Bender, Plank, Coombs or Dygert.

Boston seldom gets a chance against any of Mack's right handers. Plank, Krause and Atkins pitch against the "speed boys."

Cy Morgan Hasn't Been Let Go Yet.

John I. Taylor, owner of the Boston Red Sox, made one prediction last spring which hasn't been verified. Some one was twitting the Massachusetts magnate about the deal he made with Connie Mack whereby Vic Schlitzer, now with Chattanooga, became a "speed boy" and Cy Morgan was transformed into "a white elephant." "Take it from me," declared John Irving, "Connie Mack will cut Cy loose before the season is half over. Morgan is the sort of pitcher who prospers in a city only for one campaign. Mack hasn't yet asked for waivers on the minstrel man, who is considered in Philadelphia as being almost as clever a gunner as Charles Albert Bender and John W. Coombs."

BASEBALL TIPS

Johnny Evers says the question whether Johnny Kling could recover his old time form in throwing and batting has been answered in the affirmative.

Walter Johnson, Washington's star flinger, is seriously handicapped when Street is out of the game, as Beckendorf and Henry appear unable to catch him.

Needless wonder has been expressed over Manager Bresnahan pitching against Brooklyn recently. Bresnahan started his career as a pitcher and then became a catcher.

The Cincinnati Reds steal more bases than any other team and yet fail to score as many runs as several clubs. What's the answer to that inexplicable mathematical problem?

The Boston Americans are believed to have the greatest throwing outfield as a whole in the country in Speaker, Lewis and Hooper. Each one of this trio has a whip wonderful for strength and accuracy, and base runners take no liberties with any of them.

A Good Cigar.

When fortune frowns and cares oppress
And life seems useless, more or less,
Whate'er you are,
And every time you've tried to win,
You've somehow failed, there's comfort in
A good cigar.

You watch the smoke wreaths as they rise,
And as you dream with half shut eyes
Your thoughts roam far
Until your troubles seem a joke,
Your worries vanish while you smoke
A good cigar.

—Somerville Journal.

True Love.

Said I to lovely Annabel,
"I love you more than tongue can tell!"
"Dear me!"
Said she,
"That kind of talk will never do.
Pray, can't you think of something new?"

I felt her words within me rankle
Until I glimpsed her dainty ankle.
I sighed,
Then cried,
"No 'skeeter loves a low cut shoe,
My Anna, more than I love you!"

—Puck.

Some Immunities.

"It must be irksome," said the visitor to the penal institution, "to remain here and be designated merely by a number."

"Yes," replied the once affluent inmate. "A number is an annoyance. But you don't have to carry a horn and a lot of lanterns."—Washington Star.

Prepare to Dodge.

Beware the aviator's fall!
Oh, list the warning shout!
The aeroplane will get you all,
And tumble on you like a wall
And mash you very fine and small,
Unless you're watching out!

RESTELLI'S CRIME WELL ADVERTISED

But He Eludes the Thousands Who Are Looking for Him

State Officer Scott Follows Up a Vermont Clew

State Officer John C. Scott who was assigned to the Restelli case, returned this morning from a long chase after a Restelli suspect which led him into Canada. Unfortunately, however, the suspect was not the man wanted. The chase, however, shows that the search for the man has not been abandoned but is just as keen as it was the day after the murder although it is now being carried on in a systematic manner.

The clew in the case came to Chief Burrell in a letter received from North Hero, Vt., last Sunday. This letter stated that a man who very much resembled Restelli had been in that town, and had been acting in a suspicious manner. The letter further stated that the suspect had hired a farmer to drive him forty miles to St. John's Quebec.

The letter was turned over to Officers Scott who immediately started on the long journey to North Hero, which is near the Canadian boundary line. Arriving there the writer of the letter was looked up, and after some difficulty the farmer who made the forty mile drive was located. When Officer Scott interviewed the farmer it was only to learn that the long drive had been made ten days before the Restelli murder, and that the man who was fleeing into Canada was not the Quincy murderer.

While in Vermont Officer Scott run down several rumors and supposed clews, but all were fruitless.

The trip developed one thing, however, and that is that the murder has been well advertised. In every hamlet visited, nothing was talked of but the shooting by Restelli of his mother. The local papers in all of the towns have printed accounts of the murder and complete descriptions of Restelli, as well as the rewards that have been offered for his capture. Every person carries Restelli in his mind and everyone is on the watch for him. Not so much for the sake of the reward that is offered, but from the fact that he shot his mother down in cold blood.

The impression seems to prevail that Restelli is in hiding somewhere, waiting for the excitement of the murder to quiet down, and that eventually he will come forth from his hiding place and try to make his way out of the country.

MAY FLY OVER QUINCY

Dixon Wants to Visit Plymouth Rock on Tuesday

Cromwell Dixon, the boy aviator, has great confidence in his ability to navigate the air. At Harvard headquarters in Boston yesterday he said:

"After I carry the official invitation to the Governor of Massachusetts and Mayor of Boston next Tuesday from the aviation field at Squantum in my new dirigible, the 'Harvard,' I would like to do a few patriotic stunts, if the contest committee will permit. I will first try to land as near Plymouth Rock as possible, passing over the Jerusalem road and towns of Cohasset, Marshfield and Kingston. Then I will circle Bunker Hill monument, the George Washington tree at Cambridge and the colleges. While over Charlestown will drop an orange on the magazine in the navy yard, and incidentally on a few ships in the harbor. Of course, wind and weather will have much to do with these events, but I am sure I can do them and cover the 'Paul Revere' route to Lexington and Concord."

PLEASANT REUNION.

A party of young ladies from the Class of 1910, Bridgewater Normal School left Quincy on Wednesday for North Weymouth, where they were to be entertained by Miss Inez V. Allen for two days. Arriving at the beach, the party was given a delightful sail, until the tide was high, when each donned her bathing suit and enjoyed a swim.

At one o'clock, dinner was served, after which the girls enjoyed the cool breeze on the piazza, while they talked over their school days and and sewed. As the sun began to lower, the party climbed Great hill, where they sang old familiar songs until the sun sank beneath the horizon.

Coming back to the cottage again lunch was served, and clams were dug. These served as bait, early Thursday morning, on a fishing party. The second day passed away all to quickly. The cheers that floated over the waters as the girls departed, proved that the visit would be one long to be remembered. In the party were Gertrude Burke, Helen F. Burke, Mabel Easton, Miriam Fearing, Stella Fearing, Mercedes E. O'Brien, Margaret O'Brien, Isabel Campbell and Mabel E. Lovejoy.

—A statue is to be erected in the town of Void, France, in honor of Joseph Cagnot, who in 1765 devised the first motor car, driven by steam, which he intended for transporting cannons. It would not compare very favorably with automobiles of the present day, but it was the first, and it is right that Cagnot as the originator is to be honored by having a statue erected to his memory at his birthplace.—Athol Chronicle.

UNDER EYE OF PRESIDENT

Taft Familiar With Situation in Tenth District

J. Mitchell Galvin, who will be a candidate for the republican nomination to congress from the 10th district, visited President Taft at his summer home in Beverly yesterday, says the Globe.

Mr. Galvin, accompanied by Frank A. Schirmer called upon Senator Lodge at his home in Nahant and the senator was one of the party which visited the President. They found him on the veranda of his cottage and they were warmly welcomed by the chief executive.

The President's visitors were astonished by his familiarity with conditions in the 10th district and said he expressed his hope that Mr. Galvin would be successful. The interview lasted an hour and Mr. Galvin returned to Boston greatly pleased and much encouraged, as Mr. Taft said he hoped the district would send a republican to the national house.

HYDE PARK'S TAX RATE

An Increase of $2.10 Over the Rate in 1909

Now it seems that the tax rate of Hyde Park is $19 and not $17 an increase of $2.10 over 1909. The Gazette says the increase in the tax rate is caused by the loss of the Hyde Park Water Company's plant, valued at $267,700, the Marshall Electric manufactory of $30,000, and several personal estates of $200,000 which have been converted into non assessable securities. This amounts to about half a million dollars.

The levy for the two years follows:

	1909.	1910.
Town tax	$212,460.00	$231,406.53
County	10,589.37	10,630.45
State	16,920.00	21,065.00
Met. Park	6,650.62	7,011.87
Met. Sewer	14,539.42	14,148.98
Met. Water	1,327.03	1,316.24
Grade Cross	12,110.57	113,459.13
Total	$274,579.01	$319,038.20

"Benny," said Mr. Bloobumper, after a siege of queries from that inquisitive boy, "why do you ask questions all the time?"

"Why, papa," replied Benny, in surprise, "is there anything else to ask?"

HOUGHS NECK FAIR CLOSED

Farce Presented and Several Prizes Awarded

The Houghs Neck Lady Associates brought their three-days fair to a successful close last night in Associates hall, Houghs Neck.

The evening's program was very good and well presented. Frank Boutilier gave piano selections, Wallace G. Higgins sang, and Frank Meadows and Miss Elizabeth Jacobsen also rendered vocal music.

Following the musical entertainment prizes were awarded. A doll was presented whose name the children were to guess, but the first name, Susan, was elusive so it was changed to Grace, and won by Jennie Leary:

Mrs. G. P. Rupert guessed 143 as the number of olives in a bottle, which was exact, and won.

Mrs. Wood and Miss Robinson both guessed the weight of a cake at one pound and eight ounces, and the cake was divided between them as both were right.

Mrs. Grace Robinson guessed the cost of making a cake at 98 cents and won it.

Mrs. Mary Buchan guessed correctly that there were 400 pins in a cushion and was presented with the cushion.

A boiled dinner weighing 24 1-2 pounds was offered. E. G. Jarvis guessed 24 pounds and Mrs. Mary Buchan guessed 25 pounds. They drew lots and the dinner went to Mr. Jarvis. Other prizes were awarded.

The one-act farce "Done on Both Sides" was very successfully presented by the following cast:

Mr. Whiffles — W. H. Rupert
Mr. John Brownjohn — H. W. Boutilier
Mr. Pigmalian Phibbs — J. B. McCarthy
Mrs. Whiffles — Miss A. E. Stewart
Lydia Whiffles — Miss E. M. Boutilier

Miss A. E. Steuart was best in the character of Mrs. Whiffles.

The fair was attended with unusual enthusiasm and success. It was directed by Mrs. A. Boutilier.

—Remember that law forbidding you to throw rubbish into the street, and don't violate it. It is a good law and the police will be justified in enforcing it to the letter. Now let us have a stop put to the distribution of hand bills, either in doorways or on the street. Laziness and slovenliness are at the bottom of most of the littering of our streets, and it is a good time now to teach the lesson of cleanliness. The front yard and the street in front of one's house should be cared for as carefully as the front room of the house; more so, because everybody, in a way, sees the front yard and the street while only a few people see inside our front rooms.

QUINCY GRANITE EXHIBIT A GREAT SUCCESS

All the Monuments Shown at Rochester Convention Were Sold

Delegates from Washington and Other Distant States

The Quincy granite manufacturers have returned from the National Retail Monument Dealers' convention held at Rochester, N. Y. John L. Miller was one of the two delegates to represent the Massachusetts Retail Association.

The retailers' association are wholly for the betterment of the retail business, and a wholesaler is not admitted to any of the executive meetings. One of the objects being to eliminate the practice that has crept into the business, when a wholesale manufacturer has a monument condemned and shipped back by a dealer, of selling it at retail because he thinks the retail customer will not see the defects. In other words, they aim to divide the business into two classes—those that are strictly retail, and will stand behind all goods delivered; and the strictly wholesaler who will not enter the retail business to degrade it with inferior goods. The retailers aim at a square deal for all, the customers, the retailer and the wholesaler, and the elevation of the whole business to a higher plane than it has been on the past few years.

Mr. Miller reports a great convention. The delegates there assembled represented over two thousand retail dealers. There were delegates from far off Washington, Colorado and Mississippi, yet it is only four years since the first association was formed.

The Quincy Granite Manufacturer's Association made a creditable display of their goods to the retailers, having some ten monuments in the exhibition hall, and they sold them all. There was granite on display from Oklahoma, Colorado, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and, Massachusetts and marble from Vermont, Georgia and Tennesee.

The convention and the exhibition were a grand success in every way.

SCHOOLHOUSE PLANS.

A special meeting of the School Committee was held last evening to examine plans for the new school buildings at Montclair and Wollaston. Considerable headway was made and the plans will probably go to the City Council at the meeting Sept. 19.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

In times past there have been many mysterious disappearances but the recent performance by the fugitive Restelli certainly caps the climax. After his death dealing ride he vanished from sight and has kept hidden so effectually that there is not the slightest trace of him. Some say he is dead and others think that he is being shielded by friends but for coolness, audacity and deviltry, his mad act has few equals.

The song of the katy-dids and the slight chill in the air after sunset give us just a hint of the rapidly approaching fall and winter season, but for a number of weeks yet we shall enjoy some of the finest weather of the whole year. This is the time of ripening fruit and vegetables and the time when the housewife is busy pickling and preserving and accumulating a store of appetizers for use during the cold weather. Then before the snow flies we will have the glorious Indian summer and all in all there are many delightful days to come yet before the winter solstice sets in.

We have been more than usually fortunate this summer in this locality in the very few severe thunder storms which have passed over this region. Because of this the timid ones have been spared many a fright and indeed the people who enjoy electrical storms are in the minority. The weather wise attribute our immunity from tempests to a variety of causes. One is that the Blue Hills break them up and another theory is that they follow the Neponset river to the ocean and thus blow harmlessly out to sea. At any rate we like the rain but can just as well dispense with that form of electrical energy known as the thunder shower.

It is only a short time now before the opening of the schools will call the boys and girls from far and wide. It is doubtful if many of the scholars realize what a privilege is theirs to be able to attend the well equipped and up-to-date schools o fthe present day. There are so many advantages and inducements held out to every pupil that it is difficult to see how any can neglect their opportunities but it is all in the point of view and there will be as there always have been some children to whom the school room is distasteful and who are the despair of parents and teachers. However the world moves on and what a far cry it is from the little red schoolhouse to the magnificent building of the present day.

NIGHT BLOOMING CEREUS.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal Belcher of Tremont street, South Braintree, had numerous callers at their home Thursday evening for it was rumored that their famous night blooming cereus was in bloom. It is well known that the plant belongs to the cactus family and that they abound in the southwestern part of the United States extending through Mexico and Central America into South America. Their large, fragrant flowers are exceedingly beautiful.

The flowers make up for the almost ugly appearance of the plants which often have bristles and spikelike leaves and are rather clumsy in general appearance instead of having leaves and branches as ordinary plants do. An authority states that a peculiar habit of the cactus family to which the cereus belongs, seems to have been the result of drouth conditions to which they are peculiarly adapted. The two fold problem which is presented to them is to prevent any unnecessary loss of water contained in their tissues, and to retain all of the scanty supply which reaches them in their native soil. As a result their bodies are very succulent and retains water with great tenacity. Sometimes they grow to great height and the night blooming forms have cylindrical or angled stems and are trailers or climbers.

Mr. and Mrs. Belcher have owned such plants for twenty years. The first plant was much larger than the one in bloom on Thursday but was frozen some winters ago when the family were away. It is known on the morning when the buds will open and then many come to see the beautiful blossoms which will not again attain perfection until a year has passed and gone.

The many friends of Miss Carolyn Wilkinson will be sorry to learn that her mother was taken suddenly ill, on Sunday last, at their Summer camp at Winnisquam, N. H., and was removed to the hospital at Laconia

—Henry Turner Bailey tells a good story on cooperation. An accomplished organist had just finished giving a recital in a country church. Flushed with success he said to the boy who pumped the organ, "I guess the audience was pleased with my efforts." "Yes, we did fine," said the boy. "We!" shouted the disgusted musician, "what had you to do with it?" "Try to play it alone and you'll see," said the boy.

POLICE CLUBS AND REVOLVERS

Brought Into Play to Subdue Rioters at New Bedford

EIGHTEEN ARRESTS ARE MADE

Mob Armed With Sticks and Stones Makes Repeated Attacks Upon Police and Many Have Heads Battered as Result—But One Bluecoat Bears Marks of Fray—Wild Excitement During Battle With Strikers

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 27.—Eighteen prisoners are nursing battered heads in police headquarters as the result of a pitched battle in which 300 rioting strikers were arrayed against Chief of Police Mason and thirty-five of his men at the Sharp mill.

More than forty striking building laborers were clubbed, fifty shots were fired by the police and a hand-to-hand fight resulted before the spirit of the mob was broken and it was scattered.

It was one of the worst riots that the police have ever had to deal with. The strikers broke away from the efforts of their leaders, and marched in a body from Labor temple to the South End.

They passed police headquarters cheering derisively and yelling in foreign languages.

When they reached the vicinity of the Sharp mill they formed into a cheering crowd and listened to several self-appointed leaders, who urged them to rush the construction work and drive out the men working in the ditches.

Chief Mason, reaching a point between the advancing strikers and the mill, formed his men in an open lot near the corner of Dunbar street and Bolton road.

The strikers stopped to pick up stones and clubs while the officers awaited their coming. When but a few feet lay between the mob and the officers, Mason told his men to disperse the mob.

Charging into the crowd, with revolvers in their left hands and night sticks in their right, the thirty-five policemen swung their clubs on the first heads they could reach.

For a few minutes the mob fought back, but nightsticks felled the leaders and shots fired over the heads of the mob scared the strikers in the fringe of the crowd.

Finaly they broke and fell into a panic. The police charged again, seized all the rioters they could lay their hands on and began to hustle them into automobiles under arrest.

The strikers, seeing some of their numbers being arrested, formed again and rushed the police. Clubs beat another lively tattoo, revolvers were flourished and finally eighteen men were in three waiting automobiles for the mile and a half trip to headquarters.

The crowd charged again, and when the automobiles started the strikers leaped upon the running boards on the springs and swarmed over the hood onto the chauffeurs.

The chauffeurs, who up to this time were interested onlookers, had to fight. With one hand on the steering wheel, they kicked and swung iron bars or monkey wrenches until the strikers were forced to let go their hold and rolled over and over in the roadside in dirt.

Of the eighteen arrested strikers six had wounds on their heads that will keep them indoors for several days, while the remaining dozen were covered with cuts and bruises.

The only officer that bore marks as the result of the riot was Patrolman Lowther.

The neighborhood where the battle took place was wildly excited as the police charged the strikers. Women ran screaming into ttheir homes and locked themselves in.

ALL WILL BE FORGIVEN

Young Elopers Successful After Being Outwitted a Year Ago

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 27.—Gladys B. Reynolds of this city, who was outwitted by her parents a year ago, succeeded in eloping with Alexander B. Hooper, according to a letter from the young bride which her mother, Mrs. Frederick Reynolds, has received.

The bride, who is 17, a junior at the high school, and the groom, but one year her senior, were married at Derry, N. H., by a Methodist clergyman. Her mother is now rushing to Derry, bearing the parental blessing and forgiveness.

Sherman on Stumping Tour

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Vice President Sherman left for Chicago on his congressional campaign tour. He will make his first appearance on the stump at Clinton, Ills., today. From Illinois he will go to Missouri, and after that to Oklahoma.

World-Wide Sea Strike Threatened

Copenhagen, Aug. 27.—The international congress of sailors and marine firemen, embracing America and Europe, voted for a world-wide sea strike if the employers of all nations do not agree to a conciliation board in troubles.

SOUTH BRAINTREE.

Town clerk, H. A. Monk has returned from Brewster where he has been spending his vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of Union street are rejoicing in the recent birth of a little son.

Warren Page, the popular conductor on the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad has been enjoying a vacation in Maine.

Mrs. O. W. Peterson of New York city is making an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Poole of Hall avenue.

Miss Jennie Carmichael, the well known teacher of Boston, is spending her summer vacation with her mother, Mrs. John R. Carmichael of Central avenue.

Miss Caroline M. Wilkinson, librarian at the Thayer Public library and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilkinson have been spending a pleasant vacation at Winnesquam lake, N. H. They are expected back about the first of September.

John F. Kelley of Central street has been receiving congratulations because of being appointed on the chief marshall's staff at the state convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, which will be held at Lowell in the near future.

The many friends of John P. Shay will be interested to know that he has passed through a successful operation at the eye and ear infirmary, Boston and although he may have to stay there some time still he is making remarkable progress toward complete recovery.

Rev. George H. Parkinson returned today from an enjoyable vacation trip to Norfolk and Richmond, Virginia. Returning, he visited in New York City and came home via he Hudson river to Albany. Rev. Parkinson will occupy his pulpit in the South Methodist church tomorrow as usual.

GERMAN POLICE "MUG" CZAR

Arrest Ruler and a Grand Duke When They Slip Across Frontier

Berlin, Aug. 27.—The czar of all the Russians was arrested by a German policeman, according to a story printed by The Tageblat. Nicholas, with a grand duke, slipped across the frontier incognito, according to the story. During their stay at Wolfsgarten they entered a park whose use is forbidden to the public. They were arrested by gendarmes.

Taking their predicament as a joke, they went to the police station and were photographed before the blunder was discovered. They were finally released with profound apologies, presented by officials and ambassadors.

The latest photograph of the czar, however, is in the possession of the police and the error will not happen again.

ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP A YOUNG HEIRESS

Plan Frustrated by Timely Appearance of a Minister

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 27.—An attempt to kidnap Ruth Shepherd, the 18-year-old daughter of James G. Shepherd of Scranton, president of the People's Coal company, was foiled by a minister.

The girl is the heiress of the Crawford estate. Her parents have long feared efforts to kidnap her and special officers have guarded their residence.

While on a visit to Rev. Dr. Dorchester and his wife at Martha's Vineyard she was walking with Miss Blanche Reynolds of Scranton when, in a lonely portion of the road, a man stepped from the bushes and seized her.

The girls screamed, and Dorchester, who was a short distance away, hurried to their aid. The man escaped.

Honduras Won't Harbor Madriz

Washington, Aug. 27.—Ex-President Madriz of Nicaragua, now in Honduras, will not be allowed to remain near the Nicaraguan frontier, according to dispatches received by the state department.

Indigestion.

Old friendships are destroyed by toasted cheese or Welsh rabbit. Hard salted meat has led to suicide. Unpleasant feelings of the body produce corresponding sensations in the mind, and a great scene of wretchedness is sketched out by a morsel of misguided and indigestible food.

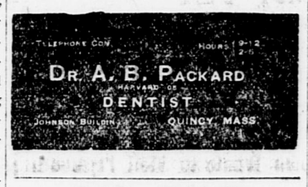

—Is it not time to do more than is now done to protect conspicuous public officers who, because of this are more likely to be attacked than other men? Is it not time to write into the penal law a section making it a capital offence to attempt the life of a public officer?—New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser.

(EVER HEAR OF THE PLACE?)
IS A PART OF QUINCY !?

¶ It is not under water nor a hundred miles from Boston. In a short time (through the kindness of the City Fathers) you will be able to get there without swimming or fear of drowning.

¶ It has some city water, some electric lights, and telephone connections for such as pay for it. Also electric cars visit this place occasionally, with five cent fares from all parts of Quincy.

¶ With the above information would you risk the price (5 cents) and take a journey to the wild domains of this unexplored region?

¶ As a minor side attraction it might be mentioned that the Harvard Aviation Field is located here, on which a few pennies are being expended preparing the grounds and a few more may possibly be expended during the meet, Sept. 3rd. to 13th.

Mr. Leslie Hayford and Miss Marian Lucy Titus, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Anson Titus were married on Thursday at the Third Universalist church at Somerville. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by the pastor of the church, Rev. Harry Adams Hersey. Anson M. Titus, brother of the bride, was master of ceremonies and head usher. The bride's gown was ivory crepe satin meteor, lace yoke and sleeves, with pearl trimmings. She carried bride roses. The bride and groom graduated from Tufts college in 1902 and 1901. After leaving college the groom was a government teacher in the Philippines five years; he is now field secretary of the North American Civic League for Immigrants, with headquarters in Boston. The bride is well known in this vicinity passing her girlhood in Weymouth. Her father is also well known not only as a minister but as an authority on patriotic, historic and genealogical matters.

QUINCY IS ADVERTISING

Alive to Her Possibilities in Granite Work

The Barre Daily Times says editorialy under the caption "Quincy is advertising:"

"It is well that the Barre Granite Manufacturers' association decided to make an exhibit of their product at the retail monument dealers' convention in Rochester, N. Y., this week, for word comes from Quincy, Mass., that the Quincy association not only sent a committee to the convention, but it forwarded an exhibit costing $2,000, to be shown to the delegates to the convention. The Quincy exhibit includes stock from every quarry in that city and is prepared by expert cutters and letters. If Barre had not sent on its excellent exhibit, this granite center would have suffered in the competition with Quincy.

"The incident shows that Quincy is alive to the possibilities of advertising its industry, and that Barre must shake off whatever feeling of lethargy there may be and enter spiritedly into the game, and, incidentally, it proves that there is need for advertising Barre granite and there will always be the need so long as there is any competing stone.

Advertising—judicious advertising, like the display at the retail monument dealers' convention—is one of the agencies to retain the primier position which Barre granite holds. Let's not be discouraged by anything which a trade paper may say about "cheap" methods, for our rivals are indulging in those same methods, which is proof positive that there is some effectiveness in them after all.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Bracken was fined $5 for drunkenness at Randolph.

Patrick Ward was fined $10 for drunkenness at Milton.

John E. Thayer was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

THE NUTSHELL BOSTON GUIDE.

It is clear, concise, accurate and convenient to carry. It nas more historical matter than the average guide condensed for convenience into small space. Besides the historical matter, it deals with artistic, literary, musical and philanthropic Boston, in at least one of which most tourists are interested. It contains an excellent map drawn by Mr. Houghton, one of the best map draftsmen in New England. The map is printed clearly on good paper, and is small enough to be consulted on the street. It is the only Boston guide book published which has complete trolley instructions. It is not a history for the fireside, it is not an oration, but it aims to help tourists, students and Bostonians to appreciate Boston. Much of the value of the book is in the care with which the data has been prepared. The new edition wil lhave the good points of the old book and will be much improved. Still keeping the idea of brevity, from the growth of Boston, the book will be somewhat enlarged. It will have a more attractive cover, a better binding, and still better print. The book is illustrated. The author is giving the book the most careful and pains-taking revision, and making every effort to have the new edition clear, concise and correct, the three qualities which have helped to make the book unique among guides.

Thanks to Lucy.

Mark Smith, former delegate from Arizona to congress and likely as not to be one of the new senators when the state is admitted, was born in Kentucky.

He says that in the town where he was born a new and youthful preacher was imported from New England to minister to the Presbyterian church.

On the first Sunday the senior deacon of the church took the minister aside and asked him to pray for Lucy Gray. The minister prayed fervently for Lucy, not only on that Sunday but on the two succeeding Sundays.

On the fourth Sunday the deacon came around and said, "Parson, you needn't pray for Lucy Gray any more."

"Why," asked the minister, "is she dead?"

"Dead? No," said the deacon; "she won."—Saturday Evening Post.

Knows His Ways.

"His wife is a remarkable housekeeper."

"Economical?"

"Yes, and more. She always has the furniture where he cannot possibly fall over it when he comes home late or gets up in the night to close the windows to keep the rain out."—Buffalo Express.

Convincing.

"This palpitating age calls for men who have convictions," declared the orator in the park. "Where, I ask, shall we find them?"

"In prisons," called out a man in the crowd.—Scraps.

LITTLE GIRL BADLY BURNED

Had Been Left Asleep by Her Mother

Grace Fanham, three years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Fanham of East Milton, residing at the corner of Adams and Church streets, was seriously burned yesterday afternoon. She was attended by Dr. C. S. Adams of Wollaston and sent to the Children's hospital in Boston.

The little girl was left asleep in a second floor room, and after some time her mother heard screams, and upon rushing upstairs to discover their cause found her little girl in flames. It is presumed that the child awoke and found matches with which she played. The front of her body and ears were badly burned, but her face and hair were untouched by the flames. Her clothing was almost burned off. Mr. Fanham is a carrier at the East Milton post office.

Miss Edith Wilder and Miss Lottie Haskine of Montello are the guests of Miss Helen Emery.

Misses Edith and Mary Arnold of Braintree are visiting their grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Cain.

Mrs. Abbie Nightingale is very ill at the home of her grand daughter, Mrs. Everett Cain of Plymouth avenue.

Capt. C. H. Bradford of Washington street was fishing off Scituate this week and brought home a fine catch of cod and haddock.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gere, and Miss Dorothy and Master Henry Gere, of Northampton, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ray S. Hubbard.

The Braintree Highlands Neighborhood club has been trying, through Lawyer McGaughey, to purchase the rights of Dr. Warren Babbitt in the building commonly called the Chapel, situated near the railroad station. Money for the construction of this building was contributed by various people in Randolph, Holbrook and Braintree, with the understanding that it was to be used as a chapel. The land—and it may be some money—was donated by Dr. Babbitt, and the property stands in his name.

John Emery, the Brockton leather merchant, who summers at Lovett farm, has offered the club land for a club house, and if the chapel cannot be obtained, a modest bungalow will be built to serve as a house for the future work of the club. However, the chapel in a large measure belongs to the people of the community, as it was intended as a gift to them.

False Curls.

In preparing human hair for sale it is first assorted, combed and washed in boiling water to which a weak solution of soda or ammonia is added, then assorted as to colors. The short hairs are wound around little glass bars placed in a coke heated kiln five or six days, when they are ready for sale as "curls."

A Forbidden Air.

In India military bands are forbidden to play "Home, Sweet Home," because of its pathos having so potent an effect on the English people who may hear it.

GRAY GARDEN WALLS.

Richard Watson Gilder.

The gray walls of the garden
Hold many and many a bloom;
A flame of red against the gray
Is lightning in the gloom.

The gray walls of the garden
Hold grassy walks between
Bright beds of yellow blossoms,
Golden against the green.

And in the roof of the arbor
Leaves woven through and throught,—
Great grape leaves, making shadows,—
Shine green against the blue

And, O, in the August weather
What wonders new are seen!
Long beds of azure blossoms
Are blue against the green.

The gray walls of the garden
Hold paths of pure delight
And, in the emerald, blooms of pearl
Are white against the night.

—Making the city beautiful would not be a hard job if residents and property owners but realized it, and in making property attractive, better satisfied tenants will result. And where a satisfied people are found manufacturers like to locate, knowing there will be dependable help and lots of it. So in this way property owners would be helping themselves.—Chelsea Record.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

RECORD-BREAKING CROWDS

Turn Out to Greet Roosevelt on His Tour Through the West

Green Island, Neb., Aug. 27.—The west is giving former President Roosevelt a greeting which eclipses even those welcomes accorded him when he was head of the nation.

His progress has been one triumphal journey, and there is no disguising the fact that his reception has been greater than that recently given President Taft.

The people gathered in crowds at all places at which he stopped in his journey across Iowa and Nebraska, rang bells, tooted whistles, played bands and cheered. They stood on roofs, climbed telegraph poles and scrambled on top of cars on the sidings to see him.

When Roosevelt left New York all the members of the party traveled in two cars, which were attached to regular trains. The number of cars is now six, made up in a special train.

SIBLEY IS LAID UP

His Associates Are Held to Answer to Charges of Conspiracy

Warren, Pa., Aug. 27.—Waiving a hearing on information charging them with conspiring to debauch the electors of Warren county, Joseph C. Sibley, who recently resigned as candidate for congress on the Republican ticket, Frank R. Taylor, Charles D. Crandall, George B. Munn and D. M. Howard were held for court trial here by Justice of the Peace Perry. All the defendants were present except Sibley, who, according to a physician's certificate, was confined to his home with acute heart trouble.

The attorneys for the prosecution attempted to get a ruling from Perry ordering the defendants to plead to the information at once, but this the justice denied and ended the hearing. Each of the defendants was released on his own recognizance to get bail in the sum of $1000.

KAISER IS RULER BY THE GRACE OF GOD

He Says Power Is Not Given by Parliaments or People

Koenigsberg, Aug. 27.—Emperor William, who is making a tour of eastern Germany in connection with his visit to Posen for the dedication of his new castle there, delivered a martial speech at the provincial banquet here, in which he urged the necessity of of co-operation with him in his work for the welfare and defense of the country.

In the course of of his long speech, the emperor alluded to Emperor William I of Germany in terms indicating the identity of his convictions with those of his grandfather. "My grandfather," he said, "again, by his own right, placed the Prussian crown upon his head and again proclaimed it to be bestowed upon him by God's grace alone and not by parliaments, assemblages of the people or resolutions of the people, and that he saw in himself the chosen instrument of heaven, and as such, he regarded his duty as regent and ruler."

WAS NOTED PHILOSOPHER

Professor James of Harvard Succumbs to Attack of Heart Trouble

Chocorua, N. H., Aug. 27.—Death, caused by heart disease, came to Professor William James of Harvard university, dean of America's philosophers, at his summer home on the shores of Chocorua lake.

Professor James had been in a critical condition since his arrival from Europe a week ago. Yesterday he took a decided turn for the worse, lapsing into unconsciousness about noon. The philosopher died in this state, surrounded by his wife, daughter, sons and his brother, Henry James, the English author.

Professor James, long regarded as among the foremost philosophers and psychologists of the world, was born in New York in 1842. His father was Henry James, a Swedenborgian minister and writer.

HAT INSIDE A HAT

Milliners Solve Promlem For Women Who Are Theatregoers

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The retail milliners ni convention here have solved the theatre hat problem by the simple means of selling Milady Theatregoer two hats.

The big, fluffy picture hat will carry just as many plumes and ribbons as in former years, but beneath this there will be an elaborate little "French turban" of velvet, sattin or some shimmery, elusive, filmy material that will not prevent others from seeing the stage.

Sheriff of Providence Dies Suddenly

Providence, Aug. 27.—Hiram C. White, high sheriff of Providence county for nineteen years, was stricken with apoplexy and died soon afterward. He was a former adjutant general of this state and a prominent Republican leader. He was 57 years old.

'Frisco Gets Eagles' Convention

St. Louis, Aug. 27.—San Francisco has been chosen for the 1911 grand aerie of the Eagles. Thomas F. Grady of New York has no opposition for president.

FOREBODINGS OF DISASTER

Taft Hears Gloomy Predictions From New England

VERMONT WILL NOT BE LOST

But There Are Indications That Its Usual Substantial Republican Vote Will Show a Falling Off—Defeat Threatened In Maine—Attacks Upon "Regulars" In New Hampshire and Connecticut—Roosevelt's Tour

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 27.—Political leaders from Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine and Connecticut have come to President Taft with some gloomy predictions as to Republican prospects in the approaching elections. Rhode Island alone of the New England group of states remains to be heard from, and there is not much comfort in the situation there, it is feared.

While there is no danger in Vermont being actually lost to the party, its early election date, falling in September, has led to its vote being usually regarded as an excellent political barometer throughout the country, and the records show that a good, substantial Republican vote in the Green Mountain State has always foreshadowed the triumph of the party in the nation at large. This year preliminary canvasses indicate a tremendous falling off in the strength of the party.

In Maine, once "rock-ribbed," the state of Blaine, Reed, Dingley and many others whom the Republicans delight to honor, actual defeat is threatening the leaders: Mr. Fernald, the Republican candidate, is likely to be defeated by Mr. Plaisted, the Democratic standard bearer, according to data gathered by anxious Republican leaders. It is also predicted that the Second congressional district, once represented by the late Nelson Dingley and later by Charles E. Littlefield, is going Democratic.

New Hampshire, President Taft has been informed, is torn by factional troubles. With Mr. Ellis as the regular candidate, and Mr. Bass as that of the progressives, bitter feeling has developed to an extent which seriously threatens the welfare of the party. As a campaign argument for Bass, the story is industriously circulated that he has the warm sympathy of Roosevelt. In this connection it is recalled that Bass, accompanied by Winston Churchill, called at Oyster Bay a few weeks ago and sought an open indorsement from the retired president.

Connecticut's troubles were related to the president by Senator Brandagee and Isaac Ullman, leader in the state party councils. It is understood that they informed the president of a general systematic attack upon the regular candidates for congress by the leaders of the progressive movement, which seems to gain in strength daily.

Friends of Mr. Taft are inclined to feel that the president is taking too complaisant a view of the tour which Roosevelt is now making throughout the west. These friends are convinced that Roosevelt's present tour simply means that the lion hunter is beginning a campaign for his own re-election as president in 1912.

The wisdom of the president's letter to Griscom is questioned and in some quarters the criticism is made that the letter implies too much of a surrender to Roosevelt all along the line.

GROWTH OF Y. M. C. A.

Now Has Membership Well Upward of Half a Million

New York, Aug. 27.—The Year Book of the North American Y. M. C. A., now being issued, shows the membership of the associations to have well passed the 500,000 mark.

There are 2017 associations, an increase of 103 during the year. Of these 868 alone report 496,581 members, more than 150,000 of whom are boys in their teens, and 68,000 are in industrial occupations.

The associations have made a net gain of $5,049,250 in property, making a total of $67,865,000. They have also $6,534,609 pledged to erect new or larger buildings.

WILL CONTINUE TO FIGHT

Koreans Said to Have Already Killed Twenty Thousand Japanese

New York, Aug. 27.—More than 20,000 Japanese soldiers have been killed by the Koreans in the latter's war to throw off the tightening yoke of Nippon, and the Nationalists of the Hermit Kingdom are preparing for an organized struggle, according to statements made by S. H. Kimm.

Mr. Kimm, formerly an attache of the Korean legation at Washington, is now president of the Korean Patriotic association of New York.

HARVEST QUEEN IS LOST

Big Ship Was One of the Last of Nova Scotia's Square-Riggers

Bremen, Aug. 27.—A dispatch from Fayal reports that its steamship Koeningin Luise encountered on Aug. 24 the ship Harvest Queen of Windsor, N. S., which sailed from Dalhousie, N. B., Aug. 10 for Buenos Ayres, in a sinking condition. All the crew of the Harvest Queen were taken aboard the Koeningin Luise, and the ship was set afire to prevent her becoming a menace to navigation.

The ship Harvest Queen was one of the largest wooden square-rigged vessels in existence, and almost the last of the once great fleet of Nova Scotia wind jammers. She was built at Cornwallis, N. S., in 1887. She registered 2041 tons gross and 1894 net. Her commander, Captain Forsyth, had a crew of twenty-two men.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
NORFOLK, SS. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next of-kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of HENRY E. HARDWICK late of Quincy in said County, deceased:

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Charles H. Hardwick, Sidney C. Hardwick and Robert A. Hardwick of said Quincy and Everett V. Hardwick of Dorchester County of Suffolk who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bonds.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy in said County of Norfolk, on the fourteenth day of September A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in Quincy the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, JAMES H. FLINT, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this nineteenth day of August in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

LAND COURT.

To Charles H. Wilson, Mary A. Harvey, Etta J. Moses, Gerda E. Nelson and Harriet E. Turner of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; M. Josie Belcher, Helen A. Dearing and Frank H. Dearing, of Braintree, in said County of Norfolk, Trustees under instrument recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 1017, Page 572; James D. Taber, of Boston, in the County of Suffolk and said Commonwealth, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Carrie E. Darrow, of said Quincy, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situate in said Quincy, bounded and described as follows: Southerly by Bay View Avenue forty five (45) feet; Westerly by land now or late of Mary A. Harvey one hundred sixty eight and 67-100 (168.67) feet; Northeasterly by land now or late of Etta J. Moses fifty and 5-10 (50.5) feet; and Easterly by land now or late of Gerda E. Nelson one hundred forty six and 83-100 (146.83) feet. Containing 7099 square feet of land; and being shown on a plan by White & Wetherbee, C. E., dated Jan. 1906, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 1017, Page 575.

Petitioner claims as appurtenant to the above described land rights of way in Bay View Avenue (private way) in common with others entitled thereto.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twelfth day of September A. D. 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear a said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, CHARLES THORNTON DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eighteenth day August in the year nineteen hundred and ten.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

FOREST SERVICE NEEDS MONEY

Appropriation Not Enough For Adequate Protection

PINCHOT ISSUES STATEMENT

Blames Opponents For Forest Fires Which Have Caused Losses Millions of Dollars In Excess of Amount of Money Allowed For 1910—Single Ranger For Tract of 25,000 Acres—Says That Lesson Is Perfectly Clear

Washington, Aug. 27.—Gifford Pinchot, former forester of the United States, in a bristling statement, lays directly at the door of Senator Heyburn of Idaho, Senator Carter of Montana, and Representative Mondell of Wyoming, and their like in congress, their share of the responsibility of the fatal fires which have devastated the forsts of Washington and extinguished scores of human lives and perhaps $50,000,000 of property.

In making light of the efforts of the forest service to prepare itself to prevent just such calamities as this, Pinchot says these men have been fighting on the side of fires against the general welfare. It will be recalled that in 1909 Heyburn led a bitter fight to cut the forest service appropriation in two. He and the other men mentioned have fought the service from the start, and have been especially bitter because of the excellent work of its intelligent publicity department. The forest fires appropriation for this year is about $6,000,000, which, according to the latest estimates, amounts to only about one-eighth of the loss suffered in the state of Washington alone.

The forest rangers, who are mounted, are required to cover 25,000 acres each. The force is pitifully small, in the opinion of the friends of the forest service, but even with its limitation Pinchot says it has put out every year many thousands of small fires, any one of which under certain conditions might have developed into a conflagration which 10,000 men could not stop. The fires are caused by locomotives, campers and more than might generally be supposed, by lightning.

While the forest ranger necessarily acts alone, he is of great practical value to a community in blazing trails. The establishment of the forest telephone service also has proved of great use in summoning and assembling men to fight fires before they have much headway. Extension of this class of work has been pressed for in congress and has been regularly opposed by a group of men at whom Pinchot now hurls his thunderbolt.

Pinchot's Statement

The Pinchot statement, which furnished a glittering example of the Roosevelt method of taking advantage of psychological opportunities for driving an idea home to the people, is as follows:

"First—I am proud of the splendid work the men of the forest service have been doing against the western forest fires. Many of them have given their lives to protect the home of settlers and the forest on which the prosperity of the western people depend. To my mind their conduct is beyond all praise.

"Second—Forest fires are preventable. It is a good thing for us to remember at this time that nearly or quite all of the loss, suffering and death these fires have caused is wholly unnecessary.

"A fire in the forest is the same kind of thing as a fire in the city. There is only one way to fight either. The fire department of every city is organized with the prime idea of getting to the fire when it is young. So with forest fires. The time to conquer them is before they grow strong. If a forest is equipped with roads, trails, telephone lines and a reasonable number of men for patrol there is no more likelihood that great fires will be able to get started than there is that great conflagrations like the Chicago fire will get started in a city with a modern fire department. Under rare circumstances they may, but the chances are aganst it.

"The forest service has done wonders with its handful of devoted men. It has put out every year many thousands of small fires, any one of which under favorable conditions might have developed into a conflagration which 10,000 men could not stop. This year, because of the great drouth, the worst in much of the west for more than twenty years, there were too many fires and too few rangers.

"The lesson from these forest fires is perfectly clear. When a city suffers from a great fire it does not retrench in its fire department, but strengthens it. That is what the nation might do on the national forests.

"If even a small fracton of the loss from the present fires had been expended in additional patrol and preventative equipment, some or perhaps nearly all of the loss could have been avoided. I believe our people will take this lesson to heart and insist that the settlers and their wives and children, the lumbermen and the miners, and the $2,000,000,000 worth of national property in the national forests, shall be adequately protected."

Principality of Montenegro Will Tomorrow Become a Kingdom

Cettinje, Montenegro, Aug. 27.—The little principality of Montenegro, which, by the elevation of Bulgaria to sovereign rank in 1908, was left the sole Balkan state not enjoying the title of kingdom, will join its sister states tomorrow, when the principality will be declared a kingdom and Prince Nicholas, its picturesque ruler, will take the title of King of Montenegro and for the first time in his life receive the royal salute of 101 guns.

Strange scenes are now being witnessed in the picturesque little capital of the "land of the black mountain," the accommodations of which are inadequate to house one-tenth of the visitors here to attend the festivities accompanying the Montenegrin jubilee, which opens tomorrow.

BATH FOILS PLAN OF CHARITY SEEKER

Had Two Well-Filled Wallets Hidden In His Clothing

New York, Aug. 27.—A bath kept Hamper Dastigian from getting free transportation for himself and two children to Constantinople through the Armenian Colonial association.

He applied at a late hour for aid in getting back, saying $25 was all the money he had. The association arranged with the municipal lodging house to care for him and his children until he could get a ship.

The children were scrubbed and put to bed. Dastigian didn't care for a shower bath, but eventually he submitted. He seemed to want to take his clothes with him under the shower. He watched the garments every minute and finally, unable to stand the strain any longer, sprang for them.

The lodging house men saw the Armenian trying to hide two wallets containing $260. He will now have to pay his own way back.

GORE PROBERS ADJOURN

Will Meet In November to Formulate Report to Congress

Pawhuska, Okla., Aug. 27.—The committee of the house of representatives, which has been investigating the Gore bribery charges and the McMurray land contracts, completed its work in Okahoma and adjourned to meet in Washington in November.

Working for almost four weeks, the committee has examined more than 100 witnesses and has taken testimony that will fill two printed volumes. After working in Washington the committee will formulate its report for submission to congress.

OSTEOPATHS TURNED DOWN

Court Refuses Them the Right to Issue Burial Permits

New York, Aug. 27.—Justice Putnam in the state supreme court in Brooklyn sustained the board of health in its refusal to issue burial permits on death certificates signed by osteopaths.

The court held that osteopaths, while their practice might be of a grade just as high as that of regular practitioners, were not qualified by their studies to determine the cause of death.

Trimmed Hub Men For $6000

Boston, Aug. 27.—John Bagley, who was arrested in Toronto yesterday for larceny of jewelry and passing worthless checks, had a whirlwind career of high finance in Boston, and, it is said, left this city with about $6000 of local business men's money. His stay here was limited to three days, he having disappeared last Wednesday.

THE BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Why Hubbite Stenographers Hobble to Business on High Heeled Pumps Excites Wonder of Artists—A Fad That May be Injurious and is Certainly Inartistic—A Spanish Yachtsman Pays Graceful Compliments to American Fair Sex—Potatoes and Tomatoes Peddled by Harvard Graduates from Big Automobile Arouses Admiration of Bay State Suburbanits—A Bostonized Brood of Mermaids and Mermen is Being Bred by the Popular Swimming Contests.

Once again have American women been likened to the shapely types of ancient Greece, fair alike of form and feature. The comparison is made this time by a leading member of the Spanish Federation of Yacht Clubs whose charming courtesy captured Marblehead and the yachtsmen and particularly the yachtswomen of this coast during their visit for the international sonder races. The spokesman who voiced the gallant sentiment is secretary of the Federation, Senor Eduardo de Ubao, and he expressed himself as delighted not only with American women but as agreeably surprised with practically everything he has seen during his visit. Senor de Ubao approves of the habit of young women in this country of participating in outdoor sports, gymnasium work and the various athletic exercises which, in his judgment, produce well developed, graceful women. Spanish women have lived in considerable retirement heretofore, but Senor de Ubao expresses himself as very glad that in some parts of Spain the women are beginning to live out of doors more and are adopting the athletic sports which are so generally the rule in America.

A recent Harvard graduate blithely singing "Potatoes! Fresh tomatotes! Spinach!" from behind the wheel of a large automobile loaded with crisp, fresh vegetables was the spectacle that surprised the eyes of housewives in a certain section of one of the Boston suburbs a short time ago. This young man, known in college as Frank Smith, a society youth devoted to autoing and the owner of two big touring cars, probably did not anticipate becoming a street hawker when he was graduated, but he has found that with the innovation of an automobile to convey his fruit and vegetables in quick time from producers to consumer, and the possession of a pair of lungs strengthened by four years of college yells, he is in position to outdistance all competitors in the garden truck business. Mr. Smith incidentally owns a garage which is doing a flourishing business, but he considers that this is merely a side issue as compared with the new method of selling vegetables.

A Boston young woman again leads in practical philanthropic work. Miss Nora Iasigi and her mother, Mrs. Osa Iasigi, well known in Boston and Lenox society, have established a training school in which the native girls of the Berkshires may learn sewing, millinery, cooking and other useful arts, under the most favorable conditions. The school is largely due to the influence of Miss Nora, who is a living denial of the prevailing opinion that all society girls are brainless butterflies. A few years ago Mrs. Iasigi established a school for boys, where basket making and carpentry were the chief studies, but this school for girls is the first of its kind to be undertaken in the western part of the state, and the project is very popular among the people of the surrounding communities.

About all the Bostonians who were not on their vacations flocked to the aviation field at Atlantic on various days through the week and on Sunday several thousands wended their way to the big exhibition grounds. Many residents who habitually extend their vacations to cover Labor Day are making plans to return to the city in time to watch this great gathering of man-birds, which will surpass any exhibition thus far given. A few of the aeronauts have already arrived and are at work on their quarters, and the entire vicinity of the field is humming with activity, as under the skilful hands of the workmen the big grandstand is rounding into final form, the boat landings are made safe and commodious, and the roadways in all directions are being prepared for the travel which will tax their facilities for one lively week.

Miss Boston has a bad case of water on the brain. Her head fairly swims from watching swimmers by the dozens bent on making the record from Charlestown Bridge to Boston Light. Thus far, however, only Alois Anderle and little Rose Pitonof have succeeded in the attempt. On Sunday, Aug. 21, twelve sturdy and expert swimmers started out with the Boston Light as their goal, but adverse conditions thwarted them all. Miss Annie Morecroft, who declares that she is as well able to make the light as Miss Pitonof, is determined to try it again on Sept. 4, and Alois Anderle, who first accomplished the feat, will also try it on that day, with the intention of encircling the light. In the meantime, these athletic feats have done as much perhaps as all the advising and lecturing in the world toward inducing the novice to acquire the art, and the beach instructors and swimming schools have received an astonishing impetus.

Two Boston artists, riding in town on the trolley on a recent morning became interested in the footwear of the young women about them. Their attention was first attracted by the entrance of a girl who bore the hallmarks of the stenographer. Incidentally on her feet she wore a pair of tiny suede pumps, very tight about the toes and supported on four inch heels. The gentlemen then began to wonder if this was the customary penance which women imposed upon themselves for being in the working class. An inspection of the rows of daintily and otherwise shod feet was quite illuminating to these men who had not previously given the subject much serious thought. One woman among the score or more on the trolley wore a sensible, medium-heeled, well kept pair of walking shoes, which were far more attractive than the freak patterns around her. There were gay ties with run-over heels, fancy stockings with unpolished oxfords, sheer silk stockings and evening shoes on their way to stand behind a counter all day, while the wearer undoubtedly wondered why she was so fatigued and nervous. The striking fact was that despite the "stylishness" and smartness of the young women and their varied footgear, there was an appalling lack of really artistic beauty about any of the shoes. Why does not some enterprising shoe manufacturer employ a designer with at least a lurking sense of the artistic and innovate a shoe that shall be at once sensible, healthful and pleasing to the senses of people who believe that there should be grace harmony and beauty in even such utilitarian objects as coverings for our feet? Ethel Angier.

Boston, Aug. 26, 1910.

A plumber was sent to the house of a wealthy stockbroker to make repairs. He was taken by the butler into the dining room, and was beginning his work when the lady of the house entered.

"John," said she, with a suspicious glance toward the plumber, "remove the silver from the sideboard at once and lock it up."

But the man of lead was in no wise disconcerted. "Tom," said he to his assistant, who accompanied him, "take my watch and chain and these few coppers home to my missus at once."—The Helper.

BRIEFS

A delightful morning.

Roland Estes of Washington street will spend next week in Salem.

The joint caucuses in Quincy will be held Tuesday, Sept. 27.

Henry Trask of Silver street has returned to Quincy after an enjoyable three weeks in Maine.

Quite a decided change in the temperature today from what it has been for the past few days.

Miss Jennie Boutilier is confined to her home by ptomaine poisioning caused by eating ice cream cones.

Mrs. August Viden of Viden road, left last night for New York where she will spend a few weeks with friends.

The Washington M. French Hose Association has city officials and others as its guests this afternoon at the Squantum Inn.

Next week people who have been away during the summer months will turn their faces homeward, and settle down for the winter.

Owing to the delay in the spring at the new school building at Houghs Neck, caused by the cement not setting, the building will probably not be ready when the schools open Sept 6.

Ex-Chief Engineer A. L. Litchfield who underwent a surgical operation at the City Hospital is out again although he must keep quiet for a time yet.

Rev. A. K. McLeennan D. D., of Boston will preach in the United Presbyterian church on Sunday morning. Alfred J. Barnard of Quincy will have charge of the evening service.

An aeroplane is housed under a tent at North Weymouth Bluffs, near the Quincy and East Weymouth car line, which it is said to make a trial trip next week.

The regular Christian Endeavor meeting will be held in the Wollaston Baptist church Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, leader, Kenneth Albee. All are most cordially invited.

All the buildings on the large lot at the corner of Washington and Chubbuck streets have been moved to the rear, and it is said a business block will be erected. Sixth avenue is being extended through Chubbuck street, through what was formerly a pond.

Instead of winding up the racing season with a smoker, as planned, the Quincy Yacht club will hold a grand cup celebration and dinner late in September. At this time the various cups won by Quincy Yacht club boats the present season will be presented and exhibited.

Squantum now wishes to have the newspapers specially designate it as the place where the Harvard Aeronautical Society is to hold its Harvard-Boston aero meet. Thus does it mean to make the air as well as the sea contribute to its greatness.—Monitor.

SOUTH STATION THE BUSIEST

About 90,000 Passengers Use It Daily

The South station in Boston now handles more passengers than the North station, and is the busiest station in the country. Approximately 93,000 enter or leave the station daily against 70,000 at the North station.

During the fiscal year which ended June 30 last, the North and South stations handled 59,933,088 revenue passengers over three railroads. These figures represent a gain of 3,402,819 passengers, or 5.6 per cent. more than in the fiscal year of 1909. Of the total, 34,156,719, or 56 per cent. arrived or departed at the South station, a gain of 834,683, or 2.5 per cent. over the preceding year.

Both the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Boston & Albany roads shared in these figures. The former road handled at this station 26,208,127 passengers, or 562,091 more than in 1909, a gain of 2.2 per cent. The outward and inward bound passengers numbered, respectively, 13,236,220 and 12,971,907.

The Boston & Albany road handled at the South station 23 per cent. of the total traffic of the terminal, amounting to 7,948,592 passengers, a gain of 272,592, or 3.5 per cent. over 1909.

The Boston & Albany road at the North station made a gain of 11 per cent. in the number of passengers handled during the year, the total figures being 25,776,369, or 2,568,136 more than in the preceding fiscal year. Approximately 70,620 passengers use this station daily.

☞Every dollar spent in Quincy helps the city. And every merchant who keeps the goods that the people want; sells them at the right prices; treats his customers courteously and squarely; serves them promptly and in a businesslike manner and insists that his clerks shall do the same and then LETS THE PUBLIC KNOW WHAT HE IS DOING can help to keep trade in Quincy. They are buying goods somewhere. There is a way to reach them. ADVERTISE.

WITH THE LOCAL SPORTS

Averages of Quincy Team--Big Trot Next Week

The fielding and clubbing records of the Quincy team in the Old Colony league are presented again. At the bat Lonny Connelly and Lonergan are the only boys to show any improvement, the rest dropping off considerably. The small number of games played makes each variance seemingly out of proportion. Team batting is fair at .260, but this is dragged down by Ford's negative percentage. In the field all the boys held their own except Annie with two miscues and Fish with a bum chuck. The team fields somewhat below the standard the grand average being 930, but this may be accounted for by the fact that our fielders go after everything without consideration for so mere a thing as a fielding average:

BATTING.

Fay	.416
Duggan	.360
Briggs	.310
Nowell	.290
Lonergan	.281
Glaze	.250
Fish	.235
Armstrong	,233
Connelly	.226
Ford	1000
Connelly	1.000

FIELDING.

Glaze	1.000
Ford	1,000
Briggs	.976
Fish	.966
Fay	.941
Duggan	.938
Armstrong	.916
Lonergan	.902
Nowell	.667

• • •

Connelly has a grand fielding record and despite his low average has broken up more than one game with the stick, as has Armstrong.

• • •

Two or three of the boys went the distance last Saturday without connecting safely.

• • •

Bill Duggan is a great player all right and he is not really big either.

• • •

Let us have peace. At the rest of our league games.

• • •

The locals play at the Labor Day picnic at Lovell Grove, New Downer Landing.

• • •

A postponed game and two scheduled games, beside today's and the season is over.

• • •

• • •

A meeting to organize an Old Colony basket ball league was held at Randolph on Thursday evening, Quincy, Brockton, Stoughton, Hyde Park, Randolph and Braintree being represented. Quincy was represented by Thomas Mullen, who intimated that the St. Marys would probably represent Quincy and that the games would probably be played in Alpha hall. Another meeting will be held at Brockton next Friday. The league will probably include six teams and 40 games will be played beginning about Nov. 15.

• • •

All roads will lead to the Readville Trotting Park next week. A big racing card and some added features are scheduled. The program is: Tuesday —$15,000 American Derby, $10,000 trotting division and $5000 pacing division; 2:08 class trot. Wednesday—$10,000 American Horse Breeder futurity $7000 trotting division, $3000 pacing division, $1000 2:08 class pace $1000 2:12 class trot. Thursday—$10,000 Massachusttts stake for 2:14 class trotters, $1200 2:10 class trot, $3000 Bunker Hill stake for 2:05 class pacers. Friday— $2500 Norfolk stake for 2:14 class pacers, $1000 2:16 class pace, $1000 2:16 class trot. All of these races are two in three with the exception of the 2.08 trot, 2:10 trot, 2:16 pace and 2:16 trot, these four being on the old-fashioned three in five lines. In addition to the races there will be two exhibitions against time that are expected to result in the establishing of new world's records. One of these will be the attempt of C. K. G. Billings' black trotting gelding Uhlan, to lower his own record of 1:58 3 4; the other that of Ed Geers' stallion The Harvester, to improve upon his own world's trotting stallion record of 2:02, made by him in the third heat of his race at the Fort Erie track last week. The attempt of Uhlan will be made Tuesday, the first day of the meeting, while it is expected that The Harvester will go for a new stallion mark on Thursday.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Morton of Spear street, have returned from a trip to Canada, which proved very enjoyable, both returning in good health and benefited by the outing.

His Mistake.

They were in the thick of their first quarrel.

"I thought your tastes were simple,' said the husband. "I didn't expect to find you such a high flier."

"Yes, you did," she answered. "You knew all about my being a high flier, as you call it, but you thought I'd be dirigible."

The Man of It.

He kicked about his dinner and said mean things to his wife;
He growled about his breakfast every morning of his life.
At night, though, in some choice cafe while loafing with his bunch
Of rowdy comrades he was loud in praising the free lunch.

Mexican Asphalt.

Pure liquid asphalt seeps from the earth in a number of places in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas, but so far from existing methods of transportation that no efforts have been made to exploit it.

Sleep and Noise.

Experiments show that during profound sleep a noise not sufficient to awaken the sleeper produces a perceptible rise in the temperature of the brain and the head.

INFIELDS OUTRANK OUTER GARDENS

More Star Combinations Can Be Selected For Inner Circle.

ATHLETICS' GREAT QUARTET.

Davis, Collins, Barry and Baker Are Best In Country—Chicago Has Crack Four—Tigers', Pirates' and Cubs' Outfielders Are Pippins.

Although it takes four men to make an infield and only three for an outfield, there are more good infields than outfields. It seems to be easier to find four infielders who as a group measure up to the standard than to find three such outfielders on one club. True, the infields have more chance to show what they can do, but the fine work in the outfield, such as throwing and cutting off long hits, doesn't appear even relatively as often as fancy infield work.

There are only three outfields in the big leagues that for ground covering, throwing and speed in getting after long hits rate up to A1 grade. These are the Detroit, Chicago National and Pittsburg outfields. Notwithstanding Pittsburg's bumps this year, Clarke, Leach and Wilson are three sweet gardeners. Hoffman, Schulte and Sheckard are an outfield hard to improve on, while Cobb and Crawford are pippins, with either McIntyre or Jones in left classy enough to fit in nicely. Lewis, Hooper and Speaker of the Boston Red Sox make a pretty nice outfield and one likely to get better.

The best infield in the country is that of the Philadelphia Americans—Davis, Collins, Barry and Baker. It can hit, run bases and on defense is nearer to air tight than any other present day quartet. Stahl, Gardner, Wagner and Engle of Boston are a fast four, but without the class at all corners of the Athletics. Chance, Evers, Tinker and Steinfeldt, the Chicago four, make a strong cordon, but one which has a shade less of the fire of youth of the Athletic quartet. Merkle, Doyle, Bridwell and Devlin of New York are a combination not as evenly balanced in ground covering ability as could be wished, the greater ability being on the left side.

The New York Americans' infield is also out of balance, having a preponderance of ability on the right side. Cincinnati's infield is well balanced, and so is that of the Phillies. Pittsburg's always has lacked finish at first base, but is a hummer otherwise. Cleveland's is stronger in the middle than on the extremities. Brooklyn's is fast individually, lacks stability as a whole, but is likely to improve. The St. Louis Nationals has a tidy infield and one that can cover lots of ground from first to short, inclusive.

Take any of the present day infields and they do not outshine bygone infields of the Tenny-Lowe-Long-Collins standard or of the Doyle-Peitz-Jennings-McGraw standard. But then those were in a class by themselves in their day. As a whole, the infields of the present day rate up as high now as then.

Were there one twelve club league nowadays it is probable that more high class infields could be put together than were found fifteen years ago.

New American League Umpire.

J. H. Colliflower, known as a pitcher a decade ago, is now a member of the American league umpiring staff. Colliflower was signed to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Jack Sheridan from active duty on the field. He came from the South Atlantic league. The newcomer was a pitcher for the Cleveland club in 1899.

To a Beef Stew.

Some bards have dared in rhyme to eulogize
The terrapin—sweet dream of succulence.
From other lips enraptured paeans rise
To sparkling wine that with the sunlight vies.
Some Roman bards in epic strains have sung
Lucullian lampreys, fresh from marbled pools,
And pearls of poetry they oft have strung
Upon the thread of lark's or thrush's tongue.
Unmeasured risk, in raising pigs to view
As pieces in the literary game,
Charles Lamb has run.
But where, oh, where's the singer of beef stew?
Alas, the task of raising THAT to fame
Most writers shun.
(I do,
For one.)

A Soiled Ideal.

He said, "I'll go back to the farm,"
Because awhile he felt his oats,
But farming went against the grain,
And now on asphalt walks he dotes.
However hot the sun may be,
"No farmer's life," he says, "for me!"

NOTABLE GATHERING OF VETERAN FIREMEN

Annual Reunion of Washington M. French Hose Association at Squantum

Mayor Shea and ex-Mayor Porter Among the Guests

The annual reunion of the Washington M. French Hose Association was held Saturday at the Squantum Inn, Squantum, and without exception it was one of the largest attended and most enjoyable annual gatherings that the association has ever had. The weather was ideal, the dinner of the best, and not one thing occurred to marr the pleasure of the day.

The larger part of the party made the trip to Squantum in a special car that left City Square at 4.50. Every car after that took some of the party down, so that nearly ninety were present at 5.30 when dinner was announced. The afternoon was passed on the broad piazzas, where the old vets could enjoy the cool westerly breeze and an unobstructed view of the aviation field, while they talked over old times, and fought over again some of the memorable fires during the days of the old hand tubs. Meanwhile Wilson's orchestra was discoursing popular airs in the parlor. Many of those present had not seen each other since the gathering a year ago, and they had many things to tell of events that had transpired during the past twelve months in their particular world.

The tables were laid in the main dining room in the form of a large horse shoe, an emblem of good luck. At 5.30 all were seated with appetites as keen as razors. At the head table was Fred F. French, the genial president of the association, as well as the son of him for whom the association was named. Others at this table included Mayor Shea, James T. Penniman, an ex-engineer and the oldest member of the association, Hon. Charles H. Porter, the first mayor of Quincy, ex-Engineer James H. Elcock, City Clerk Harrison A. Keith, John Q. A. Field, who has held many offices in the gift of the town, city and county, ex-Chief Engineer John Whitney Hall, Elmer E. Abercrombie of Braintree a descendant of one of the original members of the W. M. French Hose Co., Councilman Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., Chief Engineer Peter J. Williams Senator Eugene C. Hultman, Medical Examiner Dr. Fred E. Jones, Representative William R. Thomas and District Engineer Daniel J. Nyhan.

Others seated at the tables were Robert J. Hayes, D. F. Crowley, M. W. Gordon, C. G. Fletcher, Edwin Kittredge, Charles W. Lincoln, Albert G. Doliver, Frank J. Leonard, Frank W. Nightingale, Frank W. Hall, Joseph W. Dennen, Benjamin King, an old Boston veteran fireman, ex-Representative Peter T. Fallon, Frank L. Carleton, Aubrey R. Keith, Quincy Torrey, Joseph C. Morse, Edward Dunn, Henry Souther, Henry L. Miller, Joseph Shafer of the Firemen's Standard, Walter H. Cobb of the Journal, George T. Magee of the Daily Ledger, Charles E. Harding, Arthur C. Merritt, George Foss, Samuel Tutton, James Nicol, William Robb, George A. Thompson, Councilman Charles A. Ericson, R. J. Griffin, J. H. Whicher, Thomas Butler, James W. Pierce, C. F. Foster, Gilbert H. Rhodes, City Messenger Harry W. Tirrell, District Engineer Frank C. Packard, William Coffin, W. F. Loud, Galen V. Bowditch, Frank S. Patch, City Engineer Ezekiel C. Sargent, Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker, Philip Cook, Frank A. Wilkie, W. A. Hill, Lafayette Gleason, Walter M. Packard, Daniel J. Desmond, Edward Desmond, Joseph Jepson, George Tirrell, Jesse F. Curtis the genial secretary of the association; Asa Pope, Eliab Ramsdell, John H. Dinegan, Elwood M. Litchfield, Walter S. Randall, Richard Newcomb, Albert Keating, George O'Brien, George H. Ford and Joseph Whall, and last but not least the genial James E. Maxim, without whom no gathering of the veterans would be complete.

In this company were representatives of all of the pieces of fire apparatus that defended the town from fire in the old days and each of these old companies had a sponsor except perhaps the old Niagara, whose active career was cut off on the night when the arch fiend fire, only destroyed its home but the engine itself, and the old John W. Hall Hook & Ladder which is still doing good service at West Quincy. No one lifted his voice to tell of the good deeds of this old tub, or what records she might have have broken in her palmy days, neither was there a whisper of the many good times held about the round tables in the hall of the Hook & Ladder house that stood on what was then Canal street, but now answers to the more modern name of Revere road.

THREE FIRES ON SUNDAY

One on Parker Street Probably Incendiary

Three times Sunday the fire department was called out. Twice on bell alarms, and once by a telephone call.

The first fire was at 3.30 Sunday morning, when a telephone call to Hose 4 sent that piece of apparatus to a lively blaze in the Clairmont House on Lawrence street, a boarding house for Fore River workmen. The fire was confined to one of the rooms in the upper part of the house, and is said to have been caused by one of the men throwing a lighted lamp during a drunken row. A blaze was immediately started, but the telephone was handy. Hose 4 quickly responded and succeeded in extinguishing the fire without sounding a bell alarm. The loss is estimated at $75. The police are making an investigation as to the cause of the fire.

Sunday morning at 5 o'clock an alarm was sounded from Box 41 for a fire in an unoccupied house on Parker street, owned by the Adams Real Estate Trust. The fire was burning briskly when the department arrived and it was a stubborn fight for a few minutes to get at. It is said that the fire was the work of an incendiary. The loss is estimated at $800. Parker street is a rough street and the fire department had considerable difficulty in reaching the scene.

The third alarm of the day came at 4.44 Sunday afternoon, when an alarm was sounded from Box 172, but was followed inside of five minutes by the recall. This was for a fire in the automobile of Charles F. Jones, and was caused by the explosion of gasoline that leaked from the machine while left standing in the street. The machine was damaged to the extent of $25.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Sullivan was fined $15, John Rush $10, Hans Fossdal $10, Arthur McCarthy $10, William O'Brien $15, Robert Jay $10, and John McCarthy $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Menry L. McGue and Edward Claxton were arraigned for engaging in a game of cards at Milton on the Lords day and McGue fined $15 and Claxton $25.

Ernest Pletsch and Lucian Thayer were fined $5 each for carrying firearms on the parkway.

Edward F. Condick was arraigned for assault on his wife Rose Condick of Weymouth. Cast continued until Nov. 1, on payment of costs amounting to $3.25.

The flagship Aloha built at Quincy for Commodore James of the New York yacht club, sails from New York Sept. 7 for European waters with Commodore James and party of friends.

QUINCYS PUSH STOUGHTON INTO LAST PLACE

Weymouths and Randolphs Shut Out and Lincolns Are Pushing Them Hard

Rockland Moves Up One but Rather Late

The only change in the standing of the Old Colony league by Saturday's games is at the bottom of the pile, where Rockland by a tremendous burst of speed has landed in fifth place by winning two straight, and Stoughton after an awful drubbing by the Quincy warriors takes Rockland's old job. Weymouth's hitherto firm grip on second place was sadly shaken by Lincoln, who won on consecutive hits. Rockland is hitting the pace now, and given a better start would cause the leaders some apprehension. Quincy of course, is still handily in the lead and will continue so, as there is not the least chance that Weymouth or Randolph can overtake us.

Saturday's games resulted as follows:

Quincy 11, Stoughton 3.
Lincoln 2, Weymouth 0.
Rockland 4, Randolph 0.

The league standing:

	Won.	Lost	Per.
Quincy	12	4	.750
Weymouth	8	6	.571
Randolph	8	7	.533
Lincoln	8	8	.500
Rockland	5	10	.333
Stoughton	5	11	.313

THE QUINCY GAME.

Quincy again ran away with Stoughton on Saturday, in one of the wierdest games ever played on the local battlefield, Stoughton actually committing eight errors, three of which are credited to Fitzgerald. Reardon, Monahan, Holland and Murphy were the only visitors to retain a clean sheet in the field. In addition to this pitcher Stevenson was walloped for ten clean hits, two of them three baggers and a scratch single.

Shimmer O'Brien pitched for Quincy, and allowed only six hits, none of them for extra bases. Mike Shea tried out Charley Knight of Adams A. A., in the ninth with Bernie Boyle of the Fore River Apprentices to catch him, and the colt battery worked finely. Although Knight allowed two passes, Boyle nipped the first man stealing. Knight fanned, Link Elcock and Murphy popped. Knight will probably pitch one of the Labor Day games.

"Mr. Bill" Duggan was first up and singled to left, and on Fitz' error took third while Armstrong was safe at first. Armstrong stole second and on Delaney's passed ball Duggan scored and Annie took third. He scored while Nicoll tossed Lonergan out. Briggs was keeled over by a pitched ball, and Armstrong ran for him. Nowell walked. Armstrong was forced at third by Connelly and Fay fanned. Stoughton went out without threatening.

In the second, Fish was passed and forced by O'Brien. On Nicoll's fumble O'Brien and Duggan were safe and scored on Armstrong's terrible clout to left-center for three corners. Lonergan scored him on a single in the same direction. Lonergan was caught of first and Brigg's struck out.

Stoughtons started her ball rolling in the third, by scoring on successive singles. Holland hit to center and advanced on Elcocks out, second to first. Murphy and Fitzgerald followed with hits to center and right and Holland scored. Dennehy fanned and Monahan popped to O'Brien.

Quincy did nothing in her third and Stoughton went right after it again. Nicoll singled and Delaney put a high on for Connely, who held Nicoll. Matty stole second and scored on Stevenson's hit to left. Holland sacrificed and on Fay's error Stevenson scored. Murphy went out, Fay to Briggs. Stoughton never endangered the plates after this.

Briggs, first up in the seventh, tripled over center, the ball passing the line of fence by a big margin. Nowel scored him on a hit to center. Nowell and Connelly were safe on Elcock's error. On Fay's cack Nowell was forced at third, and Con and Fay scored when Stevenson chucked the ball into the bleache s on Fish's attempt to sacrifice. O'Brien walked and was forced by Duggan. Armstrong was thrown out by Reardon.

In the eighth, Lonergan singled over short and took second on Delaney's passed ball. Murphy muffed Stevenson's throw to get Lonny after Briggs had singled, the runners moving up. Lonergan scored on Dennehy's muff of Nowell's fly, and Briggs scored when Delaney failed to hold the throw to get him. Delancy dropped Connelly's last strike, but threw him out, Nowell taking third. He scored when Murphy tossed Fay

WOLLASTON OPEN RACE

One of Largest and Most Exciting of Season

Ideal weather conditions were handed out to the 71 boats that participated in the annual open race of the Wollaston Yacht club Saturday afternoon, held under the rules of the Y. R. A. of Massachusetts and the Interbay Y. R. A. A dozen or more remained tied up to the floats for lack of sufficient crews to man them in the stiff breeze that prevailed. The bay in front of the club house presented a pretty scene just previous to the start with the many yachts sailing back and forth, the white caps kicked up by the high wind adding flavor to the scene. Reefs were absolutely necessary, and even then the lea rails were at times under water.

The scene was a busy one just before the start, and a fatality was narrowly averted. James Smith, one of the crew of the Eleanor, started to row inshore in the yachts tender for a bob stay. At the same time the yacht Idalia was coming to the float when her main sheet fouled in the wheel, and the yacht crashed into the row boat which was pinned down by the bobstay of the Idalia. For a minute it looked as though the tender would be carried under the bow of the yacht. Fortunately the rough weather caused the bow of the yacht to lift a little, which gave Mr. Smith an opportunity to jump overboard, and he swam toward the stern of the

BREAKS NECK IN HOSPITAL

Old Man Falls From Operating Table While Doctors Are Beside Him

New York, Aug. 29.—John Roache, 69 years old, came by his death in a remarkable way at the Metropolitan hospital, Blackwell's island. While doctors and nurses were beside him, he tumbled from an operating table and broke his neck.

A homeless wanderer, Roache was sent to the hospital June 21. An old shoe he had begged was too small for him and had caused gangrene of the big toe. Aug. 11 the toe and its neighbor were removed from his right foot. There was danger that he might lose his leg.

Roache was placed on the table for his foot to be dressed. Suddenly he rose to a stiting position, lost his balance and fell. He struck the floor on the side of his head and turned a somersault.

It all happened so quickly that neither doctor nor nurse was able to put out a hand to save him. When they stooped to pick him up the man was dead. An inquiry is to be held.

LOCKED IN LONDON CELLS

Formal Charge of Murder Against Crippen and Miss Leneve

London, Aug. 29.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, the American dentist, and his typist, Miss Ethel Leneve, returned to London from Canada, where they were apprehended by the police on suspicion of being connected with the disappearance of Crippen's actress wife, Belle Elmore, and with having knowledge of the mutilated body, believed by the police to be that of Mrs. Crippen, which was found in their Hilltop Crescent residence.

The Crippen party, composed of the two prisoners, Chief Inspector Dew and Sergeant Mitchell of Scotland Yard and the two wardresses who had in charge Miss Leneve, arrived from Liverpool, where they had disembarked a few hours earlier from the Megantic. The party was driven to the Bow street police court, where the accused man and woman were formally charged with the crime and then placed in cells.

BICYCLE ACCIDENT

Boy Riding on Handle Bars Gets Scalp Wound

As a result of a fall from the handle bars of a bicycle on which he was riding on Manet avenue, Houghs Neck, Saturday afternoon, Henry Kasper the twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kasper of Babcock street, Houghs Neck, is in a serious condition at City Hospital.

Kasper and a chum who owns a bicycle had been riding through the streets, Kasper sitting on the handle bars. The boys started down a slight incline and the boy guiding the wheel lost control of it, and Kasper was thrown heavily to the ground. He was picked up unconscious and taken to the home of Mrs. J. A. Lewis, Manet avenue. Dr. William H. Ferris and Dr. John T. Reynolds were called, and upon examination found the boy had received a serious scalp wound, and ordered his removal to the City Hospital.

The boy was placed on the operating table upon his arrival at the hospital and 20 stitches were taken in the wound, which was about nine inches in length. His name was placed on the dangerous list. It was stated at the hospital that the wound was the worst of its kind ever treated there.

HAD 79 DESCENDANTS.

Thomas F. Walsh, the oldest quarryman in Quincy, died Sunday at his home on Gas place aged 86 years. Mr. Walsh has been a resident of Quincy for 61 years, and had been employed as a quarryman all of this time up to a little over a year ago. He had always been a Democrat and never voted anything but that ticket. His wife died several years ago. In all he had thirteen children, seven of whom are now living. He also leaves 32 grand children and 34 great grandchildren.

DID NOT WAIT TO GATHER CLOTHING

Summer Hotel Guests Flee From Fire In Great Hurry

Kennebunkport, Me., Aug. 29.—Summer boarders at the Goose Rock house at Cape Porpoise were obliged to flee for their lives, leaving most of their personal effects behind them, when the house took fire last evening.

The blaze started in a blind attic and had got under such good headway before it was discovered that the guests, many of whom were in the dining room or on the piazzas, had no opportunity to go to their rooms for their valuables and clothing.

Not only the hotel building itself but also a large barn, a cottage on the estate, ice houses, bowling alleys and other buildings were destroyed, with a total loss that probably will exceed $30,000.

In addition to the loss on the buildings and furnishings, the guests' loss will also reach a considerable figure.

There had been a fire in the fireplace all day Sunday, and it is supposed that the fire caught around the chimney as a result.

WATCH OUT FOR BIRD MEN

Man at North Weymouth May Fly This Week

Many were attracted on Sunday to Squantum, where the aviation field is located, but only a few got beyond the gateway, and there was but little doing on the field.

Now it is said that there will be no flights until Tuesday when Horace F. Kearny may try out his Pfitzner monoplane if the motor arrives. Cromwell Dixon will not make his trip to Boston until Wednesday, as part of his outfit has not arrived. Grahame-White and Roe are expected to arrive tomorrow, but at last accounts were on the Cymric in mid ocean.

Meanwhile John M. Alleas and his wife of Boston are busy assembling a multiplane machine at Monatiquot Bluffs, off Bridge street, North Weymouth and welcome those interested. Mr. Alleas is a waiter at Hotel Touraine, 36 years of age, and has been experimenting for a year or more but has never taken a flight. All is now in readiness for the arrival of two 30-horse power motors, and he expects to fly this week. He has great confidence, and feels that he will at least be safe in midair, if he succeeds in flying at all, for according to his theory the apparatus will be unable to collapse, because the weight of the whole will be centrally located below, and if the engines should suddenly go wrong the planes could be manipulated in such a manner as to make the glide to earth an easy matter. In fact, in working out his problem thoretically, Alleas figured on attaining a hight midway between France and England in his flight across the channel that would enable him to coast gently and easily downward to the opposite shore.

HAVE CONFIDENCE IN AMERICAN CONSUL

Nicaraguans Ask That Moffatt Be Made Minister

Bluefields, Aug. 29.—The revolutionary leaders, the Nicaraguan people generally and foreigners unite in the desire for the appointment of Thomas Moffatt, the American consul, as minister to Nicaragua. A telegram has been received from General Estrada, the successful head of the revolution, saying:

"Do not forget when asking for recognition from the United States to strongly suggest to the department of state that the appointment of Mr. Moffatt would perpetuate the confidence existing between the two countries. We are confident that his appointment would be the best pledge and guarantee of future relations."

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING

Young John Kitson Peppered with Small Shot

Two boys John Kitson and Jo. Kenily started out Saturday for an afternoon of shooting. They left the Kitson landing on Blacks creek and rowed to the mouth of the creek, where they started to disembark. John got out of the boat first, and reached for his gun which he was careful to point away from him, being a careful sportsman, but in some way the hammer hit the side of the boat and the gun went off hitting young Kitson, shooting away the thumb and lacerating the right hand. His face and arm was also badly peppered with the shot.

Young Kenily with great presence of mind helped his wounded companion into the boat, and rowed for home as fast as possible, doing all he could to keep up his courage.

On reaching home Mrs. Kitson hastily summoned Dr. Burke and the boy was taken to the City Hospital, where several doctors were soon at work dressing the wounds. Through it all, from the time of the shooting to the dressing of the wounds the boy was a true sportsman, showing grit, in bearing suffering and in cheering up his mother to whom the affair was naturally a great shock. Mr. Kitson who was in New York was summoned, reaching here Sunday morning.

At the Hospital this morning young Kitson was reported as comfortable.

STILL A GOOD HORSEMAN

Roosevelt Has Good Time With Cowboys In Their Own Country

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 29.—On tough, wiry cow ponies and an auto, Theodore Roosevelt rode thirty miles Sunday across the plains of Wyoming.

He wanted to get back once more among the cowboys in their own country and mingle with them as he did in the old days, twenty-seven years ago, when the lure of the west brought him out here.

He visited the sheep ranch of Senator Warren and returned to Cheyenne last night, more enthusiastic than ever about the wonders of the west.

He had a relay of three horses and rode them like a cavalryman. When the ride was over he said he had enjoyed every minute of it and was not a bit stiff of sore. His mounts were spirited ones, which gave him a little trouble, but he never lost control.

WEIGHS POUND AND A HALF

Match Will Hide Finger of Tiny Baby Born to Illinois Couple

Duquoin, Ills., Aug. 29.—A baby girl, weighing one and a half pounds and less than twelve inches in length, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wallace, who live on a farm east of here.

The infant is so tiny that a match will hide one of her fingers, while her head is about the size of a hen's egg. The doctors say she will live.

HOLE STOVE IN KINGDOM'S BOW

Sandford's Vessel Will Probably Be a Total Loss

GOES ASHORE IN DENSE FOG

Half a Hundred Persons Aboard, Including Crew, Forced to Temporary Shelter on Island Off Nova Scotia Coast—Vessel Had Long Been Sailing About North Atlantic Coast, Carefully Dodging Sheriffs

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 29.—The sensational and mysterious sailing and cruising about of Rev. Frank W. Sandford's Holy Ghost and Us barkentine Kingdom has come to an end. The vessel is ashore on Mud island and will probably be a total loss, as she has a large hole near her bow and is somewhat chafed. Water is pouring into her.

She went ashore in a fog with fifty people aboard, including thirty men, women and children passengers. All of the party is encamped in tents or other crude shelter on Mud island.

"We had been cruising along the coast," says Captain Perry, "and we encountered much fog. At the time of the accident we thought we were six miles south of Seal island, but we were really twenty miles to the north."

Long Dodging Around Coast

Boston, Aug. 29.—It is only a few months ago that the Kingdom was in Boston harbor and the sect figured in a sensational court proceeding. It was after the bark had returned from the failure of Sandford's Jerusalem scheme and the captain had been compelled to restore Mrs. Florence Whittaker and her children to liberty in Maine, that she came here.

Whether Sandford was on the yacht was never known, for he kept his presence carefully concealed. Mary Joseph, a Syrian girl, was taken off the boat on a habeas corpus writ, secured by her brother, Wabby Jones. As it was shown she was a willing member of the Kingdom party she was allowed to return. Another writ was secured, however, by her brother, but the ship sailed and the papers were not served.

Since leaving Boston the boat has been sailing about the North Atlantic coast. She kept outside the three mile limit near Portland to avoid having the papers in the case of Mrs. Whittaker served, only putting in shore when the officers who had the papers were elsewhere.

It is generally believed that Sandford is aboard the Coronet, another of his vessels.

The Kingdom was formerly the barkentine Rebecca Crowell, and was purchased by Sandford in 1907. She has made two trips to Palestine, where Sandford attempted to establish permanent colonies, and has not been hauled out of the water for repairs, so far as known, since she became the property of the Holy Ghost and Us society.

She had been given a slight overhauling at Rockland, and while she she was a staunch vessel, it is thought that her long cruises in the warm seas of the east may have left her in a bad condition to resist any heavy strain such as might come from her accident on the Nova Scotia coast.

Why we advertise Lenox Soap.

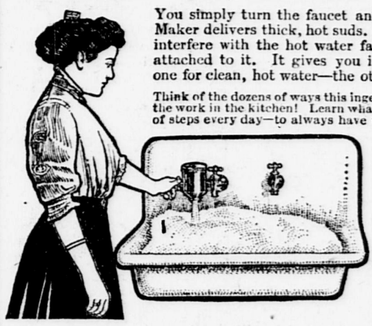

We hope, by advertising, to induce thousands of women, who have never used Lenox Soap, to give it a trial.

If we can do that, the advertising will pay; for a woman who buys one cake of Lenox Soap and gives it a fair trial, is almost certain to keep on buying it.

Lenox Soap—"Just fits the hand"

Try This RICHMOND
Suds-Maker Free

You simply turn the faucet and the "RICHMOND" Suds-Maker delivers thick, hot suds. It does not in any way interfere with the hot water faucet and can be easily attached to it. It gives you instead, two faucets—one for clean, hot water—the other for thick, hot suds.

Think of the dozens of ways this ingenious device will cut down the work in the kitchen! Learn what it means to save hundreds of steps every day—to always have thick, creamy soap suds on tap. The "Richmond" Suds Maker gives you any quantity of soap and water thoroughly mixed in scientific proportion—it is always ready to meet your instant needs. It puts an end to the drudgery of dish washing—simply place dishes, silver, glassware under its creamy suds for an instant, then just rinse and wipe. It puts an instant, automatic end to waste, to unsightly soap dishes, to the nuisance of using up the odds and ends of soap. Use any kind of soap.

Just call on the plumber whose name appears below and ask to see the RICHMOND Suds-Maker. He will let you take one home to try. Use it ten days—then if you think you can spare it, return it, for the trial places you under no obligation to buy. This is your chance to learn about the greatest convenience, money and time saver you can install in your kitchen. Call today.

POSITION UNCHANGED REGARDING TARIFF

President Taft Steers Clear of New Pledge For Revision

New York, Aug. 29.—President Taft, in a letter to Representative McKinley, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, made public at the local headquarters of the committee, pleads for harmony and steers fair and wide of any new pledge to revise the tariff.

In his letter the president defends the tariff, quotes from his memorandum filed with the tariff bill and again says that when the experts, who are to examine schedules with a view to determining the cost of production at home and abroad, report that there is anything wrong with the tariff or any schedule he will call it to the attention of congress.

The president deals with the work of congress during the extra and regular sessions and declares: "Differences within the party were manifested and yet never in its history has the Republican party passed and become responsible for so much useful and progressive legislation."

Concerning the campaign the president says: "The question for decision will be whether we shall have in the house a Republican or a Democratic majority. It is not what complexion of Republicanism one prefers, but simply whether we shall have the Republican party control legislation for the next two years."

Farmer Meets With a Surprise

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 29.—Felix LaCross, a farmer, had missed milk and lay in wait for the culprit. When he saw a dark object crawling through the window he made a grab for it. To his amazement the intruder proved to be a cub bear.

VETERAN FIREMEN

In the brief after dinner speeches, the record runs of the old Granite were defended by Mayor Shea and James H. Elcock. President French and other members of the association saw to it that the records of the old Hose company remained untarnished, while Councilman Whiton made his boasts that the old Vulture was the best of them all, and he could prove it if old Bill Jones was alive, and the records could be found. A surprise was sprung on the party however when John Q. A. Field told of the record run of the old Tigar to Boston which was 15 minutes, this put the Granite claim in the shade by several minutes, and so stunned his hearers that no one rose to deny the claim.

President French in opening the after-dinner exercises said that he was glad to see so many present, and he extended the congratulations of the Hose company to all, and he hoped that they would have as much pleasure at being present as the company was to have them present. He could also announce with pleasure that death had not entered the ranks of the association during the past year, and that every member with one exception was present today, and that member was accounted for.

Mayor Shea congratulated the association on the large gathering. Here we are all veterans and we are proud of it. Chief Williams and his fire brigade are not in it with what we were. They have horses but we had the ropes and we got there. The Mayor also said that he did not intend to blow any about what the Granite had done, for that question had been settled. There are plenty who can tell you of the Tiger and Vulture and what they had done, but none of them were in it with the old Granite. Today with all their horses and automobiles they can not beat the old firemen. That is also settled. Quincy has many things to be proud of, among them is the Washington M. French Hose Association, and he hoped that he would have the pleasure of helping to keep those old associations alive.

President French, in responding, said that the much disputed question of the Granite had been settled by the executive committee of which he was chairman, and there was no appeal from that board. In introducing James T. Penniman, the oldest veteran, he said that he and we all hope that he would live as long as he liked and have all he liked.

Mr. Penniman spoke briefly, saying that he hoped he would live to see all at the next annual gathering. The past year had been the shortest he had ever known. He hoped all would be here a year hence.

Ex-Mayor Porter said that gatherings of this kind were always delightful, as so many citizens were interested. We are a city to be proud of, a town to be proud of in all manner of ways that make every citizen proud that he is a member of it. A few weeks ago he saw Peter go to Boston with his steamer in 22 minutes. We wish that trip had been officially timed. He hoped the Lord would spare all of the members to be here next year in as good health and spirits as they are this evening.

Chief Williams wanted to congratulate the landlord on his excellent supper. Fighting fires today is more scientific than it was in the old days. We have a good department in Quincy, as good as any in the state for its size. When out-of-town people call upon us for help we always make good. At Chelsea we made the run in an hour and fifteen minutes and held the fire in check at one corner with an old broken down steamer. In Boston a few days ago we did good work on High street with our steamer which is second to none.

Ex-Engineer James H. Elcock said that it was a great pleasure to meet the old boys again and talk with them of old times. He hoped the association would continue for many years to hold these annual gatherings and that he should be with them.

Senator Hultman said that this was one of the occasions when it was a pleasure to make a speech. It was a great feeling of satisfaction to meet so many old men still young, and to sit and listen to them and get some of their wisdom. He was only too pleased to extend his respects to the organization and what it stands for.

Representative Thomas was pleased to be present and partake of the good things that had been set before him, and he hoped to be able to come to future gatherings.

Elmer E. Abercrombie could see where he had made a mistake in not attending previous gatherings. A good example had been set by previous speakers in being brief. He had been amused at the statement of Mayor Shea of the run the Granite made in 27 minutes, but he did not say what that run was. My father was one of the original members of this company and he had often heard him say that it was the finest, cleanest and up to date organization that he knew of.

President French said that the Granite Claimed to have made a run to South Boston in 27 minutes and the Hose Co., in 17 minutes.

Councilman Whiton said that the fact still remained that the Vulture holds the record for distance and if you look up the records you can prove it. The old Vulture still lives and does business.

John Q. A. Field, one of the old Selectmen, could understand why the old Tiger beat all the other tubs in their time. She made a run across the bridge in fifteen minutes. He well remembered Washington M. French. He was a glorious and genial man, and he liked to come here and perpetuate his name. He had many a good time way back in the 70's with him.

The speaking closed with the statement of the president that some night during the coming winter Asa Pope would make one of his famous chowders and he hoped to see all present there.

The party then adjourned to the plazzas where they listened to the music, many joining in singing the choruses of the popular airs. Thus ended the anual of 1910 which will be written in the archives of association as one of the best of the many grand good times the association has held.

ALLEGED FIREBUG CAUGHT

Police Say He Admits Having Caused Several Recent Blazes

Boston, Aug. 29.—Morris O'Keefe, who was arrested on suspicion of having caused several fires in the Brighton district, according to the police later confessed to having set the recent fires in the Furbush stables. O'Keefe is 29 years of age and is married.

According to the police, O'Keefe admitted that he had set fire to the A. J. Furbush livery stable Thursday evening, entailing a loss of more than $20,000. He also admitted, the police say, having set five other fires.

When pressed for an explanation as to why he had set these fires the police state that O'Keefe replied that he took delight in watching the fire apparatus respond.

HELD IN $300 EACH

Trial of New Bedford's Alleged Rioters Is Set For Tomorrow

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 29.—Following the clash in this city in the vicinity of the Sharp mill between the police and strikers of the buiding laborers' union, all is peaceful.

The chief interest among the strikers in the situation was the arraignment of the eighteen rioters arrested. All the cases were continued to Aug. 30, the men being held in $300 each for their appearance at that time. Most of the men secured bail.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BRIEFS

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear is enjoying a well earned vacation.

St. Peter and St. Paul courts of Foresters of Boston will take a trolley trip to Quincy on Sunday.

Mrs. Effie Rhines and Miss Helen have returned from their trip to Nova Scotia.

Several officers in citizens dress were at Houghs Neck all day Sunday but made no arrests.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Stephenson of Arlington street left Friday night for a brief trip to New York.

Quincy men helped on Sunday to organize in Boston a State Council of electrical workers unions.

C. Theodore Hardwick is now able to sit out on the piazza these pleasant days, and is recovering from his injuries.

Rev. Dr. Hardy will return this week from New Hampshire and will preach on Friday evening and Sunday.

A whist party is to be held tomorrow night at the Wessagussett Yacht club house and on Friday evening a social and dance.

George L. Phillips and Capt. Ira Blanchard attended the reunion of the Webster regiment at Abington on Saturday.

The police had an automobile trap working on Adams street on Saturday and caught three who were exceeding the speed limit. They all appear in court later.

Owing to the fact that the building is not quite finished, the public inspection of St. John's parochial school was deferred until next Sunday. The school will open September 6.

Miss Chamberlin of the Water office Miss Tyler of the City Treasurers' office and Miss Farrell of the Tax Collectors office at City Hall, returned from their vacations this morning.

William S. McNary was the guest of the Pastime club of South Boston, at Pandora hall, Houghs Neck on Sunday. The affair was atended by a number of local politicians. In addition to a program of vocal and instrumental music there was an address by Mr. McNary on his candidacy for Congressman from the tenth district.

STRUCK ON CROSSING

Fortunate to Escape with Only Broken Arm

Anunciato Coletti of 194 West street had a narrow escape from a serious accident at the Water street crossing this morning when he was struck a glancing blow by a passing locomotive and thrown some distance. It is said that the gates were down to allow the 8.50 inward train to pass, and that he crossed under the gates and attempted to cross the tracks in front of the first approaching train. The engine threw him some distance. The train was stopped and a physician who happened to be on the train rendered first aid and accompanied him in the police ambulance to the City Hospital. He was about 25 years of age. His injuries consisted of a broken arm.

SUDDEN DEATH POINT MAN

Was Attending to His Business on Wednesday

Herbert D. Adams, who for many years up to two years ago was a well known resident of Quincy Point, passed away Sunday morning at his home in North Weymouth after a few days illness of penumonia. Mr. Adams was in Boston attending to his express business as usual Wednesday and was taken ill that night. His disease progressed rapidly and but slight hopes of his recovery were entertained from the first. Mr. Adams was in his fiftieth year and resided in Quincy Point upwards of twenty-five years, all of which time he was employed by Cyrus Patch & Son as their head man. During his residence in Quincy he was prominent in the affairs of the Washington Street Congregational church and was for a number of years its treasurer.

Nearly two years ago he bought out Clements express of North Weymouth, which business he has carried on since that time. At the time the order of Red Men was prominent in Quincy he was affiliated with it, but dropped out when the lodge was moved to Braintree.

He leaves a widow and one daughter, Miss Beatrice Adams, bookkeeper at Ames hardware store. He also leaves a father and mother who reside at Barre, Mass.

ATLANTICS WIN.

The biggest-score game of the season was played at Merrymount park on Saturday, when the Atlantics rolled up 16 and the Makaria 10.

The Makaria boys scored first in the second innings, but the Atlantics went them one better in the third, and after that had it all their own way, although Makaria did make a sensational rally in the last two innings when it was too late.

At the end of the sixth inning, with the score 6 to 2 in favor of Atlantic, Stanley Bates was relieved by Taber, but it was a fatal mistake for Atlantic made eight runs. McKenzie pitched in the last two innings and held them down to two runs.

Canavan and Duggan of Copeland club were the battery for Atlantic, and they had the Makaria boys at their mercy until the seventh inning. Then Tupper made a clean hit to right centre for a home run. Four hits in the eighth added four runs. In the ninth two singles were followed by a home run by McDonald and it looked interesting, but the next three men did not reach first.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Atlantic	0	0	3	1	1	1	8	0	2—16
Makaria	0	2	0	0	0	0	1	4	3—10

PILGRIM DESCENDANTS.

A mass meeting of the society of Old Plymouth Colony Descendants is called by L. S. Richards president to meet at the home of the Pilgrims in Plymouth at the Plymouth County Commissioners rooms in the Court house on Saturday, Sept. 3, at half past one. Not only those who are members of the society are expected but any descendants of the Old Colonists who are interested in the subject are invited to be present.

WOLLASTON RACE

Idalia, whose crew pulled him aboard. Aside from his ducking he escaped with a scraped ankle.

The race was witnessed by a large number who occupied the piazzas of the club house. Among these were W. L. Carleton, chairman of the Corinthian club regatta committee and a number of the Eastern Yacht club regatta committee and Carroll Perkins who sailed in the Demarest Loyd's yacht Shyessa to Bermuda and back.

The starts in the several classes were pretty, as there was considerable jockeying for position. Once across the line, the boats still held close together, so that when one yacht made a tack it became necessary for them all to do so to avoid a collision. This game, however, was a difficult one to keep up, and it ended by the yachts splitting tacks

The accident to the Eleanors bobstay lost her considerable time at the start, which she was unable to make up. The Mary L. was the first boat to finish in this class but lost to the Marie on corrected time.

The Violet and Rival fought it out alone in Class C. and the former won by a good margin.

In class I the Reina had a little the best of the start, but at the finish the Bonitwo had a lead of 20 seconds.

The scrap in Class D was between the Dolly III and Busy Bee. They had a lively tacking match at the start, but the Dolly made the line first and held her lead throughout the race.

The Hingham one-design class had a lively time among themselves, the Usona winning by less than two seconds.

In class X the Barbara had the best of the start, but surrendered to Sunny Jim, who won the race.

The Chum won in the open power boat class, and the Heatherbell in the cabin power boat class.

After the race, the house committee served a lunch to the visiting yachtsmen at the club house.

GRANITE CITY LEAGUE

Cranch A. A. Defeats Fore River Apprentices

But one game was played to a finish in the Granite City League, on Saturday that being the go between Cranch and the Fore River Apprentices which was an exciting, uncertain, game. Adams and Hardy hooked up, but the soccer players held the permit for the Ward Three ground, so the game was called in the fourth inning with Hardy in the lead.

The league standing:

	Won.	Lost.	Per.
Cranch	8	1	.888
Adams	6	2	.750
Apprentices	6	3	.666
Bryant	2	4	.333
Hardy	2	6	.250
Bigelow	1	6	.143

CRANCH WIN.

In a game that was fast in spite of errors, the Cranch A. A. defeated the Fore River Apprentices, 3 to 2, on Saturday on the Water street grounds, playing before the Quincy-Stoughton game. After the second inning it looked as though the game would go to extra innings, until in the last of the ninth with none out G. Erickson singled to left and stole second, scoring on Gillis single to left. Gillis looked easy as he had fanned twice and hit weakly to second on his third trip to the plate, but he was right on the job and drove the winning taly in.

Of the eighteen G. C. L. players, Murray Kerr was alone cool and collected, he fanning ten men. In the face of the crowd, such comers as Creswell, Fitzgerald and Erickson made errors impossible to them on their home grounds. The number of errors can only be ascribed to stage fright.

Each team scored two in the second. The Apprentices started off in great shape, Newcomb tripling to right. Clinton scored Newcomb with a single, and Boyle put Tom on third with another. On Smith's poor throw to first, Clinton scored. Oliver popped to Gillis; Gomez fanned; Howley was hit by pitcher, but Fitzgerald whiffed.

In Cranch's second, F. Erickson went down on strikes, but G. Erickson to second on Creswell's error and stole third. Gillis struck out; Comoli singled to left, scoring Erickson. Clinton throws in went into the diamond, and got away from Creswell. Comoli tore round the lines and scored when Newcomb dropped Creswell's throw.

After this the game was tied up and looked good for extra innings until the ninth when Cranch scored as related.

Murry Kerr got himself out of numerous holes dug by errors making team mates in fine style.

FOURTEEN INNINGS

Ramblers Defeat Revere All Stars 7 to 6

While Makarias and Atlantic were fighting for mastery at the Park, the Ramblers were having a hard time getting their game out of the fire. After the first inning it was the most seesaw affair that ever hit Ward 6, and Rice coming to the rescue with a pretty sacrifice hit, while Miller tallied with the winning run in the 14th, and the sun sank low.

Both Griffin and Rice were accorded superb support. While no hits were made off Rice until the 4th. In the 10th the Ramblers got one again and Revere came back with a home run swat by Sutton who hadn't got a hit in five games.

Fowler and Manning played a great fielding game, while "Bootus" Chapman and McCarty did the honors with the bat, both getting 2 hits though Chapmans were doubles.

The biggest crowd of the year saw the best racing of the season at the matinee meet of the Old Colony Driving Club at the agricultural grounds at South Weymouth on Saturday. Class furnished the best racing and time, and was of added interest as four towns in the Old Colony district were represented. The grand stand was well filled and the supporters of each horse rooted hard for their favorite. Budweiser represented Weymouth, Young Bayard, Rockland; Lady Nance, Brockton; and Willie J., Whitman. Lady Nance won in 1.11 1-2 Young Bayard, Willie J. and Budweiser finishing in the order named. The other classes furnished some fast racing, notably Class F. and Class D.

OTHER GAMES.

The North Quincys and Montclairs engaged in their third game of the series on Saturday, and North Quincy landed on top, 9 to 5. The last games will be played at the Pines this week Saturday. The features of Saturday's game were Smith's pitching and Wolf's batting.

The Braintree White Sox whitewashed the Bayviews of South Boston 8 to 0, on French's Common Saturday. This is the fifth shutout administered by the White Legs in six games. Perry held the visitors to one hit. The errors of the South Boston boys counted heavily against them.

The Milton A. A. went to defeat at Newton Saturday the Nonantum A. A. of Newton beating them 14 to 4, at Cabot Park.

STABLEMEN IN QUARREL

Ends With Death of One and Arrest of Alleged Assailant

Boston, Aug. 29.—Daniel McKenzie, aged 42, unmarried, and living in the livery stable of J. D. Packard & Sons company in Brighton, died on his way to the Boston city hospital as the result of a fractured skull.

William Chamberlain, aged 45, another hostler at the stable, is under arrest, charged with causing the death of McKenzie.

According to the police, the two men quarrelled about some lights in the stable. Earlier in the night Patrolman Gorman was summoned to the barn to quiet the two men, who were said then to be fighting. Prior to his arrival at the stable Mrs. Chamberlain, wife of the accused man, called there, and according to her statement the two men were fighting and her husband appeared drunk.

Vol. 24 No. 202 QUINCY, MASS., TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 30, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

TERRITORY VERY LIMITED IN THE NEW DISTRICT

Quincy Must Pay Tolls to Talk with All the Adjoining Cities and Towns

Even Atlantic Subscribers Not in the Quincy District

Many towns and cities about Quincy have begun to make their kick against the adoption of the proposed new telephone rates, but this far there has been no decided movement of protest in Quincy. This is possible because the proposed rates are not generally understood. From the statements made in the papers during the past week it would appear on the surface that subscribers in Quincy on one or two party lines were about to receive a material reduction from what they are now paying for their instrument. If, however, they will take paper and pencil and do a little figuring it will be readily seen that the cost to subscribers that use their telephone to any great extent will in a year pay considerable more than they are now doing.

Under the new system, Quincy is placed in what is known as the "G" group. The rates for telephone in this group are considerable less than at present. For instance a subscriber on a two-party line with local calls service limited to 500, gets his instrument for $36 per year while under the new system he would get the same line for $24, but with 480 calls. On the face of it this would seem like a reduction of $12 per year. But is it?

Under the present system a local subscriber can call without additional cost, a subscriber in any of the 44 suburban exchanges. Under the new system he would be limited to the subscribers in his particular group of exchanges which number eleven including Quincy. If in this eleven towns adjoining Quincy, such as Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Dorchester, etc., were included it would not be as bad, but none of these are included in the "G" group, and it will cost a Quincy subscriber five cents any time he desires to talk to one in any of these places.

A better idea of the old and proposed system may be obtained from consulting the folowing table. In the first column are the exchanges with which a Quincy subscriber may now talk without additional cost while the second column gives the exchanges to which he may talk without additional cost under the proposed system of groups.

It will be noticed that the Dorchester exchange is not included in the Quincy group, and in order to talk subscribers in that exchange five cents must be expended. This will be a particular hardship to subscribers of the Quincy exchange for practically every telephone subscriber in that part of Quincy known as Atlantic is connected with the Dorchester exchange. This means that there will

LAST DAY FOR TICKETS

For Excursion to Deeper Waterway Convention

The Quincy excursionists to the Deeper Waterways convention in Providence, on Friday of this week, will leave Quincy for Boston on the 8.05 train. At the South station they will take a special train at 8.40 o'clock for Providence.

At Providence the Quincy contingent will form a procession and march through the city to the convention hall where a section has been reserved for them. They will show by numbers and enthusiasm that Quincy is wide awake for the proposed canals from Boston to Florida, and especially from the Fore River in Quincy to Taunton river at Taunton.

In its verp principles, the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association means much to New England and to the whole Atlantic seaboard. For it stands unequivocally for the improvement of harbors and their connection by inland water routes along the entire coast. It is desirous of making coastwise navigation less dangerous, and it is pledged to fight for recognition by the Government of the need of better waterways from Massachusetts to Florida.

It was due in large measure to the increase of freight rates on the railroads that this renewed thought to utilize the old canals came about. It has again become profitable to ship by canals—not in the ways of the earlier canal era in this country, in the first half of the last century—but by larger and better boats—by ship canals, in short.

At noon the Quincy excursionists will take one of the excusion steamers down Narragansett bay to Crescent Park, where a clambake will be enjoyed. Most of the afternoon will be spent in sight seeing, and at 7 o'clock the special train will be boarded at Providence for Boston.

The business men of the city generally are invited and urged to attend, but today is the last day to secure a ticket. All expenses are included and the cost of ticket is but $3. Take advantage of the last excursion of the season.

LOWER GRANITE RATES.

The continued hearing on the complaints of various N. E. granite shippers against the B. & M. and Southern R. R. and other railroad lines of excessive freight rates, was resumed before Chairman Prouty of the interstate commerce committee in Boston on Monday, says the Record.

S. J. Jones, represented the complainants. He read a letter from Traffic Manager Green of the Southern road, which announced that an agreement had been made with the Southern lines to put into effect satisfactory commodity rates in granite in various forms to southern points.

As the rates thus granted were substantially those asked by the petitioners, Mr. Prouty declared the hearing continued until Oct. 24 to give the carriers time to file the new rates.

The commission will then decontinue the case without an order unless the petitioners insist upon a formal order establishing the rates.

TDOAY'S COURT.

Mrs. Louise Joseph, who was found guilty some days ago for violation of the liquor laws at Quincy and appealed, came into court and retracted her appeal and paid her fine of $50.

Walter R. Simpson was fined $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Woman Representative Wanted

MAY BE RESTELLI

Hudson Police Search Woods for Two Italians

The police of Hudson and Bolton are searching the woods near South Bolton for two Italians, one of whom it is thought may be Restelli the Quincy murderer.

The two men in question have been visiting houses in that vicinity demanding food. Monday morning they visited the house of Simon Wheeler and threatened the life of his daughter Elsie who refused them admittance. This is the second time within the past two weeks that the Wheeler house has been visited, and there have been five or six breaks in the immediate vicinity. Both the Italians who demanded food of Elsie Wheeler on Monday carried revolvers and would doubtles have carried out their threat to kill her had not some approaching boys frightened them away.

The men are described as being of medium hight and of dark complexion and both wore dark clothes. One had on a cap and the other a black derby hat; one man has a mustache.

The breaks indicate that food is the thing wanted by the men. The Wheeler place is within five minutes walk of the southern division of the Boston & Maine railroad over which Conductor Graves was positive that Restelli travelled on the night of the Quincy murder.

BUT FEW IDLE.

Labor unions of Quincy, with 2300 members, report only 82 idle, or a little over three per cent. In the State the reports show about seven per cent are idle, the average being more in Lawrence, Lynn, Lowell, New Bedford, Boston, Brockton, Cambridge Fall River, Salem, Taunton, Haverhill, Holyoke and in many towns. Only three cities make a more favorable report than Quincy.

HOUGHS NECK

About 500 people attended the band concert of the Pastime A. C. in Pandora Hall Sunday evening. So great was the gathering that the orchestra was placed on the piazza which surrounds the building. William S. McNary was introduced by J. J. Sullivan.

Henry Kasper who was thrown from a bicycle and seriously injured is resting well at City Hospital.

Mrs. Herbert Russell and Mrs. James Kennedy were the guests of Mrs. J. Kennedy at her cottage last week.

Miss Ellen M. Perry of Brockton has completed two weeks' vacation spent with her mother in the Dandilion cottage on Lennox street.

J. W. Keif who has occupied the McIntyre cottage on Center road has returned to home in Boston.

T. F. Congdon and family of Boston will soon give up their cottage on Parker street and return to the city for the winter.

Patrick Kenney of Brighton has given up the Moffet cottage on Darrow street.

S. T. Moore of Roxbury is occupying the Oriole cottage on Center road.

Lt. D. J. Canty, M. V. M., is staying at the Phillips cottage on Frica road.

George D. Tubman of Dorchester will next week return to his winter home.

Richard Waters who has been visiting his sister at the Happy-Go-Lucky cottage on Spring street has returned to his home.

W. F. Gaffney who has spent the season on Turner street is making preparations to vacate.

The Men's club of the Union chapel will have their grand entertainment on Thursday evening.

The Houghs Neck Natives will give their annual Poverty Party this week. Every one is welcome in any sort of clothing, and any one "respectably dressed" will be barred. The affair is in charge of Phil Kappels. Delegations will be present from Boston and Greater Boston.

NEW COURSE FOR AVIATORS

Will Return to Quincy from State House and Light

It was decided on Monday that the course of the aviators for the $10,000 Globe prize should not be a triangle, but from the Quincy field to Boston light and back, and then from the Quincy field to the State House and back, a distance of 29 miles. It is optional with the aviation whether they go first to Boston light or first to the State House, but it must be one continuous flight for the whole 29-mile course.

The distance of the different legs are:

Once around Quincy course,	2.00 Miles
Quincy field to Boston light,	7.62
Boston light to Quincy field,	7.62
Quincy field to State House,	4.77
State House to Quincy field,	4.77
Once around Quincy course,	2.00
Total distance	28.78

The course to Boston light, which is off Point Allerton at Hull, is over Squantum Head and Moon island, Long or Rainsford island and Fort Warren. The direct course from Quincy field to the State House is over Savin Hill, Calf Pasture, and the South Boston depot.

RECKLESS SPEED.

Officer Goodhue got after the automobile speeders on Adams street again Monday evening and captured four who were exceeding the speed limit. The method of catching the speeders was by using another automobile. The officer in his car would begin to trail the cars after they had crossed the Milton line. Some of the cars came down the Rice hill and around the sharp corner going at a speed of 40 miles an hour, which is an extremely dangerous speed for this section of the street. The parties will be in court Friday.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

A man named Mowrey, employed as day watchman at the Boston gear works, was taken to the Massachusetts General hospital Monday evening suffering from a shock of some nature. Just previous to his being found unconscious he had some trouble with another workman and it was thought that this may have been the cause of the mans collapse. Investigation by the police, however, discredited this story.

—Edward W. Thayer, treasurer of the Hingham Mutual Fire Insurance Co., died on Monday aged 44. He was also master of Old Colony lodge of Masons, and leaves a widow and one son.

SUDDEN DEATH AT WOLLASTON

Mrs. Charles R. Sherman Dies from Asphyxiation

Mrs. Catherine W. Sherman, wife of Charles R. Sherman of Wollaston, was found dead Monday noon at her home, 24 Park street, but it has not been determined as yet whether the death was due to accident or suicide. She was found by Mr. Sherman when the went home to lunch. Entering the house he detected a strong odor of gas and entering the kitchen was shocked to see his wife lying on the floor dead and with gas pouring from an open gas jet.

Aid was quickly summoned and Mrs. Sherman taken into the open air where Dr Record, Dr. Johnson and Dr. Adams worked over her sometime trying to revive the spark of life which seemed apparent. Their efforts were fruitless however. Investigation showed that one of the gas jets in the kitchen was wide open, but whether it was opened accidentally or intentionally has not been determined.

It is said that Mrs. Sherman was soon to undergo a surgical operation, and it is thought that this may have prayed on her mind to such an extent that she determined to end it all. Mrs. Sherman was about 63 years of age. She leaves a husband and two daughters. Mr. Sherman is an ex-Councilman and ex-Assessor, and has been prominent in Quincy affairs for many years.

NEW SCHEDULE WANTED.

Further progress was made Monday, says the Globe, on the wage scale and hours request to be presented to the Old Colony and Boston & Northern street railway systems by the street carmen's unions. The general scale committee of delegates from every union of the system met at 724 Washington street, Boston. Final decisions were made on all points. A subcommittee was directed to have the draft made and a copy sent to International Pres. W. D. Mahon at Detroit for approval of the international executive board.

The present agreement expires Oct. 1. On Labor day every union motorman and conductor of the Old Colony and Boston & Northern systems will wear a white silk ribbon badge with American flags entwined, the names of the roads, the date and a picture of an electric car in blue.

COMMON DRINKING CUPS.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Something in the thoughts of our brother editors just now and expressed in their columns is: Have you decided yet which is the quickest way to the Atlantic aviation field?

One thing that the new aviation field brings forcible to mind, is the fact that a part of Quincy is within five miles of the State House. The distance by air line from the Quincy field is but four miles and 77-100th.

A stranger enquiring for City Hall this morning was not far out of the way as to where it ought to be for he was back of First church, near the Crane Public Library and the Post Office. City Hall ought to be over with the group. The new Court House should also get in line with what has started out to be Quincy's civic center.

If Boston papers persist in locating the aero meet at Atlantic, there may be difficulty in locating records in the future. Atlantic City, N. J., already has aviation records, and it is from that place that Walter Wellman will start by balloon to cross the Atlantic ocean. It is possible, however, that no records will be made at the Quincy-Harvard-Boston- Atlantic- Squantum meet.

Quincy telephone subscribers who have business at the shire town will be glad to know that Dedham remains in the Quincy telephone district, by the proposed change, but that is about all that is left. Quincy is bounded by Dorchester, Milton , Braintree and Weymouth but none of these are left in the Quincy district. Some people in Ward Six of Quincy are in the Quincy exchange and some in the Dorchester exchange, but they must by the proposed arrangement pay a toll each time they talk with their neighbor across the street. By the way, all parts of the city should be included in the Quincy exchange. Then Quincy will be credited with its actual number of subscribers, which would be perhaps 200 more than at present.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The world sympathizes with a sick man it admires the man's wife when she shows herself brave and resourceful in his behalf. Chivalry is not dead, nor is the national appreciation of womanly devotion. All this, however, does not alter the fact that Morse, the former banker, should be allowed to stay in the federal prison at Atlanta till his term of service ends or death comes to his relief.

Just now the nation is being regaled with stories of the one time "ice king's" desperate illness. Efforts are being redoubled to persuade the president to pardon him, that he may spend his last days in freedom. It is an old story. Sooner or later it was certain to make its appearance. When other devices fail to unlock the prison doors this tale of approaching death for the pitied convict is sure to be told.

Mrs. Morse is doing a fine, brave thing in fighting her husband's battle for freedom, but that does not alter the fact of Morse's guilt. She shows a fine quality of devotion and executive skill in the conduct of her peculiar campaign, but that does not mean that her husband is imprisoned unjustly, nor that society should permit the liberty of a man so completely proved guilty as he.

Morse is all right where he is. If he is sick the prison doubtless has hospital facilities. There is nothing incompatible in one's admiration for Mrs. Morse and one's satisfaction over her husband's sojourn behind prison walls.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Since the last proposal to build more battleships was put forward the navy department has been sorely perplexed to find names for new vessels of that class. The system heretofore followed has been to name the battleships after the states, and the cruisers after the cities. There are more than enough American cities to go 'round even if the navy increases to mammoth proportions. But the department has nearly run out of names of states. When the problem came up for consideration a short time ago, only the state names Nevada and Oklahoma remained unused. Three and perhaps four new battleships might be authorized. Since then the names of Arizona and New Mexico have become available. But what shall be done when these four are given to new ships? A way to partial tamporary relief was thought of in the possibility or rechristening the present New York as the Manhattan. But New York has been a sentimental and property interest in the old ship, at least to the extent of a magnificent silver service. This and other objections served to prevent the carrying out of the idea. It seems self-evident that, if the navy is increased in size, a new plan will have to be decided upon. It is doubted that the robbing of the present battleships of their names would meet with approval The case of the New York indicates that. Nor is the English method likely to meet with popular favor. The navy department may eventually have to fall back on the Indian names of many of our lakes and rivers.—Haverhill Gazette.

While all will agree that clergymen need and deserve vacations quite as much as workers in other fields, there should be some arrangement made and given to the public by which attendance at funerals could be easily secured. Death comes without warning and it is distressing to relatives to seek clergyman after clergyman only to find them all out of town. Even in a city with as many churches as Somerville it is frequently a difficult matter at short notice to find a minister in August, and the task is often made more difficult by the desire of the family to have a clergyman of the same denomination as the deceased. It is reported that twenty-five calls were necessary in a recent instance before an officiating clergyman could be found. It may be that proper arrangements are made by the churches, but the public, not being informed, knows not where to inquire. If each denomination would arrange to have at least one clergyman in Somerville during the summer, ready to attend to calls of this kind, and would give wide publicity to the arrangements, it would be of great assistance to people suddenly bereaved who know not where to turn.—Somerville Journal.

A correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle writes that the Queen Mother, Alexandra, widow of King Edward VII., is unable to maintain her home on the income voted to her. She might were she exempt from the income tax and death duties, that a thrifty minister of the exchequer exacts from the bereaved consort of Edward VII. Parliament voted her an income with one hand and takes it away with the other and that leaves her too poor to maintain her household with dignity becoming one who has held high station. The alternative presented to the queen mother is removal from England. It has been said that King George V. it not in accord with his royal mother. It is a pathetic statement if it is a correct one. To permit such a humiliation as the retirement of the queen mother from the home she has had so long in England, and for such a cause, will be an arraignment of her royal son and the people over whom he exercises dominion. It has been supposed that the ex-queen was strong in the affections of the people of the British Isles. If her bereavement has not caused her to be forgotten, they will see that she is not driven into exile.

More good advice. A government expert says that a flea boiled four hours in kerosene cannot come back. Why not place the flea next to a tack hammer and let the hammer do its worst, it certainly would be quicker and hurt the Oil Trust.—Banker and Tradesman.

ARE RANGING UP FOR BATTLE

"Kaiser Versus the Nation" Is the Cry In Germany

CLAIM TO "DIVINE RIGHT"

It Has Angered the Empire and Conflict of Aristocracy and People Is Threatened — Koenigsberg Speech Was Toned Down by Advisers—Utterances Deprecated Even by the Conservative Press

Berlin, Aug. 30.—Anger, aroused by Emperor William's speech at Koenigsberg, instead of dying away, appears to become more and more widespread as his claim of "divine right" and his indifference to public opinion continue to be denounced by the liberal press throughout the empire. Dispatches from other countries indicate that a discussion of the kaiser's discourse is going on in other European countries as well, which may lead to important political developments.

The conviction grows that in this country the speech will prove the means of precipitating a conflict between the kaiser, supported by the junker classes or landed aristocracy, who claim a semi-feudal right to monopolize the government, and the nation, which, on account of the great industrial development of Germany, is impregnated with democratic ideas and is determined to win effective control of its own destinies.

Some idea of the extent to which Emperor William is behind the age may be formed from the fact that even the conservative press is deprecating his utterances and trying to tone down the absolutism of his theories.

"This emphasis of personal right by divine ordinance," says the Rundschau, "will create a misconception and feed the fire of anti-monarchial agitation."

The Vocsiche Zeitung points out "the inopportuneness of such a reversion to mediaeval ideas just when the interparliamentary conference is about to assemble at Brussels to discuss the question of international arbitration and as a sort of greeting to the czar, who formerly declared that the first duty of humanity was to impose limits upon the craze for armaments."

In the liberal press the outcry is tremendous.

It is plain to every discerning eye that these two great divisions—the German aristocracy and the German people—are ranging up for battle. Vorwarts crystanlizes this fact in heading its comments on the Kaiser's speech, "The Kaiser Versus the Nation."

"The Koenigsberg speech," it declares, "is a proclamation of absolutism. It affirms the antagonism that exists between the will of the emperor, who desires to govern as an autocrat, and the will of the people, which desires to govern itself. The gulf separating the people and the sovereign is growing wider and deeper."

What accentuates the gravity of the emperor's utterances is the fact that they were not the product of a moment of enthusiasm provoked by the mediaeval and romantic surroundings of Schloss Konigsberg, but were carefully revised before publication. The speech was delivered Thursday evening about 9 o'cock. Shortly afterward the official news agency informed the Berlin press that the text would be delivered without delay, but a little later a second note informed the papers that the text would not be available until the following morning.

In the interval it is now known that the emperor's advisers endeavored to obtain authorization to tone down some of his observations and they finally succeeded. What sort of a storm would have been provoked had the speech been published in its original form?

HOW HER CONSENT WAS WON.

"Howard Ashby! How absurd! Daughter of a blacksmith! Not I. She a hireling, low-born; I never will consent. Rather let our race die out with us than the fair name of Ashby be sullied by such a union!" exclaimed Mrs. Ashby, looking at her son in a dignified manner.

The sweet notes of a joyous canary bird flooded the room with melody, but the haughty woman heeded it not.

"You wrong her; you wrong me, you even wrong yourself, mother," said her son. "You have not seen her. In intellect, in culture, Miss Watson is our equal. That she is of humble parentage is true, but that she should educate herself, become proficient at telegraphy, and, by her own zeal should rise from obscurity to a position of responsibility is highly commendable."

"Howard, why be so persistent, so irrational? My ambition has been that you should marry well. Since your boyhood I have looked forward proudly to the day when you would bring home a bride worthy the name of Ashby, and you have made love to a girl almost a pauper, because you are enamored of her pretty face."

Mrs. Ashby sank lower into her rocker, her jeweled fingers stroking the plush-covered chair arm impatiently.

"I have not made love to her, mother. I have sought your approval before mentioning love to her. I have —"

"Howard, let us dismiss this distasteful subject. I cannot be reconciled to your marrying so far beneath you. Why did you speak of this matter today? Why thrust this hateful heme upon me to haunt my loneliness during your absence? Have you forgotten that you must start for Detroit today?"

"I have not. I shall go on the colonial express this evening," replied the young man.

Howard Ashby had but a faint recollection of the stern, haughty father, who died when he was a child. The Ashby estate was a fair domain, and the boy's slightest wish had been gratified by the indulgent mother. Howard had taken a year's course at the Templeton business college. While at Templeton, he fell in love with May Watson, who was employed as a telegraph operator there. Mrs. Ashby's opposition to this love was the first shadow that came into the young man's life. He could not disregard the wishes of his mother who had been so much to him. While she lived he must control the passionate yearning in his heart, and it was with sombre thoughts that he began his journey to Detroit.

May Watson was temporarily filling the post in the telegraph and switching station at Templeton. It was a position that would have tried the endurance of a man, which required all her senses to be on the alert. A mistake might mean instant disaster and death to hundreds.

She had to know every order passed down the lines b ythe dispatcher. The orders to her station had to be obeyed promptly. There could be no delay, no hesitation.

On a certain day the clicking key told her that the night express was approaching at forty miles an hour. She must have the track clear for the passage of the train. The semaphore had been removed a few minutes before to send a long freight train onto the siding. It must be swung back to let the express go by, otherwise the great vestibuled train would crash into the freight, and a colossal disaster would result.

She grasped the lever of the semaphore that was to simultaneously move the switch and signal the engineer of the coming express that the track was clear. She pulled it over, but it did not slip into its accustomed ontch. Instead, it flew back as if fired from a catapult, and struck her a stunning blow on the chest. It knocked her off her feet, and for a moment she lay there; but the importance of clearing the track for the coming express prevented her losing consciousness. That the lever must be moved was the one idea that was burning in her brain. She knew if it was not in the proper place an awful catastrophe would occur within a few minutes.

She dragged herself to her feet and grasped the lever again. Sharp pains shot through her body. Her brain reeled, but she held on to the lever and slowly moved it over to the right place, and heard the click as it reached the ratchet that held it.

She glanced from the window. The headlight of the locomotive was in full view the stream of black smoke pouring from the stack and fire grinding from the driving wheels as the great motor came on, swaying with its long train of passengers behind. One look showed that the track was clear, that the signal was in its place. The long whistle of the engineer showed her, too, that he had seen the signal.

A mist swam before her eyes. She turned again to the instrument at the little table, and, almost fainting from pain, moved the switch that connected her with Blanford.

"Send help to Templeton, I am hurt. Wa—" The message dribbled off in an unintelligible mass of dots and dashes, but fortunately it was understood by the operator at Blanford, for as she was trying to make clear what had happened, she sank unconscious to the floor of the lofty switching tower.

There she was found, lying as if dead, a half hour later. Tenderly she was carried to an express wagon, and made as comfortable as possible on blankets, and brought to her boarding house.

The physicians who attended her said she was severely hurt internally. The lung tissue had been bruised, but there was no evidence of internal hemorrhage, and they had strong hopes of her recovery.

. . . . . .

Mrs Ashby was in her elegant library reading the letters the post had brought On the table beside her were several magazines, and a copy of a morning paper.

After reading her letters she took up the paper. The bold type of a lengthy article's heading caught her attention: "Colonial express saved by wounded girl. Miss May Watson struck by semaphore lever in switching at Templeton last night. Almost unconscious she puts it in place, and collision with freight is averted."

Mrs. Ashby's face grew grave and pale, and the lines that time and care had imprinted thereon became more distinct.

"The Colonial express? Why, that was the train that Howard had taken!"

Eagerly she read the article. She saw the glowing account of the brave girl's heroic deed. In her tremor and excitement the paper dropped from her hands. A possible scene of the awful disaster pictured itself in her mind. She saw the flying express crash with impetuous velocity into the long freight, derailing cars and piling them into a confused heap, many of them an unrecognizable mass of debris. She heard the terrible clash of iron against iron, the horrible hissing of escaping steam, and the dull grind, crushing, splintering of wood. The piteous shrieks and groans of the wounded and dying rang in her ears, and there among the bruised

PAYMENT OF POLL TAX

Ought to be Pleasure for Ever Man If a Good Citizen

Every time an extra effort is made by our tax collector to collect old poll taxes, there are complaints all over Revere by some of those who are forced to settle. Constable Sackett has recently been doing some excellent work in this connection and he should be given due credit, rather than criticised. Many people seem to think it is a "smart trick" to escape payment of a poll tax, and the only way the tax collector can get the money is to send a constable after it. —Revere Journal.

The above conditions exist in every town, and unfortunately Hyde Park is no exception to the prevailing evil. We have often wondered if people who try to avoid paying their poll tax and thus deprive the town of its just dues, stop to consider what they are receiving from the town for the two dollars contributed to meet municipal expenses. His children have the benefit of our school system, without any expense whatever. He receives fire and police protection in cases of emergency. He has water, electric light, and gas service. He goes to and from his home on well-graded streets and improved sidewalks, and with all these and other accommodations for his personal welfare, including the benefits of the ballot, the town asks him to contribute a poll tax that is not burdensome. It ought to be a pleasure for every man, if he is a good citizen, to pay promptly this insignificant sum for the privileges enjoyed, and not permit himself to be classed as a law breaker by evading his honest duty to his town. It is no pleasure for any tax collector to have to resort to legal means to make these collections, as it not only adds to his burden but to his personal embarrassment as well—Hyde Park Gazette.

Then again, about one-half of the $2 tax goes to the maintenance of the State of Massachusetts and County of Norfolk. Where individuals escape the payment of the tax, the city or town must reimburse the State and country, so that really the delinquent is in part supported by the city. It has been suggested that the poll tax be increased to $5 or $10, that the burden of taxation may not fall as heavily as it does on the property holders, most of whom must pay interest as well as taxes.

BERLIN BOY TRUMPETER GUILTY OF LESE MAJESTY.

Sounded Royal Bugle Blast and Shocked Police Nerves.

A boy with a toy trumpet upset the tranquillity of Schoneberg, a suburb of Berlin, the other day and at the same time committed an act of lese majeste which is occupying the serious attention of the police.

When the German emperor or members of his family go about in automobiles they do not depend upon the honk-honk of the common motor horn to clear a passage for them through the streets. Instead a trumpeter is seated alongside the driver, and the sound of his bugle blast is familiar enough to bring traffic to an immediate halt to allow the royal car to pass, while the populace crowds the sidewalks to get a glimpse of the royal personage.

The boy in question was playing on a toy trumpet on a second floor balcony. The royal bugle blast had become familiar to him, and without considering the consequences he sounded it upon the trumpet with such fidelity that the street below was instantly in a state of commotion. The sidewalks were lined with loyal subjects anxious to salute the imperial automobile. A lieutenant in full uniform who was crossing the street clicked his heels and sprang stiffly to attention in the middle of the road.

Three minutes passed, but no car appeared. The boy then brought about his own undoing by repeating the blast, thus revealing the source of the signal.

After a moment of horrified astonishment at the boy's presumption the officer hurried around the corner for a policeman. Returning with one, he indicated the house and in sharp tones of command ordered the policeman to do his duty. The policeman saluted, hastened upstairs and confiscated the trumpet. The boy's parents are now anxiously awaiting the consequences.

be a five cent toll to talk from one part of Quincy to another which is an imposition.

It is a question if many Quincy subscribers have occasion to converse with subscribers in Stoneham, Waltham, Lexington, Malden or Melrose to any great extent, and there is doubtless a hundred or more calls to Atlantic, Braintree, Milton or Weymouth to one call to either of the above cities.

What Quincy people want to do is to kick, and kick good and hard. Not only that, but kick now before the proposed system is adopted, when it will doubtless be too late. Many towns north of Boston have already taken action in the matter, and Quincy should get into line, and the earlier the better.

Mayor Fall of Malden has called a special meeting of the aldermen of that city to remonstrate, and Wakefield is also protesting.

SEES NOTHING TO MAKE FUSS ABOUT

Comment of an Engineer Who Proves to Be a Hero

Pittsburg, Aug. 30.—Engineer Israel Brandt's nerve saved a train of the Pennsylvania road, with its load of sleeping passengers, from wreck in the Union station yards. A cap on a pipe directly above the throttle blew off, letting loose volumes of intensely hot steam.

The fireman jumped and escaped with slight injury, but Brandt stuck to his post with blistering hands and burned face until he had brought the train to a standstill. By that time he was nearly unconscious, and fell from the cab window when the train stopped. His arm was broken in the fall and he was found to be badly scalded.

At the hospital it was said he was in no danger, and Brandt added: "There's nothing to make a fuss about."

Massachusetts Sailors In Baltimore Jail In Default of Bail

Baltimore, Aug. 30.—The five young Massachusetts sailors of the American whaling schooner Pedro Varella brought to Baltimore from the Azores islands under the charge of mutiny, were held for the United States grand jury by Commissioner Bond.

Bail was fixed at $1000 each and being unable to furnish it all were committed to jail.

SMOKING CAUSE OF CRIME.

Italian Government Abolishes Tobacco's Use by Juveniles.

The royal commission appointed by the Italian government to inquire into the causes and practicable remedies for juveline crime in Italy has recommended the adoption of legislation similar to that recently passed in Great Britain for the suppression of smoking among children.

It is proposed to forbid boys and girls under sixteen to smoke or carry smoking materials, while persons supplying young people with tobacco would be liable to a fine of $100. Parents and guardians permitting smoking among their charges would be liable to prosecution.

The commission further urges that teachers, employers, the police and government inspectors should be empowered to confiscate smoking materials found on children under age in schools, workshops and public places. The success of the new legislation in England is apparent, smoking in public by children having been effectually suppressed.

SCIENTIFIC BOOM BUILDS BIG CITY

Prospective Oklahoma Capital Has 60,000 Population.

IS BUT 21 YEARS OF AGE.

Chamber of Commerce, Which Keeps Tab on Town's Resources, Secured Big Packing Plant by Bonus, Then Cleared That by Platting and Selling Adjacent Town Lots.

The city of Oklahoma is only twenty-one years old. In 1889 it was an open field. Now it has 60,000 people, well paved streets, steel skyscrapers and a thriving business, with all the bustle and prosperity of a growing city.

Month by month the people who see the bank clearings as they are published have wondered at the progress of this town. It is one of the two that have run Atlanta a close race in the ratio of business increase. What was the cause of it? Who did it?

These questions were answered at the recent convention of the southern commercial secretaries, where A. W. McKeand, secretary of the Oklahoma chamber of commerce, told of its work. It has 1,192 members and embraces in its operations almost every function of a civic organization, including even the work of the associated charities.

Keeps Tab on Town.

The secretary has twenty assistants, each in charge of a department. The chamber conducts a credit clearing house for the wholesale trade with 26,000 names on its reference books and runs a similar bureau for the retail trade.

The recent announcement that Oklahoma City had secured two of the largest packing house plants in the world has caused the city builders of the whole country to sit up and take notice. Mr. McKeand told how they did it, and the incident shows the wonderful spirit that makes the western towns grow at such a wonderful rate.

The president and secretary of the Oklahoma chamber of commerce, after preliminary negotiations with a big Chicago packing firm and a careful study of the town by that firm, reached an agreement one night, and the next day money was raised to carry out the plan.

The chamber of commerce agreed to pay $300,000 for the establishment there of a plant that would employ 1,500 men, one-half this sum to be paid on completion of the plant and the remainder when it had been in operation a year at full capacity. The Oklahomans also bought 500 acres of land contiguous to the plant and proposed to sell lots.

At 10 o'clock the next morning a meeting was called at the chamber of commerce to raise the money. Subscriptions started at $10,000 and $20,000 and ran down to $1,000. In a little while enough money was subscribed to pay for the $300,000 bonus and the land.

City Clears Its Bonus.

The work went ahead, the packers made good, and the land was cut into lots and sold for a profit large enough to pay the $300,000 bonus and about 12 per cent over. This trade has been duplicated with another big plant, and the same land scheme is worked there.

Oklahoma City had built up rapidly without enough factories. It had steel skyscraper office buildings, but not enough producing industries, so the people went after them, determined to get them at any cost. They studied the situation, chose the kind of industry best suited to the town and the surrounding country and went after it in a big way.

These Oklahoma people are in earnest all the time. Their methods are businesslike and broad minded. As an illustration of their way of doing things they will make a tour of the south with a hundred of their leading citizens next winter, stopping a day at each city and studying its institutions.

At each point they divide into committees to collect information on various subjects, such as schools, industry, trade methods, civic affairs, etc., and when they go home apply the best that they find to their own situation.

VIENNA MEN DOFF HATS.

Useless Expense and Kills Hair Is Argument of Club.

Vienna now has a "no hat" brigade, fashioned after the one which is thriving in London.

"The hat," says one of the Vienna members, "is a superfluous article of man's wearing apparel. It deprives the head of needed air and sunshine, retards the growth and in many instances kills the hair and is a source of inconvenience and considerable expense. At no time does a member of our league appreciate his resolution to go bareheaded so much as when he visits a theater or opera. The crush hat has gone out of style, the cylinder takes up too much room, and it is never improved by storage in a theater wardrobe."

Venetian Communes Profitable.

In fifty communes of the province of Venice twenty have co-operative societies directly or indirectly engaged in agricultural enterprises. Some of these buy and sell implements and machinery for their members.

HOW HER CONSENT WAS WON.

and mangled bodies was the boy she loved with almost idolatrous devotion.

But instead the express had been saved by a brave girl! She a hireling, low-born, the daughter of a blacksmith, had done this!

For nearly an hour Mrs. Ashby walked up and down the room in agitation. A multitude of thoughts rushed through her excited brain. Presently she summoned a servant.

"Tell Thomas to have the carriage in readiness at 1.30," she said to the maid who answered her summons.

Howard Ashby was returning home. He had been absent four months. When he left home he intended to be gone only a few weeks, but his restless spirit demanded continual change of scenes, so his absence had been prolonged.

When autumn drew near he became tired of a roving life, and hastened homeward. As he beheld familiar scenes from the car window as the train sped through his native state, he realized how dear the old home and its associations were to him.

It was a short drive from the station to the Ashby residence. When the carriage entered the spacious grounds he saw his mother coming across the lawn to welcome him.

"Mother," he said, as they entered the house, "I have visited many fair places, but this is the dearest spot of all."

"Then why have you stayed away from it so long, Howard? My loneliness became unendurable, and I sought the companionship of a dear young lady who has been with me many weeks, and has done much to relieve the tedious monotony of the dull hours," said Mrs. Ashby.

"A young lady? Who is she mother?" inquired Howard.

Mrs. Ashby did not reply, but opened the library door. To Howard's great surprise by the open window sat May Watson. The August sunlight streaming full upon her heightened her dark beauty. With extended hands she came eagerly to him.

"We are so glad to see you!" she said.

"M—May! M—M—Mother!" exclaimed Howard in his confusion.

"One would think, Howard, that you were under the influence of a stupefying drug," said Mrs. Ashby.

"Pardon me, I pray! This meeting was so unexpected that it quite unnerved me. But I am delighted to see you, Miss Watson, I assure you," he said as one waking from a dream.

"Miss Watson will spend the autumn with us. You must assist in making her visit pleasant," remarked Mrs. Ashby.

Howard Ashby passed a sleepless night. The more he thought of his mother's strange conduct the more he became mystified. The next morning he asked for an explanation.

"Miss Watson is a very estimable young lady, Howard; I sincerely hope that you will enjoy her visit, and that you will endeavor to make it equally enjoyable to her," said Mrs. Ashby, and she declined to discuss the subject further, so he resolved to let the mystery unravel itself.

One morning in October Mrs. Ashby entered the library. Howard was waiting for her there.

"Mother, I—I have asked Miss Watson to be my wife," he said hesitatingly.

"Well, did she consent?"

"Yes."

"And so do I, most heartily!" said Mrs. Ashby.

Then she told him the story of the switching tower, how her heart had gone out to the brave girl who had saved his life, how she had hastened to her and cared for her until her recovery, and had won the girl's love and gained her consent to be taken to the Ashby home as soon as the doctors would permit.

"My son," she said, "this is the happiest moment of my life. Of all women you have chosen the one most worthy to bear our name."—Waverly Magazine.

GERMANY HAS 65,000,000

The latest statistics issued in Berlin show that the population of Germany is now 64,750,000 and will be 65,000,000 when the next census is taken on Dec. 1. The increase of population has been about 1,000,000 a year for a long time.

Forty years ago France and Germany were about even in population. Now Germany has 65,000,000 people and France only 39,000,000. The economic and military effects of this disproportion of population in the two rival countries is obvious.

Germany cannot complain of a tendency to race suicide among her people. The birth rate is declining, but the death rate is declining more rapidly. Thirty years ago 200,000 Germans emigrated annually.

This figure has now been reduced to about 20,000. Germany seems prosperous enough to make it of advantage for Germans to remain at home.

Good Form

There is always a welcome place for a good listener. If you are in this class there are a few rules to be kept in mind. First pay strict attention to the talkers. There is no worse breach of good form than the one young girls and young men, too, make to those others who try to amuse them than that of letting their eyes rove in search of somebody else or possibly of a mere escape. Pin your thoughts to the conversation. Do not let your wits go wandering into the why and wherefore of the talker's dress or business.

Be ready to answer any question that may be asked, for of course a good talker will try to engage his listeners in an exchange of ideas. Make it a point to rescue the interesting topic from an inglorious death due to the interrupting person. "You were saying that you saw," etc., is frequently a little thing to bring out a good story that might otherwise go unheard. Every person can do that much. A casual, relevant remark is within any one's power, and the good listener with this ability is as necessary to a social gathering as an interesting talker.

Good listeners rarely have cause for regret or humiliation, and that is much in the favor of silence. Then, too, by listening carefully and attentively you will gain a certain knowledge and valuable information that will in time undoubtedly result in an easy, self possessed ability to talk well. Indeed, there are many more good listeners needed in the social gatherings of our little world.

This is the plea for the rarely cultivated art of keeping silence while others speak. The silent ones should remember that it is the inveterate talker who is considered a bore So the good listener should never despair.

Bedtime Hour For Guests.

Until the end of time it will probably be a mooted question whether guest or hostess should make the first move for retiring for the night. When staying in a house for the first time this is one of the most difficult points for a guest to decide, and it takes a great deal of tact and discernment to arrive at a correct conclusion.

On the basis that a hostess orders the house and the guest conforms there is no doubt that the person whose home it is should make the first move. One who is staying in the house for the first time cannot be expected to know the habits and rules of the place, including the hour for arising, on which greatly depends that for retiring.

In the summer house at country or seashore the chances are, if the host goes to town for business every day, that the whole household is up early. The hostess is certainly, as a rule, if her husband is a business man. In that case it is almost essential that they go to bed early. Logical as this conclusion may seem, a guest fears to suggest going too early to her own room lest she should seem to be bored during the evening, and thus it is when both really would like to turn in at a reasonable hour they and others are kept up by a desperate attempt to be polite.

Facial Contortions Bad Form.

A great many of our facial contortions are due to nervousness, just as we owe to the same cause equally obnoxious habits of tapping with the foot and handling small objects which happen to be within reach of restless fingers.

All of these annoying little habits are due to a lack of repose and lack of training in early youth to acquire control of the nerves.

So unconscious are the perpetrators of these tricks that they will actually find fault with other people for like habits and be ignorant that they themselves are guilty of similar bad breeding.

It is really ill bred to have these restless habits, no matter how unconscious one is of possessing them, for anything is ill bred that gives annoyance to others.

Facial contortions and grimaces are usual among womankind, and it really is too bad, because after awhile they cause lines and actually alter the expression for the worse.

A Guide to Good Manners.

If you are puzzled about a question of etiquette and have not time to consult an older or more experienced friend or relative apply the Golden Rule—to do as you would be done by—for this will almost always bring you out of your difficulty with flying colors. The expression "a nature's gentleman" is often applied to some simple minded and unsophisticated man who is thus guided, for, whether we be gentle or simple, the truest good breeding is shown by our care for the feelings of others. The real "great lady" is as thoughtful and considerate for those beneath her in social position as she would be for royalty, though she would show her thought in a different fashion, and since we may all be "queens by love" it behooves us to be royally courteous and considerate. The brusque, rough woman who confounds a pleasant manner of speaking with insincerity is greatly to be pitied, for she has thrown away her scepter and lost her crown.

Crippen Planned Suicide on His Voyage to Quebec

WROTE NOTE TO MISS LENEVE

It Is Discovered by Dew, Who Produces It In Court When the Pair Are Arraigned on Charge of Murdering Belle Elmore—Crippen Exonerates Woman In Conversation With Inspector—New Evidence Probable

London, Aug. 30.—That Hawley H. Crippen, the American doctor, had planned to end his life by jumping overboard on his voyage to Quebec, was the sensational assertion made by Inspector Dew when Crippen and Miss Leneve were arraigned in Bow street court, charged with murder.

Dew said that he told Crippen that he must put him in handcuffs "as you have written that you intended jumping overboard."

To this Crippen replied: "I will not do that. My anxiety has been too awful."

Explaining his suspicion that the fugitives had planned to commit suicide, the inspector exhibited to the court a business card upon one side of which were the words: "P. Robinson & Co., Michigan. Presented by John E. Robinson."

This card was found among Crippen's effects and on the back of it apparently in the doctor's handwriting was the following:

"I cannot stand the horror I go through every night any longer, and as I see nothing bright ahead and my journey is coming to an end, I have made up my mind to jump overboard tonight. I know I have spoiled your life, but some day you may learn to forgive me. My last words are of love."

Dew also introduced a torn piece of a card on which Crippen had written this question: "Shall we wait until tonight about 10 or 11? If not, what time?"

Asking after Miss Leneve, Crippen said to the inspector: "I will do all I can for her. It is only fair to say that she knows nothing about it. I never told her anything."

The witness said that in conversing with Captain Kendall of the Montrose Miss Leneve remarked that she had not seen a newspaper since she left London, and referring to the murder mystery added:

"I know nothing about it." To the inspector the woman said: "I assure you I know nothing about it. I intended to write my sister when I got to Quebec."

When the warrant was read on shipboard, Miss Leneve wept, and becoming greatly agitated, fainted.

The fact that both Crippen and Miss Leneve are accused of the murder of the actress wife of the doctor leads to the supposition that the mutilated body has been identified to the satisfaction of the authorites. It also suggests that the police believe they have more evidence concerning Miss Leneve's connection with the tragedy than they had made known heretofore.

Monday's proceedings consisted of the introduction of evidence against the accused, at the conclusion of which they were remanded until Sept. 6 without having pleaded or made any comment in reply to the charge against them.

GAYNOR ON HIS FARM

Bracing Long Island Air Appears to Be Benefiting Him

New York, Aug. 30.—Mayor Gaynor shows no ill effects from his trip to St. James from Hoboken. For the present no visitors will be received unless they come by special invitation.

After his return to St. James Gaynor seemed to brighten up considerably and said the bracing Long Island air had seemed to benefit him already. He walked about the porch and looked over his chickens and live stock. He also went into the barn to look over things there.

It is reported that the mayor will rest at his St. James home for several weeks and then perhaps go to the Adirondacks. An ocean trip has been suggested, but the physicians believe the salt air might have a bad effect on his throat.

SHOE STRIKERS CONFIDENT

Salem Manufacturers Are Also Determined Not to Yield

Salem, Mass., Aug. 30.—The shoe workers' strike entered on its third week with a settlement no nearer than two weeks ago. Over 1000 men are now out and the shops are badly crippled. The strikers are full of confidence and are preparing for a fight to a finish.

The manufacturers have rejected Mayor Howard's overtures for a committee of arbitration and it is expected will close down rather than yield.

Cholera Appears In Germany

Berlin, Aug. 30.—Cholera, now raging in Russia and with a foothold in Austria and Italy, has broken out in Prussia. The first death was reported at Spandhau.

THIRTY YEARS OF FALSIFYING

Treasurer of York County Bank Kept His Secret Well

SHORTAGE IS ABOUT $350,000

Hundreds of Mill Operatives Discouraged Over Prospect of Recovering Savings of Lifetime of Labor—Bank Examiner Finds That Trial Balance Was Juggled—No Explanation Is Made of Origin of Shortage

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 30.—A sensation was caused here by State Bank Examiner Skelton's statement that the shortage in the accounts of the York County Savings bank, whose doors were closed by him on Aug. 12, would not be less and $300,000, and not more than $350,000. It has been found that the account had been falsified for thirty years.

Hundreds of the 3800 depositors are mill operatives, whose savings of a lifetime of labor were behind the bank's doors.

They had hopes that they would lose only a part of their dividends, and had trusted that the estimate that the shortage would not exceed $100,000 would prove correct.

When they read that the state banking department's report figured that the deficit would be at least 17 percent, and probably more, they were shocked and discouraged.

This estimate was based on a discrepancy between the trial balance drawn on Aug. 6 by Richmond H. Ingersoll, the aged and deposed treasurer, which showed deposits of $1,194,290, whereas the amount should have been $1,544,290, and book value of assets of $1,287,717. This showed a discrepancy of $350,000 in the depositors' accounts, or a shortage of $256,573 through the difference between the book value of assets and actual deposits.

The shortage as given in Monday's statement was approximated with substantial accuracy and based on the comparison of a large percentage of the pass books. A full and accurate statement will be issued by Skelton when these are all in.

Thus far the examination has not shown any of the shortage to have been due to recent irregularities, except by the compounding semi-annually of the true interest on pass books but not on the bank's ledger.

No explanation has been made by Skelton of the origin of the shortage, although the bank officials have explained it was due to bad investments in western securities by the bank a quarter of a century ago. The trustees held a meeting immediately after the statement was issued, with President Prescott present, and, although it was in session an hour, nothing was given out.

SEES SWEETHEART DROWN

Helpless Lover Looks on as Girl Jumps Into North Canal

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 29.—Without giving any explanation of her act, but simply uttering the words, "I want to die," Gabrielle Pycke, 18 years old, broke away from Ernest Wante, with whom she was walking, and jumped into the North canal. Wante could not swim and the girl drowned before he could secure help.

According to Wante he and the young woman, with whom he had been very friendly for some months, met by appointment and after walking around went to a moving picture theatre. The girl, however, was restless and after half an hour suggested that they go for another walk. She had hold of his arm as they walked down Amesbury street and just as they reached the canal, let go of his arm and crawling through the iron fence jumped into the water.

NEW MAYOR FOR LAWRENCE

Cahill Chosen to Fill Unexpired Term of White, Now In Jail

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 30.—John T. Cahill, a Lawrence physician, was last night elected mayor to fill the unexpired term caused by the resignation of William P. White, who is serving a three-year term in the Lawrence jail for conspiracy to bribe last year's government.

The election was held in the councilmanic chamber of the city hall and not more than fifty spectators interested themselves enough in the matter to attend and see the balloting.

The vote was close, Cahill receiving only 12 votes—just enough to elect him. Alderman Scanlon was the only absentee, and as he is an anti-Cahill man, had he been present the election might have resulted in a deadlock. Five candidates were named during the voice ballot.

NEGRO INSURANCE COMPANY

Pioneer Organization Incorporated In Capital of Mississippi

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 30.—Governor Noel has approved the charter of the Union Guarantee and Insurance company, capitalized at $50,000. This is probaby the first insurance company in the world to be organized by negroes.

The incorporators of the new company are among the leading negroes of the state. There are thirty-one incorporators. The entire capital stock will be subscribed by the negroes of the state, and negro officers will conduct the business.

Quincy People Give Credit Where Credit is Due.

People of Quincy who suffer with sick kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. The best is Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine for the kidneys only, made from pure roots and herbs, and the only one that is backed by cures in Quincy. Here's Quincy testimony:

Charles Somers, 17 Newcombe Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "It is a pleasure for me to make known to other kidney sufferers, the benefit I received from Doan's Kidney Pills. I had lame back as the result of weak kidneys, for about ten years. I could get no relief from the many remedies I tried and when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before long this remedy completely cured me. I shall always praise Doan's Kidney Pills.

JOHN F. O'ROURKE

Engineer Who Offers to Raise and Save the Maine

MAY RAISE THE MAINE

O'Rourke Outlines Plans to President Taft and Secretary Meyer

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 30.—For an hour and a half John F. O'Rourke, a New York engineer, talked with President Taft and Secretary of the Navy Meyer of his plans for the raising of the battleship Maine from her resting place on the bottom of Havana harbor.

"If my plan is admitted, the government furnishes us with a repair ship, a couple of tugs and 1200 men to help us in the work, the Maine will be raised by Christmas and it can be done inside the appropriation of $600,000," said O'Rourke last night as he came from the president's cottage.

The president showed the keenest interest in the plan.

ADMITS SETTING SIX FIRES WITHIN MONTH

Stableman Says Mania Overcomes Him When He Drinks

Boston, Aug. 30.—Morris O'Keefe, a stableman discharged by A. J. Furbush, a Brighton horse owner, was held in $15,000 bail in the Brighton district court, charged with having set six fires in that section within a month, one of which did $25,000 damage to the Furbush stable and contents last Thursday night, when many of the valuable race horses kept there were rescued with the greatest difficulty.

The police declare that O'Keefe has confessed that he set the fires alone. They say that he told them that when he drank he had a mania for setting fires. When he was arraigned in court he pleaded guilty and was held for the action of the grand jury.

BABY FALLS INTO POND

Is Finally Rescued, but Mother and Unknown Man Are Drowned

Boston, Aug. 30.—A baby carriage slipped from a mother's grasp for an instant yesterday afternoon, and rolling down a gentle slope plunged into Jamaica pond.

In the frantic half hour which followed, the mother, Mrs. Catherine J. Hogarty, aged 27, and an unknown man were drowned. The baby was finally saved by a passing girl.

The unknown man was attracted by the woman's screams and reached the spot just as Mrs. Hogarty, her clothes soaked, was being pulled under by their weight. Without waiting to remove even his coat he plunged head first to the drowning woman's aid. He succeeded in reaching her, but the drowning woman broke his hold and clutching her rescuer with the death grip pulled him under. Their bodies were recovered by the police.

KINGDOM MAY BE SAVED

Holy Ghosters on Mud Island Are Well Sheltered and Fed

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 30.—Efforts have been made to patch the hole in the bow of the barkentine Kingdom, of the Holy Ghost and Us society, which is ashore on Mud island, and with the weather fine it appears possible that the vessel may be floated and brought here for repairs.

Customs Inspector Churchill visited the island to inspect the forty-nine persons who landed from the barkentine. All are well housed or tented and have plenty of provisions.

Lime Laden Schooner Burns

Chatham, Mass., Aug. 30.—The lime laden schooner Ada Ames, bound from Rockland, Me., for New York, opened her seams when she struck on Shovelfull shoal. Water which leaked in slacked the lime and the vessel caught fire and burned. The crew were rescued by lifesavers.

Oleomargerine Tax Is Dodged

Washington, Aug. 30.—More than $200,000 has been lost annually for a number of years by the government by the evasion of the 10 cents a pound tax of colored oleomargerine, according to a report made by international revenue officers.

WITH SHOUTS OF "CLOSED SHOPS"

Striking Cloakmakers March In Parades of Protest

GOFF INJUNCTION HITS HARD

Declares Efforts to Enforce "Closed Shop" Are In Violation of Law on Restraint of Trade—Rule Laid Down by Court of Appeals and Accepted as Law Must Be Applicable to Workmen as Well as to Employers

New York, Aug. 29.—Parades of protest broke out all over the East Side on receipt of the news that Justice Goff had ruled in the state supreme court that a strike which demands the "closed shop" is a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Bands of the 60,000 cloakmakers now on strike marched through the streets, one of them to city hall, carrying banners and American flags and shouting "closed shops" at every step.

Unrest and anger were everywhere visible among the strikers. Justice Goff's decision granted an injunction to a member of the Manufacturers' Protective association in restraint of acts of violence, threats, picketing and patrolling by strikers.

"The primary purpose of this strike," reads his finding, "is not to better the condition of the workingman, but is to deprive other men of the opportunity of their right to work."

He supports his ruling with a recent decision of the state court of appeals, against the Thompson-Starrett company, a large building corporation, which he cites as follows:

"The court of appeals has held that it is against the policy of the state for employers who control practically the whole trade in a community to combine for the purpose of compelling workmen to join a particular union as a condition of employment. If the rule thus laid down be the law, and it must be accepted as such, being the latest expression of the court of appeals, it must be applicable to workmen as well as employers.

"It would be repugnant to reason to hold that it applies to one and not to the other. If a combine of one to refuse employment, except on condition of joining a union, be against public policy, a combination of the other to cause refusal of employment, except on condition of joining a union, is alike against public policy."

Justice Goff then cites one of the articles of compromise presented by representatives of the union to the manufacturers, as follows:

"The association of manufacturers shall obligate each of its members to employ union men as long as the union shall be able to furnish union men who can do the work properly. Within two weeks the non-union men shall join the union."

"This clause," he continues, "which shows the purpose animating the strike, as interpreted by the court, is clearly unlawful," and he passes to the conduct of the strike.

"If the unions," he stated, "have not formally directed a systematic course of aggression by criminal acts, the members of the unions, acting in concert, have connived at and morally supported such acts on the part of many of their members in pursuance of a common object."

A final vote on the tentative agreement reached yesterday between the strikers and manufacturers, details of which have already been published, will not be reached until late tonight and possibly will not be made public until tomorrow.

General opinion inclines to belief that there is much complaint that they are not more favorable to the strikers.

MEN WILL BE BARRED

Woman Colony Soon to Occupy Whole City Block In Gotham

New York, Aug. 29.—A whole city block of women, with not a man in sight, will become an interesting reality in the "improved mode of living" in this city early in the fall.

The members of the woman colony, which it is declared will be the only one of its kind in the world, will be housed in two separate buildings. The first will be known as the "Junior League Residential club," while the other will be named the "Model Kitchenette Apartments for Women."

GAMBLING WARRANT VALID

Vice President of Narragansett Club Held In $2000 For Trial

Narragansett, R. I., Aug. 30.—William E. Arnold, vice president of the fashionable Narragansett club, which was raided three weeks ago by Constable Cross, was held in $2000 for trial, on the charge of maintaining a gambling resort, on Sept. 12.

This was the first of two distinct blows that Judge Lewis dealt the social leaders who have been bringing every conceivable pressure to bear to defeat Cross. Arnold's counsel had claimed that the warrant upon which his client was arrested was not valid.

The other was a decision of Lewis that Cross acted properly in summoning Philip S. P. Randolph, president of the Point Judith Country club; Richard H. Bohlen and Robert E. Strawbridge, to be present in court. The three men did not appear in court. An application was made for writs of attachment for the arrest of the three men. Lewis said he would take the matter under for a couple of days.

CONEY ISLAND "LID" DOWN

Change of Police Inspectors to Relieve Present Vile Conditions

New York, Aug. 30.—The "lid" has been clamped down hard on Coney Island and the police are being instructed to close up all the undesirable resorts at the island.

Because of the wide-open condition of Coney Island, Acting Mayor Mitchel ordered a quiet investigation made, and yesterday Police Commissioner Baker reduced Police Inspector O'Brien of the Coney Island district to a captain and transferred him, and sent Inspector Russell of the detective bureau to Coney Island to clean up the place.

Acting Mayor Mitchel said he did not believe that the reports of his investigations on conditions at Coney Island would be made public. "If they were, not a paper in the city would publish them, they contain information of so vile a character," the acting mayor explained.

ROOSEVELT RAPS OUR HIGHEST COURT

He Says It Threatens to Upset Popular Government

Denver, Aug. 30.—Acts of the supreme court of the United States were sharply criticized by Theodore Roosevelt in an address in the state capitol here before the Colorado legislature.

"The decision of the supreme court of the United States in the Knight sugar trust case," he said, "was a decision nominally against national rights, but really against popular rights.

"In the New York bakeshop case the supreme court of the United States possessed and unfortunately exercised the negative power of not permitting the abuse to be remedied.

"If such decisions as these two indicated the court's permanent attitude there would be real and grave cause to give alarm, for such decisions if consistently followed up would upset the whole system of popular government."

Mr. Roosevelt's speech before the legislature was one of five that he delivered in Denver. Everywhere he went he was greetetd by cheering multitudes.

Heinze and Mrs. Henderson Secure Marriage License In New York

New York, Aug. 30.—Visitors to the marriage license bureau in the city hall Monday included Mrs. Bernice Golden Henderson, the actress, and F. A. Heinze, the Montana copper man, whose engagement was recently announced.

The ceremony will take place Aug. 31. Heinze said he was 40 years of age and was born in Brooklyn. He gave his place of residence as Butte, Mont., and said he was a miner.

Mrs. Henderson said she was 26 and lived in this city. She said her parents were Thomas Golden, born in Ireland, and Mary Campbell. This will be her second marriage. She divorced her first husband on April 1, 1909, and was awarded custody of their one child, a girl, and $300 a month alimony.

GOVERNOR SANDERS

He Will Decline to Qualify as United States Senator

WILL REMAIN GOVERNOR

Sanders Prefers Furthering Exposition to Becoming a Senator

New Orleans, Aug. 29.—Governor Sanders of Louisiana announces that he will decline to qualify as United States senator, to which place he was recently elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Samuel D. McEnery.

The governor did not deny reports that Judge Thornton, for many years identified with political affairs of the state, would be appointed senator.

Governor Sanders says that he was actuated to take this course following representations made to him that he could best serve the interest of the world's Panama exposition proposed to be held here in 1915 by retaining the governorship.

By virtue of and pursuant to the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by David M. Hoffecker, of Boston, Mass., to Amos H. Fairbanks, Jr., dated March 2, 1905, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 995, Page 35, which mortgage has been assigned by mesne conveyances to Charles R. Sherman of Quincy, Massachusetts, for breach of the condition of said mortgage deed and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described, on WEDNESDAY, the 14th day of September, 1910, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, to wit:—A certain parcel of land situated in that part of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, known as Norfolk Downs; and being Lots numbered 1130 and 1141 on plan of Charles D. Elliot dated April 1892 and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book of Plans Number 14, Plan number 640, and bounded and described as follows, viz:—Northeasterly by Newport Avenue 50 feet; Southeasterly by Lots 1140 and 1131 one hundred and fifty (150) feet; Southwesterly by Arlington Street fifty (50) feet; Northwesterly by lots number 1129 and 1142 on said plan one hundred and fifty (150) feet; containing according to said plan 7500 square feet, be said measurements more or less. Said premises are subject to restrictions made or referred to in deed of George W. Hopkins et al to David M. Hoffecker dated March 3, 1904.

Said premises will be sold subject to any outstanding tax titles, unpaid taxes or other municipal assessments, if any such there be. Terms, $100 in cash at the time and place of sale. Other terms will be announced at sale.

CHARLES R. SHERMAN,
Assignee and Present Holder of said mortgage.

BRIEFS

Active work paving the west side of Hancock street has commenced.

Keep your eyes toward the sky this week and you may see some of the biplanes flying through the air.

Every one is getting ready to strike a "40 miles an hour" gait to Houghs Neck Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Fulton of John street Montclair, returned Monday from a ten days' sojourn in Portland, Me.

Mrs. Jennie Holton of Edwards street is spending a few days with her daughter Mrs. John K. Ruggles of South Weymouth.

Rev. John Garland, pastor of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church attended camp meeting Thursday and Friday at Stirling.

Robert T. Johnson of Maple street is registered at Mt. Clemens, Mich., and already reports that he is feeling the benefit of his trip.

A number of Quincy Elks are to participate in the first annual outing of the Massachusetts association of Elks at Paragon park on Wednesday.

Mayor Shea, Chief of Police Burrell and Chief Engineer Williams have been selected to be the judges of the Labor day parade.

Advertisements relative to the opening of the public schools and the Woodward Institute will be found in today's Ledger.

Mr. Scribner of Wilbraham had charge of the Friday evening prayer meeting at the Methodist church. H. B. Lowe of Boston was the soloist Sunday morning and evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Francis Abele, Jr., of Spear street left Monday on a trip to the Pacific coast, expecting to visit en route Chicago, St. Paul, Spokane, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco.

Dr. J. F. Welch and family and Miss Abby B. Wood left Monday on an automobile trip through western Massachusetts to New York and home through Vermont and New Hampshire.

The new Quincy police automobile patrol and ambulance wagon is not out of the paint shop as yet, but Chief Burrell says he intends to have it in service for the aviation week which begins Saturday, paint or no paint.

The Quincy excursionists to Providence on Friday will leave ahead of the time originally scheduled, as it is important to reach Providence earlier. All are requested to take the 8.05 A. M. train to Boston, as the special train will leave Boston at 8.40.

—Automobilists undoubtedly will hail with delight the invention of a former German infantry officer by the use of which the running of an automobile over a pavement curb would result in the occupants of the car feeling no jolt. It is claimed that cobblestones and uneven country roads may be negotiated in automobiles with as much freedom from discomfort as is experienced by passengers on railroad trains.

DEATHS.

SHERMAN—In Quincy, Aug. 29 Mrs. Catherine W., wife of Mr. Charles R. Sherman of 34 Park street, aged 63 years.

THAYER—In Hingham, Aug. 29, Mr. Edward W. Thayer, aged 43 years, 11 months.

NO RENOVATION FOR VENETIANS

Mob Deports Men Who Urge Wholesale Modernization.

PALACES AS CANAL FILLERS.

Circulars Flung From Campanile Urge Substitution of "Dazzling Reign of Electric Light For Eternal Moonshine," "Rigid Geometry of Bridges For Old Architectural Curves."

While the crowds were promenading the Piazza San Marco, in Venice, recently a shower of multicolored handbills fell on them. People picked them up and read on them an impassioned appeal to lift the old city out of the doldrums and reconstruct it on modern lines.

Then they looked up and saw thirteen men on top of the restored campanile, each of them working with all his might to scatter his allotment of this literature.

There is nothing like old Venice to the Venetians. With common impulse the crowds surged around the monument. Enough of them went aloft to haul down the handbill men and head them for the Grand canal alongside the palace of the doges, with the multitude as escort. They were pushed into gondolas.

Renovators Deported In Haste.

All the other gondolas near by were rapidly filled, and to the accompaniment of hisses and hooting the flotilla moved to the railway station, where the offenders were promptly deported. This is what the handbills said:

We repudiate the ancient Venice of secular voluptuousness, though we have loved it long. We repudiate the ancient Venice of strangers, market of false antiques, magnetical pole for all the snobs and imbeciles of the world, haunt of cosmopolitan adventuresses and never ending lovers.

We want to cure this rotting town. We want to enliven and ennoble the Venetian people, declined from their former grandeur and abased by dishonest traffic. We want to prepare the birth of a commercial and military Venice, able to brave an eternal enemy of the Adriatic—Austria.

Palaces Good Canal Fillers.

Hasten to fill your fetid canals with the ruins of your tumbling and plague stricken palaces. Burn your gondolas, those swings for foolish travelers, and erect up to the sky the rigid geometry of large metallic bridges and factories. Abolish your old architectural curves. May the dazzling reign of electric light free Venice from her eternal moonshine!

There were thirteen signatures of fairly respectable names to the manifesto. They styled themselves "futurist poets and painters." In their zeal to advertise liberally they dropped 200,000 handbills from the campanile.

BRIEFS

Miss Tina Libbey of John street, Montclair, has returned from Portland, Maine, where she has spent a delightful vaaction with relatives.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Atlantic M. E. church met Monday afternoon in the vestry of the church to make arrangements for a supper to be held early in September.

Robert McVitie, a past president of Local 79, and a past president of the State branch of the International Union of Steam Engineers, will attend the National convention in Denver on Sept. 1,2 as the Massachusetts delegate. The executive committee voted $75 toward his expenses.

—The high power electric search lights with which vessels are equipped on the Great Lakes prove most useful in the early spring nights when the water is covered with a partially broken ice field. By means of the light, openings are located, thus often saving many hours of delay.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.

THE ROOSTER DOLL.

All Children Love This Newcomer In Toyland.

Have you seen the rooster doll? He—or, rather, she, for the rooster has a little girl's head—is one of the funniest and cleverest toys to enter the nursery since the Teddy bear made his triumphal appearance. Indeed, in the affections of some of the small folk Teddy's nose is completely out of joint.

THE PET OF THE NURSERY.

These dolls come in different sizes and prices. The kind most liked are about the size of the bear toy, and the body is of the same plushy material. The rooster's pinions are of red, yellow and green felt, and the topknot is the familiar cockscomb carried out in bright red cloth. Topping the pretty face of a "little girl" bisque doll, this headgear effect is very amusing. The doll is jointed and may be twisted into all sorts of attitudes.

It's Straight From Paris.

There is an entirely new idea in trimming lingerie dresses recently arrived from Paris that will be used in many ways later on in the season in the making of different kinds of clothes.

It is this. In place of the usual trimming of hand embroidery the design is worked out in simple lines of tiny dull white beads. This is an exceedingly clever idea and perfectly charming when applied to certain materials like batiste, marquisette or chiffon. Fine cluny and baby Irish are used in trimming lingerie dresses in preference to valenciennes, which has fallen into disfavor for the present.

Don't Be "Fussy."

Don't! Even if you can't try to overcome the failing for the sake of your own health and peace of mind try to do so for the sake of the man you will certainly render wretched one of these days.

It is said that no woman has a proper sense of proportion. The fussy woman certainly hasn't. On her horizon trifles loom like battleships. She never recognizes what really matters and what is unimportant.

As a worker the fussy woman is always a failure. She neither gets through as much nor allows others to do so. Like a high stepping horse, she is all action, yet makes but little progress. Nevertheless fussiness will age her before her time.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Quincy boys got right after the leather on Saturday and whaled it all over the lot, several of them increasing their average. In the field Armstrong and Fay fell down but are easily excused. "Shimmer" O'Brien was at the bat twice and singled each time. He had nothing to do in the fielding line.

The averages to date are:

BATTING.

O'Brien	1.000
Duggan	.343
Briggs	.333
Nowell	.314
Lonergan	.297
Fay	.250

Now that the great national matches at Camp Perry are a thing of the past the eyes of the shooting world are turned upon Sea Girt, N. J., where the matches of the New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania State Rifle Associations will be held, beginning September 1 and lasting until September 10.

• • •

A fan who is a good sport came to me with a tale of woe, after the Quincy-Stoughton game. The kids who are admitted to the game gratis brought balls of tar in from the new sidewalk in front of the gate and smeared it on the bleachers. Of course we are willing to give the kids a show, but that sounds bad. The complainant's trousers are spoiled as are others, he says.

• • •

• • •

• • •

Duggan made three great catches. Each time he had to run back about forty feet to grab the ball, and each time he got a great hand. Connelly did some good work, too. This sterling outfielder has yet to drop a ball.

Matty Nicol is another Makaria graduate in the Old Colony corral. Though good, he is hardly able to compete with his fast rivals.

• • •

That battery Mike tried out in the last inning was great. Knight passed two, but think of how nervous he must have been. And didn't Boyle catch the would-be sack stealer in nice form. Those boys will get there some day.

• • •

The double header drew the crowd all right. The Granite City League game was attended with a great deal of interest and was warm applauded. By the way, although Cranch went to bat in the ninth inning the Apprentices got only 24 put-outs because the winning run was scored with none out.

Sicily Makes Artificial Marble.

They are now making artificial marble with much success in Sicily. The manufactory is in the shadow of Mount Etna, and there common blocks of sandstone are put in a tank containing volcanic asphalt and coal tar and boiled for thirty-six hours. The stones are then taken out and polished, and it is said that it takes an expert to tell them from black marble.

Electric Floor Scrubber Appears.

Weighing less than fifty pounds, an electrically driven machine has been invented for scrubbing floors.

LOOKS LIKE EASY THING FOR CUBS

Chance's Great Baseball Machine Heading Pennantward.

ARE BETTER NOW THAN EVER

Cubs Are Hitting, Fielding and Running Bases as They Did When Winning World's Championships—Team Almost Same as It Was in 1906.

By TOMMY CLARK.

They never come back, say the wise ones. Well, then, how about Frank Chance and his Cubs? Haven't they come back? I guess yes. Five seasons ago "Old Husk" was leading practically the same team pennantward. There have been a couple of changes in the twirling staff and one in the outfield, Hofman replacing Slagle. But with these exceptions the team is the same as it was way back in 1906. The same men are playing the same positions, and any one who has seen the majority of them will say that they are better now than ever.

Last May the Cubs had their own troubles. They couldn't get up their old speed, and a few misplays threw them off their games. Of course the critics figured, as was natural, that Frank Chance had a fine old bunch of has-beens on his hands and that the once great baseball machine had gone to pieces. Few clubs have gone along winning pennants and world's championships without needing complete reorganization within five years or less of their first success. It was only reasonable to believe that the Cubs had had their day and that Chance would have to dig up new and young material.

The clubs with younger talent beat the Cubs earlier in the season. It surely looked as though Chicago would have to be satisfied with third place at best. Things have changed a whole lot since then.

The kids have shot their bolts. But the Cubs are traveling fast and playing a game that is seldom equaled in the National league. They are the class, and it looks as if nothing will stop them from walking home with the flag, just as they did in 1906, 1907 and 1908.

The club is batting, fielding and running the bases better than ever, and apparently there is not a weak spot on the team. Schulte, Hofman and Sheckard in the outfield are gobbling up everything sent out to their gardens. The catching department is stronger than ever. Kling has about reached his old form, and Archer is almost his equal. The pitching staff is the largest and strongest in the National league, and its members are in rare form.

That wonderful stone wall infield—Chance, Evers, Tinker and Steinfeldt—is a corker. That phrase "Tinker to Evers, to Chance," made famous by the baseball critics, will always be remembered by the fans. There probably will never be a more famous infield than this one. It is considered the brainiest that ever appeared on the diamond.

The Cubs are right now playing as fast a game as when they were winning world's championships. They're the class, and, barring an awful run of hard luck, they'll just about walk home with that old flag.

Coombs Pitched Longest Game.

Jack Coombs, one of Connie Mack's star pitchers, is the hero of the longest game in the history of the American league. He won a twenty-four inning contest from Boston, September, 1906, 4 to 1.

PLAYGROUND NOTES.

A cordial invitation is extended to the parents and adult friends of the boys and girls who have enjoyed the privileges of the playgrounds to attend the closing exercises which will be held on Friday afternoon from 2.30 to 5 o'clock. A program of games and races has been arranged, and at the close of the games light refreshments will be served.

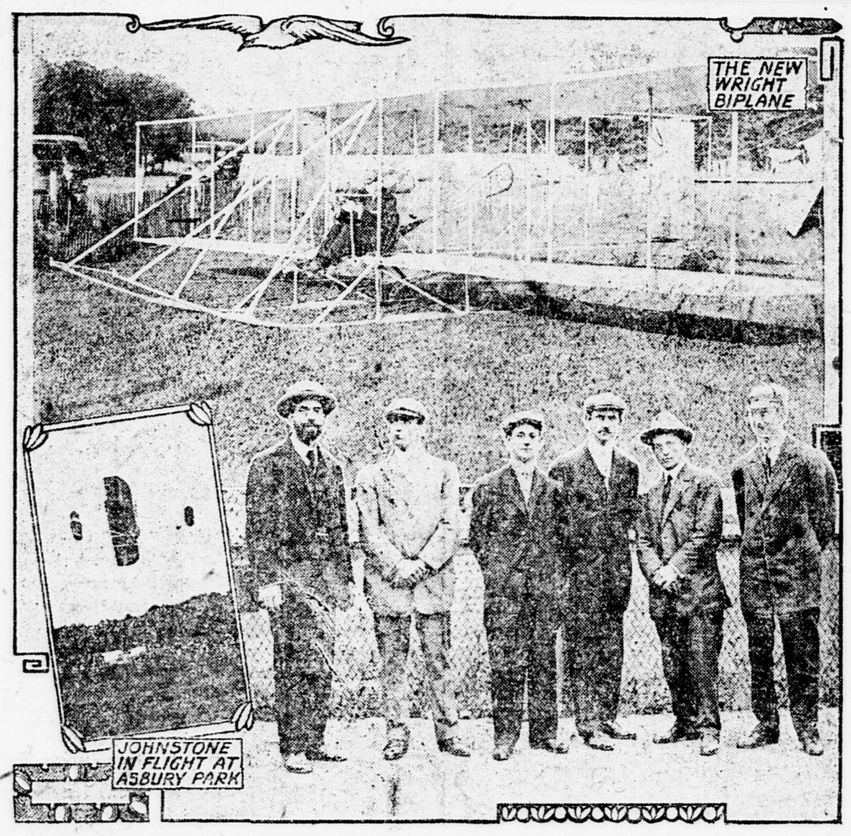

It took ten innigs for the Red Sox to defeat the Tigers Tuesday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. playgrounds. Martin of the Tigers weakened in the final session and allowed three hits, after having held the opposing side to two hits and striking out 16 men. England and Mattson also pitched well for the winners only allowing two hits both of which were made by Martin. The Cubs defeated the Athletes in the morning by the score of 6 to 4. The standing in the league is now as follows: Red Sox, .750; Tigers .600; Athletics .500; Cubs, .250.

New Aeroplanes Interest Aviators In Many Parts of the Country.

Photos Copyright, 1310, by American Press Association.

[Reading from left to right—A. F. Post, G. A. D. McCurdy, J. C. Mars, Glenn H. Curtiss, C. E. Willard and E. Ely.]

Flying machines and their pilots are attracting much attention in various places just now. The big prizes offered by newspapers for cross country flights, together with the announced world's contests to take place over Belmont race track, New York, have prompted aviators to strive as never before for the best and safest machines. Recently the Wright brothers of Dayton, O., perfected a machine which, they assert, is steadier than their earlier models. It is without the forward elevating planes and depends only upon a small plane in the rear to rise from the ground. At Sheepshead Bay, Asbury Park and other places some wonderful feats have been performed, and announcements are being made daily of other meetings. Besides the Wrights, Curtiss and Hamilton as well as Brookins, Johnstone and Coffyn are taking part in most of the tests in the air.

A RESTELLI SUSPECT

Was Seen in Sanford, Maine, On Sunday Last

A new clew to the missing murderer Restelli came Tuesday, in a dispatch from Biddeford, Me. A. H. Atkins of that city who is almost positive that he saw the much-wanted man in Sanford Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Atkins was waiting for a trolley car when he saw a man whom he noticed had a defect in one of his eyes. When the stranger saw Mr. Atkins looking sharply at him he started back and then started down the street. He told his story to a Globe man on his arrival home, who producing a photograph of Restelli showed it to Mr. Atkins who declared that it was the man he had seen.

Chief of Police Burrell said Monday night that he had received no word from the Biddeford police in regard to the suspect. He said however that he would not be surprised to hear of Restelli from Maine as there were many granite towns in that state. It is possible that State officer Scott may go to Sanford today to follow up the clew.

It is believed that Restelli would naturally seek work in some granite town, and as Restelli had been practically run out of Vermont by the Italians it is hardly possible that he would go to that state.

Replies to the circulars sent out by Chief Burrell show that every city in this country, except Chicago, as well as the cities of Canada and Europe have been covered. The circular sent to Chicago were returned for lack of sufficient postage.

Sufficient postage however was quickly supplied and a bunch of circulars are now on their way to Chicago.

This morning Chief Burrell received word from the police of Biddeford in relation to the man seen by Mr. Atkins on Sunday who it was thought might be Restelli. The Biddeford police do not place much reliance on the story that the man seen was the Luigi G. Restelli of Quincy They, however, say that they are following up the clew and will endeavor to run down the suspect.

ADVERTISE.

COMMITTED AS TRAMP.

A young man who gave his name as Archie J. McLellan, aged 28 years, of 427 Seaver street, Dorchester, was arrested by Officer Larkin on Tuesday afternoon for the larceny of a watch from Annie Lyons of Hancock street. There have been a number of petty larcenies in the vicinity of Norfolk Downs of late and suspicion pointed to a young man who had been visiting houses in that vicinity asking for food and clothing. It was from the description given of the man that Officer Larkin made the arrest. It is alleged that he confessed to the officer that he had taken $10.75 from the house of James S. Kinneon on Billings road, a small sum from Patrick Craddick also of Billings road, and a watch from Annie Lyons. He denied the larceny in court.

He was arraigned on two complaints. One for the larceny of a watch from Mrs. Lyons, and the second for being a tramp. The case for larceny was placed on file and he was committed to the State farm at Bridgewater for being a tramp.

NOT UNDER EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

A Washington dispatch to the Post says: The submarines and torpedo destroyers authorized by the last session of Congress are not to be constructed under the provisions of the eight-hour law. The Department of Justice today informed the Navy Department that the law did not require their construction in conformity with the eight-hour law, and as the cost of construction will be less if the law is not applicable the Navy Department will let contracts for them containing no clause referring to the eight-hour law.

WANTED FOR SENATE.

The friends of Mayor Shea are much pleased to know that in certain contingencies he might be prevailed upon to run for the State Senate. If he did his friends believe he surely would be elected.

ANOTHER LANUCHING.

Tuesday, Sept. 20, has been selected as the date for the launching of the tank steamship Currier at the Fore River shipyard. She will be christened by a daughter of Guy Currier of Boston.

PROVIDENCE BEDECKED FOR WATERWAYS HOST

Tickets Selling Rapidly for the Excursion From Quincy on Friday

Large Number of Southern Delegates Have Arrived

The members of the Board of Trade Outing Committee met at the Board of Trade rooms in the Adams building last night and discussed the annual outing to be held Friday of this week at Providence. The members reported tickets selling fast and every indication points to a very successful excursion.

Word has been received that the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association Committee on decoration and badges have adopted a design for a badge an allegorical scheme representing two dragons supporting an ocean and ships also a booklet to be bound in leather and photographs of Narragansett Bay, these are to be given to visitors as souvenirs.

President J. Hampton Moore in a recent bulletin says "in Providence and vicinity there has been great activity on the part of committees headed by Governor Pothier and Senator Sanborn, and no road leading to Rhode Islands hospitality and good cheer, seems to have been left unimproved. Unless all signs fail—and that seems impossible—we are going to have the most successful convention of the Atlantic Association at Providence. The City and State have spoken officially and the warm hearted citizenship of the prosperous people who carry their history and traditions back to Roger Williams and King Philip, is only waiting the opportunity to show itself.

In every state along the Atlantic coast, the cause of inland waterways is being discussed and as the season for yachting and motor-boating advances, Providence, favorably situated both in the matter of climate and approach, is becoming the mecca of an expectant throng from Maine to Florida. Providence will undoubtedly give the delegates a royal time in the matter of entertainment."

The Quincy party will leave Quincy at 8.05 A. M. and if the one hundred tickets are sold, a special train will take the party from Boston, if less than one hundred are sold they will take the regular train at 8.40 A. M.

Each one will be furnished with a badge marked "Quincy-Narragansett Bay to Boston Harbor Canal." A line will be formed outside the Providence depot and the party will march through the streets to Convention hall where a section has been reserved for them. At noon a sail down the bay past the warships to Crescent Park where a real old fashioned clambake will be enoyed. The party will leave Providence at 7.25 P. M. and arrive in Quincy at 9.30 P. M. W. S. Hamlin secretary and treasurer of the outing committee reports that tickets have been sold to many prominent officials and business men. Anyone wishing information or tickets should address the secretary at 83 Glendale road, Quincy, or 1030-1 Old South building, Boston, Phone Fort Hill 2693. Tickets will also be on sale at the station Friday A. M. before 8 o'clock. Price of tickets are $3. and every expense paid.

A special of Tuesday to the Journal says: Providence's greeting to the delegates of the Atlantic deeper waterways convention is one of the finest ever seen in the city. Not only have the merchants decked their places of business in an unusually attractive manner, but the city has added its contribution. City Hall is magnificently decorated, while Dorrance street, from one end of the City Hall to Weybosset street, is a great archway, with the words "What Cheer" in great electrical letters at either end, while from draped poles surmounted by gilded tridents, strings of incandescents aid in the formation of a tunnel of brilliancy at night. At Dorrance and Westminster streets hangs an enchor, rope and pair of oars, depending from the center of the tunnel. The first large contingent of delegates came tonight.

Woodward Institute

Important Notices

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

That proposed telephone list looks scattered when compared with the present list of forty-four exchanges.

The days of the common drinking cup are evidently numbered. What shall we have as a substitute after Oct. 1?

Will September be warm? Last year 80 degrees was the highest temperature, but in five years out of fourteen thre have been 90-degrees days.

The time hae been extended in which to secure tickets for the Waterways convention, and the attractions multiply. Providence has already welcome hundreds of delegates.

It is well that the horse and other dumb animals have friends, who will not tolerate cruelty. It is against the laws of Massachusetts to cruelly abandon animals, and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals offer a reward of $10 for evidence that will convict. Placards have been posted at Quincy and Houghs Neck.

The keynote of the campaign as sounded by President Taft is of the right flavor. Progressive legislation has always been the aim and achievement of the Republican party. Who can take exception to Mr. Taft when he says: "In view of what the present republican congress has done in the fulfilment of its promises, and in view of the standard that it has set in respect to the sacredness of party pledges, I have no hesitation in urging all who are in favor of the performance of the remaining pledges, who are in favor of progess, in favor of practical conservation, in favor of economy in government, in favor of the just regulation of railways and of interstate commence corporations, in favor of a bureau of health, in favor of a proper limitation of the power of equitable injunction, and who are in favor of measures to promote the merchant marine engaged in foreign service, to vote for the republican candidates for congress in order that their wish for all this progressive legislation may be gratified."

DRIFT OF OPINION.

—Out in Reading they are boasting that they have the best lighted town in Massachusetts, and it is done almost entirely with Tungsten electrics. Streets are taken up in order and the needs considered to give the desired results and in this way better satisfaction is obtained.—Natick Bulletin.

Said a preacher one day to an editor: "You editors do not tell the truth. If you did you could not live; your newspapers would be failures." And the editor replied:

"You are right and the minister who will at all times and under all circumstances tell the truth abouthis members ,alive or dead. will not occupy the pulpit more than one Sunday and then he will find it necessary to leave town in a hurry. The press and pulpit go hand in hand with whitewash brushes, pleasant words, magnifying little virtues into great ones. The pulpit, the pen and the gravestone are the great saint-making triumvirate."

Then, it is said ,the minister spoke that afternoon over the remains of one of his congregation, extoling the virtues (?) of a deceased hypocrite while the editor prepared to go to press and his paper told of the beauty of the bride, who, as a matter of fact, was one of the plainest damsels in the whole county.

We wonder how many readers ever realized the truth of this—that if the clergy and the journalists told all they knew about the people of their town and the truth about it wireless wouldn't be fast enough to carry them out of harm's reach.—Chelsea Record.

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

Auto Speeders -- That New Patrol -- Mock Trial

Our ambition seems about to be realized. Should we not say, "hurrah for Bill!" While the world at large may call us "a bunch of kickers" we are kicking for a good cause, and we are not so chronic that we can't appreciate an effort. We were pleased to see a stop watch attached to the wrist of a strong arm of the law last Sunday, for one hour, at the Sea street curve, and still more pleasure to learn that two speeders were held up. Now for the signs, Mayor, don't forget the signs. Paint 'em up and store them till spring. Put them in the Hose house or leave them with Jim Malone, and we'll know they'r in safe hands, till needed.

We will excuse the Mayor if he permits the chief to go 40 miles an hour in that new Knox patrol, because we'll have to. I was told yesterday that the department were so anxious to get the machine for Squantum use on Labor Day, that they were willing to answer calls without a second coat of varnish, but the automobile company assures me that Quincy shall have the second coat after the "round-up." I also happen to know that "Bill" got a discount on the machine, which only goes to show that the Mayor will work economy for us when he can. Was he planning to save something so he could pay for painting those signs for Sea street?

Dunham ought to offer his Overland ambulance for any broken head that might be picked up Labor Day. Rdvertising pays—Arthur.

Ex-Councilman Nelson said to me yesterday, that he thought we fellows at Houghs Neck ought to shut up and give Squantum a chance. Everybody knows, that he knows, that this nose, is rooted in house lots. He swears he is not a conspiracy with the Wright Bros. to open a patent office at the close of Areo meet; and as far as getting a signal station on Great Hill—why—the very ideal!

That Mock Trial to be given at the Casino Thursday night Sept. 1, by the Men's club of Union chapel is made up of 25 hustling characters. Three matters of importance are looked for—good weather, a big crowd, and the Mayor's presence. No expense has been spared to make the affair a fitting end of the summer season, and a regular razzle dazzle may be expected in the title—"40 miles an hour."

Charles E. Decker.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

Those who are not fortunate enough to visit the little village of Aberammergau among the Bavarian Alps this summer and witness the Passion Play which has been performed there every ten years since 1633, may perhaps at least come to the Public Library. In the art gallery are fifty photographs giving a faithful representation of its performance with views of the scenery of upper Bavaria.

A portrait in black and white of Mr. Thomas Crane has been hung in the newly established branch reading room at West Quincy. A set of encyclopaedias, a dictionary, atlas, gabetteer, and other reference books may now be found there and will undoubtedly be useful as the evenings grow cooler and longer and the time of study begins.

See notice in another column for the change of hours at the central library.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

Another month will see all the women's club busy again with social meetings and the routine of helpful work. In fact in the larger clubs the only cessation through the summer has been in the social life for much good work has gone steadily forward through the warm weather, as witness the children's gardens, playgrounds and summer schools and visiting nursing. While only a few have been busy in this work the opening of the season in October will find all the vacationists back and ready for club activities.

* * *

The Philergians of Braintree begin their season on Oct. 4 with a social at Cochato hall. There will be monologues by Mrs. Belle Temple Priest, music, reception and tea. They are also to have a season of evening as well as afternoon meetings.

* * *

The Women's Missionary societies of the Wollaston Baptist church resume meetings Sept. 21 with Mrs. J. P. Perry of 12 Marion street as the hostess and Mrs. James McWhinnie as the speaker. Alaska will be the subject.

* * *

Local clubs studying forestry conditions are notified that a handbook has been issued by the forestry department as a guide and help in the study of the subject. The handbook may be obtained from the chairman, Mrs. Fred H. Tucker, 216 Church street, Newton, at a small price of a quarter of a dollar. The handbook was prepared especially for the Massachusetts club women.

* * *

One of the first clubs to begin its social season is the Ladies' Library Association of Randolph of which Mrs. Henry A. Belcher is president, the first meeting being called for Wednesday evening, Sept. 14. At this meeting plans will be made for entertainments at future meetings.

* * *

A new club is to be formed in Quincy this season, a chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The movement was started by members of the Susanna Tufts Chapter of Weymouth, who live in Quincy and think it would be more convenient to have a home chapter. The new chapter will hold monthly meetings and its work will be of a patriotic nature similar to that of Adams Chapter D. R., which was organized about fifteen years ago.

* * *

Mothers Association of which Mrs. John D. Mackay is president does not resume meetings until October 5 when Dr. D. A. Sargent, director of the School for Physical Training at Cambridge will be the speaker his subject being, "The Importance of Training the Child's Body."

* * *

The programme arranged by the executive board of the Whitman Woman's Club for this season promises to be one of the finest ever given before the club. Among the entertainers who have been secured are Mrs. Christobel Kidder, dramatic reader; Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd, lecturer; Robert L. O'Brien, who will give an address; Hon. Arthur K. Peck, lecturer; George Kiernan, dramatic reader and Emily Farrow Gregory, who will give a recital of southern songs.

At the opening meeting of the Rockland Woman's Club in October Miss Grace Chamberlain of Cambridge will give dramatic readings. Her reading of "The Servant in the House" gave pleasure to many clubs last season.

* * *

At the meeting of the dierctors of the Brockton Woman's Club last week with the president, Mrs. C. S. Millet, there were reports from the committees which indicate that the club is at the beginning of one of the most successful seasons since its organization. The entertainment features that have already been secured and those that the club is trying to secure are among the best that teh club has ever had here, which is saying a good deal, for the club has never spared expense in getting talent for its entertainments. Guest night is one of the gala events of the club season and for that night the club is trying to get Irving Batchelder, author of "Eben Holden" and other popular works, to deliver a lecture. Mr. Batchelder is an entertaining speaker, delivering what he has to say in much the same way as he expresses himself in his books. Another of the entertainment features is the address which is to be given by Ex-Gov. Curtis Guild, who will speak on "Forestry." Besides Madame Alda it is assured that some of the other talent that will be in the club programme will be musical.—Brockton Enterprise.

"What is Worth While in Club life is an interesting subject to any woman who is a member of a club, and Mrs. David O. Mears, first vice president of the National Congress of Mothers, explained the advantages of such a membership at the General Federation meeting saying in part: "Many things in club life are worth while.

"First, the comradeship, the cooperation, the working together of the members, the greeting of old friends, the making of new. Women who have heretofore exerted their influence as scattered units in our great social organizm, are learning to co-operate, to forget personal prejudices and aims, in helpful endeavor for the greatest good to the greatest number.

"Not the least important among the indirect results of club organization is this lesson women are learning by experience of the greater value of 'working together' of united unselfish effort for the welfare of the community.

"It has been thought that with the entrance of women into club life, the whole domestic structure must totter and fall, but the domestic structure stands firmly. Domestic life, in its larger meaning, includes whatever guards and promotes the welfare of the family. The wise woman of today not only looketh well to the ways of her household' in the matter of food and clothing, as portrayed by King Solomon of old, but her intelligence and care extend also to many other matters fundamental to the well-being of the family circle. She considers the purity of the water supply, the quality of the milk, the value of fresh air, light and heat, and the general sanitary condition of her dwelling.

"Club life gives a breadth of vision, largeness of sympathy, a proper balancing of essentials and non-essentials, develops latent powers hitherto

WESTERN MANHOOD AND WOMANHOOD

Type Being Produced Pins Roosevelt's Faith In West

Horace, Kan., Aug. 31.—Through the heart of Colorado and into the western edge of Kansas, Theodore Roosevelt traveled Tuesday on one of the longest jumps of his western tour. He left his train only once, at Pueblo, Col., to lay the corner stone of the Young Men's Christian association building.

The people who turned out to see the ex-president and hear his three-minute rear platform speechs were as cordial as those who met him on former days of his trip.

The points made by the colonel were:

"The eastern man is not fully educated until he gets west of the Missouri river. I pin my faith in the west because I believe in the type of manhood and womanhood you are producing.

"I put the veteran of the great war ahead of every other citizen, but I put the woman who has made him a good wife ahead of them all.

"We must insist in not only getting justice, but in doing justice.

"Do not base your hopes of governmental success on a genius, but seek to develop a broad manhood."

BRIEFS

It is not too late to get a ticket for the Board of Trade outing for Friday.

Mr. Alfred Bean has been enjoying his vacation with Mrs. Bean and little daughter Beryl at Limerick, Maine.

The mercury dropped down near 50 last night and it was decidedly cool this morning.

Mrs. O. F. Clark of Brewers corner has returned from visiting relatives and friends in Maine.

A party of Quincy ladies started on the steamship trip to Provincetown this morning. They had lots of courage.

Mrs. Stetson Pierce of Newcomb square and Miss Marion White of Union street left Tuesday for a sojourn at the White mountains.

Mrs. Walter Held of Beale street who has been at Lovell lake, Sanbornville, N. H., in camp with friends returned last week.

Mark W. Gordon who has been the guest of friends in this city for a few days has returned to his home in Stonington, Maine.

Arthur F. Eastman aged seven years son of Mr. Fred L. Eastman 316 Beale street, while in camp with his grandparents and other relatives at Lovell lake, Sanbornville, N. H., caught a black bass last week weighing over two pounds. Some fishermen well versed in the art when they saw what he had landed shouted "good boy."

Mrs. George Blaisdell of Neponset, formerly of Quincy entertained Mr. and Mrs. Everett Heminway and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fuller of South Framingham and Mr. and Mrs. Granville Fiske of Ashland over Sunday. Mr. Fiske is the Senior Vice Department Commander of the G. A. R. of Massachusetts.

Would-Be Slayer Is Slain

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—C. P. Welch, a discharged special agent of the Great Northern Railway company, entered the office of Chief Special Agent Ray and fired five shots at him, but missed him each time. Ray shot Welch dead.

Worried Over Failing Sight

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 31.—Fearing that she was becoming blind, Mrs. Harriet Thayer, aged 60, committed suicide by hanging herself from the bedpost in her chamber with one of her husband's neckties.

Four Russian Dreadnaughts

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—The Bourse Gazette announces that the admiralty is planning to build four dreadnaughts for the Black sea fleet.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

ESTRADA CABINET FORMED

Many Prominent Persons Under Arrest In Nicaraguan Capital

Managua, Aug. 31.—Provisional President Jose Estrada, arm-in-arm with General Chamorro and accompanied by 15,000 persons, marched to the palace upon his arrival here. Shortly afterward a new cabinet of Conservatives who enjoy public confidence was appointed.

Many arrests of prominent persons, charged with conspiracy, have been made. Among those taken into custody are Felix P. Zelaya, former minister of finance, and Jose D. Gomez, former minister of public works during the regime of President Zelaya; Miguel and Tomas Bermudez, merchants, and Francisco Torres, the notorious governor of Rama in 1894.

The police also endeavored to serve a warrant on Manuel C. Matus, a prominent Liberal congressman and journalist, but as they approached to hand him the document he placed the barrel of his revolver in his mouth and blew out his brains.

CONCEALS HER IDENTITY

Young Woman Takes Her Life With Pistol In a Boston Hotel

Boston, Aug. 31.—A refined looking woman, between the ages of 28 and 35, who registered at Young's hotel Sunday under the name of "Clara E. Moulton, Beverly," was found shot through the heart in her room at the hotel yesterday. She had committed suicide, a brief note ascribing ill health as the cause.

The police think that the woman was a resident of this city and are now conducting an investigation for the purpose of learning her identity.

The woman's clothing was neat but inexpensive and circumstances denoted that illness and straightened circumstances influenced the tragedy.

KAISER AGAIN TALKS IN RELIGIOUS VEIN

Presents Koenigsberg Speech In a Different Light

Danzig, Aug. 31.—Emperor William, at a dinner in the castle at Marienburg, the old seat of the Knights of Malta, given in his honor, made a speech which was a counterpart of that delivered last week at Konigsburg. Taking up the religious vein of the Konigsburg speech he said:

"When I represented myself, like my sainted grandfather, as being under the protection of the Highest and working under the highest commission of our Lord and God, I assumed that every honest Christian, whoever he might be, did the same.

"Whoever works in this spirit knows well that the cross imposes obligations. We should hold together in brotherly love, and we should leave to each race its peculiarities. The races and trade organizations should join hands for common work and for meeting the state's necessities.

"Let the farmer join hands with the merchant and the latter with the manufacturer; let the members of one party join hands with those of a different mind for achieving great things for the fatherland."

NEW HAMPSHIRE SHAKEN

Shock Causes Much Excitement, but No Damage Is Reported

Newport, N. H., Aug. 31.—An earth shock caused considerable excitement in this section of New Hampshire Tuesday, but did no damage. In this town residents felt a distinct trembling of the earth and dishes rattled on the shelves of houses.

The shock lasted for three seconds. It was accompanied by a loud noise resembling thunder. The whole region about Lake Sunapee was shaken, and the summer cottagers were somewhat alarmed.

MAJOR BATHBONE DYING

Man Stabbed In Trying to Save Lincoln's Life Is a Murderer

Hanover, Ger., Aug. 31.—Major Henry R. Rathbone, who was an aide to President Lincoln and received a stab wound in attempting to save the life of his chief on the night of the assassination, is near death in the criminal ward of the insane asylum at Hildesheim, of which he has long been an inmate.

Many years ago, while occupying the post of American consul here, Rathbone murdered his wife.

Millionaire Kills Himself

New York, Aug. 31.—Sol J. Hirsch, a millionaire clothing manufacturer of Chicago, killed himself by cutting his throat with a razor while sitting at a desk in the Hotel Knickerbocker. Continued ill health was the cause of his act.

Dynamite Didn't Hurt Stone

Kittanning, Pa., Aug. 31.—Alexander Burkitt, aged 17, found a dynamite cap and placed it on a stone, hitting it with a hammer. The stone is still there, but Burkitt lost his right hand.

Philadelphia Faces Strike

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—Unless their demands for an increase in wages of 5 cents an hour is granted more than 1700 painters and decorators in this city will go on strike.

UNDESIRABLES FLEE IN PANIC

Police Who Mean Business Watching Coney Island

MITCHEL'S BOMBSHELL SCORES

Justified In Declaring the Place Vicious and an "Affront to Public Decency" —Acting Mayor Satisfied That Questionable Places Were Given Police Protection Under Inspector O'Brien —Purification Begun In Earnest

New York, Aug. 31.—Coney Island is purified. The grafters, pickpockets, "strong arm" men and women, who have thrived there all summer, have fled in panic because of the activity of the police as a result of the raking over the coals that Acting Mayor Mitchel gave them. The "short changing" of persons in certain hotels has ceased, and a number of questionable resorts along certain side streets have closed up.

Inspector Russell, who was transferred from the head of the detective bureau to remain in charge of Coney Island until the closing after the Mardi Gras, declares that the "lid" will be kept down the rest of the season and wholesale arrests made if undesirable characters make their appearance again.

Acting Mayor Mitchel dropped a bombshell into the island when he declared that the resort was vicious and that it was an "affront to public decency." It was readily admitted by the proprietors of the leading resorts that the police had been exceedingly lax and they were glad that Mitchel had taken steps to improve conditions.

Mr. Mitchel has issued orders to the police to stop the practice of women performers in the concert halls mingling with the audience in what is known as the "green room" and inducing them to buy alleged champagne, for which they were charged $5 a bottle and which in most instances was plain cider, highly charged, and costing the proprietor from 25 to 50 cents. The girls received a percentage on every bottle sold.

Inspector Russell, Deputy Police Commissioner Reynolds of Brooklyn, and Acting Captain Robinson, who has been transferred to the island from the Macdougal street station, who are known as the "Three R's," will look after the island until its closing on Sept. 20. Robinson is on the list for promotion to inspectorship. His record at Coney Island will have much to do with his promotion.

Inspector O'Brien, whose transfer was practically ordered by Mitchel, has been reduced to the rank of captain and sent to the Macdougal street station. O'Brien had many friends at Coney Island. Years ago he used to be a lieutenant there.

The conditions at Coney, according to all those engaged in running reputable amusement enterprises there, have been such as to demand just such a rattling as occurred. Mitchel said:

"I made an investigation at Coney Island because I wished to find out whether the police there were giving protection to questionable places. I am satisfied that some resorts were flourishing because they had police protection."

The acting mayor, asked whether his attention had been called to conditions in other sections of the city, said he had received some complaints against the Tenderloin and other sections. Mitchel said he was prepared to enforce the laws, even to the extent of taking drastic action wherever necessary.

PERISHED ON MOORS

Discovery of Body of Lady Marjorie Erskine, Missing For a Month

Glasgow, Aug. 31.—The body of a woman, on which there was a large sum of money, found on the Scottish moors, has been identified as that of Lady Marjorie Erskine, second daughter of the Earl of Buchan.

Lady Erskine was a popular society woman. She had been missing for a month. The condition of the body makes it difficult to discover the cause of her death. There is no evidence of foul play, however, and it is believed she lost her way in the moors and died of exposure.

MAKES SURE OF DEATH

Suicide Displays Persistency Worthy of a Better Cause

Pittsburg, Aug. 31.—Tired of life, John Miller, aged 40, of Braddock, displayed unusual persistency in ending his existence.

He soaked the heads of matches in water and drank the mixture. He then ate rat poison and when he still found himself living, he drank carbolic acid, which killed him.

"Hamilton Mabie, a recognized apostle of culture, has said that 'women's clubs are one of the most efficient instrumentalities of culture in our time,' while Hon. Carroll D. Wright, when chief of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington, affirmed that 'women's clubs of the period, with their classes for the intelligent study of the great questions of the day, are creating a new political economy.'

"Women's clubs are not only 'instrumentalities of culture,' they not only help to 'create a new political economy,' but they mark an era of progress in the most important science in the world—that of wise happy home-making.

"No one can gainsay that to be a true home-maker is the most sacred duty of wife and mother. No career, however honored, can equal home-making in dignity and importance. The higher education, the broadening of woman's influence, should bring to the home additional strength and beauty of character, purpose and devotion. But cannot the woman most devoted to her home engage to some extent in social philanthropic and religious interests, which shall bring development to herself and enrichment to her own fireside?

"'Back of every crime is the story of a neglected child.' 'If she is only half a mother, who does not see her own child's grief in every pain that causes another child to weep,' can the true mother be indifferent to the heart-rending cries of the neglected, dependent, helpless, sorrowing, little ones of earth? Can she turn a deaf ear to their plaintive appeals?

"We hear of little children, hungry and ill, being locked in a room all day, while their mothers are forced to go from home to seek their daily bread, and then we learn of the little charred bodies taken from the tenement houses. The mother heart of world is touched and, as a result, day nurseries, free kindergartens and playgrounds established, to give joy to many a sorrowful mother and child. Our hearts are wrung by the pitiful stories of wee children going forth to work from early morning to late at night. Their cries are heard; industrial conditions are investigated and improved and merciful child labor laws are passed. We hear of children bereft of father or mother, either by death or desertion, placed in the charge of wicked men and women, who send them forth to lie, beg or steal.

"When arrested the children were placed in jail with hardened criminals and their comparatively innocent lives became wrecked. In some states philanthropic people have secured a juvenile court law, that these youthful offenders may have the care and supervision of a kind police matron and be given an opportunity to change their mode of life.

"These are but a few of the many efforts to secure practical betterment of social conditions which have been initiated and fostered by the woman's clubs. The hearts of woman always responds to the cry of need, whether in the individual or in the mass. The organized co-operative work of the clubs has been the link between the individual woman in her own home and the need and suffering of the great world beyond the sphere of her personal life, of which in the past she too often has been ignorant. Her noble response to this appeal, we see today in the rising tidal wave of effort setting toward the uplifting of wretched, suffering humanity everywhere. The club movement is thus well worth while for the living interests which engross its members."

BANKER TRIES TO END HIS LIFE

Former Treasurer Ingersoll Vainly Slashes His Throat

IS WEAK, BUT WILL RECOVER

Indignation of Press and Public Aroused by Fact That No Attempt Has Been Made to Arrest Any Official Connected With Biddeford's Failed Institution—Ingersoll Will Be Closely Watched In the Future

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 21.—Richmond H. Ingersoll, deposed treasurer of the York County Savings bank, who almost simultaneously with the announcement that the bank shortage would reach $300,000 attempted to take his own life by cutting his throat, is under close surveillance.

He will be kept so until the bank examination is completed and the officials have decided on the course which they are to pursue in the case.

For the present, members of a fraternal order in which Ingersoll held high office will act as watchers, a man being kept constantly at the bedside.

Although Ingersoll is still in a very weak condition from loss of blood his physician is satisfied that he will recover with proper care. It is declared that the man is a mental wreck.

The fact that Ingersoll has not been placed under arrest and that at no time since his first attempt to commit suicide has there been any attempt to make an arrest of Ingersoll or any other official connected with the bank, has aroused the indignation of the people.

Now that Ingersoll has been allowed to wander about the house, attempting suicide for a second time in the basement of his home, the act being performed with a dull razor, the press and the people are criticizing most severely the authorities that allow such conditions to exist.

Three weeks ago, when the defalcation was discovered, authorities who went to his home and found him lying on his sofa unconscious from the effects of a big dose of morphine. Ingersoll has been sick since that time.

It is understood that Ingersoll has been without a keeper most of the time since his first attempt to commit suicide. The opinion is now expressed that if he had not made this second attempt to end his life many would have believed his statement in the note left in his desk, and afterward reiterated to the bank officers who called upon him, that the deficit was due to poor investments for the bank.

Bank Examiner Skelton, who is conducting the investigation into the affairs of the closed bank, says that he expects to have another supplementary statement ready within a few days, and that later, when his work is finished and he and the officials know just how matters stand, a full statement telling just when the shortage in the bank funds started and how it was covered up by the treasurer and other matters which have puzzled the depositors from the first will be discussed.

WARNS AGAINST EQUALITY

Pope Declares It to Be Doctrine of a False Democracy

Rome, Aug. 31.—Pope Pius has ordered the dissolution of the Sillon society, a powerful French organization of young Catholics, which was inaugurated during the pontificate of Pope Leo XIII for work among the masses, with the object of reconciling them with the church.

In a letter to the French episcopate the pontiff says that the society is propagating "a false dream of democracy and the equality of man—a principle contrary to nature, a generator of jealousy and subversive of social order."

The Sillon society has many ramifications among workingmen's organizations.

NO TROUBLE EXPECTED

Opinion That Korea Will Be Benefited by Annexation to Japan

Seoul, Aug. 31.—The proclamation of the annexation of Korea by Japan was made public without ceremony. It was quietly received by the populace, the news already having been discounted. No fear is expressed that disturbances will follow.

The missionaries express no doubt that the annexation will be well received throughout the country and that the natives will be given good treatment by the Japanese.

Evangelist Takes a Bride

Providence, Aug. 31.—The marriage of Rev. Dr. J. W. Chapman, the evangelist, and Miss Mabel C. Moulton, took place at the home of the bride in this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Elijah Hanley of the First Baptist church.

SQUANTUM !?

(EVER HEAR OF THE PLACE?)

IS A PART OF QUINCY !?

¶ It is not under water nor a hundred miles from Boston. In a short time (through the kindness of the City Fathers) you will be able to get there without swimming or fear of drowning.

¶ It has some city water, some electric lights, and telephone connections for such as pay for it. Also electric cars visit this place occasionally, with five cent fares from all parts of Quincy.

¶ With the above information would you risk the price (5 cents) and take a journey to the wild domains of this unexplored region?

¶ As a minor side attraction it might be mentioned that the Harvard Aviation Field is located here, on which a few pennies are being expended preparing the grounds and a few more may possibly be expended during the meet, Sept. 3rd. to 13th.

¶ Finally, though perhaps of less importance, the undersigned begs to add that he has a few (hundred)

LOTS OF LAND

overlooking sea and country, islands and bays, dotted with beautiful shade trees and bounded by sandy beaches, cool healthful and restful, which he wishes to transfer to sojourners for only a fraction of their value.

ALLEGED PICKPOCKET

Jacob Herman Has a Hearing In Quincy Court

A hearing was held before Judge Avery in the district court this morning in the case of Jacob Herman, on a complaint sworn out by Inspector McKay, charging him with being a pickpocket.

Herman is alleged to be the man who was with Henry Miller who was arrested at Houghs Neck on the night of July 21 after a lively chase.

The two men are alleged to have attempted to pick the pocket of Michael J. Walsh on a car from Brockton just as it arrived in Quincy. Walsh had $38 in his pocket and when he felt a hand inside his pocket he grabbed it. At that it is said Miller and his companion pushed him off the car and then lost themselves in the crowd.

A young boy saw the act and accompanied Inspector McKay to Houghs Neck when he pointed out Miller. When the latter saw Inspector McKay he started to run and again lost himself by jumping fences and running through back yards. Shortly after Inspector McKay again spotted Miller and arrested him.

Herman is said to have been Miller's companion in the scrape, and the one who got away, but was later captured by Inspector McKay in Boston. Miller was arraigned in court the following day and held under bonds for further hearing. He however jumped his bail and never came back.

After the hearing this morning the case against Herman was continued until Thursday morning at which time it was intimated he would be held for the grand jury.

TODAY'S COURT.

Harold B. Hatch and Gorham Brooks were fined $10 each, and Theodore W. Ely, $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton. Brooks took an appeal.

Archie J. McLennan was sent to the State farm for being a tramp at Quincy.

BRIEFS

Mrs. Adelaide McGrath, patriotic instructor of Paul Revere W. R. C., accompanied by several members is to visit the Soldiers' Home at Chelsea Thursday, leaving City square at ten o'clock.

Mr and Mrs Edward E Hoxie of Wollaston have issued invitations for the marriage reception of their daughter Lillian Ellsworth and Mr George Henry Moodie on Wednesday evening Sept. 14.

In events 10, 11 and 12, which are the speed, duration and slow lap contests, the number of trial is not to exceed nine for each event, and are also to be made at such times as the contest committee may determine.

Officer Goodhue went on the warpath for automobile speeders on Adams street again Tuesday and captured seven more who were hitting up a rapid pace. Since Saturday he has captured 14 speeders on Adams street. They will all be brought into court.

Opening the course for amateur eliminating trials from thirty minutes before sunrise until noon, and for amateur events from noon until 2 P. M., when the course will be open exclusively for professionals, unless there is time at other hours to permit the entrance of amateurs.

Horace G. Kearny, the Kansas City aviator, did not succeed in making a flight from the Harvard field in Quincy on Tuesday, but will try again today. Cromwell Dixon also expects to make a flight today or tomorrow. A Curtiss biplane has arrived on the field and others are expected today.

The City Clerk is being besieged by applications for licenses to run carriages of the aviation field and for licenses to run lunch counters etc in that immediate vicinity. All such licenses are granted by the City Council and the meet will be all over before that body convens.

INCREASE OF IMMIGRANTS.

Director Gettemy says that in 1909 61,197 immigrants arrived who declared that they intended to remain in Massachusetts. This was an increase of 3,894 over the preceding year. They were divided as follows: Italians, 14,700; Polish, 8151; Irish, 5639; French, 4383; English, 4379; Hebrew, 3667; Greek, 3202; Portuguese, 2897; and Lithuanian, 2612. In August this year there was a marked increase.

DOCTORS ISOLATE LEPROSY GERMS

Science Finally Finds a Way to Produce Vaccine

Washington, Aug. 31.—Leprosy is making what is believed to be its last stand against science. From Molokai, the island prison for the plague stricken in the Hawaiian group, word has reached Washington of the achievement accounted second only to the discovery of the lepra bacillus by Professor Hansen in 1879.

Three surgeons of the United States public health and marine hospital service, after months of unremitting toil, have grown lepra bacilli in pure culture outside the human body. In tiny thin glass tubes in the laboratory the loathsome germs are now growing in their third generation.

This achievement of the scientists is the first step in the production of a vaccine or a serum for the cure or prevention of leprosy. It is hoped a leprosin to detect the disease in its early stages may be found.

FINISHES WELL IN LEAD

Great Trotting Derby Is Won by Bob Douglas, a Stallion, In 2:29

Readville, Mass., Aug. 31.—Bob Douglas, 2:06, the gray stallion owned by D. N. C. Hyams of Boston, won the great American Derby at Readville. He was driven by Lon McDonald. His time was 2:29.

Oxford Boy, 2:17¼, owned by F. X. Nolette of Somersworth, N. H., and Alice Roosevelt, owned by W. J. Moff of New York and driven by Tom Murphy, finished third, and Lotta Crabtree's Sonoma Girl, starting from scratch with Bob Douglas, finished fourth.

Mr. Hyams drew down $5000 after his lanky gray stallion flashed under the wire; $2500 went to the second, $1500 to third and $1000 to fourth.

"OUR NEXT PRESIDENT"

Boom Is Started For Sherman In the Ozark Mountains

Springfield, Mo., Aug. 31.—Marshfield, in the Ozark mountains, is the birthplace of a presidential boom for Vice President Sherman, launched by Congressman Murphy, representing the Sixth Missouri district in congress. In introducing Mr. Sherman the congressman said:

"I wish to introduce to you the Vice President of the United States, whom I regard as our next president." Sherman seemed surprised, but the audience applauded heartily.

SPORTING NOTES.

Well, well, what about Quincy now? Eleven hits, eleven runs and the pennant cinched. Quincy has three more games to play; one each against Dewey, Randolph and Lincoln, of these the only home game is against Lincoln on Labor Day afternoon. If they loose all three the percentage will stand 631 and if Dewey and Randolph win all of their three games they will stand .647 and .611 respectively, Randolph having no show. However, Dewey plays Quincy, Stoughton and Rockland. If Dewey loses one game their average will be .588, which will be lower than Quincy can possibly go.

• • •

Shimmer O'Brien is the real goods with the bat. He got two hits, the second of which cut the grass in Murphy's domain at tremendous speed. Lot's of people who think they know the game say that he was pounded. Pounded forsooth, the fact that his fielders had plenty of work shows that he has a head; only raw recruits try to mow them down, and Shimmer is no recruit. It is surely a hum game trying for strikeouts. What are the rest of the boys for—to look at?

• • •

The Atlantics and Makaria teams are to try it again on the morning of Labor day, when a closer contest is promised. Game will be called at the Atlantic field at 10.30.

• • •

An open regatta under the auspices of the Lynn Yacht club is scheduledfor Labor day off Bass Point.

• • •

Sunday, Sept. 11, is the date for the annual rendezvous and parade of the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts. It is expected that 200 yachts will assemble in Hull bay and at 2.15 sail for Boston.

• • •

It does seem unreasonable to expect a man to go through a summer without friends for the small salary paid a baseball umpire.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

• • •

Uhlan did not succeed on Tuesday in lowering his record of 2.01 at Readville, but went in 2.02 1-2 A Boston paper says of the big derby: "Sonoma Girl was in third place at the three-quarter pole, and one could hear the great sobs of the courageous mare who, not in the pink of condition any longer, was breaking he rheart to win. Alice Roosevelt beat out Sonoma Girl for third place at the wire, and was the only "favorite" to finish in the money. Teaser winding up in 11th place and even losing out to Jim Ferry, who was tenth."

NEW CANDIDATE.

Ex-Councilman Nathan G. Nickerson informed the Daily Ledger this noon that he was to enter the coming caucuses as a candidate for Representative to the General Court from the Sixth district which comprises Wards Four, Five and Six. This district is now represented by Louis F. R. Langelier, who it is understood, is also a candidate.

THE QUINCY DISTRICT.

The Daily Ledger is informed by a representtive of the New England Telephone Co. that the article in Tuesday's Ledger in relation to the proposed new telephone rates is somewhat misleading. He stated that while Quincy was in what is known as the G class of group it does not mean that these are the exchanges with which telephone communication may be had without a toll charge.

The fact in brief, is that the Quincy district in which free telephone communication may be had by subscribers includes the exchanges at Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton and Dorchester. He also stated that Quincy was within the eight mile zone, and could therefore connect with Boston subscribers for five cents instead of ten cents as now.

POLICE STOP PICKETING

Cloak Makers Will Seek to Reverse the Decision of Goff

New York, Aug. 31.—Announcement was made at the headquarters of the striking cloak makers here that Alton B. Parker, one time Democratic presidential candidate, had been retained as special counsel for the union.

He is to seek a reversal by the higher courts of the recent decision of Justice Goff holding the purpose of the strike to be illegal in that it demanded the closed shop and the enjoining of the strikers.

Judge Parker is of the opinion that the Goff decree is too sweeping, as it forbids the right of peaceful assembly and free speech.

The broad effect of Goff's ruling became apparent yesterday when it was announced that picketing of the factories will be stopped by the police.

CURTIS GUILD, JR.

Represents United States at Mexico's Celebration

INDEPENDENCE CELEBRATION

Draws Vast Crowds of Americans to Mexico City

GUILD IS OUR AMBASSADOR

United States Officials Formally Received by Foreign Minister—Patriotic Souvenirs Sent by Many Governments In Honor of Hundredth Anniversary of Freedom From Spanish Rule—Surprise For Peons

Mexico City, Aug. 31.—Clubs and hotels here are filled by Americans who have flocked into the city to see the opening of the month-long celebration of the 100th anniversary of the independence of Mexico from Spanish rule. Not alone among the watchers, but in the formal observance of the anniversary, many Americans are to take a leading part.

Curtis Guild, Jr., one time governor of Massachusetts, is here as the special ambassador from the United States. He represents President Taft. Several United States senators and representatives and distinguished men from civil life have also been sent here as a commission to represent the United States officially. Living apartments have been allotted to them by President Diaz in the Cobian palace.

Members of the American commission have presented their credentials to Enrique C. Creel, minister of foreign relations. The presentation of the special ambassadors to the president will differ but slightly from the presentation of permanent ambassadors. Guild and those from other countries will receive full military honors.

Some of Guild's official companions will be Karl Buenz, representing the kaiser, who will unveil Germany's gift to the republic, a staue of Baron Alexander von Humboldt, and Marquis Capece di Burgano, representing Italy.

Spain has sent back as her gift to her rebellious offspring the uniform of the Mexican patriot, General Jose Maria Morelos, and some captured battle flags. The special ambassador from King Alfonso will present these relics to the president in person.

The Sultan of Turkey has built a clock tower in the city and China has sent a gift by her special ambassador.

France, too, will return to the republic a relic of great historical and sentimental interest to all patriotic Mexicans. It will restore the silver keys to the city of Puebla., which were taken in 1863 by General Forey, who commanded the French army of intervention that took Puebla after a long resistance and then moved on to Mexico City to enthrone Maximilian.

Americans who have been here before will scarcely recognize the city. Every building is draped with the national colors and brilliantly lighted. Miles of lights have been strung in the parks and the principal streets. The strangest thing of all will be the absence of the picturesque peon, whose garments consist of a little cloth, many rents and much dirt.

No one, according to the government's edict, can appear on the streets during the celebration except in conventional American garb. Clothes must be whole and faces clean. To insure that even the peons appear clean, to which they are generally as averse as ever was Tom Sawyer, the city has provided free baths and laundries. It has also established places where the peon can get free hair cuts and free shaves. If he doesn't he will miss the celebration, except such of it as may be seen from the calaboose.
